standing their lives (6.12). This section uses the word “good/better” (Heb “tob”) nine times, but the repetition of “better than” sayings is ironic, since one does not know for certain what is better. By juxtaposing traditional wisdom literature forms and content (cf. 7.1a) with striking affirmations of death’s superiority to life (cf. 7.1b), Qohelet reframes traditional wisdom and undermines notions of a benevolent cosmic order. 6.11–12: The implied answers to these questions are negative. Because the human lifespan is limited, people cannot know the long-term effects of their actions and thus cannot determine what is better. Qohelet underscores the role of death in this impossibility of knowing (see also 3.21; 7.14). 7:1: The first poetic line cleverly plays on the words name (Heb “shem”) and ointment (“shemen”), so that the line sounds like it repeats or mirrors itself (“tob shem mishemen tob”). The high value of a good reputation is a traditional wisdom observation (cf. Prov 22.1). Contrary to Qohelet, traditional wisdom exalts life (the day of birth) over death (cf. Prov 8.35–36). But here Qohelet’s critique of traditional wisdom is most radical: since one’s reputation is only fully established after death, the day of death must be better. 2–4: Qohelet draws further, shocking conclusions from the logical implications of the traditional wisdom teaching in v. 1. If a memorialized name is better than celebratory oil, then a funeral (house of mourning) is better than a wedding (house of feasting, v. 2), and likewise sorrow excels laughter (v. 3), as mourning surpasses joy (mirth, v. 4). 3: Heart is made glad: since the Heb word “leb” literally means heart, but primarily indicates the capacity for thought, and the word translated glad is “tob” (“good,” “better”), the words might be translated “makes the mind better.” Meditation upon death, which is the common denominator of humanity (v. 2), sharpens mental acumen. 5–7: These sayings focus on folly and seem to hew more closely to traditional wisdom. Yet the awkward insertion of this also is vanity (v. 6) is ambiguous, and disturbs the passage’s clarity. This phrase could describe the laughter of fools, but it could introduce Qohelet’s uncertainty about any distinction between the foolish and the wise (cf. 6.12). In v. 7 oppression turns the wise into the foolish, which underscores the instability of these categories. 8–9: Qohelet returns to the claim that the end (i.e., death) is preferable to the beginning, and thus the patient who wait to render judgment excel those anxious to jump to conclusions, as in v. 9. Proud in spirit, better “anxious.” 10: This saying inverts the nostalgic preference for the former days found in traditional wisdom literature (e.g., Job 8.8–10; 15.7; Sir 39.1), and suggests that personified Wisdom herself does not encourage a quest to recover a pristine past (contrast Prov 8.22–31). Qohelet consistently reorients the wise toward endings rather than beginnings (cf. v. 8). 11–12: These sayings reiterate traditional teachings about Wisdom, saying that she is as precious and even more life-giving than money (cf.

and the advantage of knowledge is that wisdom gives life to the one who possesses it.

¹³ Consider the work of God; who can make straight what he has made crooked?

¹⁴ In the day of prosperity be joyful, and in the day of adversity consider; God has made the one as well as the other, so that mortals may not find out anything that will come after them.

¹⁵ In my vain life I have seen everything; there are righteous people who perish in their righteousness, and there are wicked people who prolong their life in their evil-doing. ¹⁶ Do not be too righteous, and do not act too wise; why should you destroy yourself? ¹⁷ Do not be too wicked, and do not be a fool; why should you die before your time? ¹⁸ It is good that you should take hold of the one, without letting go of the other; for the one who fears God shall succeed with both.

¹⁹ Wisdom gives strength to the wise more than ten rulers that are in a city.

²⁰ Surely there is no one on earth so righteous as to do good without ever sinning.

²¹ Do not give heed to everything that people say, or you may hear your servant cursing you; ²² your heart knows that many times you have yourself cursed others.

²³ All this I have tested by wisdom; I said, “I will be wise,” but it was far from me. ²⁴ That which is, is far off, and deep, very deep; who can find it out? ²⁵ I turned my mind to know and to search out and to seek wisdom and the sum of things, and to know that wickedness is folly and that foolishness is madness.

²⁶ I found more bitter than death the woman who is a trap, whose heart is snares and nets, whose hands are fetters; one who pleases God escapes her, but the sinner is taken by her.

²⁷ See, this is what I found, says the Teacher,^a adding one thing to another to find the sum, ²⁸ which my mind has sought repeatedly, but I have not found. One man among a thousand I found, but a woman among all these I have

^a Qoheleth, traditionally rendered Preacher

Prov 3.13–18; Job 28.15–19). Yet Qohelet’s anxiety concerning inheritance (cf. 2.18–23) reappears: Wisdom is only an advantage for the living (those who see the sun; see 1.14n.). The limited worth of money implies that wisdom also has its limits. 13–14: Ancient Israelite scribes associated “straightness” or “uprightness” with moral purity (Prov 11.5) and good teaching (Prov 8.8–9), and attributed the existence of “straight” teachings and actions to God’s activity (Prov 3.6). Evil human actions, by contrast, are responsible for crookedness (Prov 11.20; 21.8). But here, God has made the world crooked (lit., “made unjust”; cf. 1.15), and humans cannot fix it.

7.15–22: Do not seek pure, ideal things. Traditional wisdom assures students that righteous lives result in wealth and longevity, while the foolish quickly perish (cf. Prov 16.22). Surprisingly, Qohelet advises against striving for personal perfection, since overly righteous people tend towards self-destruction. Some level of personal moral failure is required to function in human society. 16: If you do not accept your own inevitable failures, you will destroy yourself. 17: One must not be overly wicked either, as foolishness often leads to premature death. 18–20: The one who fears God (see 5.7n.) will reject the search for pure righteousness, and accept both wisdom and folly as necessary parts of life. This will help one accept the failures of others as well, even a servant’s offhanded criticism. 19: Cf. Prov 21.22.

7.23–8.1: The frustrated search for cosmic meaning and order. This passage shares many themes and terms with the royal autobiography in 1.12–2.26. Qohelet embarks on a mental quest to comprehend the “sum” of the world, but finds instead that the world is fragmented, conflicted, with a dynamism that prevents it from being understood as a whole. 7.26: Some read this verse as a misogynistic attack against women in general. More likely, Qohelet alludes to the specific misogynist metaphors commonly found in wisdom literature that personify folly and wisdom as female icons. Folly appears as a bitter, “strange woman” (cf. Prov 5.3–4). Wisdom is described as bonds and fetters that sages should willingly seek (cf. Sir 6.24–31). Qohelet rejects both ideals in 7.16–17, only to admit that he pursued both wisdom and folly (7.25), before disparaging such pursuit as a trap. 27–28: Qohelet reiterates that to comprehend the world as a summative whole is impossible, not merely difficult. Like v. 26, some understand v. 28 as a general misogynistic statement about the rarity of wise men and the impossibility of a wise woman. In this passage, however, it may refer to the woman from v. 26. Thus, after initially assuming that he could not find Wisdom because she was “far off” (vv. 23–24), Qohelet concludes that not found.²⁹ See, this alone I found, that God made human beings straightforward, but they have devised many schemes.

8 Who is like the wise man?

And who knows the interpretation of a thing?

Wisdom makes one's face shine, and the hardness of one's countenance is changed.

² Keep^a the king's command because of your sacred oath. ³ Do not be terrified; go from his presence, do not delay when the matter is unpleasant, for he does whatever he pleases. ⁴ For the word of the king is powerful, and who can say to him, "What are you doing?" ⁵ Whoever obeys a command will meet no harm, and the wise mind will know the time and way. ⁶ For every matter has its time and way, although the troubles of mortals lie heavy upon them. ⁷ Indeed, they do not know what is to be, for who can tell them how it will be? ⁸ No one has power over the wind^b to restrain the wind,^b or power over the day of death; there is no discharge from the battle, nor does wickedness deliver those who practice it. ⁹ All this I observed, applying my mind to all that is done under the sun, while one person exercises authority over another to the other's hurt.

¹⁰ Then I saw the wicked buried; they used to go in and out of the holy place, and were praised in the city where they had done such things.^c This also is vanity. ¹¹ Because sentence against an evil deed is not executed speedily, the human heart is fully set to do evil. ¹² Though sinners do evil a hundred times and prolong their lives, yet I know that it will be well with those who fear God, because they stand in fear before him, ¹³ but it will not be well with the wicked, neither will they prolong their days like a shadow, because they do not stand in fear before God.

¹⁴ There is a vanity that takes place on earth, that there are righteous people who are treated according to the conduct of the wicked, and there are wicked people who are treated according to the conduct of the righteous. I said that this also is vanity. ¹⁵ So I commend enjoyment, for there is nothing better for people under the sun than to eat, and drink, and enjoy themselves, for this will

^a Heb I keep

^b Or breath

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

there is no such ideal Woman to be found (cf. Job 28 on the failed search for wisdom). 29: The conclusion of Qohelet's quest: since God made the world crooked (cf. 1.15; 7.13), the straightforward human being's attempts to understand it are doomed to failure (reading "sum of things" with the LXX, as in v. 25, for schemes). 8.1: Knowing that no one is certain how to interpret a thing (or "word," "matter") is itself wisdom, and enables one to enjoy life (makes one's face shine) and compels one to exchange arrogance (hardness of one's countenance) for humility.

8.2–9: The arbitrary powers and limitations of authority. Monarchs lack the humility taught in 8.1, so those working for royalty must obey without questioning. Yet no one, not even the king, knows what is to be or can forestall death or constrain conflict. Human authority pretends to ultimate power, which hurts people. 2: Sacred oath, an oath sworn in the name of God (Ex 22.11; 2 Sam 21.7; 1 Kings 2.43). 5b–7: Time and way, lit., "time and judgment" (cf. 3.1,16–17). There is a proper time and a proper judgment; unfortunately, no one knows when and how until after the fact. 8: Power over the wind to restrain it, or, "power over the (life-)breath to hold back the (life-)breath." No one has the power to avert death. No discharge from battle, that is, from death. No one can send a substitute to take his or her place.

8.10–17: God's arbitrary powers and the limitations of wisdom. Like human rulers (vv. 2–9), God makes decisions that seem arbitrary and unquestionable. For example, wicked people are powerful, praised, and properly buried in the same places where they committed atrocities (v. 10). Qohelet briefly affirms divine justice (vv. 12–13) but then asserts that human experience finds no evidence of it (v. 14). Instead of endorsing hedonism (cf. 2.1–26), however, Qohelet commends enjoyment (see 9.1–12n.) which can accompany people even amidst their toil (v. 15). Since God's work makes it impossible even for the wise to understand the world (vv. 16–17), enjoyment becomes possible once one sees that the world cannot make sense. 10: Holy place, a sanctuary, likely the Jerusalem Temple. Cf. Job 21.32–33. Vanity, 1.2n. 11: Cf. Job 21.19–21. 13: Like a shadow, a common image of transitoriness (6.12; Pss 102.11; 109.23; Job 8.9; 14.2; 17.7). 14: Vanity, in the sense of an incomprehensible situation. 15: Enjoyment, cf. 2.24; 3.13; 5.18; 9.7. The KJV famously translates "to eat, and to drink, and to be merry."

go with them in their toil through the days of life that God gives them under the sun.

¹⁶When I applied my mind to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done on earth, how one's eyes see sleep neither day nor night, ¹⁷then I saw all the work of God, that no one can find out what is happening under the sun. However much they may toil in seeking, they will not find it out; even though those who are wise claim to know, they cannot find it out.

9 All this I laid to heart, examining it all, how the righteous and the wise and their deeds are in the hand of God; whether it is love or hate one does not know. Everything that confronts them ²is vanity,^a since the same fate comes to all, to the righteous and the wicked, to the good and the evil,^b to the clean and the unclean, to those who sacrifice and those who do not sacrifice. As are the good, so are the sinners; those who swear are like those who shun an oath. ³This is an evil in all that happens under the sun, that the same fate comes to everyone. Moreover, the hearts of all are full of evil; madness is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead. ⁴But whoever is joined with all the living has hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion. ⁵The living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing; they have no more reward, and even the memory of them is lost. ⁶Their love and their hate and their envy have already perished; never again will they have any share in all that happens under the sun.

⁷Go, eat your bread with enjoyment, and drink your wine with a merry heart; for God has long ago approved what you do. ⁸Let your garments always be white; do not let oil be lacking on your head. ⁹Enjoy life with the wife whom you love, all the days of your vain life that are given you under the sun, because that is your portion in life and in your toil at which you toil under the sun. ¹⁰Whatever your hand finds to do, do with your might; for there is no work or thought or knowledge or wisdom in Sheol, to which you are going.

¹¹Again I saw that under the sun the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor bread to the wise, nor riches to the intelligent, nor favor to the skillful; but time and chance happen to them all. ¹²For no one can anticipate the time of disaster. Like fish taken in a cruel net, and like birds caught in a snare, so mortals are snared at a time of calamity, when it suddenly falls upon them.

¹³I have also seen this example of wisdom under the sun, and it seemed great to me.

¹⁴There was a little city with few people in it. A great king came against it and besieged it,

^a Syr Compare Gk: Heb Everything that confronts them ²is everything

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb lacks and the evil

9.1–12: Accept that life is finite, and find joy in passionate engagement. All humans die, no matter their accomplishments (vv. 1–3, 11–12), so everyone's life is equally "breath" (Heb "hebel"; cf. 1.2n.). Yet life is not worthless: life is preferable to death (vv. 4–6), even for those who suffer (a dog vs. a royal lion, v. 4). Since humans have limited life spans and no evident lasting rewards for good behavior, they need not measure themselves against universal standards of piety, wealth, or accomplishment. Instead, humans can immerse themselves in their intimate relationships, labor, leisure, and enjoyment of the material world (such as eating and drinking; vv. 7–9; cf. 2.24–26; 3.12–14, 22; 8.15; 11.6–10; 12.1). This is no exhortation to hedonism or resignation: the limitations of human life demand constant, passionate engagement in the activities that one finds compelling (v. 10). 2: Vanity, see 1.2n. The Heb (and LXX) reads "everything" instead of "vanity" (see textual note a), suggesting that what we can see, in all its incompleteness and continual change, is all there is: do not look to a transcendent plane to solve the universe's deep questions. As are the good . . . sinners: While evil and good are distinguishable in their effects, everyone dies. Ethical living does not earn lasting benefits. 4: Hope, better, "assurance." 7–10: A similar passage in the ancient Mesopotamian epic Gilgamesh suggests that the advice to enjoy life in the full knowledge of certain death was a piece of folk wisdom. Feasting rather than fasting, clean garments, anointing with oil, and sexual activity were associated with joy and the cessation of mourning (2 Sam 12.20, 24). 9: Wife, or "woman." Vain life, i.e., the ephemeral and uncontrollable nature of life. Sheol, the abode of the dead. 11: Qohelet refutes the cause-and-effect or act-consequence relationship central to traditional wisdom literature.

9.13–10.15: Parable and proverbs on wisdom and folly. 9.13–16: This example of wisdom refers to no known historical event. The point is that the difference between wisdom and folly does not guarantee that anything in building great siegeworks against it. ¹⁵ Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city. Yet no one remembered that poor man. ¹⁶ So I said, “Wisdom is better than might; yet the poor man’s wisdom is despised, and his words are not heeded.”

¹⁷ The quiet words of the wise are more to be heeded than the shouting of a ruler among fools.

¹⁸ Wisdom is better than weapons of war,
but one bungler destroys much good.

10 Dead flies make the perfumer’s ointment give off a foul odor;
so a little folly outweighs wisdom and honor.

² The heart of the wise inclines to the right, but the heart of a fool to the left.

³ Even when fools walk on the road, they lack sense,
and show to everyone that they are
fools.

⁴ If the anger of the ruler rises against you,
do not leave your post,
for calmness will undo great offenses.

⁵ There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, as great an error as if it proceeded from the ruler: ⁶ folly is set in many high places, and the rich sit in a low place. ⁷ I have seen slaves on horseback, and princes walking on foot like slaves.

⁸ Whoever digs a pit will fall into it;
and whoever breaks through a wall will be bitten by a snake.

⁹ Whoever quarries stones will be hurt by
them;
and whoever splits logs will be endangered by them.

¹⁰ If the iron is blunt, and one does not
whet the edge,
then more strength must be exerted;
but wisdom helps one to succeed.

¹¹ If the snake bites before it is charmed, there is no advantage in a charmer.

¹² Words spoken by the wise bring them favor,
but the lips of fools consume them.

¹³ The words of their mouths begin in foolishness,
and their talk ends in wicked madness;
¹⁴ yet fools talk on and on.

No one knows what is to happen, and who can tell anyone what the future holds?

¹⁵ The toil of fools wears them out, for they do not even know the way to town.

¹⁶ Alas for you, O land, when your king is a servant,^a
and your princes feast in the morning!

¹⁷ Happy are you, O land, when your king is a nobleman,
and your princes feast at the proper time—
for strength, and not for drunkenness!

¹⁸ Through sloth the roof sinks in, life will turn out differently because of them. 15–16: Delivered could be translated “might have delivered.” The parable may be about how a poor wise man’s advice was ignored because of his low socioeconomic status. 9.17–18: Two proverbs that comment directly on the parable. 10.1: A more general saying about how easily something valuable can be destroyed by something less valuable. 2: In many cultures the direction right is associated with positive things and left with negative ones (see Gen 48.13–18; but cf. Prov 3.16). 4: Leave . . . undo, the same Heb verb. 5–7: When so little can overtake so much, the world easily becomes topsy-turvy (see similar descriptions in Prov 30.21–23; Isa 3.4–5). The distress of wisdom writers that social orders should be overturned is also found in Egyptian and Mesopotamian texts. 8–11: Maxims describing experiences where one’s action unexpectedly proves harmful. The saying in 8a is similar to Prov 26.27a, where it suggests appropriate comeuppance to the schemer. In these maxims, however, the emphasis seems to be on the uncertain outcomes of actions, as v. 14 makes explicit (see 3.22; 6.12; 8.7).

^a Or a child

10.16–11.6: Living with risks. The vulnerability of a land to political arrangements is first addressed (10.16–20), then economic uncertainties and how best to cope (11.1–6). 10.16: Your king is a servant, or “your king is a boy.” The point is that an incompetent person has gained power (cf. 9.17–18; 10.5–6). 18–19: The house leaks, or “the house collapses”: this may be subversive political commentary in the guise of an innocuous proverb, since and through indolence the house leaks.

¹⁹ Feasts are made for laughter;
wine gladdens life,
and money meets every need.

²⁰ Do not curse the king, even in your thoughts, or curse the rich, even in your bedroom;
for a bird of the air may carry your voice,
or some winged creature tell the matter.

11 Send out your bread upon the waters,
for after many days you will get it back.

² Divide your means seven ways, or even eight, for you do not know what disaster may happen on earth.

³ When clouds are full,
they empty rain on the earth;
whether a tree falls to the south or to the north,
in the place where the tree falls, there it will lie.

⁴ Whoever observes the wind will not sow;
and whoever regards the clouds will not reap.

⁵ Just as you do not know how the breath comes to the bones in the mother's womb, so you do not know the work of God, who makes everything.

⁶ In the morning sow your seed, and at evening do not let your hands be idle; for you do not know which will prosper, this or that, or whether both alike will be good.

⁷ Light is sweet, and it is pleasant for the eyes to see the sun.

⁸ Even those who live many years should rejoice in them all; yet let them remember that the days of darkness will be many. All that comes is vanity.

⁹ Rejoice, young man, while you are young, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth. Follow the inclination of your heart and the desire of your eyes, but know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment.

¹⁰ Banish anxiety from your mind, and put away pain from your body; for youth and the dawn of life are vanity.

12 Remember your creator in the days of your youth, before the days of trouble come, and the years draw near when you will “house” can refer to a dynasty as well as a structure. 20: The Heb verb for curse simply means “to denigrate” or “to vilify.” The author warns against the very kinds of subversive activity suggested by the “inside jokes” of vv. 18–19. 11.1–6: A final exhortation to engage in productive labor amidst an uncertain world and the mysteries of life and prosperity. 1: Send out your bread upon the waters, an Egyptian wisdom text suggests that this is an exhortation to give charitably, though it might also be construed as pragmatic and metaphorical advice about diversifying risk through trade, as v. 2 suggests. 2: Seven . . . eight, the increasing numerical parallelism is a common poetic device. See Prov 6.16; 30.15–33; Am 1–2; Mic 5.5. 3–4: Clouds and wind are mysterious things that mortals do not control. The farmer who attempts to discern the perfect weather conditions to sow or to reap will never do so. 5: The images in this verse echo the surrounding verses. Breath is the same word as “wind” in v. 4. Mother, lit., “the full one,” linking pregnancy with the description of clouds filled with rain in v. 3. The reference to procreation echoes reproductive references to sowing and seed in vv. 4, 6. 6: Sow your seed can also mean “to produce offspring”; after the mention of procreation in v. 5, this is an exhortation to productive and reproductive labor. Such activity in the full knowledge of uncertainty echoes the call to enjoyment in relationships and work advocated in 9.7–10.

11.7–8: In sum. The sensuous celebration of the pleasure of light is a variation on the repeated prescription to enjoy one's life in full knowledge of the coming days of darkness. As with other binary oppositions in the book, Qohelet teaches that the realities of light and darkness share one fundamental condition: vanity (see 1.2n.).

11.9–12.8: Qohelet's conclusion. 11.9–10: One should find joy by immediately pursuing one's passions (inclination of your heart) before it is too late to enjoy them. But, the Heb conjunction (“waw”) often means “and,” which seems better here, unless this comment is a gloss by a disapproving editor. The context rather suggests that God will hold people to account if they do not follow their desire. Thus anxiety and negativity (pain) should be brushed aside. 10: Vanity, here in the sense of ephemerality; cf. 1.2n. 12.1–8: An evocative series of images typically read as metaphors for death and the aging human body, or as literal descriptions of a decrepit house, a passing funeral, or even the apocalyptic end of the cosmos. Qohelet describes worsening weather (v. 2), terrified people abandoning public spaces (vv. 3–5a), a disordered natural world (v. 5b), precious and useful objects say, “I have no pleasure in them”;² before the sun and the light and the moon and the stars are darkened and the clouds return with^a the rain;³ in the day when the guards of the house tremble, and the strong men are bent, and the women who grind cease working because they are few, and those who look through the windows see dimly;⁴ when the doors on the street are shut, and the sound of the grinding is low, and one rises up at the sound of a bird, and all the daughters of song are brought low;⁵ when one is afraid of heights, and terrors are in the road; the almond tree blossoms, the grasshopper drags itself along^b and desire fails; because all must go to their eternal home, and the mourners will go about the streets;⁶ before the silver cord is snapped,^c and the golden bowl is broken, and the pitcher is broken at the fountain, and the wheel broken at the cistern,⁷ and the dust returns to the earth as it was, and the breath^d returns to God who gave it.⁸ Vanity of vanities, says the Teacher;^e all is vanity.

⁹ Besides being wise, the Teacher^e also taught the people knowledge, weighing and studying and arranging many proverbs.¹⁰ The Teacher^e sought to find pleasing words, and he wrote words of truth plainly.

¹¹ The sayings of the wise are like goads, and like nails firmly fixed are the collected sayings that are given by one shepherd.^f

¹² Of anything beyond these, my child, beware. Of making many books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh.

¹³ The end of the matter; all has been heard. Fear God, and keep his commandments; for that is the whole duty of everyone.

¹⁴ For God will bring every deed into judgment, including^g every secret thing, whether good or evil.

^a Or after; Heb 'ahar

^b Or is a burden

^c Syr Vg Compare Gk: Heb is removed

^d Or the spirit

^e Qoheleth, traditionally rendered Preacher

^f Meaning of Heb uncertain

^g Or into the judgment on

breaking (v. 6), and the components of the human body returning to their elemental state after death (v. 7). Together, they present a sense of ultimate deterioration that links the inevitable disintegration of the cosmos to that of human society and individual human bodies. Ultimately, Qohelet teaches a fundamental truth of the cosmos: nothing is stable; everything is open to transformation (v. 8). 1: The Heb for your creator (“bore’eka”) sounds like the word “cistern (“bor”) in v. 6, and so may link the giving and the cessation of life. 2: The language of the darkening sky is reminiscent of prophetic eschatology (cf. Isa 5.30; 13.10; Ezek 32.7–8; Am 5.8; 8.9; Mic 3.6), but the following verses describe fatigue and cessation more than eschatological terror. 4: The imagery is obscure. In Hebrew idiom “sons of” or “daughters of” is a way of identifying a type of thing, as “sons of cattle” are simply “cattle.” So, “daughters of song” may refer to birds or to musical sounds. Perhaps v. 4 refers simply to the loss of hearing and the difficulty of distinguishing sounds. 5: The Hebrew is extremely difficult and the translation is uncertain. 6–7: Images of death. According to Gen 2.7, human beings are a conjunction of dirt and God’s breath (here Heb “ruah,” though a different word is used in Gen 2.7; cf. Gen 6.17; 7.15,22). Here, God’s animating power of breath returns to God when the human stops breathing (cf. Ps 104.29b). 8: Qohelet quotes the opening motto of the book (see 1.2n.), thus performing the very circular repetition described by the introductory poem in 1.4–11.

12.9–14: Editorial conclusion. 9–12: A later editor judges that Qohelet’s teachings in 1.2–12.8 are plain and true, pleasing and provocative. 9: The traditional work of a sage. 11: Mixed metaphors that are difficult to interpret but suggest intentional effort designed to organize disparate things, as goads assist a shepherd in collecting the flock, and nails are used to hold boards together. 12: A formulaic conclusion that appears to attempt to establish the authority of the text and warns against going beyond it to other texts. 13: The editor’s exhortation to fear God, and keep his commandments is inconsistent with Qohelet’s teachings. 14: The editor perhaps believes in an apocalyptic judgment (cf. Dan 12.1–4).

THE SONG OF SOLOMON

NAME OF BOOK AND LOCATION IN CANON

The Song of Solomon (its Hebrew title is “Song of Songs”), also known as Canticles, appears in the Megillot, or “five scrolls” (Ruth, Song of Songs, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, Esther), in the third part of the Jewish canon, the Writings. In the Christian canon it is among the Poetical and Wisdom books.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, LITERARY AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Song of Solomon, the Bible’s only love poem, offers no clues about when, where, or under what circumstances it was composed. Its author is unknown. The traditional attribution of the book to Solomon probably derives from references to Solomon in the poem (1.5; 3.7,9,11; 8.11,12) and his reputation as the composer of songs (1 Kings 4.32) and owner of a large harem (1 Kings 11.3).

Speculation about the date of composition ranges from the time of Solomon (tenth century BCE) to the Hellenistic period (fourth to second centuries BCE). Some scholars see the Song as a collection, in which case the various love poems would come from different authors and different times.

Similarities to Mesopotamian (3000–1000 BCE) and, in particular, Egyptian love poetry (thirteenth to eleventh centuries BCE) indicate that the poet drew upon a rich cultural tradition of love poetry. Shared features include wishing, desiring, praising the beloved, metaphoric descriptions of the body, double entendre, nature imagery, and the appeal to the senses. Sometimes a dialogue format is used; frequently the lovers address each other as “sister” and “brother.” Many of the Mesopotamian love poems deal with the marriage of the goddess and her consort and were used in ritual contexts. In contrast, the Song, like the Egyptian love poems, is not about gods nor does it appear to have had anything to do with worship.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The Song is about how glorious it is to be in love. It looks at love from both a woman’s and a man’s point of view, and it consists entirely of dialogue, so that we learn about love through what lovers say about it. The dialogue format creates the impression that we are overhearing the lovers as they speak, and observing their love unfold. The poet seeks to immortalize a vision of love as “strong as death” (8.6) by portraying the lovers as forever seeking and finding gratification of their mutual desire. They delight in each other and in the sights, sounds, smells, tastes, and tangibility of the world around them, making the Song a feast for the senses.

A third speaking voice belongs to the women of Jerusalem, a kind of chorus functioning as an audience within the poem and whose presence, because the lovers are aware of and encourage it, facilitates the reader’s entry into the lovers’ seemingly private world of erotic intimacy.

The poem begins and ends with short speeches in which the speakers change frequently, and the voices of the woman, the man, and, occasionally, the women of Jerusalem intermingle (1.2–2.7; 8.1–14). In between—although the structure is not rigid—are two cycles of long speeches, in which the woman speaks, then the man, with the woman interrupting his speeches at the end (2.8–3.11 and 4.1–5.1; 5.2–6.3 and 6.4–7.13).

INTERPRETATION

Allegory was the dominant mode of interpretation from the early centuries of the Common Era until the rise of critical biblical scholarship in the nineteenth century. Jewish interpreters typically read the Song as an account of the relationship between God and Israel, while Christians saw it as about the love between Christ and the church, or Christ (or the divine logos) and the individual believer. Modern scholars recognize its subject as human love, though some have argued that it originated as a liturgical text whose speakers are a god and goddess. Whether the Song was included in the canon because it had been allegorized or was allegorized because it had been included in the canon has long been debated. Allegorization alone cannot have been the reason the Song was included, since the text must have already achieved a certain status—perhaps as part of the national religious literature—for anyone to have taken the trouble to develop an allegorical interpretation of it.

The Song is a lyric poem, not a record of events in the lives of two lovers. This means that unusual events or sudden transitions do not require explanation to make them seem more realistic or more intelligible. When we read lyric poetry, which is essentially a discontinuous form, we should not expect to find the kind of linear unfolding of events that produces a plot. The Song meanders, repeating themes, images, phrases, and sometimes whole sections. As we read the poem, we may feel that we get to know the lovers, for they each have their own distinctive way of talking about their love and its effect on them. She is lovesick (2.5; 5.8), and she tells stories in which he comes to court her and she searches for him (2.8–17; 3.1–5; 5.2–8). He is overwhelmed by her (4.9; 6.5), and praises her charms in detail (4.1–15; 6.4–10; 7.1–9). Yet even as we build a picture of them, we need to recognize that the woman and the man are personae created by the poet to represent all lovers. They appear in various guises—shepherds, vineyard keepers, royal figures—as well as appearing as themselves. Because they are not real lovers, their movements are not restricted. They effortlessly traverse the poetic landscape—vineyards, gardens, palaces, houses, rocky cliffs, the wilderness, Lebanon—finding pleasure wherever their fancy takes them.

Readers are meant to revel in the poem's sonorousness, rich vocabulary, and exotic images. Its dense metaphoric language and extravagant images are not reducible to simple prose paraphrase, and typically the metaphors the lovers use to describe each other's bodies hide as much as they reveal.

This is no private poem, intended for a lover's ears only. It invites its readers to participate in the wonder of love, along with the women of Jerusalem, whose presence serves as a reminder that what seems to be a closed dialogue between lovers is indeed addressed to the reader.

J. Cheryl Exum

1 The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's.

² Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!

For your love is better than wine, ³ your anointing oils are fragrant,
your name is perfume poured out;
therefore the maidens love you.

⁴ Draw me after you, let us make haste.
The king has brought me into his chambers.

We will exult and rejoice in you;
we will extol your love more than wine;
rightly do they love you.

⁵ I am black and beautiful,
O daughters of Jerusalem,
like the tents of Kedar,
like the curtains of Solomon.

⁶ Do not gaze at me because I am dark, because the sun has gazed on me.
My mother's sons were angry with me;
they made me keeper of the vineyards,
but my own vineyard I have not kept!

⁷ Tell me, you whom my soul loves,
where you pasture your flock,
where you make it lie down at noon;
for why should I be like one who is veiled beside the flocks of your companions?

1.1: Title. Song of Songs, a superlative, “the best song,” like “king of kings” (Ezek 26.7), the king above all kings; “holy of holies” (Ex 26.33), the most holy place; “vanity of vanities” (Eccl 1.2), the height of absurdity. Hebrew “shir” is a generic term for “song” or “poem.” Which is Solomon's could indicate authorship, or that Solomon is the dedicatee, or that the Song is connected with him in some way (compare the use of “of David” as an editorial superscription to many psalms).

1.2–2.7: A montage of short speeches. 1.2: The poem begins with a romantic relationship already in progress. The woman speaks about her lover as “him,” as though he were not there, then suddenly he materializes and she speaks to him of your love. Love, a plural form referring to physical lovemaking (4.10; 7.12; cf. Prov 7.18). Like wine, love is intoxicating (cf. Judg 9.13). 4: The king, i.e., the lover in his royal or Solomonic guise. Here too she speaks of him in the third person, as the king, and then in the second person “you,” as in v. 2. We, the lovers, or, more likely, the woman and the young women (NRSV, maidens) mentioned in v. 3, who are probably also the “they” at the end of v. 4. She is besotted with him and imagines that other women are similarly affected. 5–6: Black and beautiful, her dark skin, she explains, is due to exposure to the sun while working in the vineyards. 5: Daughters of Jerusalem, the female inhabitants of Jerusalem (cf. “sons of Israel” for Israelites). Kedar, a northern Arabian tribe whose name means “dark.” 6: No reason is given for the brothers’ anger nor is any further reference made to it. My own vineyard refers to the woman herself, probably with a sexual meaning, as also in 8.12. 7–8: The lovers appear in the guise of shepherds. 7: Pasture your flock, there is no term for flock in the Hebrew,

⁸ If you do not know,
O fairest among women,
follow the tracks of the flock,
and pasture your kids
beside the shepherds' tents.

⁹ I compare you, my love, to a mare among Pharaoh's chariots.

¹⁰ Your cheeks are comely with ornaments,
your neck with strings of jewels.

¹¹ We will make you ornaments of gold, studded with silver.

¹² While the king was on his couch, my nard gave forth its fragrance.

¹³ My beloved is to me a bag of myrrh that lies between my breasts.

¹⁴ My beloved is to me a cluster of henna blossoms
in the vineyards of En-gedi.

¹⁵ Ah, you are beautiful, my love;
ah, you are beautiful;
your eyes are doves.

¹⁶ Ah, you are beautiful, my beloved,
truly lovely.

Our couch is green;

¹⁷ the beams of our house are cedar,
our rafters^a are pine.

2 I am a rose^b of Sharon,
a lily of the valleys.

² As a lily among brambles,
so is my love among maidens.

³ As an apple tree among the trees of the wood,

so is my beloved among young men.
With great delight I sat in his shadow,
and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

⁴ He brought me to the banqueting house,
and his intention toward me was love.

⁵ Sustain me with raisins, refresh me with apples;
for I am faint with love.

⁶ O that his left hand were under my head,
and that his right hand embraced me!

⁷ I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
by the gazelles or the wild does:
do not stir up or awaken love
until it is ready!

⁸ The voice of my beloved!
Look, he comes,
leaping upon the mountains,
bounding over the hills.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb crocus

which reads, "Where do you graze?" This is one of many instances of double entendre in the Song: the man grazes or feeds among the lilies and in the gardens, figures for the woman herself (2.1–2; 4.12–5.1; see also 2.16 and 6.2–3, where NRSV also inserts "flock"). Veiled could refer to a disguise, or, better, read "one who wanders," with some ancient versions. 8: Spoken either by the man or by the women of Jerusalem, who elsewhere address the woman as "fairest among women" (5.9; 6.1). 9–11: The man compares his beloved to a fine horse, a common form of praise in antiquity. 11: He will have the work done, without specifying who will do it (though possibly "we" could be the lovers or the man and the women of Jerusalem). 12–14: The woman speaks of her beloved as the king, as in 1.4. The fragrance of nard and myrrh, costly aromatics, blend with the natural scent of henna blossoms, which are strongly scented and grow in dense clusters. En-gedi, an oasis on the western shore of the Dead Sea. 1.15–2.3: Mutual adoration. The man (v. 15) and the woman (vv. 16–17) praise each other in similar terms. She compares herself to flowers we cannot identify with certainty (2.1). He turns her self-description into a compliment (v. 2), which she returns in a way that echoes his words (v. 3). Sharon, either the coastal plain between Jaffa and Mount Carmel or simply "the plain." 2.4: Banqueting house, lit., "house of wine," where the lovers dwell in their mutual intoxication. 5–7: The woman addresses the women of Jerusalem. Faint with love, lovesickness, for which the cause, love, is also the cure. 6: Either a wish or a statement of fact; see 8.3. 7: See 3.5; 8.4. This resembles a conventional way of swearing an oath but lacks the solemnity: the word for "gazelles" looks and sounds like the word for "hosts" in the name "Lord of Hosts," and Hebrew "'aylot hassadeh" ("wild does") recalls the divine name El Shaddai. Love is personified as something that has a will of its own.

2.8–3.11: The woman's first long speech. The woman's primary mode of speaking about love is to tell stories in which she and her lover are characters. As stories, these parts of the Song, unlike the poem as a whole, have plots. Here she tells three. 2.8–17: The first describes the man's visit to her house and his invitation to her to

⁹ My beloved is like a gazelle or a young stag.
Look, there he stands behind our wall,
gazing in at the windows,
looking through the lattice.
¹⁰ My beloved speaks and says to me:
“Arise, my love, my fair one,
and come away;
¹¹ for now the winter is past,
the rain is over and gone.
¹² The flowers appear on the earth;
the time of singing has come,
and the voice of the turtledove is heard in our land.
¹³ The fig tree puts forth its figs,
and the vines are in blossom;
they give forth fragrance.
Arise, my love, my fair one,
and come away.
¹⁴ O my dove, in the clefts of the rock,
in the covert of the cliff,
let me see your face,
let me hear your voice;
for your voice is sweet,
and your face is lovely.
¹⁵ Catch us the foxes,
the little foxes,
that ruin the vineyards—
for our vineyards are in blossom.”
¹⁶ My beloved is mine and I am his;
he pastures his flock among the lilies.
¹⁷ Until the day breathes
and the shadows flee,

turn, my beloved, be like a gazelle or a young stag on the cleft mountains.^a

3 Upon my bed at night
I sought him whom my soul loves;
I sought him, but found him not;
I called him, but he gave no answer.^b ² “I will rise now and go about the city, in the streets and in the squares;
I will seek him whom my soul loves.”
I sought him, but found him not.
³ The sentinels found me,
as they went about in the city.
“Have you seen him whom my soul loves?”
⁴ Scarcely had I passed them,
when I found him whom my soul loves.
I held him, and would not let him go until I brought him into my mother’s house,
and into the chamber of her that conceived me.
⁵ I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
by the gazelles or the wild does:
do not stir up or awaken love
until it is ready!
⁶ What is that coming up from the
wilderness,
like a column of smoke,
perfumed with myrrh and frankincense, with all the fragrant powders of the merchant?

^a Or on the mountains of Bether; meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk: Heb lacks this line

join him outdoors to enjoy the springtime. The voice of my beloved, better, “Listen! My lover!” “Listen” and look create the impression of immediacy. His movements are captured in process as he draws closer: leaping and bounding, then standing and gazing. 11: Winter, the rainy season. 12: Time of singing may also be read as “time of pruning.” 14: She seems inaccessible, perhaps also shy and hesitant. 15–17: She answers his request to hear her voice. Foxes and vineyards, young men and young women. In v. 15 she speaks for women in general; in v. 16, about her relationship with her lover, which is exclusive and mutual. 17: Until the day breathes and the shadows flee could refer to either evening or morning. Whereas she seems to be saying that the time has come for her lover to return, over the mountains, from which he came (v. 8), cleft mountains (or emend to “mountains of spices” as in 8.14) alludes to the woman herself and the various pleasures her body offers, perhaps her breasts (see 4.5–6). 3.1–5: In her second story, she describes her nocturnal search for her beloved and its resolution when she finds him. 5: See 2.7; 8.4. 3.6–11: Her third story. A luxurious conveyance approaches, bearing her lover, whom she casts in the role of King Solomon on his wedding day. 6: Coming up, the procession is in motion. First it looks like a column of smoke. Next comes an appeal to the sense of smell created by the fragrant aromas of myrrh and frankincense, suggesting that what is approaching from the distance might be a caravan ⁷ Look, it is the litter of Solomon!

 Around it are sixty mighty men of the mighty men of Israel, ⁸ all equipped with swords
 and expert in war,
 each with his sword at his thigh
 because of alarms by night.
⁹ King Solomon made himself a palanquin
 from the wood of Lebanon.
¹⁰ He made its posts of silver, its back of gold, its seat of purple;
 its interior was inlaid with love.^a Daughters of Jerusalem, ¹¹ come out.
 Look, O daughters of Zion,
 at King Solomon,
 at the crown with which his mother crowned him
 on the day of his wedding,
 on the day of the gladness of his heart.

4 How beautiful you are, my love, how very beautiful!
 Your eyes are doves
 behind your veil.
 Your hair is like a flock of goats,
 moving down the slopes of Gilead.
² Your teeth are like a flock of shorn ewes
 that have come up from the washing,
 all of which bear twins,
 and not one among them is bereaved.
³ Your lips are like a crimson thread,
 and your mouth is lovely.

Your cheeks are like halves of a pomegranate
 behind your veil.
⁴ Your neck is like the tower of David,
 built in courses;
 on it hang a thousand bucklers,
 all of them shields of warriors.
⁵ Your two breasts are like two fawns,
 twins of a gazelle,
 that feed among the lilies.
⁶ Until the day breathes
 and the shadows flee,
 I will hasten to the mountain of myrrh
 and the hill of frankincense.
⁷ You are altogether beautiful, my love;
 there is no flaw in you.
⁸ Come with me from Lebanon, my bride;
 come with me from Lebanon.
 Depart^b from the peak of Amana,
 from the peak of Senir and Hermon,
 from the dens of lions,
 from the mountains of leopards.
⁹ You have ravished my heart, my sister, my bride,
 you have ravished my heart with a glance of your eyes,
 with one jewel of your necklace.
¹⁰ How sweet is your love, my sister, my
 bride!
 how much better is your love than wine,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or Look

laden with fragrant powders of the merchant. 7–8: Look, now the source of the smoke and the fragrance can be seen, a litter or palanquin (v. 9), an enclosed chair or couch carried by bearers, surrounded by an armed escort. 9–10: The trappings of the magnificent palanquin progressively come into view. Love is not a material for decorating, like wood, silver, gold, and purple, and should be emended to “precious stones” or “ebony” or “leather.”

4.1–5.1: The man’s first long speech. The man’s mode of speaking about love is to look at his lover, tell her what he sees and how it affects him. 4.1–5: He describes parts of her body, using similes and metaphors. 1: Goats, moving down the slopes, flowing tresses of wavy black hair (goats were commonly black or dark colored). Gilead, a hilly region in northern Jordan. 2: Teeth, white and evenly paired, with none missing. 3: Cheeks, halves of a pomegranate, perhaps rosy cheeks glimpsed through a white mesh veil. 4: The image suggests a neck adorned with a necklace made up of several rows of beads. Tower of David evokes her regal quality; no such tower is known. 5: Elsewhere the man is described as feeding among the lilies, an erotically suggestive image in which the lilies signify the woman (2.16; 6.2–3). 6: He responds to her exhortation of 2.17. Mountain of myrrh, hill of frankincense, the woman’s breasts, the woman herself, and the place where the lovers enjoy love’s pleasures. 8: Bride, here and v. 11, and “my sister, my bride” (4.9,10,12; 5.1) are terms of endearment. Amana, Senir, and Hermon, peaks in the Anti-Lebanon mountain range, north of Israel, where lions and leopards make their dens, create a contrast to the accessible mountains of v. 6 and symbolize the woman’s inaccessibility and the awe she inspires in him. 9: Ravished, either “stirred my heart” or “captured my heart.” He speaks of love in terms of conquest, and the fragrance of your oils than any spice!

¹¹Your lips distill nectar, my bride;
honey and milk are under your tongue;
the scent of your garments is like the scent of Lebanon.

¹²A garden locked is my sister, my bride,
a garden locked, a fountain sealed.

¹³Your channel^a is an orchard of pomegranates
with all choicest fruits,
henna with nard,

¹⁴nard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon,
with all trees of frankincense,
myrrh and aloes,
with all chief spices—

¹⁵a garden fountain, a well of living water, and flowing streams from Lebanon.

¹⁶Awake, O north wind,
and come, O south wind!
Blow upon my garden
that its fragrance may be wafted abroad.
Let my beloved come to his garden,
and eat its choicest fruits.

5 I come to my garden, my sister, my bride;
I gather my myrrh with my spice,
I eat my honeycomb with my honey,
I drink my wine with my milk.

Eat, friends, drink,
and be drunk with love.

²I slept, but my heart was awake.
Listen! my beloved is knocking.
“Open to me, my sister, my love,
my dove, my perfect one;
for my head is wet with dew,
my locks with the drops of the night.”

³I had put off my garment;
how could I put it on again?

I had bathed my feet;
how could I soil them?

⁴My beloved thrust his hand into the opening,
and my inmost being yearned for him.

⁵I arose to open to my beloved,
and my hands dripped with myrrh,
my fingers with liquid myrrh,
upon the handles of the bolt.

⁶I opened to my beloved, but my beloved had turned and was gone.

My soul failed me when he spoke.
I sought him, but did not find him;
I called him, but he gave no answer.

⁷Making their rounds in the city
the sentinels found me;
they beat me, they wounded me,
they took away my mantle,
those sentinels of the walls.

⁸I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
if you find my beloved,
tell him this:
I am faint with love.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

describing his feeling of being overwhelmed by her as something she has done to him. 11: The scent of Lebanon, i.e., the fragrant cedars. 4.12–5.1: A cluster of metaphors creates a picture of his lover as a fragrant garden, full of edible delights. 4.12: Garden locked, his private garden for his exclusive pleasure. 13–15: She is a paradisiacal garden, where exotic spice-bearing plants and trees from such faraway places as Arabia, Africa, and India grow side by side. 16: The woman interrupts him, first inviting the winds into her garden to whet the man's appetite by stirring up its sweet smells, then inviting her lover to an erotic banquet. 5.1: Eating and drinking are symbols of sexual intimacy. Eat, friends, the women of Jerusalem encourage the lovers in their mutual intoxication.

5.2–6.3: The woman's second long speech. Again the woman tells of a visit by the man followed by her search for him in the city streets at night. A dialogue with the women of Jerusalem enables her story to reach the desired outcome, union with her lover. 5.2–8: See 3.1–5. Her story is replete with sexual allusions. 5.2: I slept, but my heart was awake, a light sleep, in which the woman, desiring or anticipating her lover's visit, is half-listening for his voice. 3: Either an explanation for her delay, addressed to the women of Jerusalem, or a playful reply to her lover (“I have put off my garment”). 5. Myrrh, with which the woman had anointed herself, or perfumed her bed (Prov 7.17), or both. 6: My soul failed me (lit., “went forth”) may refer to swooning or fainting (cf. the similar expression used of dying, Gen 35.18; Ps 146.4). When he spoke, better translated, “because of him” or “when he left.” 7: A forceful reminder of the perils of love, or of the willingness of love to suffer. No justification is given for the woman's harsh treatment at the hands of the sentinels, and the verse is ambiguous regarding the

⁹ What is your beloved more than another beloved,
O fairest among women?
What is your beloved more than another beloved,
that you thus adjure us?

¹⁰ My beloved is all radiant and ruddy, distinguished among ten thousand.

¹¹ His head is the finest gold;
his locks are wavy,
black as a raven.

¹² His eyes are like doves beside springs of water, bathed in milk,
fitly set.^a

¹³ His cheeks are like beds of spices, yielding fragrance.

His lips are lilies, distilling liquid myrrh.

¹⁴ His arms are rounded gold, set with jewels.

His body is ivory work,^a encrusted with sapphires.^b

¹⁵ His legs are alabaster columns, set upon bases of gold.

His appearance is like Lebanon, choice as the cedars.

¹⁶ His speech is most sweet,
and he is altogether desirable.

This is my beloved and this is my friend,
O daughters of Jerusalem.

6 Where has your beloved gone,
O fairest among women?
Which way has your beloved turned,
that we may seek him with you?

² My beloved has gone down to his garden,
to the beds of spices,
to pasture his flock in the gardens,
and to gather lilies.

³ I am my beloved's and my beloved is mine;
he pastures his flock among the lilies.

⁴ You are beautiful as Tirzah, my love, comely as Jerusalem,
terrible as an army with banners.

⁵ Turn away your eyes from me, for they overwhelm me!

Your hair is like a flock of goats,
moving down the slopes of Gilead.

⁶ Your teeth are like a flock of ewes,
that have come up from the washing;
all of them bear twins,
and not one among them is bereaved.

⁷ Your cheeks are like halves of a pomegranate
behind your veil.

⁸ There are sixty queens and eighty concubines, and maidens without number.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb lapis lazuli

severity of their attack. 5.9–6.3: The women of Jerusalem's questions and the woman's answers reveal that they are not taking the search too seriously. 9: They ask what is so special about him. 10–16: She answers by praising him, thereby evoking his presence. The images are intimate and erotically suggestive. 10: Radiant and ruddy, a sign of health, youthfulness, and beauty (Ps 104.15; 1 Sam 16.12; 17.42; Lam 4.7). 12: Doves in pellucid pools, as though bathed in milk, evoke the pupil and iris surrounded by the wet milky whiteness of the eye. 14–16: Her description of his statuesque body made of strong and precious materials expresses his value to her. 16: His speech (lit., "his palate"), better, "his mouth," since she is describing his physical attributes. My friend, her only use of a term of endearment he uses frequently of her (1.9,15; 2.2,10,13; 4.1,7; 5.2; 6.4, where NRSV translates, "my love"). 6.1: The playfulness of the dialogue is obvious, since, if she knows where he has gone, she needs no help to find him. 2–3: She knows where he is. The garden represents both the woman and the setting for lovemaking. Grazing in the gardens and among the lilies are double entendres for erotic play (see 1.7n.).

6.4–7.9: The man's second long speech. Again the man describes the woman's charms in similes and metaphors. 6.4: Tirzah, capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel ca. 920–880 BCE. Terrible as an army with banners, more likely the Hebrew means "as awesome in splendor as they," i.e., Jerusalem and Tirzah in this verse; the moon and the sun in v. 10. 5a: They overwhelm me, he describes the way he feels as something she has done to

⁹ My dove, my perfect one, is the only one,
the darling of her mother, flawless to her that bore her.
The maidens saw her and called her happy;
the queens and concubines also, and they praised her.

¹⁰ “Who is this that looks forth like the dawn,
fair as the moon, bright as the sun,
terrible as an army with banners?”

¹¹ I went down to the nut orchard, to look at the blossoms of the valley,
to see whether the vines had budded, whether the pomegranates were in bloom.

¹² Before I was aware, my fancy set me in a chariot beside my prince.^a ¹³^b Return, return, O Shulammité!

Return, return, that we may look upon
you.

Why should you look upon the Shulammité,
as upon a dance before two armies?^c

7 How graceful are your feet in sandals,
O queenly maiden!
Your rounded thighs are like jewels,
the work of a master hand.

² Your navel is a rounded bowl that never lacks mixed wine.
Your belly is a heap of wheat, encircled with lilies.

³ Your two breasts are like two fawns,
twins of a gazelle.

⁴ Your neck is like an ivory tower.
Your eyes are pools in Heshbon,
by the gate of Bath-rabbim.
Your nose is like a tower of Lebanon, overlooking Damascus.

⁵ Your head crowns you like Carmel, and your flowing locks are like purple;
a king is held captive in the tresses.^d

⁶ How fair and pleasant you are,
O loved one, delectable maiden!^e

⁷ You are stately^f as a palm tree, and your breasts are like its clusters.

⁸ I say I will climb the palm tree and lay hold of its branches.
O may your breasts be like clusters of the vine,
and the scent of your breath like apples,

^a Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Ch 7.1 in Heb

^c Or dance of Mahanaim

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Syr: Heb in delights

^f Heb This your stature is

him (cf. 4.9). 5b–7: See 4.1–3n. 9–10: A royal fantasy (cf. 1.2–4,12; 3.6–11). 10: The man’s words or words he puts in the mouth of the queens and other royal wives (here translated “concubines”). 11–12: I went down to the nut orchard, either the man’s words or a short interruption of his speech by the woman, since in v. 13 she is asked to return. 12: The verse is corrupt and untranslatable. 13: Shulammité, not a proper name; possibly meaning “the perfect one,” it evokes the name “Solomon” (Heb “Shelomoh”). We, the man and the women of Jerusalem. A dance before two armies, the meaning of the phrase is obscure. 7.1: Your rounded thighs are like jewels probably refers to the curves of hips or thighs as resembling ornaments of some type. 2: Parts of the body not normally exposed to view are described in metaphors that are not transparent. Perhaps navel is a euphemism for “vulva.” Heap of wheat suggests the softness and gentle curve of the woman’s stomach. 4: The image evokes the gracefulness of a long neck. Your eyes are pools, the same Hebrew word, “ayin,” means both “eye” and “spring.” Heshbon, east of Jerusalem in Transjordan, where excavations have revealed the remains of a large reservoir, dating from the ninth to eighth centuries BCE. The location of Bath-rabbim, meaning “daughter of many,” is unknown. Perhaps the significance of Lebanon has to do with its scent; cf. 4.11n. 5: The comparison to Mount Carmel, which overlooks the Mediterranean Sea at Haifa, suggests the stately way she holds her head. Locks are like purple, shiny black hair has a purple sheen. Purple, the color of royalty, evokes rich and luxurious hair, suitable for capturing a king. 7–9: I say I will climb, i.e., “I intend to climb.” The man puts himself in the picture (cf. 5.1), and, through a series of images, moves closer to the object of his desire. First he must climb the tall palm tree to reach its clusters that represent his lover’s breasts (v. 7). Then, envisioned as grape clusters (v. 8), her breasts become more accessible.

⁹ and your kisses^a like the best wine that goes down^b smoothly, gliding over lips and teeth.^c

¹⁰ I am my beloved's,
and his desire is for me.

¹¹ Come, my beloved,
let us go forth into the fields,
and lodge in the villages;

¹² let us go out early to the vineyards, and see whether the vines have budded,

whether the grape blossoms have opened and the pomegranates are in bloom.

There I will give you my love.

¹³ The mandrakes give forth fragrance, and over our doors are all choice fruits,
new as well as old,
which I have laid up for you, O my beloved.

8 O that you were like a brother to me,
who nursed at my mother's breast!
If I met you outside, I would kiss you,
and no one would despise me.

² I would lead you and bring you into the house of my mother, and into the chamber of the one who bore me.^d

I would give you spiced wine to drink, the juice of my pomegranates.

³ O that his left hand were under my head,
and that his right hand embraced me!

⁴ I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
do not stir up or awaken love
until it is ready!

⁵ Who is that coming up from the
wilderness,
leaning upon her beloved?

Under the apple tree I awakened you.
There your mother was in labor with you;
there she who bore you was in labor.

⁶ Set me as a seal upon your heart,
as a seal upon your arm;
for love is strong as death,
passion fierce as the grave.
Its flashes are flashes of fire,
a raging flame.

⁷ Many waters cannot quench love, neither can floods drown it.
If one offered for love
all the wealth of one's house, it would be utterly scorned.

⁸ We have a little sister, and she has no breasts.
What shall we do for our sister,
on the day when she is spoken for?

⁹ If she is a wall,
we will build upon her a battlement of
silver;
but if she is a door,
we will enclose her with boards of cedar.

¹⁰ I was a wall,

^a Heb palate

^b Heb down for my lover

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb lips of sleepers

^d Gk Syr: Heb my mother; she (or you) will teach me

7:10–13: The woman's reply. The man's second long speech, like his first, gives rise to the woman's invitation to love (cf. 4:16). 11: Villages, the same Hebrew word also means "henna bushes," preferable here because of the outdoor setting. 13: Mandrakes were thought by some to be an aphrodisiac.

8:1–14: A montage of short speeches. 1–4: The woman speaks of her desire. 3–4: Cf. 2:6–7. 5a: The women of Jerusalem speak about the lovers. 5b: In labor, better, "conceived you." The woman aroused her lover in a setting where his mother also enjoyed sexual intimacy. 6–7: The only statement in the Song about the nature of love in general. The poet places these words in the mouth of the woman, who speaks to the man not, as she has until now, about their love, but about love itself. 6: She wants to be intimately and permanently close to him, like a seal he might wear. Seals made of precious or semiprecious metal or stone could be worn on a necklace or a bracelet for the wrist or upper arm, or a signet ring. Love is strong as death, not stronger. Their struggle to possess the same object (the loved one) is illustrated in the rivalry between their counterparts, passion (more precisely, "jealousy") and the grave (Heb "Sheol," the abode of the dead). 8–12: The lovers speak in similitudes about themselves and their beloved. 8–10: Unlike the girl in her example, for whom preparations will be made when she reaches marriageable age, the woman asserts that she needs no such arrangements, since she has already surrendered to her lover. 10: In the context of a city under siege (v. 9), to bring peace signifies surrender, and my breasts were like towers;

then I was in his eyes
as one who brings^a peace.

¹¹ Solomon had a vineyard at Baal-hamon;
he entrusted the vineyard to keepers;
each one was to bring for its fruit a thousand pieces of silver.

¹² My vineyard, my very own, is for myself;
you, O Solomon, may have the thousand,
and the keepers of the fruit two hundred!

¹³ O you who dwell in the gardens, my companions are listening for your voice;
let me hear it.

¹⁴ Make haste, my beloved, and be like a gazelle
or a young stag
upon the mountains of spices!

^a Or finds

and to find peace is to have the offer of surrender accepted (Deut 20.10–11; Josh 9.15; 11.19). 11–12: The man compares his vineyard (the woman; see 1.6n.) to Solomon's: it is more valuable and he alone will tend it. Baal-hamon, no such place is known; meanings of the name, "owner of wealth" or "husband of a multitude," suggest that it was chosen to emphasize Solomon's privileged status. 13–14: The poet does not bring the Song to a proper close, so that the love it celebrates can remain unending. 13: Let me hear it, the man's words send us back to the beginning of the Song, where we hear the woman's voice, speaking of her desire. 14: Make haste, the Hebrew word indicates movement away from the speaker. Mountains of spices, an erotic image for the woman herself; see 2.17; 4.6. As in 2.17, the woman appears to be sending her lover away and calling him to her at the same time. The effect is to leave love forever in progress, for only when the woman seems to send her lover away can the poem begin again with longing and the quest to gratify desire.

INTRODUCTION TO THE PROPHETIC BOOKS

PROPHETS IN THE JEWISH AND CHRISTIAN CANONS

Both Jewish and Christian Bibles contain a canonical section labeled Prophets and include much of the same material. The two Bibles, however, differ in key ways. In the Jewish Bible (Tanakh), the Prophets constitute the second of three canonical sections, following the Torah (Genesis through Deuteronomy) and preceding the Writings (Psalms through Chronicles). The Jewish Bible further divides the Prophets into the Former Prophets (Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings) and Latter Prophets (Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi). Hosea through Malachi are considered a single book designated as the Book of the Twelve since, due to their small size, ancient scribes often copied them onto a single scroll. These twelve smaller books also are known as “minor [in the sense of short] prophets,” as opposed to the larger books of Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel, which are called the “major prophets.”

In Christian Bibles, the books of Joshua through Kings likewise follow Deuteronomy but are categorized as Historical Books along with other narratives such as Ruth, which is inserted after Judges, and Chronicles. Prophets in the Christian canon include Isaiah through Malachi, as well as the books of Lamentations and Daniel, and appear as the final canonical section of the Old Testament. In Roman Catholic Bibles, an additional book, Baruch, follows Jeremiah. The Orthodox Christian Bible follows Jeremiah with not only Baruch and Lamentations but also the Letter of Jeremiah. The canonical order in Orthodox Bibles places the minor prophets prior to the major prophets.

These canonical placements reflect the different ways in which different confessional communities have understood the prophets. Jewish tradition interprets the Prophets as supporting the message of the Torah, a view that is underscored in Jewish liturgy by pairing a prophetic passage (haftarah) with the weekly sequential Torah reading. Christian tradition historically has interpreted the prophets as predicting or at least foreshadowing the coming of Jesus and thus has preferred the placement of the Prophets immediately prior to the Gospels. The inclusion of Baruch and the Letter of Jeremiah, as well as the Orthodox ordering of Prophets, reflects codices of the Septuagint, the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible used by early Christians.

PROPHECY IN THE ANCIENT NEAR EAST

Throughout the ancient Near East, the gods were understood to communicate with humans through various means, some requiring the interpretation of trained specialists and some depending on those able to discern the divine message without formal training. Documents excavated from the Mesopotamian cities of Mari and Nineveh describe both diviners who found clues to divine activity in celestial movements, the flight patterns of birds (augury), and the entrails of sacrificed animals (extispicy), and also prophets who claimed direct communication with the gods, often though not always while in a state of ecstasy. Most of the oracles preserved at Nineveh were addressed to the kings Esarhaddon and Ashurbanipal, who ruled in the seventh century BCE, and some were gathered into collections, likely stored in the royal archives for ongoing consultation. The Mari letters, dating mostly from the first half of the eighteenth century BCE, report prophetic oracles to kings as well, many pronounced by female prophets.

In some ways, the Hebrew Bible characterizes Israelite prophets as similar to figures described in the records from Mari and Nineveh. In the Former Prophets, Jonathan's disobedience of his father's wartime restrictions is discerned by the casting of lots (Urim and Thummim, 1 Sam 14.41–42), and Saul is possessed by the spirit of God (1 Sam 10.10–13). Israelite prophets anoint kings (1 Sam 9.15–21; 16.1–13; 1 Kings 1.32–40), advise kings (2 Sam 7), and speak in the rhetorical style of “messenger speech” (“Thus says the LORD”). In the Latter Prophets, call narratives (see especially Isa 6; Jer 1; Ezek 1.1–3.11; see also Am 7.14–17) depict the prophets as compelled by the LORD to deliver a message, and their compliance is reported in the rhetorical style of messenger speech. The superscriptions to the Latter Prophets, the opening formulas that indicate their time and place, characterize each prophet as delivering God's message in a particular circumstance and label the speech to follow as that of God: it is the “word” which came from the LORD (e.g., Jer 1.1; Ezek 1.2), an “oracle” (e.g., Nah 1.1; Hab 1.1), or a “vision” that a prophet “saw” (e.g., Isa 1.1; Ob 1). Some of the prophetic figures in these books announce a message to leaders of ancient Israel and Judah (e.g., Isa 7.1–17; Hag 2.20–23).

In other ways, the biblical portrait of prophets diverges from ancient Near Eastern models. The Latter Prophets are much less supportive of sitting kings than are the Nineveh and Mari oracles and predominantly address the nation as a whole. Oracles of judgment against other nations and their leadership dominate the Latter Prophets, with idealized future kings positively contrasted with the reality of current kings (Isa 11.1–9; Jer 33.14–22). In contrast to the ancient Near East, unsolicited communication with the divine is strongly preferred over divination. We find condemnation of “soothsayers” (Mic 5.12 [Heb 5.11]), necromancy (Isa 8.19), and liver omens (Ezek 21.21 [Heb 21.26]). Some passages equate various forms of divination, including Jer 29.8, in which both prophets and diviners receive dreams, and Joel 2.28 (Heb 3.1), in which “prophesy,” “dream dreams,” and “see visions” appear in parallel; yet true prophets are often characterized as reluctant messengers, as reflected in Jeremiah’s complaint to the LORD that “you have overpowered me, and you have prevailed” (Jer 20:7).

The Hebrew term used for the prophets is nabi, a noun likely derived from the verb “call.” The female prophets Deborah, Huldah, and Noadiah (Judg 4.4; 2 Kings 22.14; Neh 6.14) are designated with the feminine form nebi’ah, as is the woman who bears a son in Isa 8.3. Other Hebrew terms employed for prophets are ro’eh (“seer”) and hozeh (“visionary, seer”), which are sometimes explicitly equated with nabi (1 Sam 9.9; 2 Sam 24.11; 2 Kings 17.13).

PROPHETIC BOOKS

The historical references within the Latter Prophets span three primary periods of Israelite and Judean history. Isaiah, Hosea, Amos, Jonah, and Micah refer to persons and events in the eighth century BCE, when the Neo-Assyrian empire controlled the ancient Near East and dominated Israel and Judah. Nahum, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah reflect the period of transition between Assyrian and Babylonian hegemony in the late seventh century. Jeremiah and Obadiah speak of Babylonian control of Judah in the early sixth century, and Ezekiel and Daniel include references to the Babylonian exile. Haggai and Zechariah are explicitly dated to the Persian period, when some Judeans returned to former ancestral lands, and references within the book of Malachi point to the Persian period as well. In light of these historical references, some interpreters categorize prophetic figures by their era, referring to Assyrian, Babylonian, and Persian period prophets or, alternately, preexilic, exilic, and postexilic prophets.

Historical references within the books, however, do not necessarily indicate the time of the book’s composition. For example, Jonah refers to a king of Nineveh, which was destroyed in 612, but shows strong indications of a postexilic date, well after the fall of Nineveh. Despite its setting within the Babylonian exile, the book of Daniel reflects detailed knowledge of events during the Hellenistic period, including the events preceding the Maccabean revolt in 167–160 BCE. Within some individual books, vocabulary and style shift, and different geographical and chronological settings are presupposed. For example, in much of Isa 1–39, Isaiah of Jerusalem addresses the military and religious conflicts of eighth-century Judah, while Isa 40–55 optimistically proclaims the end of the Babylonian exile and speaks of Cyrus, the Persian king of the fifth century; yet differently, Isa 56–66 offers a pessimistic assessment of life upon the exiles’ return to Jerusalem. Micah 1–3 grounds the prophet’s message within the reigns of the eighth-century Judean kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, while Mic 4 presupposes a later time, referring to the Babylonian exile (4.10) and sharing with other Persian-period literature the hope for the restoration of the monarchy and Jerusalem’s return to world prominence. Clearly, in their current form the prophetic books are not verbatim transcripts of ancient pronouncements but rather carefully crafted literary productions that frequently include material originating in different times.

Editorial activity also is evident between the books of the Latter Prophets. Some near-identical content appears in multiple books (Isa 2.2–4; Mic 4.1–5; Ob 1b–4; Jer 49.12–16), and oracles of salvation conclude most books, even those such as Amos which are otherwise devoted to judgment (Am 9.11–15).

Additional signs of editing appear in the superscriptions of the prophetic books, which follow closely the language and chronology of the Former Prophets, known by scholars as the Deuteronomistic History, given the collection’s ideological slant toward the perspective of the book of Deuteronomy. These similarities suggest that a common scribal circle compiled both the Former and the Latter Prophets, perhaps intending them to be read in tandem. Together, the two collections portray a chain of prophets extending from Moses to Malachi and underscore the themes of the divine control of history paired with divine graciousness.

In the past few decades, many scholars have argued that the incorporation of Hosea through Malachi into the Book of the Twelve reflects not simply a scribal economy that was concerned to copy small books onto a single scroll but also an intentional effort to create a coherent collection. Arguments for coherence point to catchwords and quotations connecting the books, such as the citation of Amos in Joel (Joel 3.16; Am 1.2) and the commonalities in vocabulary and theme between Am 9 and words of the immediately following book in Ob 16–21. Other scholars have found arguments for an intentionally crafted Book of the Twelve unconvincing, suggesting that coherence is in the eye of the beholder.

Whatever the merits of the theories regarding the Twelve, the final form of all of the Latter Prophets appears to have been the work of postexilic editors. Earlier material has been shaped so that the books conform to the postexilic understanding of prophecy outlined in Zech 7.7–14 and 8.11–17: Jerusalem was destroyed for its sins, just as the prophets had warned, but now God intends salvation for Jerusalem. Other postexilic books reflect a similar understanding of prophecy (2 Chr 24.19; 36.15–16; Neh 9.30–31), suggesting that in the Persian period earlier prophecy was understood to explain the reason for the fall of Israel and Judah as well as for the fall of various nations, and to offer hope that Yahweh would defeat those who prevent the people from enjoying their land peacefully.

Some redaction critics, scholars who study the process by which biblical books were redacted or edited, believe that the application of particular critical tools can unravel the stitching by which the prophetic books were woven together, separating layers of later additions from the original words of the prophet. This approach was especially prominent through the mid-twentieth century. In the present, an increasing number of scholars focus attention instead on the Persian-period final form of the books. Readers will find different perspectives on this scholarly debate reflected in the introductions and annotations in this edition of the New Oxford Annotated Bible.

INTERPRETING THE PROPHETIC BOOKS

Genres/forms

Prophetic literature draws from a consistent roster of genres, also known as “forms.” Most common in the sayings attributed to preexilic prophets are “oracles of judgment.” Announcing that Israel and/or Judah will be punished for their sins, oracles of judgment follow a consistent pattern, offering the reason for judgment and issuing a verdict of condemnation (e.g., Mic 3.9–12; Am 4.1–3); a variation of this genre is the “woe oracle” which laments the coming punishment (in the NRSV often translated as “ah” or “alas”; see, e.g., Am 5.18–20; 6.1–7). The genre known as the “oracle of salvation” appears occasionally in preexilic prophets but dominates collections associated with the exilic or postexilic periods. Isaiah 40–55, often designated Second Isaiah because it derives from a time later than the eighth-century prophet Isaiah, is replete with such promises (e.g., Isa 41; 43; 49), as is material considered to be postexilic in Micah (Mic 4–5).

Other prophetic genres include the “trial speech/covenant lawsuit,” which uses legal language to depict the accused (Judah or Israel) on trial for crimes (e.g., Isa 1; Hos 4) and the “prophetic disputation,” in which the prophet refutes the claims of others (e.g., Hag 1:2–11; Mal 1:1:2–2:9). “Symbolic action reports” at times accompany prophetic speech, as when Jeremiah buries a loin cloth (Jer 13.1–11) and Ezekiel lies before a model of Jerusalem under siege (Ezek 4). “Prophetic liturgies” mirror the vocabulary and style of Temple liturgies, such as the Song of Thanksgiving in Isa 12.1–6 (compare Ex 15 and Ps 105) and the prayer of Hab 3, punctuated with musical notations (compare Ps 7).

Many prophetic books contain “oracles against the nations,” often extended sayings pronouncing God’s judgment on nations other than Israel or Judah. Examples include Isa 13–23, Jer 46–51, Ezek 25–32, Nahum, and Obadiah. The ultimate crime of nations is their pride, failing to recognize the LORD’s superiority over and ultimate control of their destinies, though the nations’ crimes against Judah are also punished. In Amos, oracles against other nations (Am 1.3–2.3) foreshadow the condemnation of Judah and Israel (Am 2.4–16).

Prophetic books use these genres in different ways and for different purposes. Some prophets announce total destruction (e.g., Zeph 1), while others offer hope that a small remnant of the people might survive and rebuild after the inevitable disaster (e.g., Isa 11.11). Amos lambasts Israel’s failure to care for the poor (Am 4.1–4), Micah condemns the rapacity of Judah’s landowners (Mic 2.1–4), Hosea blames Israel for worshiping deities other than the LORD (Hos 1–3), and Ezekiel blames worship abominations for the departure of divine glory from the Temple (Ezek 8–9).

Style

Prophetic literature is primarily poetry, printed in the NRSV in verse. It utilizes a wide range of literary tropes, including metaphor, simile, alliteration, assonance, hyperbole, irony, repetition, parallelism, and wordplay. Symbolic names are given to children in Isa 7–8 (Shear-jashub, “a remnant shall return”; Maher-shallal-hash-baz, “the spoil speeds, the prey hastens”; Immanuel, “God with us”) and in Hosea 1–2 (Jezreel, “God sows”; Lo-ruhamah, “not pitied”; Lo-ammi, “not my people”). In Micah and elsewhere the names of cities are linked with their fate: Beth-leaphrah (“house of dust”) should roll itself in the dust (Heb ’aphar, Mic 1.10) and Achzib is “deception” (Heb ’achzab) (Mic 1.14). In Am 8.1–3, the prophet’s vision of a piece of fruit (Heb qayits) is interpreted by the deity as a sign of Israel’s end (Heb qets), and in Jer 1.11–12 an almond tree (Heb shaqed) confirms that the deity is watching (Heb shoqed).

One distinctive feature of prophetic style is comparison. Through episodic similes and extended metaphors, the prophets cast one thing as another. Yahweh is “a garland of glory, and a diadem of beauty” (Isa 28.5–6) and “will be like the dew to Israel; he shall blossom like the lily” (Hos 14.5); Zion is “like a shelter in a cucumber field” (Isa 1.8). Drawing heavily from the conceptual domain of human relationships, prophetic metaphor often reflects the patriarchal assumptions of ancient Israel. Yahweh’s power is depicted through masculine images—warrior, father, husband, and king—while divine anguish is depicted as a woman’s cry in childbirth or a mother’s care for an infant. The dependency and infidelity of Israel (and other nations) are typified in feminine terms—daughter, wife, and whore—while chosenness is compared to the favor given a firstborn son. The characterization of Yahweh and Israel as husband and wife, often dubbed “the marriage metaphor,” is explicitly outlined in Hos 1–2 and appears in most of the prophetic books (e.g., Isa 54.5; Jer 3.20; Ezek 16; 23).

The prophetic books often describe the day of coming punishment as “the day of the LORD,” using powerful and violent imagery. Zephaniah describes the day of the LORD as a day of wrath, distress, anguish, ruin, devastation, darkness, and gloom (Zeph 1.15); not only humans but animals, birds, fish, and “everything” will be swept away from the face of the earth (Zeph 1.2–3). According to Isaiah, on the LORD’s “day of vengeance” (Isa 34.8) the deity appears as a warrior who devastates Edom with the sword (34.5), accompanied by profuse amounts of blood (34.6), smoke (34.10), and other signs. Throughout the prophetic books, the reckoning of the day of the LORD can bring salvation to Israel and Judah by judging enemy nations (e.g., Isa 13, 34, 63; Jer 46; Zech 14.1–9) and/or it can bring devastation on Israel and/or Judah for their sins (e.g., Am 5.18–20; Ezek 7.1–20).

Theology/worldview

The prophetic literature assumes and perpetuates the view that God uses other nations both to punish and to save Israel and Judah. Assyria is the rod of God’s anger (Isa 10.5) and Babylon is the war club in God’s hands (Jer 51.20). In Second Isaiah, Cyrus, the Persian king who is envisioned as ending the exile, is called God’s anointed (Isa 45.1)—Heb mashiah, the basis for English “messiah.”

The prophetic conviction that Israel’s God directs geopolitics serves, theologically, to underscore God’s sovereignty, even in the face of national defeat. It also invites engagement with postcolonial criticism. Understanding the imperial context under which prophetic literature was finalized suggests that the literature’s refusal to acknowledge the ultimate power of foreign empires serves as a form of resistance. By focusing on the fate of nations and the restoration of Jerusalem’s glory and honor, however, the prophetic literature devotes little attention to the fate of individuals and the human suffering endured during “punishment.” For example, although the book of Amos champions the cause of the poor, it proclaims that all Israel will fall in war, and although Micah criticizes those who drive women and children from their homes (Mic 2.9), its vision of an idyllic future mentions only the peaceful land ownership of men (Mic 4.4; lit., “a man . . . under his own fig tree”). Some prophetic collections do suggest the differing fates of those within the community, such as Mal 3.13–18, which distinguishes between the wicked and the righteous, and Isa 57.18–21, which offers peace for the contrite but no peace for the wicked.

PROPHECY AND APOCALYPTIC

Some scholars discern within postexilic prophetic literature the seeds of apocalyptic thought. Apocalypses such as Revelation, 1 Enoch, and 3 Baruch are characterized by the periodization of history, accounts of otherworldly journeys, the belief that the future will be known only by the revelation of divine secrets by angels, and the conviction that God’s future salvation will require a radical disjunction with the established course of human history. The visions of Second Zechariah (Zech 9–14) seem to move in this direction, calling for the end of the created order and envisioning Yahweh straddling two parts of the Mount of Olives. Ezekiel 37–39 and Isa 24–27 are sometimes designated “protoapocalyptic” for their symbolism of evil powers and anticipation of cosmic collapse.

That early Christians linked prophecy with apocalyptic is evident in their inclusion of the book of Daniel within the Prophetic canon. Although the book does not open with a superscription, utilize standard prophetic forms, or call Daniel a “prophet,” it portrays Daniel’s ability to interpret dreams and signs. Daniel 7–12 records a series of visions, replete with complex symbolism, regarding the fates of nations and rulers. In apocalypses, prophets and visionaries no longer experience direct access of the divine but through an intermediary: While the visions of earlier prophets were interpreted by the prophet himself or by God (Jer 1; Am 7–8), in apocalyptic books such as Daniel a third (angelic) party interprets the vision. Daniel presents history as predetermined and not contingent on the actions of Israel and Judah, and earlier prophets such as Jeremiah are to be consulted rather than emulated (Dan 9.2)

Julia M. O’Brien

ISAIAH

NAME AND CANONICAL STATUS

The book of Isaiah (Heb yeshā'yah(u), “the LORD saves”) is named for the prophet Isaiah ben Amoz who lived during the latter half of the eighth century BCE at the time of the Assyrian invasions of Israel and Judah. Isaiah is included among the Latter Prophets in the Tanakh and among the Prophets of the Old Testament in the Christian Bible. Jewish manuscripts and traditions frequently place Isaiah first because he lived before Jeremiah and Ezekiel, although the book sometimes appears after Jeremiah and Ezekiel because of its concern with comfort or restoration (b. B. Bat. 14b). In Christian Bibles, Isaiah is usually first among the Prophets because he lived before Jeremiah and Ezekiel. The Minor Prophets appear first in some manuscripts of the Greek Septuagint (LXX), however, probably because the prophet Hosea was thought to have lived before Isaiah.

AUTHORSHIP, COMPOSITION, AND LITERARY HISTORY

Traditional interpreters in both Judaism and Christianity attribute the book of Isaiah to the eighth-century BCE prophet Isaiah, but interpreters as early as the Middle Ages observed that the second portion of the book, beginning in ch 40, presupposes the rise of King Cyrus of Persia (ruled 559–530; see 44.28; 45.1) and the conclusion of the Babylonian exile in 538. Modern scholars generally identify three major stages of composition in the book: (1) the works of Isaiah ben Amoz, which appear in chs 1–39; (2) the work of an anonymous prophet known as Second Isaiah from the conclusion of the Babylonian exile in chs 40–55; and (3) the work of Third Isaiah, a collection of materials from several prophets who wrote during the early Persian-period restoration of Jerusalem (late sixth through fifth or early fourth centuries BCE) in chs 56–66. Some interpreters maintain that chs 56–66 should be included with Second Isaiah, and others maintain that chs 1–39 have been heavily edited in the seventh, sixth, and fifth centuries BCE. Altogether, the book appears to have gone through at least four stages of composition: first, during the lifetime of Isaiah ben Amoz, who witnessed the period of the Assyrian invasions of Israel and Judah in 742–701 BCE; second, during the late seventh-century BCE restoration of King Josiah of Judah (640–609 BCE), when Isaiah was edited to support the king’s reforms; third, during the late sixth-century BCE collapse of Babylon and the rise of King Cyrus of Persia, who authorized the return of exiled Jews to Jerusalem to rebuild the Temple; and fourth, during the late fifth and early fourth centuries BCE when Nehemiah and Ezra attempted to consolidate the Jerusalem Temple’s status as the holy center of Judaism in keeping with their understandings of the Torah and the Isaian tradition. The writers of each stage of Isaiah’s composition edited and expanded the book in order to demonstrate that the prophet also addressed events of their own times. Whereas Isaiah ben Amoz spoke about divine judgment and restoration in his own day, each of the subsequent editions of the book presupposes that Isaiah’s visions of restoration would be realized in their own time.

HISTORICAL CONTEXTS

Four pivotal moments in the history of the Israelite people form the background to the various parts of Isaiah.

1. The Syro-Ephraimite War and its aftermath (see 2 Kings 16). After a period of relative peace for Israel (the Northern Kingdom, often called “Ephraim” in Isaiah after its most important tribe) and Judah (the Southern Kingdom), international tensions rose when Tiglath-pileser III became king of the Assyrian Empire in 745 BCE. He began an effort to conquer the lands to the west of Assyria, including Syria, Israel, and Judah. Beginning in 735 BCE, Pekah, king of Israel, and Rezin, king of Syria (Damascus or Aram), tried to enlist Ahaz, king of Judah, in an alliance against Assyria. When that effort failed, they attacked Judah to replace Ahaz with a king more amenable to their policies (ch 7). This conflict is known as the Syro-Ephraimite War, since it was a war of Syria and Ephraim against Judah. Ahaz turned to Assyria for help in fending off Israel and Syria. The price was steep: Judah paid a heavy tribute as a vassal of Assyria.

2. The Assyrian invasion. During the decades following the Syro-Ephraimite War, the Assyrians expanded their influence in the area, taking over Syria and then attacking the Northern Kingdom, which fell in 722 BCE. When the Assyrian ruler at the time, Sargon II, was killed in battle in 705, Hezekiah, the king of Judah and son of Ahaz, rebelled against Assyria. Hezekiah was trying to take advantage of the confusion at the change of rulers, and allied with Merodach-baladan, prince of Babylon, against Assyria (ch 39). In addition, he sought support from Egypt that was not forthcoming (36.6). The new Assyrian king, Sennacherib, retaliated and conquered Judah in 701. Hezekiah was able to avert the conquest of Jerusalem itself only by paying tribute.

3. The conquest of Jerusalem and the exile. During the century following these events, the Assyrian Empire gradually weakened. In 612 BCE, the rising Babylonian Empire destroyed the Assyrian capital, Nineveh, and the international power struggle became one between Babylon and Egypt, with Judah caught between. In 605 the Babylonian king, Nebuchadnezzar, defeated the Egyptian pharaoh, Neco, at the battle of Carchemish, and Babylon became the leading empire of the day. Judah came under Babylon's control, and when the last king of Judah, Zedekiah, rebelled against Babylon, the result was an invasion by Nebuchadnezzar. In 586 Nebuchadnezzar destroyed Jerusalem and its Temple and exiled a good deal of the surviving population to Babylonia.

4. The return. During the sixth century BCE, the Babylonians were increasingly challenged by the rise of another great empire, the Persians. In 539 Cyrus, the Persian king, defeated the Babylonians at the battle of Opis. Cyrus was admitted to Babylon and declared king by the priests of the city. He subsequently allowed exiled peoples, including the Jews, to return to their homelands. Many exiled Jews (though not all) eventually did so, and rebuilt Jerusalem and the Temple.

CONTENTS AND STRUCTURE

Although the book of Isaiah was composed in stages, the final form of Isaiah is designed to be read as a single work ascribed to the prophet Isaiah ben Amoz. Its different sections are unified partly by common themes, such as the Davidic/Zion tradition that presumes the ultimate rule over Jerusalem and the restored Israel by the house of David, under the sovereignty of the LORD. The various sections are also linked through common vocabulary, such as the divine title “the Holy One of Israel” (e.g., 1.4; 29.19; 40.25; 60.9). The literary structure of Isaiah consists of two major parts, both of which are concerned with reading Isaiah as a witness to Jerusalem as the seat of the LORD’s sovereignty throughout all of creation. Chapters 1–33 address the period of punishment and anticipate the period of restoration through which the LORD’s sovereignty will be recognized throughout the world, and chs 34–66 presuppose that the time of restoration and the recognition of the LORD’s sovereignty are at hand. A more detailed outline of the formal literary structure of the book is as follows:

THE VISION OF ISAIAH BEN AMOZ:

PROPHETIC EXHORTATION TO JERUSALEM AND JUDAH TO ADHERE TO THE LORD

I. The LORD’s plans to reveal worldwide sovereignty at Zion	1.1–33.24
A. Prologue to the book: Introductory oracles concerning the LORD’s plans to purify Jerusalem	1.1–31
B. Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD’s plans to reveal worldwide sovereignty at Zion: Announcement of the “day of the LORD”	2.1–33.24
1. prophetic announcement concerning the purifying of Zion for its role as the center for the LORD’s world rule	2.1–4.6
2. prophetic instruction concerning Assyrian judgment against Israel and the restoration of the Davidic kingdom	5.1–12.6
3. prophetic announcement concerning the preparation of the nations for the LORD’s world rule	13.1–27.13
a. announcements concerning the nations	13.1–23.18
b. prophetic announcement of YHWH’s new world order based in Zion	24.1–27.13
4. prophetic instruction concerning the LORD’s plans for the new king in Jerusalem	28.1–33.24
II. Concerning the realization of the LORD’s plans for revealing worldwide sovereignty from Zion	34.1–66.24
A. Prophetic instruction concerning the realization of the LORD’s sovereignty at Zion	34.1–54.17
1. prophetic instruction concerning the LORD’s power to return the redeemed exiles to Zion	34.1–35.10

- | | | |
|----|--|-------------|
| 2. | historical narratives concerning Hezekiah | 36.1–39.8 |
| 3. | prophetic instruction that the LORD reveals divine sovereignty at Zion | 40.1–54.17 |
| | a. renewed prophetic commission to announce the LORD's restoration of Zion | 40.1–11 |
| | b. contention: the LORD is master of creation | 40.12–31 |
| | c. contention: the LORD is master of human events | 41.1–42.13 |
| | d. contention: the LORD is redeemer of Israel | 42.14–44.23 |
| | e. contention: the LORD will use Cyrus for the restoration of Zion | 44.24–48.22 |
| | f. contention: the LORD is restoring Zion | 49.1–54.17 |
| B. | Prophetic exhortation to adhere to the LORD's covenant | 55.1–66.24 |
| | 1. exhortation proper to adhere to the LORD | 55.1–13 |
| | 2. substantiation: prophetic instruction concerning the restored covenant community in Jerusalem | 56.1–66.24 |
| | a. prophetic instruction concerning proper observance of the covenant | 56.1–59.21 |
| | b. prophetic announcement of restoration for the nation | 60.1–62.12 |
| | c. prophetic instruction concerning the process of Zion's restoration | 63.1–66.24 |

INTERPRETATION

The book of Isaiah serves as a theological reflection upon Jerusalem's experience of threat, exile, and restoration. It takes up fundamental questions of divine involvement in human history. To what extent is the LORD sovereign over Israel and Judah on the one hand, and the nations and all creation on the other? To what extent does the LORD bring both judgment and restoration to Jerusalem, Israel, and the world at large? To what extent is the LORD hidden in times of suffering and to what extent will the LORD deliberately bring suffering on one generation to achieve divine purpose in another? To what extent does the LORD's promise of security to Jerusalem/Zion and the royal house of David hold true? To what extent should human beings respond to the LORD's intervention in the human world with faithfulness? Such questions have occupied the readers of the book of Isaiah from ancient through modern times. Jewish interpreters have looked to Isaiah to understand the time when the LORD would restore Jerusalem, and Christian interpreters have looked to Isaiah to understand when the LORD would reveal the Messiah. Indeed, two major copies of the book of Isaiah and a number of shorter Isaian texts were found among the Dead Sea Scrolls at Qumran. The command "in the wilderness prepare the way of the LORD" (40.3) apparently motivated the Qumran sect to locate a major settlement in the wilderness of the Dead Sea to await the time that God would destroy the Romans and all others considered evil in the world. Citations from Isaiah play a major role in presenting the life and significance of Jesus in the New Testament, and readings from Isaiah play an especially important role in Jewish liturgy where Isaian texts are frequently read to complete and interpret the reading of the Torah.

Marvin A. Sweeney

1 The vision of Isaiah son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

²Hear, O heavens, and listen, O earth;
for the LORD has spoken:

I reared children and brought them up,
but they have rebelled against me.

³The ox knows its owner,
and the donkey its master's crib;
but Israel does not know,
my people do not understand.

⁴Ah, sinful nation,
people laden with iniquity,
offspring who do evil,
children who deal corruptly,
who have forsaken the LORD,
who have despised the Holy One of Israel,
who are utterly estranged!

⁵Why do you seek further beatings?
Why do you continue to rebel?

The whole head is sick,
and the whole heart faint.

⁶From the sole of the foot even to the
head,
there is no soundness in it,
but bruises and sores
and bleeding wounds;
they have not been drained, or bound up,
or softened with oil.

⁷Your country lies desolate, your cities are burned with fire;
in your very presence
aliens devour your land;
it is desolate, as overthrown by foreigners.

⁸And daughter Zion is left
like a booth in a vineyard,

1.1–33.24: The LORD's plans to reveal worldwide sovereignty at Zion. The first half of the book focuses especially on the punishment of Zion and anticipation of its future restoration in an effort to demonstrate the LORD's plans to reveal sovereignty over Israel, the nations, and creation at large. The second half of the book (chs 34–66) presupposes that the time of the restoration and the LORD's revelation are at hand.

1.1–31: Prologue to the book: Introductory oracles concerning the LORD's plans to purify Jerusalem. The prologue in ch 1 is an introduction both to the entire book of Isaiah and to the first portion of the book in chs 1–33. It is designed to convince its audience that Jerusalem's suffering during the late eighth century BCE and beyond was due to the LORD's plans to purify Jerusalem in preparation for its role as the seat of the LORD's rule over all of creation. In keeping with his understanding of the David/Zion tradition, Isaiah presumes the LORD's sovereignty, righteousness, and power to defend the royal house of David and the city of Jerusalem forever. The prophet therefore contends that Jerusalem's suffering is due to human wrongdoing and that the city must be purged to enable it to serve as the LORD's capital for all of creation. Such a position is theologically problematic, presuming the guilt of those who suffer.

1.1: Superscription. The prophetic books typically begin with a superscription that provides the reader with essential information concerning the prophet (cf. Jer 1.1–3; Ezek 1.1–3; Hos 1.1; Joel 1.1; Am 1.1; Ob 1; Mic 1.1; Nah 1.1; Hab 1.1; Zeph 1.1). This superscription introduces both the entire book and 1.2–31. Subsequent superscriptions in 2.1; 13.1; 14.28; 15.1; 17.1; 19.1; 21.1,11,13; 22.1; 23.1; and 30.6 introduce smaller subunits. Isaiah's vision (both visual and auditory communication from the LORD) reveals divine plans concerning Judah and Jerusalem during the reigns of the Judean monarchs, Uzziah (783–742 BCE); Jotham (742–735 BCE); Ahaz (735–715 BCE); and Hezekiah (715–687 BCE). Although the superscription identifies the setting of the book as the eighth century BCE, the period of Assyrian invasions of the Northern Kingdom of Israel and the Southern Kingdom of Judah, the book as a whole takes up Jerusalem's experiences through the time of the Babylonian exile and the early Persian period restoration in the sixth–fifth centuries BCE.

1.2–20: The speech of the accuser. The prophet employs the language of the courtroom. The LORD charges Israel with wrongdoing, to explain Jerusalem's suffering. 2–3: Appeal to all creation, namely, heaven and earth, to witness the divine complaints against Israel (cf. Deut 32.1; Mic 6.1–8). The passage metaphorically portrays Israel as the LORD's rebellious children who do not even have the understanding of animals. 4–9: Rhetorical questions motivate the listeners to return to God. The suffering of the people is presented as the result of their own wrongdoing rather than any lapse on the LORD's part. The imagery shifts from personal illness and injury to the suffering of the entire land during the Assyrian invasions, when Jerusalem was left standing alone surrounded by the forces of the Assyrian king Sennacherib in 701 BCE (2 Kings 18–20; Isa 36–39). 4: The Holy One of like a shelter in a cucumber field, like a besieged city.

⁹ If the LORD of hosts had not left us a few survivors, we would have been like Sodom,
and become like Gomorrah.

¹⁰ Hear the word of the LORD,
you rulers of Sodom!
Listen to the teaching of our God,
you people of Gomorrah!

¹¹ What to me is the multitude of your sacrifices?
says the LORD;
I have had enough of burnt offerings of rams
and the fat of fed beasts;
I do not delight in the blood of bulls,
or of lambs, or of goats.

¹² When you come to appear before me,^a who asked this from your hand?

Trample my courts no more;
¹³ bringing offerings is futile;
incense is an abomination to me.
New moon and sabbath and calling of convocation—
I cannot endure solemn assemblies with iniquity.

¹⁴ Your new moons and your appointed festivals
my soul hates;
they have become a burden to me,
I am weary of bearing them.

¹⁵ When you stretch out your hands,
I will hide my eyes from you;
even though you make many prayers,
I will not listen;
your hands are full of blood.

¹⁶ Wash yourselves; make yourselves clean; remove the evil of your doings
from before my eyes;
cease to do evil,

¹⁷ learn to do good;
seek justice,
rescue the oppressed,
defend the orphan,
plead for the widow.

¹⁸ Come now, let us argue it out,
says the LORD:
though your sins are like scarlet,
they shall be like snow;
though they are red like crimson,
they shall become like wool.

¹⁹ If you are willing and obedient,
you shall eat the good of the land; ²⁰ but if you refuse and rebel,
you shall be devoured by the sword;
for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.

²¹ How the faithful city has become a whore!
She that was full of justice, righteousness lodged in her—but now murderers!

^a Or see my face

Israel, a divine title that occurs throughout the book. 8: Jerusalem is frequently personified as daughter Zion in Isaiah (10.32; 16.1; 37.22; 52.2; 62.11) and elsewhere (e.g., Zeph 3.14–20; Lam 1.6; 2; 4.22). 8: Booth, shelter, flimsy temporary agricultural structures often built of leaves and branches (cf. Job 27.18). 9: Sodom and Gomorrah, the evil cities destroyed by the LORD (Gen 18–19). 10–17: The prophet continues to characterize the people as Sodom and Gomorrah in an effort to accuse them of insincere worship. Although many interpreters maintain that Isaiah opposes ritual and sacrificial worship in principle, the LORD's instructions call for moral action to accompany Temple worship (see 1 Sam 15.22; Ps 50.7–15). The LORD threatens to ignore the people's prayers, a disturbing claim in the face of foreign invasion and a frequent concern of both Isaiah (e.g., 8.17; 54.8; 59.2; 64.6) and the Psalms (e.g., 10.11; 13.2; 22.25; 27.9; 51.11; 104.29). 13: Sacrifices were offered at new moon (monthly) and sabbath (weekly) festivals (see Num 28.9–15). 17: The orphan and the widow are often mentioned as the focus of special concern because of their social and economic vulnerability (Ex 22.21–23; Deut 10.18; Ps 68.5; Job 29.12–13; etc.).

1.21–31: The speech of the judge. The courtroom metaphor continues as the LORD now speaks as the judge who announces Zion's ultimate redemption and restoration. Jerusalem suffered greatly under the Assyrians and the Babylonians from the late eighth through the sixth centuries BCE, but the book of Isaiah understands these events in relation to Jerusalem's restoration in the early Persian period. 21–26: The prophet's announcement of Jerusalem's rehabilitation combines metaphorical charges that the city is a whore and that it must be purified much as metal is refined by the removal of impurities known as dross. The principal accusation is the ²²Your silver has become dross, your wine is mixed with water.

²³Your princes are rebels and companions of thieves.
Everyone loves a bribe
and runs after gifts.
They do not defend the orphan, and the widow's cause does not come before them.

²⁴Therefore says the Sovereign, the LORD of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel:
Ah, I will pour out my wrath on my enemies,
and avenge myself on my foes!
²⁵I will turn my hand against you;
I will smelt away your dross as with lye and remove all your alloy.
²⁶And I will restore your judges as at the first,
and your counselors as at the beginning.
Afterward you shall be called the city of
righteousness,
the faithful city.

²⁷Zion shall be redeemed by justice, and those in her who repent, by
righteousness.

²⁸But rebels and sinners shall be destroyed
together,

and those who forsake the LORD shall be consumed.

²⁹For you shall be ashamed of the oaks
in which you delighted;
and you shall blush for the gardens that you have chosen.

³⁰For you shall be like an oak whose leaf withers,
and like a garden without water.

³¹The strong shall become like tinder, and their work^a like a spark;
they and their work shall burn
together,
with no one to quench them.

2 The word that Isaiah son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

²In days to come
the mountain of the LORD's house shall be established as the highest of the
mountains,
and shall be raised above the hills;
all the nations shall stream to it.

³Many peoples shall come and say,
"Come, let us go up to the mountain of the
LORD,

^a Or its makers

breakdown of the judicial system (cf. 5.23; 33.15; Am 5.10,12; Mic 3.9,11). 27–28: The prophet distinguishes the fate of the righteous from the wicked (see chs 65–66). 29–31: The metaphor of the tree portrays the restoration of Zion. Trees and gardens were frequently associated with Canaanite fertility rites and goddesses. The prophet maintains that the dead branches must be trimmed and the tree burned. Later oracles will stress the new growth of the tree (6.12–13; 11.1–9).

2.1–4.6: Prophetic announcement concerning the purifying of Zion for its role as the center for the LORD's world rule. This unit begins with its own superscription (see 1.1n.). Ideal portrayals of Jerusalem as a center for the pilgrimage of the nations appear at the beginning (2.2–4) and as a holy center for the remnant of Israel at the end (4.2–6) of the unit. The material in 2.5–4.1 focuses in detail on the LORD's plans for purifying Zion in preparation for its divine role.

2.1: Superscription. A shorter version of the superscription in 1.1, specifying the concern with Judah and Jerusalem.

2.2–4: Announcement concerning the establishment of Zion as the center for the LORD's worldwide sovereignty. This oracle portrays a future time when the nations will make pilgrimage to Zion, the site of the Jerusalem Temple. The ideal of the nations at peace in Zion is a primary tenet of Davidic/Zion theology, which maintains that the LORD protects Zion as the seat of divine sovereignty in creation (Pss 2; 46; 48; cf. Ps 47). A parallel version of this passage appears in Mic 4.1–5, and it is also cited in Joel 3.10 and Zech 8.20–23. 2: In days to come, past interpreters, including the Septuagint (LXX), have understood the Heb eschatologically as "in the latter days," but the Hebrew text simply means "in the future." The mountain of the LORD's house, throughout the ancient Near East, temples were described as the houses in which gods dwelt. In common with this ancient motif, Jerusalem is often represented as the cosmic mountain (10.12,32; 11.9; 16.1; 29.8; 30.29; 40.9; 57.13; 65.26; Ps 48.1–2; Ezek 20.40; 40.2). 3: Instruction, Heb "torah"; frequently translated as "law," its primary meaning is "teaching, instruction."

to the house of the God of Jacob;
that he may teach us his ways
and that we may walk in his paths.”
For out of Zion shall go forth instruction, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

⁴ He shall judge between the nations,
and shall arbitrate for many peoples;
they shall beat their swords into
plowshares,
and their spears into pruning hooks;
nation shall not lift up sword against
nation,
neither shall they learn war any more.

⁵ O house of Jacob, come, let us walk
in the light of the LORD!

⁶ For you have forsaken the ways of^a your
people,
O house of Jacob.
Indeed they are full of diviners^b from the east

and of soothsayers like the Philistines, and they clasp hands with foreigners.

⁷ Their land is filled with silver and gold,
and there is no end to their treasures;
their land is filled with horses,
and there is no end to their chariots.

⁸ Their land is filled with idols;
they bow down to the work of their hands,
to what their own fingers have made.

⁹ And so people are humbled, and everyone is brought low—

do not forgive them!

¹⁰ Enter into the rock, and hide in the dust
from the terror of the LORD,
and from the glory of his majesty.

¹¹ The haughty eyes of people shall be brought low,
and the pride of everyone shall be
humbled;
and the LORD alone will be exalted on that day.

¹² For the LORD of hosts has a day against all that is proud and lofty, against all that is lifted up and high;^c

¹³ against all the cedars of Lebanon, lofty and lifted up;
and against all the oaks of Bashan;

¹⁴ against all the high mountains,
and against all the lofty hills;

¹⁵ against every high tower,
and against every fortified wall;

¹⁶ against all the ships of Tarshish, and against all the beautiful craft.^d

¹⁷ The haughtiness of people shall be humbled,
and the pride of everyone shall be
brought low;
and the LORD alone will be exalted on
that day.

¹⁸ The idols shall utterly pass away.

^a Heb lacks the ways of

^b Cn: Heb lacks of diviners

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb low

^d Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

2.5–4.6: The prophet’s address concerning the purifying of Zion. The prophet outlines in three addresses how the ideal of the nations’ recognition of the LORD at Zion portrayed in 2.2–4 is to be achieved. 2.5–9: The first oracular address begins with an invitation to the house of Jacob, a term frequently employed to characterize Israel (see Gen 32.28; Ex 19.3; Ps 114.1; Isa 46.3), to join the nations in their pilgrimage to Zion. The passage quickly turns to assertions that the LORD has forsaken the people because of their alleged wrongdoing in dealing with foreigners. The passage points to a source of tension: while it posits an ideal scenario of world peace and cooperation among the nations, it also points to the nations as a source of corruption and evil because of their associations with divinatory practices (cf. Deut 18.9–14); wealth in the form of silver, gold, horses, and chariots (cf. 1 Kings 10.26); and idols from the Arabian Desert and Babylonia to the east and Philistia to the west (cf. Isa 44.9–20). In the view of the prophet, such practices render the nations unholy and their association with Jacob renders Israel unholy as well. 10–21: In the second oracular address, the prophet announces the future “day of the LORD” as a time when the LORD will appear to punish and bring down all who are arrogant, high, proud, and uplifted in the world so that the LORD alone will be recognized as the true sovereign. The “day of the LORD” is a frequent motif in the prophets (see Isa 13.6,9; Ezek 13.5; Joel 1.15; 2.11,31; 3.14; Am 5.18–20; Ob 15; Zeph 1.7,14; Mal 4.5). 13: Lebanon, the mountainous area north of Israel famous for its cedars; Bashan, the high plateau in northern Transjordan known for its timber (Ezek 27.6). 16: Tarshish, either in southern Turkey

¹⁹ Enter the caves of the rocks and the holes of the ground,
from the terror of the LORD,
and from the glory of his majesty,
when he rises to terrify the earth.

²⁰ On that day people will throw away to the moles and to the bats their idols of silver and their idols of gold,
which they made for themselves to worship,

²¹ to enter the caverns of the rocks
and the clefts in the crags,
from the terror of the LORD,
and from the glory of his majesty,
when he rises to terrify the earth.

²² Turn away from mortals, who have only breath in their nostrils,
for of what account are they?

3 For now the Sovereign, the LORD
of hosts,
is taking away from Jerusalem and from Judah
support and staff—
all support of bread,
and all support of water—

² warrior and soldier,
judge and prophet,
diviner and elder,

³ captain of fifty
and dignitary,
counselor and skillful magician and expert enchanter.

⁴ And I will make boys their princes, and babes shall rule over them.

⁵ The people will be oppressed, everyone by another
and everyone by a neighbor;
the youth will be insolent to the elder,
and the base to the honorable.

⁶ Someone will even seize a relative,
a member of the clan, saying, “You have a cloak;
you shall be our leader,
and this heap of ruins
shall be under your rule.”

⁷ But the other will cry out on that day, saying,
“I will not be a healer;
in my house there is neither bread nor cloak;
you shall not make me
leader of the people.”

⁸ For Jerusalem has stumbled and Judah has fallen,
because their speech and their deeds are against the LORD,
defying his glorious presence.

⁹ The look on their faces bears witness against them;
they proclaim their sin like Sodom,
they do not hide it.

Woe to them!
For they have brought evil on themselves.

¹⁰ Tell the innocent how fortunate they are,
for they shall eat the fruit of their labors.

¹¹ Woe to the guilty! How unfortunate they are,
for what their hands have done shall be done to them.

¹² My people—children are their oppressors, and women rule over them.

O my people, your leaders mislead you,
and confuse the course of your paths.

¹³ The LORD rises to argue his case;
he stands to judge the peoples.

(later Tarsus) or in southern Spain. 2.22–4.6: The third oracular address focuses specifically on the purging of Jerusalem and Judah. 2.22: The introductory wisdom saying pleads with the audience to desist from human self-reliance. 3.1–12: The prophet elaborates the purging of Jerusalem and Judah by focusing on the punishment of the male leaders of the city and the nation. The Assyrians were well known for deporting the leading figures and skilled craftspeople of a conquered society in order to exploit their talents elsewhere in the empire and to destabilize the conquered society to prevent further revolt. The prophet again characterizes the people as Sodom (see 1.9–10n.) in order to press home his point that the suffering of the people must be the result of their own wrongdoing. 3.1: LORD of Hosts, i.e., God of the heavenly armies (cf. Josh 5:13–15; Judg 5:20). 3.13–4.1: The prophet portrays a courtroom scene in which the LORD charges the leaders of the nation with exploitation of the poor (by enclosure and confiscation of lands, indentured service, etc.), a frequent topic of eighth-century BCE prophetic polemic (Am 2.6–8; 3.9–11; 6.4–7; 8.4–6; Mic 2.1–3; 3.1–4,9–12). He accuses the women of Jeru-

¹⁴ The LORD enters into judgment with the elders and princes of his
people:

It is you who have devoured the vineyard;
the spoil of the poor is in your houses.

¹⁵ What do you mean by crushing my people, by grinding the face of the poor? says
the Lord God of hosts.

¹⁶ The LORD said:

Because the daughters of Zion are haughty and walk with outstretched necks, glancing wantonly with their eyes,
mincing along as they go,
tinkling with their feet;

¹⁷ the Lord will afflict with scabs
the heads of the daughters of Zion, and the LORD will lay bare their secret parts.

¹⁸ In that day the Lord will take away the finery of the anklets, the headbands, and the crescents; ¹⁹ the pendants, the bracelets, and the scarfs; ²⁰ the headdresses, the armllets, the sashes, the perfume boxes, and the amulets; ²¹ the signet rings and nose rings; ²² the festal robes, the mantles, the cloaks, and the handbags; ²³ the garments of gauze, the linen garments, the turbans, and the veils.

²⁴ Instead of perfume there will be a stench;
and instead of a sash, a rope;
and instead of well-set hair, baldness;
and instead of a rich robe, a binding of sackcloth;
instead of beauty, shame.^a

²⁵ Your men shall fall by the sword and your warriors in battle.

²⁶ And her gates shall lament and mourn;
ravaged, she shall sit upon the ground.

4 Seven women shall take hold of one man in that day, saying, “We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothes;
just let us be called by your name;
take away our disgrace.”

² On that day the branch of the LORD shall be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the land shall be the pride and glory of the survivors of Israel. ³ Whoever is left in Zion and remains in Jerusalem will be called holy, everyone who has been recorded for life in Jerusalem, ⁴ once the Lord has washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion and cleansed the bloodstains of Jerusalem from its midst by a spirit of judgment and by a spirit of burning. ⁵ Then the LORD will create over the whole site of Mount Zion and over its places of assembly a cloud by day and smoke and the shining of a flaming fire by night. Indeed over all the glory there will be a canopy. ⁶ It will serve as a pavilion, a shade by day from the heat, and a refuge and a shelter from the storm and rain.

5 Let me sing for my beloved my love-song concerning his vineyard:
My beloved had a vineyard
on a very fertile hill.

^a QMs: MT lacks shame

salem of arrogance and being more concerned with fashion than with the fate of their city and nation. When Jerusalem is conquered, the women will be stripped, humiliated, and desperate to find a husband in the devastation, even willing to forego the financial support mandated by law (Ex 21.10). 3.14: Vineyard, see 5.1–7n. 24: Sackcloth, clothing of rough fabric worn in times of mourning. 4.2–6: An idyllic portrayal of the restored Jerusalem following its period of purging begins with the formula, on that day. The passage combines the metaphor of the branch that will grow again after it is cut (cf. 6.12–13; 11.1–9) with the imagery of the daughters of Zion, washing and purifying themselves after their menstrual periods (see Lev 15.19–24). Cloud by day and flaming fire by night over the sacred site of Mount Zion recalls the LORD leading Israel at the time of the Exodus and Wilderness wandering (e.g., Ex 13.21–22; 14.19–20; 24.15–18; 40.34–38; Num 10.11–36; cf. 1 Kings 8.10–12). Such imagery also refers to the column of smoke and fire that rises from the Temple altar during sacrifice to signify the LORD’s presence. Here the smoke and fire forms a protective canopy for the restored city. The canopy is sometimes understood metaphorically as a wedding canopy to symbolize the restored marriage between the LORD and Daughter Zion (Jerusalem; cf. ch 54).

5.1–12.6: Prophetic instruction concerning Assyrian judgment against Israel and the restoration of the Davidic kingdom. Although chs 5–12 lack a superscription, the interest in both Israel and Judah is clear throughout

² He dug it and cleared it of stones, and planted it with choice vines;
he built a watchtower in the midst of it,
and hewed out a wine vat in it;
he expected it to yield grapes,
but it yielded wild grapes.

³ And now, inhabitants of Jerusalem and people of Judah,
judge between me
and my vineyard.

⁴ What more was there to do for my vineyard
that I have not done in it?
When I expected it to yield grapes,
why did it yield wild grapes?

⁵ And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard.
I will remove its hedge,
and it shall be devoured;
I will break down its wall,
and it shall be trampled down.

⁶ I will make it a waste;
it shall not be pruned or hoed,
and it shall be overgrown with briars
and thorns;
I will also command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it.

⁷ For the vineyard of the LORD of hosts is the house of Israel, and the people of Judah

are his pleasant planting;
he expected justice,
but saw bloodshed;
righteousness,
but heard a cry!

⁸ Ah, you who join house to house,
who add field to field,
until there is room for no one but you,
and you are left to live alone
in the midst of the land!
⁹ The LORD of hosts has sworn in my hearing:
Surely many houses shall be desolate, large and beautiful houses, without inhabitant.
¹⁰ For ten acres of vineyard shall yield but one bath,
and a homer of seed shall yield a mere ephah.^a

¹¹ Ah, you who rise early in the morning in pursuit of strong drink, who linger in the evening
to be inflamed by wine, ¹² whose feasts consist of lyre and harp, tambourine and flute and wine, but who do not regard the deeds of the LORD,
or see the work of his hands!

^a The Heb bath, homer, and ephah are measures of quantity

the unit. The passage begins with an announcement of divine judgment against Israel and Judah in 5.1–30, and a lengthy elaboration concerning the significance of that judgment and the restoration to follow in 6.1–12.6.

5.1–30: Announcement of judgment against Israel and Judah. This block of oracles combines the prophet's accusations of social wrongdoing in Israel with a vivid portrayal of the approach of the Assyrian army to argue that the LORD has brought the Assyrians to punish Israel. 1–7: Isaiah's song of the vineyard (see also 27.2–6) allegorically portrays the LORD as Isaiah's friend (beloved does not adequately convey the Hebrew here) who worked so hard to ensure a productive vineyard only to be disappointed when it yielded sour grapes. The allegory, which is explained only at the end, draws in the audience, as many in ancient Judah would have had extensive experience in vineyards. Its conclusion uses puns to make its point, viz., the LORD expects justice (Heb "mishpat"), but sees only bloodshed (Heb "mispah"), and hopes for righteousness (Heb "tsedaqah") only to hear a cry (Heb "tse'aqah"). 8–24: A series of "woe" (NRSV "Ah") oracles (see also 28.1; 29.1,15; 30.1; 31.1; 33.1; Hab 2.6–19), each introduced by the Heb exclamation "hoy" ("woe!") warns the people of coming punishment due to the failure of the leadership of Israel to ensure justice as called for in Israel's law codes, particularly Ex 20–23. 8–10: The first oracle criticizes seizure of property, a frequent concern of eighth-century BCE prophets (see 3.12–4.1n.). A bath is a liquid measure of ca. 6 gal (23 L), a poor yield for ten acres. A homer is ca. 6.5 bu (230 L), and an ephah is only one-tenth of a homer. 11–17: The prophet charges Israel's leadership with drunken incompetence. 11: Drunkenness is frequently mentioned together with charges of incompetence and wrongdoing (Isa 28.7–8; Hos 4.11; 7.5; Am 4.1; Mic 2.11). 12: The deeds and work, or plan and agenda, of God, a central motif

¹³ Therefore my people go into exile without knowledge;
their nobles are dying of hunger,
and their multitude is parched with thirst.

¹⁴ Therefore Sheol has enlarged its appetite and opened its mouth beyond measure;
the nobility of Jerusalem^a and her multitude go down,
her throng and all who exult in her.

¹⁵ People are bowed down, everyone is
brought low,
and the eyes of the haughty are humbled.

¹⁶ But the LORD of hosts is exalted by justice,
and the Holy God shows himself holy by righteousness.

¹⁷ Then the lambs shall graze as in their pasture,
fatlings and kids^b shall feed among the ruins.

¹⁸ Ah, you who drag iniquity along with cords of falsehood,
who drag sin along as with cart ropes,

¹⁹ who say, "Let him make haste, let him speed his work
that we may see it;

let the plan of the Holy One of Israel hasten to fulfillment,
that we may know it!"

²⁰ Ah, you who call evil good and good evil,
who put darkness for light
and light for darkness,

who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter!

²¹ Ah, you who are wise in your own eyes,
and shrewd in your own sight!

²² Ah, you who are heroes in drinking wine and valiant at mixing drink,

²³ who acquit the guilty for a bribe,
and deprive the innocent of their rights!

²⁴ Therefore, as the tongue of fire devours the stubble,
and as dry grass sinks down in the flame,
so their root will become rotten,
and their blossom go up like dust;
for they have rejected the instruction of
the LORD of hosts,
and have despised the word of the Holy
One of Israel.

²⁵ Therefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against his people, and he stretched out his hand against them and struck them;
the mountains quaked,
and their corpses were like refuse
in the streets.

For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.

²⁶ He will raise a signal for a nation far away,
and whistle for a people at the ends of
the earth;
Here they come, swiftly, speedily!

^a Heb her nobility

^b Cn Compare Gk: Heb aliens

in Isaiah (5.19; 10.12; 14.24–27; 19.12,17; 23.9; 28.21; 30.1). 14: The threat of exile and death is personified as Sheol, the underworld abode of the dead, which opens its mouth to swallow up the leadership of the people, much as they swallowed wine and food at their feasts. 20–24: The prophet charges that the people can no longer distinguish between right and wrong, perverting the judicial system (1.23; Mic 3.11; cf. Ex 23.8; Deut 16.19) in their own narcissism and drunkenness. Returning to the vineyard allegory of vv.1–7, the prophet charges that the people will be utterly consumed by fire for neglecting divine instruction (Heb "torah"). 25–30: The final subunit shifts from the metaphor of a burning vineyard to a chilling portrayal of the approaching Assyrian army summoned by the LORD. The outstretched hand of the LORD also appears throughout 9.7–10.5, and builds upon the imagery of Moses's outstretched hand throughout the plagues of the Exodus narratives (see Ex 7–10), the crossing of the sea (Ex 14.26–29), the provision of water from the rock (Ex 17.1–7), and the defeat of Amalek in the wilderness (Ex 17.8–16). 26: The signal (Heb "nes") raised to summon the nations likewise recalls the LORD's "banner" ("nes") in Ex 17.15–16. The roaring of the Assyrian army like lions recalls the lion as the symbol of the tribe of Judah and the house of David (Gen 49.9), now turned against the people. The darkening clouds over the land recall the pillar of cloud and smoke, identified with the LORD's presence during the Exodus and in the Holy of Holies in the Temple (see 4.2–6n.), but which is now absent.

²⁷None of them is weary, none stumbles, none slumbers or sleeps,
 not a loincloth is loose,
 not a sandal-thong broken; ²⁸their arrows are sharp,
 all their bows bent,
 their horses' hoofs seem like flint,
 and their wheels like the whirlwind.
²⁹Their roaring is like a lion,
 like young lions they roar;
 they growl and seize their prey,
 they carry it off, and no one can rescue.
³⁰They will roar over it on that day,
 like the roaring of the sea.
 And if one look to the land—
 only darkness and distress;
 and the light grows dark with clouds.

6 In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, high and lofty; and the hem of his robe filled the temple. ²Seraphs were in attendance above him;

each had six wings: with two they covered their faces, and with two they covered their feet, and with two they flew. ³And one called to another and said:

“Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts;
 the whole earth is full of his glory.”

⁴The pivots^a on the thresholds shook at the voices of those who called, and the house filled with smoke. ⁵And I said: “Woe is me!
 I am lost, for I am a man of unclean lips,
 and I live among a people of unclean lips;
 yet my eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts!”

⁶Then one of the seraphs flew to me, holding a live coal that had been taken from the altar with a pair of tongs. ⁷The seraph^b touched my mouth with it and said: “Now that this has touched your lips, your guilt has

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb He

6.1–13: Isaiah's commission. Isaiah's lengthy explanation of divine judgment and restoration in 6.1–12.6 begins with a first-person visionary account of his commission as a prophet. Prophetic visions are common in the Bible (Ex 33; 1 Sam 3; 1 Kings 19; Jer 1.11–19; 24; Ezek 1–3; 8–11; 40–48; Am 7–9; Hab 2.2; Zech 1.7–6.15) and in the larger ancient Near Eastern world (cf. Balaam's visions in Num 22–24; a vision of Balaam was found inscribed on the collapsed wall of a ninth–eighth century building at Deir Alla, east of the Jordan River). Although visions are commonly associated with temples, priests (e.g., Moses; Samuel; Jeremiah; Ezekiel; Zechariah) and nonpriests (Elijah; Amos; Habakkuk) alike may experience visions. Isaiah is not a priest, but his vision portrays the LORD enthroned in the Holy of Holies of the Jerusalem Temple. As a royal adviser, Isaiah would stand with the king by the column at the entrance of the Temple where he could see the interior of the Temple (2 Kings 11.14; 23.3). Such a vision of the LORD's royal court corresponds to the visions of Micaiah (1 Kings 22.19–23) and Ezekiel (Ezek 1). Given the emphasis on purifying the people from sin, it is possible that the vision takes place on the Day of Atonement, when the priest enters the Holy of Holies to atone on behalf of the people (Lev 16; 23.26–32). 1–2: King Uzziah of Judah, also known as Azariah, died in 742 or 733 BCE (2 Kings 15.1–7.32); the chronology is uncertain. The reigns of his son, Jotham, and grandson, Ahaz, saw the first attempts by the Syro-Ephraimite alliance, i.e., Aram and the Northern Kingdom of Israel, to invade Judah, motivating Assyria to take control of the region (2 Kings 15.32–16.20; Isa 7.1–9.6). Because Isaiah is heavily influenced by the royal Davidic/Zion theology, he sees the LORD enthroned as a king in the Holy of Holies of the Temple. The ark of the covenant, which was housed in the Holy of Holies (1 Kings 8.6–9), was believed to serve as the footstool for the LORD's throne (see 1 Sam 4.4; 6.2; Isa 37.16; 66.1; Pss 80.2; 99.1). The seraphs are heavenly beings who serve as attendants to the divine king. The Hebrew word “seraph” (lit., “fiery one”) also refers to fiery snakes in the wilderness (Num 21.6–9; Deut 8.15; cf. Isa 14.29; 30.6). Here, they are comparable to the cherubim, winged creatures of composite animal and human form, which are guardians of the ark (Ex 25.10–22). Isaiah's vision of the seraphs is apparently influenced by the imagery of the flickering lights of the lamp stands in the thick incense smoke that fills the Temple during worship. Feet, a euphemism for genitals. 3–4: The hymn of the seraphs, well known in both Jewish and Christian worship, recounts the LORD's holiness as sovereign of all creation, and points to the liturgical setting of Isaiah's vision. The shaking of the thresholds likely represents the movement of the Temple doors as they are opened. Smoke accompanies the divine presence (4.5; 30.27; Ex 19.18; Ps 18.8), in this case also from the fire on the altar (v. 6). 5: Isaiah recognizes that he is not sufficiently pure to stand before the LORD in the Temple (cf. Ex 33.18–20). 6–7: The cleansing of Isaiah's mouth with a hot coal from the altar is similar to the mouth purifica-departed and your sin is blotted out.”⁸ Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, “Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?” And I said, “Here am I; send me!”⁹ And he said, “Go and say to this people:

‘Keep listening, but do not comprehend;
keep looking, but do not understand.’

¹⁰ Make the mind of this people dull, and stop their ears,
and shut their eyes,
so that they may not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and comprehend with their minds,
and turn and be healed.”

¹¹ Then I said, “How long, O Lord?” And he said:

“Until cities lie waste without inhabitant,
and houses without people,
and the land is utterly desolate;

¹² until the LORD sends everyone far away,

and vast is the emptiness in the midst of the land.

¹³ Even if a tenth part remain in it,
it will be burned again,
like a terebinth or an oak whose stump remains standing when it is felled.”^a

The holy seed is its stump.

7 In the days of Ahaz son of Jotham son of Uzziah, king of Judah, King Rezin of Aram and King Pekah son of Remaliah of Israel went up to attack Jerusalem, but could not mount an attack against it.² When the house of David heard that Aram had allied itself with Ephraim, the heart of Ahaz^b and the heart of his people shook as the trees of the forest shake before the wind.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb his heart

tion rituals of oracular priests in ancient Mesopotamia so that they could speak on behalf of their gods. 8: The LORD’s question and Isaiah’s response recalls the experience of Micaiah (1 Kings 22.20–21). Us, the plural refers to the entire divine assembly. 9–10: The LORD’s commission to Isaiah is one of the most disturbing elements of the book, insofar as Isaiah’s task is to ensure that the people will not see, hear, or understand, so that they cannot repent and thereby avoid the punishment of the LORD (cf. the LORD’s hardening the heart of Pharaoh; Ex 7.3–5; 10.1). 11–13: Isaiah’s response How long? is often understood to be a sign of his resignation to the divine will and his empathy for his people, although other figures, such as Abraham (Gen 18), Moses (Ex 33; Num 14), Amos (Am 7.1–6), and Job did not hesitate to challenge the LORD when they thought a divine act was questionable. The concluding images of judgment against the land culminate in a portrayal of a tree stump that must be burned after the tree is cut down. Despite the horrific imagery of a mere ten-percent survival rate (tenth part), the account concludes with a hopeful image of new growth from the ravaged stump that will constitute the holy seed of restoration (see Ezra 9.2).

7.1–8.15: Narrative concerning the LORD’s judgment against Judah. The explanation of divine judgment shifts to a third-person narrative concerning Isaiah’s confrontation with King Ahaz of Judah (743/735–727/715 BCE) at the time of the Syro-Ephraimite invasion of Judah (see 1 Kings 16) in 7.1–25, followed by a return to Isaiah’s first-person narrative in 8.1–15 concerning the significance of the Maher-shalal-hash-baz sign (see textual note a on 8.1). The passage has a complex history of revision in response to changing circumstances.

7.1–25: Dialogue between King Ahaz and Isaiah. The narrative begins with reference to the Syro-Ephraimite War of 735–732 BCE. In an attempt to oppose advances into western Asia by the Assyrian King Tiglath-pileser III (745–727), King Rezin of Damascus (Aram; ca. 750–732) and King Pekah of Israel (735–732) formed the Syro-Ephraimite alliance. Pekah came to the throne of Israel in a coup engineered by Aram that saw the assassination of his predecessor, Pekahiah (737–735), the son of the pro-Assyrian Menahem (747–737; 2 Kings 15.17–26). Rezin and Pekah attempted to assemble all of the smaller states in the region into a united force that would face the Assyrians. King Jotham of Judah (759–743/735), who likely knew all too well the animosity between Israel and Aram over the past century (King Ahab of Israel was killed at Ramoth-gilead while fighting the Arameans; see 1 Kings 22), refused to join such an unstable alliance. Jotham died of unknown causes before the combined forces of the northern kingdom of Israel and Aram arrived at Jerusalem, leaving his twenty-year-old son Ahaz to face the threat (1 Kings 16). The goal of the assault was to force Judah into the Syro-Ephraimite alliance by removing the Davidic king and replacing him with a presumably more pliable figure named “son of Tabeel” (v. 6). 2: The house of David, the southern kingdom of Judah; Ephraim, the northern kingdom of Israel.

³Then the LORD said to Isaiah, Go out to meet Ahaz, you and your son Shear-jashub,^a at the end of the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Fuller's Field,⁴ and say to him, Take heed, be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint because of these two smoldering stumps of firebrands, because of the fierce anger of Rezin and Aram and the son of Remaliah.⁵ Because Aram—with Ephraim and the son of Remaliah—has plotted evil against you, saying, ⁶Let us go up against Judah and cut off Jerusalem^b and conquer it for ourselves and make the son of Tabeel king in it;⁷ therefore thus says the Lord God:

It shall not stand,
and it shall not come to pass.

⁸For the head of Aram is Damascus, and the head of Damascus is Rezin.
(Within sixty-five years Ephraim will be shattered, no longer a people.)

⁹The head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is the son of Remaliah.

If you do not stand firm in faith,
you shall not stand at all.

¹⁰Again the LORD spoke to Ahaz, saying,

¹¹Ask a sign of the LORD your God; let it be deep as Sheol or high as heaven. ¹²But Ahaz said, I will not ask, and I will not put the LORD to the test. ¹³Then Isaiah^c said: "Hear then, O house of David! Is it too little for you to weary mortals, that you weary my God also? ¹⁴Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Look, the young woman^d is with child and shall bear a son, and shall name him Immanuel.^e ¹⁵He shall eat curds and honey by the time he knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good. ¹⁶For before the child knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land before whose two kings you are in dread will be deserted. ¹⁷The LORD will bring on you and on your people and on your ancestral house such days as have not come since the day that Ephraim departed from Judah—the king of Assyria."

¹⁸On that day the LORD will whistle for the fly that is at the sources of the streams of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Assyria. ¹⁹And they will all come and settle in the steep ravines, and in the clefts of the rocks, and on all the thornbushes, and on all the pastures.

^a That is A remnant shall return

^b Heb cut it off

^c Heb he

^d Gk the virgin

^e That is God is with us

3–9: The end of the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Fuller's Field. A fuller prepared cloth by treading on it when it was wet. The location refers to the Gihon spring, Jerusalem's water source, which was located beyond the fortified wall of the city in the Kidron Valley immediately east of the city of David. All ancient cities faced the problem of access to water in times of siege. Like several ancient Israelite cities, Jerusalem had a tunnel that would allow protected access to the Gihon from inside the walls of the city. Ahaz was inspecting Jerusalem's defenses when Isaiah arrived with his son, symbolically named Shear-jashub ("a remnant will return"). The symbolic name is both a reassurance that the LORD would defend Jerusalem in keeping with the Davidic/Zion tradition, and also an acknowledgment of Judah's heavy losses. 4: Isaiah's advice to trust in the LORD makes some practical military sense, since the Israelite and Aramean armies would hardly have time to lay a protracted siege of Jerusalem, leaving their own borders open to Assyrian attack. 6: Son of Tabeel, see 7:1–25n. 9: If you do not stand firm in faith (Heb "im lo' ta'aminu," lit., "if you are not faithful"), you shall not stand at all ("lo' te'amenu," lit., "you will not be secure"), a wordplay between two forms of the Heb verb, "amen," "to stand firm." 10–25: The narrative suggests that Ahaz is skeptical, prompting the prophet to demand that the king ask a "sign" of the LORD. 11: Sheol, the underworld. Although Ahaz rejects Isaiah's advice, his response to the prophet is a model of piety insofar as he will not put the LORD to the test. 14: Isaiah's reply emphasizes the LORD's own sign, i.e., the birth of the child Immanuel ("God is with us") to express the LORD's commitment to defend Jerusalem. The young woman is not identified; she may be either the wife of Isaiah (cf. 8.3) or of King Ahaz. Although 7.14 is cited in Mt 1.23 as a proof text for the virgin birth of Jesus, based on the Greek LXX translation "parthenos" (virgin), the Heb word "almah" simply means young woman, not virgin. 15–17: Curds and honey, choice fare, difficult to obtain during a siege; by the time the child is weaned (two to three years) the northern allies will have been totally defeated and the land (of milk and honey) will return to the prosperity it enjoyed under David and Solomon. 18–19: A negative oracle describing the dire consequences, particularly the subjugation

²⁰ On that day the Lord will shave with a razor hired beyond the River—with the king of Assyria—the head and the hair of the feet, and it will take off the beard as well.

²¹ On that day one will keep alive a young cow and two sheep, ²² and will eat curds because of the abundance of milk that they give; for everyone that is left in the land shall eat curds and honey.

²³ On that day every place where there used to be a thousand vines, worth a thousand shekels of silver, will become briars and thorns. ²⁴ With bow and arrows one will go there, for all the land will be briars and thorns; ²⁵ and as for all the hills that used to be hoed with a hoe, you will not go there for fear of briars and thorns; but they will become a place where cattle are let loose and where sheep tread.

8 Then the LORD said to me, Take a large tablet and write on it in common characters, “Belonging to Maher-shalal-hash-baz,”^a ² and have it attested^b for me by reliable witnesses, the priest Uriah and Zechariah son of Jeberechiah. ³ And I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son. Then the LORD said to me, Name him Maher-shalal-hash-baz; ⁴ for before the child knows how to call “My father” or “My mother,” the wealth of Damascus and the spoil of Samaria will be carried away by the king of Assyria.

⁵ The LORD spoke to me again: ⁶ Because this people has refused the waters of Shiloah that flow gently, and melt in fear before^c Rezin and the son of Remaliah; ⁷ therefore, the Lord is bringing up against it the mighty flood waters of the River, the king of Assyria and all his glory; it will rise above all its channels and overflow all its banks; ⁸ it will sweep on into Judah as a flood, and, pouring over, it will reach up to the neck; and its outspread wings will fill the breadth of your land, O Immanuel.

⁹ Band together, you peoples, and be dismayed;
listen, all you far countries;
gird yourselves and be dismayed;
gird yourselves and be dismayed!

¹⁰ Take counsel together, but it shall be brought to naught;

^a That is The spoil speeds, the prey hastens

^b Q Ms Gk Syr: MT and I caused to be attested

^c Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

tion of Judah by the Assyrian Empire, that will befall Jerusalem and Judah as a result of Ahaz’s refusal to accept Isaiah’s promises. The Isaiah narrative presumes Ahaz’s decision to send for help to the Assyrian King Tiglath-pileser III (2 Kings 16.7–18). Ahaz’s appeal to Assyria put him and his nation in debt to the Assyrians. Had he followed Isaiah’s advice to wait out the siege, Tiglath-pileser, needing no invitation to invade Aram and Israel, would have come anyway, and Ahaz would not have been so indebted. 20: For the shaming of prisoners by the removal of facial and body hair, see 2 Sam 10.1–5. Feet, genitals. 21–22: A reuse of the curds-and-honey motif signifying that the land will go back to pasture as a result of invasion. 23–25: Reuse of the motif of the reversion of the vineyards to briars and thorns, as in 5.6. 23: A thousand shekels, ca. 25 lb (11 kg).

8.1–15: Autobiographical account concerning the Maher-shalal-hash-baz sign. The narrative abruptly shifts to Isaiah’s first-person account concerning the birth of his son, Maher-shalal-hash-baz, who serves as a sign concerning the impending judgment to be suffered by Judah when the Assyrian king takes control of Judah. 1–4: The prophet recounts how he secured witnesses concerning the future birth of his son, Maher-shalal-hash-baz, whose name means “the spoil speeds, the prey hastens,” symbolically conveying the speed with which the Assyrians will act against the Syro-Ephraimite coalition and establish their authority over Judah. 2: Uriah and Zechariah, the former may be the chief priest of the Jerusalem Temple (2 Kings 16.10–16) and the latter the father-in-law of Ahaz (2 Kings 18.2). 3: The prophetess, Isaiah’s wife, perhaps in the service of the Temple or court. 5–8: The prophet makes clear the LORD’s dissatisfaction with Ahaz’s refusal to accept the divine offer of protection. The waters of Shiloah, the stream fed by the Gihon spring that symbolizes the LORD’s sustenance of Jerusalem and the house of David (Neh 2.14; 3.15). The oracle plays on the imagery of the protective stream that now becomes a threatening force as it overflows its banks to flood the land. 7: The River, the Euphrates, in western Assyria. 8: Whereas Immanuel, “God is with us,” earlier signified God’s protection of Judah, the name now symbolizes the LORD’s punishment of the land. 9–10: A brief hymn expands on the Immanuel theme with speaking a word, but it will not stand, for God is with us.^a

¹¹For the LORD spoke thus to me while his hand was strong upon me, and warned me not to walk in the way of this people, saying: ¹²Do not call conspiracy all that this people calls conspiracy, and do not fear what it fears, or be in dread. ¹³But the LORD of hosts, him you shall regard as holy; let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. ¹⁴He will become a sanctuary, a stone one strikes against; for both houses of Israel he will become a rock one stumbles over—a trap and a snare for the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ¹⁵And many among them shall stumble; they shall fall and be broken; they shall be snared and taken.

¹⁶Bind up the testimony, seal the teaching among my disciples. ¹⁷I will wait for the LORD, who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob, and I will hope in him. ¹⁸See, I and the children whom the LORD has given me are signs and portents in Israel from the LORD of hosts, who dwells on Mount Zion. ¹⁹Now if people say to you, “Consult the ghosts and the familiar spirits that chirp and mutter; should not a people consult their gods, the dead on behalf of the living,²⁰ for teaching and for instruction?” surely, those who speak like this will have no dawn!²¹ They will pass through the land,^b greatly distressed and hungry; when they are hungry, they will be enraged and will curse^c their king and their gods. They will turn their faces upward,²² or they will look to the earth, but will see only distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish; and they will be thrust into thick darkness.^d

9^e But there will be no gloom for those who were in anguish. In the former time he brought into contempt the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, but in the latter time he will make glorious the way of the sea, the land beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the nations.

^{2f}The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light;

^a Heb immanu el

^b Heb it

^c Or curse by

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Ch 8.23 in Heb

^f Ch 9.1 in Heb

reference to the victorious Jerusalem of the future (anticipating 8.16–12.6). 11–15: The hand of the LORD signifies possession by the spirit of God, resulting in transformed prophetic consciousness (e.g., 1 Kings 18.46; 2 Kings 3.15; Ezek 1.3; 3.22; 8.1; 33.22). Isaiah’s opposition to Ahaz and his circle has apparently led to accusations of conspiracy directed against him and his followers.

8.16–12.6: Announcement concerning the fall of Assyria and the restoration of the Davidic kingdom. Having laid out the scenario for Jerusalem’s and Judah’s judgment at the hands of Assyria in 7.1–8.15, the prophet’s oracles then turn to a scenario of divine judgment against Assyria for its own arrogance (cf. 2.10–21) and the restoration of righteous Davidic rule over a reunited Israel and Judah.

8.16–9.7: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD’s signs to Israel and the house of David. Isaiah now expresses frustration as he decides to wait for the LORD to act. Isaiah maintains that the LORD is hiding from the nation, a disturbing proposition that is meant to overcome suggestions of divine impotence or maliciousness in the face of crisis, but nevertheless points to the LORD as an important cause of Judah’s suffering. 8.16: The commands to bind up the testimony and seal the teaching (Heb “torah”) among my disciples is an ambiguous statement. Heb “limmuday,” translated here as “my disciples,” may also refer to “my teachings,” since “limmud” means “taught,” whether the content is the teaching or the person taught. The phrase may have played a role in motivating the expansion of the book of Isaiah in the exilic and postexilic periods as later interpreters reflected upon the meaning of the prophet’s oracles in relation to their own times. 8.18–9.7: The prophet anticipates a period of gloom and darkness until a new Davidic monarch arises to replace Ahaz. 18: I and the children, Shear-jashub (7.3), Maher-shalal-hash-baz (v.1) and possibly Immanuel (see 7.14n.), are portents for the future; the name Isaiah (“The LORD saves”) connotes the hope of salvation. 19: Recourse to ghosts and the familiar spirits (i.e., necromancy) was a practice in ancient Israel and Judah, though often condemned (19.3; Lev 19.31; Deut 18.10–11). Here Isaiah threatens that it can lead only to greater distress and darkness. 9.1: Zebulun and Naphtali refer to the Assyrian annexation of Israelite tribal territories in the Galilee following Tiglath-pileser’s defeat of northern Israel in 732 BCE. The Assyrian provinces of Dur (Dor, the way of the sea), Gal’azu (Gilead, the land beyond the Jordan), and Magidu (Megiddo, Galilee of the nations), areas just south and west of Zebulun and Naphtali, were also carved out of Israel at this time. 2–7: The royal song of thanks-those who lived in a land of deep darkness—

on them light has shined.

³You have multiplied the nation,
you have increased its joy;
they rejoice before you
as with joy at the harvest, as people exult when dividing plunder.

⁴For the yoke of their burden,
and the bar across their shoulders,
the rod of their oppressor,
you have broken as on the day of Midian.

⁵For all the boots of the tramping warriors
and all the garments rolled in blood shall be burned as fuel for the fire.

⁶For a child has been born for us, a son given to us;
authority rests upon his shoulders;
and he is named

Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.

⁷His authority shall grow continually, and there shall be endless peace
for the throne of David and his kingdom.

He will establish and uphold it with justice and with righteousness from this time onward and forevermore.

The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

⁸The LORD sent a word against Jacob,
and it fell on Israel;

⁹and all the people knew it—Ephraim and the inhabitants of Samaria—
but in pride and arrogance of heart they
said:

¹⁰“The bricks have fallen,
but we will build with dressed stones;
the sycamores have been cut down,
but we will put cedars in their place.”

¹¹So the LORD raised adversaries^a against
them,

and stirred up their enemies, ¹²the Arameans on the east and the Philistines on the west, and they devoured Israel with open mouth.

For all this his anger has not turned away;
his hand is stretched out still.

¹³The people did not turn to him who struck them,
or seek the LORD of hosts.

¹⁴So the LORD cut off from Israel head and tail,
palm branch and reed in one day—

¹⁵elders and dignitaries are the head, and prophets who teach lies are the tail;

^a Cn: Heb the adversaries of Rezin

giving answers the hopes of those who wait for the LORD to act to restore righteous Davidic rule in Israel. 4–5: Military oppression is symbolized by the yoke (10.27; 14.25), the bar (10.24), the rod (10.24; 14.5; Gen 49.10), and the trampling boots. 4: The day of Midian refers to Gideon’s defeat of Midian and deliverance of Israel in Judg 7.15–25. 6–7: For us, see 6.8n. The birth or coronation of a new king, perhaps Hezekiah, the son and successor of Ahaz, signals a new period of peace, justice, and righteousness in which Davidic rule will be reestablished in Israel. See also Ps 2.7.

9.8–10.4: Prophetic warning of judgment to Israel’s leaders. The prophet returns to a focus on northern Israel. The oracles in this passage all conclude with the formulaic statement, “for all this, his (the LORD’s) anger has not turned away; his hand is stretched out still” (9.12b, 17b, 21b; 10.4b). The occurrence of this formula in 5.25 indicates that 5.1–30 and 9.8–10.4 form a literary envelope around 6.1–9.7. The oracles presuppose Israel’s experience in the Syro-Ephraimite alliance, and point to Israel’s leadership as the cause of its problems. 9.8–12: This oracle recalls Aram’s (and Philistia’s) aggression against Israel in the ninth century BCE when King Ahab was killed in battle (1 Kings 22). Later Israelite kings and their Judean vassals were contained by the Aramean push into Philistia (2 Kings 10.32; 12.17–18; 13.7). 8: Jacob is the eponymous ancestor of Israel (Gen 32.22–32; 35.9–15) and is especially associated with northern Israelite locations. 9: Ephraim is the dominant tribe of northern Israel, and Samaria is the capital of the Northern Kingdom (1 Kings 16.24). 13–17: Isaiah decries Israel’s failure to recognize that the LORD was the party responsible for striking against Israel’s leaders. Although the Jehu dynasty eventually achieved security for Israel during the reigns of Jehoash (800–784 BCE) and Jeroboam II (788–747; 2 Kings 13.24–25; 14.23–29), ancient Near Eastern sources indicate that Jehu (842–814) and Jehoash did so by forming an alliance with Assyria to contain Aram. King Zechariah (747), the last king of the house of Jehu, was

¹⁶ for those who led this people led them astray, and those who were led by them were left in confusion.
¹⁷ That is why the LORD did not have pity on^a their young people, or compassion on their orphans and widows;
 for everyone was godless and an evildoer,
 and every mouth spoke folly.
 For all this his anger has not turned away;
 his hand is stretched out still.

¹⁸ For wickedness burned like a fire, consuming briars and thorns;
 it kindled the thickets of the forest,
 and they swirled upward in a column of smoke.

¹⁹ Through the wrath of the LORD of hosts the land was burned,
 and the people became like fuel for the fire;
 no one spared another.

²⁰ They gorged on the right, but still were hungry,
 and they devoured on the left, but were not satisfied;
 they devoured the flesh of their own kindred;^b

²¹ Manasseh devoured Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasseh, and together they were against Judah.
 For all this his anger has not turned away;
 his hand is stretched out still.

and to rob the poor of my people of their right,
 that widows may be your spoil,
 and that you may make the orphans your prey!
³ What will you do on the day of punishment,
 in the calamity that will come from far away?
 To whom will you flee for help,
 and where will you leave your wealth, ⁴ so as not to crouch among the prisoners or fall among the slain?
 For all this his anger has not turned away;
 his hand is stretched out still.

⁵ Ah, Assyria, the rod of my anger—
 the club in their hands is my fury!
⁶ Against a godless nation I send him,
 and against the people of my wrath I command him,
 to take spoil and seize plunder,
 and to tread them down like the mire of the streets.

⁷ But this is not what he intends,
 nor does he have this in mind;
 but it is in his heart to destroy,
 and to cut off nations not a few.

⁸ For he says:
 “Are not my commanders all kings?”

10 Ah, you who make iniquitous decrees, who write oppressive statutes,
² to turn aside the needy from justice

^a QMs: MT rejoice over
^b Or arm

ultimately assassinated by pro-Aramean elements in Israel (2 Kings 8–12). 18–21: The last years of the kingdom of Israel were marked by a series of royal assassinations as pro-Assyrian and pro-Aramean elements struggled for control of the nation. King Pekah (see 7:1–25n.), who joined Israel with Aram to form the Syro-Ephraimite alliance, gained his throne by assassinating Pekahiah, the son of the pro-Assyrian King Menahem (2 Kings 15:17–26; cf. 2 Kings 15:25). 21: Ephraim and Manasseh were the two largest tribes in the Northern Kingdom of Israel.

10:1–4: The last oracle of the sequence begins with “woe” (Ah) to signal the prophet’s judgment against Israel’s leadership for its oppression of the poor and manipulation of the judicial system (see 5:20–24n.). Ultimately the Assyrian King Tiglath-pileser III (745–727 BCE) stripped away much of Israel’s outlying territory, which prompted Hoshea (732–722) to assassinate Pekah and submit to Assyria (2 Kings 15:29–30).

10:5–12:6: Prophetic announcement of Assyrian downfall and Davidic restoration. The final oracular sequence in chs 5–12 takes up divine judgment against the Assyrian monarch for his arrogance and the coming restoration of righteous Davidic rule over a reunified Israel and Judah. 10:5–11: The sequence begins with a “woe” (Ah) oracle directed against the Assyrian king. Although the LORD sent the Assyrians to punish Israel, the Assyrian king arrogantly sees himself and not the LORD as the true power in the world. The Assyrian monarch

⁹ Is not Calno like Carchemish?
 Is not Hamath like Arpad?
 Is not Samaria like Damascus?
¹⁰ As my hand has reached to the kingdoms of the idols
 whose images were greater than those of Jerusalem and Samaria, ¹¹ shall I not do to Jerusalem and her idols what I have done to Samaria and her images?"

¹² When the LORD has finished all his work on Mount Zion and on Jerusalem, he^a will punish the arrogant boasting of the king of Assyria and his haughty pride. ¹³ For he says:
 "By the strength of my hand I have done it, and by my wisdom, for I have understanding;
 I have removed the boundaries of peoples,
 and have plundered their treasures;
 like a bull I have brought down those who sat on thrones.

¹⁴ My hand has found, like a nest,
 the wealth of the peoples;
 and as one gathers eggs that have been forsaken,
 so I have gathered all the earth;
 and there was none that moved a wing,
 or opened its mouth, or chirped."

¹⁵ Shall the ax vaunt itself over the one who wields it,
 or the saw magnify itself against the one who handles it?
 As if a rod should raise the one who lifts
 it up,
 or as if a staff should lift the one who is not wood!

¹⁶ Therefore the Sovereign, the LORD of
 hosts,
 will send wasting sickness among his stout warriors,
 and under his glory a burning will be kindled,
 like the burning of fire.

¹⁷ The light of Israel will become a fire,
 and his Holy One a flame;
 and it will burn and devour
 his thorns and briars in one day.

¹⁸ The glory of his forest and his fruitful
 land
 the LORD will destroy, both soul and body,
 and it will be as when an invalid wastes
 away.

¹⁹ The remnant of the trees of his forest will be so few
 that a child can write them down.

²⁰ On that day the remnant of Israel and the survivors of the house of Jacob will no more lean on the one who struck them, but will lean on the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth. ²¹ A remnant will return, the remnant of Jacob, to the mighty God. ²² For though your people Israel were like the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them will return. Destruction is decreed, overflowing with righteousness. ²³ For the Lord God of hosts will make a full end, as decreed, in all the earth.^b

²⁴ Therefore thus says the Lord God of hosts: O my people, who live in Zion, do not

^a Heb I

^b Or land

portrayed here is Sargon II (721–705 BCE). ⁹: The cities named are all Aramean cities conquered by Tiglath-pileser III (745–727) or Sargon II. Calno (Calneh) in 740 and 738; Carchemish in 717; Hamath in 738 and again in 720; Arpad in 740; and Damascus in 732. ^{10–11}: To the Assyrian king, Samaria and Jerusalem are ruled by idols and will fall to him just like the others. ^{12–19}: Once the LORD completes the punishment of Jerusalem, divine attention will turn to the punishment of the Assyrian king for his arrogant and self-aggrandizing boasting. ¹⁵: The imagery of ax and saw presupposes the Assyrian practice of cutting down trees in the land of their enemies to provide wood for siege engines and to destroy the agricultural base of the economy (cf. Deut 20.19–20). The LORD will become a raging fire that will burn Assyria, symbolically portrayed as felled trees. ^{20–27a}: The prophet returns to the theme of the remnant that will survive the Syro-Aramean and Assyrian onslaughts (cf. 1.9; 4.2–6; 6.12–13; 7.1–15) to see the final overthrow of the Assyrians. ²²: Sand, cf. 48.19; Gen 22.17; 1 Kings 4.20. ²⁴: Assyria has become an oppressor of Israel much like the pharaoh of Egypt at the time of the Exodus. The oracle plays on the image of Assyria's rod (cf. 10.5), first to be used to punish Israel, then as an instrument of oppression, and finally used against Assyria, much as the rods of Moses and Aaron were used against Egypt during the plagues be afraid of the Assyrians when they beat you with a rod and lift up their staff against you as the Egyptians did.²⁵ For in a very little while my indignation will come to an end, and my anger will be directed to their destruction.²⁶ The LORD of hosts will wield a whip against them, as when he struck Midian at the rock of Oreb; his staff will be over the sea, and he will lift it as he did in Egypt.²⁷ On that day his burden will be removed from your shoulder, and his yoke will be destroyed from your neck.

He has gone up from Rimmon,^a ²⁸ he has come to Aiath;
 he has passed through Migron,
 at Michmash he stores his baggage; ²⁹ they have crossed over the pass,
 at Geba they lodge for the night;
 Ramah trembles,
 Gibeah of Saul has fled.
³⁰ Cry aloud, O daughter Gallim!
 Listen, O Laishah!
 Answer her, O Anathoth!
³¹ Madmenah is in flight,
 the inhabitants of Gebim flee for safety.
³² This very day he will halt at Nob, he will shake his fist
 at the mount of daughter Zion,
 the hill of Jerusalem.
³³ Look, the Sovereign, the LORD of hosts, will lop the boughs with terrifying
 power;
 the tallest trees will be cut down,
 and the lofty will be brought low.
³⁴ He will hack down the thickets of the forest with an ax,
 and Lebanon with its majestic trees^b will fall.

11 A shoot shall come out from the stump of Jesse,
 and a branch shall grow out of his roots.
² The spirit of the LORD shall rest on him,
 the spirit of wisdom and
 understanding,
 the spirit of counsel and might,
 the spirit of knowledge and the fear of
 the LORD.
³ His delight shall be in the fear of the LORD.

He shall not judge by what his eyes see,
 or decide by what his ears hear;
⁴ but with righteousness he shall judge the poor,
 and decide with equity for the meek of
 the earth;
 he shall strike the earth with the rod of his
 mouth,
 and with the breath of his lips he shall kill the wicked.
⁵ Righteousness shall be the belt around his waist,
 and faithfulness the belt around his loins.
⁶ The wolf shall live with the lamb,
 the leopard shall lie down with the kid,
 the calf and the lion and the fatling
 together,
 and a little child shall lead them.
⁷ The cow and the bear shall graze, their young shall lie down together;
 and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.
⁸ The nursing child shall play over the hole of the asp,

^a Cn: Heb and his yoke from your neck, and a yoke will be destroyed because of fatness

^b Cn Compare Gk Vg: Heb with a majestic one and at the parting of the sea (Ex 6–11; 13–15). 26: Midian . . . Oreb, see Judg 7.25. 10.27b–11.9: The advance of the Assyrian king against Jerusalem generally follows the route from northern Israel through Benjamin south into Jerusalem. The Assyrian king who threatens Jerusalem is likely Sargon II, who passed through Jerusalem in 720 BCE and put on a show of force to intimidate the city on his way to confront the Egyptians and Philistines at Raphia. 10.27b–32: Some of the cities named cannot be identified with certainty, but all are presumably not far north of Jerusalem. 33: Isaiah's use of tree imagery recurs (see 10.15–19). 34: Lebanon, see 2.13n. 11.1–9: In place of the felled Assyrian tree, the stump will produce a new branch that will grow into the new and righteous Davidic monarch who will preside over Jerusalem in peace (cf. 6.12–13; 9.1–7). 1: Jesse, the father of David (1 Sam 16.1–20). 2: The spirit of the LORD, the charismatic endowment of the future ruler is expressed in three pairs of attributes; LXX adds “the spirit of piety,” providing the basis for the seven gifts of the Holy Spirit in Christian theology. 6–8: The idyllic scenario in which the animals live in peace and even a baby is safe recalls the garden and the weaned child shall put its hand on the adder's den.

⁹They will not hurt or destroy
on all my holy mountain;
for the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD
as the waters cover the sea.

¹⁰On that day the root of Jesse shall stand as a signal to the peoples; the nations shall inquire of him, and his dwelling shall be glorious.

¹¹On that day the LORD will extend his hand yet a second time to recover the remnant that is left of his people, from Assyria, from Egypt, from Pathros, from Ethiopia,^a from Elam, from Shinar, from Hamath, and from the coastlands of the sea.

¹²He will raise a signal for the nations,
and will assemble the outcasts of Israel,
and gather the dispersed of Judah
from the four corners of the earth.

¹³The jealousy of Ephraim shall depart,
the hostility of Judah shall be cut off;
Ephraim shall not be jealous of Judah, and Judah shall not be hostile towards Ephraim.

¹⁴But they shall swoop down on the backs of the Philistines in the west, together they shall plunder the people of the east.

They shall put forth their hand against Edom and Moab,

and the Ammonites shall obey them.

¹⁵And the LORD will utterly destroy the tongue of the sea of Egypt;
and will wave his hand over the River with his scorching wind;
and will split it into seven channels,
and make a way to cross on foot; ¹⁶so there shall be a highway from Assyria for the remnant that is left of his
people,
as there was for Israel when they came up from the land of Egypt.

12 You will say in that day:
I will give thanks to you, O LORD,
for though you were angry with me,
your anger turned away,
and you comforted me.

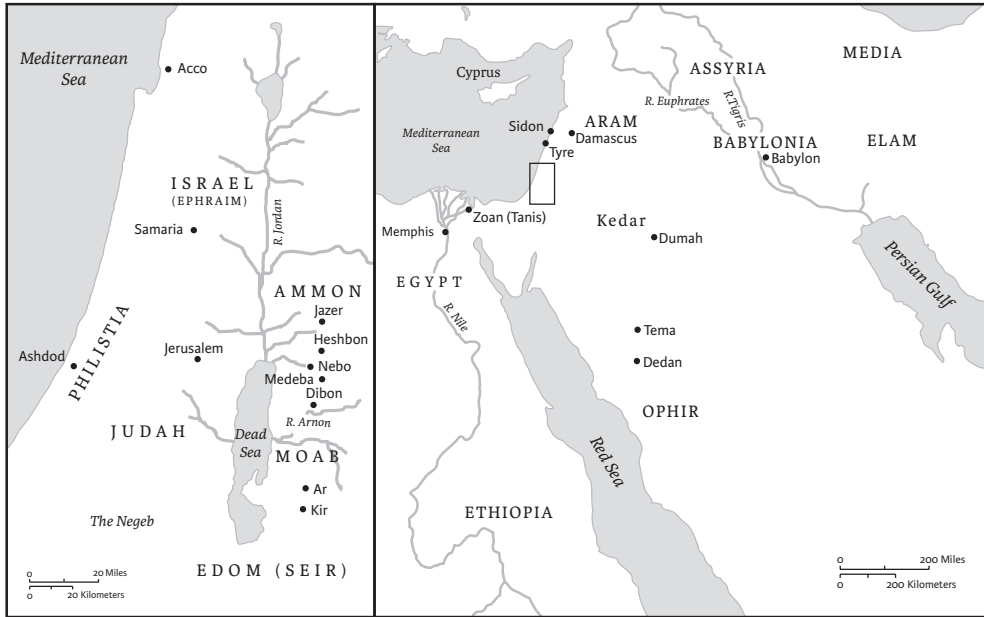

²Surely God is my salvation;
I will trust, and will not be afraid, for the LORD GOD^b is my strength and my might;
he has become my salvation.

³With joy you will draw water from the wells of salvation. ⁴And you will say in that day:
Give thanks to the LORD,
call on his name;

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Heb for Yah, the LORD

of Eden (Gen 2). 9: My holy mountain, see 2.2n. 10: Signal, see 5.26n. 11–16: The restoration of righteous Davidic rule in Jerusalem prompts the return of Israel's exiles and the restoration of the united Davidic empire. Israelites were exiled to Assyria and others had fled to Egypt during the course of the Assyrian invasions in the late eighth century. 11: Pathros, in southern Egypt; Ethiopia (Heb "Cush"), south of Egypt; Elam, in southern Iran, east of Babylonia; Shinar, the plain of Babylon; Hamath, in north central Aram (Syria); the coastlands of the sea, the Phoenician littoral on the eastern Mediterranean coast, or the islands of the eastern Aegean. 12–14: With the exiles recovered, Israel and Judah will reunite under the rule of the Davidic king as in the days of David and Solomon, to conquer Philistia and Transjordan (Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites), regions that had once been part of the kingdom of David and Solomon (2 Sam 8). 15: The LORD's defeat of the sea of Egypt recalls the parting of the sea at the time of the Exodus (Ex 14–15). The scorching wind is a dry sirocco or east wind that plays a role in the parting of the sea and other acts of the LORD (Ex 10.13; 14.21). The River, the Euphrates. Seven channels evokes mythological traditions about the dragon Leviathan (cf. 27.1), who has seven heads in Canaanite mythology. 16: The highway from Assyria is compared to the King's Highway, a trade route through Transjordan, that Israel followed on its way through Moab to the promised land (Num 20.17; 21.22; Deut 2.17). 12.1–6: The concluding song of thanksgiving quotes from the Song of the Sea in Ex 15 (see esp. Ex 15.1–3) and various Psalms (e.g., 105.1; 118.14,21). The drawing of water suggests a setting in the celebration of Sukkot (Tabernacles; Lev 23.33–44), when water libations were poured at the Temple to celebrate the end of the fruit harvest and the onset of the rainy season as well as Israel's journey through the wilderness.

Places mentioned in the oracles against foreign nations (Isa 13–23)

make known his deeds among the nations;
proclaim that his name is exalted.

⁵ Sing praises to the LORD, for he has done gloriously;
let this be known^a in all the earth.

⁶ Shout aloud and sing for joy, O royal^b Zion, for great in your midst is the Holy One of Israel.

13 The oracle concerning Babylon that Isaiah son of Amoz saw.

² On a bare hill raise a signal, cry aloud to them;
wave the hand for them to enter the gates of the nobles.

^a Or this is made known

^b Or O inhabitant of 13.1–27.13: Prophetic announcement concerning the preparation of the nations for the LORD’s world rule. The oracles concerning the nations in chs 13–23 together with prophecies of restoration for Zion and Israel in chs 24–27 constitute a major unit that anticipates the LORD’s actions and sovereignty from throughout the entire world. The superscription in 13.1 that introduces this section is styled much like that in 2.1. Major blocks of oracles concerning the nations are a common feature of prophetic books (see Jer 46–51; Ezek 25–32; Am 1–2; Ob; Nah; Zeph 2.4–15). Isaiah’s oracles are each marked with a superscription that identifies it as an oracle or pronouncement (Heb “massa”) concerning the nation in question. The prophet’s pronouncements include nations that were ultimately conquered by the Persian Empire, beginning with the Persian King Cyrus’s conquest of Babylon in 539 BCE, which prompted his decree to end the Babylonian exile and allow Jews to return to their own land (2 Chr 36.22–23; Ezra 1.1–4). Insofar as the latter portions of Isaiah designate Cyrus as the LORD’s “messiah” and “temple builder” (44.28; 45.1), the final form of the book of Isaiah views Cyrus and the Persian Empire as the means by which the LORD exercises worldwide sovereignty.

13.1–14.32: Isaiah’s pronouncement concerning Babylon. The prophet’s oracle concerning Babylon includes a summation in 14.24–27 that applies the oracles concerning Assyria to Babylon, and an appendix in 14.28–32 that takes up Philistia. 13.1: The superscription both introduces the oracle concerning Babylon and the oracles concerning the nations throughout Isaiah 13–23. 13.2–14.27: The lengthy oracle concerning

³ I myself have commanded my consecrated ones,
have summoned my warriors, my proudly exulting ones,
to execute my anger.

⁴ Listen, a tumult on the mountains
as of a great multitude!
Listen, an uproar of kingdoms,
of nations gathering together!
The LORD of hosts is mustering an army for battle.

⁵ They come from a distant land,
from the end of the heavens,
the LORD and the weapons of his indignation,
to destroy the whole earth.

⁶ Wail, for the day of the LORD is near;
it will come like destruction from the Almighty!^a

⁷ Therefore all hands will be feeble, and every human heart will melt,
⁸ and they will be dismayed.
Pangs and agony will seize them;
they will be in anguish like a woman in labor.

They will look aghast at one another;
their faces will be aflame.

⁹ See, the day of the LORD comes,
cruel, with wrath and fierce anger,
to make the earth a desolation,
and to destroy its sinners from it.

¹⁰ For the stars of the heavens and their constellations
will not give their light;
the sun will be dark at its rising,
and the moon will not shed its light.

¹¹ I will punish the world for its evil,
and the wicked for their iniquity;
I will put an end to the pride of the arrogant,
and lay low the insolence of tyrants.

¹² I will make mortals more rare than fine
gold,
and humans than the gold of Ophir.

¹³ Therefore I will make the heavens
tremble,
and the earth will be shaken out of its
place,

at the wrath of the LORD of hosts
in the day of his fierce anger.

¹⁴ Like a hunted gazelle, or like sheep with no one to gather
them,

all will turn to their own people,
and all will flee to their own lands.

¹⁵ Whoever is found will be thrust through,
and whoever is caught will fall by the
sword.

¹⁶ Their infants will be dashed to pieces
before their eyes;
their houses will be plundered,
and their wives ravished.

¹⁷ See, I am stirring up the Medes against
them,

who have no regard for silver and do not delight in gold.

¹⁸ Their bows will slaughter the young men;
they will have no mercy on the fruit of the womb;
their eyes will not pity children.

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

Babylon is unexpected immediately following the earlier concerns with Assyria and its threat to Israel and Judah in the eighth century. Nevertheless, the book as a whole also addresses the Babylonian exile and the Persian-period restoration in the sixth century BCE. It therefore portrays Babylon as the natural successor to Assyria as the LORD's agent of punishment who must in turn be brought down to realize Jerusalem's restoration. 13.2–5: The summons to war presupposes Israel's holy war traditions (cf. Deut 20; Josh 1–11) in which the LORD fights on behalf of Israel with his consecrated ones, his heavenly army (see Ex 23.20–33; Josh 5.13–15; 2 Kings 6.15–19; 7.3–8). 6–8: The day of the LORD, see 2.10–21n. The imagery of wailing together with pangs and agony evokes the imagery of childbirth. Such imagery builds on the role that the birth of Isaiah's own symbolically named sons play in communicating his oracles (7.1–9; 8.1–15,18). 9–16: Because the LORD is the sovereign of all creation, elements of creation such as the stars, moon, and sun, all play roles in the assault against the arrogant and evil on the "day of the LORD." 12: Ophir, in Arabia, was known for its gold (1 Kings 9.26–28). 17–22: The Medes are a nation northwest of Persia, which allied with the Babylonians in 627–609 BCE to bring down the Assyrian Empire. Later, under the rule of Cyrus, they united with Persia to form the Persian Empire, ¹⁹ And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms, the splendor and pride of the Chaldeans,

will be like Sodom and Gomorrah
when God overthrew them.

²⁰ It will never be inhabited or lived in for all generations;
Arabs will not pitch their tents there, shepherds will not make their flocks lie down there.

²¹ But wild animals will lie down there, and its houses will be full of howling creatures;
there ostriches will live,
and there goat-demons will dance.

²² Hyenas will cry in its towers, and jackals in the pleasant palaces;
its time is close at hand,
and its days will not be prolonged.

14 But the LORD will have compassion on Jacob and will again choose Israel, and will set them in their own land; and aliens will join them and attach themselves to the house of Jacob. ² And the nations will take them and bring them to their place, and the house of Israel will possess the nations^a as male and female slaves in the LORD's land;
they will take captive those who were their captors, and rule over those who oppressed
them.

³ When the LORD has given you rest from your pain and turmoil and the hard service with which you were made to serve, ⁴ you will take up this taunt against the king of Babylon:
How the oppressor has ceased!

How his insolence^b has ceased!

⁵ The LORD has broken the staff of the wicked,
the scepter of rulers,

⁶ that struck down the peoples in wrath

with unceasing blows,
that ruled the nations in anger with unrelenting persecution.

⁷ The whole earth is at rest and quiet;
they break forth into singing.

⁸ The cypresses exult over you,
the cedars of Lebanon, saying,
"Since you were laid low,
no one comes to cut us down."

⁹ Sheol beneath is stirred up to meet you when you come;
it rouses the shades to greet you,
all who were leaders of the earth;
it raises from their thrones
all who were kings of the nations.

¹⁰ All of them will speak and say to you:

"You too have become as weak as we!
You have become like us!"

¹¹ Your pomp is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps;
maggots are the bed beneath you,
and worms are your covering.

¹² How you are fallen from heaven,
O Day Star, son of Dawn!
How you are cut down to the ground,
you who laid the nations low!

¹³ You said in your heart,
"I will ascend to heaven;

I will raise my throne
above the stars of God;

I will sit on the mount of assembly on the heights of Zaphon;^c

¹⁴ I will ascend to the tops of the clouds,
I will make myself like the Most High."

^a Heb them

^b QMs Compare Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of MT uncertain

^c Or assembly in the far north which in turn conquered Babylonia in 539 BCE. 19: Chaldeans, the Babylonians. Sodom and Gomorrah, see 1.9n. 20–22: The reversion of cities to a primitive condition is a common theme in Isaiah; see 14.22; 17.23; 18.6; 25.2; 27.10–11; 32.13–14; 34.8–15. Although Cyrus defeated the Babylonian army in the field, Babylon surrendered to him peacefully and was not destroyed. 21: Goat-demons, satyrs and demons, including Lilith (34.14), are at home in the wilderness. 14.1–2: With the defeat and destruction of Babylon, the LORD turns to the restoration of Israel to its own land. 3–23: The LORD instructs Isaiah to sing a taunt song at the downfall of the king of Babylon. 7–8: Both Assyrian and Babylonian kings were known for cutting down the cypresses and cedars of Lebanon (2.13n), as the wood was prized for building luxurious palaces (see 37.24). The trees therefore rejoice at the king's death. 9–11: Sheol, the underworld, prepares to welcome the dead king. Despite his arrogance (cf. 10.5–32), the king must recognize that no one, not even kings, escapes death and its consequences. 12–14: The names Day Star and son of Dawn draw on divine names known from Canaanite mythology. "Day Star" was ¹⁵ But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the Pit.

¹⁶ Those who see you will stare at you,
 and ponder over you:
 “Is this the man who made the earth tremble,
 who shook kingdoms,
¹⁷ who made the world like a desert
 and overthrew its cities, who would not let his prisoners go home?”
¹⁸ All the kings of the nations lie in glory,
 each in his own tomb;
¹⁹ but you are cast out, away from your grave,
 like loathsome carrion,^a clothed with the dead, those pierced by
 the sword,
 who go down to the stones of the Pit,
 like a corpse trampled underfoot.
²⁰ You will not be joined with them in burial, because you have destroyed your land,
 you have killed your people.

 May the descendants of evildoers nevermore be named!
²¹ Prepare slaughter for his sons because of the guilt of their father.^b Let them never rise to possess the earth or cover the face of the world with cities.

²² I will rise up against them, says the LORD of hosts, and will cut off from Babylon name and remnant, offspring and posterity, says the LORD. ²³ And I will make it a possession of the hedgehog, and pools of water, and I will sweep it with the broom of destruction, says

 the LORD of hosts.

²⁴ The LORD of hosts has sworn:

As I have designed,
 so shall it be;
 and as I have planned,
 so shall it come to pass:

²⁵ I will break the Assyrian in my land, and on my mountains trample him
 under foot;
 his yoke shall be removed from them,
 and his burden from their shoulders.

²⁶ This is the plan that is planned concerning the whole earth;
 and this is the hand that is stretched out over all the nations.

²⁷ For the LORD of hosts has planned, and who will annul it?
 His hand is stretched out,
 and who will turn it back?

²⁸ In the year that King Ahaz died this oracle came:

²⁹ Do not rejoice, all you Philistines, that the rod that struck you is broken,

^a Cn Compare Gk: Heb like a loathed branch

^b Syr Compare Gk: Heb fathers

translated as “Lucifer” in Latin, and the passage was later understood to refer to Satan’s fall from heaven. The taunt song apparently reflects mythological references to failed attempts by gods to challenge the rule of the chief god (see also Ezek 28; Ps 82). Zaphon is the mythological northern mountain of Baal in Canaanite mythology; it is identified with Mount Zion in Ps 48.2. 15: The king’s descent to Sheol (also called the Pit) draws on mythic patterns such as the Mesopotamian “Descent of Ishtar/Inanna to the Underworld,” in which a goddess descends to the netherworld in an attempt to recover her dead consort. 18–21: Allusions to the body of the king lying unburied in vv. 19–20 indicate that the passage originally presupposed the Assyrian King Sargon II, whose body was reportedly left on the battlefield in 705 BCE. 22–23: A prose conclusion repeating the motif of reversion to primitive conditions (see 13.20–22n.). 24–27: The reference to the LORD’s plan to defeat Assyria in the land of Israel draws an analogy between Assyria and Babylon as nations that must be punished for their arrogance following their roles as agents for divine punishment of Israel. The similarities with 10.5–34 suggest that the two passages may have formed a unit in an earlier edition of Isaiah’s oracles. Babylon succeeds Assyria as the major enemy in chs 40–55. The reference to the LORD’s plan also anticipates statements concerning the LORD’s word in 40.8 and the realization of divine plans in 55.11.

14.28–32: Appendix concerning Isaiah’s pronouncement against Philistia. Following the death of King Ahaz (715 BCE), Philistia attempted to revolt against Assyria, and likely approached Ahaz’s son, King Hezekiah, for support. Isaiah was opposed to military alliances against Assyria due to his belief in the Davidic/Zion theology that posited the LORD’s protection of Jerusalem (cf. 7.1–25). Sargon put down the Philistine revolt in 713 BCE.

for from the root of the snake will come forth an adder,
 and its fruit will be a flying fiery serpent.

³⁰The firstborn of the poor will graze,
 and the needy lie down in safety;
 but I will make your root die of famine,
 and your remnant I^a will kill.

³¹Wail, O gate; cry, O city;
 melt in fear, O Philistia, all of you!
 For smoke comes out of the north,
 and there is no straggler in its ranks.

³²What will one answer the messengers of the nation?

“The LORD has founded Zion, and the needy among his people will find refuge in her.”

15 An oracle concerning Moab.

Because Ar is laid waste in a night,
 Moab is undone;
 because Kir is laid waste in a night,
 Moab is undone.

²Dibon^b has gone up to the temple,
 to the high places to weep;
 over Nebo and over Medeba Moab wails.

On every head is baldness,
 every beard is shorn;

³in the streets they bind on sackcloth;
 on the housetops and in the squares everyone wails and melts in tears.

⁴Heshbon and Elealeh cry out, their voices are heard as far as Jahaz;

 therefore the loins of Moab quiver;^c his soul trembles.

⁵My heart cries out for Moab;
 his fugitives flee to Zoar,
 to Eglath-shelishiyah.

For at the ascent of Luhith
 they go up weeping;
 on the road to Horonaim
 they raise a cry of destruction;

⁶the waters of Nimrim
 are a desolation;
 the grass is withered, the new growth fails,
 the verdure is no more.

⁷Therefore the abundance they have gained
 and what they have laid up they carry away
 over the Wadi of the Willows.

⁸For a cry has gone
 around the land of Moab;
 the wailing reaches to Eglaim,
 the wailing reaches to Beer-elim.

⁹For the waters of Dibon^d are full of blood;
 yet I will bring upon Dibon^d even more—

a lion for those of Moab who escape,
 for the remnant of the land.

^a QMs Vg: MT he

^b Cn: Heb the house and Dibon

^c Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb the armed men of Moab cry aloud

^d QMs Vg Compare Syr: MT Dimon

15.1–16.14: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning Moab. The superscription introduces a lamentation concerning the downfall of Moab, a nation east of the Dead Sea that was often in conflict with Israel and Judah (cf. Gen 19.30–37). The poem employs the poetic meter typical of dirges in ancient Hebrew poetry (cf. Lam 1–2). Elements of the oracle also appear in Jer 48.29–38, which employs the Isaian oracle to comment on Moab's fate at the hands of Babylon in Jeremiah's time. A likely setting for this oracle is Tiglath-pileser's invasion of Israel during the Syro-Ephraimite War of 735–732 BCE. Moabite territory north of the Arnon had once been the tribal territory of Reuben and perhaps Gad (see Num 32). In the Moabite Stone (Mesha Stela, ninth century BCE), the Moabite King Mesha boasts of having defeated Israel—and the men of Gad in particular—and taking their land. The Assyrians would have considered this territory to be Israelite and therefore fair game for their own plans for taking control of the region. Moab's appeal for assistance to Jerusalem (16.1–4) makes sense in the Syro-Ephraimite War, because Ahaz summons the Assyrians for assistance and maintains his loyalty as an Assyrian vassal (see 7.1–25) 15.1–9: The Moabite towns mentioned in the oracle indicate an invasion that targeted Moabite territory north of the Wadi Arnon, the Wadi el-Mujib that flows into the Dead Sea. 1–4: The cities of Ar, Kir (–hareth), Nebo, Medeba, Heshbon, and Elealeh, are all located in the north and subject to attack. Dibon and Jahaz, on the old border of Moab just north of the Arnon, serve only as witnesses. Baldness . . . sackcloth, signs of mourning. 5–8: The southern cities and locations, none of which can be conclusively identified, are places

16 Send lambs
to the ruler of the land, from Sela, by way of the desert,
to the mount of daughter Zion.

² Like fluttering birds,
like scattered nestlings,
so are the daughters of Moab
at the fords of the Arnon.

³ “Give counsel,
grant justice;
make your shade like night
at the height of noon;
hide the outcasts,
do not betray the fugitive;

⁴ let the outcasts of Moab settle among you;
be a refuge to them
from the destroyer.”

When the oppressor is no more,
and destruction has ceased,
and marauders have vanished from the
land,

⁵ then a throne shall be established in steadfast love
in the tent of David,
and on it shall sit in faithfulness
a ruler who seeks justice and is swift to do what is right.

⁶ We have heard of the pride of Moab
—how proud he is!—
of his arrogance, his pride, and his insolence;
his boasts are false.

⁷ Therefore let Moab wail, let everyone wail for Moab.
Mourn, utterly stricken,
for the raisin cakes of Kir-hareseth.

⁸ For the fields of Heshbon languish, and the vines of Sibmah, whose clusters once made drunk

the lords of the nations, reached to Jazer
and strayed to the desert;
their shoots once spread abroad
and crossed over the sea.

⁹ Therefore I weep with the weeping of Jazer
for the vines of Sibmah;
I drench you with my tears,
O Heshbon and Elealeh;
for the shout over your fruit harvest and your grain harvest has ceased.

¹⁰ Joy and gladness are taken away from the fruitful field;
and in the vineyards no songs are sung,
no shouts are raised;
no treader treads out wine in the presses;
the vintage-shout is hushed.^a

¹¹ Therefore my heart throbs like a harp for Moab,
and my very soul for Kir-heres.

¹² When Moab presents himself, when he wearies himself upon the high place, when he comes to his sanctuary to pray, he will not prevail.

¹³ This was the word that the LORD spoke concerning Moab in the past. ¹⁴ But now the LORD says, In three years, like the years of a hired worker, the glory of Moab will be brought into contempt, in spite of all its great multitude; and those who survive will be very few and feeble.

17 An oracle concerning Damascus.
See, Damascus will cease to be a city,
and will become a heap of ruins.

^a Gk: Heb I have hushed

to which refugees flee from the assault in the north. 16.1: Sela, unidentified, perhaps modern Petra, in Edom. 7: Raisin cakes, clumps of dried grapes. 8–11: Lament for the destruction of the vineyards of Sibmah, apparently the wine-producing region of Moab. 13–14: A summary identifies the preceding as an earlier word of the Lord that will come to pass in three years.

17.1–18.7: Isaiah’s pronouncements concerning Damascus and Cush. The superscription identifies this unit as the prophet’s pronouncement concerning Damascus, but the contents of the oracle include material concerning Israel and the Lord’s recognition by Cush (i.e., Ethiopia). This suggests that the oracle is concerned with the Syro-Ephraimite coalition of Aram-Damascus and Israel, and Israel’s efforts to convince Cush to join in opposition to Assyria. 17.1b–6: The initial segment of the oracle targets both Damascus, the capital of Aram,

² Her towns will be deserted forever;^a they will be places for flocks, which will lie down, and no one will make them afraid.

³ The fortress will disappear from Ephraim,
 and the kingdom from Damascus;
 and the remnant of Aram will be like the glory of the children of Israel,
 says the LORD of hosts.

⁴ On that day
 the glory of Jacob will be brought low,
 and the fat of his flesh will grow lean.

⁵ And it shall be as when reapers gather standing grain
 and their arms harvest the ears, and as when one gleans the ears of grain in the Valley of Rephaim.

⁶ Gleanings will be left in it,
 as when an olive tree is beaten—
 two or three berries
 in the top of the highest bough, four or five
 on the branches of a fruit tree, says the LORD God of Israel.

⁷ On that day people will regard their Maker, and their eyes will look to the Holy One of Israel; ⁸ they will not have regard for the altars, the work of their hands, and they will not look to what their own fingers have made, either the sacred poles^b or the altars of incense.

⁹ On that day their strong cities will be like the deserted places of the Hivites and the Amorites,^c which they deserted because of the children of Israel, and there will be desolation.

¹⁰ For you have forgotten the God of your salvation,

and have not remembered the Rock of
 your refuge;
 therefore, though you plant pleasant plants
 and set out slips of an alien god, ¹¹ though you make them grow on the day that you plant them,
 and make them blossom in the morning
 that you sow;
 yet the harvest will flee away
 in a day of grief and incurable pain.

¹² Ah, the thunder of many peoples, they thunder like the thundering of the sea!

Ah, the roar of nations,
 they roar like the roaring of mighty waters!

¹³ The nations roar like the roaring of many waters,
 but he will rebuke them, and they will
 flee far away,
 chased like chaff on the mountains before the wind
 and whirling dust before the storm.

¹⁴ At evening time, lo, terror!
 Before morning, they are no more.
 This is the fate of those who despoil us,
 and the lot of those who plunder us.

18 Ah, land of whirring wings beyond the rivers of Ethiopia,^d ² sending ambassadors by the Nile in vessels of papyrus on the waters!
 Go, you swift messengers,

^a Cn Compare Gk: Heb the cities of Aroer are deserted

^b Heb Asherim

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb places of the wood and the highest bough

^d Or Nubia; Heb Cush

and Ephraim, the tribal name identified with the Northern Kingdom of Israel. Isaiah's favored images of harvest and gleaning then portray the decimation of Israel at the hands of the Assyrians. The Valley of Rephaim, i.e., the Valley of the Shades (those dwelling in the underworld), is located south of Jerusalem (2 Sam 5.18). The beating of olive trees appears also in 10.5–33. 7–8: The LORD's actions against Israel will prompt the people to reconsider their adherence to other gods. Sacred poles were tree trunks or monoliths dedicated to the goddess Asherah (2 Kings 17.7–18; 10.16). 9–11: Hivites and Amorites, pre-Israelite inhabitants of the land destroyed because of their idolatry and evil practices (Deut 7.1–6). Slips of an alien god, i.e., veneration of a vegetation deity, perhaps the Mesopotamian Tammuz (see Ezek 8.14–18), later known as Adonis. 12–14: The prophet employs the mythological motif of the combat with the sea to portray the LORD's defeat of the nations (Pss 46; 74; 93; Ex 15). In Isaiah's understanding of the Davidic/Zion tradition, the LORD alone defends Jerusalem (cf. Ps 2). 18.1–7: The

to a nation tall and smooth, to a people feared near and far,
a nation mighty and conquering, whose land the rivers divide.

³All you inhabitants of the world,
you who live on the earth,
when a signal is raised on the mountains, look!

When a trumpet is blown, listen!

⁴For thus the LORD said to me:
I will quietly look from my dwelling like clear heat in sunshine, like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest.

⁵For before the harvest, when the blossom is over
and the flower becomes a ripening grape, he will cut off the shoots with pruning hooks,
and the spreading branches he will hew
away.

⁶They shall all be left to the birds of prey of the mountains and to the animals of the earth.

And the birds of prey will summer on
them,
and all the animals of the earth will winter on them.

⁷At that time gifts will be brought to the LORD of hosts from^a a people tall and smooth, from a people feared near and far, a nation mighty and conquering, whose land the rivers divide, to Mount Zion, the place of the name of the LORD of hosts.

19 An oracle concerning Egypt.

See, the LORD is riding on a swift cloud and comes to Egypt;
the idols of Egypt will tremble at his presence,
and the heart of the Egyptians will melt within them.

²I will stir up Egyptians against Egyptians, and they will fight, one against the other,
neighbor against neighbor,
city against city, kingdom against kingdom;

³the spirit of the Egyptians within them will be emptied out,
and I will confound their plans;
they will consult the idols and the spirits of the dead
and the ghosts and the familiar spirits;

⁴I will deliver the Egyptians into the hand of a hard master;
a fierce king will rule over them,
says the Sovereign, the LORD of hosts.

⁵The waters of the Nile will be dried up, and the river will be parched and dry; ⁶its canals will become foul, and the branches of Egypt's Nile will diminish and dry up,
reeds and rushes will rot away.

⁷There will be bare places by the Nile,
on the brink of the Nile;
and all that is sown by the Nile will dry up,

^a Q Ms Gk Vg: MT of appended “woe” (Ah) oracle focuses on Cush (Ethiopia) to whom Israel sent messengers in 724 BCE during the reign of King Hoshea in an effort to gain support for its revolt against Assyria (2 Kings 17.4). Isaiah is consistently opposed to such alliances, and looks to the natural world to illustrate his view. When grapes are cut and harvested, the vines are left to the mercy of birds and animals. When nations see how the LORD trims these shoots and leaves the remnant to be picked over, they will bring offerings to Zion to recognize the LORD's sovereignty.

19.1–20.6: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning Egypt. Isaiah's pronouncement concerning Egypt includes both the oracle against Egypt in 19.1b–25 and a narrative concerning Isaiah's symbolic actions at the time of the fall of Ashdod that legitimizes the oracle concerning Egypt. 19.1–25: Egypt played an important role in attempting to foment revolt against the Assyrians by Israel, Judah, and the other small states in the Syro-Israelite region. Such moves would help to defend them from Assyrian invasion through the Sinai and enable them to extend their own influence into western Asia. 1a: The superscription follows the standard form for Isaiah's pronouncements (13.1a; 15.1a; 17.1a; 23.1a). 1b: The LORD is portrayed as riding on a cloud (cf. Pss 18.10; 68.33), which is also how the Canaanite god Baal and the Assyrian god Assur were sometimes portrayed. 2: The conflict among the Egyptians presupposes the internal struggle that took place in Egypt during the late eighth century, resulting finally in the emergence of the Twenty-fifth Ethiopian Dynasty, ca. 715 BCE. 5–10: The Nile be driven away, and be no more.

⁸ Those who fish will mourn;
all who cast hooks in the Nile will lament,
and those who spread nets on the water will languish.

⁹ The workers in flax will be in despair, and the carders and those at the loom will grow pale.

¹⁰ Its weavers will be dismayed, and all who work for wages will be grieved.

¹¹ The princes of Zoan are utterly foolish; the wise counselors of Pharaoh give stupid counsel.

How can you say to Pharaoh, “I am one of the sages,
a descendant of ancient kings”?

¹² Where now are your sages?
Let them tell you and make known what the LORD of hosts has planned against Egypt.

¹³ The princes of Zoan have become fools, and the princes of Memphis are deluded;

those who are the cornerstones of its tribes
have led Egypt astray.

¹⁴ The LORD has poured into them^a
a spirit of confusion;
and they have made Egypt stagger in all its doings
as a drunkard staggers around in vomit.

¹⁵ Neither head nor tail, palm branch or reed,
will be able to do anything for Egypt.

¹⁶ On that day the Egyptians will be like women, and tremble with fear before the hand that the LORD of hosts raises against them.¹⁷ And the land of Judah will become a terror to the Egyptians; everyone to whom it is mentioned will fear because of the plan that the LORD of hosts is planning against

them.

¹⁸ On that day there will be five cities in the land of Egypt that speak the language of Canaan and swear allegiance to the LORD of hosts. One of these will be called the City of the Sun.

¹⁹ On that day there will be an altar to the LORD in the center of the land of Egypt, and a pillar to the LORD at its border.²⁰ It will be a sign and a witness to the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt; when they cry to the LORD because of oppressors, he will send them
a savior, and will defend and deliver them.

²¹ The LORD will make himself known to the Egyptians; and the Egyptians will know the LORD on that day, and will worship with sacrifice and burnt offering, and they will make vows to the LORD and perform them.²² The LORD will strike Egypt, striking and healing;
they will return to the LORD, and he will listen to their supplications and heal them.

²³ On that day there will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria, and the Assyrian will come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Assyria, and the Egyptians will worship with the Assyrians.

²⁴ On that day Israel will be the third with Egypt and Assyria, a blessing in the midst of the earth,²⁵ whom the LORD of hosts has blessed, saying, “Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel my heritage.”

^a Gk Compare Tg: Heb it

River provides the agricultural foundations for Egypt; the loss of its waters would devastate Egypt. 11–15: Isaiah returns to his critique of Jerusalem’s efforts to establish an alliance with Egypt against Assyria. Zoan is another name for the Egyptian city of Rameses or Tanis in the Delta region. The site is associated with the Exodus tradition (Ps 78.12,43; cf. Ex 1.11). Memphis is the capital of Lower (Northern) Egypt. Head, tail, palm branch, and reed refer to the leadership and people of Israel (see 9.14–15). 16–25: The oracle concerning the course of future punishment and restoration for Egypt may include some later expansions of the text that presuppose Assyria’s conquest of Egypt in 671 BCE and the rise of the Twenty-sixth Saite Egyptian Dynasty that began as an Assyrian vassal but ultimately served as an autonomous Assyrian ally as Assyrian power declined. The five “on that day” statements posit that Egypt will ultimately recognize the LORD together with Israel and the Assyrians. Such a sentiment correlates with images of the nations’ recognition of the LORD in 2.2–4; 60.10–12; 61.5–10; 66.18–24. 18: Five cities in which Judeans were settled are mentioned in Jer 2.16; 43.7; 44.1. The language of Canaan, Hebrew.

20 In the year that the commander-in-chief, who was sent by King Sargon of Assyria, came to Ashdod and fought against it and took it—² at that time the LORD had spoken to Isaiah son of Amoz, saying, “Go, and loose the sackcloth from your loins and take your sandals off your feet,” and he had done so, walking naked and barefoot.³ Then the LORD said, “Just as my servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot for three years as a sign and a portent against Egypt and Ethiopia,^a ⁴ so shall the king of Assyria lead away the Egyptians as captives and the Ethiopians^b as exiles, both the young and the old, naked and barefoot, with buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt.⁵ And they shall be dismayed and confounded because of Ethiopia^a their hope and of Egypt their boast.⁶ In that day the inhabitants of this coastland will say, ‘See, this is what has happened to those in whom we hoped and to whom we fled for help and deliverance from the king of Assyria! And we, how shall we escape?’”

21 The oracle concerning the wilderness of the sea.

As whirlwinds in the Negeb sweep on,
it comes from the desert,
from a terrible land.

² A stern vision is told to me;
the betrayer betrays,

and the destroyer destroys.

Go up, O Elam,
lay siege, O Media;
all the sighing she has caused
I bring to an end.

³ Therefore my loins are filled with anguish;

pangs have seized me,
like the pangs of a woman in labor;
I am bowed down so that I cannot hear,
I am dismayed so that I cannot see.

⁴ My mind reels, horror has appalled me;
the twilight I longed for
has been turned for me into trembling.

⁵ They prepare the table,
they spread the rugs,
they eat, they drink.

Rise up, commanders,
oil the shield!

⁶ For thus the Lord said to me:

“Go, post a lookout,
let him announce what he sees.

⁷ When he sees riders, horsemen in pairs, riders on donkeys, riders on camels, let him listen diligently,
very diligently.”

⁸ Then the watcher^c called out:

“Upon a watchtower I stand, O Lord,

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

^c QMs: MT a lion

The passage may refer to the Judean diaspora in Egypt. The City of the Sun, the Egyptian city Heliopolis (Jer 43.13). 20.1–6: King Sargon II of Assyria (722–705) put down a revolt by the coastal Philistine city of Ashdod in 711 BCE. The revolt was instigated by Egypt. In order to illustrate his view that alliance with the Egyptians and Ethiopians is useless, Isaiah walks about Jerusalem naked for three years to symbolize the fate of the Egyptians and Ethiopians taken prisoner by the Assyrians. Prophets frequently engaged in symbolic actions that were meant to symbolize and realize their prophetic messages (see Jer 27–28; Ezek 5; Hos 1–3).

21.1–10: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning the wilderness of the sea. The oracle expresses Isaiah's view that Babylon would be defeated by Assyria. 1: The reference to Babylon's fall in v. 9 indicates that the wilderness of the sea refers to Babylon. The term likely refers to the marshlands of southern Babylonia where the Tigris and Euphrates rivers join and flow into the Persian Gulf. The Babylonian prince Merodach-baladan, who allied with Hezekiah to revolt against Assyria in 705–701 BCE (cf. ch 39), hid from Sennacherib in this region through 689 BCE. Negeb, the desert region south of Judah. 2: The references to Elam and Media suggest the possibility of a later setting. Media, northeast of Babylon, allied with it to defeat Assyria in 627–609 BCE. Elam, directly east of Babylon, had been conquered by the Assyrians in the mid-seventh century, but was allied with Merodach-baladan in the late eighth century. Perhaps they later joined with Media against Assyria. Elam and Media formed part of the Persian Empire that defeated Babylon in 539 BCE. Isaiah's original oracle was either updated or later read to account for that event. 5: Oil the shield, shields were made of leather and had to be oiled regularly to prevent them from drying out and cracking; see 2 Sam 1.21. 6–10: The watchman waits for word concerning Babylon only to learn of its defeat.

continually by day,
and at my post I am stationed throughout the night.
⁹Look, there they come, riders, horsemen in pairs!"
Then he responded,
"Fallen, fallen is Babylon;
and all the images of her gods lie shattered on the ground." ¹⁰O my threshed and winnowed one, what I have heard from the LORD of
hosts,
the God of Israel, I announce to you.

¹¹The oracle concerning Dumah.

One is calling to me from Seir,
"Sentinel, what of the night?
Sentinel, what of the night?"
¹²The sentinel says:
"Morning comes, and also the night.
If you will inquire, inquire;
come back again."

¹³The oracle concerning the desert plain.

In the scrub of the desert plain you will lodge,
O caravans of Dedanites.

¹⁴Bring water to the thirsty,
meet the fugitive with bread,
O inhabitants of the land of Tema.

¹⁵For they have fled from the swords,

from the drawn sword,
from the bent bow,
and from the stress of battle.

¹⁶For thus the Lord said to me: Within a year, according to the years of a hired worker,
all the glory of Kedar will come to an end; ¹⁷and the remaining bows of Kedar's warriors will be few; for the LORD, the God of Israel, has spoken.

22 The oracle concerning the valley of vision.

What do you mean that you have gone up,
all of you, to the housetops, ²you that are full of shoutings, tumultuous city, exultant town?
Your slain are not slain by the sword,
nor are they dead in battle.

³Your rulers have all fled together;
they were captured without the use of a bow.^a

All of you who were found were captured, though they had fled far away.^b

⁴Therefore I said:
Look away from me,
let me weep bitter tears;
do not try to comfort me for the destruction of my beloved
people.

^a Or without their bows

^b GkSyr Vg: Heb fled from far away

21.11–12: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning Dumah. Dumah, a major oasis in the Arabian Desert conquered by the Assyrian King Sennacherib in 689 BCE. Seir is a name for Edom, located southeast of the Dead Sea.

21.13–17: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning Arabia. Although the NRSV refers to the desert plain, the Hebrew text refers to Arabia, including the Arabian Desert situated to the east of Transjordan, to the west of Babylon, and south into the Arabian peninsula. The cities of Dedan and Tema were located in the northwestern Arabian peninsula south of Edom or Seir. The Assyrians conducted a number of campaigns in this region from the late eighth through the seventh centuries BCE. The most likely scenario is Sennacherib's defeat of Kedar in the northern Arabian desert in 689 BCE.

22.1–22: Isaiah's pronouncement concerning the valley of vision. The contents of this oracle indicate that the valley of vision refers to Jerusalem. No such name is otherwise known. The term is meant as a pun on the name of the Kidron Valley that defines the eastern boundary of biblical Jerusalem. Kidron means "darkness" or "gloom," and Isaiah's use of the term valley of vision to refer to the site is a play that reverses the meaning of the valley's name to designate it as a site of vision or revelation concerning the LORD's intentions for the city of Jerusalem. 1b–14: The oracle begins with Isaiah's observations concerning the city's rejoicing at the deliverance of Jerusalem from an enemy, most likely the lifting of Sennacherib's siege of Jerusalem in 701 BCE. Although Isaiah 37:36–37 indicates that Sennacherib withdrew following the LORD's defeat of his army, Assyrian records indicate that no such defeat took place and that Sennacherib withdrew after accepting Hezekiah's surrender. Isaiah points out the cost of the siege: although Jerusalem was spared, the Assyrians devastated the land of Ju-

⁵ For the Lord GOD of hosts has a day of tumult and trampling and confusion in the valley of vision,
a battering down of walls
and a cry for help to the mountains.

⁶ Elam bore the quiver with chariots and cavalry,^a and Kir uncovered the shield.

⁷ Your choicest valleys were full of chariots,
and the cavalry took their stand at the gates.

⁸ He has taken away the covering of Judah.

On that day you looked to the weapons of the House of the Forest,⁹ and you saw that there were many breaches in the city of David, and you collected the waters of the lower pool.¹⁰ You counted the houses of Jerusalem, and you broke down the houses to fortify the wall.¹¹ You made a reservoir between the two walls for the water of the old pool. But you did not look to him who did it, or have regard for him who planned it long ago.

¹² In that day the Lord GOD of hosts called to weeping and mourning, to baldness and putting on sackcloth;

¹³ but instead there was joy and festivity, killing oxen and slaughtering sheep,
eating meat and drinking wine.

“Let us eat and drink,
for tomorrow we die.”

¹⁴ The LORD of hosts has revealed himself
in my ears:

Surely this iniquity will not be forgiven
you until you die,
says the Lord GOD of hosts.

¹⁵ Thus says the Lord GOD of hosts: Come, go to this steward, to Shebna, who is master of the household, and say to him: ¹⁶ What right do you have here? Who are your relatives here, that you have cut out a tomb here for yourself, cutting a tomb on the height, and carving a habitation for yourself in the rock? ¹⁷ The LORD is about to hurl you away violently, my fellow. He will seize firm hold on you, ¹⁸ whirl you round and round, and throw you like a ball into a wide land; there you shall die, and there your splendid chariots shall lie, O you disgrace to your master’s house! ¹⁹ I will thrust you from your office, and you will be pulled down from your post.

²⁰ On that day I will call my servant Eliakim son of Hilkiah,²¹ and will clothe him with your robe and bind your sash on him.
I will commit your authority to his hand,
and he shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and to the house of Judah. ²² I will place on his shoulder the key of the house of David; he shall open, and no one shall shut; he shall shut, and no one shall open. ²³ I will fasten him like a peg in a secure place, and he will become a throne of honor to his ancestral house. ²⁴ And they will hang on him

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

dah; see also 36.1; Mic 1–2). 6: Elam and Kir refer to elements of the Assyrian army. Elam was located in southern Iran and allied with Merodach-baladan against Assyria, although Assyria was known for incorporating military units of its vassals into its own army. Kir was an Aramean city subjugated by Assyria. 8b–11: Prose expansion describing preparations for the siege. House of the Forest, a structure built by Solomon (1 Kings 7.2; 10.17), perhaps an armory. Its cedar pillars may have suggested a forest. 9: The waters of the lower pool, the prophet refers to King Hezekiah’s attempts to fortify the city, including his digging of the Siloam Tunnel under the city of David to channel the waters of the Gihon Spring into Jerusalem where they would form the Siloam pool protected by Jerusalem’s walls at the southern tip of the city. Such a move eliminated the problem that Ahaz faced: protecting the water source (7.1–9). The famed Siloam Inscription commemorates the digging of the tunnel. 12–14: Bitter, fatalistic rejoicing in a time of disaster. When a siege occurred, it was necessary to slaughter animals, since they could not be pastured outside the city, thus creating a time of feasting, even when danger threatened. 15–25: Isaiah condemns the steward Shebna, a major administrative official in charge of the royal palace (household); his tomb has been found in the Kidron Valley east of Jerusalem. The prophet condemns Shebna for building his tomb when the LORD plans to remove him from office and replace him with Eliakim son of Hilkiah. In 36.2 Eliakim ben Hilkiah is called the officer “in charge of the palace” and Shebna the “secretary” or “recorder.” The secretary may have worked under the supervision of the officer “over the house.” In Isaiah’s view, Eliakim will ultimately lose his job as well.

the whole weight of his ancestral house, the offspring and issue, every small vessel, from the cups to all the flagons. ²⁵ On that day, says the LORD of hosts, the peg that was fastened in a secure place will give way; it will be cut down and fall, and the load that was on it will perish, for the LORD has spoken.

23 The oracle concerning Tyre.

Wail, O ships of Tarshish, for your fortress is destroyed.^a When they came in from Cyprus they learned of it.

² Be still, O inhabitants of the coast,
O merchants of Sidon,
your messengers crossed over the sea^b ³ and were on the mighty waters;
your revenue was the grain of Shihor,
the harvest of the Nile;
you were the merchant of the nations.

⁴ Be ashamed, O Sidon, for the sea has spoken,
the fortress of the sea, saying:
“I have neither labored nor given birth,
I have neither reared young men nor brought up young women.”

⁵ When the report comes to Egypt, they will be in anguish over the report about Tyre.

⁶ Cross over to Tarshish—wail, O inhabitants of the coast!

⁷ Is this your exultant city whose origin is from days of old, whose feet carried her
to settle far away?

⁸ Who has planned this against Tyre, the bestower of crowns,

whose merchants were princes, whose traders were the honored of the
earth?

⁹ The LORD of hosts has planned it—to defile the pride of all glory,
to shame all the honored of the earth.

¹⁰ Cross over to your own land,
O ships of^c Tarshish;
this is a harbor^d no more.

¹¹ He has stretched out his hand over the
sea,
he has shaken the kingdoms;
the LORD has given command concerning Canaan
to destroy its fortresses.

¹² He said:
You will exult no longer,
O oppressed virgin daughter Sidon;
rise, cross over to Cyprus—
even there you will have no rest.

¹³ Look at the land of the Chaldeans!
This is the people; it was not Assyria. They destined Tyre for wild animals. They erected their siege towers, they tore down her palaces, they made her a ruin.^e

¹⁴ Wail, O ships of Tarshish, for your fortress is destroyed.

¹⁵ From that day Tyre will be forgotten for seventy years, the lifetime of one king. At the

^a Cn Compare verse 14: Heb for it is destroyed, without houses

^b QMs: MT crossing over the sea, they replenished you

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb like the Nile, daughter

^d Cn: Heb restraint

^e Meaning of Heb uncertain

23:1–18: Isaiah’s pronouncement concerning Tyre. Tyre was the dominant Phoenician city located along the sea coast north of Akko and south of Sidon. It was the major sea power of the day with a large navy that defended the island city from attack and engaged in trade throughout the Mediterranean (see Ezek 27). Tyre was allied with Hezekiah in the revolt against Assyria in 705–701 BCE, but Sennacherib’s assault against Phoenicia in 701 quickly forced Tyre and its Phoenician dependents to submit. With Tyre out of the picture, Hezekiah’s allies in western Asia quickly capitulated, leaving him to face Assyria alone. 1: Tarshish, see 2.16n. 3: Shihor, probably one or more channels of the Nile in the eastern Delta. 11: Canaan, here meaning specifically Phoenicia (Lebanon) and its trading colonies. 13–18: The oracle has been updated by a reference to the Chaldeans, the Neo-Babylonian Empire founded by Nabo-polassar in 625 BCE. His son Nebuchadnezzar (605–562 BCE) conquered Tyre—but did not destroy it—following a thirteen-year siege that ended in 572 BCE (cf. Ezek 26–28). 15: The seventy-year period of Tyre’s decline corresponds to Jeremiah’s claims of a seventy-year period for Jerusalem’s exile (Jer 25.11–12; 29.10). Because Tyre trades with many nations, she is disparaged as a prostitute, but ultimately her merchandise will be dedicated to the LORD (cf. 19.16–25).

end of seventy years, it will happen to Tyre as in the song about the prostitute:

¹⁶ Take a harp,
go about the city,
you forgotten prostitute!
Make sweet melody,
sing many songs,
that you may be remembered.

¹⁷ At the end of seventy years, the LORD will visit Tyre, and she will return to her trade, and will prostitute herself with all the kingdoms of the world on the face of the earth.

¹⁸ Her merchandise and her wages will be dedicated to the LORD; her profits^a will not be stored or hoarded, but her merchandise will supply abundant food and fine clothing for those who live in the presence of the LORD.

24 Now the LORD is about to lay waste the earth and make it desolate, and he will twist its surface and scatter its inhabitants.

² And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest;
as with the slave, so with his master;
as with the maid, so with her mistress;
as with the buyer, so with the seller;
as with the lender, so with the borrower;
as with the creditor, so with the debtor.

³ The earth shall be utterly laid waste and utterly despoiled;
for the LORD has spoken this word.

⁴ The earth dries up and withers,
the world languishes and withers;
the heavens languish together with the earth.

⁵ The earth lies polluted under its inhabitants;
for they have transgressed laws,
violated the statutes,
broken the everlasting covenant.

⁶ Therefore a curse devours the earth, and its inhabitants suffer for their guilt;
therefore the inhabitants of the earth dwindled,
and few people are left.

⁷ The wine dries up,
the vine languishes,
all the merry-hearted sigh.

⁸ The mirth of the timbrels is stilled,
the noise of the jubilant has ceased,
the mirth of the lyre is stilled.

⁹ No longer do they drink wine with singing; strong drink is bitter to those who drink it.

¹⁰ The city of chaos is broken down,

^a Heb it

24.1–27.13: Prophetic announcement of the LORD’s new world order based in Zion. Chapters 24–27 form a distinct block of material at the conclusion of Isaiah’s oracles concerning the nations. This material posits the future withering of creation (24.1–13), the downfall of an unnamed exalted city (24.10,12; 25.2,3; 26.5), the recognition of the LORD by the nations at Zion (25.6–8), and the ultimate restoration of Zion itself as the seat of the LORD’s sovereignty over both creation and the nations. Although these chapters are sometimes called “the Isaiah apocalypse,” the themes of cosmic chaos and restoration, the resurrection of the dead (26.14,19), and the view that the future constitutes the end of time need not indicate that these chapters are an apocalyptic work; the formula “in that day” may serve as a simple reference to the future. Similarly, mythological perspectives can be used to identify divine action in the world. Rather than pointing to the end of time, chs 25–27 point to the restoration of Jerusalem following its period of punishment portrayed in ch 24. The frequent citation of earlier prophetic literature indicates that this material was composed at a later time, probably in the sixth century BCE when the Babylonian exile was coming to an end and Jerusalem’s restoration was at hand.

24.1–23: Prophetic announcement of the LORD’s punishment of the earth. The depiction of a devastated land appears frequently in ancient Near Eastern treaty curses, the covenant curses of the biblical law collections (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 28–29), and the judgment scenarios of the prophets (e.g., Isa 34.11–17; Jer 5.6; 19.7–9; Hos 4; 13.7–8; Zeph 2.9). The background of such scenarios is the withdrawal or death of fertility gods such as the Canaanite Baal or the Mesopotamian Tammuz. Likewise, biblical literature, particularly Deuteronomy and many of the prophets, maintains that the LORD also ensures the fertility of the land in conjunction with human behavior. 2: The naming of paired opposites, such as people . . . priest, slave . . . master, is a common poetic device called merismus, which indicates totality. 5: The everlasting covenant is the foundation for all creation, including Israel (Gen 9.16; 17.7; Ex 31.16; Lev 24.8; Isa 55.3; 61.8; Jer 32.40; Ezek 37.26). 10: The city of chaos is not named, every house is shut up so that no one can enter.

¹¹There is an outcry in the streets for lack of wine;
all joy has reached its eventide;
the gladness of the earth is banished.

¹²Desolation is left in the city,
the gates are battered into ruins.

¹³For thus it shall be on the earth and among the nations,
as when an olive tree is beaten,
as at the gleaning when the grape harvest is ended.

¹⁴They lift up their voices, they sing for joy;
they shout from the west over the majesty of the LORD.

¹⁵Therefore in the east give glory to the LORD;
in the coastlands of the sea glorify the name of the LORD, the God of Israel.

¹⁶From the ends of the earth we hear songs of praise,
of glory to the Righteous One.

But I say, I pine away,
I pine away. Woe is me!
For the treacherous deal treacherously,
the treacherous deal very treacherously.

¹⁷Terror, and the pit, and the snare are upon you, O inhabitant of the earth!

¹⁸Whoever flees at the sound of the terror
shall fall into the pit;
and whoever climbs out of the pit shall be caught in the snare.

For the windows of heaven are opened,
and the foundations of the earth tremble.

¹⁹The earth is utterly broken,
the earth is torn asunder,
the earth is violently shaken.

²⁰The earth staggers like a drunkard,
it sways like a hut;
its transgression lies heavy upon it,
and it falls, and will not rise again.

²¹On that day the LORD will punish the host of heaven in heaven, and on earth the kings of the earth.

²²They will be gathered together like prisoners in a pit;
they will be shut up in a prison,
and after many days they will be punished.

²³Then the moon will be abashed,
and the sun ashamed;
for the LORD of hosts will reign
on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders he will manifest his glory.

25 O LORD, you are my God;
I will exalt you, I will praise your
name;
for you have done wonderful things,
plans formed of old, faithful and sure.
²For you have made the city a heap,
the fortified city a ruin;
the palace of aliens is a city no more,
it will never be rebuilt.
³Therefore strong peoples will glorify
you;
cities of ruthless nations will fear you.
⁴For you have been a refuge to the poor,
a refuge to the needy in their distress,
a shelter from the rainstorm and a shade from the heat.

although the context suggests that it represents the enemy of the LORD, such as the Assyrian capital Nineveh, Babylon, or the capital of any empire that might threaten Israel or the LORD. Chaos (Heb “tohu”) describes the state of the earth before creation commenced (Gen 1.2). The defeat of human enemies is frequently portrayed in cosmic terms (e.g., Ex 15). 13: The beating of the olive tree alludes to 17.6 (cf. 10.33–34). 14–16: The downfall of the city of chaos prompts the recognition of the LORD from throughout the world. The coastlands of the sea, the Aegean islands, i.e., the far west. 16: The treachery of the treacherous is a citation of 21.2 (cf. 33.1). Although the Hebrew is difficult, it appears to portray the downfall of Babylon. 17–20: There was no escape when the windows of heaven opened at the time of the flood (Gen 7.11), and there is no escape from the LORD’s judgment now. 21–23: The host of heaven . . . kings of the earth, the gods and rulers of the nations.

25.1–12: The LORD’s blessing of the earth at Zion. With the downfall of the enemy city, the time of restoration may begin. 1–5: A communal psalm of thanksgiving greets the LORD following the downfall of the oppressive city, much like the hymn of praise sung by Moses, Miriam, and the people at the Sea in Ex 15. 4–5: Echoing

When the blast of the ruthless was like a winter rainstorm,
 ⁵ the noise of aliens like heat in a dry
 place,
you subdued the heat with the shade of
clouds;
 the song of the ruthless was stilled.

⁶ On this mountain the LORD of hosts will make for all peoples
a feast of rich food, a feast of well-aged wines,
of rich food filled with marrow, of well-
aged wines strained clear.

⁷ And he will destroy on this mountain the shroud that is cast over all peoples, the sheet that is spread over all
nations;

⁸ he will swallow up death forever.
Then the Lord God will wipe away the tears from all faces, and the disgrace of his people he will take away from all the earth,
for the LORD has spoken.

⁹ It will be said on that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, so that he might save us.
This is the LORD for whom we have waited;
let us be glad and rejoice in his
salvation.

¹⁰ For the hand of the LORD will rest on this mountain.

The Moabites shall be trodden down in their place
as straw is trodden down in a dung-pit.

¹¹ Though they spread out their hands in the midst of it,
as swimmers spread out their hands to swim,
their pride will be laid low despite the struggle^a of their hands.

¹² The high fortifications of his walls will be brought down,
laid low, cast to the ground, even to the dust.

26 On that day this song will be sung in the land of Judah:

We have a strong city;
he sets up victory
like walls and bulwarks.

² Open the gates,
so that the righteous nation that keeps faith
may enter in.

³ Those of steadfast mind you keep in peace—
in peace because they trust in you.

⁴ Trust in the LORD forever, for in the LORD God^b
you have an everlasting rock.

⁵ For he has brought low
the inhabitants of the height;
the lofty city he lays low.

He lays it low to the ground,
casts it to the dust.

⁶ The foot tramples it,
the feet of the poor,
the steps of the needy.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb in Yah, the LORD

4.5b–6 and 32.1–2. 6–12: A banquet for all the nations is held on Mount Zion in the aftermath of the LORD's victory over the city of chaos. Such a banquet symbolizes worship at the Jerusalem Temple, particularly since offering at the Temple altar was conceived as a meal or banquet shared by the people with their God. 7: Shroud, sheet, garments worn in time of mourning or the cloths in which a corpse is wrapped. 8: Swallow up death, in ancient Near Eastern mythological traditions the fertility god, e.g., the Canaanite Baal or the Mesopotamian Tammuz, is rescued from the underworld to bring fertility and life back to the world of creation. As sovereign of creation, the LORD now brings life to creation. Wipe away the tears, cf. Rev 7.1; 21.4. 10b–12: The demise of the Moabites refers to the defeat of Moab by Babylon in the sixth century BCE, and echoes 2.9–17 to portray the downfall of the arrogant.

26.1–21: Judah's petition to the LORD for deliverance. The liturgical setting of the thanksgiving hymn and the banquet in ch 25 prompts the liturgical hymns in ch 26 that praise the LORD and call for deliverance from the wicked. 1b–6: The initial song of praise celebrates the victory of the LORD over the oppressive city of chaos mentioned in 24.10. 4: Trust in the LORD, a common feature of complaint psalms that petition the LORD for deliverance in a time of threat or need (e.g., Pss 6; 7). 5a: The inhabitants of the height, cf. 2.6–21 concerning the ⁷The way of the righteous is level;

 O Just One, you make smooth the path of the righteous.

⁸In the path of your judgments,
 O LORD, we wait for you;
 your name and your renown
 are the soul's desire.

⁹My soul yearns for you in the night,
 my spirit within me earnestly seeks you.
 For when your judgments are in the earth,
 the inhabitants of the world learn
 righteousness.

¹⁰If favor is shown to the wicked,
 they do not learn righteousness;
 in the land of uprightness they deal perversely
 and do not see the majesty of the LORD.

¹¹O LORD, your hand is lifted up,
 but they do not see it.
 Let them see your zeal for your people,
 and be ashamed.
 Let the fire for your adversaries consume them.

¹²O LORD, you will ordain peace for us, for indeed, all that we have done, you have done for us.

¹³O LORD our God,
 other lords besides you have ruled over us,
 but we acknowledge your name alone.

¹⁴The dead do not live;
 shades do not rise—
 because you have punished and destroyed
 them,
 and wiped out all memory of them.

¹⁵But you have increased the nation,
 O LORD,
 you have increased the nation; you are glorified;
 you have enlarged all the borders of the
 land.

¹⁶O LORD, in distress they sought you, they poured out a prayer^a when your chastening was on them.

¹⁷Like a woman with child, who writhes and cries out in her pangs
 when she is near her time,
 so were we because of you, O LORD; ¹⁸we were with child, we writhed,
 but we gave birth only to wind.
 We have won no victories on earth, and no one is born to inhabit the world.

¹⁹Your dead shall live, their corpses^b shall rise.
 O dwellers in the dust, awake and sing
 for joy!
 For your dew is a radiant dew, and the earth will give birth to those long dead.^c

²⁰Come, my people, enter your chambers, and shut your doors behind you;
 hide yourselves for a little while until the wrath is past.

²¹For the LORD comes out from his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth
 for their iniquity;
 the earth will disclose the blood shed on it,
 and will no longer cover its slain.

27 On that day the LORD with his cruel and great and strong sword will punish Leviathan the fleeing serpent, Leviathan the twisting serpent, and he will kill the dragon that is in the sea.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn Compare Syr Tg; Heb my corpse

^c Heb to the shades

LORD's capacity to bring down the arrogant. 7–10: Statement of confidence in the LORD. The LORD's righteousness becomes a factor in teaching righteousness to the wicked of the world. 11–19: Petitions for action on the part of the LORD. 13: Other lords, perhaps an allusion to the oppressor city of chaos (24.10), whose downfall will come in response to the people's petition. 14: The dead do not live, a common theme in the psalms; only the living can praise God (Pss 6.5; 30.9; 49.10–20); see 39.18–19. 17–18: Childbirth is a common image for an immanent event (see 13.8; 66.7–9). 19: Your dead shall live, the response to v. 14, expressing an intuition of a meaningful survival of death; cf. Ezek 37.1–14; Dan 12.2. 20–21: Exhortation to wait for the LORD (cf. 2.10,19,21).

27.1: The LORD's defeat of Leviathan. Leviathan, the seven-headed serpent known from Ugaritic and biblical tradition as a chaos monster whose defeat by the LORD aids in bringing about order in creation (see 11.15n.; Ps 74.13–14).

² On that day:
 A pleasant vineyard, sing about it!
³ I, the LORD, am its keeper;
 every moment I water it.
 I guard it night and day
 so that no one can harm it;
⁴ I have no wrath.
 If it gives me thorns and briers,
 I will march to battle against it.
 I will burn it up.
⁵ Or else let it cling to me for protection,
 let it make peace with me,
 let it make peace with me.

⁶ In days to come^a Jacob shall take root, Israel shall blossom and put forth shoots,
 and fill the whole world with fruit.

⁷ Has he struck them down as he struck down those who struck them?
 Or have they been killed as their killers were killed?

⁸ By expulsion,^b by exile you struggled
 against them;
 with his fierce blast he removed them in the day of the east wind.

⁹ Therefore by this the guilt of Jacob will be expiated,
 and this will be the full fruit of the removal of his sin:
 when he makes all the stones of the altars
 like chalkstones crushed to pieces, no sacred poles^c or incense altars will remain standing.

¹⁰ For the fortified city is solitary, a habitation deserted and forsaken, like
 the wilderness;

the calves graze there,
 there they lie down, and strip its branches.
¹¹ When its boughs are dry, they are broken;
 women come and make a fire of them.
 For this is a people without understanding;
 therefore he that made them will not have compassion on them, he that formed them will show them no
 favor.

¹² On that day the LORD will thresh from the channel of the Euphrates to the Wadi of Egypt, and you will be gathered one by one, O people of Israel. ¹³ And on that day a great trumpet will be blown, and those who were lost in the land of Assyria and those who were driven out to the land of Egypt will come and worship the LORD on the holy mountain at Jerusalem.

28 Ah, the proud garland of the drunkards of Ephraim,
 and the fading flower of its glorious beauty,
 which is on the head of those bloated with rich food, of those overcome with wine!
² See, the Lord has one who is mighty and strong;
 like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest,

^a Heb Those to come

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb Asherim

27.2–13: The new vineyard allegory plays upon the earlier allegory in 5.1–7 that accused the people of Israel and Judah of wrongdoing before the LORD. Now the LORD stands ready to resume care for the vineyard. 6: Jacob shall take root, cf. 11.1–9. 7–13: A justification of the LORD. The suffering of the people constitutes the LORD's efforts to purge the nation of sins and idolatry. 10: The fortified city, referring to the unnamed city of 24.10; 25.2; 26.5. 11: Without understanding, cf. 1.2–3. 12–13: With the downfall of the oppressor, the time to gather the exiles from Assyria (the river Euphrates) and Egypt has arrived (cf. 11.15–16). The Wadi of Egypt is not the Nile but either the Wadi el-Arish or the Wadi Besor, both south of Gaza.

28.1–33.24: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's plans for the new king in Jerusalem. This block of material is defined by its introductory "Woe" (Heb "hoy"; NRSV "Ah," "Ha," "Oh," "Alas") oracle forms (28.1; 29.1,15; 30.1; 31.1; 33.1); its overall concern for the deliverance of Jerusalem from Assyria; and its culminating concern for the establishment of a righteous king in Jerusalem.

28.1–29: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's purpose in bringing Assyrian rule. This oracle condemns both Israelite and Judean leadership as an explanation for Assyrian rule of Israel and Judah. 1–4: The introductory "woe" (NRSV Ah) oracle condemns the leadership of northern Israel (Ephraim was the dominant like a storm of mighty, overflowing waters;

with his hand he will hurl them down to the earth.

³ Trampled under foot will be the proud garland of the drunkards of Ephraim.

⁴ And the fading flower of its glorious beauty,
which is on the head of those bloated
with rich food,
will be like a first-ripe fig before the summer;
whoever sees it, eats it up
as soon as it comes to hand.

⁵ In that day the LORD of hosts will be a garland of glory,
and a diadem of beauty, to the remnant of his people;

⁶ and a spirit of justice to the one who sits in judgment,
and strength to those who turn back
the battle at the gate.

⁷ These also reel with wine and stagger with strong drink;
the priest and the prophet reel with strong drink,
they are confused with wine,
they stagger with strong drink;
they err in vision,
they stumble in giving judgment.

⁸ All tables are covered with filthy vomit;
no place is clean.

⁹ “Whom will he teach knowledge, and to whom will he explain the message?

Those who are weaned from milk,
those taken from the breast?

¹⁰ For it is precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
line upon line, line upon line,
here a little, there a little.”^a

¹¹ Truly, with stammering lip and with alien tongue
he will speak to this people,
¹² to whom he has said,

“This is rest;
give rest to the weary;
and this is repose”;
yet they would not hear.

¹³ Therefore the word of the LORD will be to them, “Precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
line upon line, line upon line,
here a little, there a little;”^a
in order that they may go, and fall backward,
and be broken, and snared, and taken.

¹⁴ Therefore hear the word of the LORD, you scoffers
who rule this people in Jerusalem.

¹⁵ Because you have said, “We have made a covenant with death,
and with Sheol we have an agreement;
when the overwhelming scourge passes
through
it will not come to us;
for we have made lies our refuge,
and in falsehood we have taken shelter”;

¹⁶ therefore thus says the Lord GOD, See, I am laying in Zion a foundation stone,
a tested stone,
a precious cornerstone, a sure foundation:

“One who trusts will not panic.”

¹⁷ And I will make justice the line, and righteousness the plummet;
hail will sweep away the refuge of lies,
and waters will overwhelm the shelter.

^a Meaning of Heb of this verse uncertain tribe of northern Israel) for self-indulgence in food and wine (cf. 5.8–24). Proud garland and glorious beauty designate the royal crown. 5–6: The LORD’s promise to support a future monarch who rules in justice and defends the nation (cf. 9.1–7; 11.1–9). 7–13: The oracle presupposes the Canaanite “marzeah” ritual, associated with funerary rites that called for all-night drinking and feasting. This ritual has also been associated with the conclusion of treaties. 14–22: An indictment of Jerusalem’s leadership. The covenant with Sheol, the abode of the dead, plays upon the previously noted “marzeah” ritual. It may also refer to an alliance with Egypt. 16: The foundation stone in Jerusalem symbolizes both the foundation for a major building, such as the Jerusalem Temple, and the Davidic/Zion tradition of the LORD’s promise of security for Jerusalem and the house of David.

18 Then your covenant with death will be annulled, and your agreement with Sheol will not stand;
 when the overwhelming scourge passes through you will be beaten down by it.
 19 As often as it passes through, it will take you;
 for morning by morning it will pass through,
 by day and by night;
 and it will be sheer terror to understand the message.
 20 For the bed is too short to stretch oneself on it, and the covering too narrow to wrap oneself in it.
 21 For the LORD will rise up as on Mount Perazim, he will rage as in the valley of Gibeon to do his deed—strange is his deed!—
 and to work his work—alien is his work!
 22 Now therefore do not scoff, or your bonds will be made stronger;
 for I have heard a decree of destruction from the Lord God of hosts upon the whole land.
 23 Listen, and hear my voice;
 Pay attention, and hear my speech.
 24 Do those who plow for sowing plow continually?
 Do they continually open and harrow their ground?
 25 When they have leveled its surface, do they not scatter dill, sow cummin, and plant wheat in rows
 and barley in its proper place,
 and spelt as the border?
 26 For they are well instructed;
 their God teaches them.

27 Dill is not threshed with a threshing sled, nor is a cart wheel rolled over cummin;
 but dill is beaten out with a stick,
 and cummin with a rod.
 28 Grain is crushed for bread,
 but one does not thresh it forever;
 one drives the cart wheel and horses over it,
 but does not pulverize it.
 29 This also comes from the LORD of hosts;
 he is wonderful in counsel,
 and excellent in wisdom.

29 Ah, Ariel, Ariel,
 the city where David encamped!
 Add year to year;
 let the festivals run their round.
 2 Yet I will distress Ariel, and there shall be moaning and lamentation, and Jerusalem^a shall be to me like an Ariel.^b 3 And like David^c I will encamp against you;
 I will besiege you with towers and raise siegeworks against you.
 4 Then deep from the earth you shall speak, from low in the dust your words shall come;
 your voice shall come from the ground like
 the voice of a ghost,
 and your speech shall whisper out of the dust.
 5 But the multitude of your foes^d shall be like small dust,

^a Heb she

^b Probable meaning, altar hearth; compare Ezek 43.15

^c Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Cn: Heb strangers

21: Perazim refers to the LORD's victory over the Philistines at Baal-perazim (2 Sam 5.17–21) and Gibeon to the victory over the Canaanites (Josh 10.10). But now, the LORD will punish Jerusalem's leaders. 23–29: The concluding allegory illustrates the both the duration and the appropriateness of the punishment. Just as a farmer must plow the ground and then thresh, beat, and crush the crops to prepare them for human use, so the LORD will plow and thresh the people in preparation for their restoration.

29.1–24: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's purpose in assaulting Ariel/Zion. 1–4: The first portion of this "woe" (Ah) oracle begins with a portrayal of an assault against the city of Jerusalem, apparently presupposing or anticipating an Assyrian attack. Just as David once conquered Jerusalem (2 Sam 5.6–9), the LORD will do the same with a foreign army. 1: The Heb term Ariel means "lion of God," recalling the lion as the symbol and the multitude of tyrants like flying chaff.

And in an instant, suddenly,

⁶ you will be visited by the LORD of hosts with thunder and earthquake and great noise, with whirlwind and tempest, and the flame of a devouring fire.

⁷ And the multitude of all the nations that fight against Ariel, all that fight against her and her stronghold, and who distress her, shall be like a dream, a vision of the night.

⁸ Just as when a hungry person dreams of eating and wakes up still hungry, or a thirsty person dreams of drinking and wakes up faint, still thirsty, so shall the multitude of all the nations be that fight against Mount Zion.

⁹ Stupefy yourselves and be in a stupor, blind yourselves and be blind!

Be drunk, but not from wine;

stagger, but not from strong drink!

¹⁰ For the LORD has poured out upon you a spirit of deep sleep; he has closed your eyes, you prophets, and covered your heads, you seers.

¹¹ The vision of all this has become for you like the words of a sealed document. If it is given to those who can read, with the command, “Read this,” they say, “We cannot, for it is sealed.” ¹² And if it is given to those who cannot read, saying, “Read this,” they say, “We cannot read.”

¹³ The Lord said:

Because these people draw near with their mouths and honor me with their lips, while their hearts are far from me, and their worship of me is a human commandment learned by rote;

¹⁴ so I will again do amazing things with this people, shocking and amazing.

The wisdom of their wise shall perish, and the discernment of the discerning shall be hidden.

¹⁵ Ha! You who hide a plan too deep for the LORD, whose deeds are in the dark, and who say, “Who sees us? Who knows us?”

¹⁶ You turn things upside down! Shall the potter be regarded as the clay? Shall the thing made say of its maker, “He did not make me”; or the thing formed say of the one who formed it, “He has no understanding”?

¹⁷ Shall not Lebanon in a very little while become a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be regarded as a forest?

¹⁸ On that day the deaf shall hear the words of a scroll, and out of their gloom and darkness the eyes of the blind shall see.

¹⁹ The meek shall obtain fresh joy in the LORD, and the neediest people shall exult in the Holy One of Israel.

²⁰ For the tyrant shall be no more, and the scoffer shall cease to be; all those alert to do evil shall be cut off—for Judah (Gen 49.8–11). It is related to a Heb word that designates the hearth of the altar (Ezek 43.15–16). 6–7: God will appear with all the elements of a theophany as a divine warrior to fight against those attacking Jerusalem. 9–10: Stupefy . . . blind yourselves recalls the prophet’s commission in 6.9–10 to render the people blind, deaf, and ignorant so that they will not repent and be saved. The deep sleep poured on the people is like that of the first human when the woman was created (Gen 2.21) and of Abraham when he had a revelation of Israel’s deliverance from Egypt at the Exodus (Gen 15.12–16). 11–12: The sealed document, cf. 8.16–17. Ultimately, the significance of Isaiah’s prophecies will be understood only when later generations read them, perhaps in the time of the Babylonian exile (chs 40–55) or the Persian-period restoration (chs 56–66). 13–14: Cf. 1.10–17. 15–24: The second portion of this “woe” (Ha!) oracle focuses on the future realization of the LORD’s purposes for Zion. The LORD is the potter and not the clay; cf. 45.9; Jer 18.1–6. 17: Lebanon, 2.13n; see also 10.34. The image is of a radical transformation. 18: The deaf and the blind (cf. 6.9–10) will understand when they hear and read the scroll

²¹ those who cause a person to lose a lawsuit, who set a trap for the arbiter in the gate, and without grounds deny justice to the one in the right.

²² Therefore thus says the LORD, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob:

No longer shall Jacob be ashamed,
 no longer shall his face grow pale.

²³ For when he sees his children,
 the work of my hands, in his midst,
 they will sanctify my name;
 they will sanctify the Holy One of Jacob,
 and will stand in awe of the God of Israel.

²⁴ And those who err in spirit will come to understanding, and those who grumble will accept instruction.

30 Oh, rebellious children, says the LORD, who carry out a plan, but not mine;

 who make an alliance, but against my will,
 adding sin to sin;

² who set out to go down to Egypt without asking for my counsel, to take refuge in the protection of Pharaoh,
 and to seek shelter in the shadow of Egypt;

³ Therefore the protection of Pharaoh shall become your shame, and the shelter in the shadow of Egypt your humiliation.

⁴ For though his officials are at Zoan and his envoys reach Hanes,

⁵ everyone comes to shame

through a people that cannot profit them, that brings neither help nor profit,
 but shame and disgrace.

⁶ An oracle concerning the animals of the Negeb.

Through a land of trouble and distress,
 of lioness and roaring^a lion,
 of viper and flying serpent,
 they carry their riches on the backs of donkeys,
 and their treasures on the humps of camels,
 to a people that cannot profit them.

⁷ For Egypt's help is worthless and empty, therefore I have called her,
 "Rahab who sits still."^b

⁸ Go now, write it before them on a tablet, and inscribe it in a book,
 so that it may be for the time to come as a witness forever.

⁹ For they are a rebellious people, faithless children,
 children who will not hear
 the instruction of the LORD;

¹⁰ who say to the seers, "Do not see";
 and to the prophets, "Do not prophesy
 to us what is right;
 speak to us smooth things,
 prophesy illusions,

¹¹ leave the way, turn aside from the path, let us hear no more about the Holy One of Israel."

¹² Therefore thus says the Holy One of Israel:

^a Cn: Heb from them

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

of Isaiah's prophecies (cf. 8.16–23). 22: Abraham, cf. 41.8; 51.2. Abraham, redeemed by God's call to journey into the promised land (Gen 12.1–3), becomes the model for those who returned to Judah in the post-disaster period.

30.1–33: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's delay in delivering the people from Assyria. This lengthy "woe" oracle-complex expresses Isaiah's dissatisfaction with Hezekiah's embassies to Egypt in order to enlist support for his revolt against Assyria in 701 BCE. 1–11: Isaiah opposes attempts to ally with other nations for Jerusalem's protection because his understanding of Davidic/Zion theology holds that the LORD alone will protect Jerusalem and the house of David. 4: Zoan, see 19.11–15n. Hanes is south of Memphis. 6–7: The oracle condemns Judah for sending a caravan of goods to Egypt to enlist Egyptian aid. Negeb, see 20.1n. Rahab is a mythological sea dragon that sometimes symbolizes Egypt (51.9–11; Ps 89.9; Job 9.13). 8–11: The prophet records his oracle because the people are not ready to hear him but want to hear only smooth or comforting things. The significance of the LORD's actions will be understood only at a later time (cf. 8.16–23; 29.11–12). 12–17: The prophet

Because you reject this word, and put your trust in oppression and deceit,
and rely on them;

¹³ therefore this iniquity shall become for
you
like a break in a high wall, bulging out,
and about to collapse,
whose crash comes suddenly, in an instant;

¹⁴ its breaking is like that of a potter's vessel
that is smashed so ruthlessly that among its fragments not a sherd is found
for taking fire from the hearth, or dipping water out of the cistern.

¹⁵ For thus said the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel:

In returning and rest you shall be saved;
in quietness and in trust shall be your strength.

But you refused ¹⁶ and said, “No! We will flee upon horses”— therefore you shall flee!

and, “We will ride upon swift steeds”— therefore your pursuers shall be swift!

¹⁷ A thousand shall flee at the threat of one,
at the threat of five you shall flee, until you are left
like a flagstaff on the top of a mountain, like a signal on a hill.

¹⁸ Therefore the LORD waits to be gracious
to you;
therefore he will rise up to show mercy
to you.

For the LORD is a God of justice;
blessed are all those who wait for him.

¹⁹ Truly, O people in Zion, inhabitants of Jerusalem, you shall weep no more. He will surely be gracious to you at the sound of your cry; when he hears it, he will answer you.

²⁰ Though the Lord may give you the bread of adversity and the water of affliction, yet your Teacher will not hide himself any more, but your eyes shall see your Teacher. ²¹ And when you turn to the right or when you turn to the left, your ears shall hear a word behind you, saying, “This is the way; walk in it.” ²² Then you will defile your silver-covered idols and your gold-plated images. You will scatter them like filthy rags; you will say to them, “Away with you!”

²³ He will give rain for the seed with which you sow the ground, and grain, the produce of the ground, which will be rich and plenteous. On that day your cattle will graze in broad pastures; ²⁴ and the oxen and donkeys that till the ground will eat silage, which has been winnowed with shovel and fork. ²⁵ On every lofty mountain and every high hill there will be brooks running with water—on a day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall. ²⁶ Moreover the light of the moon will be like the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold, like the light of seven days, on the day when the LORD binds up the injuries of his people, and heals the wounds inflicted by his blow.

²⁷ See, the name of the LORD comes from
far away,
burning with his anger, and in thick rising smoke;^a

his lips are full of indignation,
and his tongue is like a devouring fire;

²⁸ his breath is like an overflowing stream that reaches up to the neck—

to sift the nations with the sieve of destruction,
and to place on the jaws of the peoples a bridle that leads them astray.

²⁹ You shall have a song as in the night when a holy festival is kept; and gladness of heart, as when one sets out to the sound of

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

argues that the LORD will delay deliverance from Assyria because the people do not trust the prophet's message. ¹⁷: A thousand shall flee, see Lev 26.36–37; Deut 32.30. ¹⁸–²⁶: The LORD will ultimately show mercy to Jerusalem. A Teacher, perhaps someone who would interpret the prophecies that were bound up. Such a statement might motivate the writings of later prophets in chs 40–66. ²⁷–³³: Ultimately, the LORD will strike down the Assyrian oppressor (cf. 10.5–33; 14.24–27). The oracle invokes the imagery of a Temple festival when the LORD is revealed in the smoke and flame of the incense burners and lamp stands of the Jerusalem Temple.

the flute to go to the mountain of the LORD, to the Rock of Israel. ³⁰ And the LORD will cause his majestic voice to be heard and the descending blow of his arm to be seen, in furious anger and a flame of devouring fire, with a cloudburst and tempest and hailstones. ³¹ The Assyrian will be terror-stricken at the voice of the LORD, when he strikes with his rod. ³² And every stroke of the staff of punishment that the LORD lays upon him will be to the sound of timbrels and lyres; battling with brandished arm he will fight with him. ³³ For his burning place^a has long been prepared; truly it is made ready for the king,^b its pyre made deep and wide, with fire and wood in abundance; the breath of the LORD, like a stream of sulfur, kindles it.

31 Alas for those who go down to Egypt for help and who rely on horses, who trust in chariots because they are many and in horsemen because they are very strong, but do not look to the Holy One of Israel or consult the LORD!
² Yet he too is wise and brings disaster; he does not call back his words, but will rise against the house of the evildoers, and against the helpers of those who work iniquity.
³ The Egyptians are human, and not God; their horses are flesh, and not spirit. When the LORD stretches out his hand, the helper will stumble, and the one helped will fall, and they will all perish together.

⁴ For thus the LORD said to me, As a lion or a young lion growls over its prey, and—when a band of shepherds is called out against it—is not terrified by their shouting or daunted at their noise, so the LORD of hosts will come down to fight upon Mount Zion and upon its hill.

⁵ Like birds hovering overhead, so the LORD of hosts will protect Jerusalem; he will protect and deliver it, he will spare and rescue it.

⁶ Turn back to him whom you^c have deeply betrayed, O people of Israel. ⁷ For on that day all of you shall throw away your idols of silver and idols of gold, which your hands have sinfully made for you.

⁸ “Then the Assyrian shall fall by a sword, not of mortals; and a sword, not of humans, shall devour him; he shall flee from the sword, and his young men shall be put to forced labor.

⁹ His rock shall pass away in terror, and his officers desert the standard in panic,” says the LORD, whose fire is in Zion, and whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

32 See, a king will reign in righteousness, and princes will rule with justice.
² Each will be like a hiding place from the wind, a covert from the tempest, like streams of water in a dry place, like the shade of a great rock in a weary land.
³ Then the eyes of those who have sight will not be closed, and the ears of those who have hearing will listen.

^a Or Topheth

^b Or Molech

^c Heb they

31.1–9: The prophet’s warning concerning reliance on Egyptian aid against Assyria. Isaiah again condemns attempts to ally with Egypt in preparation for Hezekiah’s revolt against Assyria in 701 BCE. The prophet employs the allegories of a lion over its prey and a bird protecting its young to illustrate his point. 1: Cf. Ps 20.7. 8–9: The final defeat of Assyria (14.24–27). Fire, furnace, a reference to the Temple altar.

32.1–33.24: Prophetic instruction concerning the righteous king. 32.1–8: When the king rules over Jerusalem in righteousness (cf. 9.1–7; 11.1–16), the blind will see, the deaf will hear, the people will understand (reversing

⁴The minds of the rash will have good judgment, and the tongues of stammerers will speak readily and distinctly.

⁵A fool will no longer be called noble, nor a villain said to be honorable.

⁶For fools speak folly, and their minds plot iniquity: to practice ungodliness, to utter error concerning the LORD, to leave the craving of the hungry unsatisfied, and to deprive the thirsty of drink.

⁷The villainies of villains are evil; they devise wicked devices to ruin the poor with lying words, even when the plea of the needy is right.

⁸But those who are noble plan noble things, and by noble things they stand.

⁹Rise up, you women who are at ease, hear my voice; you complacent daughters, listen to my speech.

¹⁰In little more than a year you will shudder, you complacent ones; for the vintage will fail, the fruit harvest will not come.

¹¹Tremble, you women who are at ease, shudder, you complacent ones; strip, and make yourselves bare, and put sackcloth on your loins.

¹²Beat your breasts for the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine,

¹³for the soil of my people growing up in thorns and briars; yes, for all the joyous houses in the jubilant city.

¹⁴For the palace will be forsaken, the populous city deserted; the hill and the watchtower will become dens forever, the joy of wild asses, a pasture for flocks;

¹⁵until a spirit from on high is poured out on us, and the wilderness becomes a fruitful field, and the fruitful field is deemed a forest.

¹⁶Then justice will dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness abide in the fruitful field.

¹⁷The effect of righteousness will be peace, and the result of righteousness, quietness and trust forever.

¹⁸My people will abide in a peaceful habitation, in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places.

¹⁹The forest will disappear completely,^a and the city will be utterly laid low.

²⁰Happy will you be who sow beside every stream, who let the ox and the donkey range freely.

33 Ah, you destroyer, who yourself have not been destroyed; you treacherous one, with whom no one has dealt treacherously!

When you have ceased to destroy, you will be destroyed; and when you have stopped dealing treacherously, you will be dealt with treacherously.

²O LORD, be gracious to us; we wait for you.

Be our arm every morning, our salvation in the time of trouble.

³At the sound of tumult, peoples fled; before your majesty, nations scattered.

⁴Spoil was gathered as the caterpillar gathers; as locusts leap, they leaped^b upon it.

^a Cn: Heb And it will hail when the forest comes down

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

6.9–10). 9–20: The prophet summarizes the themes of his prophecies by describing the reversal from crop failure to a transformation of the natural and moral environment through a spirit from on high (cf. 5.6; 11.1–9).

33.1–24: The prophet's announcement of the righteous king is formulated as a liturgical cycle that combines elements of the complaint songs with the announcement of the king. 1: The liturgy begins with a "woe" (Ah) oracle that proclaims the downfall of the oppressor. 2–4: An address to the LORD petitions for relief from the

⁵The LORD is exalted, he dwells on high;
he filled Zion with justice and
righteousness;
⁶he will be the stability of your times, abundance of salvation, wisdom, and
knowledge;
the fear of the LORD is Zion's treasure.^a ⁷Listen! the valiant^b cry in the streets;

the envoys of peace weep bitterly.

⁸The highways are deserted, travelers have quit the road.
The treaty is broken,
its oaths^c are despised,
its obligation^d is disregarded.

⁹The land mourns and languishes;
Lebanon is confounded and withers
away;
Sharon is like a desert;
and Bashan and Carmel shake off their leaves.

¹⁰"Now I will arise," says the LORD,
"now I will lift myself up;
now I will be exalted.

¹¹You conceive chaff, you bring forth
stubble;
your breath is a fire that will consume
you.

¹²And the peoples will be as if burned to lime,
like thorns cut down, that are burned in the fire."

¹³Hear, you who are far away, what I have done;
and you who are near, acknowledge my
might.

¹⁴The sinners in Zion are afraid;
trembling has seized the godless:
"Who among us can live with the devouring fire?"

Who among us can live with everlasting flames?"

¹⁵Those who walk righteously and speak uprightly,
who despise the gain of oppression, who wave away a bribe instead of accepting it,
who stop their ears from hearing of bloodshed
and shut their eyes from looking on
evil,

¹⁶they will live on the heights;
their refuge will be the fortresses of rocks;
their food will be supplied, their water assured.

¹⁷Your eyes will see the king in his beauty;
they will behold a land that stretches
far away.

¹⁸Your mind will muse on the terror:
"Where is the one who counted?
Where is the one who weighed the tribute?
Where is the one who counted the towers?"

¹⁹No longer will you see the insolent
people,
the people of an obscure speech that you cannot comprehend, stammering in a language that you cannot understand.

²⁰Look on Zion, the city of our appointed festivals!
Your eyes will see Jerusalem,
a quiet habitation, an immovable tent,
whose stakes will never be pulled up,

^a Heb his treasure; meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Q Ms: MT cities

^d Or everyone

oppressor. 5–6: An address to the audience reiterates Isaiah's view that the LORD is exalted (cf. 2.9–21). 7–9: The prophet summarizes the suffering and withering of the land that precede the rise of the righteous king. Lebanon, 2.13n. Sharon, the fertile coastal plain extending south from Acco/Acre and Dor nearly to Joppa/Jaffa. Bashan, the fertile plain south of Aram (Syria) and east of the Sea of Galilee. Carmel, the fertile mountain range that extends from Acco/Acre south along the eastern edge of the Sharon plain. 10–12: A response in which the God of Israel threatens to arise and burn the enemy like thorns; cf. 10.16–17; 30.27–33. 13–16: Those in Zion who do not trust in the LORD will also suffer. 17–24: Those who had been blind, deaf, and ignorant (32.1–3; cf. 6.9–10) will finally see the righteous king in Jerusalem. 19: Obscure speech, the Assyrian oppressors, who speak a foreign language, will be gone, and Zion will again see its Temple festivals.

and none of whose ropes will be broken.

²¹ But there the LORD in majesty will be for us a place of broad rivers and streams, where no galley with oars can go,
nor stately ship can pass.

²² For the LORD is our judge, the LORD is our ruler, the LORD is our king; he will save us.

²³ Your rigging hangs loose;
it cannot hold the mast firm in its place,
or keep the sail spread out.

Then prey and spoil in abundance will be divided;

even the lame will fall to plundering.

²⁴ And no inhabitant will say, "I am sick";
the people who live there will be forgiven their iniquity.

34 Draw near, O nations, to hear;
O peoples, give heed!

Let the earth hear, and all that fills it;
the world, and all that comes from it.

² For the LORD is enraged against all the nations, and furious against all their hordes;
he has doomed them, has given them over for slaughter.

³ Their slain shall be cast out, and the stench of their corpses shall rise;

the mountains shall flow with their blood.

⁴ All the host of heaven shall rot away,
and the skies roll up like a scroll.
All their host shall wither
like a leaf withering on a vine, or fruit withering on a fig tree.

⁵ When my sword has drunk its fill in the heavens, lo, it will descend upon Edom,
upon the people I have doomed to judgment.

⁶ The LORD has a sword; it is sated with blood,
it is gorged with fat,
with the blood of lambs and goats,
with the fat of the kidneys of rams.

For the LORD has a sacrifice in Bozrah,
a great slaughter in the land of Edom.

⁷ Wild oxen shall fall with them,
and young steers with the mighty bulls.
Their land shall be soaked with blood,
and their soil made rich with fat.

⁸ For the LORD has a day of vengeance,
a year of vindication by Zion's cause.^a

⁹ And the streams of Edom^b shall be turned into pitch, and her soil into sulfur;

^a Or of recompense by Zion's defender

^b Heb her streams

34.1–66.24: Concerning the realization of the LORD's plans for revealing worldwide sovereignty from Zion. Whereas chs 1–33 anticipate the revelation of the LORD's worldwide sovereignty at Zion, the second half of the book in chs 34–66 presupposes that the time is at hand.

34.1–35.10: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's power to return the redeemed exiles to Zion. Chs 34–35 introduce the second half of the book of Zion with an emphasis on the judgment of the nations, represented by Edom, and the return of the exiles to Zion.

34.1–17: Prophetic instruction concerning the LORD's power over the nations. Chapter 34 emphasizes the LORD's power over the nations by focusing especially on the fate of Edom, Israel's neighbor to the southeast (cf. 63.1–6). Edom, which is condemned in biblical literature for its role in the destruction of Jerusalem (Jer 49.7–22; Ezek 25.12–17; Ob; Ps 137.7; Lam 4.21–22), began to decline in the sixth century BCE as Arab tribes began to encroach upon Edomite territory. This decline provides a counterpart for the judgment leveled against Israel and Jerusalem in ch 1. Links between chs 34 and 1 include parallel calls to attention (34.1; 1.2); the LORD's vengeance (34.8; 1.24); unquenchable burning (34.10; 1.24); the mouth of the LORD that has spoken (34.16; 1.20); the sword of punishment (34.5,6; 1.20); the sacrificial blood and fat of cattle (34.6–7; 1.11–15); Sodom and Gomorrah (34.9–10; 1.7–9,10); and wilting leaves (34.4; 1.30). 1–15: The address to the nations calls their attention to Edom's punishment. The portrayal of destruction employs the images of sacrifice. 6: Bozrah: a major city in Edom. 8: The passage takes up the "day of the LORD" theme (cf. 2.10–21; 13.6–16). 9–10: The fate of Edom will resemble that of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19.24–28), located at the southern end of the Dead Sea by Edom.

her land shall become burning pitch.
¹⁰ Night and day it shall not be quenched;
 its smoke shall go up forever.
 From generation to generation it shall lie waste;
 no one shall pass through it forever and ever.
¹¹ But the hawk^a and the hedgehog^a shall possess it;
 the owl^a and the raven shall live in it.
 He shall stretch the line of confusion
 over it,
 and the plummet of chaos over^b its nobles.
¹² They shall name it No Kingdom There,
 and all its princes shall be nothing.
¹³ Thorns shall grow over its strongholds, nettles and thistles in its fortresses.
 It shall be the haunt of jackals,
 an abode for ostriches.
¹⁴ Wildcats shall meet with hyenas, goat-demons shall call to each other;
 there too Lilith shall repose,
 and find a place to rest.
¹⁵ There shall the owl nest and lay and hatch and brood in its shadow;
 there too the buzzards shall gather,
 each one with its mate.
¹⁶ Seek and read from the book of the
 LORD:
 Not one of these shall be missing;
 none shall be without its mate.
 For the mouth of the LORD has commanded,
 and his spirit has gathered them.
¹⁷ He has cast the lot for them,
 his hand has portioned it out to them with the line;
 they shall possess it forever,

from generation to generation they shall live in it.

35 The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad,
 the desert shall rejoice and blossom;
 like the crocus² it shall blossom abundantly,
 and rejoice with joy and singing.
 The glory of Lebanon shall be given to it,
 the majesty of Carmel and Sharon.
 They shall see the glory of the LORD,
 the majesty of our God.

³ Strengthen the weak hands,
 and make firm the feeble knees.

⁴ Say to those who are of a fearful heart,
 “Be strong, do not fear!
 Here is your God.

He will come with vengeance,
 with terrible recompense.
 He will come and save you.”

⁵ Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened,
 and the ears of the deaf unstopped;
⁶ then the lame shall leap like a deer, and the tongue of the speechless sing
 for joy.

For waters shall break forth in the
 wilderness,
 and streams in the desert;

⁷ the burning sand shall become a pool,
 and the thirsty ground springs of water;
 the haunt of jackals shall become a swamp,^c

^a Identification uncertain

^b Heb lacks over

^c Cn: Heb in the haunt of jackals is her resting place

11: Confusion (Heb “tohu”) and chaos (Heb “bohu”) are terms employed to describe primeval chaos prior to creation (Gen 1.2). 14: Lilith is a hostile goddess associated with the night in Sumerian mythology. In later Jewish folklore, she is known as Adam’s first wife who gives birth to demons. 16–17: Book of the LORD, perhaps the book of Isaiah as it then existed. The second address asks the reader to search the book for confirmation of the LORD’s purpose concerning the nations.

35.1–10: Prophetic oracle of salvation concerning the return of the redeemed to Zion. The return of the exiles to Zion is portrayed as a second Exodus in which the people return to Zion through the wilderness. 1–2: The announcement of the return emphasizes the rejoicing and blooming of the wilderness as the LORD is sovereign of all creation. Lebanon is the mountain range north of Israel, Carmel, Sharon, see 33.9–10n. 4: Do not fear, the reassurance formula addressed by the prophet to King Ahaz in 7.4 and to Hezekiah in 37.6. 5–6: A reversal of 6.9–10. The open eyes of the blind and the unstopped ears of the deaf indicate that the LORD’s commands that the grass shall become reeds and rushes.

⁸ A highway shall be there,
and it shall be called the Holy Way;
the unclean shall not travel on it,^a but it shall be for God's people;^b no traveler, not even fools, shall go astray.

⁹ No lion shall be there, nor shall any ravenous beast come up on it;
they shall not be found there,
but the redeemed shall walk there.

¹⁰ And the ransomed of the LORD shall return,
and come to Zion with singing;

everlasting joy shall be upon their heads;
they shall obtain joy and gladness,
and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

36 In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, King Sennacherib of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and captured them. ²The king of Assyria sent the Rabshakeh from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem, with a great army. He stood by the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Fuller's Field.
³And there came out to him Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace,

^a Or pass it by

^b Cn: Heb for them

Isaiah render the people blind and deaf so that they cannot repent and be saved are now at an end (cf. 29.18; 32.3; 42.16,18–19; 43.8; 44.18). 8–10: The highway through the wilderness is a motif of both the Exodus/Wilderness tradition (Num 20.17; 21.22; Deut 2.8) and the second exodus of the book of Isaiah (40.3; 42.16; 43.19). The return of exiles from Egypt and Assyria appears in 11.16; 27.12–13.

36.1–39.8: Historical narratives concerning Hezekiah. These narratives also appear in a slightly different form in 2 Kings 18–20. Because the prophet Isaiah makes his last appearance here in the book of Isaiah, many interpreters consider chs 36–39 to be drawn from 2 Kings 18–20 in order to form a historical appendix to First Isaiah (chs 1–39). Although chs 36–39 may originally have been intended as an appendix to an early edition of the book, the reference to the exile of Hezekiah's sons to Babylon in 39.7–8 indicates that they now are transitional chapters that prepare the reader for the downfall of Babylon and the return of the exiles to Zion beginning in ch 40. The figure of Hezekiah is contrasted with that of Ahaz in 7.1–9.6 to demonstrate that Hezekiah's return to the LORD results in the deliverance of his people whereas Ahaz's refusal to turn to the LORD resulted in the subjugation of his people to Assyria. Such a portrayal also facilitates Second Isaiah's call to turn to the LORD in chs 40–55 at the time of the restoration. Subtle differences from 2 Kings 18–20 indicate an effort to white-wash Hezekiah's character in Isa 36–39 in order to present him as a pure figure who places his trust entirely in the LORD.

36.1–37.38: Confrontation story concerning the LORD's defeat of Sennacherib at Jerusalem. This narrative presents an account of the siege of Jerusalem by the Assyrian King Sennacherib in 701 BCE. King Hezekiah allied with Babylon and assembled a coalition to revolt against Assyria following the death of Sargon II in 705 BCE. Sargon's successor, Sennacherib, attacked western Asia including Judah. As Hezekiah's allies quickly submitted to Assyria, Hezekiah found himself alone against the Assyrians. Sennacherib's records indicate that he concentrated his attack in southwestern Judah along the border with Philistia, devastated the land of Judah, besieged Jerusalem, and ultimately forced Hezekiah to submit, taking away captives, a great deal of plunder, and even Hezekiah's own daughters. Hezekiah nevertheless retained his throne. Sennacherib was assassinated by his own sons in 681 BCE. Most interpreters maintain that chs 36–37 are an idealized account of the siege designed to celebrate the LORD's victory over Sennacherib as the Assyrian Empire began to decline in the seventh century BCE. 36.1: The fourteenth year, 701 BCE. The narrative of Hezekiah's initial capitulation to Sennacherib in 2 Kings 18.14–16 does not appear here. 2–22: The Assyrian Rabshakeh, "Cup-bearer" or "Chief Steward" of the Assyrian king, presents the terms of surrender to Hezekiah and the besieged defenders of Jerusalem. 2: Lachish, the major royal city in southwestern Judah. Excavations indicate that it was conquered by the Assyrians, who forced Jewish prisoners of war to build a ramp up the side of the city's fortifications. A pit with 1,500 human skeletons on the site indicates the extent of the Judean casualties. Wall reliefs at Sennacherib's palace in Nineveh portray the defeat of Lachish in order to impress and intimidate visitors with his power. Conduit of the upper pool, the same location where Isaiah confronted Ahaz (see 7.3–9n.). 3: The Judean officers negotiate with the Rabshakeh and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder.

⁴The Rabshakeh said to them, “Say to Hezekiah: Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you base this confidence of yours? ⁵Do you think that mere words are strategy and power for war? On whom do you now rely, that you have rebelled against me? ⁶See, you are relying on Egypt, that broken reed of a staff, which will pierce the hand of anyone who leans on it. Such is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who rely on him. ⁷But if you say to me, ‘We rely on the LORD our God,’ is it not he whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, ‘You shall worship before this altar’? ⁸Come now, make a wager with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses, if you are able on your part to set riders on them. ⁹How then can you repulse a single captain among the least of my master’s servants, when you rely on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? ¹⁰Moreover, is it without the LORD that I have come up against this land to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.”

¹¹Then Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, “Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, for we understand it; do not speak to us in the language of Judah within the hearing of the people who are on the wall.” ¹²But the Rabshakeh said, “Has my master sent me to speak these words to your master and to you, and not to the people sitting on the wall, who are doomed with you to eat their own dung and drink their own urine?”

¹³Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out in a loud voice in the language of Judah, “Hear the words of the great king, the king of Assyria! ¹⁴Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you. ¹⁵Do not let Hezekiah make you rely on the LORD by saying, ‘The LORD will surely deliver us; this city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.’ ¹⁶Do not listen to Hezekiah; for thus says the king of Assyria: ‘Make your peace with me and come out to me; then every one of you will eat from your own vine and your own fig tree and drink water from your own cistern, ¹⁷until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine, a land of bread and vineyards. ¹⁸Do not let Hezekiah mislead you by saying, ‘The LORD will save us. Has any of the gods of the nations saved their land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? ¹⁹Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? ²⁰Who among all the gods of these countries have saved their countries out of my hand, that the LORD should save Jerusalem out of my hand?’”

²¹But they were silent and answered him not a word, for the king’s command was, “Do not answer him.” ²²Then Eliakim son of Hilkiyah, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn, and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

37 When King Hezekiah heard it, he tore his clothes, covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of

on behalf of Hezekiah. Eliakim, Shebna, see 22.15–25n. 4–10: The Rabshakeh’s speech is meant to intimidate the Judean defenders and weaken their morale. At this point, the Egyptians, with whom Hezekiah had allied, had already been turned back by the Assyrians. The Rabshakeh’s boastful speech may have represented Assyrian views but has drawn on 10.8–11,13–14. 6: Cf. the sayings on the Egyptian alliance (18.1–19.15; 30.1–7; 31.1–3). 7: On Hezekiah’s removal of the high places, see 2 Kings 18.3–6. 10: Appeal to the anger of the national deity reflects Isaiah’s sayings about Assyria as the LORD’s agent for the punishment of Israel. 11: Aramaic was the language of diplomacy beginning in the late Neo-Assyrian period. The language of Judah is Hebrew. 12–20: The Rabshakeh speaks in Hebrew in order to address the Judean troops directly and appeal for their surrender. His description of their circumstances reveals the desperate conditions in a besieged city (cf. 2 Kings 6.24–32). Deportation of soldiers and skilled persons from subjugated lands was a standard Assyrian practice. 19: Hamath and Arpad were cities conquered by the Assyrians (see 10.9n.). Samaria, the capital of northern Israel, was conquered by the Assyrians in 722 BCE (2 Kings 17). Sepharvaim, located in Aram between Hamath and Damascus, was a city under Assyrian control to which northern Israelites were deported (2 Kings 17.24,31). 37.1–7: The delegation to the LORD.² And he sent Eliakim, who was in charge of the palace, and Shebna the secretary, and the senior priests, covered with sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz.³ They said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah, This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace; children have come to the birth, and there is no strength to bring them forth.⁴ It may be that the LORD your God heard the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke the words that the LORD your God has heard; therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left.”

⁵ When the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah, ⁶ Isaiah said to them, “Say to your master, ‘Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled me. ⁷ I myself will put a spirit in him, so that he shall hear a rumor, and return to his own land; I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.’”

⁸ The Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria fighting against Libnah; for he had heard that the king had left Lachish.⁹ Now the king^a heard concerning King Tirhakah of Ethiopia,^b “He has set out to fight against you.” When he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, ¹⁰ “Thus shall you speak to King Hezekiah of Judah: Do not let your God on whom you rely deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria. ¹¹ See, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, destroying them utterly. Shall you be delivered? ¹² Have the gods of the nations delivered them, the nations that my predecessors destroyed, Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar? ¹³ Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, the king of Hena, or the king of Ivvah?”

¹⁴ Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers and read it; then Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD and spread it before the LORD. ¹⁵ And Hezekiah prayed to the LORD, saying: ¹⁶ “O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, who are enthroned above the cherubim, you are God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; you have made heaven and earth. ¹⁷ Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; open your eyes, O LORD, and see; hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to mock the living God. ¹⁸ Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their lands, ¹⁹ and have hurled their gods into the fire, though they were no gods, but the work of human hands—wood and stone—and so they were destroyed. ²⁰ So now, O LORD our God, save us from his hand, so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you alone are the LORD.”

²¹ Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying: “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Because you have prayed to me concerning King Sennacherib of Assyria, ²² this is the word that the LORD has spoken concerning him:

She despises you, she scorns you—virgin daughter Zion;
she tosses her head—behind your back,
daughter Jerusalem.

^a Heb he

^b Or Nubia; Heb Cush

Isaiah recalls the consultation of prophets by earlier and later kings (1 Kings 22.5–28; 2 Kings 1.9–17; 3.11–17; 22.11–14; Jer 21.1–4). 1: Tore his clothes . . . sackcloth, signs of mourning. 6: The prophet’s immediate response reassures Hezekiah with the classic formula “do not be afraid” (cf. 7.4). 8–13: The Rabshakeh delivers a second message to Hezekiah from Sennacherib. Having taken Lachish, Sennacherib is besieging Libnah, located near Lachish although the precise site is disputed. 9: King Tirhakah of Ethiopia may have been a general in the army since he came to the throne of Egypt only in 690 BCE. 12: Northern Mesopotamian sites taken by the Assyrians: Gozan, on the Habur River in Mesopotamia (2 Kings 17.6); Haran, on the Balikh River (Gen 11.27–32); Rezeph, near the west end of the Jebel Singar; Eden, between the Euphrates and the Balikh Rivers (Am 1.5; Ezek 27.23); and Telassar, located near Eden in Aram. 13: See 36.19n. Hena and Ivvah are unknown. 14–20: Unlike Ahaz in 7.1–25, Hezekiah turns to the LORD in this time of distress. 16: Enthroned above the cherubim, the ark of the covenant and its cherubim (66.1; 1 Sam 4.4; 2 Sam 6.2), which served as the LORD’s throne in the Holy of Holies in the Jerusalem Temple (1 Kings 8.6–7). 21–35: Isaiah conveys the LORD’s oracle of reassurance to Hezekiah. The LORD repeats claims of greatness made by Sennacherib to illustrate his arrogance (cf. 2.10–21). 22: Virgin daughter

23 “Whom have you mocked and reviled?
Against whom have you raised your voice
and haughtily lifted your eyes?
Against the Holy One of Israel!

24 By your servants you have mocked the Lord,
and you have said, ‘With my many
chariots

I have gone up the heights of the
mountains,
to the far recesses of Lebanon;
I felled its tallest cedars,
its choicest cypresses;
I came to its remotest height,
its densest forest.

25 I dug wells
and drank waters,
I dried up with the sole of my foot
all the streams of Egypt.’

26 “Have you not heard that I determined it long ago?
I planned from days of old
what now I bring to pass, that you should make fortified cities
crash into heaps of ruins,

27 while their inhabitants, shorn of
strength,
are dismayed and confounded;
they have become like plants of the field
and like tender grass,
like grass on the housetops,
blighted^a before it is grown.

28 “I know your rising up^b and your sitting down,
your going out and coming in,
and your raging against me.

29 Because you have raged against me and your arrogance has come to my ears,

I will put my hook in your nose
and my bit in your mouth;
I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.

30 “And this shall be the sign for you: This year eat what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs from that; then in the third year sow, reap, plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. ³¹The surviving remnant of the house of Judah shall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward; ³²for from Jerusalem a remnant shall go out, and from Mount Zion a band of survivors. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

³³“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not come into this city, shoot an arrow there, come before it with a shield, or cast up a siege ramp against it. ³⁴By the way that he came, by the same he shall return; he shall not come into this city, says the LORD. ³⁵For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.”

³⁶Then the angel of the LORD set out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians;
when morning dawned, they were all dead bodies. ³⁷Then King Sennacherib of Assyria left, went home, and lived at Nineveh. ³⁸As
he was worshiping in the house of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech and Sharezer killed him with the sword, and they escaped into the land of Ararat. His son Esar-haddon succeeded him.

^a With 2 Kings 19:26: Heb field

^b Q Ms Gk: MT lacks your rising up

Zion, see 1.8n. 24: Mesopotamian kings frequently felled trees in Lebanon (see 2.13n). 26: Whereas the Assyrian king claims great accomplishments, the LORD had planned long ago to bring the Assyrians as a tool of punishment (cf. 5.8–30; 10.5–34). 29: Hook . . . bit, equipment used to control animals, also used to humiliate prisoners of war. 30–35: The surviving remnant of Judah, like the ruined Judean wheat crop, will continue to grow each season in the aftermath of the Assyrian invasion, i.e., the LORD will defend Jerusalem in keeping with the Davidic/Zion tradition. 36–38: The angel of death that killed the Assyrian troops recalls the tenth plague of the Exodus that saw the deaths of the firstborn of Egypt (Ex 11; 12.29–32). Sennacherib was assassinated by his own sons in 681 BCE as part of a coup. The coup was put down, and another son, Esar-haddon, succeeded his father. 38: The name Nisroch is elsewhere unattested. Ararat is Armenia.

38 In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. The prophet Isaiah son of Amoz came to him, and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: Set your house in order, for you shall die; you shall not recover.”² Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the LORD:
³ “Remember now, O LORD, I implore you, how I have walked before you in faithfulness with a whole heart, and have done what is good in your sight.” And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

⁴ Then the word of the LORD came to Isaiah: ⁵ “Go and say to Hezekiah, Thus says the LORD, the God of your ancestor David: I have heard your prayer, I have seen your tears; I will add fifteen years to your life. ⁶ I will deliver you and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria, and defend this city.

⁷ “This is the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing that he has promised: ⁸ See, I will make the shadow cast by the declining sun on the dial of Ahaz turn back ten steps.” So the sun turned back on the dial the ten steps by which it had declined.^a

⁹ A writing of King Hezekiah of Judah, after he had been sick and had recovered from his sickness:

¹⁰ I said: In the noontide of my days
I must depart;

I am consigned to the gates of Sheol
for the rest of my years.

¹¹ I said, I shall not see the LORD
in the land of the living;

I shall look upon mortals no more among the inhabitants of the world.

¹² My dwelling is plucked up and removed from me
like a shepherd’s tent;

like a weaver I have rolled up my life;
he cuts me off from the loom;
from day to night you bring me to an end,^a ¹³ I cry for help^b until morning;
like a lion he breaks all my bones;
from day to night you bring me to an end.^a

¹⁴ Like a swallow or a crane^a I clamor,
I moan like a dove.

My eyes are weary with looking upward.

O Lord, I am oppressed; be my security!

¹⁵ But what can I say? For he has spoken to me,

and he himself has done it.

All my sleep has fled^c

because of the bitterness of my soul.

¹⁶ O Lord, by these things people live, and in all these is the life of my spirit.^a Oh, restore me to health and make me live!

¹⁷ Surely it was for my welfare that I had great bitterness;
but you have held back^d my life
from the pit of destruction, for you have cast all my sins behind your back.

¹⁸ For Sheol cannot thank you,
death cannot praise you;
those who go down to the Pit cannot hope for your faithfulness.

¹⁹ The living, the living, they thank you,
as I do this day;
fathers make known to children
your faithfulness.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn Compare Syr: Heb I will walk slowly all my years

^d Cn Compare Gk Vg: Heb loved

38.1–22: Hezekiah’s recovery from illness. This narrative complements the earlier narrative in chs 36–37 concerning the deliverance of Jerusalem (cf. 2 Kings 20.1–11). 1–8: In those days coordinates this account with chs 36–37, although the contents of the narrative indicate an event before the siege of Jerusalem (see v. 3). 3: Hezekiah’s petition to the LORD resembles Ps 26. 4–8: The miraculous reversal of ten steps on the sundial of Ahaz both confirms the LORD’s oracle and reminds the reader of Hezekiah’s contrasting portrayal with that of Ahaz in 7.1–9.6. 5: Fifteen years, calculated on the basis of 2 Kings 18.2,13. 9–22: A hymn of thanksgiving attributed to Hezekiah (cf. Pss 30; 32; 92; Jon 2). It does not appear in 2 Kings 20.1–11, and functions here to highlight Hezekiah’s piety. 10–13: Introductory elements of complaint, conveying Hezekiah’s distress. 10: Sheol, the underworld. 14–16: Petition for security and health. 17–20: Thanksgiving for restoration to health.

²⁰The LORD will save me, and we will sing to stringed instruments^a
all the days of our lives,
at the house of the LORD.

²¹Now Isaiah had said, “Let them take a lump of figs, and apply it to the boil, so that he may recover.” ²²Hezekiah also had said, “What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the LORD?”

39 At that time King Merodach-baladan son of Baladan of Babylon sent envoys with letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. ²Hezekiah welcomed them; he showed them his treasure house, the silver, the gold, the spices, the precious oil, his whole armory, all that was found in his storehouses. There was nothing in his house or in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. ³Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah and said to him, “What did these men say? From where did they come to you?” Hezekiah answered, “They have come to me from a far country, from Babylon.” ⁴He said, “What have they seen in your house?” Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing in my storehouses that I did not show them.”

⁵Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: ⁶Days are coming when all that is in your house, and that which your ancestors have stored up until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left, says the LORD. ⁷Some of your own sons who are born to you shall be taken away; they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.” ⁸Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good.” For he thought, “There will be peace and security in my days.”

40 Comfort, O comfort my people, says your God.
²Speak tenderly to Jerusalem, and cry to her
that she has served her term,

^a Heb my stringed instruments

The Pit, a poetic synonym for Sheol. 21–22: Isaiah acts as a healer in prescribing a compress for Hezekiah’s boil; cf. 2 Kings 20.8.

39.1–8: Narrative concerning Isaiah’s condemnation of Hezekiah for allying with Merodach-baladan of Babylon (cf. 2 Kings 20.12–19). Hezekiah entered into an alliance with Prince Merodach-baladan (Marduk-apaliddina) of Babylon to mount a revolt against Assyria in 705–701 BCE. Babylon was also an Assyrian vassal at this time. The strategy was to hit Assyria simultaneously from both east and west, and thereby force Sennacherib to divide his forces, but it failed when Hezekiah was forced to capitulate in 701 BCE. Merodach-baladan was never caught, although Sennacherib was still hunting him as late as 689 BCE. 1–2: The phrase at that time coordinates the narrative with both chs 36–37 and 38. The display of wealth and provisions demonstrates to Merodach-baladan’s envoys that Hezekiah is prepared for revolt. 3–8: Isaiah, based on his adherence to Davidic/Zion theology, objects to the alliance on the grounds that the LORD will protect Jerusalem and the king. Isaiah’s statements that Hezekiah’s wealth and sons will be carried off to Babylon corresponds to Sennacherib’s own account of the siege. In the context of the book of Isaiah, it foreshadows the Babylonian exile presupposed from ch 40 on. Hezekiah’s concluding statement reemphasizes his piety; in 2 Kings 20.19 it is a question that highlights his self-interest.

40.1–54.17: Prophetic instruction that the LORD reveals divine sovereignty at Zion. Chapter 40 begins the portion of the book (chs 40–55) attributed to an anonymous prophet of the latter years of the Babylonian exile when King Cyrus of Persia conquered Babylonia and decreed that Jews could return to their homeland (ca. 545–538 BCE). Although these chapters are clearly written long after the time of the eighth-century prophet Isaiah, they nevertheless share his basic theological perspective rooted in the Zion/Davidic tradition, i.e., that the LORD protects Zion, although the Davidic covenant is now applied to the people rather than to the Davidic king (55.3). These chapters therefore function within the book to describe the realization of the LORD’s plans to restore Zion as articulated throughout chs 1–33.

40.1–11: Renewed prophetic commission to announce the LORD’s restoration of Zion. This segment renews the prophet’s commission to speak (cf. ch 6) and announces that the time of the restoration is at hand. 1–2: The attendants in the heavenly court of the LORD (cf. ch 6; 1 Kings 22.19–23; Ps 82) are instructed to comfort that her penalty is paid, that she has received from the LORD's hand double for all her sins.

³ A voice cries out:

"In the wilderness prepare the way of the LORD,
make straight in the desert a highway
for our God.

⁴ Every valley shall be lifted up,
and every mountain and hill be made low;
the uneven ground shall become level,
and the rough places a plain.

⁵ Then the glory of the LORD shall be revealed,
and all people shall see it together,
for the mouth of the LORD has spoken."

⁶ A voice says, "Cry out!"

And I said, "What shall I cry?"

All people are grass, their constancy is like the flower of the field.

⁷ The grass withers, the flower fades, when the breath of the LORD blows
upon it;
surely the people are grass.

⁸ The grass withers, the flower fades;
but the word of our God will stand forever.

⁹ Get you up to a high mountain, O Zion, herald of good tidings;^a lift up your voice with strength, O Jerusalem, herald of good tidings,^b lift it up, do not fear;
say to the cities of Judah,

"Here is your God!"

¹⁰ See, the Lord God comes with might,
and his arm rules for him;
his reward is with him,
and his recompense before him.

¹¹ He will feed his flock like a shepherd;
he will gather the lambs in his arms,
and carry them in his bosom,
and gently lead the mother sheep.

¹² Who has measured the waters in the hollow of his hand
and marked off the heavens with a span,
enclosed the dust of the earth in a measure,
and weighed the mountains in scales
and the hills in a balance?

¹³ Who has directed the spirit of the LORD, or as his counselor has instructed him?

¹⁴ Whom did he consult for his enlightenment,
and who taught him the path of justice?
Who taught him knowledge,
and showed him the way of
understanding?

¹⁵ Even the nations are like a drop from a bucket,
and are accounted as dust on the scales;
see, he takes up the isles like fine dust.

¹⁶ Lebanon would not provide fuel enough, nor are its animals enough for a burnt offering.

^a Or O herald of good tidings to Zion

^b Or O herald of good tidings to Jerusalem

Jerusalem. Double restitution of stolen property is the penalty in the case of theft (Ex 22.7). 3–5: The voices are those of the attendants in the heavenly court. The passage evokes the tradition of the journey through the wilderness in which the people traveled along the King's Highway in Transjordan on their way to the land of Israel (Num 20.17; 21.22; Deut 2.8). The glory of the LORD refers to the divine presence, often symbolized by a cloud of smoke and flickering flame, such as was seen at Sinai, upon the wilderness Tabernacle, and before the Holy of Holies of the Temple (see Ex 19.16; 40.34–38; 1 Kings 8.10–13). 6–8: The prophet's commission to proclaim restoration appears in v. 6. The message emphasizes the permanence of God's word. Just as Isaiah said that the LORD would restore Jerusalem (e.g., 2.1–4; 31.4–5; 33.20), now it comes to pass (cf. 55.10–11). 9–11: Zion or Jerusalem functions as the herald of the LORD to announce the news of God's return and Zion's restoration. Using the typical image of Mesopotamian and Judean kings, the LORD appears as a shepherd who cares for the flock (cf. 1 Sam 16.11,19; 17.1,20,34–37).

40.12–31: The LORD is the master of creation. This is the first of a series of sections (40.12–31; 41.1–42.13; 42.14–44.23) that are designed to demonstrate that the LORD is indeed acting to restore Zion. The first focuses on the LORD's role as the creator. 12–14: The argumentative style of the passage employs rhetorical questions to make its basic points. 15–17: Lebanon's fuel (see 2.13n) refers to its tall trees that, like the animals of its forests,

¹⁷ All the nations are as nothing before him;
they are accounted by him as less than nothing and emptiness.

¹⁸ To whom then will you liken God, or what likeness compare with him?

¹⁹ An idol? —A workman casts it, and a goldsmith overlays it with gold,
and casts for it silver chains.

²⁰ As a gift one chooses mulberry wood^a —wood that will not rot—
then seeks out a skilled artisan to set up an image that will not topple.

²¹ Have you not known? Have you not heard?
Has it not been told you from the beginning?

Have you not understood from the foundations of the earth?

²² It is he who sits above the circle of the
earth,
and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers;

who stretches out the heavens like a curtain,
and spreads them like a tent to live in;

²³ who brings princes to naught, and makes the rulers of the earth as nothing.

²⁴ Scarcely are they planted, scarcely sown, scarcely has their stem taken root in the
earth,
when he blows upon them, and they wither,
and the tempest carries them off like
stubble.

²⁵ To whom then will you compare me, or who is my equal? says the Holy One.

²⁶ Lift up your eyes on high and see:

Who created these?

He who brings out their host and numbers
them,

calling them all by name;

because he is great in strength,

mighty in power,

not one is missing.

²⁷ Why do you say, O Jacob,

and speak, O Israel,

“My way is hidden from the LORD, and my right is disregarded by my God”?

²⁸ Have you not known? Have you not heard?

The LORD is the everlasting God,

the Creator of the ends of the earth.

He does not faint or grow weary;

his understanding is unsearchable.

²⁹ He gives power to the faint, and strengthens the powerless.

³⁰ Even youths will faint and be weary,

and the young will fall exhausted;

³¹ but those who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength,

they shall mount up with wings like eagles,

they shall run and not be weary,

they shall walk and not faint.

41 Listen to me in silence,
O coastlands;

let the peoples renew their strength;

let them approach, then let them speak;

let us together draw near for

judgment.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

are insufficient to provide a suitable sacrifice before the LORD. 18–20: The beginning of this prophet’s polemic against idolatry, which also targets aspects of the religious and intellectual tradition of the Babylonians (also 41.6–7,29; 42.17; 43.10; 44.9–20; 45.16,20; 46.1–7; Jer 10.1–10). 21–24: A rhetorical recapitulation of vv. 12–20. The language in which the cosmos is described should be compared with Gen 1.1–31. 25–26: The passage returns to the key question of v. 18. The Heb verb “bara” (“create”) is for the most part restricted to Gen 1 and these chapters (40.28; 41.26; 42.5; 43.1,7,15; 45.7,8,12,18; 48.7; 54.16). 27–31: An attempt to answer the crisis of faith that political disaster provoked by presenting the LORD as a cosmic rather than a purely national deity. Waiting for God, implying trust, is frequently advocated in the book (8.17; 30.18; 49.23; 64.4).

41.1–42.13: The LORD is the master of human events. The second contention in the series is the power of the LORD to play a decisive role in human events. 41.1–4: The passage is formulated as a courtroom scene in which the LORD cross-examines witnesses. The LORD demands the attention of the coastlands (the islands of the

² Who has roused a victor from the east, summoned him to his service?
 He delivers up nations to him,
 and tramples kings under foot;
 he makes them like dust with his sword,
 like driven stubble with his bow.
³ He pursues them and passes on safely, scarcely touching the path with his feet.
⁴ Who has performed and done this, calling the generations from the beginning?
 I, the LORD, am first,
 and will be with the last.
⁵ The coastlands have seen and are afraid,
 the ends of the earth tremble;
 they have drawn near and come.
⁶ Each one helps the other, saying to one another, "Take courage!" ⁷ The artisan encourages the goldsmith, and the one who smooths with the hammer encourages the one who strikes the anvil,
 saying of the soldering, "It is good";
 and they fasten it with nails so that it cannot be moved.
⁸ But you, Israel, my servant,
 Jacob, whom I have chosen,
 the offspring of Abraham, my friend;
⁹ you whom I took from the ends of the
 earth,
 and called from its farthest corners,
 saying to you, "You are my servant,
 I have chosen you and not cast you off";
¹⁰ do not fear, for I am with you, do not be afraid, for I am your God;
 I will strengthen you, I will help you,

I will uphold you with my victorious right hand.

¹¹ Yes, all who are incensed against you shall be ashamed and disgraced;
 those who strive against you shall be as nothing and shall perish.
¹² You shall seek those who contend with
 you,
 but you shall not find them;
 those who war against you shall be as nothing at all.
¹³ For I, the LORD your God, hold your right hand;
 it is I who say to you, "Do not fear,
 I will help you."
¹⁴ Do not fear, you worm Jacob, you insect^a Israel!
 I will help you, says the LORD;
 your Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel.
¹⁵ Now, I will make of you a threshing sledge,
 sharp, new, and having teeth;
 you shall thresh the mountains and crush
 them,
 and you shall make the hills like chaff.
¹⁶ You shall winnow them and the wind shall carry them away,
 and the tempest shall scatter them.
 Then you shall rejoice in the LORD;
 in the Holy One of Israel you shall
 glory.

^a Syr: Heb men of

Aegean) and the nations. 2: The first point is that the LORD has summoned a victor from the east, King Cyrus II of Persia (559–530 BCE), who would conquer the Babylonian Empire in 539 BCE. He is called to emerge as the LORD's anointed king and Temple builder in 44.28; 45.1. 4: By claiming to be first and last (see 44.6; 48.12), the LORD asserts control over all events in history from the beginning of creation to its end. 5–20: The LORD maintains that just as the coastlands (see 24.13n.) and nations have granted recognition, Jacob/Israel must do likewise. 5–7: The nations fear the approach of the LORD, and build idols in a futile attempt to protect themselves (cf. 44.9–20). 8–20: Israel must recognize the LORD's power to act in the human world just as the nations have done. 8: Israel is the LORD's servant much like Moses (Ex 14.31) and David (2 Sam 7.5). The mention of Abraham recalls the origins of Israel's covenant with the LORD (Gen 15). In exilic texts the people of Israel are often referred to as Jacob, whose story of exile and return (Gen 28–35) is similar to that of the exiles in Babylon. Based on the perspective of the Zion/Davidic covenant tradition, the LORD has chosen Israel and will uphold the covenant to protect the nation. 10: The reassurance formula do not fear supports the assertions of the LORD. 11–16: The LORD reiterates the reassurance theme in an effort to convince the audience of the LORD's absolute fidelity to the divine promise. 14: The LORD as Redeemer (43.14; 44.6; 47.4; see Ex 6.6; 15.13) is the first of many echoes of the Exodus tradition in these chapters. 15–16: A threshing sledge was employed to crush grain stalks so that the chaff could be removed from ¹⁷ When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none,

and their tongue is parched with thirst,
I the LORD will answer them,
I the God of Israel will not forsake them.

¹⁸ I will open rivers on the bare heights,^a and fountains in the midst of the valleys;

I will make the wilderness a pool of water,
and the dry land springs of water.

¹⁹ I will put in the wilderness the cedar,
the acacia, the myrtle, and the olive;

I will set in the desert the cypress,
the plane and the pine together,

²⁰ so that all may see and know,
all may consider and understand, that the hand of the LORD has done this,
the Holy One of Israel has created it.

²¹ Set forth your case, says the LORD; bring your proofs, says the King of Jacob.

²² Let them bring them, and tell us what is to happen.

Tell us the former things, what they are,
so that we may consider them,
and that we may know their outcome;
or declare to us the things to come.

²³ Tell us what is to come hereafter, that we may know that you are gods;
do good, or do harm,
that we may be afraid and terrified.

²⁴ You, indeed, are nothing and your work is nothing at all;
whoever chooses you is an abomination.

²⁵ I stirred up one from the north, and he has come,
from the rising of the sun he was summoned by name.^b

He shall trample^c on rulers as on mortar,

as the potter treads clay.

²⁶ Who declared it from the beginning, so that we might know,
and beforehand, so that we might say,
“He is right”?

There was no one who declared it, none who proclaimed,
none who heard your words.

²⁷ I first have declared it to Zion,^d and I give to Jerusalem a herald of good tidings.

²⁸ But when I look there is no one;
among these there is no counselor who, when I ask, gives an answer.

²⁹ No, they are all a delusion;
their works are nothing;
their images are empty wind.

42 Here is my servant, whom I uphold,
my chosen, in whom my soul delights;
I have put my spirit upon him;
he will bring forth justice to the nations.

² He will not cry or lift up his voice, or make it heard in the street;

³ a bruised reed he will not break, and a dimly burning wick he will not quench;
he will faithfully bring forth justice.

⁴ He will not grow faint or be crushed until he has established justice in the
earth;
and the coastlands wait for his teaching.

⁵ Thus says God, the LORD, who created the heavens and stretched them out,

^a Or trails

^b Cn Compare QMs Gk: MT and he shall call on my name

^c Cn: Heb come

^d Cn: Heb First to Zion—Behold, behold them

the grain. 17–20: As creator, the LORD is able to provide for the needs of the poor as in the time of the wilderness wandering (Ex 17.1–7; Num 20.2–13; Pss 78.15–16; 105.41). 21–29: The passage returns to the courtroom imagery (cf. vv. 1–5) in which the LORD demands counterarguments from the gods of the nations. The LORD presumes that they cannot explain the past or the future and therefore do not have the capacity to act like the LORD, much less to challenge the LORD’s power to act in the human world. 25: One from the north and from the east, the LORD again claims to have brought a deliverer, i.e., Cyrus (41.2; 44.28; 45.1), which demonstrates again the LORD’s capacity to act in human affairs. Having claimed to have announced these events long ago, the LORD observes that there is no one to answer. 42.1–4: The first of the four so-called “servant songs” of Isaiah (see 49.1–6; 50.4–11; 52.13–53.12). The servant represents Israel. 5–9: As a covenant to the peoples and a light to the nations, Israel’s who spread out the earth and what comes from it,

who gives breath to the people upon it and spirit to those who walk in it:

⁶I am the LORD, I have called you in
righteousness,
I have taken you by the hand and kept
you;

I have given you as a covenant to the people,^a

a light to the nations, ⁷to open the eyes that are blind, to bring out the prisoners from the dungeon,
from the prison those who sit in
darkness.

⁸I am the LORD, that is my name;
my glory I give to no other,
nor my praise to idols.

⁹See, the former things have come to pass, and new things I now declare;
before they spring forth,
I tell you of them.

¹⁰Sing to the LORD a new song,
his praise from the end of the earth!
Let the sea roar^b and all that fills it,
the coastlands and their inhabitants.

¹¹Let the desert and its towns lift up their
voice,
the villages that Kedar inhabits;
let the inhabitants of Sela sing for joy, let them shout from the tops of the
mountains.

¹²Let them give glory to the LORD, and declare his praise in the coastlands.

¹³The LORD goes forth like a soldier, like a warrior he stirs up his fury;
he cries out, he shouts aloud, he shows himself mighty against his foes.

¹⁴For a long time I have held my peace,
I have kept still and restrained myself;
now I will cry out like a woman in labor,
I will gasp and pant.

¹⁵I will lay waste mountains and hills,
and dry up all their herbage;
I will turn the rivers into islands,
and dry up the pools.

¹⁶I will lead the blind
by a road they do not know, by paths they have not known
I will guide them.

I will turn the darkness before them into
light,
the rough places into level ground.
These are the things I will do,
and I will not forsake them.

¹⁷They shall be turned back and utterly put to shame—
those who trust in carved images, who say to cast images,
“You are our gods.”

¹⁸Listen, you that are deaf;
and you that are blind, look up and see!

¹⁹Who is blind but my servant,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn Compare Ps 96.11; 98.7: Heb Those who go down to the sea

experience of punishment and restoration becomes the means by which all the nations will recognize the LORD's sovereignty in the world. By opening the eyes of the blind and the ears of the deaf, the servant brings to an end the period of blindness and deafness called for in Isaiah's commission (6.9–10). That the former things have come to pass, i.e., those things foretold earlier in the book of Isaiah, serves as an argument that the things now declared will also happen. 10–13: A hymn of praise for the LORD closes the section devoted to demonstrating the LORD's mastery of human events. Now creation itself rejoices like worshipers in the Temple (cf. Pss 96; 98). Kedar is located in the Arabian desert (see 21.16), and Sela is in Edom.

42.14–44.23: The LORD is the redeemer of Israel. The third contention in the series is that the LORD redeems Israel. Insofar as Israel had suffered punishment and exile at the hands of the Assyrians and the Babylonians, acting as agents of the LORD, such a contention is designed to answer claims that the LORD is an enemy to Israel or that the LORD is powerless to redeem Israel. 42.14–17: The LORD's silence and inaction during the period of Israel's punishment has come to an end. The image of a woman in childbirth (cf. 13.8; 26.1–18) indicates that the time for action has come. The passage evokes the wilderness tradition (see 40.3–5n.) to portray the LORD's guidance of Israel. The blind are now given light (cf. 6.9–10; 8.23). 18–25: The passage addresses Israel as the blind and the deaf, a recurrent image (6.9–10; 29.9,18; 32.3; 35.5; 42.16; 43.8) denoting spiritual imperception and or deaf like my messenger whom I send?

Who is blind like my dedicated one,
or blind like the servant of the LORD?
²⁰ He sees many things, but does^a not observe them;
his ears are open, but he does not hear.
²¹ The LORD was pleased, for the sake of his
righteousness,
to magnify his teaching and make it
glorious.
²² But this is a people robbed and
plundered,
all of them are trapped in holes
and hidden in prisons;
they have become a prey with no one to rescue,
a spoil with no one to say, “Restore!” ²³ Who among you will give heed to this,
who will attend and listen for the time to come?
²⁴ Who gave up Jacob to the spoiler, and Israel to the robbers?
Was it not the LORD, against whom we have sinned,
in whose ways they would not walk,
and whose law they would not obey?
²⁵ So he poured upon him the heat of his anger
and the fury of war;
it set him on fire all around, but he did not understand;
it burned him, but he did not take it to heart.

43 But now thus says the LORD,
he who created you, O Jacob,
he who formed you, O Israel:
Do not fear, for I have redeemed you;

I have called you by name, you are mine.
² When you pass through the waters, I will be with you;
and through the rivers, they shall not
overwhelm you;
when you walk through fire you shall not be burned,
and the flame shall not consume you.
³ For I am the LORD your God,
the Holy One of Israel, your Savior.
I give Egypt as your ransom,
Ethiopia^b and Seba in exchange for you.
⁴ Because you are precious in my sight,
and honored, and I love you,
I give people in return for you,
nations in exchange for your life.
⁵ Do not fear, for I am with you;
I will bring your offspring from the east,
and from the west I will gather you;
⁶ I will say to the north, “Give them up,”
and to the south, “Do not withhold;
bring my sons from far away and my daughters from the end of the
earth—
⁷ everyone who is called by my name, whom I created for my glory, whom I formed and made.”
⁸ Bring forth the people who are blind, yet have eyes,
who are deaf, yet have ears!
⁹ Let all the nations gather together,
and let the peoples assemble.
Who among them declared this,
and foretold to us the former things?

^a Heb You see many things but do

^b Or Nubia; Heb Cush

obtuseness. In fact, however, the LORD has controlled the fate of the nation all along. Now the time has come for Israel to recognize the LORD as their redeemer. Although the LORD had revealed divine “torah” (“teaching,” v. 21) to the people, they were punished for having failed to observe the LORD’s instruction, improperly translated in v. 24 as “law” (cf. 2.2–4; 5.24). 43.1–7: The reassurance formula do not fear (cf. 7.4; 37.6; 41.10,14) emphasizes that Israel’s punishment is now over and redemption is at hand. 2: The passage evokes the Exodus and wilderness tradition as Israel passes through waters (see, e.g., Ex 14–15) as it returns from exile to its homeland. Through fire, cf. Ps 66.12. 3: Egypt, Ethiopia, and Seba (or Sheba, a kingdom in southwestern Arabia), all of which Cyrus was expected to conquer, serve as a ransom for the redemption of Israel from its exile. The return of the exiles from throughout the world is a frequent theme in Isaiah (11.15–16; 27.12–13; 35.1–10; 49.22; 60.9).

43.8–44.23: The setting returns to the courtroom as the LORD substantiates the claims to redeem Israel (see 41.1–5, 21–29). 43.8–13: The LORD calls both blind and deaf Israel (6.9–10; 42.19–20; cf. 42.7) and the nations to witness to the LORD’s claims. 9: The former things, the statements of the LORD’s plans found in the Isaian

Let them bring their witnesses to justify them, and let them hear and say, "It is true."

¹⁰You are my witnesses, says the LORD, and my servant whom I have chosen, so that you may know and believe me and understand that I am he.

Before me no god was formed, nor shall there be any after me.

¹¹I, I am the LORD, and besides me there is no savior.

¹²I declared and saved and proclaimed, when there was no strange god among you;

and you are my witnesses, says the LORD.

¹³I am God, and also henceforth I am He; there is no one who can deliver from my hand;

I work and who can hinder it?

¹⁴Thus says the LORD, your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: For your sake I will send to Babylon and break down all the bars, and the shouting of the Chaldeans will be turned to lamentation.^a ¹⁵I am the LORD, your Holy One, the Creator of Israel, your King.

¹⁶Thus says the LORD, who makes a way in the sea, a path in the mighty waters, ¹⁷who brings out chariot and horse, army and warrior;

they lie down, they cannot rise, they are extinguished, quenched like a wick:

¹⁸Do not remember the former things, or consider the things of old.

¹⁹I am about to do a new thing;

now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?

I will make a way in the wilderness and rivers in the desert.

²⁰The wild animals will honor me, the jackals and the ostriches; for I give water in the wilderness, rivers in the desert, to give drink to my chosen people, ²¹the people whom I formed for myself so that they might declare my praise.

²²Yet you did not call upon me, O Jacob; but you have been weary of me, O Israel!

²³You have not brought me your sheep for burnt offerings, or honored me with your sacrifices.

I have not burdened you with offerings, or wearied you with frankincense.

²⁴You have not bought me sweet cane with money, or satisfied me with the fat of your sacrifices.

But you have burdened me with your sins; you have wearied me with your iniquities.

²⁵I, I am He who blots out your transgressions for my own sake, and I will not remember your sins.

²⁶Accuse me, let us go to trial; set forth your case, so that you may be proved right.

²⁷Your first ancestor sinned, and your interpreters transgressed against me.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain tradition. Only the LORD can carry out Israel's redemption; no idols can possibly manifest such planning and power. 14–15: Redeemer and Holy One are frequent designations for the LORD in this section of Isaiah (41.14; 47.4; 48.17; 49.7; 54.5). Chaldea, a term for the Neo-Babylonian Empire of Nebuchadnezzar. 16–21: The LORD is identified as the one who led Israel through the sea at the time of the Exodus (Ex 14–15); the former things of v. 18 provide the foundation for understanding the new thing, i.e., the exodus from Babylon. Once again, the LORD provides a highway in the wilderness for the people to return home (11.15–16; 27.12–13; 35.1–10; 40.3–5). Water in the wilderness recalls the wilderness tradition (Ex 15.22–27; 17.17; Num 20.2–13). 22–28: The LORD justifies past punishment of Israel, charging that the people did not honor the LORD appropriately with sacrifices, but sinned instead. Nevertheless, the LORD will not remember those sins now that the punishment is over. 27: First ancestor, Jacob (cf. Hos 12.2–4). Interpreters transgressed, translation and meaning are uncertain; perhaps it is a denunciation of optimistic prophets during the time of the monarchy who led the people astray.

²⁸Therefore I profaned the princes of the sanctuary,
I delivered Jacob to utter destruction,
and Israel to reviling.

44 But now hear, O Jacob my servant,
Israel whom I have chosen!

²Thus says the LORD who made you,
who formed you in the womb and will help you:

Do not fear, O Jacob my servant,
Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

³For I will pour water on the thirsty land,
and streams on the dry ground;
I will pour my spirit upon your descendants,
and my blessing on your offspring.

⁴They shall spring up like a green tamarisk, like willows by flowing streams.

⁵This one will say, "I am the LORD's," another will be called by the name of Jacob, yet another will write on the hand, "The LORD's,"
and adopt the name of Israel.

⁶Thus says the LORD, the King of Israel, and his Redeemer, the LORD of hosts:
I am the first and I am the last;
besides me there is no god.

⁷Who is like me? Let them proclaim it, let them declare and set it forth
before me.

Who has announced from of old the things to come?^a

Let them tell us^b what is yet to be.

⁸Do not fear, or be afraid;
have I not told you from of old and declared it?

You are my witnesses!

Is there any god besides me?

There is no other rock; I know not one.

⁹All who make idols are nothing, and the things they delight in do not profit; their witnesses neither see nor know. And so they will be put to shame. ¹⁰Who would fashion a god or cast an image that can do no good?

¹¹Look, all its devotees shall be put to shame; the artisans too are merely human. Let them all assemble, let them stand up; they shall be terrified, they shall all be put to shame.

¹²The ironsmith fashions it^c and works it over the coals, shaping it with hammers, and forging it with his strong arm; he becomes hungry and his strength fails, he drinks no water and is faint. ¹³The carpenter stretches a line, marks it out with a stylus, fashions it with planes, and marks it with a compass; he makes it in human form, with human beauty, to be set up in a shrine. ¹⁴He cuts down cedars or chooses a holm tree or an oak and lets it grow strong among the trees of the forest. He plants a cedar and the rain nourishes it. ¹⁵Then it can be used as fuel. Part of it he takes and warms himself; he kindles a fire and bakes bread. Then he makes a god and worships it, makes it a carved image and bows down before it. ¹⁶Half of it he burns in the fire; over this half he roasts meat, eats it and is satisfied. He also warms himself and says, "Ah, I am warm, I can feel the fire!" ¹⁷The rest of it he makes into a god, his idol, bows down to it and worships it; he prays to it and says, "Save me, for you are my god!"

¹⁸They do not know, nor do they comprehend; for their eyes are shut, so that they cannot see, and their minds as well, so that they cannot understand. ¹⁹No one considers, nor is there knowledge or discernment to say, "Half of it I burned in the fire; I also baked bread on its coals, I roasted meat and

^a Cn: Heb from my placing an eternal people and things to come

^b Tg: Heb them

^c Cn: Heb an ax

44.1–5: An oracle of salvation for Israel. 2: Jeshurun, "one who is upright," is a poetic name for Israel (Deut 32.15; 33.5,26). 3: The passage employs the imagery of libation offerings poured out at the Temple at the festival of Sukkot, "Tabernacles," to celebrate the onset of the rainy season and fertility in the land. 6–8: A recapitulation of earlier arguments for the incomparability of the LORD who has declared the divine plans for Israel from the beginning (see 41.21–29; 43.10–13). 9–20: A lengthy and satirical prose polemic against idolatry, describing how artisans meticulously fashion idols out of metal and wood and then declare the idol to be a god (cf. Wis 13–15; Let Jer). The blindness and deafness motif is here applied to the idols who can neither see nor hear (cf. 6.9–10; have eaten. Now shall I make the rest of it an abomination? Shall I fall down before a block of wood?" ²⁰ He feeds on ashes; a deluded mind has led him astray, and he cannot save himself or say, "Is not this thing in my right hand a fraud?"

²¹ Remember these things, O Jacob, and Israel, for you are my servant; I formed you, you are my servant; O Israel, you will not be forgotten by me.

²² I have swept away your transgressions like a cloud, and your sins like mist; return to me, for I have redeemed you.

²³ Sing, O heavens, for the LORD has done it; shout, O depths of the earth; break forth into singing, O mountains, O forest, and every tree in it! For the LORD has redeemed Jacob, and will be glorified in Israel.

²⁴ Thus says the LORD, your Redeemer, who formed you in the womb: I am the LORD, who made all things, who alone stretched out the heavens, who by myself spread out the earth;

²⁵ who frustrates the omens of liars, and makes fools of diviners;

who turns back the wise, and makes their knowledge foolish; ²⁶ who confirms the word of his servant, and fulfills the prediction of his messengers;

who says of Jerusalem, "It shall be inhabited," and of the cities of Judah, "They shall be rebuilt, and I will raise up their ruins";

²⁷ who says to the deep, "Be dry—I will dry up your rivers";

²⁸ who says of Cyrus, "He is my shepherd, and he shall carry out all my purpose"; and who says of Jerusalem, "It shall be rebuilt," and of the temple, "Your foundation shall be laid."

45 Thus says the LORD to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have grasped to subdue nations before him and strip kings of their robes, to open doors before him—and the gates shall not be closed: ² I will go before you and level the mountains,^a I will break in pieces the doors of bronze and cut through the bars of iron,

^a QMs Gk: MT the swellings

42.18–20). 21–22: Conclusion of the oracle in vv. 6–8. 23: Hymnic conclusion in which all creation celebrates the redemption of Israel.

44.24–48.22: The LORD will use Cyrus for the restoration of Zion. This lengthy unit constitutes the fourth contention in the series. The claim that the LORD uses Cyrus to restore Zion is particularly controversial because the Persian king is a foreign monarch who displaces the role traditionally assigned to the Davidic king as anointed one and Temple builder. Nevertheless, Cyrus's conquest of Babylon in 539 BCE opened the way for his declaration that exiled Jews could return to their homeland to rebuild the Temple (2 Chr 36.22–23; Ezra 1.1–4). Since Cyrus does not restore Davidic kingship, the prophet determines that the LORD has declared Cyrus to be the righteous king of Isaiah tradition (9.1–7; 11.1–16; 32.1–8).

44.24–45.8: The LORD's announcement concerning Cyrus. The LORD announces the plan to use Cyrus as the redeemer of Zion. 44.24–28: Reiterations of the divine qualities and roles previously articulated. 25: Omens . . . diviners, Babylonian religion was renowned for its use of techniques for determining the future. 28: Shepherd, a common metaphor for ruler (56.11; Jer 23.4). Cyrus II (558–530 BCE), founder of the Persian Empire, is identified with the LORD's long established plans, including the rebuilding of Jerusalem and the Temple, a role formerly accomplished by David and Solomon. 45.1–7: Cyrus is commissioned to act as the LORD's agent for restoration, and is identified as the LORD's messiah or anointed one to signify that the Persian king now occupies the role once held by the Davidic kings. The imagery presupposes elements of the Babylonian Akitu or New Year Festival in which the Babylonian king's right to rule was renewed for the coming year. The king grasped the hand of Marduk, the god of Babylon, and was granted the tablets of destiny as part of his authorization to rule. Cyrus

³ I will give you the treasures of darkness and riches hidden in secret places, so that you may know that it is I, the LORD, the God of Israel, who call you by your
name.

⁴ For the sake of my servant Jacob,
and Israel my chosen,
I call you by your name,
I surname you, though you do not know me.

⁵ I am the LORD, and there is no other;
besides me there is no god.
I arm you, though you do not know me,

⁶ so that they may know, from the rising of
the sun
and from the west, that there is no one
besides me;

I am the LORD, and there is no other.

⁷ I form light and create darkness,
I make weal and create woe;
I the LORD do all these things.

⁸ Shower, O heavens, from above, and let the skies rain down righteousness;
let the earth open, that salvation may spring up,^a
and let it cause righteousness to sprout up also;
I the LORD have created it.

⁹ Woe to you who strive with your Maker, earthen vessels with the potter!^b Does the clay say to the one who fashions it, “What are you making?”
or “Your work has no handles?”

¹⁰ Woe to anyone who says to a father,
“What are you begetting?”
or to a woman, “With what are you in labor?”

¹¹ Thus says the LORD,
the Holy One of Israel, and its Maker:
Will you question me^c about my children, or command me concerning the work
of my hands?

¹² I made the earth,
and created humankind upon it;
it was my hands that stretched out the heavens,
and I commanded all their host.

¹³ I have aroused Cyrus^d in righteousness, and I will make all his paths straight;
he shall build my city
and set my exiles free,
not for price or reward,
says the LORD of hosts.

¹⁴ Thus says the LORD:
The wealth of Egypt and the merchandise of Ethiopia,^e
and the Sabeans, tall of stature, shall come over to you and be yours,
they shall follow you;
they shall come over in chains and bow down to you.
They will make supplication to you, saying, “God is with you alone, and there is no
other;
there is no god besides him.”

¹⁵ Truly, you are a God who hides himself, O God of Israel, the Savior.

¹⁶ All of them are put to shame and confounded,
the makers of idols go in confusion
together.

¹⁷ But Israel is saved by the LORD with everlasting salvation;
you shall not be put to shame or confounded
to all eternity.

¹⁸ For thus says the LORD,
who created the heavens
(he is God!),

^a QMs: MT that they may bring forth salvation

^b Cn: Heb with the potsherd, or with the potters

^c Cn: Heb Ask me of things to come

^d Heb him

^e Or Nubia; Heb Cush

was authorized to serve as king of Babylon when he participated in the Akitu festival in 539 BCE. The LORD here takes on the role of Marduk, is declared to be the only God, and authorizes Cyrus to rule. 8: The heavens celebrate Cyrus's role with showers and a hymn of praise.

45.9–48.19: Trial scene concerning the LORD's use of Cyrus as redeemer. The contention that the LORD had chosen Cyrus as king was no doubt controversial. Once again, the LORD appears in court to support such claims. 45.9–19: An introductory court speech disputes any challenge to the LORD's decision. For the metaphor of the potter and the clay see 29.16; Jer 18.1–6. 14: Egypt, Ethiopia, and Seba. In contrast to 43.3 where these nations who formed the earth and made it (he established it;

 he did not create it a chaos,
 he formed it to be inhabited!);
 I am the LORD, and there is no other.

¹⁹I did not speak in secret,
 in a land of darkness;
 I did not say to the offspring of Jacob, “Seek me in chaos.”
 I the LORD speak the truth,
 I declare what is right.

²⁰Assemble yourselves and come
 together,
 draw near, you survivors of the nations!
 They have no knowledge—those who carry about their wooden
 idols,
 and keep on praying to a god
 that cannot save.

²¹Declare and present your case;
 let them take counsel together!
 Who told this long ago?
 Who declared it of old?
 Was it not I, the LORD?

There is no other god besides me,
 a righteous God and a Savior;
 there is no one besides me.

²²Turn to me and be saved,
 all the ends of the earth!
 For I am God, and there is no other.

²³By myself I have sworn,
 from my mouth has gone forth in
 righteousness
 a word that shall not return: “To me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear.”

²⁴Only in the LORD, it shall be said of me, are righteousness and strength;

all who were incensed against him shall come to him and be ashamed.
²⁵In the LORD all the offspring of Israel shall triumph and glory.

46 Bel bows down, Nebo stoops, their idols are on beasts and cattle;
 these things you carry are loaded
 as burdens on weary animals.

²They stoop, they bow down together;
 they cannot save the burden,
 but themselves go into captivity.

³Listen to me, O house of Jacob, all the remnant of the house of Israel,
 who have been borne by me from your birth,

carried from the womb;
⁴even to your old age I am he,
 even when you turn gray I will carry
 you.

I have made, and I will bear;
 I will carry and will save.

⁵To whom will you liken me and make me equal,
 and compare me, as though we were alike?

⁶Those who lavish gold from the purse, and weigh out silver in the scales—they hire a goldsmith, who makes it into a god;

then they fall down and worship!
⁷They lift it to their shoulders, they carry it,
 they set it in its place, and it stands
 there;

it cannot move from its place.
 If one cries out to it, it does not answer or save anyone from trouble.

are given to Cyrus as a ransom, here their wealth will come to Israel when they are conquered by Cyrus. 20–25: An offer of salvation and a demand for the LORD to be recognized as sovereign of all creation by the nations and by Israel.

46.1–47.15: Presentation of evidence concerning the LORD’s power. Two major sections (46.1–13 and 47.1–15) demonstrate the powerlessness of Babylon’s gods before the LORD. 46.1–4: This section draws on the imagery of the Babylonian Akitu or New Year festival, when the gods were paraded through the streets of Babylon in procession to the temple of Marduk, city god of Babylon, at the center of the city. Bel and Nebo appear as burdens to those who carry them through the streets rather than as powerful gods who can act on behalf of their people. Bel, meaning “lord,” is a title of Marduk, and Nebo (Akkadian Nabu) was the city god of Borsippa and son of Marduk. In contrast to their weakness, the LORD asserts the capacity to carry Israel as well as to redeem. 5–7: A satirical

⁸ Remember this and consider,^a recall it to mind, you transgressors, ⁹ remember the former things of old;
 for I am God, and there is no other;
 I am God, and there is no one like me,
¹⁰ declaring the end from the beginning and from ancient times things not yet
 done,
 saying, “My purpose shall stand,
 and I will fulfill my intention,” ¹¹ calling a bird of prey from the east, the man for my purpose from a far country.

I have spoken, and I will bring it to pass;
 I have planned, and I will do it.

¹² Listen to me, you stubborn of heart,
 you who are far from deliverance:
¹³ I bring near my deliverance, it is not far off,
 and my salvation will not tarry;
 I will put salvation in Zion,
 for Israel my glory.

47 Come down and sit in the dust,
 virgin daughter Babylon!
 Sit on the ground without a throne,
 daughter Chaldea!
 For you shall no more be called tender and delicate.
² Take the millstones and grind meal,
 remove your veil,
 strip off your robe, uncover your legs,
 pass through the rivers.
³ Your nakedness shall be uncovered,
 and your shame shall be seen.
 I will take vengeance,
 and I will spare no one.
⁴ Our Redeemer—the LORD of hosts is his
 name—
 is the Holy One of Israel.

⁵ Sit in silence, and go into darkness,
 daughter Chaldea!

For you shall no more be called
 the mistress of kingdoms.

⁶ I was angry with my people,
 I profaned my heritage;
 I gave them into your hand,
 you showed them no mercy;
 on the aged you made your yoke exceedingly heavy.

⁷ You said, “I shall be mistress forever,” so that you did not lay these things to heart
 or remember their end.

⁸ Now therefore hear this, you lover of pleasures,
 who sit securely,
 who say in your heart,
 “I am, and there is no one
 besides me;

I shall not sit as a widow or know the loss of children”— ⁹ both these things shall come upon you in a moment, in one day:
 the loss of children and widowhood shall come upon you in full measure, in spite of your many sorceries and the great power of your enchantments.

¹⁰ You felt secure in your wickedness;
 you said, “No one sees me.”
 Your wisdom and your knowledge led you astray,
 and you said in your heart,
 “I am, and there is no one besides me.”

¹¹ But evil shall come upon you, which you cannot charm away;
 disaster shall fall upon you,
 which you will not be able to ward off;
 and ruin shall come on you suddenly,
 of which you know nothing.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

polemic against idols; see 40.18–20; 44.9–20. 8–11: A reiteration of the incomparability of the LORD who predicts events and brings them to pass; see 40.2–5; 41.25–29; 43.10–13; 44.6–8. 11: The bird of prey from the east is Cyrus. 47.1–15: Babylon (also called “Chaldea”) is portrayed as a once magnificent princess who has been thrown to the dirt and humiliated before her conquerors. It was common for cities in the ancient Near Eastern world to be portrayed as women or goddesses; cf. Jerusalem’s designation as “daughter Zion” (see 1.8n.; 37.22; 52.2). 5–7: Babylon, much like the Assyrian king earlier (see 10.5–34; 14.24–27), overstepped its bounds in oppressing Israel and failing to recognize that it acted as the LORD’s agent. 8–11: Babylon’s boast of uniqueness is countered by the claim of the God of Israel’s incomparability. 9: On the death of Babylonian children, cf. Ps 137.9.

¹² Stand fast in your enchantments
and your many sorceries, with which you have labored from your
youth;

perhaps you may be able to succeed,
perhaps you may inspire terror.

¹³ You are wearied with your many consultations;
let those who study^a the heavens
stand up and save you,
those who gaze at the stars,
and at each new moon predict what^b shall befall you.

¹⁴ See, they are like stubble,
the fire consumes them;
they cannot deliver themselves from the power of the flame.

No coal for warming oneself is this,
no fire to sit before!

¹⁵ Such to you are those with whom you have labored,
who have trafficked with you from your
youth;
they all wander about in their own paths;
there is no one to save you.

48 Hear this, O house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel,
and who came forth from the loins^c of Judah;

who swear by the name of the LORD,
and invoke the God of Israel,
but not in truth or right.

² For they call themselves after the holy city, and lean on the God of Israel;
the LORD of hosts is his name.

³ The former things I declared long ago, they went out from my mouth and I made them known;
then suddenly I did them and they came to pass.

⁴ Because I know that you are obstinate, and your neck is an iron sinew
and your forehead brass,

⁵ I declared them to you from long ago, before they came to pass I announced
them to you,
so that you would not say, “My idol did
them,
my carved image and my cast image commanded them.”

⁶ You have heard; now see all this;
and will you not declare it?
From this time forward I make you hear
new things,
hidden things that you have not known.

⁷ They are created now, not long ago;
before today you have never heard of
them,
so that you could not say, “I already knew them.”

⁸ You have never heard, you have never known,
from of old your ear has not been
opened.

For I knew that you would deal very treacherously,
and that from birth you were called a rebel.

⁹ For my name’s sake I defer my anger, for the sake of my praise I restrain it for
you,
so that I may not cut you off.

¹⁰ See, I have refined you, but not like^d
silver;
I have tested you in the furnace of adversity.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr Compare Vg: Heb from what

^c Cn: Heb waters

^d Cn: Heb with

12–15: Babylonian diviners and astrologers developed mathematics and other sciences in their attempts to track the movements of the planets and the stars to determine the will of the gods. Despite such expertise, Babylon’s efforts are useless before the LORD.

48.1–22: A series of courtroom summary speeches and concluding hymn reiterates the LORD’s right to use Cyrus as the redeemer of Israel. 1–5: The fulfillment of prophecies should persuade the people to recognize the truth of the LORD’s claims. 6–8: The new things are the conquests of Cyrus, which are destined to lead to a change of fortune for Judah; cf. 43.18–19. Proof is necessary because of Israel’s history of alleged religious infidelity. 9–11: The concern for the divine name or reputation and divine sanctity is also a prominent theme in

¹¹ For my own sake, for my own sake, I do it,
for why should my name^a be profaned?
My glory I will not give to another.

¹² Listen to me, O Jacob, and Israel, whom I called:

I am He; I am the first,
and I am the last.

¹³ My hand laid the foundation of the
earth,
and my right hand spread out the
heavens;

when I summon them,
they stand at attention.

¹⁴ Assemble, all of you, and hear!
Who among them has declared these things?

The LORD loves him;
he shall perform his purpose on Babylon,
and his arm shall be against the Chaldeans.

¹⁵ I, even I, have spoken and called him,
I have brought him, and he will prosper
in his way.

¹⁶ Draw near to me, hear this!
From the beginning I have not spoken in secret,
from the time it came to be I have been
there.

And now the Lord God has sent me and his spirit.

¹⁷ Thus says the LORD,
your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: I am the LORD your God,
who teaches you for your own good,

who leads you in the way you should go.
¹⁸ O that you had paid attention to my commandments!

Then your prosperity would have been
like a river,
and your success like the waves of the
sea;

¹⁹ your offspring would have been like the sand,
and your descendants like its grains;
their name would never be cut off or destroyed from before me.

²⁰ Go out from Babylon, flee from Chaldea, declare this with a shout of joy,
proclaim it,
send it forth to the end of the earth;
say, "The LORD has redeemed his servant Jacob!"

²¹ They did not thirst when he led them through the deserts;
he made water flow for them from the
rock;
he split open the rock and the water gushed out.

²² "There is no peace," says the LORD, "for the wicked."

49 Listen to me, O coastlands, pay attention, you peoples from far
away!

The LORD called me before I was born, while I was in my mother's womb he named me.

² He made my mouth like a sharp sword,
in the shadow of his hand he hid me;

^a Gk Old Latin: Heb for why should it

Ezekiel (e.g., 36.11,21–23). The imagery of refined silver is drawn from 1.24–25. 12–16: First and last; see also 41.4; 43.10; 44.6. 14: Chaldeans, the Neo-Babylonian kingdom. 17–19: The LORD reiterates the terms of the ancestral covenant with Abraham (Gen 15.5; 17.1–8; 22.16–18) and with Jacob (Gen 28.13–14; 35.9–15) to emphasize the cost to Israel of its failure to observe the LORD's commandments. 20–22: The concluding hymn calls upon the exiles to flee from Babylon and Chaldea and to journey through the wilderness as they make their way home. The theme of water in the wilderness (Ex 17.1–7; Num 20.2–13) demonstrates the LORD's sustenance on this new exodus from Babylon. 22: See also 57.21.

49.1–54.17: The LORD is restoring Zion. The fifth and concluding contention in the series. This lengthy unit focuses especially on the role of the servant figure, earlier identified as Israel, in the divine plan.

49.1–13: Announcement concerning the role of the servant. The servant is defined both in relation to the restoration of Israel and as a light to the nations. 1–6: The second of the "servant songs" (see 42.1n.) presents the servant as an individual figure who is also identified as Israel. He is called from the womb much like Jeremiah

he made me a polished arrow,
 in his quiver he hid me away.
³ And he said to me, “You are my servant,
 Israel, in whom I will be glorified.”
⁴ But I said, “I have labored in vain,
 I have spent my strength for nothing and vanity;
 yet surely my cause is with the LORD, and my reward with my God.”
⁵ And now the LORD says, who formed me in the womb to be his servant,
 to bring Jacob back to him,
 and that Israel might be gathered to
 him,
 for I am honored in the sight of the LORD, and my God has become my strength—⁶ he says,
 “It is too light a thing that you should be my servant
 to raise up the tribes of Jacob and to restore the survivors of Israel;
 I will give you as a light to the nations,
 that my salvation may reach to the end of the earth.”
⁷ Thus says the LORD,
 the Redeemer of Israel and his Holy One,
 to one deeply despised, abhorred by the
 nations,
 the slave of rulers, “Kings shall see and stand up, princes, and they shall prostrate
 themselves,
 because of the LORD, who is faithful, the Holy One of Israel, who has chosen
 you.”

⁸ Thus says the LORD:

In a time of favor I have answered you,
 on a day of salvation I have helped you;
 I have kept you and given you as a covenant to the people,^a to establish the land,
 to apportion the desolate heritages;
⁹ saying to the prisoners, “Come out,”
 to those who are in darkness, “Show yourselves.”
 They shall feed along the ways, on all the bare heights^b shall be their
 pasture;
¹⁰ they shall not hunger or thirst, neither scorching wind nor sun shall strike them down,
 for he who has pity on them will lead
 them,
 and by springs of water will guide them.
¹¹ And I will turn all my mountains into a road,
 and my highways shall be raised up.
¹² Lo, these shall come from far away, and lo, these from the north and from
 the west,
 and these from the land of Syene.^c

¹³ Sing for joy, O heavens, and exult, O earth;
 break forth, O mountains, into singing!
 For the LORD has comforted his people,
 and will have compassion on his suffering ones.

¹⁴ But Zion said, “The LORD has forsaken
 me,
 my Lord has forgotten me.”

¹⁵ Can a woman forget her nursing child,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or the trails

^c QMs: MT Sinim

(Jer 1.5; cf. Ps 139.13). 3: The servant is here specifically identified as Israel, although his task in v. 5 is to bring Israel/Jacob to the LORD. 6: A light to the nations, see 42.5–9n. 7–12: An oracle of restoration. 7: The servant’s restoration demonstrates the sovereignty of the LORD in the world; cf. 52.13–15. 8–12: Covenant to the people, here the role of the servant is described in relation to the people Israel who will be released from prison to return through the wilderness to their homeland in a second exodus (see also 40.3–5; 41.17–20; 43.19; 48.20–22). 12: Syene, Aswan in Upper (southern) Egypt at the first cataract of the Nile, where a Jewish settlement existed prior to the Persian conquest of Egypt in 525 BCE. 13: The concluding hymn portrays the celebration of all creation at the restoration of Israel (cf. 44.23; 45.8).

49.14–52.12: The LORD’s announcement of the restoration of Zion. The LORD attempts to convince Israel that despite her experience of exile the LORD will now return the nation to Zion. 49.14–18: Many Jews in Babor show no compassion for the child of her womb?

Even these may forget,
yet I will not forget you.
¹⁶ See, I have inscribed you on the palms of my hands;
your walls are continually before me.
¹⁷ Your builders outdo your destroyers,^a and those who laid you waste go away from you.
¹⁸ Lift up your eyes all around and see;
they all gather, they come to you.
As I live, says the LORD,
you shall put all of them on like an ornament,
and like a bride you shall bind them on.
¹⁹ Surely your waste and your desolate places
and your devastated land—surely now you will be too crowded for your inhabitants,
and those who swallowed you up will be far away.
²⁰ The children born in the time of your bereavement
will yet say in your hearing:
“The place is too crowded for me;
make room for me to settle.”
²¹ Then you will say in your heart, “Who has borne me these?
I was bereaved and barren, exiled and put away—
so who has reared these?
I was left all alone—
where then have these come from?”
²² Thus says the Lord God:
I will soon lift up my hand to the nations,
and raise my signal to the peoples;

and they shall bring your sons in their bosom,
and your daughters shall be carried on
their shoulders.
²³ Kings shall be your foster fathers,
and their queens your nursing mothers.
With their faces to the ground they shall bow down to you,
and lick the dust of your feet.
Then you will know that I am the LORD;
those who wait for me shall not be put to shame.
²⁴ Can the prey be taken from the mighty,
or the captives of a tyrant^b be rescued?
²⁵ But thus says the LORD:
Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken,
and the prey of the tyrant be rescued;
for I will contend with those who contend
with you,
and I will save your children.
²⁶ I will make your oppressors eat their own flesh,
and they shall be drunk with their own blood as with wine.
Then all flesh shall know that I am the LORD your Savior, and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

50 Thus says the LORD:
Where is your mother's bill of divorce
with which I put her away?
Or which of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you?
No, because of your sins you were sold,

^a Or Your children come swiftly; your destroyers

^b Q Ms Syr Vg: MT of a righteous person

ylonian exile would have questioned the power of the LORD to protect the nation. In this section Zion is personified as a woman (49.14; 50.1; 51.17–52.2; 54.1–14; see 1.8n.). The LORD similarly is compared to a mother with her child and claims not to have forgotten or abandoned the people (cf. 66.13). 18: This verse is echoed and developed in Bar 5.5–9. 20: Children born in the time of your bereavement, those born in exile who are returning. 22: The raised hand of the LORD reverses the hand of judgment extended against Israel (9.7–10.4) and recalls the banner that signals restoration (11.1–16). 24–26: The rhetorical questions function here as assertions of divine power insofar as the LORD can make these things happen. 50.1–11: The language of the courtroom appears again as the LORD explains the divine role in Israel's experience. 1–3: Rhetorical questions are used to make the LORD's case. Zion is portrayed as a mother, who was neither divorced (see Deut 24.1–4) nor sold to creditors to pay the LORD's bill (see Ex 21.7–1; Deut 15.12–18). Instead, the LORD contends that she was sold for the sins of the and for your transgressions your mother was put away.

² Why was no one there when I came?
Why did no one answer when I called?
Is my hand shortened, that it cannot redeem?

Or have I no power to deliver?
By my rebuke I dry up the sea,
I make the rivers a desert;
their fish stink for lack of water, and die of thirst.^a

³ I clothe the heavens with blackness, and make sackcloth their covering.

⁴ The Lord God has given me the tongue of a teacher,^b that I may know how to sustain the weary with a word.
Morning by morning he awakens—wakens my ear
to listen as those who are taught.

⁵ The Lord God has opened my ear,
and I was not rebellious,
I did not turn backward.

⁶ I gave my back to those who struck me, and my cheeks to those who pulled out
the beard;
I did not hide my face
from insult and spitting.

⁷ The Lord God helps me;
therefore I have not been disgraced;
therefore I have set my face like flint, and I know that I shall not be put to shame;

⁸ he who vindicates me is near.

Who will contend with me?
Let us stand up together.

Who are my adversaries?
Let them confront me.

⁹ It is the Lord God who helps me;
who will declare me guilty?

All of them will wear out like a garment;
the moth will eat them up.

¹⁰ Who among you fears the LORD and obeys the voice of his servant, who walks in darkness
and has no light,
yet trusts in the name of the LORD and relies upon his God?

¹¹ But all of you are kindlers of fire, lighters of firebrands.^c Walk in the flame of your fire, and among the brands that you have
kindled!

This is what you shall have from my
hand:
you shall lie down in torment.

51 Listen to me, you that pursue
righteousness,
you that seek the LORD.
Look to the rock from which you were hewn,
and to the quarry from which you were dug.

² Look to Abraham your father and to Sarah who bore you;
for he was but one when I called him,
but I blessed him and made him many.

³ For the LORD will comfort Zion;
he will comfort all her waste places,
and will make her wilderness like Eden, her desert like the garden of the
LORD;
joy and gladness will be found in her,
thanksgiving and the voice of song.

^a Or die on the thirsty ground

^b Cn: Heb of those who are taught

^c Syr: Heb you gird yourselves with firebrands nation. Nevertheless, the LORD asserts divine power as creator of the universe to redeem. Sackcloth, see 3.24n. 4–9: The third servant song (see 42.1n.) appears in vv. 4–11, although vv. 10–11 presuppose a different speaker. 4: The servant links himself with Isaiah's disciples (see 8.16n.). 6: Obedience to God entailed suffering (cf. 6.9–10, which calls for the suffering of the people as part of the divine plan). The persecution of the servant recalls that of Jeremiah (Jer 11.9; 20.1–2; 26.7–24). 10–11: The LORD maintains that those who refuse to fear the LORD and honor the servant kindle the fire of their own suffering (cf. 1.29–31). 51.1–52.12: Proof for the restoration for Zion. 51.1–8: The LORD addresses the righteous who seek the LORD. The argument proceeds from the basis of the LORD's promises to make Abraham and Sarah into a great nation by which all nations will be blessed (Gen 12.2–3; cf. Gen 15.1–6, 17–21; 17.15–22; 22.15–18). 3: To fulfill the ancestral promise, the LORD will comfort and

⁴ Listen to me, my people, and give heed to me, my nation;
for a teaching will go out from me,
and my justice for a light to the peoples.

⁵ I will bring near my deliverance swiftly, my salvation has gone out
and my arms will rule the peoples;
the coastlands wait for me,
and for my arm they hope.

⁶ Lift up your eyes to the heavens,
and look at the earth beneath;
for the heavens will vanish like smoke,
the earth will wear out like a garment, and those who live on it will die like gnats;^a
but my salvation will be forever,
and my deliverance will never be ended.

⁷ Listen to me, you who know
righteousness,
you people who have my teaching in
your hearts;
do not fear the reproach of others,
and do not be dismayed when they revile you.

⁸ For the moth will eat them up like a garment,
and the worm will eat them like wool;
but my deliverance will be forever,
and my salvation to all generations.

⁹ Awake, awake, put on strength,
O arm of the LORD!
Awake, as in days of old,
the generations of long ago!
Was it not you who cut Rahab in pieces,
who pierced the dragon?

¹⁰ Was it not you who dried up the sea,
the waters of the great deep;
who made the depths of the sea a way for the redeemed to cross over?

¹¹ So the ransomed of the LORD shall return,

and come to Zion with singing;
everlasting joy shall be upon their heads;
they shall obtain joy and gladness,
and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

¹² I, I am he who comforts you;
why then are you afraid of a mere mortal who must die,
a human being who fades like grass?

¹³ You have forgotten the LORD, your Maker, who stretched out the heavens
and laid the foundations of the earth.
You fear continually all day long because of the fury of the oppressor, who is bent on destruction.

But where is the fury of the oppressor?
¹⁴ The oppressed shall speedily be released;
they shall not die and go down to the Pit,

nor shall they lack bread.
¹⁵ For I am the LORD your God, who stirs up the sea so that its waves
roar—
the LORD of hosts is his name.

¹⁶ I have put my words in your mouth, and hidden you in the shadow of my
hand,
stretching out^b the heavens
and laying the foundations of the earth, and saying to Zion, "You are my
people."

¹⁷ Rouse yourself, rouse yourself!
Stand up, O Jerusalem, you who have drunk at the hand of the LORD
the cup of his wrath,
who have drunk to the dregs
the bowl of staggering.

^a Or in like manner

^b Syr: Heb planting

restore Zion. Eden, see Gen 2.8–9. 4–5: Israel will then emerge as a basis for sending the LORD's teaching (Heb "torah") and justice to the entire world (cf. 2.2–4). Coastlands, see 24.13n. 9–11: The prophet calls upon the arm of the LORD to act (cf. Ps 44.23) and recounts past actions. Rahab is a mythological sea monster who is defeated by God before creation (Ps 89.10; Job 26.12; cf. Ps 74.12–17; Isa 27.1). Again, the Exodus from Egypt and the crossing of the sea illustrate the power of the LORD to redeem Israel (Ex 14–15; cf. Isa 11.15–16; 27.12–13). 12–16: Israel should not fear human opponents when the LORD, creator of heaven and earth, acts on their behalf. 14: The Pit, Sheol, the underworld (cf. 14.9–11). 17–23: The prophet addresses Jerusalem, here portrayed as a woman who has suffered at the hands of the LORD. The metaphorical cup of divine wrath appears elsewhere (e.g., Jer 25.15–29; Hab 2.15–16). As a result of the devastation, Jerusalem's children lie dead leaving no one to help her.

¹⁸ There is no one to guide her among all the children she has borne;
there is no one to take her by the hand among all the children she has brought up.

¹⁹ These two things have befallen you —who will grieve with you?— devastation and destruction, famine and
sword—
who will comfort you?^a

²⁰ Your children have fainted, they lie at the head of every street
like an antelope in a net;
they are full of the wrath of the LORD,
the rebuke of your God.

²¹ Therefore hear this, you who are wounded,^b

who are drunk, but not with wine:

²² Thus says your Sovereign, the LORD, your God who pleads the cause of his
people:

See, I have taken from your hand the cup of staggering;
you shall drink no more
from the bowl of my wrath.

²³ And I will put it into the hand of your tormentors,
who have said to you,
“Bow down, that we may walk on you”;
and you have made your back like the ground
and like the street for them to walk on.

52 Awake, awake,
put on your strength, O Zion!

Put on your beautiful garments,
O Jerusalem, the holy city;
for the uncircumcised and the unclean shall enter you no more.

² Shake yourself from the dust, rise up,
O captive^c Jerusalem;

loose the bonds from your neck,
O captive daughter Zion!

³ For thus says the LORD: You were sold for nothing, and you shall be redeemed without money. ⁴ For thus says the Lord God: Long ago, my people went down into Egypt to reside there as aliens; the Assyrian, too, has oppressed them without cause. ⁵ Now therefore what am I doing here, says the LORD, seeing that my people are taken away without cause? Their rulers howl, says the LORD, and continually, all day long, my name is despised. ⁶ Therefore my people shall know my name; therefore in that day they shall know that it is I who speak; here am I.

⁷ How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of the messenger who announces peace,
who brings good news,
who announces salvation,
who says to Zion, “Your God reigns.”

⁸ Listen! Your sentinels lift up their voices, together they sing for joy;
for in plain sight they see the return of the LORD to Zion.

⁹ Break forth together into singing,
you ruins of Jerusalem;
for the LORD has comforted his people,
he has redeemed Jerusalem.

¹⁰ The LORD has bared his holy arm before the eyes of all the nations;
and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God.

¹¹ Depart, depart, go out from there!
Touch no unclean thing;

^a QMs Gk Syr Vg: MT how may I comfort you?

^b Or humbled

^c Cn: Heb rise up, sit

The LORD announces the end of Jerusalem’s suffering and declares that the cup of divine wrath will now be drunk by her oppressors. 52.1–6: The imagery of restoration reverses many of the miseries described in Lamentations (cf. Lam 1.9–10,14,17; 2.10). The prophet addresses Jerusalem as a woman again (see 1.8n.; 37.22), and calls upon her to awake and to put on her beautiful clothing because her suffering is over. Foreign enemies will no longer enter or rape her and subject her to captivity. 3–6: The LORD explains how Israel was oppressed both by Egypt (Ex 1–15) during the Exodus and Assyria in more recent times. The LORD will therefore act to redeem the people and to put an end to the derision of the divine name among Israel’s oppressors. When the LORD acts, the people will know their God. 5: Coastlands, see 24.13n. 7–10: As in 40.9, the prophet describes the messenger who brings good news that the LORD is returning to Zion (cf. Isa 40.9; Nah 1.15 [Heb 2.1]). 11–12: In response to go out from the midst of it, purify yourselves,

you who carry the vessels of the
LORD.

¹² For you shall not go out in haste,
and you shall not go in flight;
for the LORD will go before you,
and the God of Israel will be your rear guard.

¹³ See, my servant shall prosper;
he shall be exalted and lifted up,
and shall be very high.

¹⁴ Just as there were many who were astonished at him^a
—so marred was his appearance,
beyond human semblance,
and his form beyond that of mortals—

¹⁵ so he shall startle^b many nations;
kings shall shut their mouths because
of him;
for that which had not been told them
they shall see,
and that which they had not heard they shall contemplate.

53 Who has believed what we have heard?

And to whom has the arm of the LORD
been revealed?

² For he grew up before him like a young plant,
and like a root out of dry ground;
he had no form or majesty that we should look at him,
nothing in his appearance that we should desire him.

³ He was despised and rejected by others;

a man of suffering^c and acquainted with infirmity;
and as one from whom others hide their faces^d
he was despised, and we held him of no account.

⁴ Surely he has borne our infirmities and carried our diseases;
yet we accounted him stricken,
struck down by God, and afflicted.

⁵ But he was wounded for our transgressions,
crushed for our iniquities;
upon him was the punishment that made us whole,
and by his bruises we are healed.

⁶ All we like sheep have gone astray;
we have all turned to our own way,
and the LORD has laid on him
the iniquity of us all.

⁷ He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he did not open his mouth;
like a lamb that is led to the slaughter,
and like a sheep that before its shearers is silent,
so he did not open his mouth.

⁸ By a perversion of justice he was taken away.
Who could have imagined his future?

^a Syr Tg: Heb you

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or a man of sorrows

^d Or as one who hides his face from us

the LORD's return to Zion, the exiles are called upon to leave Babylon and to form a holy procession bearing the Temple vessels (see Ezra 1.7–11) as they return to their homeland. Not . . . in haste, the exodus from Babylon will be different from the first Exodus; cf. Ex 12.11; 13.21–22.

52.13–53.12: Announcement of the exaltation of the servant of the LORD. The fourth and final servant song (see 42.1n.) portrays the suffering of the servant and his ultimate exaltation. Talmudic tradition identifies the servant with Moses, who suffered throughout the wilderness journey (b. Sotah 14a), and early Christian tradition identifies the servant with Jesus (Acts 8.32–35). Second Isaiah identifies the servant with Israel (49.3), although the servant's mission is to restore Israel and Jacob to the LORD (49.5). Other figures identified with the servant include the prophet Jeremiah, who was persecuted throughout his life; King Josiah, who was killed by Pharaoh Neco at Megiddo (2 Kings 23.29–30); and King Jehoiachin, who was exiled to Babylon (2 Kings 24.10–16). 52.13–15: The disfigurement and suffering of the servant, but also his exaltation elicit astonishment from foreign nations and rulers (cf. 49.7). 53.1–12: The intense suffering of the servant is defined vicariously; just as the LORD calls for Israel to be blind and deaf so that they will suffer punishment (6.9–10), so the servant now exemplifies that role. His suffering serves as a means to atone for the sins of the nation, much like a lamb

For he was cut off from the land of the living, stricken for the transgression of my people.

⁹ They made his grave with the wicked and his tomb^a with the rich,^b although he had done no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth.

¹⁰ Yet it was the will of the LORD to crush him with pain.^c

When you make his life an offering for sin,^d

he shall see his offspring, and shall prolong his days;
through him the will of the LORD shall prosper.

¹¹ Out of his anguish he shall see light;^e he shall find satisfaction through his knowledge.

The righteous one,^f my servant, shall make many righteous, and he shall bear their iniquities.

¹² Therefore I will allot him a portion with the great, and he shall divide the spoil with the strong;
because he poured out himself to death, and was numbered with the transgressors;
yet he bore the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors.

² Enlarge the site of your tent, and let the curtains of your habitations be stretched out;

do not hold back; lengthen your cords and strengthen your stakes.

³ For you will spread out to the right and to the left, and your descendants will possess the nations and will settle the desolate towns.

⁴ Do not fear, for you will not be ashamed; do not be discouraged, for you will not suffer disgrace;

for you will forget the shame of your youth, and the disgrace of your widowhood you will remember no more.

⁵ For your Maker is your husband, the LORD of hosts is his name; the Holy One of Israel is your Redeemer, the God of the whole earth he is called.

⁶ For the LORD has called you like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit, like the wife of a man's youth when she is cast off, says your God.

⁷ For a brief moment I abandoned you, but with great compassion I will gather you.

54 Sing, O barren one who did not bear; burst into song and shout, you who have not been in labor! For the children of the desolate woman will be more than the children of her that is married, says the LORD.

^a QMs: MT and in his death

^b Cn: Heb with a rich person

^c Or by disease; meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e QMs: MT lacks light

^f Or and he shall find satisfaction. Through his knowledge, the righteous one sacrificed at the Temple altar. 10: The servant's offspring refer to those who follow his example and teaching after his death rather than indicating that he survived and was rehabilitated.

54.1–17: Restoration of the covenant between the LORD and Zion. Like other major sections of Second Isaiah, 49.1–54.17 closes with a hymn (cf. 42.13; 44.23; 48.20–22). 1–3: Zion is again addressed as a woman (cf. 49.14; 50.1; 51.17–52.2). Much like Sarah (Gen 16.1), she is described as a barren woman. In keeping with the promises to Abraham and Sarah, Zion will soon have so many children that her home will not be able to contain them (Gen 12.2–3; cf. Gen 15.1–6, 17–21; 17.15–22; 22.15–18). 4–10: The reassurance formula (cf. 7.4; 37.6) informs Zion that her time as an abandoned woman is at an end. The passage metaphorically identifies the LORD as Zion's husband in keeping with Israelite tradition that posited a marriage relationship between the LORD and Israel (cf. Jer 2; Ezek 16; Hos 1–3; Zeph 3.14–20). 6: Wife . . . cast off; see 50.1–3n.

⁸In overflowing wrath for a moment
I hid my face from you, but with everlasting love I will have compassion on you,
says the LORD, your Redeemer.

⁹This is like the days of Noah to me:
Just as I swore that the waters of Noah would never again go over the earth, so I have sworn that I will not be angry
with you
and will not rebuke you.

¹⁰For the mountains may depart and the hills be removed,
but my steadfast love shall not depart from
you,
and my covenant of peace shall not be removed,
says the LORD, who has compassion on
you.

¹¹O afflicted one, storm-tossed, and not comforted,
I am about to set your stones in antimony,
and lay your foundations with sapphires.^a

¹²I will make your pinnacles of rubies, your gates of jewels,
and all your wall of precious stones.

¹³All your children shall be taught by the LORD,
and great shall be the prosperity of your
children.

¹⁴In righteousness you shall be established;
you shall be far from oppression, for
you shall not fear;
and from terror, for it shall not come near you.

¹⁵If anyone stirs up strife,
it is not from me;
whoever stirs up strife with you shall fall because of you.

¹⁶See it is I who have created the smith who blows the fire of coals, and produces a weapon fit for its purpose;

I have also created the ravager to destroy.

¹⁷No weapon that is fashioned against you shall prosper,
and you shall confute every tongue that rises against you in judgment.
This is the heritage of the servants of the
LORD
and their vindication from me, says the
LORD.

55 Ho, everyone who thirsts, come to the waters;
and you that have no money,
come, buy and eat!
Come, buy wine and milk
without money and without price.
² Why do you spend your money for that which is not bread,

^a Or lapis lazuli

8: Hid my face, cf. 8.16–17. 9: Days of Noah, an allusion to the eternal covenant made with Noah never again to destroy the earth by flood (Gen 9.8–17), invoked to illustrate the permanence and validity of this new divine promise. 10: The covenant of peace signifies God's lasting commitment to be present with steadfast love (Heb “hesed”); cf. 55.3; Num 25.10–13; Ezek 34.25. 11–17: The LORD addresses Jerusalem as a bride about to be decked out in jewels before her wedding. 11–13a: The new Jerusalem is adorned with precious stones and gems by builders supernaturally instructed; cf. Ezek 28.13–19. Christian apocalyptic literature draws on this imagery to describe the new Jerusalem (Rev 21.18–21). 17b: The future Jerusalem will be given to the servants of the LORD. The mention of this faithful segment of the people serves as a point of transition to the last section of the book (cf. 56.6; 63.17; 65.8–9, 13–16; 66.14). Although Second Isaiah ended with ch 55, this last chapter functions as an introduction to chs 56–66.

55.1–66.24: Prophetic exhortation to adhere to the LORD's covenant. The final block of the book of Isaiah calls upon the audience of the book to adhere to the LORD as the period of restoration is at hand. Chapter 55 was originally composed as the conclusion to the work of Second Isaiah in Isa 40–54, but it now functions as the introduction to chs 56–66, to the work of Third Isaiah, which is a collective designation for anonymous prophets of the early Persian period.

55.1–13: Exhortation proper to adhere to the LORD. 1–5: The prophet employs the metaphors of thirst and hunger to invite the audience of the book to partake of what the LORD has to offer. The invitation is formulated and your labor for that which does not satisfy?

 Listen carefully to me, and eat what is good,
 and delight yourselves in rich food.
³ Incline your ear, and come to me;
 listen, so that you may live.
 I will make with you an everlasting covenant,
 my steadfast, sure love for David.
⁴ See, I made him a witness to the peoples, a leader and commander for the peoples.
⁵ See, you shall call nations that you do not know,
 and nations that do not know you shall
 run to you,
 because of the LORD your God, the Holy
 One of Israel,
 for he has glorified you.
⁶ Seek the LORD while he may be found, call upon him while he is near;
⁷ let the wicked forsake their way,
 and the unrighteous their thoughts;
 let them return to the LORD, that he may have mercy on them,
 and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.
⁸ For my thoughts are not your thoughts,
 nor are your ways my ways, says the LORD.
⁹ For as the heavens are higher than the
 earth,
 so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts.

¹⁰ For as the rain and the snow come down from heaven,
 and do not return there until they have
 watered the earth,
 making it bring forth and sprout, giving seed to the sower and bread to the eater,
¹¹ so shall my word be that goes out from my mouth;
 it shall not return to me empty,
 but it shall accomplish that which I
 purpose,
 and succeed in the thing for which I sent it.
¹² For you shall go out in joy,
 and be led back in peace;
 the mountains and the hills before you shall burst into song,
 and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.
¹³ Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress;
 instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle;
 and it shall be to the LORD for a memorial,
 for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.
56 Thus says the LORD:
 Maintain justice, and do what is right,
 for soon my salvation will come,
 and my deliverance be revealed.

in the language of wisdom literature, which often employs the metaphor of food to portray the pursuit of wisdom (cf. Prov 9.1–6). 3–5: The prophet reiterates the Davidic covenant tradition with its promise of eternal kingship for the house of David (2 Sam 7). Because no Davidic king would ascend the throne under Persian rule, however, the prophet applies the Davidic covenant to the people of Israel at large. Just as David established an empire over surrounding nations (2 Sam 8), Israel will now serve as a means to call nations to recognize the LORD (cf. 2.2–4). 6–13: The exhortation to follow the LORD addresses the audience directly (cf. 1.17; Am 5.6,14). The distinction between the righteous and the wicked in this passage is a rhetorical device to persuade the audience to choose to be included among the righteous rather than to suffer punishment with the wicked. 8–9: The distinction between the ways and thoughts of the LORD and those of the audience builds the case that the LORD planned for punishment to culminate in restoration. 10–11: The passage reiterates the permanence of the LORD's word (cf. 40.8), and that it will accomplish the divine purpose (cf. 14.27). 12–13: In contrast to the thorns and thistles produced by Israel in the vineyard song (5.1–7), Israel will grow into cypress and myrtle as an everlasting sign of its relationship with the LORD (cf. 11.1–16). The imagery also recapitulates the theme of glorious return in 40.3–5 and 48.20–22, the beginning and end of chs 40–48. It therefore indicates a point of closure at a stage in the formation of the book. 13: Memorial, lit., “name.”

56.1–66.24: Substantiation: Prophetic instruction concerning the restored covenant community in Jerusalem. The collection of writings in chs 56–66 is generally ascribed to Third Isaiah, a name for various anonymous

²Happy is the mortal who does this,
the one who holds it fast,
who keeps the sabbath, not profaning it,
and refrains from doing any evil.

³Do not let the foreigner joined to the LORD say,
“The LORD will surely separate me from his people”;

and do not let the eunuch say,
“I am just a dry tree.”

⁴For thus says the LORD:
To the eunuchs who keep my sabbaths, who choose the things that please me
and hold fast my covenant,

⁵I will give, in my house and within my walls, a monument and a name
better than sons and daughters;
I will give them an everlasting name that shall not be cut off.

⁶And the foreigners who join themselves to the LORD,
to minister to him, to love the name of
the LORD,
and to be his servants,
all who keep the sabbath, and do not profane it,

and hold fast my covenant—
⁷these I will bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer;

their burnt offerings and their sacrifices
will be accepted on my altar;
for my house shall be called a house of prayer
for all peoples.

⁸Thus says the Lord God, who gathers the outcasts of Israel,
I will gather others to them besides those already gathered.^a ⁹All you wild animals,

all you wild animals in the forest, come to devour!

¹⁰Israel's^b sentinels are blind, they are all without knowledge;
they are all silent dogs
that cannot bark;
dreaming, lying down,
loving to slumber.

¹¹The dogs have a mighty appetite;
they never have enough.

^a Heb besides his gathered ones

^b Heb His

prophets from the time of the restoration in the late sixth through the fifth centuries BCE. This material substantiates the exhortation to adhere to the covenant announced in Isa 55.

56.1–59.21: Prophetic instruction concerning proper observance of the covenant. The various subunits of this section of Isaiah offer instruction concerning the observance of the covenant with the LORD as the restoration comes to fruition. 56.1–8: The passage begins with a general statement of principles concerning the LORD's expectations. Justice and righteousness are the basis of biblical law and subsequent Jewish tradition. 2: The sabbath is the fundamental observance of Jewish tradition, having been founded as the LORD's day of rest from the time of creation (Gen 2.1–3; cf. Ex 20.8–11; 31.12–17; 20.8–11; Lev 19.30; 23.3; Deut 5.12–15). 3–8: Foreigners joined to the LORD refers to those who have converted to Judaism, much as Jethro (Ex 18) and Ruth (Ruth 1) were viewed. Although Ezra and Nehemiah expelled foreign women from Jerusalem, those expelled had maintained their native languages and religious traditions without having converted (Neh 13.23–30; Ezra 9–10; cf. Deut 7.1–6). Deut 21.10–14 defines the procedure for marriage to a foreign woman captured in war, and biblical laws constantly stress that foreigners may join Israel if they observe the LORD's instructions (cf. Ex 12.48–49; Lev 24.22; Num 9.14; 15.27–31). Eunuch, castrated male, e.g., for service in a foreign court or harem. Deut 23.1–8 bans eunuchs, Ammonites and Moabites, and those born of an illicit marriage from membership in the community, but the present passage makes provision for eunuchs and foreigners if they observe the sabbath as the foundation of the eternal covenant with the LORD. A monument and a name (Heb. yad veshem) is given to eunuchs who cannot have children but observe the sabbath. The Hebrew phrase was used to name the Israel Holocaust Museum to honor those who were murdered in the Shoah (the Holocaust).

56.9–57.21: The LORD's willingness to forgive those who repent and return to the LORD. 56.9–12: The prophet metaphorically compares Israel's sentinels or leaders to silent dogs, who lack understanding and serve only their own immediate interests (cf. 1.2–3; cf. Jer 12.8–9; Ezek 39.17), thus leaving the people prey to wild animals. Alternatively, they are drunks (see 5.11–12; 28.1,7–13). Such characterization is designed to motivate

The shepherds also have no understanding;
 they have all turned to their own way,
 to their own gain, one and all.
¹²“Come,” they say, “let us^a get wine;
 let us fill ourselves with strong drink.
 And tomorrow will be like today,
 great beyond measure.”

57 The righteous perish,
 and no one takes it to heart;
 the devout are taken away,
 while no one understands.
 For the righteous are taken away from calamity,
² and they enter into peace;
 those who walk uprightly will rest on their couches.
³ But as for you, come here,
 you children of a sorceress,
 you offspring of an adulterer and a whore.^b
⁴ Whom are you mocking?
 Against whom do you open your mouth wide
 and stick out your tongue?
 Are you not children of transgression,
 the offspring of deceit—⁵ you that burn with lust among the oaks,
 under every green tree;
 you that slaughter your children in the
 valleys,
 under the clefts of the rocks?
⁶ Among the smooth stones of the valley is your portion;
 they, they, are your lot;
 to them you have poured out a drink
 offering,
 you have brought a grain offering.

Shall I be appeased for these things?
⁷ Upon a high and lofty mountain
 you have set your bed,
 and there you went up to offer sacrifice.
⁸ Behind the door and the doorpost you have set up your symbol;
 for, in deserting me,^c you have uncovered
 your bed,
 you have gone up to it,
 you have made it wide;
 and you have made a bargain for yourself
 with them,
 you have loved their bed,
 you have gazed on their nakedness.^d ⁹ You journeyed to Molech^e with oil, and multiplied your perfumes;
 you sent your envoys far away,
 and sent down even to Sheol.
¹⁰ You grew weary from your many wanderings,
 but you did not say, “It is useless.”
 You found your desire rekindled, and so you did not weaken.

¹¹ Whom did you dread and fear so that you lied,
 and did not remember me
 or give me a thought?
 Have I not kept silent and closed my eyes,^f
 and so you do not fear me?
¹² I will concede your righteousness and your works,

^a Q Ms Syr Vg Tg: MT me

^b Heb an adulterer and she plays the whore

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Or their phallus; Heb the hand

^e Or the king

^f Gk Vg: Heb silent even for a long time the audience to accept the prophet's teachings concerning observance of the LORD's covenant. 57:1–13: The prophet chastises Israel for idolatrous and immoral behavior. 1–2: A complaint that the probably violent death of the righteous goes unnoticed and unlamented; cf. Ps 12.1; Mic 7.2. Placed here, it contrasts with the polemic that follows. The righteous die in peace, but their fate is ignored. 3–10: The prophet portrays non-Israelite fertility worship, often associated with sexual rites in the Bible (e.g., Num 25; Lev 18.24–39). The language in these verses has much sexual innuendo. 3–5: Cf. Hos 2.1–5; Jer 2.20–25. 6: The valley, a stream bed, which would be an appropriate place to pour out libations to the gods. 7: High mountains or hills are often sanctuary sites because they symbolize the majesty of the gods and, more practically, because grain is more readily threshed in the winds that blow across hilltops. 9: Molech is a Canaanite god to whom children were apparently sacrificed (Lev 18.21; 20.2–5; 2 Kings 3.27; 23.10; Jer 7.31; 32.35); the spelling of his name is uncertain because the vowels employed in it are taken from Heb “boshet” (“shame”). Sheol is the underworld. 11–12: The LORD's rhetorical questions assert that the people feared their idols. The LORD claims to have remained silent through the period but they will not help you.

¹³ When you cry out, let your collection of idols deliver you!

The wind will carry them off,
a breath will take them away.

But whoever takes refuge in me shall possess the land and inherit my holy mountain.

¹⁴ It shall be said,

“Build up, build up, prepare the way, remove every obstruction from my people’s way.”

¹⁵ For thus says the high and lofty one who inhabits eternity, whose name is Holy:

I dwell in the high and holy place,
and also with those who are contrite and humble in spirit,
to revive the spirit of the humble,
and to revive the heart of the contrite.

¹⁶ For I will not continually accuse, nor will I always be angry;
for then the spirits would grow faint before me,
even the souls that I have made.

¹⁷ Because of their wicked covetousness I was angry;
I struck them, I hid and was angry;
but they kept turning back to their own ways.

¹⁸ I have seen their ways, but I will heal them;
I will lead them and repay them with comfort, creating for their mourners the fruit of the lips.^a ¹⁹ Peace, peace, to the far and the near, says the LORD;

and I will heal them.

²⁰ But the wicked are like the tossing sea that cannot keep still;
its waters toss up mire and mud.

²¹ There is no peace, says my God, for the wicked.

58 Shout out, do not hold back!
Lift up your voice like a trumpet!
Announce to my people their rebellion,
to the house of Jacob their sins.

² Yet day after day they seek me and delight to know my ways, as if they were a nation that practiced righteousness and did not forsake the ordinance of their God;

they ask of me righteous judgments,
they delight to draw near to God.

³ “Why do we fast, but you do not see? Why humble ourselves, but you do not notice?”

Look, you serve your own interest on your fast day, and oppress all your workers.

⁴ Look, you fast only to quarrel and to fight and to strike with a wicked fist.

Such fasting as you do today will not make your voice heard on high.

⁵ Is such the fast that I choose,
a day to humble oneself?
Is it to bow down the head like a bulrush,
and to lie in sackcloth and ashes?
Will you call this a fast,
a day acceptable to the LORD?

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain of Israel’s oppression and exile, but now the LORD has returned. 14–21: The prophet now turns to themes of restoration and a concluding diatribe. 14–15: The motif of the highway that leads the exiles home, as in the Exodus tradition (cf. 11.15–16; 27.12–13; 35.1–10; 40.3–5) is now applied metaphorically. The LORD emphasizes that the time of judgment is now past and that the time of healing and peace has begun. 18: The fruit of the lips, praise and joyful prayer in the place of mourning, as an accompaniment or substitute for sacrifice (cf. Hos 14.2). 21: A concluding diatribe condemns the wicked who will have no peace (cf. 48.22).

58.1–14: A call to repentance and promise of restoration. The LORD calls upon the people to repent and defines the criteria by which they may observe the covenant. 1–2: The celebratory tone evokes festival observance in the Temple, but the LORD’s first demand is for righteous moral action to accompany holy ritual action. 3–5: The questions of the people presuppose a time of distress that would have continued throughout the Babylonian exile as the people waited for a divine response that was long in coming. Fasting was a means to humble oneself before the LORD in such a time of distress (cf. Zech 7:1–14; 8:18–19; Joel 1.14; 2.15). Sackcloth, see

⁶ Is not this the fast that I choose:
 to loose the bonds of injustice,
 to undo the thongs of the yoke,
 to let the oppressed go free,
 and to break every yoke?
⁷ Is it not to share your bread with the hungry,
 and bring the homeless poor into your
 house;
 when you see the naked, to cover them,
 and not to hide yourself from your own kin?
⁸ Then your light shall break forth like the
 dawn,
 and your healing shall spring up quickly;
 your vindicator^a shall go before you,
 the glory of the LORD shall be your rear
 guard.
⁹ Then you shall call, and the LORD will answer;
 you shall cry for help, and he will say,
 Here I am.

If you remove the yoke from among you,
 the pointing of the finger, the speaking of evil,
¹⁰ if you offer your food to the hungry and satisfy the needs of the afflicted, then your light shall rise in the darkness and your gloom be like the noonday.
¹¹ The LORD will guide you continually, and satisfy your needs in parched places,
 and make your bones strong;
 and you shall be like a watered garden,
 like a spring of water,
 whose waters never fail.
¹² Your ancient ruins shall be rebuilt;
 you shall raise up the foundations of many generations;
 you shall be called the repairer of the breach,
 the restorer of streets to live in.

¹³ If you refrain from trampling the sabbath,
 from pursuing your own interests on
 my holy day;
 if you call the sabbath a delight
 and the holy day of the LORD honorable;
 if you honor it, not going your own ways, serving your own interests, or pursuing your own affairs;^b ¹⁴ then you shall take delight in the LORD, and I will make you ride upon the heights of the earth;
 I will feed you with the heritage of your ancestor Jacob,
 for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.

59 See, the LORD's hand is not too short to save,
 nor his ear too dull to hear.
² Rather, your iniquities have been barriers
 between you and your God,
 and your sins have hidden his face from
 you
 so that he does not hear.
³ For your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity;
 your lips have spoken lies,
 your tongue mutters wickedness.
⁴ No one brings suit justly,
 no one goes to law honestly;
 they rely on empty pleas, they speak lies, conceiving mischief and begetting
 iniquity.
⁵ They hatch adders' eggs,
 and weave the spider's web;
 whoever eats their eggs dies,
 and the crushed egg hatches out a viper.

^a Or vindication
^b Heb or speaking words

3.24n. 6–14: A definition of genuine fasting. The LORD then spells out the means by which one should practice righteousness before the LORD. Concern for the poor is a hallmark of biblical tradition, including both biblical law and the prophets (Ex 22.21–27; 23.10–11; Lev 19.9–10; Deut 14.28–29; Isa 1.10–17; Am 2.6–8). 9: When the people are righteous, the LORD answers the prayers of the nation (cf. 1.10–17, esp. v. 15) and rebuilds its ruins. 12: Ruins . . . foundations, a reinterpretation of earlier promises of restoration (44.26–28). 13: The LORD's instruction culminates in observance of the sabbath (cf. 56.1–8); cf. Am 8.5. 14: For the final formula see 40.5.

59.1–21: The lament of the nation will be answered when the LORD comes to restore those who repent. 1–8: The prophet argues that the LORD has the power and the will to restore the nation, but the people have not yet begun to practice righteousness. 2: Hidden his face, cf. 8.16–17. 3: Hands . . . defiled with blood, cf. 1.18–20. 5: Adders

⁶Their webs cannot serve as clothing; they cannot cover themselves with what they make.

Their works are works of iniquity, and deeds of violence are in their hands.

⁷Their feet run to evil,
and they rush to shed innocent blood;
their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity, desolation and destruction are in their highways.

⁸The way of peace they do not know,
and there is no justice in their paths.
Their roads they have made crooked;
no one who walks in them knows peace.

⁹Therefore justice is far from us,
and righteousness does not reach us;
we wait for light, and lo! there is darkness;
and for brightness, but we walk in gloom.

¹⁰We grope like the blind along a wall, groping like those who have no eyes;
we stumble at noon as in the twilight, among the vigorous^a as though we were dead.

¹¹We all growl like bears;
like doves we moan mournfully.
We wait for justice, but there is none;
for salvation, but it is far from us.

¹²For our transgressions before you are many,
and our sins testify against us.
Our transgressions indeed are with us,
and we know our iniquities:

¹³transgressing, and denying the LORD, and turning away from following our God,
talking oppression and revolt, conceiving lying words and uttering them from the heart.

¹⁴Justice is turned back,
and righteousness stands at a distance;
for truth stumbles in the public square,
and uprightness cannot enter.

¹⁵Truth is lacking,
and whoever turns from evil is despoiled.

The LORD saw it, and it displeased him
that there was no justice.

¹⁶He saw that there was no one,
and was appalled that there was no one to intervene;
so his own arm brought him victory,
and his righteousness upheld him.

¹⁷He put on righteousness like a breastplate,
and a helmet of salvation on his head;
he put on garments of vengeance for clothing,
and wrapped himself in fury as in a mantle.

¹⁸According to their deeds, so will he repay;
wrath to his adversaries, requital to his enemies;
to the coastlands he will render requital.

¹⁹So those in the west shall fear the name of the LORD,
and those in the east, his glory;
for he will come like a pent-up stream that the wind of the LORD drives on.

²⁰And he will come to Zion as Redeemer, to those in Jacob who turn from transgression, says the LORD.

²¹And as for me, this is my covenant with them, says the LORD: my spirit that is upon you, and my words that I have put in your mouth, shall not depart out of your mouth, or out of the mouths of your children, or out of the mouths of your children's children, says the LORD, from now on and forever.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

and spiders are poisonous and represent sins that destroy the wicked (cf. Pss 58.3–4; 140.1–3). 9–15a: A communal confession of sin, though only v. 12 is addressed to God (cf. Pss 51.5; 90.8). The passage appears to be a meditation on 8.16–23, which portrays divine absence and the people groping in darkness. 15b–21: The LORD prepares to come in judgment on seeing that there is no justice. 17: The LORD's justice is described metaphorically as armor that a warrior puts on for battle. 18–20: When the wicked are punished, Zion will be redeemed (cf. 1.27–28). 18: Coastlands, see 24.13n. 21: A promise of prophetic guidance (cf. 53.10; 61.1–4).

60 Arise, shine; for your light has come, and the glory of the LORD has risen
upon you.

²For darkness shall cover the earth,
and thick darkness the peoples;
but the LORD will arise upon you,
and his glory will appear over you.

³Nations shall come to your light, and kings to the brightness of your
dawn.

⁴Lift up your eyes and look around;
they all gather together, they come to
you;
your sons shall come from far away,
and your daughters shall be carried on
their nurses' arms.

⁵Then you shall see and be radiant;
your heart shall thrill and rejoice,^a because the abundance of the sea shall be brought to you,
the wealth of the nations shall come to
you.

⁶A multitude of camels shall cover you,
the young camels of Midian and Ephah;
all those from Sheba shall come.
They shall bring gold and frankincense, and shall proclaim the praise of the
LORD.

⁷All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered
to you,
the rams of Nebaioth shall minister to
you;
they shall be acceptable on my altar,
and I will glorify my glorious house.

⁸Who are these that fly like a cloud, and like doves to their windows?

⁹For the coastlands shall wait for me,
the ships of Tarshish first,
to bring your children from far away,
their silver and gold with them,
for the name of the LORD your God,
and for the Holy One of Israel,
because he has glorified you.

¹⁰Foreigners shall build up your walls, and their kings shall minister to you;
for in my wrath I struck you down, but in my favor I have had mercy on
you.

¹¹Your gates shall always be open;
day and night they shall not be shut, so that nations shall bring you their wealth,
with their kings led in procession.

¹²For the nation and kingdom that will not serve you shall perish;
those nations shall be utterly laid waste.

¹³The glory of Lebanon shall come to you,
the cypress, the plane, and the pine,
to beautify the place of my sanctuary;
and I will glorify where my feet rest.

¹⁴The descendants of those who oppressed
you
shall come bending low to you, and all who despised you shall bow down at your feet;
they shall call you the City of the LORD,
the Zion of the Holy One of Israel.

¹⁵Whereas you have been forsaken and hated,
with no one passing through,
I will make you majestic forever,
a joy from age to age.

^a Heb be enlarged

60.1–62.12: Prophetic announcement of restoration for the nation. These chapters have strong similarities of content and style with chs 40–55. 60.1–9: Zion's restoration, the return of the glory of the LORD, and the approach of the nations bearing gifts. As before, Zion is imaged as a woman (cf. 49.4; 52.1–2,7–12; 54.1–17). 1: Arise, shine, see 51.17; 52.1–2; and cf. 2.2–4; 8.23. 1b–2: The glory of the LORD is described as it was in the wilderness tabernacle (Ex 40.34–38), the Jerusalem Temple (1 Kings 8.1–13), and the restored Zion (4.2–5). 3: The approach of the nations echoes the procession to Zion in 2.2–4. 4: Dispersed Judeans will return, assisted by Gentiles (also 49.12; 51.9–11; 60.8–9; 66.20). 5–9: Foreigners will bring gifts to honor the LORD (cf. 45.14,22–23; 60.11,16; Zeph 3.9–10; Hag 2.1–9). 6–7: The Arabian kingdoms Midian (Ex 2.15), Ephah (Gen 25.4), Sheba (Gen 10.17; 1 Kings 10.1–13), Kedar (Isa 21.13–17; Jer 49.28–29), and Nebaioth (Gen 25.13). 9: Coastlands, see 24.13n. Tarshish, see 2.16n. 10–22: Whereas the nations in the past were brought by the LORD for Zion's punishment, now they will come to submit to her and to sustain her. 13: Lebanon was known for its tall trees that were prized throughout the ancient Near East for splendid building projects, including the Jerusalem Temple (2.13; 1 Kings 5.8–10). The place where the LORD's feet rest is the Holy of Holies of the Temple where the ark of the covenant served as the

¹⁶ You shall suck the milk of nations, you shall suck the breasts of kings;
 and you shall know that I, the LORD, am your Savior
 and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.

¹⁷ Instead of bronze I will bring gold, instead of iron I will bring silver;
 instead of wood, bronze,
 instead of stones, iron.
 I will appoint Peace as your overseer and Righteousness as your taskmaster.

¹⁸ Violence shall no more be heard in your
 land,
 devastation or destruction within your borders;
 you shall call your walls Salvation,
 and your gates Praise.

¹⁹ The sun shall no longer be your light by day,
 nor for brightness shall the moon give light to you by night;^a but the LORD will be your everlasting light, and your God will be your glory.

²⁰ Your sun shall no more go down, or your moon withdraw itself;
 for the LORD will be your everlasting light, and your days of mourning shall be ended.

²¹ Your people shall all be righteous;
 they shall possess the land forever.
 They are the shoot that I planted, the work
 of my hands,

so that I might be glorified.

²² The least of them shall become a clan, and the smallest one a mighty nation;
 I am the LORD;
 in its time I will accomplish it quickly.

61 The spirit of the Lord God is upon me, because the LORD has anointed me;
 he has sent me to bring good news to the oppressed,

to bind up the brokenhearted,
 to proclaim liberty to the captives,
 and release to the prisoners;

² to proclaim the year of the LORD's favor, and the day of vengeance of our God;
 to comfort all who mourn;

³ to provide for those who mourn in Zion—
 to give them a garland instead of ashes,
 the oil of gladness instead of mourning,
 the mantle of praise instead of a faint spirit.

They will be called oaks of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, to display his
 glory.

⁴ They shall build up the ancient ruins, they shall raise up the former devastations;
 they shall repair the ruined cities,
 the devastations of many generations.

⁵ Strangers shall stand and feed your flocks,

^a Q Ms Gk Old Latin Tg; MT lacks by night

footstool for the LORD's throne (cf. 66.1). 16: The breasts of kings, a metaphor for the nations' sustenance of Zion. 21: The shoot that I planted, cf. 6.12–13; 11.1–16. 22: The concluding statements recall the promise of both land and a numerous posterity to the ancestors (Gen 12.1–3; 15.5–6,17–21; 17.1–8; 28.10–15; 35.9–15). 61.1–7: This passage presupposes the persona of the servant from Second Isaiah (cf. 42.1–4; 49.1–6; 50.4–11; 52.13–53.12). 1–2: The imagery evokes the priestly proclamation of a year of jubilee or release from debt (Lev 25.8–17). The year of jubilee was to be observed every fiftieth year as a means to forgive debt and to return land and property to its ancestral owners. It is applied here to the return of Zion to its exiled people. 3b: Oaks of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, see 6.12–13; 11.1–9; cf. 5.1–7; 27.2–6. 6: The people of Israel will serve as priests to the nations (cf. Ex 19.6). 7: Their double portion recalls Zion's double punishment (40.2). 8–9: An everlasting covenant with the restored people of Zion (cf. 54.9–10).

61.10–62.12: Joy at the LORD's restoration of Zion (61.10–11). Just as Zion is dressed as a bride (52.12; 54.11–14) and the LORD is dressed in the armor of righteousness to redeem Zion (59.16–21), so the prophet now dresses for the wedding that will celebrate the reunion of the LORD and Zion. The imagery of growing shoots symbolizes the restoration (cf. 6.12–13; 11.1–9). 62.1–12: The bridal imagery confirms Zion's restored status. Whereas the nations were appalled at the sight of the servant (52.13–53.12), now they will witness the emergence of a beautiful Zion. 3: The crown of beauty also symbolizes the restored walls of the city (4.2; 28.5–6). 4: No more be termed Forsaken . . . Desolate, cf. 54.1,6. 5: The builder is now the LORD in contrast to 44.28 where it was Cyrus acting on foreigners shall till your land and dress your vines;

⁶ but you shall be called priests of the LORD,
you shall be named ministers of our God;

you shall enjoy the wealth of the nations,
and in their riches you shall glory.

⁷ Because their^a shame was double,
and dishonor was proclaimed as their lot, therefore they shall possess a double portion;
everlasting joy shall be theirs.

⁸ For I the LORD love justice,
I hate robbery and wrongdoing;^b
I will faithfully give them their recompense,
and I will make an everlasting covenant
with them.

⁹ Their descendants shall be known among
the nations,
and their offspring among the peoples;
all who see them shall acknowledge that they are a people whom the LORD has blessed.

¹⁰ I will greatly rejoice in the LORD,
my whole being shall exult in my God;
for he has clothed me with the garments of
salvation,
he has covered me with the robe of
righteousness,
as a bridegroom decks himself with a garland,
and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels.

¹¹ For as the earth brings forth its shoots, and as a garden causes what is sown in
it to spring up,
so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise
to spring up before all the nations.

62 For Zion's sake I will not keep silent, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until her vindication shines out like the
dawn,
and her salvation like a burning torch.

² The nations shall see your vindication, and all the kings your glory;
and you shall be called by a new name that the mouth of the LORD will give.

³ You shall be a crown of beauty in the hand of the LORD,
and a royal diadem in the hand of your
God.

⁴ You shall no more be termed Forsaken,^c and your land shall no more be termed Desolate;^d

but you shall be called My Delight Is in Her,^e

and your land Married;^f
for the LORD delights in you, and your land shall be married.

⁵ For as a young man marries a young woman,
so shall your builder^g marry you,
and as the bridegroom rejoices over the
bride,
so shall your God rejoice over you.

⁶ Upon your walls, O Jerusalem,
I have posted sentinels;
all day and all night
they shall never be silent.

You who remind the LORD,
take no rest,

⁷ and give him no rest
until he establishes Jerusalem and makes it renowned throughout the
earth.

⁸ The LORD has sworn by his right hand
and by his mighty arm:

I will not again give your grain to be food for your enemies, and foreigners shall not drink the wine
for which you have labored;

⁹ but those who garner it shall eat it and praise the LORD,

^a Heb your

^b Or robbery with a burnt offering

^c Heb Azubah

^d Heb Shemamah

^e Heb Hephzibah

^f Heb Beulah

^g Cn: Heb your sons

behalf of the LORD. 6–9: The task of the sentinels or watchers is to ensure that the LORD keeps the divine promise to restore Zion. The image is based in part on the armed guards of a city, but it also presupposes the role of the priestly gatekeepers who ensured the sanctity of the Temple and its holy courts (1 Chr 9.17–27; 26.1–19;

and those who gather it shall drink it in my holy courts.

¹⁰ Go through, go through the gates, prepare the way for the people;
build up, build up the highway,
clear it of stones,
lift up an ensign over the peoples.

¹¹ The LORD has proclaimed to the end of the earth:
Say to daughter Zion, “See, your salvation comes;
his reward is with him,
and his recompense before him.”
¹² They shall be called, “The Holy People,
The Redeemed of the LORD”;
and you shall be called, “Sought Out, A City Not Forsaken.”

63 “Who is this that comes from Edom, from Bozrah in garments stained crimson?

Who is this so splendidly robed, marching in his great might?”

“It is I, announcing vindication, mighty to save.”

² “Why are your robes red, and your garments like theirs who tread
the wine press?”

³ “I have trodden the wine press alone, and from the peoples no one was
with me;

I trod them in my anger
and trampled them in my wrath;
their juice spattered on my garments,
and stained all my robes.

⁴ For the day of vengeance was in my heart, and the year for my redeeming work had come.

⁵ I looked, but there was no helper;
I stared, but there was no one to sustain
me;

so my own arm brought me victory,
and my wrath sustained me.

⁶ I trampled down peoples in my anger,
I crushed them in my wrath, and I poured out their lifeblood on the
earth.”

⁷ I will recount the gracious deeds of the LORD,
the praiseworthy acts of the LORD, because of all that the LORD has done
for us,
and the great favor to the house of Israel

that he has shown them according to his mercy,
according to the abundance of his
steadfast love.

⁸ For he said, “Surely they are my people, children who will not deal falsely”;
and he became their savior ⁹ in all their distress.

It was no messenger^a or angel

^a Gk: Heb anguish

cf. 2 Kings 11.4–8). 10–12: The prophet again calls for the people to go out (48.20–22), to prepare the highway (11.15; 27.12–13; 35.1–10; 40.3–5), and to raise the ensign (Heb “nes”; cf. 11.10; 49.22) to proclaim Zion’s restoration.

63.1–66.24: Prophetic instruction concerning the process of Zion’s restoration. The final unit of Third Isaiah and the book as a whole focuses on the means by which the LORD will judge the wicked before the ideal restoration can be achieved. Such a view attempts to explain why the ideals of the book have not yet been achieved (e.g., 2.2–4; 9.1–7; 11.1–16) by charging that some among the people are wicked rather than by raising questions about the LORD’s ability to bring about the restoration.

63.1–6: Vengeance on Edom. During the sixth through the fourth centuries BCE, Edom disintegrated as it was displaced by Arabian tribal groups that formed the Nabatean kingdom. The Isaian oracle explains the Edomite decline as a deliberate act of the LORD (cf. ch 34). 1: Edom, located southeast of the Dead Sea and the Negeb regions of Judah. Bozrah, a key city in Edom. 2–3: The prophet employs the imagery of treading grapes to depict the LORD’s blood-splattered clothing. Now that the vineyard has been restored (27.2–6), the harvest metaphorically begins. 4–6: The LORD’s day of vengeance builds upon the “day of the LORD” tradition in Isaiah when evil is defeated (2.10–21; 13.6–22; 34.8–17; 61.2).

63.7–64.12: A psalm of communal lamentation. 7–9: Recollection of Israel’s deliverance from Egypt. See Ex 23.20, which asserts that an angel would lead Israel through the wilderness. In Ex 13.17–21, however, the LORD, but his presence that saved them;^a in his love and in his pity he redeemed

 them;
 he lifted them up and carried them all the days of old.

¹⁰ But they rebelled
 and grieved his holy spirit;
 therefore he became their enemy;
 he himself fought against them.
¹¹ Then they^b remembered the days of old,
 of Moses his servant.^c

Where is the one who brought them up out of the sea
 with the shepherds of his flock?
 Where is the one who put within them
 his holy spirit,
¹² who caused his glorious arm to march at the right hand of Moses, who divided the waters before them to make for himself an everlasting
 name,

¹³ who led them through the depths?
 Like a horse in the desert,
 they did not stumble.

¹⁴ Like cattle that go down into the valley,
 the spirit of the LORD gave them rest.
 Thus you led your people,
 to make for yourself a glorious name.

¹⁵ Look down from heaven and see,
 from your holy and glorious habitation.
 Where are your zeal and your might?
 The yearning of your heart and your compassion?

They are withheld from me.
¹⁶ For you are our father, though Abraham does not know us and Israel does not acknowledge us;
 you, O LORD, are our father;
 our Redeemer from of old is your name.

¹⁷ Why, O LORD, do you make us stray from your ways
 and harden our heart, so that we do not fear you?

Turn back for the sake of your servants, for the sake of the tribes that are your heritage.

¹⁸ Your holy people took possession for a little while;
 but now our adversaries have trampled down your sanctuary.

¹⁹ We have long been like those whom you do not rule,
 like those not called by your name.

64 O that you would tear open the heavens and come down, so that the mountains would quake at your presence—

^{2d} as when fire kindles brushwood and the fire causes water to boil—to make your name known to your adversaries,

so that the nations might tremble at
 your presence!

³ When you did awesome deeds that we did not expect,
 you came down, the mountains quaked
 at your presence.

⁴ From ages past no one has heard,
 no ear has perceived,
 no eye has seen any God besides you,
 who works for those who wait for him.

⁵ You meet those who gladly do right, those who remember you in your ways.

But you were angry, and we sinned;
 because you hid yourself we transgressed.^e

⁶ We have all become like one who is unclean,

^a Or savior. ⁹In all their distress he was distressed; the angel of his presence saved them;

^b Heb he

^c Cn: Heb his people

^d Ch 64.1 in Heb

^e Meaning of Heb uncertain

symbolized as the pillar of smoke and fire, leads the nation. 10: But they rebelled, i.e., in the wilderness; see Ex 32–34; Num 11–25. 15–19: Direct appeal for the LORD to look down and see. 17: The prophet takes up the motif of the hardened heart, applied to Pharaoh in the Exodus tradition (Ex 7.3–5; cf. Isa 6.9–10) to demand that the LORD cease afflicting Israel. 18: The trampling of the sanctuary would refer to the Babylonian destruction of the Jerusalem Temple. 64.1–3: A direct appeal to God, characteristic of the lament psalms, to intervene, to appear in power as in the days of old (cf. Ex 19.16–18; Judg 5.4–5; Ps 68.7–8; Hab 3.3–15). 5b–7: The prophet reiterates the LORD's anger and hidden face from the people (cf. 8.16–17). Having been ravaged, the nation has now become and all our righteous deeds are like a filthy cloth.

 We all fade like a leaf,
 and our iniquities, like the wind, take us away.
⁷There is no one who calls on your name, or attempts to take hold of you; for you have hidden your face from us, and have delivered^a us into the hand of our iniquity.
⁸Yet, O LORD, you are our Father; we are the clay, and you are our potter; we are all the work of your hand.
⁹Do not be exceedingly angry, O LORD, and do not remember iniquity forever. Now consider, we are all your people.
¹⁰Your holy cities have become a wilderness,
 Zion has become a wilderness,
 Jerusalem a desolation.
¹¹Our holy and beautiful house, where our ancestors praised you, has been burned by fire, and all our pleasant places have become ruins.
¹²After all this, will you restrain yourself, O LORD?
 Will you keep silent, and punish us so severely?

65 I was ready to be sought out by those who did not ask,
 to be found by those who did not seek me.
 I said, “Here I am, here I am,”
 to a nation that did not call on my name.

²I held out my hands all day long to a rebellious people, who walk in a way that is not good,
 following their own devices; ³a people who provoke me

to my face continually, sacrificing in gardens
 and offering incense on bricks; ⁴who sit inside tombs,
 and spend the night in secret places;
 who eat swine’s flesh,
 with broth of abominable things in their vessels; ⁵who say, “Keep to yourself, do not come near me, for I am too holy for you.”
 These are a smoke in my nostrils,
 a fire that burns all day long.
⁶See, it is written before me:
 I will not keep silent, but I will repay;
 I will indeed repay into their laps ⁷their^b iniquities and their^b ancestors’ iniquities together,
 says the LORD;
 because they offered incense on the mountains and reviled me on the hills,
 I will measure into their laps full payment for their actions.
⁸Thus says the LORD:
 As the wine is found in the cluster,
 and they say, “Do not destroy it, for there is a blessing in it,”
 so I will do for my servants’ sake,
 and not destroy them all.
⁹I will bring forth descendants^c from Jacob,
 and from Judah inheritors^d of my mountains;
 my chosen shall inherit it,
 and my servants shall settle there.

^a Gk Syr Old Latin Tg: Heb melted

^b Gk Syr: Heb your

^c Or a descendant

^d Or an inheritor

impure. No one calls upon the LORD because the LORD is the source of Israel’s punishment. 8–12: A final appeal for the LORD to cease the divine silence and the punishment of the nation. Now that the Temple is destroyed, the LORD’s relationship with the nation is in jeopardy. 8: Clay . . . potter, cf. 29.16; 45.9.

65.1–66.24: The LORD’s answer. The passage attempts to explain the failure of the nation to attain the ideals stated in the book by charging that evil still exists among the people. 1–7: The people rejected the LORD despite the LORD’s readiness to be sought. 3–4: Sacrificing in gardens, non-Israelite fertility rituals practiced in gardens (cf. 1.28–31; 66.17). A list of abominations follows, such as tomb rituals to worship or consult the dead (Deut 18.11–12) and the eating of swine’s flesh (66.17; Deut 14.8). 8–25: The seed of Jacob will be restored in the new creation on Zion, but the wicked will be destroyed. 9: The descendants of both Jacob (northern Israel) and Judah

¹⁰ Sharon shall become a pasture for flocks, and the Valley of Achor a place for herds to lie down,
for my people who have sought me.

¹¹ But you who forsake the LORD, who forget my holy mountain, who set a table for Fortune and fill cups of mixed wine for Destiny;

¹² I will destine you to the sword, and all of you shall bow down to the
slaughter;
because, when I called, you did not
answer,

when I spoke, you did not listen,
but you did what was evil in my sight,
and chose what I did not delight in.

¹³ Therefore thus says the Lord God:

My servants shall eat,
but you shall be hungry;
my servants shall drink,
but you shall be thirsty;
my servants shall rejoice,
but you shall be put to shame;

¹⁴ my servants shall sing for gladness of
heart,
but you shall cry out for pain of heart,
and shall wail for anguish of spirit.

¹⁵ You shall leave your name to my chosen to use as a curse,
and the Lord God will put you to death;
but to his servants he will give a different name.

¹⁶ Then whoever invokes a blessing in the
land
shall bless by the God of faithfulness, and whoever takes an oath in the land shall swear by the God of faithfulness;
because the former troubles are forgotten
and are hidden from my sight.

¹⁷ For I am about to create new heavens and a new earth;
the former things shall not be remembered
or come to mind.

¹⁸ But be glad and rejoice forever in what I am creating;
for I am about to create Jerusalem as a joy,
and its people as a delight.

¹⁹ I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and delight in my people;
no more shall the sound of weeping be heard in it,
or the cry of distress.

²⁰ No more shall there be in it an infant that lives but a few days, or an old person who does not live out
a lifetime;
for one who dies at a hundred years will be considered a youth,
and one who falls short of a hundred will be considered accursed.

²¹ They shall build houses and inhabit
them;
they shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit.

²² They shall not build and another inhabit;
they shall not plant and another eat;
for like the days of a tree shall the days of my people be,
and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands.

²³ They shall not labor in vain, or bear children for calamity;^a for they shall be offspring blessed by the LORD—
and their descendants as well.

^a Or sudden terror

will be restored in keeping with the LORD's covenant. 10: Sharon, the coastal plain south of Akko and the Carmel, formerly desolate (33.9), and Achor, the barren valley south of Jericho and west of the Dead Sea (Josh 7.24; Hos 2.15), will both become fertile pastureland. The border regions of Israel will be secure. 11–12: Fortune and Destiny, Heb "Gad" and "Meni," deities of fate and good luck venerated among Syrians, Arabs, and Nabateans. 12: When I called . . ., see Jer 7.12–13. 13–16: The contrasting fates of the wicked and the LORD's servants, i.e., those who are righteous. 15–16: The names of the reprobate will serve as a curse, like the names of the prophets Ahab and Zedekiah executed by the Babylonians (Jer 29.22). The giving of a new name signifies a new status (43.1,7; 44.1–5; 62.2). 17–25: The new heavens and earth essentially constitutes a new creation. Insofar as the Temple was the holy center of creation, its destruction and rebuilding entailed a new creation. Life in the restored land will be idyllic. 17b: Former things, 43.18. 20: The prediction of vastly increased life expectancy connotes a return to the original creation (cf. Gen 5). 21–23: The future Israel will witness the reversal of familiar curses attached to treaties and covenants; see 62.8–9; Deut 28.30. 22: Days of a tree, cf. 6.12–13; Job 14.7–9. 23: The imagery of ²⁴ Before they call I will answer, while they are yet speaking I will hear.

²⁵ The wolf and the lamb shall feed
together,
the lion shall eat straw like the ox;
but the serpent—its food shall be dust!
They shall not hurt or destroy
on all my holy mountain,

says the LORD.

66 Thus says the LORD:
Heaven is my throne
and the earth is my footstool;
what is the house that you would build
for me,
and what is my resting place?

² All these things my hand has made, and so all these things are mine,^a
says the LORD.

But this is the one to whom I will look,
to the humble and contrite in spirit,
who trembles at my word.

³ Whoever slaughters an ox is like one who kills a human being;
whoever sacrifices a lamb, like one who breaks a dog's neck;
whoever presents a grain offering, like one who offers swine's blood,^b whoever makes a memorial offering of frankincense, like one who blesses an idol.

These have chosen their own ways,
and in their abominations they take delight;

⁴ I also will choose to mock^c them,
and bring upon them what they fear;
because, when I called, no one answered,
when I spoke, they did not listen;
but they did what was evil in my sight,
and chose what did not please me.

⁵ Hear the word of the LORD,
you who tremble at his word:
Your own people who hate you and reject you for my name's sake have said, "Let the LORD be glorified, so that we may see your joy";
but it is they who shall be put to shame.

⁶ Listen, an uproar from the city!
A voice from the temple!
The voice of the LORD,
dealing retribution to his enemies!

⁷ Before she was in labor
she gave birth;
before her pain came upon her she delivered a son.

⁸ Who has heard of such a thing?
Who has seen such things?
Shall a land be born in one day?
Shall a nation be delivered in one moment?

Yet as soon as Zion was in labor
she delivered her children.

⁹ Shall I open the womb and not deliver?
says the LORD;
shall I, the one who delivers, shut the womb?
says your God.

¹⁰ Rejoice with Jerusalem, and be glad for
her,
all you who love her;
rejoice with her in joy,
all you who mourn over her—

¹¹ that you may nurse and be satisfied from her consoling breast;

^a Gk Syr: Heb these things came to be

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or to punish successful childbirth reverses that employed to describe the "day of the LORD" (13.8; cf. 26.17–18). 24–25: The idyllic portrayal of predators at peace with prey is drawn from 11.6–9.

66.1–24: Restoration for the righteous. 1–4: The Temple (house) only symbolizes the divine reality of the LORD's sovereignty (see 1 Kings 8.27). A saying directed against false understandings and expectations associated with the Jerusalem Temple and its sacrificial worship, rather than against the Temple as such or the project of rebuilding. Without an attitude of humility, sacrifice and offerings are of no use (cf. 1.10–17). 6: The judgment to come has its source in the Temple; cf. Joel 3.16; Am 1.2. 7–9: Here miraculously easy childbirth symbolizes the downfall of the old world and the rise of the new (contrast 13.8; 26.17–18; 37.3). 10–14: The imagery of the rejoicing Jerusalem extends the metaphor of childbirth to the portrayal of a nursing mother (cf. 54.1–17). River . . . overflowing stream, now an image of prosperity; contrast 8.6–8, which portrays the Assyrian onslaught as that you may drink deeply with delight from her glorious bosom.

¹²For thus says the LORD:

I will extend prosperity to her like a river, and the wealth of the nations like an overflowing stream;
and you shall nurse and be carried on her arm,
and dandled on her knees.

¹³As a mother comforts her child,
so I will comfort you;
you shall be comforted in Jerusalem.

¹⁴You shall see, and your heart shall rejoice;
your bodies^a shall flourish like the grass;
and it shall be known that the hand of the LORD is with his servants, and his indignation is against his enemies.

¹⁵For the LORD will come in fire,
and his chariots like the whirlwind,
to pay back his anger in fury,
and his rebuke in flames of fire.

¹⁶For by fire will the LORD execute
judgment,
and by his sword, on all flesh;
and those slain by the LORD shall be
many.

¹⁷Those who sanctify and purify themselves to go into the gardens, following the one in the center, eating the flesh of pigs, vermin, and rodents, shall come to an end together, says the LORD.

¹⁸For I know^b their works and their thoughts, and I am^c coming to gather all nations and tongues; and they shall come and shall see my glory,¹⁹ and I will set a sign among them. From them I will send survivors to the nations, to Tarshish, Put,^d and Lud—which draw the bow—to Tubal and Javan, to the coastlands far away that have not heard of my fame or seen my glory; and they shall declare my glory among the nations.²⁰ They shall bring all your kindred from all the nations as an offering to the LORD, on horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and on mules, and on dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, says the LORD, just as the Israelites bring a grain offering in a clean vessel to the house of the LORD.²¹ And I will also take some of them as priests and as Levites, says the LORD.

²²For as the new heavens and the new
earth,
which I will make,
shall remain before me, says the LORD;
so shall your descendants and your name remain.

²³From new moon to new moon,
and from sabbath to sabbath,
all flesh shall come to worship before me,
says the LORD.

²⁴And they shall go out and look at the dead bodies of the people who have rebelled against me; for their worm shall not die, their fire shall not be quenched, and they shall be an abhorrence to all flesh.

^a Heb bones

^b Gk Syr: Heb lacks know

^c Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb it is

^d Gk: Heb Pul

a flood that will inundate the land. 15–24: Judgment and new creation at Zion. 15–16: Theophanies and scenarios of judgment often feature fire (26.11; 29.5–6; 30.27,33; 31.9; 33.12,14; 34.10) and the LORD's sword (27.1; 31.8; 34.5–7). 17: See 65.3–4n. 18–21: The gathering of the nations at Zion recalls 2.2–4. Tarshish, see 2.16n.; Put, in Libya; Lud, Lydia in Asia Minor; Tubal, also in Asia Minor; Javan, Greece or Ionia. Those taken to be priests and Levites are drawn from the returned exiles, not from the nations. 22–23: The new creation (cf. 65.15–16) is declared permanent, like the old creation (Gen 9.8–17). 24: The book closes with a portrayal of the fate of the wicked, designed to motivate the audience to identify with the righteous.

JEREMIAH

NAME, CANONICAL LOCATION, AND CONTENTS

The book of Jeremiah, the second of the major prophets, is in chronological order between Isaiah and Ezekiel. Named for the prophet Jeremiah and written for the survivors of three Babylonian incursions against Judah (598, 587, and 582 BCE), the book portrays a world of trauma. The book reenacts the disastrous events of Judah's final decades as a national and religious community: the destruction of Jerusalem and its sanctuary, the end of political independence, the forfeiture of land, and the death and deportation of thousands. While the details of these losses are debated, Jeremiah interprets them as meaning-making events that signal the end of the nation's social and symbolic worlds, even the collapse of the order of creation (4.23–26). The losses frame and define the text. They engulf the text in suffering, and they form a tapestry of grief that envelops Jeremiah and Judah, as well as the cosmos and its creator.

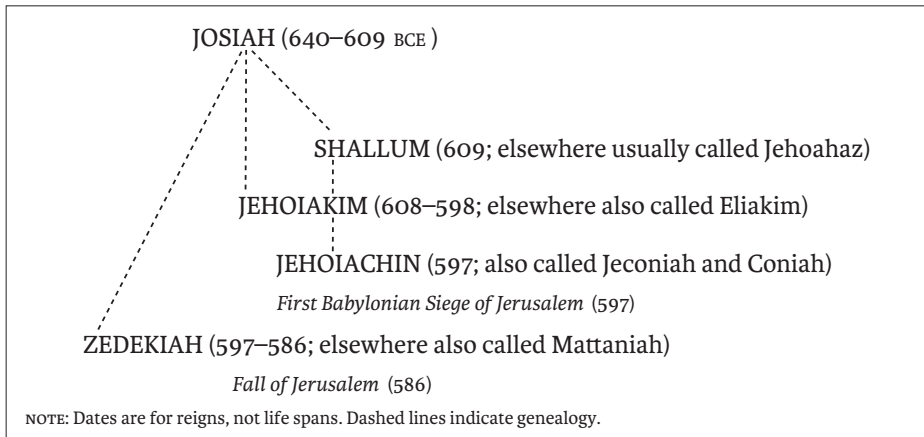

The book of Jeremiah contains both poetry and artistic prose. Poetry, especially the genre of lament or the dirge, dominates the first half of the book (chs 1–25). Even Jeremiah's oracles of judgment are often in the cadence of lamentations, as are the prophet's prayers, his so-called "confessions." Prose narratives predominate in the second half of the book (chs 26–52). The "Baruch narrative," the longest prose narrative in Jeremiah (chs 36–45), for example, has been described as a story of Jeremiah's suffering. Altogether the first half of Jeremiah predicts the traumatic end of the nation, whereas the second half depicts it, which some construed as the annulment of hope.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The prophet Jeremiah was the son of Hilkiah, a priest from Anathoth (1.1). The family may have been descended from the priest Abiathar, who was banished by Solomon to Anathoth (1 Kings 2.26,27). Jeremiah lived during the critical years spanning the reign of the King Josiah (640–609 BCE) and the subsequent fall and destruction of Jerusalem and the deportation of part of the Judean population into captivity (597–586 BCE), all at the hand of Nebuchadrezzar II of Babylon. Although some scholars interpret chs 2–6 and perhaps portions of chs 30–31 as the prophet's early preaching during Josiah's reign, no material in the book can be assigned to that time with certainty. Moreover, even though the prose sermons and the biographical narratives in the book bear strong linguistic resemblance to Deuteronomy and the Deuteronomistic History (Joshua–2 Kings), Jeremiah does not specifically mention Josiah's religious reform inspired by the discovery in the Temple of the "book of the law" in 622 BCE (2 Kings 22–23). These difficulties lead some scholars to regard 627 as the date of Jeremiah's birth (1.5) rather than as the beginning of his public career. After the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BCE, Jeremiah and his secretary Baruch chose to remain in Judah with Gedaliah, who had been appointed governor by the Babylonians. After Gedaliah's murder, the Judeans who had been with Gedaliah fled to Egypt, forcibly taking Jeremiah and Baruch with them. Jeremiah is last heard speaking judgment oracles against this community in Egypt in the years following 586 BCE (chs 40–45).

STRUCTURE, COMPOSITION, AND LITERARY HISTORY

Although the book of Jeremiah has its origins in the poetic prophetic oracles uttered by Jeremiah, these have been arranged in groupings that are not simply chronological. Moreover, alongside the prophetic oracles, the book also contains a good deal of prose—often written in the third person, influenced by the language and theology of Deuteronomy and the Deuteronomistic History (Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings), and including the historical appendix (ch 52) borrowed and expanded from 2 Kings 24.28–25.30. There are also many doublets (7.1–15 || 26.4–6; 7.32 || 19.6; 16.14–15 || 23.7–8). A system of superscriptions and chronological notes may have been inserted to make the book conform to the Deuteronomistic History. The relationship between the Hebrew Masoretic text (MT) and the Greek Septuagint (LXX) is also complicated; the text of the LXX is about one-eighth shorter than the MT, and has a different location for the oracles against the foreign nations (MT 25.15–38; chs. 46–51). One Hebrew manuscript from Qumran (4Q71) is close to the LXX. All of these features suggest that the book of Jeremiah was produced through a long process of editorial activity.

The last kings of Judah in the book of Jeremiah.

The book of Jeremiah is not entirely chaotic, but is made up of composite collections that are meaningfully arranged. The first half of the book, chs 1–25, includes accusations and indictments against Judah and Jerusalem, which anticipate the nation’s dismantling and death. This collection may have its origin in the scrolls of judgment oracles that Jeremiah is said to have dictated to Baruch (ch 36). The second half, chs 26–52, gives more attention to survival and hope. Chapters 27–29 are comprised of narratives about prophets with conflicting interpretations of Judah’s future. At the center is the “Book of Consolation,” an anthology of oracles and narratives of restoration (chs 30–33). Chapters 36–45, the so-called Baruch narrative, is a story of Jeremiah’s suffering and survival during Judah’s most vexing days. Chapters 46–51, oracles against the nations, close the Hebrew text of Jeremiah (MT) with a triumphant note of God’s victory over archenemy Babylon. Thus, as a whole, the book testifies to the divine work of both “plucking up and pulling down” and of “building and planting” (1.10).

In addition, the prose sermons in Jeremiah create a degree of order. They provide commentary and create a sense of narrative progression in the poetic contexts of chs 1–25. For example, the prose sermons frustrate Judah’s belief that God is unconditionally tied to its preexilic arrangements, as Jeremiah proclaims that Judah’s cherished beliefs and institutions—the Temple, covenant, election, land claims, and dynasty—will not protect the nation from looming disaster. Accordingly, the prophet assaults Judah’s worship at the Jerusalem Temple (ch 7), declares that the ancient covenant curses rather than blesses (ch 11), scrutinizes Israel’s election tradition (ch 18), subverts dynastic rights (ch 21), and sabotages ancient land claims (ch 25). Though such attacks were likely unwelcome, they aimed to help a displaced Judean community in Babylon relinquish its former world for a new social setting.

Finally, the persona of Jeremiah provides some order. Unlike other biblical prophets whose oracles eclipse their characters, stories about Jeremiah, his experiences, and his prayers are as important as his oracles. This archetypal figure not only speaks for God but engages God’s purposes and pathos in his own life. In this capacity, Jeremiah himself becomes God’s prophetic message. His devotion to God and suffering service, his life of supplication and protest, all take on paradigmatic force. In the end, Jeremiah emerges as God’s suffering servant, not unlike Second Isaiah’s “servant of the Lord.” Jeremiah endures enormous hardship at the hands of his enemies. He faces scorn and humiliation, suffers unjustly and in solidarity with the poor, and does not cover though his life is endangered. As a representative of war-torn people, Jeremiah testifies that suffering is neither shameful nor a sign of divine displeasure but rather an indication of one’s devotion to God. This unifying portrayal of Jeremiah organizes the text’s seemingly dissonant world.

Louis Stulman

1 The words of Jeremiah son of Hilkiyah, of the priests who were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, ² to whom the word of the LORD came in the days of King Josiah son of Amon of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign. ³ It came also in the days of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah, and until the end of the eleventh year of King Zedekiah son of Josiah of Judah, until the captivity of Jerusalem in the fifth month.

⁴ Now the word of the LORD came to me saying,

⁵ “Before I formed you in the womb I knew you,
and before you were born I consecrated you;
I appointed you a prophet to the nations.”

⁶ Then I said, “Ah, Lord God! Truly I do not know how to speak, for I am only a boy.” ⁷ But the LORD said to me,

“Do not say, ‘I am only a boy’; for you shall go to all to whom I send you,
and you shall speak whatever I command you.

⁸ Do not be afraid of them,
for I am with you to deliver you,
says the LORD.”

⁹ Then the LORD put out his hand and touched my mouth; and the LORD said to me,

“Now I have put my words in your mouth.

¹⁰ See, today I appoint you over nations and over kingdoms,
to pluck up and to pull down,
to destroy and to overthrow,
to build and to plant.”

¹¹ The word of the LORD came to me, saying, “Jeremiah, what do you see?” And I said, “I see a branch of an almond tree.” ^a ¹² Then the LORD said to me, “You have seen well, for I am watching^b over my word to perform it.”

¹³ The word of the LORD came to me a second time, saying, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see a boiling pot, tilted away from the north.”

¹⁴ Then the LORD said to me: Out of the north disaster shall break out on all the inhabitants of the land. ¹⁵ For now I am calling all the tribes of the kingdoms of the north, says the LORD; and they shall come and all of them shall set their thrones at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, against all its surrounding walls and against all the cities of Judah. ¹⁶ And I will utter my judgments against them, for all their wickedness

^a Heb shaqed

^b Heb shoqed

1.1–3: Superscription. The superscription resembles Hos 1.1; Am 1.1; Mic 1.1; Zeph 1.1 and represents a stage in the editing of the prophetic corpus. 1: The phrase the words of Jeremiah functions as bookends (1.1; 51.64; cf. 2 Chr 36.22–23). Anathoth, a small village about 3 mi (5 km) northeast of Jerusalem (modern Ras el-Kharrubeh), associated with the outlier priest Abiathar (cf. 1 Kings 2.26–27). 2–3: In the days of King Josiah . . . in the thirteenth year of his reign (627 BCE); until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah (587 BCE), a forty-year prophetic ministry. In the fifth month recalls the burning of the Temple and the razing of Jerusalem by the invading Babylonians (52.12; 2 Kings 25.8–12; Zech 7.3–5).

1.4–10: Jeremiah's call follows a typical pattern (see Ex 3–6; Judg 6.11–18; Isa 6) involving God's identification of a task and commission of the one called, the excuses of the one commissioned, God's promise to be with the one commissioned, and God's giving a sign. The call report authorizes Jeremiah's words and mission, drawing upon the figures of Moses, Solomon, and Isaiah's “servant of the LORD.” 4: Word of the LORD, the prophets' primary area of responsibility, often gained by visionary experience (see vv. 11.13; 18.18; Ezek 7.26). 5: Like the servant of the LORD in Isaiah, Jeremiah is chosen and formed . . . in the womb by God (Isa 44.1–2; 49.1,5) to be a prophet to the nations (Isa 42.1; 49.6). 6–8: I am only a boy, indicating apprentice or assistant status (cf. 1 Kings 3.7). I do not know how to speak, like Moses (Ex 3.1–6; 4.10–17) and Gideon (Judg 6.15), Jeremiah expresses a sense of inadequacy. 9: God addresses Jeremiah's reservations by putting words into his mouth (15.16; Ex 4.12; Deut 18.18; cf. Isa 6.7). 10: To pluck up and pull down . . . to build and plant, Jeremiah's twofold task of judgment and restoration (see, e.g., 12.14–17; 18.7–10; 24.6; 31.28,40; 42.10; 45.4; cf. 18.14).

1.11–19: Vision reports and their explanations. 11–12: Jeremiah sees an almond tree (Heb “shaqed”) and is assured that God is watching over (Heb “shoqed”) the prophetic word to fulfill it. For similar vision/puns see Am 7.7–9; 8.1–3. 13–14: The boiling pot, tilted away from the north foreshadows a military assault from the north against Judah and Jerusalem. The pot was boiling over as first Assyria and then Babylon exercised expansionist imperial policies against Judah and its neighbors (cf. 4.6; 6.1,22; 10.22). 15–16: Set their thrones at the entrance of in forsaking me; they have made offerings to other gods, and worshiped the works of their own hands.¹⁷ But you, gird up your loins; stand up and tell them everything that I command you. Do not break down before them, or I will break you before them.¹⁸ And I for my part have made you today a fortified city, an iron pillar, and a bronze wall, against the whole land—against the kings of Judah, its princes, its priests, and the people of the land.¹⁹ They will fight against you; but they shall not prevail against you, for I am with you, says the LORD, to deliver you.

2 The word of the LORD came to me, saying:
² Go and proclaim in the hearing of Jerusalem, Thus says the LORD:

I remember the devotion of your youth,
 your love as a bride,
 how you followed me in the wilderness,
 in a land not sown.

³ Israel was holy to the LORD,
 the first fruits of his harvest.
 All who ate of it were held guilty;
 disaster came upon them,

says the LORD.

⁴ Hear the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel.

⁵ Thus says the LORD:

What wrong did your ancestors find in
 me
 that they went far from me, and went after worthless things, and became worthless themselves?

⁶ They did not say, “Where is the LORD who brought us up from the land of Egypt, who led us in the wilderness,
 in a land of deserts and pits,
 in a land of drought and deep darkness,
 in a land that no one passes through,
 where no one lives?”

⁷ I brought you into a plentiful land to eat its fruits and its good things.
 But when you entered you defiled my
 land,
 and made my heritage an
 abomination.

⁸ The priests did not say, “Where is the LORD?”
 Those who handle the law did not know
 me;
 the rulers^a transgressed against me;
 the prophets prophesied by Baal,
 and went after things that do not profit.

^a Heb shepherds

the gates, at the place of judgment and justice; a sign of military conquest (39.3; 43.10). For all their wickedness, the invasion is divine punishment for Judah's infidelity. The works of their own hands, images and idols of other gods fashioned by artisans (10.9). 17: Gird up your loins, as if binding up a garment for hard travel (2 Kings 4.29; 9.1) or for battle (Job 38.3; Nah 2.1). 18: A fortified city . . . see also 6.27 textual note a; cf. 34.7. The whole land, if the target is Judah. But Heb “erets” also means “earth,” and expresses the universal commission of Jeremiah against nations and kingdoms. 19: I am with you, see also 1.8; 15.20; 30.11.

2.1–4.4: Divine grief over Israel's infidelity. This unit uses intertextual links, shifts in (Israel's) gender identity, dissonant voices, and contrasting emotions, as well as dialogue, satire, exhortation, and legal precedent to imagine God as a spurned lover longing for reunion with God's loved one. The metaphor of rejected lover unifies the larger context (see also Hos 1–3; Isa 1.21; Ezek 16; 23).

2.1–37: Accusations of betrayal. 1–13: The unit opens with memories of Israel's devotion to God in the wilderness, which functions as a literary foil and the basis for a lawsuit against Israel (vv. 4–13; cf. Hos 4.1–4; Mic 6.1–5; and, by contrast, Jer 12.1–4). 1: The wilderness period immediately after the Exodus is recalled in idealized terms as a period of fidelity to God (cf. Hos 2.14–15). 2: Devotion . . . love, loyalty and commitment. In a land not sown there was no temptation to worship the fertility gods of Canaan. 3: Israel was holy to the LORD, like sacrifices that were “most holy” and therefore reserved strictly for priestly consumption (Lev 5.15–16; 6.25–29); the nations who have devoured Israel, God's own holy portion, are guilty. First fruits, see Lev 23.9–14.

2.4–8: Israel defiles the land. 5: Worthless things, or “vaporous puffs of wind” (Heb “hevel”); cf. Eccl 1.2. 6–7: Inability to engage in lament indicates a loss of relationship. 8: The priests failed to lead the community in such complaint as was their responsibility. Those who handle the law, the priests who were to instruct the community in law (Heb “torah”). Prophesied by Baal, the Canaanite god; cf. Hos 2.8–17. Things that do not profit (Heb “ya'al”), a play on the name Baal (“ba'al”).

- ⁹Therefore once more I accuse you,
says the LORD,
and I accuse your children’s children.
- ¹⁰Cross to the coasts of Cyprus and look,
send to Kedar and examine with care;
see if there has ever been such a thing.
- ¹¹Has a nation changed its gods,
even though they are no gods?
But my people have changed their glory for something that does not profit.
- ¹²Be appalled, O heavens, at this,
be shocked, be utterly desolate,
says the LORD,
¹³for my people have committed two evils:
they have forsaken me,
the fountain of living water,
and dug out cisterns for themselves, cracked cisterns
that can hold no water.
- ¹⁴Is Israel a slave? Is he a homeborn
servant?
Why then has he become plunder?
- ¹⁵The lions have roared against him,
they have roared loudly.
They have made his land a waste;
his cities are in ruins, without
inhabitant.
- ¹⁶Moreover, the people of Memphis and Tahpanhes
have broken the crown of your head.
- ¹⁷Have you not brought this upon yourself
by forsaking the LORD your God, while he led you in the way?
- ¹⁸What then do you gain by going to Egypt,
to drink the waters of the Nile?
Or what do you gain by going to Assyria,
to drink the waters of the Euphrates?
- ¹⁹Your wickedness will punish you,
and your apostasies will convict you.
Know and see that it is evil and bitter for you to forsake the LORD your God;
the fear of me is not in you,
says the Lord GOD of hosts.
- ²⁰For long ago you broke your yoke
and burst your bonds,
and you said, “I will not serve!” On every high hill
and under every green tree
you sprawled and played the whore.
- ²¹Yet I planted you as a choice vine,
from the purest stock.
How then did you turn degenerate and become a wild vine?
- ²²Though you wash yourself with lye
and use much soap,
the stain of your guilt is still before me,
says the Lord GOD.
- ²³How can you say, “I am not defiled,
I have not gone after the Baals”?
Look at your way in the valley;
know what you have done—

2.9–13: God’s resulting legal accusation. Interrogation and accusation support evidence against Israel, including the claim that Israel has been unfaithful (v. 13). 9: I accuse you, language typical of the lawsuit oracle. 10: From the coasts of Cyprus to Kedar, that is from west to east. “Cyprus” or “Kittim” (Heb “kittiyyim”; see Gen 10.4; Isa 23.1), the distant western lands in the Mediterranean (later Greece, 1 Macc 1.1, and Rome, Dan 11.30). Kedar, a collective term for nomadic tribes in northern Arabia (49.28–33; Gen 25.13; Ps 120.5; Song 1.5; Isa 60.7; Ezek 27.21). 11: Does not profit, see v. 8n. 12: In the lawsuit oracle the heavens are witness to Israel’s guilt (cf. Mic 6.1–2).

2.14–19: Israel’s apostasy is enacted in illicit alliances with Egypt and Assyria, thereby sacrificing its freedom. 14: The rhetorical questions beg a negative response, but the present reality of subjugation suggests something fundamentally wrong. 15: The lions, Israel’s enemies; here, Assyria. 16: Memphis, a city in northern Egypt on the west bank of the Nile; Tahpanhes, an Egyptian border city also known as Baal-zaphon, where some Judeans flee after the death of Gedaliah (43.7–9; 44.1; 46.14). 18: Egypt . . . Assyria, the temptation was to make alliances with a stronger neighbor, to protect against other enemies (2 Kings 16.7; Isa 31.1). Such alliances showed a lack of faith in the LORD, and could involve worshiping the gods of the major treaty power, resulting in religious apostasy. Waters of the Nile . . . the Euphrates, contrast the fountain of living waters in v. 13.

2.20–28: Israel’s wild promiscuity. 21: God’s choice vine from purest stock turned into something wild, lit., “foreign”; see Isa 5.2; cf. Hos 10.1. 23: Baals, local manifestations of the chief Canaanite god of fertility. Heb “ba’al” means “master, husband, owner,” and Israel’s God might also be thought of as Israel’s husband or “ba’al” (3.14; 31.31; Hos 2.16), thereby creating religious confusion. The Baal worship elaborates the metaphor of Israel as a promiscuous spouse (cf. Hos 1–3). 23b–24: The image of animals in heat suggests the uncontrollable nature a restive young camel interlacing her tracks,

²⁴ a wild ass at home in the
wilderness,
in her heat sniffing the wind!
Who can restrain her lust?
None who seek her need weary
themselves;

in her month they will find her.
²⁵ Keep your feet from going unshod and your throat from thirst.
But you said, “It is hopeless,
for I have loved strangers,
and after them I will go.”

²⁶ As a thief is shamed when caught, so the house of Israel shall be shamed—

they, their kings, their officials, their priests, and their prophets, ²⁷ who say to a tree, “You are my father,” and to a stone, “You gave me birth.”
For they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces.

But in the time of their trouble they say, “Come and save us!”

²⁸ But where are your gods that you made for yourself?
Let them come, if they can save you,
in your time of trouble;
for you have as many gods
as you have towns, O Judah.

²⁹ Why do you complain against me?
You have all rebelled against me,
says the LORD.

³⁰ In vain I have struck down your
children;
they accepted no correction.
Your own sword devoured your prophets like a ravening lion.

³¹ And you, O generation, behold the word of the LORD!^a

Have I been a wilderness to Israel, or a land of thick darkness?
Why then do my people say, “We are free,
we will come to you no more”?

³² Can a girl forget her ornaments, or a bride her attire?
Yet my people have forgotten me,
days without number.

³³ How well you direct your course to seek lovers!
So that even to wicked women
you have taught your ways.

³⁴ Also on your skirts is found the lifeblood of the innocent poor, though you did not catch them breaking in.

Yet in spite of all these things^a ³⁵ you say, “I am innocent; surely his anger has turned
from me.”

Now I am bringing you to judgment for saying, “I have not sinned.”

³⁶ How lightly you gad about, changing your ways!
You shall be put to shame by Egypt as you were put to shame by Assyria.

³⁷ From there also you will come away with your hands on your head;
for the LORD has rejected those in whom you trust,
and you will not prosper through
them.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

of Israel's apostasy. 26: A thief is ashamed, the word “shame” was often used in place of the name Baal (see 2 Sam 3.8, textual note c). Kings . . . officials . . . priests . . . prophets . . ., Judah's national leadership. 27: The tree or wood pole (Heb “asherah”) symbolized the goddess Asherah, and the standing stone symbolized the god Baal and they were associated with Canaanite practices (see Ex 23.24; Deut 12.3; 1 Kings 16.33).

2.29–37: God's legal suit against Israel. 29: Complain against, formal lawsuit language. Israel's counter-complaint is without basis. 30: Devoured your prophets, that Israel neglected the prophets is a refrain of the Deuteronomistic editor of Jeremiah (7.25; 25.4; 25.15; 26.5; 29.19; 44.4); cf. 1 Kings 19.10; 2 Kings 21.16. 32: Cf. vv. 10–11. Days without number, contrasts Israel's early devotion (vv. 2–3). 34–35: If a thief was caught in the act, violence against the thief might be excusable (Ex 22.2–3). 36: Recalls the invasion of Judah and siege of Jerusalem by the Assyrians in 701 BCE (2 Kings 18.13–19.28). 37: Your hands on your head, a sign of deep mourning (2 Sam 13.19).

3 If^a a man divorces his wife and she goes from him
and becomes another man's wife, will he return to her?
Would not such a land be greatly polluted?
You have played the whore with many lovers;
and would you return to me?

says the LORD.

² Look up to the bare heights,^b and see!
Where have you not been lain with?
By the waysides you have sat waiting for
lovers,

like a nomad in the wilderness.
You have polluted the land with your whoring and wickedness.

³ Therefore the showers have been withheld,
and the spring rain has not come;
yet you have the forehead of a whore,
you refuse to be ashamed.

⁴ Have you not just now called to me, “My Father, you are the friend of my
youth—

⁵ will he be angry forever, will he be indignant to the end?”
This is how you have spoken, but you have done all the evil that you could.

⁶ The LORD said to me in the days of King Josiah: Have you seen what she did, that faithless one, Israel, how she went up on every high hill and under every green tree,

and played the whore there? ⁷ And I thought, “After she has done all this she will return to me”; but she did not return, and her false sister Judah saw it. ⁸ She^c saw that for all the adulteries of that faithless one, Israel, I had sent her away with a decree of divorce; yet her false sister Judah did not fear, but she too went and played the whore. ⁹ Because she took her whoredom so lightly, she polluted the land, committing adultery with stone and tree. ¹⁰ Yet for all this her false sister Judah did not return to me with her whole heart, but only in pretense, says the LORD.

¹¹ Then the LORD said to me: Faithless
Israel has shown herself less guilty than false Judah. ¹² Go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and say:

Return, faithless Israel,

says the LORD.

I will not look on you in anger,
for I am merciful,

says the LORD;

I will not be angry forever.

¹³ Only acknowledge your guilt, that you have rebelled against the LORD
your God,
and scattered your favors among strangers
under every green tree,
and have not obeyed my voice,
says the LORD.

^a Q Ms Gk Syr: MT Saying, If

^b Or the trails

^c Q Ms Gk Mss Syr: MT I

3.1–5: No return possible. Jeremiah uses an abbreviated form of the Deuteronomic law on marriage and divorce in the charges against Israel. 1: Will he return? The rhetorical question demands a negative answer. Deut 24.1–4 prohibits second marriages to the same person. To return or turn, repent, is repeated several times in the larger unit (e.g., vv. 7,10,12,14,22; 4.1; cf. Deut 4.30; 30.1–2,10). Although the analogy would exclude the possibility of repentance and reconciliation between people and God, later passages in the chapter envision such restoration. 2: Lain with, the MT contains two alternate readings of the verb. One (Heb “shagal”) is probably vulgar, meaning to have sex with or to be raped. Ancient editors preferred to read a passive form of “shakab,” “lain with.” 3: Israel’s behavior pollutes the environment and disrupts nature; see Hag 1.5–11. Forehead, i.e., stubbornness (cf. Isa 48.4). 4: The friend of my youth, Heb “alluph” implies God’s intimacy.

3.6–11: Israel and Judah’s continued unfaithfulness. Exilic-era prose continues the broken-marriage metaphor and argues that Judah is guiltier than Israel. 6: One of few specific references other than genealogical to King Josiah (640–609 BCE) in Jeremiah 1–25 (also 1.2; 25.3; see also 22.15–16). High hill . . . green tree, high places were sites for illicit worship, and the wood pole/tree represented the goddess Asherah (see 2.27n.) 8: Decree of divorce, see Deut 24.1–4. 9: Pollute, a priestly term for contaminating the sacred (see also 3.1,2; Lev 19.29; Num 35.33–34).

3.12–14: Call for Israel’s return. 12: Toward the north, the kingdom of Israel, north of Judah, had earlier been carried away by the Assyrians into captivity. What follows is directed to the Northern Kingdom. 13: Strangers,

¹⁴ Return, O faithless children,
 says the LORD,
 for I am your master;
 I will take you, one from a city and two
 from a family,
 and I will bring you to Zion.

¹⁵ I will give you shepherds after my own heart, who will feed you with knowledge and understanding. ¹⁶ And when you have multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, says the LORD, they shall no longer say, “The ark of the covenant of the LORD.” It shall not come to mind, or be remembered, or missed; nor shall another one be made. ¹⁷ At that time Jerusalem shall be called the throne of the LORD, and all nations shall gather to it, to the presence of the LORD in Jerusalem, and they shall no longer stubbornly follow their own evil will. ¹⁸ In those days the house of Judah shall join the house of Israel, and together they shall come from the land of the north to the land that I gave your ancestors for a heritage.

¹⁹ I thought
 how I would set you among my
 children,
 and give you a pleasant land,
 the most beautiful heritage of all the
 nations.
 And I thought you would call me, My Father,

and would not turn from following me.
²⁰ Instead, as a faithless wife leaves her husband,
 so you have been faithless to me,
 O house of Israel,
 says the LORD.

²¹ A voice on the bare heights^a is heard, the plaintive weeping of Israel’s
 children,
 because they have perverted their way,
 they have forgotten the LORD their God:

²² Return, O faithless children,
 I will heal your faithlessness.

“Here we come to you;
 for you are the LORD our God.

²³ Truly the hills are^b a delusion,
 the orgies on the mountains.

Truly in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.

²⁴ “But from our youth the shameful thing has devoured all for which our ancestors had labored, their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters. ²⁵ Let us lie down in our shame, and let our dishonor cover us; for we have sinned against the LORD our God, we and our ancestors, from our youth even to this day; and we have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God.”

^a Or the trails

^b GkSyr Vg: Heb Truly from the hills is implying a dangerous and defiling foreignness. 14: Return, O faithless children, the metaphor shifts from promiscuous spouse to disobedient children. I am your master (Heb “ba’alti bakem”), the Heb word “ba’al” also means husband; see 2.23n.

3.15–18: Israel’s restoration. 15: Shepherds, kings and leaders. Feed you, lit., “shepherd you.” After my own heart, a description reminiscent of David (1 Sam 13.14). 16: Ark of the covenant, Judah’s central religious symbol may have been removed in a military attack and no longer in the Temple by Jeremiah’s time. Later tradition credited Jeremiah with hiding the Ark following the destruction of the Temple (2 Macc 2.4–5) on Mount Nebo, the site of Moses’s secret burial (Deut 34.1,6). 17: As part of the divine throne, the ark was God’s footstool (1 Chr 28.2; Ps 132.7–8); now Jerusalem itself will become God’s throne. 18: Land of the north, both Assyria and Babylon were symbolically located in the north; see 1.14n.

3.19–4:4: God’s plea for Israel’s return. A return to the motif of God’s prodigal children and promiscuous spouse to speak of Israel’s apostasy and God’s longing for reconciliation. 19: Addressed to the young woman. Normally women did not inherit property, as illustrated by the case of the daughters of Zelophehad (Num 26.33; 27.1–7; 36.2–9; cf. also Job 42.15). A pleasant land, cf. Ps 106.24; Zech 7.14. Father, see 3.4. 21: Bare heights, hot, dry, barren land, scene of Israel’s misery (see 14.6). 23: A delusion (Heb “sheqer”), a play on code language for the Canaanite god Baal. Orgies is a strong translation; Heb “hamon” implies only the tumultuous noise of a crowd out of control. 24: Shameful thing, a reference to Baal; see 2.26n. Devoured, on voracious divine appetites see 51.33–44; cf. Bel 1–28. 25: As Israel lay with Baal (3.2), so now they will lie down in their shame (see v. 24) as

4 If you return, O Israel,
 says the LORD,
 if you return to me,
 if you remove your abominations from my
 presence,
 and do not waver,
² and if you swear, “As the LORD lives!”
 in truth, in justice, and in uprightness, then nations shall be blessed^a by him,
 and by him they shall boast.
³ For thus says the LORD to the people of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem:
 Break up your fallow ground,
 and do not sow among thorns.
⁴ Circumcise yourselves to the LORD, remove the foreskin of your hearts,
 O people of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem,
 or else my wrath will go forth like fire,
 and burn with no one to quench it,
 because of the evil of your doings.
⁵ Declare in Judah, and proclaim in Jerusalem, and say:
 Blow the trumpet through the land;
 shout aloud^b and say, “Gather together, and let us go into the fortified cities!”
⁶ Raise a standard toward Zion, flee for safety, do not delay,
 for I am bringing evil from the north,
 and a great destruction.
⁷ A lion has gone up from its thicket,

a destroyer of nations has set out;
 he has gone out from his place
 to make your land a waste;
 your cities will be ruins
 without inhabitant.
⁸ Because of this put on sackcloth, lament and wail:
 “The fierce anger of the LORD
 has not turned away from us.”

⁹ On that day, says the LORD, courage shall fail the king and the officials; the priests shall be appalled and the prophets astounded. ¹⁰ Then I said, “Ah, Lord God, how utterly you have deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, ‘It shall be well with you,’ even while the sword is at the throat!”

¹¹ At that time it will be said to this people and to Jerusalem: A hot wind comes from me out of the bare heights^c in the desert toward my poor people, not to winnow or cleanse—¹² a wind too strong for that. Now it is I who speak in judgment against them.

¹³ Look! He comes up like clouds, his chariots like the whirlwind;
 his horses are swifter than eagles—woe to us, for we are ruined!

^a Or shall bless themselves

^b Or shout, take your weapons: Heb shout, fill (your hand)

^c Or the trails

the consequence mirrors the offense. 4.1: Return, see 3.1n. The conditions of return involve renunciation of other gods and commitment to the LORD. 2: As the LORD lives, a call for sincere oath-taking in God’s name in judicial cases. Nations shall be blessed, cf. Gen 12.2–3; 18.18. 3–4: Two images of reconciliation: break up your fallow ground (see also Hos 10.12), an agricultural metaphor based on cultivating land for growth; circumcise yourselves, a sign of Israel’s covenant relationship with God (Gen 17.10–14); foreskin of your hearts is a Deuteronomic expression that suggests sincere and faithful obedience to God (see Deut 10.16; 30.6; see also Jer 9.25–26; Ezek 44.7).

4.5–18: A state of emergency. The enemy approaches at God’s command, making the threat mythic in scope. 5. The trumpet, lit., “ram’s horn” (Heb “shophar”) was used for signaling, especially in battle (4.19; Judg 3.27; 6.34). Here the signal is for taking refuge inside the walled city. 6: A standard, any visible marker, such as a pole or signal fire, that could be seen from a distance. The letters from Lachish, contemporary to this period, refer to the signal fire from Azekah as no longer visible; cf. 34.7. 7: A lion has gone up, Nebuchadnezzar II of Babylon (605–562 BCE), though God, too, can be described as a lion on the prowl (25.36–38; 49.19; 50.44), or as a predator watching its prey (1.12; 5.6; 44.27). 9–10: Jeremiah charges God with deceiving the people by convincing them that everything will be well, lit., “peace” (Heb “shalom”). Deceived this people and Jerusalem, perhaps an allegation that God is responsible for sending prophets who speak ill-timed words of hope (6.14; 8.11; 23.17; cf. 1 Kings 22.19–23). 11: From me is lacking in the Hebrew, though clearly God stands behind this invasion. My poor people, lit., “the daughter of my people.” No sympathy is suggested, however. 12: The wind is too strong

¹⁴ O Jerusalem, wash your heart clean of wickedness

so that you may be saved.

How long shall your evil schemes lodge within you?

¹⁵ For a voice declares from Dan and proclaims disaster from Mount Ephraim.

¹⁶ Tell the nations, "Here they are!"

Proclaim against Jerusalem,

"Besiegers come from a distant land; they shout against the cities of Judah.

¹⁷ They have closed in around her like watchers of a field, because she has rebelled against me, says the LORD.

¹⁸ Your ways and your doings have brought this upon you.

This is your doom; how bitter it is! It has reached your very heart."

¹⁹ My anguish, my anguish! I writhe in pain!

Oh, the walls of my heart!

My heart is beating wildly;

I cannot keep silent;

for I^a hear the sound of the trumpet, the alarm of war.

²⁰ Disaster overtakes disaster, the whole land is laid waste.

Suddenly my tents are destroyed, my curtains in a moment.

²¹ How long must I see the standard, and hear the sound of the trumpet?

²² "For my people are foolish, they do not know me;

they are stupid children, they have no understanding.

They are skilled in doing evil, but do not know how to do good."

²³ I looked on the earth, and lo, it was waste and void;

and to the heavens, and they had no light.

²⁴ I looked on the mountains, and lo, they were quaking, and all the hills moved to and fro.

²⁵ I looked, and lo, there was no one at all, and all the birds of the air had fled.

²⁶ I looked, and lo, the fruitful land was a desert, and all its cities were laid in ruins before the LORD, before his fierce anger.

²⁷ For thus says the LORD: The whole land shall be a desolation; yet I will not make a full end.

²⁸ Because of this the earth shall mourn, and the heavens above grow black; for I have spoken, I have purposed; I have not relented nor will I turn back.

²⁹ At the noise of horseman and archer every town takes to flight; they enter thickets; they climb among rocks; all the towns are forsaken, and no one lives in them.

³⁰ And you, O desolate one, what do you mean that you dress in crimson, that you deck yourself with ornaments of gold, that you enlarge your eyes with paint?

In vain you beautify yourself.

Your lovers despise you; they seek your life.

³¹ For I heard a cry as of a woman in labor, anguish as of one bringing forth her first child,

^a Another reading is for you, O my soul, to winnow, as it would blow both chaff and grain away. 15: Dan, in the far north; Ephraim, in the center; the movement is toward Jerusalem. 16–17: Besiegers . . . watchers, those who guard against anyone escaping from the city under siege.

4.19–28: The anguished voice of the prophet. Jeremiah is both God's spokesperson and an intercessor, an indication of being a true prophet (27.18). 20: Tents . . . curtains, though often used of the sanctuary (see 10.20n.), here the terms likely refer to Israel as God's dwelling (see 49.29; Isa 54.2; Hab 3.7). 22: Skilled (lit., "wise") in doing evil, in fact they are fools, the opposite of wise. 23: The earth . . . was waste and void . . . and . . . the heavens . . . had no light, the wreckage of war is a return of the world to the primeval state of chaos (cf. Gen 1.1–3). The undoing of creation ends in desolation, unlike the Priestly creation account, which ends with rest. 25: No one, lit., no human being (Heb "adam"). 27: I will not make a full end, wholesale judgment is mitigated; see also 5.18; 30.11; 46.28.

4.29–31: Israel the rejected whore. 30: Crimson . . . gold, signs of wealth (2 Sam 1.24). Although bejeweled and fully made up, Israel has already been rejected by her lovers; cf. Ezek 16. 31: For I heard a cry, a bystander the cry of daughter Zion gasping for breath,

stretching out her hands,
“Woe is me! I am fainting before killers!”

5 Run to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem,
look around and take note!
Search its squares and see if you can find one person who acts justly
and seeks truth—
so that I may pardon Jerusalem.^a ² Although they say, “As the LORD lives,” yet they swear falsely.
³ O LORD, do your eyes not look for truth?
You have struck them,
but they felt no anguish;
you have consumed them,
but they refused to take correction.
They have made their faces harder than
rock;
they have refused to turn back.

⁴ Then I said, “These are only the poor, they have no sense;
for they do not know the way of the
LORD,
the law of their God.

⁵ Let me go to the rich^b and speak to them;
surely they know the way of the LORD,
the law of their God.”

But they all alike had broken the yoke,
they had burst the bonds.

⁶ Therefore a lion from the forest shall kill
them,
a wolf from the desert shall destroy
them.
A leopard is watching against their cities;
everyone who goes out of them shall be torn in pieces—
because their transgressions are many,
their apostasies are great.

⁷ How can I pardon you?
Your children have forsaken me,
and have sworn by those who are no gods.

When I fed them to the full,
they committed adultery and trooped to the houses of prostitutes.

⁸ They were well-fed lusty stallions, each neighing for his neighbor's wife.

⁹ Shall I not punish them for these things?
says the LORD;
and shall I not bring retribution
on a nation such as this?

¹⁰ Go up through her vine-rows and destroy,

^a Heb it

^b Or the great

hears Jerusalem gasping for breath in the presence of her killers/lovers. Daughter Zion, metaphors shift from daughter Zion as a rejected harlot to a woman in the agony of childbirth. Both reveal the hopelessness of Judah's circumstances.

5.1–6.30: Indictments against Judah and Jerusalem. The judgment oracles in ch 5 consist of three parts, each introduced by a plural imperative (vv. 1–9, 10–19, 20–31). Each elucidates the offenses for which judgment is warranted. Chapter 6 is organized into five poems, three of which are introduced by the prophetic formula Thus says the LORD of hosts (vv. 9, 16, 22). Together the chapters assert that Judah and its capital city are without excuse.

5.1–9: No one is righteous. 1: One person . . . so I may pardon, reminiscent of Abraham's intercession for Sodom (Gen 18.16–33; cf. Ezek 14.14, 20). Pardon was not granted to Sodom, nor will it be granted to Jerusalem. 2: As the LORD lives, a solemn oath that occurs throughout the book (e.g., 4.2; 12.16; 16.14; 38.16). 4–5: The poor . . . the rich . . . all alike, inclusive language implying systemic corruption. 6: Vicious predatory animals symbolize the coming enemy, but God can be similarly described; see 4.7n. 7: How can I pardon you? is a rhetorical question which demands a negative response, though eventually God does pardon (see, e.g., 31.34; cf. Hos 11.8–9). Adultery . . . prostitutes, used symbolically of religious apostasy, perhaps resulting from international contacts; see 2.18n. 9: A refrain in this section (see 5.29), repeated in 9.9.

5.10–19: Destruction despite Israel's deluded self-confidence. 10: For the image of Israel as a vineyard, see 12.10; Isa 5.1–7; Ezek 19.10–14. 12: He will do nothing, representing the false words of the prophets (v. 14); cf. Zeph but do not make a full end;

strip away her branches,
for they are not the LORD's.

¹¹ For the house of Israel and the house of Judah
have been utterly faithless to me,
says the LORD.

¹² They have spoken falsely of the LORD, and have said, "He will do nothing.
No evil will come upon us,
and we shall not see sword or famine."

¹³ The prophets are nothing but wind, for the word is not in them.
Thus shall it be done to them!

¹⁴ Therefore thus says the LORD, the God of
hosts:
Because they^a have spoken this word,
I am now making my words in your mouth
a fire,
and this people wood, and the fire shall devour them.

¹⁵ I am going to bring upon you a nation from far away, O house of Israel,
says the LORD.

It is an enduring nation,
it is an ancient nation,
a nation whose language you do not
know,
nor can you understand what they say.

¹⁶ Their quiver is like an open tomb;
all of them are mighty warriors.

¹⁷ They shall eat up your harvest and your food;
they shall eat up your sons and your daughters;
they shall eat up your flocks and your herds;
they shall eat up your vines and your
fig trees;

they shall destroy with the sword your fortified cities in which you trust.

¹⁸ But even in those days, says the LORD, I will not make a full end of you. ¹⁹ And when your people say, "Why has the LORD our God done all these things to us?" you shall say to them, "As you have forsaken me and served foreign gods in your land, so you shall serve strangers in a land that is not yours."

²⁰ Declare this in the house of Jacob, proclaim it in Judah:

²¹ Hear this, O foolish and senseless
people,
who have eyes, but do not see,
who have ears, but do not hear.

²² Do you not fear me? says the LORD;
Do you not tremble before me?
I placed the sand as a boundary for the
sea,
a perpetual barrier that it cannot pass;
though the waves toss, they cannot
prevail,
though they roar, they cannot pass
over it.

²³ But this people has a stubborn and rebellious heart;
they have turned aside and gone away.

²⁴ They do not say in their hearts,
"Let us fear the LORD our God,
who gives the rain in its season,
the autumn rain and the spring rain,
and keeps for us
the weeks appointed for the harvest."

²⁵ Your iniquities have turned these away, and your sins have deprived you of good.

^a Heb you

1.12. The Hebrew is ambiguous, perhaps "he is nothing" or "It will not happen." ¹³: Wind, i.e., "spirit," an ironic statement about the lack of inspiration of prophetic visions. ^{15–17}: Divine judgment will come in the form of military assault, likely by either Assyria (if this is an early oracle) or Babylon (if a later oracle). The fourfold use of the word eat up (devour) in v. 17 underscores the intensity of the attack; see Lev 26.16; Deut 28.25–37. ^{18–19}: I will not make a full end of you, mitigates the destruction described in v. 17.

5.20–31: Israel's foolishness is evident in its lack of reverence for God and in its injustice toward the vulnerable. ²¹: Cf. Isa 6.9–10. ²²: Fear, v. 24; see also Prov 1.7; Job 1.1; Eccl 12.13). Sand as a boundary for the sea, God set a limit for the primeval chaos (see Gen 1.2–8; Job 38.8–11; Ps 104.9). Israel, however, does not recognize its moral boundaries (vv. 22–31, esp. v. 28). ²³: Stubborn and rebellious recalls perverse behavior by a son that has deadly consequences (Deut 21.18–21). ²⁴: The weeks appointed, the seven-week period between the first cutting and

²⁶ For scoundrels are found among my people;
 they take over the goods of others.
 Like fowlers they set a trap;^a they catch human beings.
²⁷ Like a cage full of birds,
 their houses are full of treachery;
 therefore they have become great and rich, ²⁸ they have grown fat and sleek.
 They know no limits in deeds of wickedness;
 they do not judge with justice
 the cause of the orphan, to make it prosper,
 and they do not defend the rights of the needy.
²⁹ Shall I not punish them for these things?
says the LORD,
 and shall I not bring retribution
 on a nation such as this?
³⁰ An appalling and horrible thing has happened in the land:
³¹ the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests rule as the prophets direct;^b
 my people love to have it so, but what will you do when the end comes?

6 Flee for safety, O children of Benjamin,
 from the midst of Jerusalem!
 Blow the trumpet in Tekoa, and raise a signal on Beth-haccherem;

 for evil looms out of the north,
 and great destruction.
² I have likened daughter Zion to the loveliest pasture.^c ³ Shepherds with their flocks shall come against her.
 They shall pitch their tents around her;
 they shall pasture, all in their places.
⁴ “Prepare war against her;
 up, and let us attack at noon!” “Woe to us, for the day declines, the shadows of evening lengthen!” ⁵ “Up, and let us attack by night, and destroy her palaces!”
⁶ For thus says the LORD of hosts:
 Cut down her trees;
 cast up a siege ramp against Jerusalem.
 This is the city that must be punished;^d there is nothing but oppression within
 her.
⁷ As a well keeps its water fresh,
 so she keeps fresh her wickedness;
 violence and destruction are heard within
 her;
 sickness and wounds are ever before me.
⁸ Take warning, O Jerusalem, or I shall turn from you in disgust,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or rule by their own authority

^c Or I will destroy daughter Zion, the loveliest pasture

^d Or the city of license

festival of weeks or Pentecost (Deut 16.9–10). 26–28: Using wisdom language and motifs, the prophet charges Judah with folly, insensibility, and indifference to the plight of the poor. They take over the goods of others, or perhaps “They lurk like hunters crouching.” The image is that of hunting birds and stuffing them into baskets. As if trapping birds, the wicked trap the orphan and the needy, the most vulnerable members of society; cf. Isa 1.17; Am 2.6–7; Mic 3.1–3; Zech 7.10; Ex. 22.21–24; Deut 24.17–18. 29: See v. 9n. 31: The priests rule as the prophets direct, lit., “the priests rule over their hands.” Either the priests make decisions on the basis of false prophecy, or they dominate the prophets and censor their message; see 20.1–2; 29.26–27.

6.1–8: War out of the north is looming. A series of warnings convey a heightened sense of urgency. 1: The advance is not merely mythic but city-specific. The tribal territory of Benjamin was directly north of Jerusalem. Tekoa, hometown of the prophet Amos (Am 1.1), ca. 11 mi (18 km) south of Jerusalem. The verb “blow (trumpet)” (Heb “tiq’u”) plays on the name “Tekoa”; see 4.5–6n. Beth-haccherem (“vineyard house”), a district in Judah (Neh 3.14), perhaps Ramat-rahel, ca. 3 mi (5 km) south of Jerusalem. 3: Shepherds with their flocks, enemy rulers and their troops. The verb used of “pitching” a tent is the same used of “blowing” a trumpet in v. 1. 4–5: Alternating quotations of the enemy and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Prepare, lit., “sanctify,” since war required a state of ritual purity; also 22.7; 51.27–28; Joel 3.9; Mic 3.5. 6: God’s word for Babylon’s troops. Cut down her trees for building siege ramps to storm defensive walls; see 33.4; Deut 20.19–20. 7: Sickness and wounds, cf. v. 14. 8: Turn from you in disgust, the verb used here (Heb “teqa”) again plays on the name Tekoa (see vv. 1n., 3n.) and indicates a dislocation of something, as in the dislocation of Jacob’s hip (Gen 32.26).

and make you a desolation,
an uninhabited land.

⁹ Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Glean^a thoroughly as a vine
the remnant of Israel;
like a grape-gatherer, pass your hand again
over its branches.

¹⁰ To whom shall I speak and give warning, that they may hear?
See, their ears are closed,^b
they cannot listen.

The word of the LORD is to them an object of scorn;
they take no pleasure in it.

¹¹ But I am full of the wrath of the LORD;
I am weary of holding it in.

Pour it out on the children in the street, and on the gatherings of young men as well;

both husband and wife shall be taken,
the old folk and the very aged.

¹² Their houses shall be turned over to others,
their fields and wives together;
for I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land,
says the LORD.

¹³ For from the least to the greatest of them, everyone is greedy for unjust gain;
and from prophet to priest,
everyone deals falsely.

¹⁴ They have treated the wound of my people carelessly, saying, "Peace, peace,"

when there is no peace.

¹⁵ They acted shamefully, they committed
abomination;
yet they were not ashamed,
they did not know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;
at the time that I punish them, they shall be overthrown,
says the LORD.

¹⁶ Thus says the LORD:
Stand at the crossroads, and look,
and ask for the ancient paths,
where the good way lies; and walk in it,
and find rest for your souls.
But they said, "We will not walk in it."

¹⁷ Also I raised up sentinels for you:
"Give heed to the sound of the trumpet!"
But they said, "We will not give heed."

¹⁸ Therefore hear, O nations, and know, O congregation, what will happen to them.

¹⁹ Hear, O earth; I am going to bring disaster on this people,
the fruit of their schemes,
because they have not given heed to my words;
and as for my teaching, they have rejected it.

²⁰ Of what use to me is frankincense that comes from Sheba,
or sweet cane from a distant land?
Your burnt offerings are not acceptable,
nor are your sacrifices pleasing to me.

²¹ Therefore thus says the LORD:

^a Cn: Heb They shall glean

^b Heb are uncircumcised

6.9–15: Israel refuses to heed the sentinel's warning. Verses 12–15 are a near doublet of 8.10–12. 9: Glean thoroughly conveys the scope and intensity of divine judgment. Gleaning allowed the poor to pick what remained after the regular harvest (Deut 24.21). 10: Their ears are closed, see 5.21n. 11: The prophet's personal agony; see 20.9. Taken, captured by the enemy. 13–14: The city's greed, corruption, and indifference to the wound of my people (cf. v. 7) is systemic. Prophetic promises of peace and wellbeing are delusional; cf. Ezek 13.10.

6.16–21: Israel's refusal to heed warnings continues. 16: Considering the past, the ancient paths, where the good way lies, is a way to negotiate the present predicament. Crossroads and ways (see also vv. 25, 27) may suggest the ancient covenant, Israel's core values, and the written traditions (see, e.g., 3.21; 4.18; 7.3, 5; 10.2). 17: Sentinels, likely an allusion to prophets (Ezek 3.17; Hos 9.8), to give further warnings, which also go unheeded. 20–21: Sheba, in Arabia, valued for its spice trade (Isa 60.6; Ezek 27.22). All these items, including sweet cane, were offered to God in smoke (burnt offerings) as a pleasing odor in Israel's Temple worship (see Lev 1.9; Isa 43.24), but God rejects them because of the people's disobedience (cf. 7.21–22; see also 1 Sam 15.22; Isa 1.10–17; Mic 6.6–8).

See, I am laying before this people stumbling blocks against which they shall stumble;
parents and children together,
neighbor and friend shall perish.

²² Thus says the LORD:
See, a people is coming from the land of the north,

a great nation is stirring from the farthest parts of the earth.

²³ They grasp the bow and the javelin, they are cruel and have no mercy,
their sound is like the roaring sea;
they ride on horses,
equipped like a warrior for battle,
against you, O daughter Zion!

²⁴ “We have heard news of them,
our hands fall helpless;
anguish has taken hold of us,
pain as of a woman in labor.

²⁵ Do not go out into the field,
or walk on the road;
for the enemy has a sword,
terror is on every side.”

²⁶ O my poor people, put on sackcloth, and roll in ashes;

make mourning as for an only child,
most bitter lamentation:
for suddenly the destroyer
will come upon us.

²⁷ I have made you a tester and a refiner^a among my people
so that you may know and test their
ways.

²⁸ They are all stubbornly rebellious, going about with slanders;
they are bronze and iron,
all of them act corruptly.

²⁹ The bellows blow fiercely, the lead is consumed by the fire;
in vain the refining goes on,
for the wicked are not removed.

³⁰ They are called “rejected silver,”
for the LORD has rejected them.

7 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ²Stand in the gate of the LORD’s house, and proclaim there this word, and say, Hear the word of the LORD, all you people of Judah, you that enter these gates to worship the LORD. ³Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Amend your ways and your

^a Or a fortress

6.22–26: Refusing the warning, the enemy comes and Israel is called to ritual mourning. 22: On the enemy from the north, see 1.14n. 23: Ride on horses, that is, horse-drawn chariots, the major battlefield war machines. 25: Terror is on every side, a phrase used elsewhere in the book to convey palpable danger (see 20.3,10; 46.5; 49.29; see also Ps 31.13). 26: O my poor people, see 4.11n. Put on sackcloth . . . roll in ashes, ritual actions associated with mourning and entreaty for divine favor in crisis situations (see Jon 3.6; Isa 58.5; Dan 9.3).

6.27–30: Conclusion to the oracles from the time of King Josiah: Israel’s final rejection: The ending to the larger literary unit: Jeremiah the “tester” of metals and “refiner” must determine the quality of the people’s “ways” (cf. Isa 48.10; Zech 13.9; Mal 3.2–4), and discovers little of value. The first major block of the book contrasts an obedient prophet—whom God makes “an iron pillar, and a bronze wall” (1.18)—with the “stubbornly rebellious” people who are “bronze and iron” (6.28). Thus, the call of Jeremiah in ch 1 and the concluding words in ch 6 function as an inclusio, an envelope-structure that marks chs 1–6 as a unit.

7.1–8.3: The Temple is no panacea for Judah. The first major prose discourse in the book, written in a style and theological perspective similar to Deuteronomy and the Deuteronomistic History. This and subsequent prose sermons serve to deconstruct core beliefs, institutions, and power arrangements (see also 11.1–13; 18.1–12; 21.1–10; 25.1–14).

7.1–15: The Temple sermon opens the unit 7.1–10.25, which depicts the sickness, death, and funeral of Judah along with Judah’s acceptance of its fate. The Temple sermon is generally associated with the events of ch 26 and Jeremiah’s first arrest in 609 BCE, given the thematic connections of chs 7 and 26. Here, Jeremiah asserts that the Temple, the center of Judean life and the divine residence on earth, is no guarantee of God’s presence and protection. Jeremiah declares that true worship demands the just and gracious treatment of others, especially the vulnerable and needy, in accordance with the ethical demands of the written tradition (e.g., Deut 10.18–19; Am 5.21–24). 3: Let me dwell, not a request but rather a promise that God will indeed dwell with the doings, and let me dwell with you^a in this place. ⁴Do not trust in these deceptive words: “This is^b the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD.”

⁵For if you truly amend your ways and your doings, if you truly act justly one with another, ⁶if you do not oppress the alien, the orphan, and the widow, or shed innocent blood in this place, and if you do not go after other gods to your own hurt, ⁷then I will dwell with you in this place, in the land that I gave of old to your ancestors forever and ever.

⁸Here you are, trusting in deceptive words to no avail. ⁹Will you steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, make offerings to Baal, and go after other gods that you have not known, ¹⁰and then come and stand before me in this house, which is called by my name, and say, “We are safe!”—only to go on doing all these abominations? ¹¹Has this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your sight? You know, I too am watching, says the LORD. ¹²Go now to my place that was in Shiloh, where I made my name dwell at first, and see what I did to it for the wickedness of my people Israel. ¹³And now, because you have done all these things, says the LORD, and when I spoke to you persistently, you did not listen, and when I called you, you did not answer, ¹⁴therefore I will do to the house that is called by my name, in which you trust, and to the place that I gave to you and to your ancestors, just what I did to Shiloh. ¹⁵And I will cast you out of my sight, just as I cast out all your kinsfolk, all the offspring of Ephraim.

¹⁶As for you, do not pray for this people, do not raise a cry or prayer on their behalf, and do not intercede with me, for I will not hear you. ¹⁷Do you not see what they are doing in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? ¹⁸The children gather wood, the fathers kindle fire, and the women knead dough, to make cakes for the queen of heaven; and they pour out drink offerings to other gods, to provoke me to anger. ¹⁹Is it I whom they provoke? says the LORD. Is it not themselves, to their own hurt? ²⁰Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: My anger and my wrath shall be poured out on this place, on human beings and animals, on the trees of the field and the fruit of the ground; it will burn and not be quenched.

^a Or and I will let you dwell

^b Heb They are people under changed conditions. In this place, the land God has given to Israel; see v. 7; 14.13,15; 24.5–6. 4: The Temple was regarded as a place of sanctuary where one might seek refuge from reprisal; see 17.1n.; 1 Kings 1.50; 2.28. The people believe that their mere presence in the Temple renders them safe (v. 10). Although liturgical tradition expressed God’s protection of Jerusalem and the Temple (e.g., Pss 46; 48; 76; see also Isa 31.4; 37.35), it is deceptive (lit., a “lie,” Heb “sheqer”) to think that it assures God’s protection. The temple of the LORD, Jeremiah parodies an entrance liturgy that celebrates the Temple as a sanctuary from misfortune. 5–7: The alien, the orphan, and the widow, the most vulnerable persons at the bottom of the socio-economic hierarchy; see also 22.3; Deut 10.18–19; 24.17–22; 27.19; Isa 10.2; 59.7; Hos 3.1. Innocent blood, 19.4; 22.3,17; 26.15; cf. 2 Kings 21.16. 8: Deceptive words, see v. 4n. 9–10: Five of the ten words/commandments (Ex 20.1–17; Deut 5.6–21). In this house, which is called by my name, see 32.34; 34.15 cf. 25.29; 1 Kings 8.43; 2 Chr 6.33; 20.9; Dan 9.18–19; characteristic of Deuteronomistic theology, which speaks of God choosing a place “to put his name there” (Deut 12.5; 14.23). 11: A den of robbers, a refuge for criminals. 12: At first, or “formerly.” Shiloh, ca. 20 mi (32 km) north of Jerusalem, was destroyed during the early Philistine wars; see 1 Sam 4–6; Ps 78.60. Jeremiah’s own family was descended from the priests of Shiloh through Abiathar, David’s priest who was exiled to Anathoth by Solomon (1 Kings 2.26–27). 15: Ephraim, the most important northern tribal group, representing the whole Northern Kingdom, which had been defeated and deported by the Assyrians a century earlier.

7.16–20: Jeremiah prohibited from intercession. 16: The ban on prophetic prayer (11.14; 14.11) violates one of the duties of the prophet (27.18; Am 7.2,5). 18: Queen of heaven, a title associated with the Assyrian-Babylonian goddess Ishtar, also known as Astarte (see 44.15–30; cf. Judg 2.13; 10.6; 1 Sam 7.3–4; 2 Kings 21.1–9; 23.13). 19: To their own hurt, or “to the shame (Heb “boshet”; see 2.26n.) of their face.” 20: See also 5.17. Burn and not be quenched, cf. 4.4; 21.12; Isa 1.31; Am 5.6.

²¹ Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices, and eat the flesh. ²² For in the day that I brought your ancestors out of the land of Egypt, I did not speak to them or command them concerning burnt offerings and sacrifices. ²³ But this command I gave them, “Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people; and walk only in the way that I command you, so that it may be well with you.” ²⁴ Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but, in the stubbornness of their evil will, they walked in their own counsels, and looked backward rather than forward. ²⁵ From the day that your ancestors came out of the land of Egypt until this day, I have persistently sent all my servants the prophets to them, day after day; ²⁶ yet they did not listen to me, or pay attention, but they stiffened their necks. They did worse than their ancestors did.

²⁷ So you shall speak all these words to them, but they will not listen to you. You shall call to them, but they will not answer you. ²⁸ You shall say to them: This is the nation that did not obey the voice of the LORD their God, and did not accept discipline; truth has perished; it is cut off from their lips.

²⁹ Cut off your hair and throw it away;
raise a lamentation on the bare heights,^a

for the LORD has rejected and forsaken the generation that provoked his wrath.

³⁰ For the people of Judah have done evil in my sight, says the LORD; they have set their abominations in the house that is called by my name, defiling it. ³¹ And they go on building the high place^b of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire—which I did not command, nor did it come into my mind. ³² Therefore, the days are surely coming, says the LORD, when it will no more be called Topheth, or the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of Slaughter: for they will bury in Topheth until there is no more room. ³³ The corpses of this people will be food for the birds of the air, and for the animals of the earth; and no one will frighten them away. ³⁴ And I will bring to an end the sound of mirth and gladness, the voice of the bride and bridegroom in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; for the land shall become a waste.

8 At that time, says the LORD, the bones of the kings of Judah, the bones of its officials, the bones of the priests, the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be brought out of

^a Or the trails

^b Gk Tg: Heb high places

7.21–26: Sacrifice and obedience. 21: While part of the sacrifice was eaten by the one offering it, the burnt offering was offered up whole to God in smoke. Eating both typifies the ritual abuses of Israel. 22–23: I did not speak . . . concerning . . . sacrifices, the Exodus preceded the giving of the sacrificial laws at Sinai; see also Am 5.25. Ritual actions are no substitute or replacement for moral integrity; see also 6.20; Isa 1.11–17 Hos 6.6; Am 5.21–24. I will be your God, and you shall be my people, a covenant formula; see also 11.4; 24.7; 31.32; Ex 6.7; Lev 26.12. 24: In the stubbornness of their evil will, a recurrent theme (9.14; 11.8; 13.10; 16.12; 18.12; 23.17). 25: That God has persistently sent all my servants the prophets is a principle of Deuteronomistic theology explicit in Jeremiah; see 25.4; 26.5; 29.19; 35.15; 44.4; 2 Kings 17.13,23; 21.10; 24.2.

7.27–8.3: Israel's death announced. Israel's lack of obedience leads to its death, consistent with the language of Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut 30.19). 27: Like Isaiah (6.9–11), Jeremiah will preach to an audience unwilling or unable to hear. 28: Did not accept discipline, cf. 2.30; 5.3. 29: Cut off your hair . . . raise a lamentation, funeral rituals; see also 16.6n. 30: The house that is called by my name, see v. 10n. 31–32: High place, see 3.6n. Topheth (lit., “fire pit”); cf. Isa 30.33 and textual note a there). In the valley of the son of Hinnom, a valley to the west and south of Jerusalem, which was associated with child sacrifice (19.1–13; 2 Chr 33.6), a practice strictly forbidden in Lev 18.21 and Deut 18.10, and said to be abolished by Josiah (2 Kings 23.10). The name Valley of Hinnom (Heb “ge’ hinnom”) lies behind the later name Gehenna, used for the netherworld as a fire-pit. 33: No one will frighten them away, exposure of a dead corpse was an act of desecration and shaming; cf. 2 Sam 21.1–10. 34: On this formulaic language see 16.9; 25.10; cf. 33.11. The land shall become a waste, a punishment for covenantal disobedience; see Lev 26.31–33. 8.1–3: On exhuming the remains as a way of shaming the deceased, see 16.4; 1 Kings 13.2; 2 Kings 23.14,16. Bones were also unclean, so spreading them upon sacred sites defiled the worship of the

their tombs;² and they shall be spread before the sun and the moon and all the host of heaven, which they have loved and served, which they have followed, and which they have inquired of and worshiped; and they shall not be gathered or buried; they shall be like dung on the surface of the ground.

³ Death shall be preferred to life by all the remnant that remains of this evil family in all the places where I have driven them, says the LORD of hosts.

⁴ You shall say to them, Thus says the

LORD:

When people fall, do they not get up again?

If they go astray, do they not turn back?

⁵ Why then has this people^a turned away in perpetual backsliding?

They have held fast to deceit, they have refused to return.

⁶ I have given heed and listened, but they do not speak honestly; no one repents of wickedness, saying, "What have I done!"

All of them turn to their own course, like a horse plunging headlong into battle.

⁷ Even the stork in the heavens knows its times; and the turtledove, swallow, and crane^b observe the time of their coming;

but my people do not know the ordinance of the LORD.

⁸ How can you say, "We are wise, and the law of the LORD is with us," when, in fact, the false pen of the scribes has made it into a lie?

⁹ The wise shall be put to shame, they shall be dismayed and taken; since they have rejected the word of the

LORD,

what wisdom is in them?

¹⁰ Therefore I will give their wives to others and their fields to conquerors, because from the least to the greatest everyone is greedy for unjust gain; from prophet to priest everyone deals falsely.

¹¹ They have treated the wound of my people carelessly, saying, "Peace, peace," when there is no peace.

¹² They acted shamefully, they committed abomination;

yet they were not at all ashamed, they did not know how to blush.

Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;

at the time when I punish them, they shall be overthrown,

says the LORD.

¹³ When I wanted to gather them, says the LORD,

^a One Ms Gk: MT this people, Jerusalem,

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

deities mentioned here. 2: All the host of heaven, the stars, astral deities whose worship was forbidden (Deut 4.19; 17.3; 2 Kings 23.4–5; cf. Jer 7.17–18).

8.4–9.26: Israel's wisdom is reduced to the funeral dirge. As darkness descends on the nation, diverse voices denounce God's people, while others lament their fate. First is the charge that God's people "refuse to return" (8.4–13). The people's loss of moral focus and dire circumstances trigger a cacophony of suffering voices. The first wave of grief is over the realization that disaster, not peace, approaches (8.14–16). A second wave is over the inevitability of disaster: "we are not saved" (8.20). God, or God's prophet, is crushed by the corruption of God's people (9.1–3). Still another weeps and wails at the total wreckage (9.10–11). The requiem includes the work of professional mourners who weep for a fallen nation (9.17–22). 8.4–12: Unlike migratory birds that know and follow the proper order, God's people betray the order of creation by rejecting God's ways (v. 7; see also Isa 1.2–3). They trade in avarice and falsehood (v. 10), and they shamelessly commit idolatry (v. 12). Though guilt is systemic (v. 10), the nation's failed leadership bears the brunt of responsibility. Scribes, prophets, and priests betray their sacred duties. 4–6: The Heb root "shuv," often translated "turn" or "return" in chs 2–6, reappears five times, here also translated "go astray," "backsliding," accentuating Israel's refusal to repent. 8–9: False pen of the scribes, normally it is the priest who is responsible for guarding and dispensing law or instruction (Heb "torah"), though some scribes were also priests (cf. Ezra 7.11). 10–12: Cf. the near doublet at 6.12–15. 13–15: Gather, a term associated with fall harvesting. With no produce to be gathered, the people gather together for there are^a no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the fig tree;

even the leaves are withered,
and what I gave them has passed away from them.^b

¹⁴ Why do we sit still?

Gather together, let us go into the fortified cities
and perish there;
for the LORD our God has doomed us to perish,
and has given us poisoned water to
drink,
because we have sinned against the
LORD.

¹⁵ We look for peace, but find no good,
for a time of healing, but there is terror
instead.

¹⁶ The snorting of their horses is heard from Dan;
at the sound of the neighing of their stallions
the whole land quakes.

They come and devour the land and all that fills it,
the city and those who live in it.

¹⁷ See, I am letting snakes loose among
you,
adders that cannot be charmed,
and they shall bite you,

says the LORD.

¹⁸ My joy is gone, grief is upon me,
my heart is sick.

¹⁹ Hark, the cry of my poor people from far and wide in the land: “Is the LORD not in Zion?

Is her King not in her?” (“Why have they provoked me to anger with their images,
with their foreign idols?”)

²⁰ “The harvest is past, the summer is ended,
and we are not saved.”

²¹ For the hurt of my poor people I am hurt,
I mourn, and dismay has taken hold of
me.

²² Is there no balm in Gilead?
Is there no physician there?
Why then has the health of my poor
people
not been restored?

9^c O that my head were a spring of water, and my eyes a fountain of tears,
so that I might weep day and night for the slain of my poor people!

^{2d} O that I had in the desert
a traveler’s lodging place, that I might leave my people and go away from them!
For they are all adulterers,
a band of traitors.

³ They bend their tongues like bows;
they have grown strong in the land for falsehood, and not for truth;

^a Or I will make an end of them, says the LORD. There are

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Ch 8.23 in Heb

^d Ch 9.1 in Heb

death, acknowledging their wrongdoing and the force of divine punishment. 16–17: Horses, the chief animals of warfare (see 6.23n.). Dan, the northern frontier city of Israel; see also 4.15. The sound of military troops is a tangible sign of the city’s doom. Adders, snakes known to be nonresponsive to being charmed by whispering; see Ps 58.4–5; Eccl 10.11.

8.18–9.3: Israel is sick unto death, and God grieves. 8.19: My poor people, repeated in vv. 21,22; see 4.11n. Because the LORD is king in Zion, it is an offense that they have not removed the images and idols from God’s presence. 20–21: The harvest is past, see 8.13–15n. Death and mourning rituals are near at hand. 22: Gilead, in northern Transjordan, was known for its medicinal resins, including balm (46.11; Gen 37.25). With plenty of medicine at hand, Jerusalem is nevertheless dying. 9.1: Spring of water, the people have drunk “poison water” (Heb “mero’sh,” 8.14), but an entire “head of waters” (Heb “ro’shi mayim”) cannot provide tears enough to mourn Israel’s death. Weep day and night for, the motif of the weeping God is present also in the lament traditions of the ancient Near East. 2: Like the psalmist (Ps 55.6–7), God imagines a far-away place in the desert to escape. 3: Bend their tongues like bows, that is, they string (lit., “thread”) their tongues so that their words can be shot like deadly arrows; cf. v. 8, where the tongue is the arrow.

for they proceed from evil to evil, and they do not know me, says the
LORD.

⁴ Beware of your neighbors, and put no trust in any of your kin;^a
for all your kin^b are supplanters, and every neighbor goes around like a slanderer.

⁵ They all deceive their neighbors,
and no one speaks the truth;
they have taught their tongues to speak lies;
they commit iniquity and are too weary to repent.^c

⁶ Oppression upon oppression, deceit^d upon deceit!
They refuse to know me, says the
LORD.

⁷ Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts:
I will now refine and test them,
for what else can I do with my sinful people?^e

⁸ Their tongue is a deadly arrow;
it speaks deceit through the mouth.
They all speak friendly words to their neighbors,
but inwardly are planning to lay an ambush.

⁹ Shall I not punish them for these things?
says the LORD;
and shall I not bring retribution
on a nation such as this?

¹⁰ Take up^f weeping and wailing for the
mountains,
and a lamentation for the pastures of
the wilderness,

because they are laid waste so that no one passes through,
and the lowing of cattle is not heard;
both the birds of the air and the animals
have fled and are gone.

¹¹ I will make Jerusalem a heap of ruins,
a lair of jackals;
and I will make the towns of Judah a
desolation,
without inhabitant.

¹² Who is wise enough to understand this?
To whom has the mouth of the LORD spoken, so that they may declare it? Why is the land ruined and laid waste like a wilderness, so that no one passes through? ¹³ And the LORD says: Because they have forsaken my law that I set before them, and have not obeyed my voice, or walked in accordance with it, ¹⁴ but have stubbornly followed their own hearts and have gone after the Baals, as their ancestors taught them. ¹⁵ Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am feeding this people with wormwood, and giving them poisonous water to drink. ¹⁶ I will scatter them among nations that neither they nor their ancestors have known; and I will send the sword after them, until I have consumed them.

^a Heb in a brother

^b Heb for every brother

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb they weary themselves with iniquity. ⁶ Your dwelling

^d Cn: Heb Your dwelling in the midst of deceit

^e Or my poor people

^f Gk Syr: Heb I will take up

9.4–9: The LORD’s warnings. Acts of incivility, including contempt, dishonesty, exploitation, and disregard for the ancient ethic of hospitality, are evidence of Israel’s rejection of God; see also 9.3. 4: Supplanters (Heb “aqob ya’qob”), Israel is characterized by its name, Jacob (“ya’aqob”), as full of oppression and deceit; see Gen 25.26 (textual note d); 27.36; Hos 12.3. Slanderer (Heb “rakil”), perhaps a play on the name of Jacob’s wife Rachel (“rahel”). 7: Refine them and test them, such efforts in purging Israel of its dross have already proven ineffective (see 6.27–30n.). Sinful people, lit., “daughter (of) my people,” as in 8.19; see 4.11n. 9: See 5.9n.

9.10–26: Only professional singers of the funeral dirge are truly wise. 10–11: God is both the destroyer and the one who calls for lamentation (Heb “qinah”) for the destruction of the earth. The poet does not set divine anger against divine sorrow, as if the two are mutually exclusive; the two emotions convey the complexity of grief. Cattle . . . birds . . . animals . . . jackals, the displacement of domestic animals by wild animals is a conventional way of representing the destruction of a city or a land (Isa 13.20–22; 34.10–15). 13–14: Baals, see 2.23n. 15: Wormwood, an extremely bitter and poisonous herbal extract; cf. 23.15; Deut 29.17; Am 6.12. Poisonous water,

17 Thus says the LORD of hosts:
 Consider, and call for the mourning women to come;
 send for the skilled women to come; 18 let them quickly raise a dirge over us, so that our eyes may run down with tears,
 and our eyelids flow with water.
 19 For a sound of wailing is heard from Zion:
 “How we are ruined!
 We are utterly shamed,
 because we have left the land,
 because they have cast down our dwellings.”

20 Hear, O women, the word of the LORD, and let your ears receive the word of his
 mouth;
 teach to your daughters a dirge,
 and each to her neighbor a lament.
 21 “Death has come up into our windows,
 it has entered our palaces,
 to cut off the children from the streets and the young men from the squares.”
 22 Speak! Thus says the LORD: “Human corpses shall fall like dung upon the open field, like sheaves behind the reaper,
 and no one shall gather them.”

23 Thus says the LORD: Do not let the wise boast in their wisdom, do not let the mighty boast in their might, do not let the wealthy boast in their wealth; 24 but let those who boast boast in this, that they understand and know me, that I am the LORD; I act with steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth, for in these things I delight, says the LORD.

25 The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will attend to all those who are circumcised only in the foreskin: 26 Egypt, Judah, Edom, the Ammonites, Moab, and all those with shaven temples who live in the desert. For all these nations are uncircumcised, and all the house of Israel is uncircumcised in heart.

10 Hear the word that the LORD speaks to you, O house of Israel. 2 Thus says the
 LORD:

Do not learn the way of the nations, or be dismayed at the signs of the
 heavens;

for the nations are dismayed at them.

3 For the customs of the peoples are false:
 a tree from the forest is cut down,
 and worked with an ax by the hands of an artisan;

4 people deck it with silver and gold;
 they fasten it with hammer and nails
 so that it cannot move.

cf. 8.14. Israel is experiencing death by poisoning. 17: God marshals professional mourners, skilled (lit., “wise”) women, to lead the nation in a public ritual of grief. 21: Death entering through the window echoes a theme from Canaanite mythology regarding the god Baal’s own palace. 22: No one shall gather them, echoing 8.13–14. 25: Circumcised only in the foreskin, other nations also practiced physical circumcision, but that is no substitute for circumcision of the heart, i.e., obedience. Alternatively, by calling the house of Israel uncircumcised in heart, and by grouping Israel with other nations, the text questions Judah’s privileged status; see 4.4n.; Ezek 44.7. 26: Shaven temples, lit., “cutting the corners,” a custom of desert inhabitants (25.23; 49.32) but prohibited for Israelites (Lev 19.27; 21.5).

10.1–25: Praise for the living God. Reflections on worship frame the larger literary unit, 7.1–10.25. Whereas the Temple sermon in ch 7 is an indictment for abuses in worship, 10.1–16 is a hymn of praise that expresses deep and abiding devotion.

10.1–18: Israel’s judgment doxology contrasts the living God with nations’ idols, which are referred to as “gods” only in v. 11, an Aramaic gloss. This Temple liturgy lauds the power and wisdom of the LORD, and denigrates “the way of the nations.” For exilic and postexilic readers who were challenged by competing religious systems, the song celebrates the God of Israel as trustworthy, dependable, and in control of human destiny. 1–10: A characteristic satire of human-made idols, similar to Isa 44.9–20. 2: Dismayed at the signs of the heavens, i.e., obsessed by astrological phenomena. Many deities were associated with stars and planets. 3: The word false—as well as the words idols (v. 8) and worthless (v. 15)—are translations of Heb “hevel,” which conveys the notion of emptiness, vapor or a puff of air (see also 2.5; 8.19; 14.22; 51.18; Eccl 1.2,14,2.11). 4: Deck it, that is “adorn

⁵ Their idols^a are like scarecrows in a cucumber field,
and they cannot speak;
they have to be carried,
for they cannot walk.
Do not be afraid of them,
for they cannot do evil,
nor is it in them to do good.

⁶ There is none like you, O LORD;
you are great, and your name is great in
might.

⁷ Who would not fear you, O King of the
nations?
For that is your due;
among all the wise ones of the nations and in all their kingdoms
there is no one like you.

⁸ They are both stupid and foolish;
the instruction given by idols
is no better than wood!^b

⁹ Beaten silver is brought from Tarshish, and gold from Uphaz.
They are the work of the artisan and of the hands of the goldsmith;
their clothing is blue and purple;
they are all the product of skilled workers.

¹⁰ But the LORD is the true God;
he is the living God and the everlasting King.
At his wrath the earth quakes, and the nations cannot endure his indignation.

¹¹ Thus shall you say to them: The gods who did not make the heavens and the earth shall perish from the earth and from under the heavens.^c

¹² It is he who made the earth by his power, who established the world by his
wisdom,
and by his understanding stretched out
the heavens.

¹³ When he utters his voice, there is a tumult of waters in the heavens,
and he makes the mist rise from the
ends of the earth.

He makes lightnings for the rain,
and he brings out the wind from his
storehouses.

¹⁴ Everyone is stupid and without knowledge;
goldsmiths are all put to shame by their
idols;

for their images are false,
and there is no breath in them.

¹⁵ They are worthless, a work of delusion;
at the time of their punishment they
shall perish.

¹⁶ Not like these is the LORD,^d the portion
of Jacob,
for he is the one who formed all things,
and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance;
the LORD of hosts is his name.

¹⁷ Gather up your bundle from the ground,
O you who live under siege!

^a Heb They

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c This verse is in Aramaic

^d Heb lacks the LORD

it, beautify it" (cf. Isa 40.18–20; 41.6–7). So that it cannot move, or "so that it will not teeter." 5: Like scarecrows in a cucumber field, obscure reference, meaning they are either as stiff as a post or totally lifeless, although made to look human (or divine); cf. Isa 1.8; Let Jer 1.70. They cannot speak . . . cannot walk, for similar caricatures of idols see Pss 115.3–8; 135.15–18; Isa 44.9–20. Whereas God carried Israel (e.g., Deut 1.31; Hos 11.3), such idols have to be carried themselves (Isa 46.3–7). That such gods can do neither good nor harm is a complaint also used against God (Zeph 1.12). 6–10: A hymn of praise, contrasting God with foreign idols. The incomparability of God is a common theme in such doxologies; see Ex 15.11; Deut 33.26; Ps 113.5. 9: Tarshish, most likely Tarsus in Turkey, or perhaps Tartessus in southern Spain; on Tarshish as a source of silver, see 1 Kings 10.22; Isa 60.9. Uphaz, unknown (Dan 10.5), perhaps an error for Ophir, a region in southern Arabia famous for gold (see 1 Kings 9.28). 10: The earth quakes, God's wrath disrupts the created order (cf. 9.10n.). 11: This verse is in Aramaic (see textual note c), indicating that it is a later gloss. 12–16: Continues the doxology using traditional creation language (Isa 42.5; 44.24; Job 9.8; Zech 12.1). 12: On creation as effected by divine wisdom, see 51.15; Prov 8.22–31. 13: An ancient mythological image was that of the creator god giving his voice in thunder, defeating the chaotic power of the primeval seas; see Ps 29.1–11. Storehouses, see Deut 28.12; Job 38.22; Pss 33.7; 135.7. 14: False, the same Heb word ("sheqer") that describes worship at the Jerusalem Temple in 7.4; cf. 7.8. 17–18: Gather together (cf. 8.13,14; 9.22) in preparation for exile.

¹⁸ For thus says the LORD:
I am going to sling out the inhabitants of the land
at this time,
and I will bring distress on them,
so that they shall feel it.

¹⁹ Woe is me because of my hurt!
My wound is severe.
But I said, “Truly this is my punishment,
and I must bear it.”

²⁰ My tent is destroyed, and all my cords are broken;
my children have gone from me,
and they are no more;
there is no one to spread my tent again,
and to set up my curtains.

²¹ For the shepherds are stupid,
and do not inquire of the LORD;
therefore they have not prospered,
and all their flock is scattered.

²² Hear, a noise! Listen, it is coming—a great commotion from the land of the north

to make the cities of Judah a desolation,
a lair of jackals.

²³ I know, O LORD, that the way of human beings is not in their control, that mortals as they walk cannot direct their steps.

²⁴ Correct me, O LORD, but in just measure; not in your anger, or you will bring me to nothing.

²⁵ Pour out your wrath on the nations that do not know you,
and on the peoples that do not call on
your name;
for they have devoured Jacob;
they have devoured him and consumed
him,
and have laid waste his habitation.

11 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ²Hear the words of this covenant, and speak to the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ³You shall say to them, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel:

10.19–25: Israel accepts God’s judgment. Following her doxology, Israel confesses guilt and accepts divine punishment. 19: Wound, Heb “shever,” has a range of meanings in Jeremiah, including “destruction” (4.6; 6.1), “disaster” (4.20), “hurt” (8.21), and “a crushing blow” (14.17). 20–21: Tent . . . cords . . . curtains are used metaphorically of Jerusalem and the Temple; see Ex 26.12; 35.18; 39.40. The invading Babylonians destroyed Judah’s infrastructure in 586 BCE and carried the leaders (shepherds) and wealthy into captivity (52.1–30). Other critiques of their failed leadership occur in 22.13–23, 24–30; 23.1–2; Ezek 34.1–6). 22: As elsewhere, this invasion comes from . . . the north (1.13–15; 4.6; 6.22; 25.9). 23–25: A prayer, citing Prov 20.24 (v. 23) and Ps 79.6–7 (v. 25). 23: Cf. Prov 16.9; 20.24. 24: Cf. 46.28; Ps 141.5. 25: Biblical piety allows the one experiencing divine judgment also to call for divine action against the enemies who “devour” God’s portion; see 2.3; Pss 7.6, 9; 79.6–7.

11.1–17.27: Accusation and lament. The unit has three parts: 11.1–12.17; 13.1–15.21; and 16.1–17.27. Each begins with a prose sermon or prose account that highlights divine judgment, followed by one or more laments (11.18–12.13; 15.15–21; 17.14–18). This juxtaposition creates a degree of narrative coherence. At God’s command, Jeremiah challenges aspects of Israel’s cherished beliefs, traditions, and institutions; the people retaliate, determined to silence God’s voice; and Jeremiah cries out to God for justice, declaring his innocence and his adversaries’ culpability.

11.1–12.17: The covenant is no panacea for Judah. Whereas the first prose sermon made the case that the Temple and its liturgical systems would not save Judah from disaster (7.1–15), the second prose sermon (11.1–14) emphasizes the devastating consequences of breaking the ancient covenant. It claims that the people, not God, are responsible for the collapse of their world. Jeremiah’s disturbing message (11.1–8) incites conspiracies (11.9–10) and attempts on his life (11.18–23), which in turn contribute to the prophet’s first lament (12.1–4; see also 12.7–13).

11.1–17: Broken covenant. The prose discourse depicts Jeremiah, like Moses, imploring God’s people to obey the terms of the covenant. The disobedience of Israel’s ancestors and their punishment has not prompted Israel to any greater degree of faithfulness. Even intercession is of no assistance. Much of the language echoes the book of Deuteronomy (v. 3, Deut 27.26; v. 4, Deut 4.20; v. 5, oath . . . ancestors, Deut 7.8, 12–13; a land flowing with milk and honey, Deut 6.3; 11.9; as at this day, Deut 6.24; 10.15). Heb “shama,” translated as “hear,” “heed,”

Cursed be anyone who does not heed the words of this covenant,⁴ which I commanded your ancestors when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron-smelter, saying, Listen to my voice, and do all that I command you. So shall you be my people, and I will be your God,⁵ that I may perform the oath that I swore to your ancestors, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day. Then I answered, “So be it, LORD.”

⁶ And the LORD said to me: Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem: Hear the words of this covenant and do them.⁷ For I solemnly warned your ancestors when I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, warning them persistently, even to this day, saying, Obey my voice.⁸ Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but everyone walked in the stubbornness of an evil will. So I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did not.

⁹ And the LORD said to me: Conspiracy exists among the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.¹⁰ They have turned back to the iniquities of their ancestors of old, who refused to heed my words; they have gone after other gods to serve them; the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken the covenant that I made with their ancestors.¹¹ Therefore, thus says the LORD, assuredly I am going to bring disaster upon them that they cannot escape; though they cry out to me, I will not listen to them.¹² Then the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go and cry out to the gods to whom they make offerings, but they will never save them in the time of their trouble.¹³ For your gods have become as many as your towns, O Judah; and as many as the streets of Jerusalem are the altars to shame you have set up, altars to make offerings to Baal.

¹⁴ As for you, do not pray for this people, or lift up a cry or prayer on their behalf, for I will not listen when they call to me in the time of their trouble.¹⁵ What right has my beloved in my house, when she has done vile deeds? Can vows^a and sacrificial flesh avert your doom? Can you then exult?¹⁶ The LORD once called you, “A green olive tree, fair with goodly fruit”; but with the roar of a great tempest he will set fire to it, and its branches will be consumed.¹⁷ The LORD of hosts, who planted you, has pronounced evil against you, because of the evil that the house of Israel and the house of Judah have done, provoking me to anger by making offerings to Baal.

¹⁸ It was the LORD who made it known to me, and I knew;

^a Gk: Heb Can many

“listen,” and “obey,” occurs nine times in this brief sermon, five of which are negated—e.g., “they did not obey” or “they refused to heed,” culminating in the alarming prospect of a God who will “not listen” to Judah’s entreaties. 1–5: Recalls the curses and blessings that typically conclude a treaty or covenant agreement. 1: Customary introduction to prose sermons; see 7.1; 18.1; 21.1; 25.1. 2–3: An invocation of the covenant curses upon the noncompliant (Deut 27.26). 4: Your ancestors, those led by Moses from Egypt in the Exodus. In this tradition, the covenant was made with Moses at Sinai. So shall you be my people . . ., see 7.23n. 5: The oath that I swore to your ancestors, that is, to the generations of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. These ancestors did not receive a “covenant” but rather an “oath” or “promissory note.” The promissory note was for the land of Canaan, flowing with milk and honey (see Ex 13.5; Deut 6.3; 11.9; 26.15). So be it (Heb “amen”), LORD, the technical response accepting the consequences of a self-imprecation when swearing an oath; see Deut 27.15–26. 6–8: Given the failure of their ancestors, the people are subject to the treaty curses. 7: Your ancestors, that is, the generation of Moses. 8: All the words of this covenant, the curse of v. 3, but more generally of Deut 28.15–44. 9–13: Israel’s present disobediences (going “after other gods,” v. 10) is a return to the “iniquities of their ancestors,” that is, of the generation of Moses. 9: Conspiracy, used specifically of plots of rebellion against the king; see 2 Sam 15.12; 2 Kings 11.14. 13: Shame (Heb “boshet”), is a metaphor for the Canaanite god Baal (see 2.26n.; 3.24; 7.19). 14: God’s refusal to listen to Israel’s cry (v. 11) has as its corollary God’s refusal to allow Jeremiah to intercede on their behalf (see 7.16n.). 16: Green olive tree, on the high status of this tree, see Judg 9.8–9; Hos 14.6; Ps 52.8.

11.18–12.17: Jeremiah’s complaints and divine response. The first of Jeremiah’s complaints (often called “confessions”), these words were shaped by the editor utilizing typical psalm language and attributed to Jeremiah to construct the persona of the suffering prophet; see also 15.10–21; 17.14–18; 18.18–23; 20.7–13; 20.14–18.

then you showed me their evil deeds.

¹⁹ But I was like a gentle lamb led to the slaughter.
And I did not know it was against me that they devised schemes, saying, “Let us destroy the tree with its fruit, let us cut him off from the land of the living,
so that his name will no longer be remembered!”

²⁰ But you, O LORD of hosts, who judge righteously,
who try the heart and the mind,
let me see your retribution upon them,
for to you I have committed my cause.

²¹ Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the people of Anathoth, who seek your life, and say, “You shall not prophesy in the name of the LORD, or you will die by our hand”—²² therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: I am going to punish them; the young men shall die by the sword;
their sons and their daughters shall die by famine;²³ and not even a remnant shall be left of them. For I will bring disaster upon the people of Anathoth, the year of their punishment.

12 You will be in the right, O LORD, when I lay charges against you;
but let me put my case to you.

Why does the way of the guilty prosper?
Why do all who are treacherous thrive?

² You plant them, and they take root;
they grow and bring forth fruit;
you are near in their mouths

yet far from their hearts.

³ But you, O LORD, know me;
You see me and test me—my heart is
with you.

Pull them out like sheep for the slaughter, and set them apart for the day of
slaughter.

⁴ How long will the land mourn,
and the grass of every field wither?
For the wickedness of those who live in it the animals and the birds are swept
away,
and because people said, “He is blind to our ways.”^a

⁵ If you have raced with foot-runners and they have wearied you,
how will you compete with horses?
And if in a safe land you fall down, how will you fare in the thickets of the Jordan?

⁶ For even your kinsfolk and your own family,
even they have dealt treacherously with
you;
they are in full cry after you;
do not believe them,
though they speak friendly words to
you.

⁷ I have forsaken my house,
I have abandoned my heritage;

^a Gk: Heb to our future

Characteristically, he cries to God, blames adversaries for his distress, declares his innocence, and prays for justice and retribution. 18–23: If Jeremiah cannot pray on behalf of the people (see v. 14), he will pray and lament on his own behalf. 19: Gentle lamb led to the slaughter, cf. Isa 53.7. 20: Who try the heart and the mind, see Pss 17.3; 26.2; 139.23. My cause, see also 12.1. 21: The people of Anathoth, that is, from Jeremiah’s own hometown; see 1.1n. and 7.12n. 22: Famine, a shortage of food prompted by the Babylonian siege; cf. 19.9 and 2 Kings 6.24–29.

12.1–17: The complaints of Jeremiah and God merge in their grief over Israel. Such accusation against God and, at the same time, against one’s enemies is characteristic of Israelite piety. Just as Jeremiah is alienated from his own family (v. 6), so God is alienated from God’s own house (v. 7). 1: Lay charges, technical term for a formal legal appeal; cf. Job 9.3; 23.1–17 for the notion of a suit against God. Jeremiah’s complaints refer to the conventional belief that sin is punished and righteousness is rewarded. For similar complaints, see Hab 1.17–17. 3: Know me . . . test me, see 11.20n. This request functions as a declaration of Jeremiah’s moral standing. Like sheep for the slaughter, cf. 11.19n.

12:5–6: God’s response to Jeremiah. 5: Foot-runners, or, more likely foot soldiers (Judg 20.2; 1 Sam 4.10; 15.4), as opposed to horse-drawn chariots. Thickets of the Jordan, the “pride” or lush river banks of the Jordan River was the abode of wild lions (49.19; Zech 11.3). 6: See 11.21n.

12.7–13: God’s lament over Israel for abandoning her to her enemies. The surplus of first-person singular pronouns—“my house” (cf. Hos 9.15), “my heritage,” “the beloved of my heart” (cf. 11.15), “my pleasant

I have given the beloved of my heart into the hands of her enemies.

⁸ My heritage has become to me like a lion in the forest;
she has lifted up her voice against me—
therefore I hate her.

⁹ Is the hyena greedy^a for my heritage at my command?

Are the birds of prey all around her?
Go, assemble all the wild animals;
bring them to devour her.

¹⁰ Many shepherds have destroyed my
vineyard,
they have trampled down my portion,
they have made my pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.

¹¹ They have made it a desolation;
desolate, it mourns to me.

The whole land is made desolate,
but no one lays it to heart.

¹² Upon all the bare heights^b in the desert spoilings have come;
for the sword of the LORD devours from one end of the land to the other;
no one shall be safe.

¹³ They have sown wheat and have reaped thorns,
they have tired themselves out but profit nothing.

They shall be ashamed of their^c harvests
because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

¹⁴ Thus says the LORD concerning all my evil neighbors who touch the heritage that I have given my people Israel to inherit: I am about to pluck them up from their land, and I will pluck up the house of Judah from among them. ¹⁵ And after I have plucked them up, I will again have compassion on them, and I will bring them again to their heritage and to their land, every one of them. ¹⁶ And then, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, “As the LORD lives,” as they taught my people to swear by Baal, then they shall be built up in the midst of my people. ¹⁷ But if any nation will not listen, then I will completely uproot it and destroy it, says the LORD.

13 Thus said the LORD to me, “Go and buy yourself a linen loincloth, and put it on your loins, but do not dip it in water.”

² So I bought a loincloth according to the word of the LORD, and put it on my loins.

³ And the word of the LORD came to me a second time, saying, ⁴ “Take the loincloth that you bought and are wearing, and go now to the Euphrates,^d and hide it there in ^a Cn: Heb Is the hyena, the bird of prey

^b Or the trails

^c Heb your

^d Or to Parah; Heb perath

portion”—conveys divine pathos. 8: I hate her, a technical term in treaty contexts of becoming an enemy to another nation. God has become Israel’s enemy. 10: Many shepherds, Israel’s kings; see 23.1–4. My vineyard, see 5.10n. 11: The repetition of the words desolate and desolation (the same Heb root is also translated “mourns”) creates a dirge-like quality that unites Jeremiah, God, and the victims of war in suffering and vulnerability.

12.14–17: An addition to the divine lament, reshaping it to promise Judah’s restoration in the midst of universal restoration. 14: Heritage, a catchword in vv. 7–9 and 14–15 that connects this unit with the preceding lament. Pluck them up, cf. 1.10. 15: Every one of them refers not simply to Judah but to all nations, who will live figuratively in Judah’s midst (vv. 16–17). 16: Baal, the Canaanite deity. 17: Uproot . . . destroy, along with the terms pluck up (vv. 14–15) and built up (v. 16), echo Jeremiah’s call in 1.4–10.

13.1–15.21: Signs of destruction. The story of the loincloth (13.1–11), a prophetic symbolic action, introduces this composite unit, followed by a judgment statement based on a conventional proverb (13.12–14) and a series of poems (13.15–17, 18–19, 20–27). All accuse Judah of sins that will lead to its collapse. Such accusations and warnings elicit intense expressions of grief by the community (14.1–9 and 14.19–22)—to which God responds (14.10–12 and 15.1–4, 5–9)—and by Jeremiah (14.13; 15.10, 15–18) to which God also responds (14.14–18; 15.11–14, 19–21).

13.1–27: The sign of the loincloth. A series of oracles held together by word associations. The series is introduced with the symbolic story of Jeremiah’s loincloth, representing God’s intimacy with Israel and Israel’s “clinging” to God (v. 11); it also represents the “ruined” nature of the relationship that was now “good for nothing” (v. 10). 1–11: Sign-acts are a common feature of prophetic behavior (cf. chs 16; 18; 19; 32; Ezek 4.1–5.17). 1: Linen loincloth, an undergarment, perhaps a sign of priestly purity (see Lev 8.1–9; Ezek 44.17–18; Zech 3.1–5). 4: Euphrates

a cleft of the rock.”⁵ So I went, and hid it by the Euphrates,^a as the LORD commanded me.⁶ And after many days the LORD said to me, “Go now to the Euphrates,^b and take from there the loincloth that I commanded you to hide there.”⁷ Then I went to the Euphrates,^b and dug, and I took the loincloth from the place where I had hidden it. But now the loincloth was ruined; it was good for nothing.

⁸ Then the word of the LORD came to me:
⁹ Thus says the LORD: Just so I will ruin the pride of Judah and the great pride of Jerusalem. ¹⁰ This evil people, who refuse to hear my words, who stubbornly follow their own will and have gone after other gods to serve them and worship them, shall be like this loincloth, which is good for nothing. ¹¹ For as the loincloth clings to one’s loins, so I made the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah cling to me, says the LORD, in order that they might be for me a people, a name, a praise, and a glory. But they would not listen.

¹² You shall speak to them this word: Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Every wine-jar should be filled with wine. And they will say to you, “Do you think we do not know that every wine-jar should be filled with wine?”¹³ Then you shall say to them: Thus says the LORD: I am about to fill all the inhabitants of this land—the kings who sit on David’s throne, the priests, the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—with drunkenness. ¹⁴ And I will dash them one against another, parents and children together, says the LORD. I will not pity or spare or have compassion when I destroy them.

¹⁵ Hear and give ear; do not be haughty, for the LORD has spoken.

¹⁶ Give glory to the LORD your God before he brings darkness, and before your feet stumble on the mountains at twilight; while you look for light, he turns it into gloom and makes it deep darkness.
¹⁷ But if you will not listen, my soul will weep in secret for your pride; my eyes will weep bitterly and run down with tears, because the LORD’s flock has been taken captive.

¹⁸ Say to the king and the queen mother: “Take a lowly seat, for your beautiful crown has come down from your head.”^c
¹⁹ The towns of the Negeb are shut up with no one to open them; all Judah is taken into exile, wholly taken into exile.

²⁰ Lift up your eyes and see those who come from the north. Where is the flock that was given you, your beautiful flock?
²¹ What will you say when they set as head over you those whom you have trained to be your allies? Will not pangs take hold of you, like those of a woman in labor?

^a Or by Parah; Heb perath

^b Or to Parah; Heb perath

^c Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

(Heb “perat”) may be an error for the town of Parah (textual note b), mentioned in Josh 18.23, or the sign may be a literary device; cf. the prophetic sign associated with the Euphrates in 51.60–64. 8–11: Two different interpretations of the action are given: the ruined linen undergarment represents the ruin of Judah and Jerusalem; and the people of Israel and Judah should have clung to God the way a linen undergarment clings to the body. 9: Pride is often judged negatively, whether that of Israel and Jerusalem (Hos 5.5; Am 6.8) or other nations (48.29; Isa 13.11,19; Ezek 16.49). 12–14: Being filled with wine often means drunkenness or even being poisoned (25.15–16; 51.7; Ezek 23.33). I will dash, cf. 51.20–23; Pss 2.9; 137.9. 15: Haughty, cf. 9n. 16: Give glory, an invitation to provide a judgment doxology, as in 10.1–8. 18: The king, either Jehoiakim, who reigned through most of the first Babylonian siege until 597 BCE, or his son Jehoiachin, who reigned briefly before being taken into exile in the same year. Those at the top of the socio-political hierarchy are brought down to a lowly seat (see chs 21–24). 19: Negeb, the southernmost region of Judah. 20: From the north, the invading Babylonian army; see 1.14n. 21: The ²² And if you say in your heart, “Why have these things come upon

 me?”

it is for the greatness of your iniquity that your skirts are lifted up, and you are violated.

²³ Can Ethiopians^a change their skin or leopards their spots?

Then also you can do good who are accustomed to do evil.

²⁴ I will scatter you^b like chaff driven by the wind from the desert.

²⁵ This is your lot,
 the portion I have measured out to you,
 says the LORD,

because you have forgotten me
 and trusted in lies.

²⁶ I myself will lift up your skirts over your face,
 and your shame will be seen.

²⁷ I have seen your abominations, your adulteries and neighings, your shameless prostitutions on the hills of the countryside.

Woe to you, O Jerusalem!
 How long will it be
 before you are made clean?

14 The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning the drought:

² Judah mourns
 and her gates languish;
 they lie in gloom on the ground,
 and the cry of Jerusalem goes up.

³ Her nobles send their servants for water;
 they come to the cisterns,
 they find no water,
 they return with their vessels empty.

They are ashamed and dismayed and cover their heads,

⁴ because the ground is cracked.

Because there has been no rain on the
 land
 the farmers are dismayed;
 they cover their heads.

⁵ Even the doe in the field forsakes her newborn fawn
 because there is no grass.

⁶ The wild asses stand on the bare heights,^c they pant for air like jackals;
 their eyes fail
 because there is no herbage.

⁷ Although our iniquities testify against us, act, O LORD, for your name's sake;
 our apostasies indeed are many,
 and we have sinned against you.

⁸ O hope of Israel,
 its savior in time of trouble,
 why should you be like a stranger in the
 land,
 like a traveler turning aside for the night?

⁹ Why should you be like someone confused,
 like a mighty warrior who cannot give help?

Yet you, O LORD, are in the midst of us,
 and we are called by your name;
 do not forsake us!

¹⁰ Thus says the LORD concerning this
 people:
 Truly they have loved to wander,
 they have not restrained their feet;
 therefore the LORD does not accept them,
 now he will remember their iniquity
 and punish their sins.

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

^b Heb them

^c Or the trails

pains of childbirth symbolize agony and despair; cf. Isa 13.8; Mic 4.9. 22: Exposure and sexual violence violation was a form of punishment; cf. v. 26; Nah 3.5; Ezek 16.35–43. 23: Ethiopians, the inhabitants of Cush, the land south of Egypt. 27: Your . . . neighings, the lust of horses was a strong symbol of sexual depravity symbolizing Israel's foreign dalliances and resulting religious apostasy (5.8; Ezek 23.20).

14:1–15:21: Oracles concerning the drought. 14.1–10: In the face of critical drought (vv. 2–6), a lament and intercessory plea is voiced (vv. 7–9), only to be rejected by God (v. 10). 1: The drought, the Heb term is general (the “trouble,” see Pss 9.9; 10.1). 3–4: Cover their heads, a sign of mourning (2 Sam 15.30; Esth 6.12). 7: For your name's sake, God's own reputation was often a motivation for saving action, even when Israel sinned; cf. Num 14.13–16; Ezek 20.1–26; Pss 25.11; 79.9–10; 115.1–2. 9: Called by your name indicates possession. 10: Love to wan-

¹¹ The LORD said to me: Do not pray for the welfare of this people. ¹² Although they fast, I do not hear their cry, and although they offer burnt offering and grain offering, I do not accept them; but by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence I consume them.

¹³ Then I said: “Ah, Lord God! Here are the prophets saying to them, ‘You shall not see the sword, nor shall you have famine, but I will give you true peace in this place.’”

¹⁴ And the LORD said to me: The prophets are prophesying lies in my name; I did not send them, nor did I command them or speak to them. They are prophesying to you a lying vision, worthless divination, and the deceit of their own minds. ¹⁵ Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the prophets who prophesy in my name though I did not send them, and who say, “Sword and famine shall not come on this land”: By sword and famine those prophets shall be consumed. ¹⁶ And the people to whom they prophesy shall be thrown out into the streets of Jerusalem, victims of famine and sword. There shall be no one to bury them—their wives, their sons, and their daughters. For I will pour out their wickedness upon them.

¹⁷ You shall say to them this word:
Let my eyes run down with tears night and day,
and let them not cease,
for the virgin daughter—my people—is struck down with a crushing blow, with a very grievous wound.

¹⁸ If I go out into the field, look—those killed by the sword!
And if I enter the city,

look—those sick with^a famine!
For both prophet and priest ply their trade throughout the land,
and have no knowledge.

¹⁹ Have you completely rejected Judah?
Does your heart loathe Zion?
Why have you struck us down
so that there is no healing for us?
We look for peace, but find no good;
for a time of healing, but there is terror
instead.

²⁰ We acknowledge our wickedness,
O LORD,
the iniquity of our ancestors,
for we have sinned against you.

²¹ Do not spurn us, for your name’s sake;
do not dishonor your glorious throne;
remember and do not break your covenant with us.

²² Can any idols of the nations bring rain?
Or can the heavens give showers?
Is it not you, O LORD our God?
We set our hope on you,
for it is you who do all this.

15 Then the LORD said to me: Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, yet my heart would not turn toward this people. Send them out of my sight, and let them go! ² And when they say to you, “Where shall we go?” you shall say to them: Thus says the LORD:

Those destined for pestilence, to pestilence,
and those destined for the sword, to the
sword;

^a Heb look—the sicknesses of

der, cf. 2.23–35. 11: See 7.16n. 12: By the sword, by famine, and by pestilence signify curses for breaking covenant with God (Lev 26.25–26) and anticipating vv. 13,15,16; see also 15.2; 18.21; 21.7,9; 29.17–18; 42.15–17,22; 44.13. 13: See also 5.12. 14: They are prophesying, using a form of the verb suggesting ecstatic prophetic utterances. 15: Those prophets shall be consumed, on the consequences for false prophecy, see Deut 18.20–22; cf. Jer 28.15–17. 17–18: The theme of “sword and famine” from the previous verses shapes this lament. 18: Ply their trade implies that prophets and priests treat their responsibilities as though they were merchandise for sale. 19: Cf. Lam 5.22; Pss 74.1; 79.5. Healing, 3.22; 8.22. 20: Cf. 3.25; Ps 79.8. 21: For your name’s sake, see v. 7n. Remember and do not break your covenant, see Ps 74.20. 22: See 10.12–16. Hope, see v. 8. 15.1: Moses and Samuel were honored as Israel’s chief intercessors; cf. Ex 32.11–14; Num 11.12; 21.17; 1 Sam 8.6. The only other references to Moses in the prophetic writings are Mic 6.4; Isa 63.11; Mal 4.4. Send them out of my sight . . . let them go! A reversal of Israel’s salvation history: rather than delivering the people of Israel from slavery, God delivers them to total destruction (cf., e.g., Ex 5.1; 7.16). 2: The usual triad is sword, famine, and pestilence; see 14.12n.; here the four terms are “death” (NRSV “pestilence”), “sword,” “famine,” and “captivity”; note the “four kinds of destroyers” those destined for famine, to famine, and those destined for captivity, to captivity.

³ And I will appoint over them four kinds of destroyers, says the LORD: the sword to kill, the dogs to drag away, and the birds of the air and the wild animals of the earth to devour and destroy. ⁴ I will make them a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth because of what King Manasseh son of Hezekiah of Judah did in Jerusalem.

⁵ Who will have pity on you, O Jerusalem, or who will bemoan you?
Who will turn aside
to ask about your welfare?

⁶ You have rejected me, says the LORD,
you are going backward;
so I have stretched out my hand against you and destroyed you—
I am weary of relenting.

⁷ I have winnowed them with a winnowing fork
in the gates of the land;
I have bereaved them, I have destroyed my
people;
they did not turn from their ways.

⁸ Their widows became more numerous than the sand of the seas;
I have brought against the mothers of youths
a destroyer at noonday;

I have made anguish and terror fall upon her suddenly.

⁹ She who bore seven has languished;
she has swooned away;
her sun went down while it was yet day;
she has been shamed and disgraced.

And the rest of them I will give to the
sword
before their enemies,

says the LORD.

¹⁰ Woe is me, my mother, that you ever bore me, a man of strife and contention to the whole land! I have not lent, nor have I borrowed, yet all of them curse me. ¹¹ The LORD said: Surely
I have intervened in your life^a for good, surely I have imposed enemies on you in a time of trouble and in a time of distress.^b ¹² Can iron and bronze break iron from the north?

¹³ Your wealth and your treasures I will give as plunder, without price, for all your sins, throughout all your territory. ¹⁴ I will make you serve your enemies in a land that you do not know, for in my anger a fire is kindled that shall burn forever.

¹⁵ O LORD, you know;
remember me and visit me,
and bring down retribution for me on my persecutors.

^a Heb intervened with you

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

(v. 3; see also Ezek 7:15). The term captivity denotes exile. 4: King Manasseh (698/687–642 BCE) was blamed for singlehandedly assuring Judah's destruction, despite his grandson Josiah's reforming efforts (2 Kings 23:26–27).

15:5–9: God's lament over Jerusalem. 6: Going backward, i.e., going in the wrong direction by rebellion; cf. 7:24; Isa 50:5. Relenting, the term used of God "repenting of" or "regretting" a decision; see Gen 6:6; Jon 4:2; Joel 2:13. 7: Winnowed them with a winnowing fork, imagery of threshing to describe judgment (cf. 51:2; Isa 21:10; 27:12). Bereaved them, that is, made them childless. 8: Widows . . . more numerous than the sand of the seas, a reversal of God's promise to make Israel's offspring as numerous as the sand on the seashore (Gen 22:17; 32:12). 9: Bearing seven children or sons, a sign of blessing and good fortune (Gen 46:25; Ruth 4:15; 1 Sam 2:5; Job 42:13), just as the loss of seven signified absolute bereavement (2 Sam 21:5–14; 2 Macc 7:20).

15:10–21: Jeremiah's second complaint and God's response. See 11:18–12:17n. Linked to the preceding lament by the suffering mother motif (see vv. 8–9,10), the passage consists of two laments followed by divine responses. 10: Jeremiah, like Job (Job 3), laments his birth, cries out in pain, and insists that he has done nothing to deserve his condition. Declarations of innocence, not confessions of guilt, are common to the lament genre. Lent . . . borrowed, Israel had strict limits to borrowing and lending; see Ex 22:25; Deut 24:10–11; Neh 5:10–11; and cf. 1 Sam 12:3. 11–14: The divine response apparently reassures Jeremiah of protection, although some interpreters read the divine reply as a rebuke. 11: The LORD said, or perhaps, with LXX, Jeremiah continues, "So be it LORD," with more claims of his innocence. 12: Iron and bronze, see also 1:18; 6:28. The question, though obscure, requires a negative response and must refer to the onslaught of the enemy from the north (see 1:14n.). 14: Forever, not in the Hebrew. 15–18: The second lament reflects many of the typical elements of the genre as attested in

In your forbearance do not take me away;
know that on your account I suffer insult.

¹⁶Your words were found, and I ate them,
and your words became to me a joy
and the delight of my heart;

for I am called by your name,
O LORD, God of hosts.

¹⁷I did not sit in the company of
merrymakers,
nor did I rejoice;
under the weight of your hand I sat alone,
for you had filled me with indignation.

¹⁸Why is my pain unceasing, my wound incurable,
refusing to be healed?

Truly, you are to me like a deceitful brook,
like waters that fail.

¹⁹Therefore thus says the LORD:

If you turn back, I will take you back,
and you shall stand before me.

If you utter what is precious, and not what is worthless,

you shall serve as my mouth.

It is they who will turn to you,
not you who will turn to them.

²⁰And I will make you to this people

a fortified wall of bronze;
they will fight against you,
but they shall not prevail over you,

for I am with you

to save you and deliver you,

says the LORD.

²¹I will deliver you out of the hand of the
wicked,

and redeem you from the grasp of the ruthless.

16 The word of the LORD came to me: ²You shall not take a wife, nor shall you have sons or daughters in this place. ³For thus says the LORD concerning the sons and daughters who are born in this place, and concerning the mothers who bear them and the fathers who beget them in this land: ⁴They shall die of deadly diseases. They shall not be lamented, nor shall they be buried; they shall become like dung on the surface of the ground. They shall perish by the sword and by famine, and their dead bodies shall become food for the birds of the air and for the wild animals of the earth.

⁵For thus says the LORD: Do not enter the house of mourning, or go to lament, or bemoan them; for I have taken away my peace from this people, says the LORD, my steadfast the Psalms: an address or invocation (v. 15a), a petition (v. 15b), and a lament (vv. 16–18). It is followed by a divine response (vv. 19–21), which is rarely attested in the Psalter. A concluding vow to praise—usually present in the laments in the Psalter—is absent. 15: In your forbearance, God's "slowness to anger" is normally prized (Ex 34.6; Num 14.18) but becomes a scandalous problem for the one hoping for speedy divine intervention against the enemy. On your account, Jeremiah suffers because of devotion to God; see Ps 69.7. 16: Your words were found may refer either to 1.9 or to the finding of the book of the law in the Temple (2 Kings 22.8). I ate them, cf. 1.9; Ezek 3.3. 17: Merrymakers, Jeremiah is deprived of celebrating the normal joys of life. 18: A deceitful brook, see also 2.13; cf. Job 6.15–20. 19: I will take you back, or "I shall bring you back." Heb "shuv," translated turn and take . . . back, occurs four times. Jeremiah has prophesied that Israel must turn/return to God. Now God demands that Jeremiah turn/return. 20: A fortified wall of bronze, cf. 1.18.

16.1–17.27: The end of ordinary life. Although the third and final section of the larger literary unit (11.1–17.27) is diverse and fragmented, it has several unifying features. Like earlier sections, it begins with a prose discourse (16.1–18) that triggers responses, including laments. In this case, the section also ends with a prose piece (17.19–27). Jeremiah 16.1–17.27 continues to focus on facets of uprooting and tearing down Judah's preexilic world (1.10), a world that had already ended for the writers and first readers of Jeremiah. The literary unit addresses the pressing questions of survivors— why their world had collapsed, what it meant, and how they could cope in their dangerous new world.

16.1–21: Further prohibitions for Jeremiah as sign-acts of coming judgment. Like the prohibition of intercession, now Jeremiah is prohibited from the normal patterns of family life and mourning rituals as signs of the coming judgment. 1–2: The command not to marry or have children is a poignant sign of death, especially in light of the mandate in Gen 1.28 and the conviction that progeny is a sign of divine blessing (e.g., Gen 15.5; 22.17). In this place, see also 7.3,6,7; 14.13; 19.7. 3: Mothers, a catchword, also used in 15.8–9,10. 4: Common themes in Jeremiah relating to the desecration of corpses; cf. 7.33; 8.2; 9.21; 19.7; 22.18; 25.33. Sword . . . famine, love and mercy. ⁶ Both great and small shall die in this land; they shall not be buried, and no one shall lament for them; there shall be no gashing, no shaving of the head for them. ⁷ No one shall break bread^a for the mourner, to offer comfort for the dead; nor shall anyone give them the cup of consolation to drink for their fathers or their mothers. ⁸ You shall not go into the house of feasting to sit with them, to eat and drink. ⁹ For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to banish from this place, in your days and before your eyes, the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

¹⁰ And when you tell this people all these words, and they say to you, “Why has the LORD pronounced all this great evil against us? What is our iniquity? What is the sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?” ¹¹ then you shall say to them: It is because your ancestors have forsaken me, says the LORD, and have gone after other gods and have served and worshiped them, and have forsaken me and have not kept my law; ¹² and because you have behaved worse than your ancestors, for here you are, every one of you, following your stubborn evil will, refusing to listen to me. ¹³ Therefore I will hurl you out of this land into a land that neither you nor your ancestors have known, and there you shall serve other gods day and night, for I will show you no favor.

¹⁴ Therefore, the days are surely coming, says the LORD, when it shall no longer be said, “As the LORD lives who brought the people of Israel up out of the land of Egypt,” ¹⁵ but “As the LORD lives who brought the people of Israel up out of the land of the north and out of all the lands where he had driven them.” For I will bring them back to their own land that I gave to their ancestors.

¹⁶ I am now sending for many fishermen, says the LORD, and they shall catch them; and afterward I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain and every hill, and out of the clefts of the rocks. ¹⁷ For my eyes are on all their ways; they are not hidden from my presence, nor is their iniquity concealed from my sight.

¹⁸ And^b I will doubly repay their iniquity and their sin, because they have polluted my land with the carcasses of their detestable idols, and have filled my inheritance with their abominations.

¹⁹ O LORD, my strength and my stronghold, my refuge in the day of trouble, to you shall the nations come from the ends of the earth and say: Our ancestors have inherited nothing but lies, worthless things in which there is no profit.

²⁰ Can mortals make for themselves gods? Such are no gods!

²¹ “Therefore I am surely going to teach them, this time I am going to teach them my power and my might, and they shall know that my name is the LORD.”

17 The sin of Judah is written with an iron pen; with a diamond point it is engraved on the tablet of their hearts, and

^a Two Mss Gk: MT break for them

^b Gk: Heb And first

characteristic language; see, e.g., 5.12; 11.22; 14.12–16; 21.9. 6: Gashing and shaving of the head, actions of mourning; cf. 7.29; Lev 19.28; Deut 14.1; Hos 7.14. 7–8: The house of mourning, with its meal rituals, is connected with the house of feasting, lit., “house of drinking,” with emphasis upon the consumption of wine. 9: See 7.34n. 10–12: Cf. Deut. 4.25–28; 29.24–29. 12: Cf. 11.6–10. 13: The punishment will fit the crime. 14–15: A brief interpolation from 23.7–8; see note there. 16–18: Fishing and hunting are metaphors for divine judgment; cf. Hab 1.14–15. 18: Double punishment is warranted for the offense; cf. Ex 22.7; Isa 40.2. Since dead carcasses pollute, as do things that are “detestable” (Lev 11.10–12), the dead carcasses of detestable things (idols) would be particularly defiling. 19–21: A brief concluding hymn of praise and divine oath regarding the conversion of the nations; cf. Isa 2.2; 60.3; 66.18; Mic 4.2; Zech 8.22; 14.16; Ps 86.9. Worthless things, a term used of idols of false gods (Deut 22.31; Ps 31.6). No profit, an allusion to the Canaanite god Baal; see 2.8n.

17.1–18: Various oracles on the theme of the drought. Fragments brought together under the theme established in 14.1, these oracles present a collage of coming judgment. 1–4: Israel’s intransigence is likened to an

on the horns of their altars,² while their children remember their altars and their sacred poles,³ beside every green tree, and on the high hills,³ on the mountains in the open country. Your wealth and all your treasures I will give for spoil as the price of your sin^b throughout all your territory.⁴ By your own act you shall lose the heritage that I gave you, and I will make you serve your enemies in a land that you do not know, for in my anger a fire is kindled^c that shall burn forever.

⁵ Thus says the LORD:

Cursed are those who trust in mere mortals
and make mere flesh their strength, whose hearts turn away from the LORD.
⁶ They shall be like a shrub in the desert, and shall not see when relief comes.
They shall live in the parched places of the wilderness,
in an uninhabited salt land.

⁷ Blessed are those who trust in the LORD, whose trust is the LORD.

⁸ They shall be like a tree planted by water, sending out its roots by the stream.
It shall not fear when heat comes,
and its leaves shall stay green;
in the year of drought it is not anxious,
and it does not cease to bear fruit.

⁹ The heart is devious above all else;
it is perverse—

who can understand it?

¹⁰ I the LORD test the mind and search the heart,
to give to all according to their ways,
according to the fruit of their
doings.

¹¹ Like the partridge hatching what it did not lay,
so are all who amass wealth unjustly;
in mid-life it will leave them,
and at their end they will prove to be
fools.

¹² O glorious throne, exalted from the beginning,
shrine of our sanctuary!

¹³ O hope of Israel! O LORD!
All who forsake you shall be put to
shame;
those who turn away from you^d shall be recorded in the underworld,^e for they have forsaken the fountain of living water, the LORD.

¹⁴ Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed;
save me, and I shall be saved;
for you are my praise.

^a Heb Asherim

^b Cn: Heb spoil your high places for sin

^c Two Mss Theodotion: you kindled

^d Heb me

^e Or in the earth

engraver writing on rock; cf. Job 19.24. 1: Diamond point, a rare phrase; cf. Ezek 3.9; Zech 7.12; Job 19.24. Tablets of their hearts: Elsewhere, the Torah is written on the human heart (30.14) and on stone tablets (Ex 24.12; 31.18), but now their sinfulness is so engraved. The human heart represented the center of resolve and will (cf. 31.33; Prov 3.3). Horns of their altars, protrusions at each of the four corners of a cut-stone altar, symbolizing divine strength and functioning to hold in place the wood and animal parts. Sanctuary could be gained by seizing the horns; see 7.4n. This language is also commonly associated with mercy and forgiveness of sins (see, e.g., Ex 29.12; 30.10; Lev 4.7). 2: Sacred poles, Heb “asherim,” sacred trees to honor the Canaanite mother-goddess Asherah; see, e.g., Ex 34.13; 2 Kings 21.7; 23.4. 3–4: A variant of 15.13–14. 5–8: A curse and accompanying blessing, linked to the theme of drought in vv. 6 and 8; cf. similar imagery in Ps 1. 9–10: God discerns hidden motives and treats humans impartially. See Pss 11.5; 44.21. 9: Devious (Heb “aqob”), a play on the name “Jacob” (Heb “ya’aqob”); see 9.4n. 10: See 11.20. Mind, Heb “lev,” lit., “heart,” the place of rational reflection. Heart, Heb “kilayot,” lit., “kidneys,” the seat of strong emotion and feeling; see Pss 7.9; 26.2; 73.21; Prov 23.16. 11: A wisdom saying. 12–13: Another voice, perhaps a priestly representative, reaffirms the truth of the sages (17.1–4, 5–8) that those who turn away from God, the fountain of living water (see 2.13), will suffer disgrace.

17.14–18: Jeremiah’s third complaint (see 11.18–12.6n.). Many formal elements of the lament are attested: a petition for help (v. 14), a motivation (v. 15), which includes a declaration of innocence (vv. 15–16), an affirmation

¹⁵ See how they say to me,
 “Where is the word of the LORD?
 Let it come!”

¹⁶ But I have not run away from being a shepherd^a in your service,
 nor have I desired the fatal day.
 You know what came from my lips;
 it was before your face.

¹⁷ Do not become a terror to me;
 you are my refuge in the day of disaster;

¹⁸ Let my persecutors be shamed, but do not let me be shamed;
 let them be dismayed,
 but do not let me be dismayed;
 bring on them the day of disaster;
 destroy them with double destruction!

¹⁹ Thus said the LORD to me: Go and stand in the People’s Gate, by which the kings of Judah enter and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem, ²⁰ and say to them:
 Hear the word of the LORD, you kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who enter by these gates. ²¹ Thus says the LORD: For the sake of your lives, take care that you do not bear a burden on the sabbath day or bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem. ²² And do not carry a burden out of your houses on the sabbath or do any work, but keep the sabbath day holy, as I commanded your ancestors. ²³ Yet they did not listen or incline their ear; they stiffened their necks and would not hear or receive instruction.

²⁴ But if you listen to me, says the LORD, and bring in no burden by the gates of this city on the sabbath day, but keep the sabbath day holy and do no work on it, ²⁵ then there shall enter by the gates of this city kings^b who sit on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and their officials, the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem; and this city shall be inhabited forever. ²⁶ And people shall come from the towns of Judah and the places around Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin, from the Shephelah, from the hill country, and from the Negeb, bringing burnt offerings and sacrifices, grain offerings and frankincense, and bringing thank offerings to the house of the LORD. ²⁷ But if you do not listen to me, to keep the sabbath day holy, and to carry in no burden through the gates of Jerusalem on the sabbath day, then I will kindle a fire in its gates; it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem and shall not be quenched.

18 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ² “Come, go down to the potter’s house, and there I will let you hear

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn: Heb kings and officials of trust (v. 17), and an appeal for retribution (v. 18). The expression of praise is missing, as is a divine response.

15: Word of the LORD, the prophetic oracle of judgment. 18: Double destruction, see 16.18n.

17.19–27: A command to honor the sabbath. The prose sermon envisions the wellbeing of the nation dependent upon its devotion to the sabbath (see Ex 20.8–11; Deut 5.12–16). If the text is exilic or postexilic (see, e.g., Isa 56.1–8; Ezek 46.1–3; Neh 13.15–22), as most scholars argue, it attributes the destruction of Jerusalem to Judah’s failure to keep the sabbath. By concluding the larger literary unit with this prose sermon, the Jeremiah tradition creates a framework for the montage of voices and interprets Judah’s massive losses as a consequence of breaking the covenant. 19: People’s Gate, location unknown. 23: See 7.26, 28. 26: Benjamin . . . the Shephelah . . . the hill country . . . the Negeb, the regions surrounding Jerusalem to the north, west, and south; see also 32.44; 33.13. 27: Kindle a fire, cf. 15.14; 17.4.

18.1–20.18: Judah’s salvation history is no panacea. Another major division of the book (see also chs 2–6, 7–10, 11–17). As is customary, the literary unit opens with a prose account written in the style, diction, theology, and structure of Deuteronomy and the Deuteronomistic History. Like other prose sermons it dismantles a belief, practice, or institution of Israel’s pre-587 BCE world, in this case Israel’s election tradition and salvation history. Jeremiah declares that this tradition will not save the nation from massive losses: chosen Israel will become rejected Israel. The image of God as potter and people as clay is central to the unit. However, unlike its more benign usage (see Isa 29.16; 45.9; 64.8; cf. Sir 33.13; Wis 15.7–8), the image of shattered pottery conveys the irreparable character of the relationship between God and Israel. Such frontal prophetic attacks incite persecution and the final two laments of Jeremiah.

18.1–23: The potter’s house and pottery as signs of judgment. 1–17: A sign-act. See 13.1–11n. The motif of the deity as potter and humanity as clay is well attested in the ancient Near East. At the potter’s house, Jeremiah my words.”³ So I went down to the potter’s house, and there he was working at his wheel. ⁴The vessel he was making of clay was spoiled in the potter’s hand, and he reworked it into another vessel, as seemed good to him.

⁵Then the word of the LORD came to me:

⁶Can I not do with you, O house of Israel, just as this potter has done? says the LORD. Just like the clay in the potter’s hand, so are you in my hand, O house of Israel. ⁷At one moment I may declare concerning a nation or a kingdom, that I will pluck up and break down and destroy it, ⁸but if that nation, concerning which I have spoken, turns from its evil, I will change my mind about the disaster that I intended to bring on it. ⁹And at another moment I may declare concerning a nation or a kingdom that I will build and plant it, ¹⁰but if it does evil in my sight, not listening to my voice, then I will change my mind about the good that I had intended to do to it. ¹¹Now, therefore, say to the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Thus says the LORD: Look, I am a potter shaping evil against you and devising a plan against you. Turn now, all of you from your evil way, and amend your ways and your doings.

¹²But they say, “It is no use! We will follow our own plans, and each of us will act according to the stubbornness of our evil will.”

¹³Therefore thus says the LORD:

Ask among the nations:

Who has heard the like of this?

The virgin Israel has done

a most horrible thing.

¹⁴Does the snow of Lebanon leave the crags of Sirion?^a

Do the mountain^b waters run dry,^c the cold flowing streams?

¹⁵But my people have forgotten me, they burn offerings to a delusion; they have stumbled^d in their ways, in the ancient roads, and have gone into bypaths, not the highway, ¹⁶making their land a horror, a thing to be hissed at forever.

All who pass by it are horrified and shake their heads.

¹⁷Like the wind from the east, I will scatter them before the enemy. I will show them my back, not my face, in the day of their calamity.

¹⁸Then they said, “Come, let us make plots against Jeremiah—for instruction shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come, let us bring charges against him,^e and let us not heed any of his words.”

^a Cn: Heb of the field

^b Cn: Heb foreign

^c Cn: Heb Are . . . plucked up?

^d Gk Syr Vg: Heb they made them stumble

^e Heb strike him with the tongue

observes the potter at work as God’s power to reshape Israel’s future; cf. Isa 45.9. 3: At his wheel, lit., “upon the stones,” referring to the stones used for turning pots. 7–9: Pluck up and break down . . . build and plant, see 1.10n. 8: I will change my mind, see 15.6n; 26.3; Jon 3.10. 11: The metaphor of the potter shifts from representing God’s freedom to change course to that of God shaping evil. 12: A self-implicating statement; see also 16.12. 13–17: Three incriminating questions reveal the character of Judah’s actions and the depths of God’s anguish. 14: Israel acts contrary to the laws of nature by forgetting God, a common theme in the book; see 2.32n. Lebanon, the mountain range north of Israel that parallels the coast of the Mediterranean Sea. The name “Lebanon” is related to the word for “white,” alluding to the snowy peaks. Sirion is a conjecture (see textual note a); if correct, it refers to Mount Hermon in Israel’s far north (cf. Deut 3.9; Ps 29.6). 16: Hissing and shaking the head are gestures of abhorrence and shaming; see 19.8; 1 Kings 9.8; Mic 6.16; 2 Chr 29.8. 17: Show them my back, lit., “neck” or “back of the neck,” a sign of stubbornness or neglect; just as Israel can be “stiff-necked” (Ex 32.9), so can God; cf. 2.27; 7.26.

18.18–23: Jeremiah’s fourth complaint (see 11.18–12.6n.), concerning his enemies. The sentiments are bitter, but not unusual for the piety of the Psalms. 18: Make plots, this is a catchword in the section; cf. 18.8,11,12, though the English translation obscures the wordplay. Priests, the wise, and prophets were each associated with a primary form of divine revelation: instruction (Heb “torah”), counsel, and word; cf. Ezek 7.26. Jeremiah’s adversaries claim these traditional forms of authority over Jeremiah’s claim to an alternative word. Bring charges

¹⁹ Give heed to me, O LORD, and listen to what my adversaries say!

²⁰ Is evil a recompense for good?
Yet they have dug a pit for my life.

Remember how I stood before you
to speak good for them,
to turn away your wrath from them.

²¹ Therefore give their children over to famine;

hurl them out to the power of the
sword,
let their wives become childless and widowed.

May their men meet death by
pestilence,
their youths be slain by the sword in battle.

²² May a cry be heard from their houses, when you bring the marauder suddenly upon them!

For they have dug a pit to catch me,
and laid snares for my feet.

²³ Yet you, O LORD, know
all their plotting to kill me.

Do not forgive their iniquity, do not blot out their sin from your sight.

Let them be tripped up before you;
deal with them while you are angry.

19 Thus said the LORD: Go and buy a potter's earthenware jug. Take with you^a some of the elders of the people and some of the senior priests, ² and go out to the valley of the son of Hinnom at the entry of the Potsherd Gate, and proclaim there the words that I tell you. ³ You shall say: Hear the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to bring such disaster upon this place that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. ⁴ Because the people have forsaken me, and have profaned this place by making offerings in it to other gods whom neither they nor their ancestors nor the kings of Judah have known, and because they have filled this place with the blood of the innocent, ⁵ and gone on building the high places of Baal to burn their children in the fire as burnt offerings to Baal, which I did not command or decree, nor did it enter my mind; ⁶ therefore the days are surely coming, says the LORD, when this place shall no more be called Topheth, or the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the valley of Slaughter. ⁷ And in this place I will make void the plans of Judah and Jerusalem, and will make them fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hand of those who seek their life. I will give their dead bodies for food to the birds of the air and to the wild animals of the earth. ⁸ And I will make this city a horror, a thing to be hissed at; everyone who passes by it will be horrified and will hiss because of all its disasters. ⁹ And I will make them eat the flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and all shall eat the flesh of their neighbors in the siege, and in the distress with which their enemies and those who seek their life afflict them.

^a Syr Tg Compare Gk: Heb lacks take with you against him, as an enemy of the state. 19–23: Jeremiah's lament is a direct response to the threat on his life (v. 23). As in other laments, Jeremiah confesses his innocence (v. 20) and prays for divine intervention (vv. 21–22), i.e., for justice (v. 23) and relief from suffering. 20: A surprising claim, given prohibitions against Jeremiah interceding (7.16; 11.14). 23: While you are angry, an appeal that God's mercy not be extended to the prophet's adversaries; see 15.15n.

19.1–20.18: The potter's flask and Jeremiah at Topheth. This section continues the theme of pottery as a symbol of divine judgment, concluding with Jeremiah's fifth complaint. No date is given, but by 605 BCE Jeremiah had been barred from the Temple (36.5), perhaps as a result of his confinement by the priest Pashur, the chief officer of the Temple personnel (20.1–2). This section is the last of the oracles in the first cycle dated prior to the reign of Zedekiah.

19.1–20.6: Jeremiah at Topheth and its aftermath: 1–2: Valley of the son of Hinnom (or Topheth, used five times in 19.6,11–14); see 7.31–32n. Potsherd Gate, nowhere else named, but since the Hinnom Valley was south of Jerusalem, this is likely the later Dung Gate (Neh 3.13–14), used to discard refuse (thus "Potsherd Gate"). 4: Blood of the innocent, a reference to the practice of sacrificing children at this site. 5: Baal, but elsewhere Molech (32.35; 2 Kings 23.10). 7: Make void, a verb (Heb "baqq") related to the word for "jug" ("baqquq," vv. 1,10), thereby explaining the connection with the prophetic sign. 8: Hiss, see 18.16n. 9: The horrors of siege warfare; see 11.22n.;

¹⁰ Then you shall break the jug in the sight of those who go with you, ¹¹ and shall say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts: So will I break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter's vessel, so that it can never be mended. In Topheth they shall bury until there is no more room to bury. ¹² Thus will I do to this place, says the LORD, and to its inhabitants, making this city like Topheth. ¹³ And the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah shall be defiled like the place of Topheth—all the houses upon whose roofs offerings have been made to the whole host of heaven, and libations have been poured out to other gods.

¹⁴ When Jeremiah came from Topheth, where the LORD had sent him to prophesy, he stood in the court of the LORD's house and said to all the people: ¹⁵ Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am now bringing upon this city and upon all its towns all the disaster that I have pronounced against it, because they have stiffened their necks, refusing to hear my words.

20 Now the priest Pashhur son of Immer, who was chief officer in the house of the LORD, heard Jeremiah prophesying these things. ² Then Pashhur struck the prophet Jeremiah, and put him in the stocks that were in the upper Benjamin Gate of the house of the LORD. ³ The next morning when Pashhur released Jeremiah from the stocks, Jeremiah said to him, The LORD has named you not Pashhur but "Terror-all-around." ⁴ For thus says the LORD: I am making you a terror to yourself and to all your friends; and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies while you look on. And I will give all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon; he shall carry them captive to Babylon, and shall kill them with the sword. ⁵ I will give all the wealth of this city, all its gains, all its prized belongings, and all the treasures of the kings of Judah into the hand of their enemies, who shall plunder them, and seize them, and carry them to Babylon. ⁶ And you, Pashhur, and all who live in your house, shall go into captivity, and to Babylon you shall go; there you shall die, and there you shall be buried, you and all your friends, to whom you have prophesied falsely.

⁷ O LORD, you have enticed me, and I was enticed;
you have overpowered me,
and you have prevailed.
I have become a laughingstock all day long;
everyone mocks me.

⁸ For whenever I speak, I must cry out,
I must shout, "Violence and
destruction!"

For the word of the LORD has become
for me
a reproach and derision all day long.

⁹ If I say, "I will not mention him, or speak any more in his name," then within me there is something like a burning fire
shut up in my bones;
I am weary with holding it in,
and I cannot.

¹⁰ For I hear many whispering:
"Terror is all around!"

Deut 28.53–57. 10: Jeremiah is to perform the sign-act, unleashing the curse he has spoken. 13: Host of heaven, 8.2n. 14–15: Another Temple sermon of Jeremiah; see also 7.1–15; 26.1–6. 20.1: Chief officer, the chief Temple administrator in charge of monitoring prophetic activity; cf. the role of Zephaniah in 29.26–28 and Amaziah in Am 7.10–13. 2: The confinement and beating may be because Pashhur viewed Jeremiah as an enemy of the state (see Am 7.10–13; see also Deut 25.2–3). Stocks, cf. 29.26 and 2 Chr 16.10, where they are similarly used to confine prophets. 3: Terror-all-around, a phrase used elsewhere in Jeremiah to express of the horrors of war (see v. 10; 6.25n.). The renaming of Pashhur serves as a prophetic sign of the destruction to come. 6: Cf. Am 7.17. You have prophesied, priests could function as prophets, like Jeremiah himself and Ezekiel.

20.7–18: Jeremiah's final complaint (see 11.18–12.6n.). Using strong language with sexual overtones, Jeremiah complains of having been tricked or seduced by God. 7–13: The first lament reflects most of the constitutive elements of the genre: an address (v. 7a), the lament proper (vv. 7b–10), a petition (v. 12b), an expression of confidence, which is not often attested (vv. 11–12a), and concluding praise (v. 13). 7: Enticed, though the term can be used positively (Hos 2.14), it can also be used of seduction (Ex 22.16; Deut 22.25; Judg 14.15) and deception (2 Sam 3.25; Ps 78.36); see 1 Kings 22.20–21 for its use in a prophetic context. 10: Terror is all around, Denounce him! Let us denounce him!”

All my close friends
are watching for me to stumble.

“Perhaps he can be enticed,
and we can prevail against him,
and take our revenge on him.”

¹¹ But the LORD is with me like a dread warrior;
therefore my persecutors will stumble,
and they will not prevail.

They will be greatly shamed,
for they will not succeed.

Their eternal dishonor
will never be forgotten.

¹² O LORD of hosts, you test the righteous, you see the heart and the mind;
let me see your retribution upon them,
for to you I have committed my cause.

¹³ Sing to the LORD;
praise the LORD!
For he has delivered the life of the needy from the hands of evildoers.

¹⁴ Cursed be the day
on which I was born!
The day when my mother bore me,
let it not be blessed!

¹⁵ Cursed be the man who brought the news to my father,
saying,

“A child is born to you, a son,” making him very glad.

¹⁶ Let that man be like the cities that the LORD overthrew without pity;
let him hear a cry in the morning
and an alarm at noon,

¹⁷ because he did not kill me in the womb;
so my mother would have been my
grave,
and her womb forever great.

¹⁸ Why did I come forth from the womb to see toil and sorrow,
and spend my days in shame?

21 This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, when King Zedekiah sent to him Pashhur son of Malchiah and the priest Zephaniah son of Maaseiah, saying, ² “Please inquire of the LORD on our behalf, for King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon is making war against us; perhaps the LORD will perform a wonderful deed for us, as he has often done, and will make him withdraw from us.”
³ Then Jeremiah said to them: ⁴ Thus you shall say to Zedekiah: Thus says the LORD, cf. v. 3; 6.25n. Enticed . . . prevail, key words in this section, cf. v. 7. 11: Cf. Pss 6.8–10; 12.6–7. 12: My cause, the complaint is cast as a legal case before God (cf. 12.1). 13: For the call to praise in a psalm of complaint, cf. Pss 22.22–31; 31.19–24). 14–18: The second and last of Jeremiah’s laments, a self-curse in the tradition of Job 3 (cf. Jon 4.3,8). “Womb” (vv. 17–18) ironically recalls the origin of the prophetic mission (1.5). Jeremiah’s final laments have no divine response (see also 17.14–18). 16: The cities that the LORD overthrew, Sodom and Gomorrah (23.14; Gen 19.24–25; Deut 29.23; Isa 13.19; Am 4.11). 17: Forever great, pregnant.

21.1–24.10: Oracles from the reign of Zedekiah. The final phase of the first cycle of oracles. Zedekiah was the last of Judah’s kings who reigned from the first deportation in 597 until the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BCE. These oracles focus upon the royal house and establishment. They problematize the unconditional promise of the Davidic dynasty (2 Sam 7.1–29), a pillar of Judean life. The section has four composite parts: a prose discourse addressed to King Zedekiah and his envoys affirming Jerusalem’s fall (21.1–10), a series of judgment oracles accusing Judah’s final kings of crimes against the nation (21.11–23.8), oracles against prophets (23.9–40), and a prose vision report (24.1–10).

21.1–14: Oracles directed to Zedekiah, the people, and the royal house. Zedekiah repeatedly sent envoys to Jeremiah for divine guidance and information, always with similar results: Zedekiah should capitulate to the Babylonian armies; cf. 37.3–10; 38.1–3. The historical setting is apparently 588 BCE, after Zedekiah had committed himself to a rebellion against Babylon (see 52.3). 1: One of the few historical references in Jeremiah 1–25. King Zedekiah (597–586 BCE). Pashhur son of Malchiah, not the same Pashhur of ch 20 (see also 38.1). Zephaniah son of Maaseiah, the chief Temple officer who was apparently sympathetic toward Jeremiah (29.24–29) and who was later executed by Nebuchadnezzar (52.24–27). 2: Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon (605–562 BCE). This is the first time he is mentioned by name, also written as “Nebuchadnezzar” (e.g., 27.6). A wonderful deed, a term denoting God’s saving acts (32.17–27), often on behalf of suffering people; e.g., Gen 18.14; Ex 3.20; Ps 31.21. 4: Chaldeans, the inhabitants of the lower plain formed by the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, a term often meaning the God of Israel: I am going to turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands and with which you are fighting against the king of Babylon and against the Chaldeans who are besieging you outside the walls; and I will bring them together into the center of this city. ⁵ I myself will fight against you with outstretched hand and mighty arm, in anger, in fury, and in great wrath. ⁶ And I will strike down the inhabitants of this city, both human beings and animals; they shall die of a great pestilence. ⁷ Afterward, says the LORD, I will give King Zedekiah of Judah, and his servants, and the people in this city—those who survive the pestilence, sword, and famine—into the hands of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, into the hands of their enemies, into the hands of those who seek their lives. He shall strike them down with the edge of the sword; he shall not pity them, or spare them, or have compassion.

⁸ And to this people you shall say: Thus says the LORD: See, I am setting before you the way of life and the way of death. ⁹ Those who stay in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence; but those who go out and surrender to the Chaldeans who are besieging you shall live and shall have their lives as a prize of war. ¹⁰ For I have set my face against this city for evil and not for good, says the LORD: it shall be given into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.

¹¹ To the house of the king of Judah say: Hear the word of the LORD, ¹² O house of David! Thus says the LORD:

Execute justice in the morning, and deliver from the hand of the oppressor
anyone who has been robbed,
or else my wrath will go forth like fire,
and burn, with no one to quench it,
because of your evil doings.

¹³ See, I am against you, O inhabitant of the valley,
O rock of the plain,

says the LORD;

you who say, “Who can come down against us,

or who can enter our places of refuge?”

¹⁴ I will punish you according to the fruit of your doings,

says the LORD;

I will kindle a fire in its forest,

and it shall devour all that is around it.

22 Thus says the LORD: Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and speak there this word, ² and say: Hear the word of the LORD, O King of Judah sitting on the throne of David—you, and your servants, and your people who enter these gates. ³ Thus says the LORD: Act with justice and righteousness, and deliver from the hand of the oppressor anyone who has been robbed. And do no wrong or violence to the alien, the orphan, and the widow, or shed innocent blood in this place. ⁴ For if you will indeed obey this word, then through the gates of this house shall enter kings who sit on the throne of David, Babylonians. 5: See also 32.27; the language is Deuteronomic: see, e.g., Deut 7.19; 29.28. 7: By the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, see 14.12n. 8–10: The future of Judah rests on its response to Babylonian rule. 8: The way of life and the way of death, cf. Deut 30.15,19. Jerusalem, however, will be destroyed (38.17). A prize of war, that is the spoil divided among soldiers after battle (Gen 49.27; Ex 5.9; Josh 22.8). 11–14: As custodians of justice, Judah's kings are to defend their people (e.g., Isa 1.16–17; 11.1–9; see also Deut 17.14–20). 12: In the morning, likely an idiom conveying the priority of juridical decisions in the affairs of kings (see, e.g., Ex 18.13–23). 13: O inhabitant of the valley, a cryptic allusion to a king (cf. Am 1.5,8 where inhabitants probably refers to kings of Syria and Philistia, respectively). Jerusalem was built on a narrow ridge and neighboring hill, protected on the west, south, and east, but vulnerable from the north. To refer to it as built in a “valley” and “plain” is derogatory language, as is “come down against,” indicating its critical vulnerability; one usually “went up” to Jerusalem; cf. 2 Sam 5.6. 14: Its forests, likely a reference to the royal palaces and their grounds (1 Kings 7.2; 10.17,21).

22.1–9: Oracles directed to the king. The future of an unidentified Judean king (perhaps even the Davidic dynasty itself) is contingent upon the faithful execution of “justice and righteousness.” 1: House, here referring to the palace; cf. 2.1–12, where it refers to the royal family and the dynasty. 2–3: The language repeats that of 21.12, tying these sections together thematically. See also 7.5–7n.; Ps 72.1–4. 4–5: Cf. 17.25. Rooted in the Sinai tradition, the “if-then” clauses challenge a royal theology that imagines the Davidic dynasty as unconditional; riding in chariots and on horses, they, and their servants, and their people.⁵ But if you will not heed these words, I swear by myself, says the LORD, that this house shall become a desolation.⁶ For thus says the LORD concerning the house of the king of Judah:

You are like Gilead to me,
like the summit of Lebanon;
but I swear that I will make you a desert,
an uninhabited city.^a

⁷ I will prepare destroyers against you,
all with their weapons;
they shall cut down your choicest cedars and cast them into the fire.

⁸ And many nations will pass by this city, and all of them will say one to another, “Why has the LORD dealt in this way with that great city?”⁹ And they will answer, “Because they abandoned the covenant of the LORD their God, and worshiped other gods and served
them.”

¹⁰ Do not weep for him who is dead,
nor bemoan him;
weep rather for him who goes away,
for he shall return no more
to see his native land.

¹¹ For thus says the LORD concerning Shallum son of King Josiah of Judah, who succeeded his father Josiah, and who went away from this place: He shall return here no more, ¹² but in the place where they have carried him captive he shall die, and he shall never see this land again.

¹³ Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness,

and his upper rooms by injustice;
who makes his neighbors work for
nothing,
and does not give them their wages;
¹⁴ who says, “I will build myself a spacious house
with large upper rooms,”
and who cuts out windows for it, paneling it with cedar,
and painting it with vermilion.

¹⁵ Are you a king
because you compete in cedar?
Did not your father eat and drink and do justice and righteousness?
Then it was well with him.

¹⁶ He judged the cause of the poor and needy;
then it was well.

Is not this to know me?
says the LORD.

¹⁷ But your eyes and heart are only on your dishonest gain,
for shedding innocent blood, and for practicing oppression and violence.

¹⁸ Therefore thus says the LORD concerning King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah:

They shall not lament for him, saying,
“Alas, my brother!” or “Alas, sister!”
They shall not lament for him, saying,
“Alas, lord!” or “Alas, his majesty!”

¹⁹ With the burial of a donkey he shall be buried—
dragged off and thrown out beyond the gates of Jerusalem.

^a Cn: Heb uninhabited cities

cf. 2 Sam 7. 6–7: Judgment declared on the unspecified Judean king (v. 1; see also 21.13–14). Gilead, fertile agricultural land in northern Transjordan. Lebanon (see 18.14n.) was famous for its cedar forests; see v. 23. Prepare, lit., “sanctify,” see 6.4–5n. 8–9: A later comment (5.19; Deut 29.23–28; 1 Kings 9.8–9) referring to Jerusalem, not the palace.

22.10–30: A chronological survey of Israel’s kings from Josiah to Zedekiah (see chart on p. 1070). Rather than serving as custodians of justice and defenders of the poor, Judah’s final kings are guilty of corruption, abuse of power, and repression, and thus responsible for the collapse of the nation. 10–12: The banishment of Shallum (Jehoahaz) to Egypt (2 Kings 23.31–35) is more distressing than the death of his father Josiah (2 Kings 23.28–30). Him who is dead, Josiah was killed at Megiddo in 609 BCE in a battle with Pharaoh Neco. 13–23: An oracle against Jehoiakim, Shallum’s brother and successor (see 2 Kings 23.36–24.7). 13: Work for nothing, the royal building projects were carried out by conscripted laborers; see 1 Sam 8.10–18. Jehoiakim was perceived as imitating Solomon’s grandeur and autocratic power (1 Kings 5.13–18). 15: Your father, i.e., Josiah. 18: King Jehoiakim, nameless until this verse, is the antithesis of his father Josiah. Shall not lament, the lack of professional mourners at one’s funeral was a mark of shame and degradation; cf. 2 Kings 24.6, which suggests that nothing

²⁰ Go up to Lebanon, and cry out, and lift up your voice in Bashan;
cry out from Abarim,
for all your lovers are crushed.

²¹ I spoke to you in your prosperity,
but you said, "I will not listen."
This has been your way from your youth,
for you have not obeyed my voice.

²² The wind shall shepherd all your shepherds,
and your lovers shall go into captivity;
then you will be ashamed and dismayed because of all your wickedness.

²³ O inhabitant of Lebanon, nested among the cedars,
how you will groan^a when pangs come
upon you,
pain as of a woman in labor!

²⁴ As I live, says the LORD, even if King Coniah son of Jehoiakim of Judah were the signet ring on my right hand, even from there I would tear you off²⁵ and give you into the hands of those who seek your life, into the hands of those of whom you are afraid, even into the hands of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon and into the hands of the Chaldeans.
²⁶ I will hurl you and the mother who bore you into another country, where you were not born, and there you shall die.²⁷ But they shall not return to the land to which they long to return.

²⁸ Is this man Coniah a despised broken pot,

a vessel no one wants?

Why are he and his offspring hurled out and cast away in a land that they do not know?

²⁹ O land, land, land,
hear the word of the LORD!

³⁰ Thus says the LORD:
Record this man as childless,
a man who shall not succeed in his
days;
for none of his offspring shall succeed in sitting on the throne of David, and ruling again in Judah.

23 Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture!
says the LORD. ² Therefore thus says the LORD,
the God of Israel, concerning the shepherds who shepherd my people: It is you who have scattered my flock, and have driven them away, and you have not attended to them. So I will attend to you for your evil doings, says the LORD. ³ Then I myself will gather the remnant of my flock out of all the lands where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their fold, and they shall be fruitful and multiply. ⁴ I will raise up shepherds over them who will shepherd them, and they shall not fear any longer, or be dismayed, nor shall any be missing, says the LORD.

⁵ The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will raise up for David a

^a Gk Vg Syr: Heb will be pitied was unusual about Jehoiakim's death and burial. 20–23: An interlude that laments the fate of unfaithful Jerusalem. The addressee is an individual feminine figure, presumably Jerusalem; cf. 2.30–25,33–37. 20: From distant regions (Lebanon, Bashan in northern Transjordan, Abarim east of the Dead Sea), lamentation will be made for Jerusalem, whose lovers (military and political allies) have been defeated. 22–23: The words shepherd/shepherds and cedars (vv. 7,14,15) connect this obscure poem to its larger context. 24–30: Last to be denounced is Coniah (also known as Jeconiah and Jehoiachin), who reigned for three months in Jerusalem in 598 BCE before surrendering and being deported to Babylon (2 Kings 24.8–12); see also 52.31–34. 24: Signet ring on my right hand, a sign of dynastic authority; cf. Hag 2.23. 30: Childless, symbolizing the end of the royal line. None of his offspring, but Sheshbazzar, "prince of Judah" (Ezra 1.8), may be the "Shenazzar" listed among the sons of Jehoiachin in 1 Chr 3.18, and appointed by the Persians as governor of Judah (1 Est 2.12).

23.1–8: Conclusion. The chronological survey of Judah's kings concludes with a general oracle against those "shepherds" and a veiled reference to Zedekiah (vv. 5–6). 2: Not attended . . . attend to you, an ambiguous term connoting both attentive care (Ex 3.16; 4.31) and especially scrutinizing punishment (Am 3.14; Zech 10.3); see also v. 4n. 3: They shall be fruitful and multiply, the promise of progeny is an assurance of the survival of the decimated community (29.6; Gen 1.28). 4: Be missing, a third meaning of the term "attend" (v. 2). The basic meaning of the word is to "muster" or "count off." In counting and arranging in order some may be discovered to be missing. 5: Righteous Branch, cf. 33.15; Isa 4.2; 11.1; Zech 3.8; 6.12; here the metaphor implies the survival righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. ⁶ In his days Judah will be saved and Israel will live in safety. And this is the name by which he will be called: “The LORD is our righteousness.”

⁷ Therefore, the days are surely coming, says the LORD, when it shall no longer be said, “As the LORD lives who brought the people of Israel up out of the land of Egypt,” ⁸ but “As the LORD lives who brought out and led the offspring of the house of Israel out of the land of the north and out of all the lands where he^a had driven them.” Then they shall live in their own land.

⁹ Concerning the prophets:
My heart is crushed within me,
all my bones shake;
I have become like a drunkard,
like one overcome by wine, because of the LORD
and because of his holy words.

¹⁰ For the land is full of adulterers;
because of the curse the land mourns, and the pastures of the wilderness are dried up.

Their course has been evil,
and their might is not right.

¹¹ Both prophet and priest are ungodly; even in my house I have found their
wickedness,

says the LORD.

¹² Therefore their way shall be to them like slippery paths in the darkness, into which they shall be driven
and fall;

for I will bring disaster upon them
in the year of their punishment,
says the LORD.

¹³ In the prophets of Samaria
I saw a disgusting thing:
they prophesied by Baal
and led my people Israel astray.

¹⁴ But in the prophets of Jerusalem
I have seen a more shocking thing:
they commit adultery and walk in lies;
they strengthen the hands of evildoers,
so that no one turns from wickedness;
all of them have become like Sodom to me,
and its inhabitants like Gomorrah.

¹⁵ Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets:
“I am going to make them eat wormwood,
and give them poisoned water to drink;
from the prophets of Jerusalem ungodliness has spread throughout the
land.”

¹⁶ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Do not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you; they are deluding you.
They speak visions of their own minds, not from the mouth of the LORD. ¹⁷ They keep saying to those who despise the word of the LORD, “It shall be well with you”; and to all who stubbornly follow their own stubborn hearts, they say, “No calamity shall come upon you.”

¹⁸ For who has stood in the council of the LORD
so as to see and to hear his word?

^a Gk: Heb I

of an endangered dynasty. The possession of wisdom and the execution of justice and righteousness were the hallmarks of the just king throughout the ancient Near East. 6: The LORD is our righteousness, Heb “yhw h tsidqenu,” a play on the name of Zedekiah (“tsidqi-yahu”), the last king of Judah (597–586 BCE), appointed to the throne by Nebuchadnezzar (2 Kings 24.17). The reversal of the two elements of the name suggests that he will be the antithesis of Zedekiah. 7–8: The days are surely coming, promising restoration. Like Isa 43.16–21; 51.9–11, Jeremiah imagines a new Exodus which makes the first obsolete.

23.9–40: Oracles directed to the prophets as royal agents, who function alongside the priests in the Temple (v. 11) and who preach soothing words of well-being at a time of crisis. This composite prose and poetic diatribe is the longest discourse on prophecy in the Bible. 13–15: To associate prophets of Jerusalem with prophets of Samaria is a blanket condemnation of the prophetic enterprise. 13: Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel. For prophets of the Canaanite god Baal there, see 1 Kings 18.20–24. 14: Jerusalem outdoes Samaria with its offenses; cf. Ezek 16 46–55; 23.2–11. Sodom . . . Gomorrah, see 20.16n. 15: Wormwood, see 9.15n. 16–17: For an example, see Hananiah in ch 28. 18: Council of the LORD, God presided over a royal court with many

Who has given heed to his word so as to proclaim it?

¹⁹ Look, the storm of the LORD!

Wrath has gone forth,
a whirling tempest;
it will burst upon the head of the wicked.

²⁰ The anger of the LORD will not turn back until he has executed and accomplished the intents of his mind.

In the latter days you will understand it clearly.

²¹ I did not send the prophets,
yet they ran;

I did not speak to them,
yet they prophesied.

²² But if they had stood in my council,
then they would have proclaimed my words to my people,
and they would have turned them from their evil way,
and from the evil of their doings.

²³ Am I a God near by, says the LORD, and not a God far off? ²⁴ Who can hide in secret places so that I cannot see them? says the LORD. Do I not fill heaven and earth? says the LORD. ²⁵ I have heard what the prophets have said who prophesy lies in my name, saying, "I have dreamed, I have dreamed!" ²⁶ How long? Will the hearts of the prophets ever turn back—those who prophesy lies, and who prophesy the deceit of their own heart? ²⁷ They plan to make my people forget my name by their dreams that they tell one another, just as their ancestors forgot my name for Baal. ²⁸ Let the prophet who has a dream tell the dream, but let the one who has my word speak my word faithfully. What has straw in common with wheat? says the LORD. ²⁹ Is not my word like fire, says the LORD, and like a hammer that breaks a rock in pieces? ³⁰ See, therefore, I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who steal my words from one another. ³¹ See, I am against the prophets, says the LORD, who use their own tongues and say, "Says the LORD." ³² See, I am against those who prophesy lying dreams, says the LORD, and who tell them, and who lead my people astray by their lies and their recklessness, when I did not send them or appoint them; so they do not profit this people at all, says the LORD.

³³ When this people, or a prophet, or a priest asks you, "What is the burden of the LORD?" you shall say to them, "You are the burden,^a and I will cast you off, says the LORD." ³⁴ And as for the prophet, priest, or the people who say, "The burden of the LORD," I will punish them and their households.

³⁵ Thus shall you say to one another, among yourselves, "What has the LORD answered?" or "What has the LORD spoken?" ³⁶ But "the burden of the LORD" you shall mention no more, for the burden is everyone's own word, and so you pervert the words of the living God, the LORD of hosts, our God. ³⁷ Thus you shall ask the prophet, "What has the

^a Gk Vg: Heb What burden

divine beings (e.g., Pss 29.1; 82.1; 89.7). 19–20: See 30.23–24. Storm imagery is frequently used to represent the coming of the LORD as a warrior. 21: They ran, like a runner bringing a message (2 Sam 18.19–26; cf. Isa 52.7). 22: Stood in my council, prophets sometimes described themselves as eyewitnesses and even participants in the deliberations of the heavenly court (1 Kings 22.19–23; Isa 6). 23–32: God is not a domesticated local deity who can be manipulated but one who fills heaven and earth (v. 24). 23: Am I a God near by? a question supposing a negative response. God is not near by, but rather is far off; see 1 Kings 8.27. 26: How long (v. 26), a frequent question in laments (see Pss 6.3; 74.10; 80.4; Isa 6.11; Hab 1.2). Deceit or falsehood (see also 5.31; 6.13; 14.14). 27: Plan or scheme; cf., 11.9; 18.18. 28–29: Dream . . . word, a contrast between common wishful thinking and powerful visionary experience producing God's fiery word. Num 12.6 and Joel 2.28, however, suggest that both dreams and visionary experiences were legitimate means of receiving oracles from God, so this is not likely a disparaging of the one for the sake of the other (but is not in the MT). The divine word surpasses any medium of its conveyance and is powerful. 30–32: Note the threefold, first-person divine condemnation: I am against . . ., concluding with I did not send them. 31: Says the LORD, these prophets are not prophesying in the name of Baal (vv. 13,27), but rather in the very name of God. They are, however, simply mimicking one another and plagiarizing each other's messages (v. 30). 33: Burden, a term also used for an "oracle" (see Nah 1.1; Zech 9.1; 12.1; Mal 1.1). A sarcastic play on words: the people seek an oracle from Jeremiah but they are declared to be a burden

LORD answered you?” or “What has the LORD spoken?”³⁸ But if you say, “the burden of the LORD,” thus says the LORD: Because you have said these words, “the burden of the LORD,” when I sent to you, saying, You shall not say, “the burden of the LORD,”³⁹ therefore, I will surely lift you up^a and cast you away from my presence, you and the city that I gave to you and your ancestors.⁴⁰ And I will bring upon you everlasting disgrace and perpetual shame, which shall not be forgotten.

24 The LORD showed me two baskets of figs placed before the temple of the LORD. This was after King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon had taken into exile from Jerusalem King Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim of Judah, together with the officials of Judah, the artisans, and the smiths, and had brought them to Babylon.² One basket had very good figs, like first-ripe figs, but the other basket had very bad figs, so bad that they could not be eaten.³ And the LORD said to me, “What do you see, Jeremiah?” I said, “Figs, the good figs very good, and the bad figs very bad, so bad that they cannot be eaten.”

⁴ Then the word of the LORD came to me: ⁵ Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Like these good figs, so I will regard as good the exiles from Judah, whom I have sent away from this place to the land of the Chaldeans.

⁶ I will set my eyes upon them for good, and I will bring them back to this land. I will build them up, and not tear them down; I will plant them, and not pluck them up.⁷ I will give them a heart to know that I am the LORD; and they shall be my people and I will be their God, for they shall return to me with their whole heart.

⁸ But thus says the LORD: Like the bad figs that are so bad they cannot be eaten, so will I treat King Zedekiah of Judah, his officials, the remnant of Jerusalem who remain in this land, and those who live in the land of Egypt.⁹ I will make them a horror, an evil thing, to all the kingdoms of the earth—a disgrace, a byword, a taunt, and a curse in all the places where I shall drive them.¹⁰ And I will send sword, famine, and pestilence upon them, until they are utterly destroyed from the land that I gave to them and their ancestors.

25 The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah (that was the first year of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon),² which the prophet Jeremiah spoke to all the people of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem:³ For twenty-three years, from the thirteenth year of King Josiah son of Amon of Judah, to

^a Heb Mss Gk Vg: MT forget you

to God; cf. 17.21. ³⁹: I will surely lift you up, a further play on the term “burden” (Heb “massa”), derived from the verb “nasa’,” “to carry or lift.”

24.1–10: Conclusion to this group of oracles from the time of Zedekiah. The exiled Jeconiah (Jehoiachin) was held in high esteem by those exiled with him in Babylon and by the supporters of Jeremiah’s program. Those left in Judah who supported Zedekiah were regarded as rotten and inedible figs; see further 22.27; 29.17; 2 Kings 24.10–17. In this perspective, the future hope lay with those in exile. This language was a polemical support for the community which eventually returned from exile and reestablished control in the postexilic reconstruction under Zerubbabel, Ezra, and Nehemiah. 5: Chaldeans, see 21.4n. 6: See 1.10. 7: They shall be my people. . . , see 7.23n. 8: In the land of Egypt, many Judeans fled to Egypt, an ally of Judah in its struggle against the Babylonians; cf. 42.13–14.

25.1–38: Judah among all the nations. The conclusion of the first cycle of oracles with its reference to the scroll of 605 BCE (see ch 36). With Nebuchadrezzar’s victory over the Egyptians at Carchemish in 605, Judah’s fate became a part of unfolding world events. Its destruction here is placed in cosmic perspective as God’s wrath is directed against all the nations, and finally against Babylon itself. In the LXX, the oracles against the nations (chs 46–51) follow 25.13. 1–14: The prose discourse is associated with “the fourth year of King Jehoiakim . . . the first year of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon” (605 BCE), a year fraught with symbolic and historical significance. Nebuchadnezzar’s ascension to the throne sets in motion the events that lead to the end of Judean life as it was long known. The sermon is similar to speeches in the Deuteronomistic History (see, e.g., 2 Kings 17.13–23): God sends prophets to warn Israel (vv. 4–6), Israel refuses to heed their message (v. 7), and God brings judgment in the form of disaster (vv. 8–14). Recent scholars suggest that the language of sin and judgment this day, the word of the LORD has come to me, and I have spoken persistently to you, but you have not listened.⁴ And though the LORD persistently sent you all his servants the prophets, you have neither listened nor inclined your ears to hear⁵ when they said, “Turn now, every one of you, from your evil way and wicked doings, and you will remain upon the land that the LORD has given to you and your ancestors from of old and forever;⁶ do not go after other gods to serve and worship them, and do not provoke me to anger with the work of your hands. Then I will do you no harm.”⁷ Yet you did not listen to me, says the LORD, and so you have provoked me to anger with the work of your hands to your own harm.

⁸Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: Because you have not obeyed my words,⁹ I am going to send for all the tribes of the north, says the LORD, even for King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, my servant, and I will bring them against this land and its inhabitants, and against all these nations around; I will utterly destroy them, and make them an object of horror and of hissing, and an everlasting disgrace.^a ¹⁰And I will banish from them the sound of mirth and the sound of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the sound of the millstones and the light of the lamp. ¹¹This whole land shall become a ruin and a waste, and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. ¹²Then after seventy years are completed, I will punish the king of Babylon and that nation, the land of the Chaldeans, for their iniquity, says the LORD, making the land an everlasting waste. ¹³I will bring upon that land all the words that I have uttered against it, everything written in this book, which Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations. ¹⁴For many nations and great kings shall make slaves of them also; and I will repay them according to their deeds and the work of their hands.

¹⁵For thus the LORD, the God of Israel, said to me: Take from my hand this cup of the wine of wrath, and make all the nations to whom I send you drink it. ¹⁶They shall drink and stagger and go out of their minds because of the sword that I am sending among them.

¹⁷So I took the cup from the LORD’s hand, and made all the nations to whom the LORD sent me drink it: ¹⁸Jerusalem and the towns of Judah, its kings and officials, to make them a desolation and a waste, an object of hissing and of cursing, as they are today; ¹⁹Pharaoh king of Egypt, his servants, his officials, and all his people; ²⁰all the mixed people;^b all the kings of the land of Uz; all the kings of the land of the Philistines—Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod; ²¹Edom, Moab, and the Ammonites; ²²all the kings of Tyre, all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the coastland across the sea; ²³Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all who have shaven temples; ²⁴all the kings of Arabia and all the kings of the mixed peoples^b that live in the desert; ²⁵all the kings of Zimri, all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of Media; ²⁶all the kings of the

^a Gk Compare Syr: Heb and everlasting desolations

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

serves as a survival mechanism to make the trauma of war manageable. It assures survivors that their suffering is not arbitrary, that God is not capricious, and that they can alter their future. 4: See 7.25n. 9: All the tribes of the north, the direction of coming disaster; see 1.14n. Nebuchadrezzar is the only non-Israelite identified as God’s servant in the Hebrew Bible; see also 27.6; 43.10; cf. Isa 44.28–45.13. 11: Seventy years, an expected lifetime; see Ps 90.10; Isa 23.15; see also 29.10; Dan 9.2; Zech 7.5. Here it is interpreted both literally and metaphorically. 10: See 7.34n. 13: This book, either chs 1–25 or the scroll of 605 BCE. By placing the oracles against the nations at this point, however, the LXX takes “this book” to refer to chs 46–51. 15: Cup of the wine of wrath, see 13.12–14n. 18: As they are today, presumes an exilic perspective (after 586 BCE) rather than that of 605 BCE as indicated in 25.1. 19–26: The nations are listed in their proximity to Judah from nearest to farthest; see map on p. 1145. Although oracles against the nations usually signal hope for Israel, here Jerusalem and the towns of Judah are the first in line to drink from the cup of divine judgment. Last to drink is the king of Sheshach (v. 26), a cryptic allusion to Babylon. 20: Mixed people, a term associated with the desert dwellers in v. 24. Uz is in Edom, the home of Job (Job 1.1); precise location unknown. 23: Dedan, Tema, Buz, cities in Arabia. Shaven temples, see 9.26n. 25: Zimri, otherwise unknown. 26: Sheshach, code language for “Babel” (Babylon) derived by substituting the letters of north, far and near, one after another, and all the kingdoms of the world that are on the face of the earth. And after them the king of Sheshach^a shall drink.

²⁷ Then you shall say to them, Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink, get drunk and vomit, fall and rise no more, because of the sword that I am sending among you.

²⁸ And if they refuse to accept the cup from your hand to drink, then you shall say to them: Thus says the LORD of hosts: You must drink! ²⁹ See, I am beginning to bring disaster on the city that is called by my name, and how can you possibly avoid punishment? You shall not go unpunished, for I am summoning a sword against all the inhabitants of the earth, says the LORD of hosts.

³⁰ You, therefore, shall prophesy against them all these words, and say to them:

The LORD will roar from on high,
and from his holy habitation utter his voice;

he will roar mightily against his fold,
and shout, like those who tread grapes,
against all the inhabitants of the earth.

³¹ The clamor will resound to the ends of the earth,
for the LORD has an indictment against the nations;

he is entering into judgment with all flesh,
and the guilty he will put to the sword,
says the LORD.

³² Thus says the LORD of hosts:

See, disaster is spreading from nation to nation,
and a great tempest is stirring from the farthest parts of the earth!

³³ Those slain by the LORD on that day shall extend from one end of the earth to the other. They shall not be lamented, or gathered, or buried; they shall become dung on the surface of the ground.

³⁴ Wail, you shepherds, and cry out;
roll in ashes, you lords of the flock,
for the days of your slaughter have come—and your dispersions,^b and you shall fall like a choice vessel.

³⁵ Flight shall fail the shepherds, and there shall be no escape for the lords of the flock.

³⁶ Hark! the cry of the shepherds,
and the wail of the lords of the flock!
For the LORD is despoiling their pasture, ³⁷ and the peaceful folds are devastated,
because of the fierce anger of the LORD.

³⁸ Like a lion he has left his covert;
for their land has become a waste
because of the cruel sword, and because of his fierce anger.

26 At the beginning of the reign of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah, this word came from the LORD: ² Thus says the

^a Sheshach is a cryptogram for Babel, Babylon

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

the alphabet in reverse order, an encryption method called “atbash”; see also 51.1,41. 30: Divine wrath is portrayed in conventional terms as a roaring lion (Am 1.2; Hos 11.10; Joel 3.16) or one treading out grapes like blood (Gen 49.11; Isa 63.1–3; Zech 9.15). 31: An indictment, for lawsuit language in Jeremiah, see 2.9,29; 11.20; 12.1; 20.12; 50.34; and 51.36. 33: Using common themes; cf. 16.4. 34: Roll in ashes, characteristic mourning ritual; cf. 6.26. 38: He has left, that is, God, the lion of Judah, has abandoned his abode.

26:1–52:34: Overtures of hope beyond shattered worlds. The second half of the book narrates the events of Judah’s final years. At important intervals, however, it punctuates the literary performance with strategies for survival. Readers can discern these overtures of hope in Jeremiah’s survival (ch 26), in his letter to the Judean exiles in Babylon (ch 29), and in the endurance of the prophetic scroll (ch 36). They are also evident in individuals who are receptive to Jeremiah’s message and come to his aid (e.g., Ahikam, Ebed-melech, and Baruch). They emerge most visibly in the Book of Comfort (chs 30–31, 33) and in the oracles against the nations (chs 46–51), which conclude with a lengthy diatribe against Judah’s archenemy Babylon (chs 50–51).

26:1–29.32: Jeremiah in conflict. These narratives begin the second cycle of prophetic oracles, and detail several episodes in which Jeremiah was in conflict with Temple and royal officials and other prophets. This cycle includes chs 26–35, and concludes with ch 36. It spans the time from Jehoiakim’s reign (609 BCE) to that of Zedekiah and the final siege of Jerusalem (586 BCE). Some attribute the narrative material in chs 26–29 to “Baruch’s memoirs,” but this is conjectural.

LORD: Stand in the court of the LORD's house, and speak to all the cities of Judah that come to worship in the house of the LORD; speak to them all the words that I command you; do not hold back a word.³ It may be that they will listen, all of them, and will turn from their evil way, that I may change my mind about the disaster that I intend to bring on them because of their evil doings.⁴ You shall say to them: Thus says the LORD: If you will not listen to me, to walk in my law that I have set before you,⁵ and to heed the words of my servants the prophets whom I send to you urgently—though you have not heeded—⁶ then I will make this house like Shiloh, and I will make this city a curse for all the nations of the earth.

⁷The priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD.⁸ And when Jeremiah had finished speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak to all the people, then the priests and the prophets and all the people laid hold of him, saying, "You shall die!"⁹ Why have you prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, "This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate, without inhabitant?" And all the people gathered around Jeremiah in the house of the LORD.

¹⁰ When the officials of Judah heard these things, they came up from the king's house to the house of the LORD and took their seat in the entry of the New Gate of the house of the LORD.¹¹ Then the priests and the prophets said to the officials and to all the people, "This man deserves the sentence of death because he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your own ears."

¹² Then Jeremiah spoke to all the officials and all the people, saying, "It is the LORD who sent me to prophesy against this house and this city all the words you have heard.¹³ Now therefore amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God, and the LORD will change his mind about the disaster that he has pronounced against you.¹⁴ But as for me, here I am in your hands. Do with me as seems good and right to you.

¹⁵ Only know for certain that if you put me to death, you will be bringing innocent blood upon yourselves and upon this city and its inhabitants, for in truth the LORD sent me to you to speak all these words in your ears."

¹⁶ Then the officials and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, "This man does not deserve the sentence of death, for he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God."¹⁷ And some of the elders of the land arose and said to all the assembled people,¹⁸ "Micah of Moresheth, who prophesied during the days of King Hezekiah of Judah, said to all the people of Judah: 'Thus says the LORD of hosts,

Zion shall be plowed as a field;

Jerusalem shall become a heap of ruins,
and the mountain of the house a wooded height.'

¹⁹ Did King Hezekiah of Judah and all Judah actually put him to death? Did he not fear the LORD and entreat the favor of the LORD, and did not the LORD change his mind about the disaster that he had pronounced against them? But we are about to bring great disaster on ourselves!"

26.1–24: Jeremiah's Temple sermon. This abridged account of Jeremiah's Temple sermon (7.1–15) focuses on its mixed reception by Judah's leaders. 1: The beginning of the reign, 609 BCE. 3: That I may change my mind, see 18.8,10n. 5: See 7.25n. 6: Shiloh, see 7.12n. 9: To prophesy threats against the royal sanctuary was tantamount to treason; cf. Am 7.10–13. 10: Seat in the entry of the New Gate, indicates that this is a formal judicial hearing, with justice administered "in the gate" (Isa 29.21; Am 5.15). 12: As elsewhere in the ancient Near East, prophets were granted some degree of protection because they were constrained to bring their message by the gods (cf. v. 15). 15: Killing an innocent person was a crime with disastrous consequences (see Deut 19.10–13; 21.8–9; 27.25); cf. 7.6. 16–19: For the first time in the book, individuals—the officials and all the people . . . and some of the elders—come to Jeremiah's aid. The charge is mitigated for two reasons: they recognize the prophet's claim to immunity on the basis of being constrained by God to deliver a message; and the precedent of Micah is invoked, with a rare quotation of an earlier book (Mic 3.12). Micah's prediction of disaster did not come to pass because, it is argued, he successfully prompted Hezekiah to plead for divine favor. This event is not mentioned in the historical books, where only Isaiah is mentioned in connection with Hezekiah and the Assyrian ²⁰ There was another man prophesying in the name of the LORD, Uriah son of Shemaiah from Kiriath-jearim. He prophesied against this city and against this land in words exactly like those of Jeremiah. ²¹ And when King Jehoiakim, with all his warriors and all the officials, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death; but when Uriah heard of it, he was afraid and fled and escaped to Egypt. ²² Then King Jehoiakim sent^a Elnathan son of Achbor and men with him to Egypt, ²³ and they took Uriah from Egypt and brought him to King Jehoiakim, who struck him down with the sword and threw his dead body into the burial place of the common people.

²⁴ But the hand of Ahikam son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah so that he was not given over into the hands of the people to be put to death.

27 In the beginning of the reign of King Zedekiah^b son of Josiah of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD. ² Thus the LORD said to me: Make yourself a yoke of straps and bars, and put them on your neck. ³ Send word^c to the king of Edom, the king of Moab, the king of the Ammonites, the king of Tyre, and the king of Sidon by the hand of the envoys who have come to Jerusalem to King Zedekiah of Judah. ⁴ Give them this charge for their masters: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: This is what you shall say to your masters: ⁵ It is I who by my great power and my outstretched arm have made the earth, with the people and animals that are on the earth, and I give it to whomever I please. ⁶ Now I have given all these lands into the hand of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, my servant, and I have given him even the wild animals of the field to serve him. ⁷ All the nations shall serve him and his son and his grandson, until the time of his own land comes; then many nations and great kings shall make him their slave.

⁸ But if any nation or kingdom will not serve this king, Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, and put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, then I will punish that nation with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence, says the LORD, until I have completed its^d destruction by his hand. ⁹ You, therefore, must

^a Heb adds men to Egypt

^b Another reading is Jehoiakim

^c Cn: Heb send them

^d Heb their

crisis (2 Kings 18.13–20.19). 20–23: The precedent of Uriah, however, who was hunted down by Jehoiakim and executed, indicated the danger facing Jeremiah. 22: Elnathan, see 36.12,25. 24: Ahikam son of Shaphan, see also 39.14; 40.5,9,11; 2 Kings 22.12; 25.22. As Josiah's secretary, Shaphan had been instrumental in the reform movement of Josiah (2 Kings 22.3–13), of which Jeremiah was likely an enthusiastic supporter. This particular family, comprised of Shaphan's sons Ahikam and Gemariah and others, was one of Jeremiah's chief advocates within the royal ranks of the princes; see 36.11–19. That Ahikam had to rescue Jeremiah indicates that, in spite of the sentiments of the officials and people, Jeremiah was still in grave danger.

27.1–28.17: Jeremiah's ox yoke and his confrontation with Hananiah. These chapters focus on the length and meaning of Babylonian sovereignty, questions especially pertinent to survivors in Babylon. Should Judah resist or surrender to Babylonian rule? Is Babylonian hegemony part of God's plan or an obstacle to be overcome? How long will Judean refugees remain in Babylon? These core questions come to the fore in a confrontation between two prophets, Hananiah and Jeremiah, who hold opposing views. The date of Jeremiah's confrontation with Hananiah, according to 28.1, is August 594 BCE (contrast 27.1, where MT has a scribal error, dating the event to the beginning of Jehoiakim's reign, under the influence of 26.1).

27.1–11: Jeremiah's words to the foreign emissaries. 2: A yoke, lacking in the text, where Jeremiah is simply told to make "straps" and "bars"; these were components of a yoke; see Lev 26.13; Ezek 34.27. A yoke, used across the neck of oxen to pull heavy loads, here denotes servitude to Babylonian authority. 3: Send word, lit., "send them" (see textual note c), which suggests that it was the straps and bars of the yoke that were sent via the emissaries. 6: Nebuchadnezzar, this form of the name, used in chs 27–29, shows the influence of the Deuteronomistic editor. Elsewhere in Jeremiah the form is more correctly rendered as Nebuchadrezzar. My servant, see 25.9n. 7: A prophecy concerning the limited time span of Babylonian rule, an indication of God's authority over the Babylonian conquest (see v. 6). 8–14: Jeremiah offers a choice and limited hope: willing submission to vassalage or destruction. 9: Diviners . . . dreamers . . . soothsayers . . . sorcerers, banned in Deut 18.10,14, although prophetic texts indicate that they were present in Israel.

not listen to your prophets, your diviners, your dreamers,³ your soothsayers, or your sorcerers, who are saying to you, “You shall not serve the king of Babylon.”¹⁰ For they are prophesying a lie to you, with the result that you will be removed far from your land; I will drive you out, and you will perish.¹¹ But any nation that will bring its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him, I will leave on its own land, says the LORD, to till it and live there.

¹²I spoke to King Zedekiah of Judah in the same way: Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live.¹³ Why should you and your people die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, as the LORD has spoken concerning any nation that will not serve the king of Babylon?¹⁴ Do not listen to the words of the prophets who are telling you not to serve the king of Babylon, for they are prophesying a lie to you.¹⁵ I have not sent them, says the LORD, but they are prophesying falsely in my name, with the result that I will drive you out and you will perish, you and the prophets who are prophesying to you.

¹⁶Then I spoke to the priests and to all this people, saying, Thus says the LORD: Do not listen to the words of your prophets who are prophesying to you, saying, “The vessels of the LORD’s house will soon be brought back from Babylon,” for they are prophesying a lie to you.¹⁷ Do not listen to them; serve the king of Babylon and live. Why should this city become a desolation?¹⁸ If indeed they are prophets, and if the word of the LORD is with them, then let them intercede with the LORD of hosts, that the vessels left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem may not go to Babylon.¹⁹ For thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the pillars, the sea, the stands, and the rest of the vessels that are left in this city,²⁰ which King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon did not take away when he took into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon King Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim of Judah, and all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem—²¹thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the vessels left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem:²² They shall be carried to Babylon, and there they shall stay, until the day when I give attention to them, says the LORD. Then I will bring them up and restore them to this place.

28 In that same year, at the beginning of the reign of King Zedekiah of Judah, in the fifth month of the fourth year, the prophet Hananiah son of Azzur, from Gibeon, spoke to me in the house of the LORD, in the presence of the priests and all the people, saying,² “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon.³ Within two years I will bring back to this place all the vessels of the LORD’s house, which King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon took away from this place and carried to Babylon.⁴ I will also bring back to this place King Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim of Judah, and all the exiles from Judah who went to Babylon, says the LORD, for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon.”

⁵Then the prophet Jeremiah spoke to the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the

^a Gk Syr Vg: Heb dreams

27.12–22: Jeremiah’s words to Zedekiah and the people of Jerusalem. 12–15: Jeremiah reiterates this message to Zedekiah: the king should not follow prophets who incite insurrection against Babylon. 16: The vessels, ritual paraphernalia used in the Temple that had been taken by the Babylonians in 597 BCE; see 28.3; 2 Kings 24.13; Ezra 5.14–15. 19: The pillars Jachin and Boaz (1 Kings 7.15–22), the large basin known as the sea (1 Kings 7.23–26), and the stands and vessels (1 Kings 7.27–39) were furnishings of the Temple taken to Babylon in 586 BCE (2 Kings 25.13–17). The vessels that were not broken up were later returned by Cyrus in 538 BCE (Ezra 1.7–11).

28.1–17: Jeremiah’s confrontation with the prophet Hananiah. Continuing the “yoke” motif, and by pressing questions regarding Babylonian hegemony, this story pits two prophets and their respective interpretations of the Judean exile against each other. Hananiah represented the message of “peace” being proclaimed by the “lying prophets,” encouraging resistance to Babylon and false hopes of a quick end to the political crisis, a restoration not only of the Temple vessels but of King Jehoiachin to the throne. Jeremiah cites prophetic tradition in support of his message of disaster. The contest is resolved by the death of Hananiah two months later. 1: On the date see 27.1–28.17n. 4: Jeconiah, Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24.8–12). 5: The first-person perspective of priests and all the people who were standing in the house of the LORD; ⁶ and the prophet Jeremiah said, “Amen! May the LORD do so; may the LORD fulfill the words that you have prophesied, and bring back to this place from Babylon the vessels of the house of the LORD, and all the exiles. ⁷ But listen now to this word that I speak in your hearing and in the hearing of all the people. ⁸ The prophets who preceded you and me from ancient times prophesied war, famine, and pestilence against many countries and great kingdoms. ⁹ As for the prophet who prophesies peace, when the word of that prophet comes true, then it will be known that the LORD has truly sent the prophet.”

¹⁰ Then the prophet Hananiah took the yoke from the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, and broke it. ¹¹ And Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, “Thus says the LORD: This is how I will break the yoke of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon from the neck of all the nations within two years.” At this, the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

¹² Sometime after the prophet Hananiah had broken the yoke from the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: ¹³ Go, tell Hananiah, Thus says the LORD: You have broken wooden bars only to forge iron bars in place of them! ¹⁴ For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I have put an iron yoke on the neck of all these nations so that they may serve King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, and they shall indeed serve him; I have even given him the wild animals. ¹⁵ And the prophet Jeremiah said to the prophet Hananiah, “Listen, Hananiah, the LORD has not sent you, and you made this people trust in a lie. ¹⁶ Therefore thus says the LORD: I am going to send you off the face of the earth. Within this year you will be dead, because you have spoken rebellion against the LORD.”

¹⁷ In that same year, in the seventh month, the prophet Hananiah died.

29 These are the words of the letter that the prophet Jeremiah sent from Jerusalem to the remaining elders among the exiles, and to the priests, the prophets, and all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had taken into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon. ² This was after King Jeconiah, and the queen mother, the court officials, the leaders of Judah and Jerusalem, the artisans, and the smiths had departed from Jerusalem. ³ The letter was sent by the hand of Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiyah, whom King Zedekiah of Judah sent to Babylon to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. It said: ⁴ Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, to all the exiles whom I have sent into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon: ⁵ Build houses and live in them; plant gardens and eat what they produce. ⁶ Take wives and have sons and daughters; take wives for your sons, and give your daughters in marriage, that they may bear sons and daughters; multiply there, and do not decrease. ⁷ But seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile, and pray to the LORD on its behalf, for in its welfare you will find your welfare. ⁸ For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not let the prophets and the diviners who are among you deceive you, and do not listen a Jeremiah memoir (27.2,12,16; 28.1) suddenly shifts to a third-person account, illustrating the composite nature of this material. 6: It is unclear whether Jeremiah is sincere in his wish or is speaking with bitter irony. Because the story, under Deuteronomistic editing, is committed to the theme of prophetic fulfillment (see v. 9), the reader cannot doubt Jeremiah's word. 8: For earlier prophetic oracles against foreign nations, see Am 1–2; Isa 13–24; cf. Jer 46.1. 9: On the criterion of prophetic fulfillment, see Deut 18.21–22. 16–17: Send you off, a play on the fact that Hananiah has not been sent by God (v. 15). Hananiah died, the Deuteronomistic penalty for speaking rebellion; see Deut 18.20.

29.1–32: Jeremiah in conflict with prophets among the exiled community. A narrative containing letters written by Jeremiah to the exiles in Babylon. The letters dispute claims by prominent members of the community that Judah's captivity will be brief. 2: Jeconiah, Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24.8–12). The court officials, or “eunuchs”; see 34.19n. 3: Elasah son of Shaphan, presumably the brother of Ahikam (26.24); Gemariah son of Hilkiyah, son of the priest who discovered the scroll during the reign of Josiah (2 Kings 22.3–20). 5: Build . . . plant, characteristic language of Jeremiah's vision of restoration (1.10), which will first occur in Babylon itself. 6: Multiply there, and do not decrease, see 23.3n. 7: Welfare, that is “peace” (Heb “shalom”). They are to pray for the peace not of Jerusa-to the dreams that they dream,^{a 9} for it is a lie that they are prophesying to you in my name; I did not send them, says the LORD.

¹⁰For thus says the LORD: Only when Babylon's seventy years are completed will I visit you, and I will fulfill to you my promise and bring you back to this place. ¹¹For surely I know the plans I have for you, says the LORD, plans for your welfare and not for harm, to give you a future with hope. ¹²Then when you call upon me and come and pray to me, I will hear you. ¹³When you search for me, you will find me; if you seek me with all your heart, ¹⁴I will let you find me, says the LORD, and I will restore your fortunes and gather you from all the nations and all the places where I have driven you, says the LORD, and I will bring you back to the place from which I sent you into exile.

¹⁵Because you have said, "The LORD has raised up prophets for us in Babylon,"—

¹⁶Thus says the LORD concerning the king who sits on the throne of David, and concerning all the people who live in this city, your kinsfolk who did not go out with you into exile: ¹⁷Thus says the LORD of hosts, I am going to let loose on them sword, famine, and pestilence, and I will make them like rotten figs that are so bad they cannot be eaten.

¹⁸I will pursue them with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence, and will make them a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be an object of cursing, and horror, and hissing, and a derision among all the nations where I have driven them, ¹⁹because they did not heed my words, says the LORD, when I persistently sent to you my servants the prophets, but they^b would not listen, says the LORD. ²⁰But now, all you exiles whom I sent away from Jerusalem to Babylon, hear the word of the LORD: ²¹Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah and Zedekiah son of Maaseiah, who are prophesying a lie to you in my name:

I am going to deliver them into the hand of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, and he shall kill them before your eyes. ²²And on account of them this curse shall be used by all the exiles from Judah in Babylon: "The LORD make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire," ²³because they have perpetrated outrage in Israel and have committed adultery with their neighbors' wives, and have spoken in my name lying words that I did not command them; I am the one who knows and bears witness, says the LORD.

²⁴To Shemaiah of Nehelam you shall say: ²⁵Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: In your own name you sent a letter to all the people who are in Jerusalem, and to the priest Zephaniah son of Maaseiah, and to all the priests, saying, ²⁶The LORD himself has made you priest instead of the priest Jehoiada, so that there may be officers in the house of the LORD to control any madman who plays the prophet, to put him in the stocks and the collar. ²⁷So now why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth who plays the prophet for you? ²⁸For he has actually sent to us in Babylon, saying, "It will be a long time; build houses and live in them, and plant gardens and eat what they produce."

²⁹The priest Zephaniah read this letter in the hearing of the prophet Jeremiah. ³⁰Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: ³¹Send to all the exiles, saying, Thus says the LORD concerning Shemaiah of Nehelam: Because Shemaiah has prophesied to you, though I did not send him, and has led you to trust in a lie, ³²therefore thus says the LORD: I am going to punish Shemaiah of Nehelam and his descendants; he shall not have anyone living among this people to see^c the good

^a Cn: Heb your dreams that you cause to dream

^b Syr: Heb you

^c Gk: Heb and he shall not see

lem (cf. Ps 122.6) but of Babylon. 10: Babylon's seventy years, see 25.11n. 16–20: Attested only in the MT, this later interpretive comment encourages the Judean exiles to see themselves as heirs of God's gracious promises. 16: This city, that is, Jerusalem. 17: Sword, famine, and pestilence, see 14.12n. Rotten figs, cf. 24.1–10. 19: See 7.25n. 21: Ahab . . . Zedekiah, two of the prophets among the exiled community referred to in v. 15. 22: Roasted in the fire, cf. Dan 3.19–23. 26: Officers, see 20.1n. Madman, indicating the ecstatic qualities of typical prophetic behavior; see 1 Sam 10.10–13; 19.20–24. Who plays the prophet, that is, who engages in such ecstatic behavior. Stocks and the collar, cf. 20.2n.

that I am going to do to my people, says the LORD, for he has spoken rebellion against the LORD.

30 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ² Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Write in a book all the words that I have spoken to you. ³ For the days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will restore the fortunes of my people, Israel and Judah, says the LORD, and I will bring them back to the land that I gave to their ancestors and they shall take possession of it.

⁴ These are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and Judah:

⁵ Thus says the LORD:
We have heard a cry of panic,
of terror, and no peace.

⁶ Ask now, and see,
can a man bear a child?
Why then do I see every man with his hands on his loins like a woman in labor?

Why has every face turned pale?

⁷ Alas! that day is so great
there is none like it;
it is a time of distress for Jacob;
yet he shall be rescued from it.

⁸ On that day, says the LORD of hosts, I will break the yoke from off his^a neck, and I will burst his^a bonds, and strangers shall no more make a servant of him. ⁹ But they shall serve the LORD their God and David their king, whom I will raise up for them.

¹⁰ But as for you, have no fear, my servant Jacob, says the LORD,
and do not be dismayed, O Israel;
for I am going to save you from far away,
and your offspring from the land of their captivity.

Jacob shall return and have quiet and ease,
and no one shall make him afraid.

¹¹ For I am with you, says the LORD, to save
you;

I will make an end of all the nations
among which I scattered you,
but of you I will not make an end.

I will chastise you in just measure,
and I will by no means leave you unpunished.

¹² For thus says the LORD:

Your hurt is incurable,
your wound is grievous.

¹³ There is no one to uphold your cause, no medicine for your wound,
no healing for you.

^a Cn: Heb your

30.1–31.40: The book of comfort. A cluster of oracles looking forward to God’s restoration of Judah and Jerusalem, prompted by the reference to “the good” in 29.32. These oracles are said to be in a book or scroll (30.2,4) centering on the theme of “restoring the fortunes” of Israel/Judah. Since Israel (Ephraim) and Judah often appear as two separate political entities in this material, and because there is a frequent northern orientation (cf. 30.4; 31.5,6,15), some of the oracles may be early, envisioning Josiah’s desire to reunify Judah with the former territory of Israel. Although the section’s vision is of restoration, it is fraught with realism. Rarely does it deviate from the exigencies of war and forced migration. Note, for example, the retrieval of disaster language in its treatment of the future: panic . . . terror . . . no peace in 30.5 (6.14); yoke in 30.8 (28.2,4,12); wilderness in 31.2 (2.2); north in 31.8 (1.14; 4.6); Ramah in 31.15 (40.1), to pluck up and break down in 31.28 (1.10); and dead bodies in 31.40. 30.1–4: Introduction. The expressions “for the days are surely coming” and “restore the fortunes” sound the theme of this material. 2: Write in a book, far more than a mere surrogate of the spoken word, written prophecy plays a crucial role in Jeremiah’s vision of hope. Written prophecy is less restricted by spatial and temporal limitations than the spoken prophetic word (29.1–14); it can endure various forms of attack (e.g., 36.1–3,32; 51.59–64); it enjoys its own independent authority (e.g., 25.13; 26.17–19); and its very presence bears witness to a future of Israel/Judah. 3: Fortunes, or perhaps the spoils and persons lost in warfare, captivity or in crisis. 5–11: Using the imagery of breaking the yoke of captivity (v. 8) from chs 27–28, God’s salvation is promised. The language is akin to that of Second Isaiah, especially in vv. 10–11 (cf. Isa 35.4; 43.1). 6: The pain of labor in childbirth is a common metaphor for distress; see 4.31; 6.24; 13.21. 9: David their king, cf. v.21n. 10: My servant Jacob, the reassurances (see also 46.27–28; Isa 41.8; 44.2; 45.4) echo God’s initial promises to Jeremiah (1.8,17). 12–17: Shift to female subject. Lady Zion seems incurably wounded (cf. 14.17; 15.8,18) having suffered God’s punishment, but the time of healing and

¹⁴ All your lovers have forgotten you;
 they care nothing for you;
 for I have dealt you the blow of an enemy,
 the punishment of a merciless foe,
 because your guilt is great,
 because your sins are so numerous.

¹⁵ Why do you cry out over your hurt?
 Your pain is incurable.
 Because your guilt is great,
 because your sins are so numerous,
 I have done these things to you.

¹⁶ Therefore all who devour you shall be devoured,
 and all your foes, every one of them,
 shall go into captivity;
 those who plunder you shall be plundered, and all who prey on you I will make a prey.

¹⁷ For I will restore health to you, and your wounds I will heal,
says the LORD,
 because they have called you an outcast:
 "It is Zion; no one cares for her!"

¹⁸ Thus says the LORD:
 I am going to restore the fortunes of the tents of Jacob,
 and have compassion on his dwellings;
 the city shall be rebuilt upon its mound,
 and the citadel set on its rightful site.

¹⁹ Out of them shall come thanksgiving, and the sound of merrymakers.
 I will make them many, and they shall not be few;
 I will make them honored, and they shall not be disdained.

²⁰ Their children shall be as of old, their congregation shall be established
 before me;
 and I will punish all who oppress them.

²¹ Their prince shall be one of their own,
 their ruler shall come from their midst;
 I will bring him near, and he shall
 approach me,
 for who would otherwise dare to
 approach me?
says the LORD.

²² And you shall be my people, and I will be your God.

²³ Look, the storm of the LORD!
 Wrath has gone forth,
 a whirling^a tempest;
 it will burst upon the head of the
 wicked.

²⁴ The fierce anger of the LORD will not turn back
 until he has executed and accomplished
 the intents of his mind.

In the latter days you will understand this.

31 At that time, says the LORD, I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be my people.

² Thus says the LORD:

The people who survived the sword found grace in the wilderness;
 when Israel sought for rest,
³ the LORD appeared to him^b from far away.^c

I have loved you with an everlasting love;
 therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you.

⁴ Again I will build you, and you shall be built,
 O virgin Israel!

^a One Ms: Meaning of MT uncertain

^b Gk: Heb me

^c Or to him long ago restoration is at hand. 14: Lovers, i.e., political allies; see 2.18–19; cf. 2.33; 3.1. 18–24: Shift to male subject. The city and its ruler will be restored. 18: Its mound, that is, its “tell.” Cities were built on occupation mounds and, when destroyed, the mound was cleared and the city rebuilt and refortified on it. 21: Prince . . . ruler, avoiding the term for “king,” perhaps reflecting a more subdued expectation than that expressed in v. 9. 22: You shall be my people . . ., see 7.23n. 23–24: Duplicates 23.19–20, and was likely a fragment appended to this section. 31.1–6: Shift to female subject. “Virgin Israel” will dance and celebrate her vineyards. Motifs drawn from Israel’s most formative traditions—the Exodus from Egypt, the wilderness wanderings, and the promise of land—help organize the chaos of war and the vision of newness (see, e.g., Ex 5:1; 6:7; 33.12–17; Deut 8.2–4). 1: All the families of Israel. The promise of restoration includes all the displaced, including the former northern kingdom; note the mention of Ephraim in vv. 6, 9, 18. 2: Grace in the wilderness, an Exodus theme (Ex 33.12–17) appropriated as a metaphor for return from exile (see Isa 40.3; 41.18–19; 43.19). 3–4: From far away, see 23.23. I have loved you . . ., seen through the eyes of the

Again you shall take^a your tambourines, and go forth in the dance of the merrymakers.

⁵ Again you shall plant vineyards on the mountains of Samaria;
the planters shall plant,
and shall enjoy the fruit.

⁶ For there shall be a day when sentinels will call
in the hill country of Ephraim: “Come, let us go up to Zion, to the LORD our God.”

⁷ For thus says the LORD:
Sing aloud with gladness for Jacob, and raise shouts for the chief of the
nations;

proclaim, give praise, and say, “Save, O LORD, your people,
the remnant of Israel.”

⁸ See, I am going to bring them from the land of the north,
and gather them from the farthest parts
of the earth,

among them the blind and the lame,
those with child and those in labor,
together;
a great company, they shall return here.

⁹ With weeping they shall come, and with consolations^b I will lead them back,

I will let them walk by brooks of water, in a straight path in which they shall not stumble;

for I have become a father to Israel,
and Ephraim is my firstborn.

¹⁰ Hear the word of the LORD, O nations, and declare it in the coastlands far
away;

say, “He who scattered Israel will gather
him,
and will keep him as a shepherd a flock.”

¹¹ For the LORD has ransomed Jacob, and has redeemed him from hands too strong for him.

¹² They shall come and sing aloud on the height of Zion,
and they shall be radiant over the goodness of the LORD,
over the grain, the wine, and the oil, and over the young of the flock and the herd;

their life shall become like a watered
garden,
and they shall never languish again.

¹³ Then shall the young women rejoice in the dance,
and the young men and the old shall be merry.

I will turn their mourning into joy,
I will comfort them, and give them gladness for sorrow.

¹⁴ I will give the priests their fill of fatness,
and my people shall be satisfied with my bounty,

says the LORD.

^a Or adorn yourself with

^b Gk Compare Vg Tg: Heb supplications

beloved, Israel is no longer “faithless Israel” but virgin Israel. 6: One of the few portrayals of Temple worship in Jeremiah’s vision of the future: Israel’s homecoming includes a pilgrimage to Zion. Come, let us go up, whereas the double plural imperative previously rallied troops to war against Israel/Judah (“up, and let us [attack],” 6.4–5), it now serves as a call to worship. 7–14: Shift to male subject. The repatriation of the remnant of Israel. 7: Save, O LORD, a festival cry lying behind the term “Hosanna”; see Ps 118.25. 8: Blind. . . lame, the most pitiful and often discriminated against; cf. Lev 21.18; 2 Sam 5.8. 9: Ephraim, one of the Joseph tribes, the central power base of Israel (the north). Because of its significant political power base, it was considered the firstborn; see Gen 48.8–20. In poetic texts Ephraim is often synecdoche for the entire northern kingdom. 10–14: God’s announcement to the nations. 10–11: The poetic sequence of verbs, gather, keep, ransomed, and redeemed—the last two recalling the deliverance from Egypt (Ex 6.6; Deut 7.8; 9.26; Ps 74.2)—expresses God’s compassion for oppressed people. Cf. 23.2–3. 12–14: Bracketed by Heb “tov,” translated goodness and bounty, the verses contain images of newness, similar to Isaiah: sing aloud (Isa 26.19); they shall be radiant (Isa 60.5); a watered garden (Isa 58.11); mourning into joy (cf. Isa 60.20; 61.3; Ps 30.11); I will comfort them (Isa 40.1–2; 49.13; 51.3; 52.9). 12: Grain . . . wine . . . oil, images of agricultural bounty; see Deut 11.14; Hos 2.8; Joel 2.19,24. 14: Fatness, the fat of sacrifices was not to be eaten (Lev 3.17; 7.23–25), as it was reserved for God and was burned to ashes. This fatty ash residue was removed by

¹⁵ Thus says the LORD:
 A voice is heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping.
 Rachel is weeping for her children;
 she refuses to be comforted for her
 children,
 because they are no more.

¹⁶ Thus says the LORD:
 Keep your voice from weeping,
 and your eyes from tears;
 for there is a reward for your work,
 says the LORD:
 they shall come back from the land of the enemy;

¹⁷ there is hope for your future,
 says the LORD:
 your children shall come back to their own country.

¹⁸ Indeed I heard Ephraim pleading: “You disciplined me, and I took the discipline;
 I was like a calf untrained.
 Bring me back, let me come back,
 for you are the LORD my God.

¹⁹ For after I had turned away I repented; and after I was discovered, I struck my thigh;
 I was ashamed, and I was dismayed because I bore the disgrace of my youth.”

²⁰ Is Ephraim my dear son?
 Is he the child I delight in?
 As often as I speak against him,
 I still remember him.

Therefore I am deeply moved for him;
 I will surely have mercy on him,
 says the LORD.

²¹ Set up road markers for yourself,
 make yourself signposts;
 consider well the highway,
 the road by which you went.
 Return, O virgin Israel, return to these your cities.

²² How long will you waver,
 O faithless daughter?
 For the LORD has created a new thing on
 the earth:
 a woman encompasses^a a man.

²³ Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Once more they shall use these words in the land of Judah and in its towns when I restore their fortunes:

“The LORD bless you, O abode of
 righteousness,
 O holy hill!”

²⁴ And Judah and all its towns shall live there together, and the farmers and those who wander^b with their flocks.

²⁵ I will satisfy the weary, and all who are faint I will replenish.

²⁶ Thereupon I awoke and looked, and my sleep was pleasant to me.

²⁷ The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will sow the house of Israel and

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn Compare Syr Vg Tg: Heb and they shall wander

the priests following sacrificial rites (Lev 6.3–4), and was a symbol of divine bounty (Ps 36.9). 15–20: Rachel comforted and her children restored. Rachel’s sons were the ancestors of the Joseph tribes (Ephraim and Manasseh) and the tribe of Benjamin. As she once longed for children (Gen 30.1), now she laments her children’s deportation to Babylon. 15: Ramah, ca. 5 mi (8 km) north of Jerusalem, associated in one tradition with the burial place of Rachel (1 Sam 10.2; but see Gen 35.16; 48.7); the town also served as a transit camp for Judeans being deported to Babylon (Jer 40.1). 19: Struck my thigh, a sign of mourning and regret; see Ezek 21.12. 20: Though Ephraim does not act like a dear son or delightful child, nevertheless God cannot ultimately turn against him; cf. Hos 11.1–9. 21–22: The faithless daughter’s return. 21: Road markers, or more likely grave markers (see 2 Kings 23.17; Ezek 39.15). Signposts, a word also used in v. 15 (“bitter weeping”), so likely associated with the mourning at a grave. Israel is to recall its deadly path to exile. 22: A new thing, cf. Isa 42.9; 43.19. A woman encompasses a man, a cryptic phrase, perhaps playing on the term “faithless.” The word translated “encompasses” is used of God’s protective care in Deut 32.10. Normally women were under the protection of male members of their family. 23–26: Conclusion to an earlier dream-vision sequence, a sign of the editing of this material. When I restore their fortunes, the restoration of the destruction and overthrowing of Judah (1.10).

31.27–40: Three oracles looking forward to God’s radically new future. Each is introduced by “The days are surely coming, says the LORD” (vv. 27,31,38).

the house of Judah with the seed of humans and the seed of animals. ²⁸ And just as I have watched over them to pluck up and break down, to overthrow, destroy, and bring evil, so I will watch over them to build and to plant, says the LORD. ²⁹ In those days they shall no longer say:

“The parents have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge.”

³⁰ But all shall die for their own sins; the teeth of everyone who eats sour grapes shall be set on edge.

³¹ The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah.

³² It will not be like the covenant that I made with their ancestors when I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt—a covenant that they broke, though I was their husband,^a says the LORD. ³³ But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the LORD: I will put my law within them, and I will write it on their hearts; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. ³⁴ No longer shall they teach one another, or say to each other, “Know the LORD,” for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest, says the LORD; for I will forgive their iniquity, and remember their sin no more.

³⁵ Thus says the LORD, who gives the sun for light by day and the fixed order of the moon and the stars for light by night,

who stirs up the sea so that its waves
roar—

the LORD of hosts is his name:

³⁶ If this fixed order were ever to cease from my presence, says the LORD, then also the offspring of Israel would cease to be a nation before me forever.

³⁷ Thus says the LORD:

If the heavens above can be measured,
and the foundations of the earth below
can be explored,

then I will reject all the offspring of Israel because of all they have done,
says the LORD.

³⁸ The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when the city shall be rebuilt for the LORD from the tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. ³⁹ And the measuring line shall go out farther, straight to the hill Gareb, and shall then turn to Goah. ⁴⁰ The whole valley of the dead bodies and the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Wadi Kidron, to the corner of the Horse Gate toward the east, shall be sacred to the LORD. It shall never again be uprooted or overthrown.

32 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of King Zedekiah of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar. ² At that time the

^a Or master

31.27–30: God will build and plant the new Israel. 27: God promises to repopulate a war-torn and decimated community by reuniting northern and southern Israel; cf. 3.18; Ezek 36.8–11. 28: Watched over . . . to build and to plant, the central theme of the book; see 1.10,11–12. 29–30: A new rendering of an ancient proverb; see Ezek 8.1–4. Unlike Ezekiel, Jeremiah does not refute the saying but simply retires it from its traditional usage as a respected and honored truth about the nature of God; cf. Ex 20.5; 34.7.

31.31–37: The new covenant. 31: Because Israel and Judah broke the covenant that God made with their ancestors (see 11.10), God proclaims a new (or renewed) one. 32: I was their husband (Heb “ba’al), see 2.23n. 33–34: Though the law (Heb “torah,” which also means “teaching”) was traditionally thought of as being “in the heart” (Deut 30.14), it would become so instinctual that “teaching” would become unnecessary, a radical idea given the strong Deuteronomic concern for teaching (Deut 4.10; 5.1,31; 11.19; 31.12–13). I will be their God . . ., see 7.24n. 35–37: Later additions using standard hymnic language; cf. 33.19–26.

31.38–40: Jerusalem rebuilt. A later oracle depicting the restoration of Jerusalem’s walls around its perimeter, asserting that the rebuilt city will be safe and secure. On these places, several of which are otherwise unknown, see Neh 3.1,28; 12.39; Zech 14.10; 2 Kings 14.13.

32.1–33.26: God’s restoration of Israel. These chapters are thematically linked to the “book of comfort” (chs 30–31) and so are included here, even though they should follow ch 34 chronologically; they are dated to army of the king of Babylon was besieging Jerusalem, and the prophet Jeremiah was confined in the court of the guard that was in the palace of the king of Judah,³ where King Zedekiah of Judah had confined him. Zedekiah had said, “Why do you prophesy and say: Thus says the LORD: I am going to give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it; ⁴ King Zedekiah of Judah shall not escape out of the hands of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be given into the hands of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him face to face and see him eye to eye; ⁵ and he shall take Zedekiah to Babylon, and there he shall remain until I attend to him, says the LORD; though you fight against the Chaldeans, you shall not succeed?”

⁶Jeremiah said, The word of the LORD came to me: ⁷Hanamel son of your uncle Shallum is going to come to you and say, “Buy my field that is at Anathoth, for the right of redemption by purchase is yours.” ⁸Then my cousin Hanamel came to me in the court of the guard, in accordance with the word of the LORD, and said to me, “Buy my field that is at Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, for the right of possession and redemption is yours; buy it for yourself.” Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD.

⁹And I bought the field at Anathoth from my cousin Hanamel, and weighed out the money to him, seventeen shekels of silver.

¹⁰I signed the deed, sealed it, got witnesses, and weighed the money on scales. ¹¹Then I took the sealed deed of purchase, containing the terms and conditions, and the open copy; ¹²and I gave the deed of purchase to Baruch son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, in the presence of my cousin Hanamel, in the presence of the witnesses who signed the deed of purchase, and in the presence of all the Judeans who were sitting in the court of the guard. ¹³In their presence I charged Baruch, saying, ¹⁴Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these deeds, both this sealed deed of purchase and this open deed, and put them in an earthenware jar, in order that they may last for a long time. ¹⁵For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.

¹⁶After I had given the deed of purchase to Baruch son of Neriah, I prayed to the LORD, saying: ¹⁷Ah Lord God! It is you who made the heavens and the earth by your great power and by your outstretched arm! Nothing is too hard for you. ¹⁸You show steadfast love to the thousandth generation,^a but repay the guilt of parents into the laps of their children after them, O great and mighty God whose name is the LORD of hosts, ¹⁹great in counsel and mighty in deed; whose eyes are open to all the ways of mortals, rewarding all according to their ways and according to the fruit of their doings. ²⁰You showed signs and the very end of the reign of Zedekiah and of the Babylonian siege (588–586 BCE), during which Jeremiah was in confinement. In ch 32, the focus is on the theme that fields shall be bought . . . and deeds shall be signed and sealed and witnessed (v. 44), using Jeremiah's offer of redeeming family property in Anathoth as a sign. Chapter 33 centers on the rebuilding of the city and the promise that the city will be given a new name, “the LORD is our righteousness” (v. 16).

^a Or to thousands

32.1–25: Jeremiah purchases the family property. 1: The tenth year . . . the eighteenth year, 588 BCE. 3–5: Jeremiah's arrest is narrated in 37.1–38.28. The prophetic oracle alluded to is 34.2–3. During a brief lifting of the siege (see 34.8–22) Jeremiah tried to leave the city, was accused of desertion, and was arrested (37.11–16). 4: Chaldeans, i.e., Babylonians. 5: Zedekiah ultimately died while in prison in Babylon (52.11). 6–15: Jeremiah's encounter with Hanamel is a prophetic sign act. The economic transaction of vv. 9–14 is the most detailed in the Bible. 7: Right of redemption, to keep property within the extended family, members who could do so were expected to “redeem” land that was in jeopardy of being fortified or sold outside the family; see Lev 25.23–28. 9: Seventeen shekels, ca. 7 oz (194 grams). At this time there was no coinage, and money (lit., “silver”) was weighed. 11: Sealed deed . . . open copy, contracts were sealed with a signet on a clay “bulla,” but a copy or summary of the contents was left available on the outside of the scroll for reference and public scrutiny. Storage of such documents in clay jars was common practice. 12: Baruch, son of Neriah, Jeremiah's scribe; see 36.4; 51.59. This is the first mention of Baruch in the book. 16–25: A formal prayer, uttered in the first-person. 17–18: Standard hymnic language in creedal form; see 20.5–6; 34.6–7. 20: Signs and wonders, a reference to wonders in the land of Egypt, and to this day in Israel and among all humankind, and have made yourself a name that continues to this very day.²¹ You brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with a strong hand and outstretched arm, and with great terror;²² and you gave them this land, which you swore to their ancestors to give them, a land flowing with milk and honey;²³ and they entered and took possession of it. But they did not obey your voice or follow your law; of all you commanded them to do, they did nothing. Therefore you have made all these disasters come upon them.²⁴ See, the siege ramps have been cast up against the city to take it, and the city, faced with sword, famine, and pestilence, has been given into the hands of the Chaldeans who are fighting against it. What you spoke has happened, as you yourself can see.²⁵ Yet you, O Lord God, have said to me, “Buy the field for money and get witnesses”—though the city has been given into the hands of the Chaldeans.

²⁶ The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah:
²⁷ See, I am the LORD, the God of all flesh; is anything too hard for me?²⁸ Therefore, thus says the LORD: I am going to give this city into the hands of the Chaldeans and into the hand of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, and he shall take it.²⁹ The Chaldeans who are fighting against this city shall come, set it on fire, and burn it, with the houses on whose roofs offerings have been made to Baal and libations have been poured out to other gods, to provoke me to anger.³⁰ For the people of Israel and the people of Judah have done nothing but evil in my sight from their youth; the people of Israel have done nothing but provoke me to anger by the work of their hands, says the LORD.³¹ This city has aroused my anger and wrath, from the day it was built until this day, so that I will remove it from my sight³² because of all the evil of the people of Israel and the people of Judah that they did to provoke me to anger—they, their kings and their officials, their priests and their prophets, the citizens of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.³³ They have turned their backs to me, not their faces; though I have taught them persistently, they would not listen and accept correction.³⁴ They set up their abominations in the house that bears my name, and defiled it.³⁵ They built the high places of Baal in the valley of the son of Hinnom, to offer up their sons and daughters to Molech, though I did not command them, nor did it enter my mind that they should do this abomination, causing Judah to sin.

³⁶ Now therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city of which you say, “It is being given into the hand of the king of Babylon by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence”:³⁷ See, I am going to gather them from all the lands to which I drove them in my anger and my wrath and in great indignation; I will bring them back to this place, and I will settle them in safety.³⁸ They shall be my people, and I will be their God.³⁹ I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me for all time, for their own good and the good of their children after them.⁴⁰ I will make an everlasting covenant with them, never to draw back from doing good to them; and I will put the fear of me in their hearts, so that they may not turn from me.⁴¹ I will rejoice in doing good to them, and I will plant them in this land in faithfulness, with all my heart and all my soul.

⁴² For thus says the LORD: Just as I have brought all this great disaster upon this people, so I will bring upon them all the good fortune that I now promise them.⁴³ Fields shall be bought in this land of which you the plagues tradition (cf. Ex 3.20; 4.21; Deut 34.11). 26–44: A typically Deuteronomic sermon (vv. 26–35) is followed by words of promise. 27: Is anything too hard for me? God reiterates Jeremiah's declaration in v. 17 as a rhetorical question; cf. Gen 18.14. 28–35: God echoes Jeremiah's prior judgment oracles in the form of a recital of Judah's sins (see, e.g., 3.6–11; 7.30–32). 29: Roofs were commonly used for many purposes, including religious rituals both legitimate (Neh 8.16) and illegitimate (19.13; Zeph 1.5). 34: The house that bears my name, see 7.10n. 35: On the rituals in the Hinnom Valley, see 7.31; 19.5–6. Molech is either the name of a foreign god (1 Kings 11.7) or an epithet for Baal, formed by combining the vowels of the word for “shame” (Heb “boshet”) with the consonants of the word for “king” (“melek”). 36: Of which you say, the pronoun here, as in v. 43, is plural, indicating that this is the popular sentiment at this critical time of the siege. 39–41: As in 31.31–34, the

are saying, It is a desolation, without human beings or animals; it has been given into the hands of the Chaldeans. ⁴Fields shall be bought for money, and deeds shall be signed and sealed and witnessed, in the land of Benjamin, in the places around Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, of the hill country, of the Shephelah, and of the Negeb; for I will restore their fortunes, says the LORD.

33 The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah a second time, while he was still confined in the court of the guard: ²Thus says the LORD who made the earth, ³the LORD who formed it to establish it—the LORD is his name: ³Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known. ⁴For thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city and the houses of the kings of Judah that were torn down to make a defense against the siege ramps and before the sword: ⁵The Chaldeans are coming in to fight^c and to fill them with the dead bodies of those whom I shall strike down in my anger and my wrath, for I have hidden my face from this city because of all their wickedness. ⁶I am going to bring it recovery and healing; I will heal them and reveal to them abundance^b of prosperity and security. ⁷I will restore the fortunes of Judah and the fortunes of Israel, and rebuild them as they were at first. ⁸I will cleanse them from all the guilt of their sin against me, and I will forgive all the guilt of their sin and rebellion against me. ⁹And this city^d shall be to me a name of joy, a praise and a glory before all the nations of the earth who shall hear of all the good that I do for them; they shall fear and tremble because of all the good and all the prosperity I provide for it.

¹⁰Thus says the LORD: In this place of which you say, “It is a waste without human beings or animals,” in the towns of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem that are desolate, without inhabitants, human or animal, there shall once more be heard ¹¹the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voices of those who sing, as they bring thank offerings to the house of the LORD:

“Give thanks to the LORD of hosts, for the LORD is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever!”

For I will restore the fortunes of the land as at first, says the LORD.

¹²Thus says the LORD of hosts: In this place that is waste, without human beings or animals, and in all its towns there shall again be pasture for shepherds resting their flocks. ¹³In the towns of the hill country, of the Shephelah, and of the Negeb, in the land of Benjamin, the places around Jerusalem, and in the towns of Judah, flocks shall again pass under the hands of the one who counts them, says the LORD.

¹⁴The days are surely coming, says the LORD, when I will fulfill the promise I made to the house of Israel and the house of Judah. ¹⁵In those days and at that time I will cause a righteous Branch to spring up for David; and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. ¹⁶In those days Judah will be saved and Jerusalem will live in safety. And this is the name by which it will be called: “The LORD is our righteousness.”

¹⁷For thus says the LORD: David shall never lack a man to sit on the throne of the house

^a Gk: Heb it

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb They are coming in to fight against the Chaldeans

^d Heb And it

saving action is here solely God's, who acts unilaterally in the face of Israel's own utter failure. 44: Benjamin . . . Negeb, see 17.26n.

33.1–26: Oracles of restoration, connected to the previous oracles by their presumed location (Jeremiah in confinement). 1: An editorial link to the larger literary context (see 32.2). 4: Houses of this city, introduces the theme of the restoration of Jerusalem's buildings. Now the city itself becomes the subject of visions of restoration; cf. v. 9. 5: I have hidden my face, withdrawn my presence and favor (e.g., Ps 30.7). 10–11: A reversal of 7.34. 10: You say, the pronoun is plural, expressing popular pessimistic sentiment. 11: Give thanks. . . , this thanksgiving uses standard psalmic language (Pss 106.1; 107.1; 136.1–26; Sir 51.12). 13: Shephelah . . . Negeb, see 17.26n. 14–16: Echoes 23.5–6, except that in v. 6 (“by which it will be called”), it is now the city of Jerusalem that is given the name rather than the anticipated Davidic ruler. 17–18: The first of three appended oracles regarding of Israel,¹⁸ and the levitical priests shall never lack a man in my presence to offer burnt offerings, to make grain offerings, and to make sacrifices for all time.

¹⁹ The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah:

²⁰ Thus says the LORD: If any of you could break my covenant with the day and my covenant with the night, so that day and night would not come at their appointed time,²¹ only then could my covenant with my servant David be broken, so that he would not have a son to reign on his throne, and my covenant with my ministers the Levites.²² Just as the host of heaven cannot be numbered and the sands of the sea cannot be measured, so I will increase the offspring of my servant David, and the Levites who minister to me.

²³ The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah:

²⁴ Have you not observed how these people say, “The two families that the LORD chose have been rejected by him,” and how they hold my people in such contempt that they no longer regard them as a nation?²⁵ Thus says the LORD: Only if I had not established my covenant with day and night and the ordinances of heaven and earth,²⁶ would I reject the offspring of Jacob and of my servant David and not choose any of his descendants as rulers over the offspring of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will restore their fortunes, and will have mercy upon them.

34 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, when King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon and all his army and all the kingdoms of the earth and all the peoples under his dominion were fighting against Jerusalem and all its cities:² Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Go and speak to King Zedekiah of Judah and say to him: Thus says the LORD: I am going to give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.³ And you yourself shall not escape from his hand, but shall surely be captured and handed over to him; you shall see the king of Babylon eye to eye and speak with him face to face; and you shall go to Babylon.⁴ Yet hear the word of the LORD, O King Zedekiah of Judah! Thus says the LORD concerning you: You shall not die by the sword;⁵ you shall die in peace. And as spices were burned^a for your ancestors, the earlier kings who preceded you, so they shall burn spices^b for you and lament for you, say-

^a Heb as there was burning

^b Heb shall burn

Jerusalem's leadership, using late language reflecting 2 Chr 7.18. The vision of the future includes a succession of Davidic rulers and levitical priests. The term levitical priests is common to Deuteronomy but used only here in Jeremiah. 19–22: Second appended oracle recalling the argument of 31.36–37, characteristic of the postexilic hopes for both a Davidic and a priestly leader (cf. Zech 4.11–14). On the cosmological language, see also 31.35–37. 23–26: Third appended oracle. Again celebrates the promise to the “two families,” but now this is a reference to the entire land of Israel represented by Jacob (Israel) and David (Judah); cf. the cosmic argument of 31.36–37. Bracketing chs 30–33 is God's pledge to create newness out of the ruins of war: I will restore their fortunes (30.3 and 33.26). 25: Covenant with day and night, radical language echoing the Priestly language in Gen 9.8–16 that God's covenant is with “all flesh” and, indeed, with “the earth,” that is, the cosmos.

34.1–35.19: Two contrasting trajectories. Although these chapters represent distinct text traditions, they are juxtaposed in their present context to emphasize the themes of devotion and fidelity. The peculiar twist to these common themes is that insiders act like outsiders (ch 34), and outsiders act like insiders (ch 35). Judeans betray their identity as God's people when they become perpetrators of injustice, and the Rechabites, an outlying group that has set up temporary residence in Jerusalem, become exemplars of obedience when they observe the teachings of their ancestors.

34.1–7: Judgment against Zedekiah: Historical and symbolic language converge when envisaging the siege of Jerusalem (January 588 BCE; see also, e.g., 21.1–7; 37.3–10). Note the threefold use of “all” in v. 1 (see also v. 6). The assault upon the capital city and its king is no ordinary military event but one orchestrated by God. Only Lachish and Azekah, two cities of the Shephelah, withstand the Babylonian attack, although eventually Azekah likely falls (see 4.6n.). Divine judgment against Zedekiah is mitigated in v. 5, promising him a normal death and burial with full honor; contrast the fate of Jehoiakim in 22.18–19, for whom these normal rituals of burial would not be conducted. In fact, Zedekiah's fate was less peaceful, according to 52.9–11; 2 Kings 25.6–7.

ing, “Alas, lord!” For I have spoken the word, says the LORD.

⁶ Then the prophet Jeremiah spoke all these words to Zedekiah king of Judah, in Jerusalem, ⁷ when the army of the king of Babylon was fighting against Jerusalem and against all the cities of Judah that were left, Lachish and Azekah; for these were the only fortified cities of Judah that remained.

⁸ The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem to make a proclamation of liberty to them— ⁹ that all should set free their Hebrew slaves, male and female, so that no one should hold another Judean in slavery. ¹⁰ And they obeyed, all the officials and all the people who had entered into the covenant that all would set free their slaves, male or female, so that they would not be enslaved again; they obeyed and set them free. ¹¹ But afterward they turned around and took back the male and female slaves they had set free, and brought them again into subjection as slaves. ¹² The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ¹³ Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I myself made a covenant with your ancestors when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery, saying, ¹⁴ “Every seventh year each of you must set free any Hebrews who have been sold to you and have served you six years; you must set them free from your service.” But your ancestors did not listen to me or incline their ears to me. ¹⁵ You yourselves recently repented and did what was right in my sight by proclaiming liberty to one another, and you made a covenant before me in the house that is called by my name; ¹⁶ but then you turned around and profaned my name when each of you took back your male and female slaves, whom you had set free according to their desire, and you brought them again into subjection to be your slaves. ¹⁷ Therefore, thus says the LORD: You have not obeyed me by granting a release to your neighbors and friends; I am going to grant a release to you, says the LORD—a release to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine. I will make you a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth. ¹⁸ And those who transgressed my covenant and did not keep the terms of the covenant that they made before me, I will make like^a the calf when they cut it in two and passed between its parts: ¹⁹ the officials of Judah, the officials of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, the priests, and all the people of the land who passed between the parts of the calf ²⁰ shall be handed over to their enemies and to those who seek their lives. Their corpses shall become food for the birds of the air and the wild animals of the earth. ²¹ And as for King Zedekiah of Judah and his officials, I will hand them over to their enemies and to those who seek their lives, to the army of the king of Babylon, which has withdrawn

^a Cn: Heb lacks like

34.8–22: The aborted manumission of slaves. The context for this event is the period when the siege was briefly lifted when Egyptian forces under Pharaoh Hophra (Apries) arrived in Judah to attempt to break the siege of the Babylonian army. Babylonian forces temporarily withdrew from Jerusalem in order to face Hophra's army (37.5,11). The manumission was in accord with the principles of Ex 21.2 and Deut 15.12, as referenced in Jer 34.14. The manumission likely also served practical purposes, given scarcity of food resources and the need for male support troops. As soon as the siege was lifted, however, the people presumed that normality would return and therefore the manumission was retracted. 11: The Hebrew word to describe the people's broken promise and act of injustice is “shuv” (“took back”), a term Jeremiah uses repeatedly to call Judah/Israel to return to God. The text suggests that Judah's only turning is away from God (“shuv” is also used in vv. 15,16 [twice]), 22; see also 35.15). 12–16: The memory of God's fidelity in the Exodus makes Israel's infidelity more preposterous: the once oppressed have become the oppressors. The house that is called by my name, see 7:10n. 17: A release to you, using the term for the “amnesty” or “manumission,” Jeremiah offers a play on words. 18: Like the calf when they cut it in two, a reference to the fact that covenants were “cut” (Heb “karat,” see v. 13) rather than “made,” and were accompanied by rituals in which the covenant makers would dismember one or more animals, invoking a similar fate on themselves if they violated the terms of the oath; see Gen 15.9–18. 19: The eunuchs, the Heb term “saris” is often used of court officials (1 Sam 8.15; 2 Kings 8.6; Jer 29.2; 52.25), indicating perhaps how highly in Judean from you. ²² I am going to command, says the LORD, and will bring them back to this city; and they will fight against it, and take it, and burn it with fire. The towns of Judah I will make a desolation without inhabitant.

35 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah: ² Go to the house of the Rechabites, and speak with them, and bring them to the house of the LORD, into one of the chambers; then offer them wine to drink. ³ So I took Jaazaniah son of Jeremiah son of Habazziniah, and his brothers, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites. ⁴ I brought them to the house of the LORD into the chamber of the sons of Hanan son of Igdaliah, the man of God, which was near the chamber of the officials, above the chamber of Maaseiah son of Shallum, keeper of the threshold. ⁵ Then I set before the Rechabites pitchers full of wine, and cups; and I said to them, “Have some wine.” ⁶ But they answered, “We will drink no wine, for our ancestor Jonadab son of Rechab commanded us, ‘You shall never drink wine, neither you nor your children; ⁷ nor shall you ever build a house, or sow seed; nor shall you plant a vineyard, or even own one; but you shall live in tents all your days, that you may live many days in the land where you reside.’” ⁸ We have obeyed the charge of our ancestor Jonadab son of Rechab in all that he commanded us, to drink no wine all our days, ourselves, our wives, our sons, or our daughters, ⁹ and not to build houses to live in. We have no vineyard or field or seed; ¹⁰ but we have lived in tents, and have obeyed and done all that our ancestor Jonadab commanded us. ¹¹ But when King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon came up against the land, we said, ‘Come, and let us go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans and the army of the Arameans.’ That is why we are living in Jerusalem.”

¹² Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: ¹³ Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Go and say to the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Can you not learn a lesson and obey my words? says the LORD. ¹⁴ The command has been carried out that Jonadab son of Rechab gave to his descendants to drink no wine; and they drink none to this day, for they have obeyed their ancestor’s command. But I myself have spoken to you persistently, and you have not obeyed me. ¹⁵ I have sent to you all my servants the prophets, sending them persistently, saying, “Turn now every one of you from your evil way, and amend your doings, and do not go after other gods to serve them, and then you shall live in the land that I gave to you and your ancestors.” But you did not incline your ear or obey me. ¹⁶ The descendants of Jonadab son of Rechab have carried out the command that their ancestor gave them, but this people has not obeyed me. ¹⁷ There-court life such persons of ambiguous gender could ascend. Some scholars, however, suggest that the term has two distinct meanings (“official” and “eunuch”). 22: Bring them back, the siege will be resumed.

35.1–19: The sign of the Rechabites. The clan of the Rechabites traced their origins to Jonadab son of Rechab (v. 6), and rallied around the antiagrarian policies indicated in vv. 8–10, perhaps as a fundamentalist reaction against cultural assimilation to the perceived values of the Canaanites. Jonadab was remembered as an ally of the conservative Yahwist Jehu (842–814 BCE) in his revolt against the syncretistic policies of the Omri dynasty in the Northern Kingdom of Israel (2 Kings 10.15,23). Their faithfulness to their extreme values was used by Jeremiah as a stark contrast with the faithlessness of the people of Jerusalem, who could not obey even divinely sanctioned norms. 1: King Jehoiakim (608–598 BCE) a surprising regression in time, perhaps to prepare the reader for ch 36, also set during the reign of Jehoiakim. 4: Chamber, prominent families had open rooms in the Temple complex where they gathered, shared sacrificial meals, and conducted other business (36.10; 2 Kings 23.11). Keeper of the threshold, on this important priestly function, see 2 Kings 12.9; 22.24; 23.4; 25.18. 11: When King Nebuchadrezzar . . . came up against the land, must refer to the Babylonian (Chaldean) incursion into the Levant in 605–604 BCE, setting the stage for ch 36. Arameans, centered in Damascus, were often the historical enemies of Israel and perhaps always a problem for the nomadic clans of herders in the eastern steppes. 12–19: Heb “shema’,” “to listen or obey” occurs seven times in vv. 12–18 and fourteen times in Jeremiah 34–35. The prophetic sign act, and its larger literary context, exhorts (exilic) readers/listeners to embrace Torah devotion. 15: See 7.25n.

fore, thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to bring on Judah and on all the inhabitants of Jerusalem every disaster that I have pronounced against them; because I have spoken to them and they have not listened, I have called to them and they have not answered.

¹⁸ But to the house of the Rechabites Jeremiah said: Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Because you have obeyed the command of your ancestor Jonadab, and kept all his precepts, and done all that he commanded you, ¹⁹ therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Jonadab son of Rechab shall not lack a descendant to stand before me for all time.

36 In the fourth year of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: ² Take a scroll and write on it all the words that I have spoken to you against Israel and Judah and all the nations, from the day I spoke to you, from the days of Josiah until today. ³ It may be that when the house of Judah hears of all the disasters that I intend to do to them, all of them may turn from their evil ways, so that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.

⁴ Then Jeremiah called Baruch son of Neriah, and Baruch wrote on a scroll at Jeremiah's dictation all the words of the LORD that he had spoken to him. ⁵ And Jeremiah ordered Baruch, saying, "I am prevented from entering the house of the LORD; ⁶ so you go yourself, and on a fast day in the hearing of the people in the LORD's house you shall read the words of the LORD from the scroll that you have written at my dictation. You shall read them also in the hearing of all the people of Judah who come up from their towns. ⁷ It may be that their plea will come before the LORD, and that all of them will turn from their evil ways, for great is the anger and wrath that the LORD has pronounced against this people." ⁸ And Baruch son of Neriah did all that the prophet Jeremiah ordered him about reading from the scroll the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

⁹ In the fifth year of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah, in the ninth month, all the people in Jerusalem and all the people who came from the towns of Judah to Jerusalem proclaimed a fast before the LORD. ¹⁰ Then, in the hearing of all the people, Baruch read the words of Jeremiah from the scroll, in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of 36.1–45.5: The Baruch narrative. In these chapters Jeremiah's scribe Baruch plays a dominant role in the opening and closing chapters. It is debated whether Baruch actually penned the narrative or simply functions as a main character. The intention of the narrative is also disputed. Some suggest it reflects historical interests: to recount the final years of Judah, especially for the exilic community. Others propose that the narrative highlights Jeremiah's (innocent) suffering, especially as a way to justify the nation's downfall. Still others read the narrative as a story of the word of God, its rejection and eventual triumph. Although these chapters are more coherent than much of the book, they still resist singularity and give voice to competing and converging interests and ideologies.

36.1–32: Commissioning and reading the scroll. In 605 BCE, the Babylonians defeated the Egyptians in battle and asserted themselves as the dominant power over Judah, forcing the radical reshaping of Judean aspirations and allegiances, events introduced in 35.11. As in ch 25, the editor's use of the "scroll tradition" concludes a major section of the oracles (chs 26–35), the second such cycle. The oracles include the chief collection of Jeremiah's utterances from 627 to 605 BCE (compare 25.3 and 36.2), when Jeremiah was already under a temporary ban from the Temple quarters (36.5), so the story likely follows the event of his being arraigned and beaten by the Temple overseer Pashhur (20.1–6), a possible occasion for the ban. As elsewhere, Jeremiah has the assistance of Baruch, who serves as his scribe (see 32.12–16; 51.59), and is supported by the family of Shaphan within the royal court, who send Baruch and Jeremiah into protective hiding (v. 19). Piece by piece Jehoiakim burned the scroll, likely as a means of mitigating the effects of the words of judgment, which would have been received as a type of "curse." Most scholars assume that the second scroll, produced to replace the first destroyed by Jehoiakim (vv. 27–32), contained the core of material now found in chs 1–24 (compare 36.29 with 7.20 and 21.6). 1: The fourth year of King Jehoiakim, 605 BCE. 6: A fast day, a day especially set aside for public mourning and divine intercession in the face of Judah's political crisis (v. 9). 9: Late in 604 BCE, perhaps a national fast following the Babylonian victory at Ashkelon (see 47.5). 10: The first reading of the scroll takes place in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan the secretary, which was in the upper court, at the entry of the New Gate of the LORD's house.

¹¹When Micaiah son of Gemariah son of Shaphan heard all the words of the LORD from the scroll, ¹²he went down to the king's house, into the secretary's chamber; and all the officials were sitting there: Elishama the secretary, Delaiah son of Shemaiah, Elnathan son of Achbor, Gemariah son of Shaphan, Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the officials. ¹³And Micaiah told them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read the scroll in the hearing of the people. ¹⁴Then all the officials sent Jehudi son of Nethaniah son of Shelemiah son of Cushi to say to Baruch, "Bring the scroll that you read in the hearing of the people, and come." So Baruch son of Neriah took the scroll in his hand and came to them. ¹⁵And they said to him, "Sit down and read it to us." So Baruch read it to them. ¹⁶When they heard all the words, they turned to one another in alarm, and said to Baruch, "We certainly must report all these words to the king." ¹⁷Then they questioned Baruch, "Tell us now, how did you write all these words? Was it at his dictation?" ¹⁸Baruch answered them, "He dictated all these words to me, and I wrote them with ink on the scroll." ¹⁹Then the officials said to Baruch, "Go and hide, you and Jeremiah, and let no one know where you are."

²⁰Leaving the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the secretary, they went to the court of the king; and they reported all the words to the king. ²¹Then the king sent Jehudi to get the scroll, and he took it from the chamber of Elishama the secretary; and Jehudi read it to the king and all the officials who stood beside the king. ²²Now the king was sitting in his winter apartment (it was the ninth month), and there was a fire burning in the brazier before him. ²³As Jehudi read three or four columns, the king^a would cut them off with a penknife and throw them into the fire in the brazier, until the entire scroll was consumed in the fire that was in the brazier. ²⁴Yet neither the king, nor any of his servants who heard all these words, was alarmed, nor did they tear their garments. ²⁵Even when Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah urged the king not to burn the scroll, he would not listen to them. ²⁶And the king commanded Jerahmeel the king's son and Seraiah son of Azriel and Shelemiah son of Abdeel to arrest the secretary Baruch and the prophet Jeremiah. But the LORD hid them.

²⁷Now, after the king had burned the scroll with the words that Baruch wrote at Jeremiah's dictation, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: ²⁸Take another scroll and write on it all the former words that were in the first scroll, which King Jehoiakim of Judah has burned. ²⁹And concerning King Jehoiakim of Judah you shall say: Thus says the LORD, You have dared to burn this scroll, saying, Why have you written in it that the king of Babylon will certainly come and destroy this land, and will cut off from it human beings and animals? ³⁰Therefore thus says the LORD concerning King Jehoiakim of Judah: He shall have no one to sit upon the throne of David, and his dead body shall be cast out to the heat by day and the frost by night. ³¹And I will punish him and his offspring and his servants for their iniquity; I will bring on them, and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and on the people of Judah, all the disasters with which I have threatened them—but they would not listen.

^a Heb he

Gemariah, one of the sons of Shaphan (see 26.24n.). 12: Elnathan son of Achbor, perhaps the king's father-in-law (2 Kings 24.8) and the head of the mission that brought the prophet Uriah back from Egypt for execution (Jer 26.22–23). 20–26: Jehudi reads the scroll a third time, this time to King Jehoiakim who destroys it. The word "hear, listen" (Heb "shema") occurs in vv. 11,13,16,25; its last use concerns the king, who would not listen to those who urged him not to burn the scroll (v. 25), unlike his righteous father Josiah, who listened to the words of the scroll read to him (2 Kings 22.11,19). Moreover, whereas King Josiah tore/cut his clothes in mourning when hearing the words of the scroll (2 Kings 22.11,19), his son Jehoiakim tears/cuts the prophetic scroll. Josiah humbled himself before God (2 Kings 22.19), but Jehoiakim is not alarmed by the words of the scroll (v. 24; cf. also v. 16), but orders the military police to arrest Jeremiah and Baruch. 22: Winter apartment, or "harvest quarters." Ninth month, November–December.

³² Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to the secretary Baruch son of Neriah, who wrote on it at Jeremiah's dictation all the words of the scroll that King Jehoiakim of Judah had burned in the fire; and many similar words were added to them.

37 Zedekiah son of Josiah, whom King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon made king in the land of Judah, succeeded Coniah son of Jehoiakim. ² But neither he nor his servants nor the people of the land listened to the words of the LORD that he spoke through the prophet Jeremiah.

³ King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah and the priest Zephaniah son of Maaseiah to the prophet Jeremiah saying, "Please pray for us to the LORD our God."

⁴ Now Jeremiah was still going in and out among the people, for he had not yet been put in prison. ⁵ Meanwhile, the army of Pharaoh had come out of Egypt; and when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard news of them, they withdrew from Jerusalem.

⁶ Then the word of the LORD came to the prophet Jeremiah: ⁷ Thus says the LORD, God of Israel: This is what the two of you shall say to the king of Judah, who sent you to me to inquire of me: Pharaoh's army, which set out to help you, is going to return to its own land, to Egypt. ⁸ And the Chaldeans shall return and fight against this city; they shall take it and burn it with fire. ⁹ Thus says the LORD: Do not deceive yourselves, saying, "The Chaldeans will surely go away from us," for they will not go away. ¹⁰ Even if you defeated the whole army of Chaldeans who are fighting against you, and there remained of them only wounded men in their tents, they would rise up and burn this city with fire.

¹¹ Now when the Chaldean army had withdrawn from Jerusalem at the approach of Pharaoh's army, ¹² Jeremiah set out from Jerusalem to go to the land of Benjamin to receive his share of property^a among the people there. ¹³ When he reached the Benjamin Gate, a sentinel there named Irijah son of Shelemiah son of Hananiah arrested the prophet Jeremiah saying, "You are deserting to the Chaldeans." ¹⁴ And Jeremiah said, "That is a lie; I am not deserting to the Chaldeans." But Irijah would not listen to him, and arrested Jeremiah and brought him to the officials.

¹⁵ The officials were enraged at Jeremiah, and they beat him and imprisoned him in the house of the secretary Jonathan, for it had been made a prison. ¹⁶ Thus Jeremiah was put in the cistern house, in the cells, and remained there many days.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

37:1–38:28: The final arrest of Jeremiah. Two different accounts of what was likely one event have been juxtaposed, recounting the story of Jeremiah's final confinement just before the fall of Jerusalem in 586 BCE. The main story (37:1–21 and 38:14–28), concerning Jeremiah's desire to escape imprisonment in the house of the secretary Jonathan (37:15, 20; 38:26), is embellished with the story of Jeremiah's rescue by the Ethiopian courtier, Ebed-melech (38:1–13). As this material begins the third cycle, it resets chronologically to a period prior to the events mentioned in chs 32–33. Jeremiah, not yet under arrest, is still prophesying publicly and openly (37:4; 38:1). During the brief lifting of the Babylonian siege (v. 5, see 34:8–22), Jeremiah attempted to leave Jerusalem to take care of some family business (vv. 11–12). He was arrested for desertion and his fate, which would have been severe at the hands of the officials, was softened by allowance of King Zedekiah. In both accounts, Jeremiah is threatened with harsh incarceration but is allowed to stay under royal protection in the court of the guard.

37:1–10: Jeremiah's response to Zedekiah's request for intercession: The context of the lifting of the siege provides the language for Jeremiah's oracle: the Babylonians (Chaldeans) will be back, so no comfort should be taken in the brief respite. 1: Coniah, Jehoiachin. 3: Please pray for us to the LORD our God, cf. Ex 8.8, 28; 9.28; 10.17; see also Num 21.4–9; 1 Sam 12.19. 5: See 34.8–22n.

37:11–21: Jeremiah's incarceration in the court of the guard. This episode as well as those in ch 38 are characterized by dialogues between Jeremiah and Zedekiah, Zedekiah and Ebed-melech, and Ebed-melech and Jeremiah. 12: Jeremiah was from the Benjaminite town of Anathoth (1.1) and would later be invited to redeem some family property there (32.7–9). 13: Benjamin Gate, see also 20.2. 16: Cistern house, apparently a vaulted room formerly used as a cistern for water storage. Jeremiah believed that incarceration here would be deadly (v. 20), perhaps because while there he was under threat of some particularly hostile princes and did not enjoy

¹⁷ Then King Zedekiah sent for him, and received him. The king questioned him secretly in his house, and said, “Is there any word from the LORD?” Jeremiah said, “There is!” Then he said, “You shall be handed over to the king of Babylon.” ¹⁸ Jeremiah also said to King Zedekiah, “What wrong have I done to you or your servants or this people, that you have put me in prison? ¹⁹ Where are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, ‘The king of Babylon will not come against you and against this land?’ ²⁰ Now please hear me, my lord king: be good enough to listen to my plea, and do not send me back to the house of the secretary Jonathan to die there.” ²¹ So King Zedekiah gave orders, and they committed Jeremiah to the court of the guard; and a loaf of bread was given him daily from the bakers’ street, until all the bread of the city was gone. So Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard.

38 Now Shephatiah son of Mattan, Gedaliah son of Pashhur, Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malchiah heard the words that Jeremiah was saying to all the people, ² Thus says the LORD, Those who stay in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence; but those who go out to the Chaldeans shall live; they shall have their lives as a prize of war, and live. ³ Thus says the LORD, This city shall surely be handed over to the army of the king of Babylon and be taken. ⁴ Then the officials said to the king, “This man ought to be put to death, because he is discouraging the soldiers who are left in this city, and all the people, by speaking such words to them. For this man is not seeking the welfare of this people, but their harm.” ⁵ King Zedekiah said, “Here he is; he is in your hands; for the king is powerless against you.” ⁶ So they took Jeremiah and threw him into the cistern of Malchiah, the king’s son, which was in the court of the guard, letting Jeremiah down by ropes. Now there was no water in the cistern, but only mud, and Jeremiah sank in the mud.

⁷ Ebed-melech the Ethiopian,^a a eunuch in the king’s house, heard that they had put Jeremiah into the cistern. The king happened to be sitting at the Benjamin Gate, ⁸ So Ebed-melech left the king’s house and spoke to the king, ⁹ “My lord king, these men have acted wickedly in all they did to the prophet Jeremiah by throwing him into the cistern to die there of hunger, for there is no bread left in the city.” ¹⁰ Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian,^a “Take three men with you from here, and pull the prophet Jeremiah up from the cistern before he dies.” ¹¹ So Ebed-melech took the men with him and went to the house of the king, to a wardrobe of^b the storehouse, and took from there old rags and worn-out clothes, which he let down to Jeremiah in the cistern by ropes. ¹² Then Ebed-melech the Ethiopian^a said to Jeremiah, “Just put the rags and clothes between your armpits and the ropes.” Jeremiah did so. ¹³ Then they drew Jeremiah up by the ropes and pulled him out of the cistern. And Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard.

^a Or Nubian; Heb Cushite

^b Cn: Heb to under any royal protection. 17: The king questioned him, see also 21.1–10; 37.3–10. 21: The court of the guard was located in the royal palace itself, under direct supervision of the king (32.2).

38.1–13: An alternate account regarding Jeremiah and Ebed-melech. This story develops the theme of the conflict between Zedekiah and his pro-Egyptian advisers, who were particularly opposed to Jeremiah’s message of capitulation to the Babylonians. Here the cistern into which Jeremiah is thrown has a different name and is located in the court of the guard itself (v. 6). 1: Gedaliah son of Pashhur, see 20.1; Jucal (Jehucal), see 37.3; Pashhur, see 21.1. 2–3: See 21.9–10. 4: Zedekiah’s pro-Egyptian counselors again treat Jeremiah as a Babylonian sympathizer. 5–6: Once more Jeremiah is arrested and sentenced to death (see 26.7–9; see also 37.13–16). The cistern was nearly dry, indicating a time shortly before Nebuchadrezzar’s final assault, August 586 BCE (52.5–7). 7: Ebed-melech, whose name means “servant/slave of the king,” is one of few in the book who come to the aid of the imperiled prophet (see also 26.24; 36.19). In 39.15–18 he is assured of his future deliverance in a prophetic message from Jeremiah. A eunuch (see 34.19n.). 9: No bread left in the city, relates this alternate account sequentially to the main story line (see 37.21).

¹⁴ King Zedekiah sent for the prophet Jeremiah and received him at the third entrance of the temple of the LORD. The king said to Jeremiah, “I have something to ask you; do not hide anything from me.” ¹⁵ Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, “If I tell you, you will put me to death, will you not? And if I give you advice, you will not listen to me.” ¹⁶ So King Zedekiah swore an oath in secret to Jeremiah, “As the LORD lives, who gave us our lives, I will not put you to death or hand you over to these men who seek your life.”

¹⁷ Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, “Thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel, If you will only surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, then your life shall be spared, and this city shall not be burned with fire, and you and your house shall live. ¹⁸ But if you do not surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, then this city shall be handed over to the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and you yourself shall not escape from their hand.” ¹⁹ King Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, “I am afraid of the Judeans who have deserted to the Chaldeans, for I might be handed over to them and they would abuse me.” ²⁰ Jeremiah said, “That will not happen. Just obey the voice of the LORD in what I say to you, and it shall go well with you, and your life shall be spared. ²¹ But if you are determined not to surrender, this is what the LORD has shown me— ²² a vision of all the women remaining in the house of the king of Judah being led out to the officials of the king of Babylon and saying, ‘Your trusted friends have seduced you and have overcome you;
Now that your feet are stuck in the mud,
they desert you.’

²³ All your wives and your children shall be led out to the Chaldeans, and you yourself shall not escape from their hand, but shall be seized by the king of Babylon; and this city shall be burned with fire.”

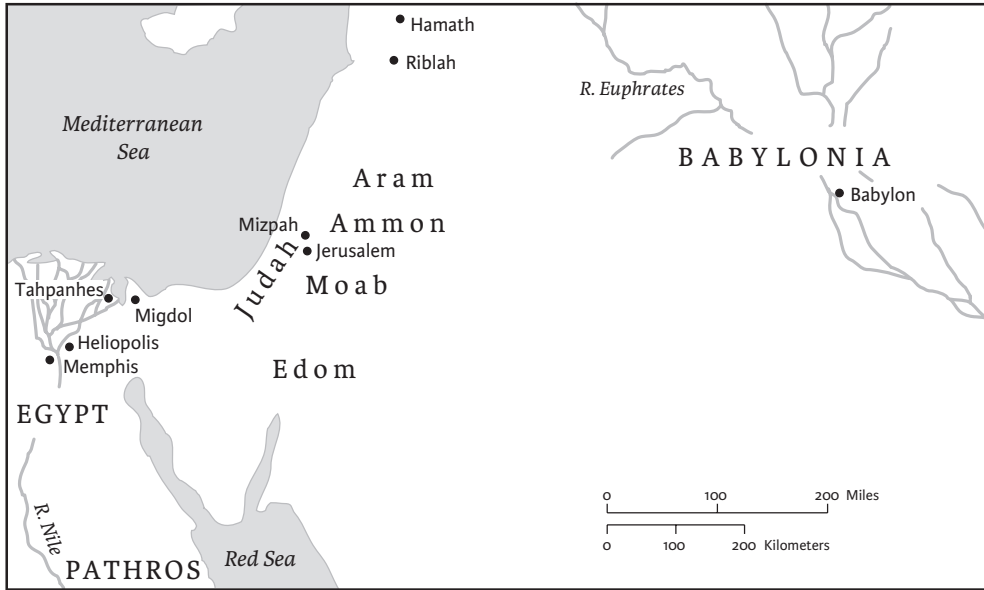

²⁴ Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, “Do not let anyone else know of this conversation, or you will die. ²⁵ If the officials should hear that I have spoken with you, and they should come and say to you, ‘Just tell us what you said to the king; do not conceal it from us, or we will put you to death. What did the king say to you?’ ²⁶ then you shall say to them, ‘I was presenting my plea to the king not to send me back to the house of Jonathan to die there.’” ²⁷ All the officials did come to Jeremiah and questioned him; and he answered them in the very words the king had commanded. So they stopped questioning him, for the conversation had not been overheard. ²⁸ And Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard until the day that Jerusalem was taken.

39 In the ninth year of King Zedekiah of Judah, in the tenth month, King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and besieged it; ² in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, a breach was made in the city. ³ When Jerusalem was taken, ^a all the officials of the king of Babylon came and sat in the middle gate: Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim the Rabsaris, Nergal-sharezer the Rabmag, with all the rest of the officials of the king of Babylon. ⁴ When King Zedekiah of Judah

^a This clause has been transposed from 38.28

38.14–28: An alternate account of 37.17–21. 17: Surrender, that is, “go out,” abandon the city. 22: Your feet are stuck in the mud, an image recalling Jeremiah’s experience in v. 6 and possibly accounting for the linking of these variant traditions. 26: House of Jonathan, connecting this story to that of the main story line of 37.20–21 rather than to 38.1–13.

39.1–18: The fall of Jerusalem. The Hebrew text indicates that ch 39 is a smooth continuation of ch 38 (see textual note a at 39.3), as does the reference to the court of the guard (39.14; see 38.28). The account here basically follows that of 52.4–16 and 2 Kings 25.1–22. Its historical mode of narration lacks dialogue, motive, emotion, or theological commentary. Only later does Nebuzaradan, the head of Babylon’s special guard, provide an explanation of the national disaster, which in effect vindicates Jeremiah’s contested message (40.2–3). Verses 4–13 are not attested in the LXX. 1–2: The ninth year . . . the eleventh year, the siege of Jerusalem began in January 587 and lasted until July 586 BCE when the walls were breached. 3: Rabsaris, and Rabmag are titles of Babylonian officials. Sat in the middle gate, on dispensing justice in the gate as a sign of foreign conquest, see 1.15; 43.10. 4: Arabah, the rift valley of the Jordan River and Dead Sea, which continues southward to the Gulf and all the soldiers saw them, they fled, going out of the city at night by way of the king's garden through the gate between the two walls; and they went toward the Arabah.⁵ But the army of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho; and when they had taken him, they brought him up to King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, at Riblah, in the land of Hamath; and he passed sentence on him.⁶ The king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah at Riblah before his eyes; also the king of Babylon slaughtered all the nobles of Judah.⁷ He put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in fetters to take him to Babylon.⁸ The Chaldeans burned the king's house and the houses of the people, and broke down the walls of Jerusalem.⁹ Then Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard exiled to Babylon the rest of the people who were left in the city, those who had deserted to him, and the people who remained.¹⁰ Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left in the land of Judah some of the poor people who owned nothing, and gave them vineyards and fields at the same time.

Chs 39, 52: Babylon and Judah in the early sixth century BCE.

¹¹King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon gave command concerning Jeremiah through Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, saying,¹² "Take him, look after him well and do him no harm, but deal with him as he may ask you."¹³ So Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, Nebushazban the Rabsaris, Nergal-sharezer the Rabmag, and all the chief officers of the king of Babylon sent¹⁴ and took Jeremiah from the court of the guard. They entrusted him to Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan to be brought home. So he stayed with his own people.

¹⁵The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah while he was confined in the court of the guard:¹⁶ Go and say to Ebed-melech the

of Aqaba/Eilat. 5: Riblah, about 70 mi (110 km) north of Damascus, had earlier served as the Egyptian provincial capital (2 Kings 23.33), and was where the Babylonian governorship likewise was temporarily established. According to 52.6–13 and 2 Kings 25.3–9, there was a one-month lag between the breaching of the walls of Jerusalem and the sacking of the city. 8: No mention is made of the destruction of the Temple; cf. 52.13. 9: According to 52.29, the Babylonians deported a total of eight hundred thirty-two persons in this second deportation; cf. 52.15–16; 2 Kings 25.11–12. 14: Because Gedaliah was a member of the pro-Babylonian party, from the family of Shaphan (see 26.24n.; 36.10), Nebuchadrezzar appointed him to serve as "governor" of the new Babylonian province (40.5).

Ethiopian:^a Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to fulfill my words against this city for evil and not for good, and they shall be accomplished in your presence on that day.¹⁷ But I will save you on that day, says the LORD, and you shall not be handed over to those whom you dread.¹⁸ For I will surely save you, and you shall not fall by the sword; but you shall have your life as a prize of war, because you have trusted in me, says the LORD.

40 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he took him bound in fetters along with all the captives of Jerusalem and Judah who were being exiled to Babylon.

²The captain of the guard took Jeremiah and said to him, “The LORD your God threatened this place with this disaster;³ and now the LORD has brought it about, and has done as he said, because all of you sinned against the LORD and did not obey his voice. Therefore this thing has come upon you.

⁴Now look, I have just released you today from the fetters on your hands. If you wish to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will take good care of you; but if you do not wish to come with me to Babylon, you need not come. See, the whole land is before you; go wherever you think it good and right to go.⁵ If you remain,^b then return to Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon appointed governor of the towns of Judah, and stay with him among the people; or go wherever you think it right to go.” So the captain of the guard gave him an allowance of food and a present, and let him go.⁶ Then Jeremiah went to Gedaliah son of Ahikam at Mizpah, and stayed with him among the people who were left in the land.

⁷When all the leaders of the forces in the open country and their troops heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed to him men, women, and children, those of the poorest of the land who had not been taken into exile to Babylon,⁸ they went to Gedaliah at Mizpah—Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan son of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, Jezaniah son of the Maacathite, they and their troops.

^a Or Nubian; Heb Cushite

^b Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

15–18: An oracle assuring Ebed-melech (see 38.7–13) deliverance on account of his trust in God. 17: I will save you, cf. 15.21; 46.5.

40.1–43.13: Political crisis results in the flight of Judeans to Egypt. Following the destruction of Jerusalem, the territorial governorship under Gedaliah was established in Mizpah, the site associated with the ancient judgeship of Samuel (1 Sam 7.16), between Jerusalem and Bethel. An attempted insurrection led by a member of the royal family, Ishmael son of Nethaniah (41.1), led to the assassination of Gedaliah and a debate by the Judeans who were left as to whether their future lay in staying in Judah or in flight to Egypt to avoid certain Babylonian repercussions. Against the advice of Jeremiah, the decision is made to flee to Egypt.

40.1–6: This account is likely an embellishment of the previous story of Jeremiah's release (39.11–14). Though the opening of the speech of the captain of the guard (vv. 2–4) contains Deuteronomistic rhetoric (the phrases the LORD your God, as he said, sinned against the LORD, did not obey his voice occur in Deuteronomy), victorious kings in fact did claim the support of the deity of the conquered territory. 1: Ramah (see 31.15n.) was a transit point for deportees. Jeremiah was allowed to choose exile or residence in Judah. Choosing the latter, he was placed in the custody of Gedaliah, the newly appointed governor of Judah with whose family Jeremiah had long been friendly (26.24n.; 36.10).

40.7–41.18: Gedaliah's governorship and his assassination. 40.7–12: At this juncture the narrator focuses on the establishment of a provisional government in Judah, which is now little more than a small province of the Babylonian empire. Gedaliah governs this postwar community in Mizpah, modern Tell en-Naşbeh, ca. 7.5 mi (12 km) northwest of Jerusalem. 7–10: Unlike Jehoiakim and Zedekiah, Gedaliah is portrayed as a benevolent leader who is responsive to the needs of the people. For their pledge of loyalty to Babylonian rule, he offers amnesty to

⁹ Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan swore to them and their troops, saying, “Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Stay in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall go well with you.”¹⁰ As for me, I am staying at Mizpah to represent you before the Chaldeans who come to us; but as for you, gather wine and summer fruits and oil, and store them in your vessels, and live in the towns that you have taken over.”¹¹ Likewise, when all the Judeans who were in Moab and among the Ammonites and in Edom and in other lands heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judah and had appointed Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan as governor over them,¹² then all the Judeans returned from all the places to which they had been scattered and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah; and they gathered wine and summer fruits in great abundance.

¹³ Now Johanan son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces in the open country came to Gedaliah at Mizpah¹⁴ and said to him, “Are you at all aware that Baalis king of the Ammonites has sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah to take your life?” But Gedaliah son of Ahikam would not believe them.¹⁵ Then Johanan son of Kareah spoke secretly to Gedaliah at Mizpah, “Please let me go and kill Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and no one else will know. Why should he take your life, so that all the Judeans who are gathered around you would be scattered, and the remnant of Judah would perish?”¹⁶ But Gedaliah son of Ahikam said to Johanan son of Kareah, “Do not do such a thing, for you are telling a lie about Ishmael.”

41 In the seventh month, Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama, of the royal family, one of the chief officers of the king, came with ten men to Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah. As they ate bread together there at Mizpah,² Ishmael son of Nethaniah and the ten men with him got up and struck down Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan with the sword and killed him, because the king of Babylon had appointed him governor in the land.³ Ishmael also killed all the Judeans who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldean soldiers who happened to be there.

⁴ On the day after the murder of Gedaliah, before anyone knew of it,⁵ eighty men arrived from Shechem and Shiloh and Samaria, with their beards shaved and their clothes torn, and their bodies gashed, bringing grain offerings and incense to present at the temple of the LORD.⁶ And Ishmael son of Nethaniah came out from Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he came. As he met them, he said to them, “Come to Gedaliah son of Ahikam.”⁷ When they reached the middle of the city, Ishmael son of Nethaniah and the men with him slaughtered them, and threw them^a into a cistern.⁸ But there were ten men among them who said to Ishmael, “Do not kill us, for we have stores of wheat, barley, oil, and honey hidden in the fields.” So he refrained, and did not kill them along with their companions.

⁹ Now the cistern into which Ishmael had thrown all the bodies of the men whom he had struck down was the large cistern^b that King Asa had made for defense against King Baasha of Israel; Ishmael son of Nethaniah filled that cistern with those whom he had killed.¹⁰ Then Ishmael took captive all the rest of the people who were in Mizpah, the king’s daughters and all the people who were

^a Syr: Heb lacks and threw them; compare verse 9

^b Gk: Heb whom he had killed by the hand of Gedaliah

Judean nationalists. 9: Serve the king of Babylon, see also 27.12,17. 14: The Ammonites, when not fighting Israel, were often their allies against larger imperial powers. Baalis of Ammon supported a nationalistic revolution in Judah led by Ishmael, a member of the royal family, but Gedaliah refused to heed the warnings for his safety. 41:1–2: Ishmael’s royal ancestry juxtaposed with Gedaliah’s pro-Babylonian loyalties (v. 2) suggests that the violence is politically motivated. As they ate bread . . ., Ishmael violates ancient rules of hospitality and table fellowship. 3: Chaldean, Babylonian. 5: Eighty pilgrims from the north going to Jerusalem, likely to commemorate the day of atonement. Since animal sacrifice was suspended, they brought what might be appropriate for the occasion. 6: To lure them to their deaths, Ishmael feigns mourning. 9: On the building projects of King Asa of Judah (908–867 BCE) in conjunction with his war against King Baasha of Israel (906–883 BCE), including those left at Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, had committed to Gedaliah son of Ahikam. Ishmael son of Nethaniah took them captive and set out to cross over to the Ammonites.

¹¹ But when Johanan son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him heard of all the crimes that Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done, ¹² they took all their men and went to fight against Ishmael son of Nethaniah. They came upon him at the great pool that is in Gibeon. ¹³ And when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him, they were glad. ¹⁴ So all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah turned around and came back, and went to Johanan son of Kareah. ¹⁵ But Ishmael son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites. ¹⁶ Then Johanan son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him took all the rest of the people whom Ishmael son of Nethaniah had carried away captive^a from Mizpah after he had slain Gedaliah son of Ahikam—soldiers, women, children, and eunuchs, whom Johanan brought back from Gibeon.^b ¹⁷ And they set out, and stopped at Geruth Chimham near Bethlehem, intending to go to Egypt¹⁸ because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had killed Gedaliah son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

42 Then all the commanders of the forces, and Johanan son of Kareah and Azariah^c son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least to the greatest, approached ² the prophet Jeremiah and said, “Be good enough to listen to our plea, and pray to the LORD your God for us—for all this remnant. For there are only a few of us left out of many, as your eyes can see. ³ Let the LORD your God show us where we should go and what we should do.” ⁴ The prophet Jeremiah said to them, “Very well: I am going to pray to the LORD your God as you request, and whatever the LORD answers you I will tell you; I will keep nothing back from you.” ⁵ They in their turn said to Jeremiah, “May the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us if we do not act according to everything that the LORD your God sends us through you. ⁶ Whether it is good or bad, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God to whom we are sending you, in order that it may go well with us when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.”

⁷ At the end of ten days the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. ⁸ Then he summoned Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces who were with him, and all the people from the least to the greatest, ⁹ and said to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me to present your plea before him: ¹⁰ If you will only remain in this land, then I will build you up and not pull you down; I will plant you, and not pluck you up; for I am sorry for the disaster that I

^a Cn: Heb whom he recovered from Ishmael son of Nethaniah

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Gk: Heb Jezeniah

at Mizpah, see 1 Kings 15.16–22; Asa’s construction of a large cistern is not mentioned elsewhere. 12: The great pool . . . in Gibeon, ca. 3 mi (5 km) southwest of Mizpah; see 2 Sam 2.13. 17: Geruth Chimham, perhaps meaning “fief of Chimham,” referring to property given to Barzillai’s son Chimham (see 2 Sam 19.37–40); precise location unknown. This encampment near Bethlehem indicates that the Johanan group was already moving south, which sets the stage for its journey to Egypt.

42.1–44.30: Flight to Egypt. The final episodes of the Baruch narrative focus on the failure of Johanan to heed the prophetic word proclaimed by Jeremiah; his departure to Egypt, taking with him the surviving Judeans, including Jeremiah and Baruch (42.1–43.7); and Jeremiah’s denunciation of the community in Egypt for its idolatry and disobedience to the prophetic word (43.8–44.30). The two episodes make a case that the Judeans who reside in Egypt have forfeited their stake in the land and their future as God’s people. Such accusations support the interests of the Judeans residing in Babylon who later receive support from the Persian government to rebuild Jerusalem.

42.1–22: The remnant under the leadership of Johanan asks Jeremiah for divine guidance regarding their plan to go to Egypt. As in earlier times, Egypt was a place of refuge for those fleeing Judah for one reason or another; see 26.21; Gen 12.10; 46.6; 1 Kings 11.40. 1: Azariah, MT reads “Jezeniah,” but see textual note c and cf. 43.2. 10: Cf. 1.10.

have brought upon you. ¹¹ Do not be afraid of the king of Babylon, as you have been; do not be afraid of him, says the LORD, for I am with you, to save you and to rescue you from his hand. ¹² I will grant you mercy, and he will have mercy on you and restore you to your native soil. ¹³ But if you continue to say, ‘We will not stay in this land,’ thus disobeying the voice of the LORD your God ¹⁴ and saying, ‘No, we will go to the land of Egypt, where we shall not see war, or hear the sound of the trumpet, or be hungry for bread, and there we will stay,’ ¹⁵ then hear the word of the LORD, O remnant of Judah. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: If you are determined to enter Egypt and go to settle there, ¹⁶ then the sword that you fear shall overtake you there, in the land of Egypt; and the famine that you dread shall follow close after you into Egypt; and there you shall die. ¹⁷ All the people who have determined to go to Egypt to settle there shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence; they shall have no remnant or survivor from the disaster that I am bringing upon them.

¹⁸ “For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Just as my anger and my wrath were poured out on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so my wrath will be poured out on you when you go to Egypt. You shall become an object of execration and horror, of cursing and ridicule. You shall see this place no more. ¹⁹ The LORD has said to you, O remnant of Judah, Do not go to Egypt. Be well aware that I have warned you today ²⁰ that you have made a fatal mistake. For you yourselves sent me to the LORD your God, saying, ‘Pray for us to the LORD our God, and whatever the LORD our God says, tell us and we will do it.’ ²¹ So I have told you today, but you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God in anything that he sent me to tell you. ²² Be well aware, then, that you shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence in the place where you desire to go and settle.”

43 When Jeremiah finished speaking to all the people all these words of the LORD their God, with which the LORD their God had sent him to them, ² Azariah son of Hoshaiiah and Johanan son of Kareah and all the other insolent men said to Jeremiah, “You are telling a lie. The LORD our God did not send you to say, ‘Do not go to Egypt to settle there’; ³ but Baruch son of Neriah is inciting you against us, to hand us over to the Chaldeans, in order that they may kill us or take us into exile in Babylon.” ⁴ So Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces and all the people did not obey the voice of the LORD, to stay in the land of Judah. ⁵ But Johanan son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces took all the remnant of Judah who had returned to settle in the land of Judah from all the nations to which they had been driven— ⁶ the men, the women, the children, the princesses, and everyone whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan; also the prophet Jeremiah and Baruch son of Neriah. ⁷ And they came into the land of Egypt, for they did not obey the voice of the LORD. And they arrived at Tahpanhes.

16–17: Sword, famine, pestilence, see 14.12n. 21–22: Jeremiah concludes his address by anticipating the community's disastrous response.

43:1–13: The flight to Tahpanhes and Jeremiah's oracle. The leaders dismiss Jeremiah's oracles as a “lie,” suggesting that he is colluding with Baruch for their destruction. This insinuates a role for Baruch otherwise left unexplored in the book. The fears of Babylonian reprisal may not have been overdrawn, since 52.30 indicates that five years following the destruction of Jerusalem, there was a third deportation of Judeans, perhaps in response to political crises such as that of the assassination of Gedaliah. 2: A lie, cf. 8.8; 14.14; 27.10; 40.16. Using Jeremiah's own way of accusing false prophets against him, they claim that God has not sent him; see also 28.15; 29.8–9. 4: The narrative collapses a range of complex issues and intense political rivalries into one unambiguous statement: the Johanan group did not obey the voice of the LORD (repeated in v. 7). 6: Nebuzaradan, see 39.11–14; 40.1–6. 7: The Johanan group's culpability is exacerbated when they take Jeremiah and Baruch as hostages to Tahpanhes, an Egyptian border fortress in the eastern Nile Delta (modern Tell Defenneh); see 2.16. There were Judean refugee settlements in many areas of Egypt (see 44.1), especially at the military garrison of Elephantine in the upper Nile. 8–13: Jeremiah's first prophetic message in Egypt, sometime after 582 BCE, is a ⁸Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah in Tahpanhes: ⁹Take some large stones in your hands, and bury them in the clay pavement^a that is at the entrance to Pharaoh's palace in Tahpanhes. Let the Judeans see you do it, ¹⁰and say to them, Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to send and take my servant King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, and he^b will set his throne above these stones that I have buried, and he will spread his royal canopy over them. ¹¹He shall come and ravage the land of Egypt, giving those who are destined for pestilence, to pestilence, and those who are destined for captivity, to captivity, and those who are destined for the sword, to the sword.

¹²He^c shall kindle a fire in the temples of the gods of Egypt; and he shall burn them and carry them away captive; and he shall pick clean the land of Egypt, as a shepherd picks his cloak clean of vermin; and he shall depart from there safely. ¹³He shall break the obelisks of Heliopolis, which is in the land of Egypt; and the temples of the gods of Egypt he shall burn with fire.

44 The word that came to Jeremiah for all the Judeans living in the land of Egypt, at Migdol, at Tahpanhes, at Memphis, and in the land of Pathros, ²Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You yourselves have seen all the disaster that I have brought on Jerusalem and on all the towns of Judah. Look at them; today they are a desolation, without an inhabitant in them, ³because of the wickedness that they committed, provoking me to anger, in that they went to make offerings and serve other gods that they had not known, neither they, nor you, nor your ancestors. ⁴Yet I persistently sent to you all my servants the prophets, saying, "I beg you not to do this abominable thing that I hate!" ⁵But they did not listen or incline their ear, to turn from their wickedness and make no offerings to other gods. ⁶So my wrath and my anger were poured out and kindled in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they became a waste and a desolation, as they still are today. ⁷And now

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr: Heb I

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb I

symbolic act in front of the royal palace in Tahpanhes. 9–10: A prophetic sign-act indicating Babylonian control over Egypt, perhaps an allusion to Babylon's successful attack in 568 BCE. On setting up the royal throne at the gate, see 39.3. 10: My servant, see 25.9n. 11: See 15.2 for a similar judgment oracle against those presumably residing in Jerusalem. 12: Pick clean, the Hebrew suggests a shepherd wrapping himself in a garment (see 1 Sam 28.14; Ps 109.19), but the LXX understood it to refer to removing lice (so NRSV). The verb can mean "to grasp tightly" (Isa 22.17). 13: Obelisks of Heliopolis, lit., "the stone pillars of Beth-shemesh," but "Beth-shemesh" means "house of the sun." Heliopolis (Gk for "city of the sun"), also called "On" (Gen 41.45,50; 46.20), was a city ca. 6 mi (10 km) northeast of modern Cairo with a temple for the worship of the sun.

44.1–30: Dispute over disaster and divine purpose. A final oracle against the Judean refugee communities in Egypt (cf. ch 43), in the context of a confrontation concerning why Judah has experienced the present crisis. In standard Deuteronomistic language, Jeremiah associates the disaster with the people's faithlessness toward God (vv. 2–10). He meets popular resistance from those who insist that the disaster has come precisely because they had discontinued their syncretistic ritual practices, especially that of the adoration of and homage paid to the goddess known as the "queen of heaven," probably Astarte, variously known as Ishtar in Babylon and Ashtart in Canaan (vv. 15–19). The insinuation is that the reform movement of Josiah, with its restriction of worship to the Jerusalem Temple and its purging of the land of all syncretistic and foreign worship elements, was the cause of offense. Jeremiah's Deuteronomistic argument brackets that of the people, because it represents the fundamental theological principle of the book as prepared by its Deuteronomistic editors. 1: Expands the focus far beyond the Judean community in Tahpanhes (43.1–13). Migdol, like Tahpanhes, lay in the eastern Nile Delta and was associated with the Exodus (Ex 14.2). It was apparently the closest Egyptian garrison to Judah (Ezek 29.10). Memphis, ca. 3 mi (21 km) south of modern Cairo, the ancient imperial capital located at the head of the Nile Delta; see 2.16. Pathros, a designation for upper (i.e., southern) Egypt, listed alongside and parallel to Egypt in several lists (e.g., Isa 11.11); on the Judean colony at Elephantine in upper Egypt, see 43.7n. The three Judean settlements in Egypt suggest the passage of time. 4: See 7.25n.

thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: Why are you doing such great harm to yourselves, to cut off man and woman, child and infant, from the midst of Judah, leaving yourselves without a remnant? ⁸ Why do you provoke me to anger with the works of your hands, making offerings to other gods in the land of Egypt where you have come to settle? Will you be cut off and become an object of cursing and ridicule among all the nations of the earth? ⁹ Have you forgotten the crimes of your ancestors, of the kings of Judah, of their^a wives, your own crimes and those of your wives, which they committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? ¹⁰ They have shown no contrition or fear to this day, nor have they walked in my law and my statutes that I set before you and before your ancestors.

¹¹ Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am determined to bring disaster on you, to bring all Judah to an end. ¹² I will take the remnant of Judah who are determined to come to the land of Egypt to settle, and they shall perish, everyone; in the land of Egypt they shall fall; by the sword and by famine they shall perish; from the least to the greatest, they shall die by the sword and by famine; and they shall become an object of execration and horror, of cursing and ridicule. ¹³ I will punish those who live in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence, ¹⁴ so that none of the remnant of Judah who have come to settle in the land of Egypt shall escape or survive or return to the land of Judah. Although they long to go back to live there, they shall not go back, except some fugitives.

¹⁵ Then all the men who were aware that their wives had been making offerings to other gods, and all the women who stood by, a great assembly, all the people who lived in Pathros in the land of Egypt, answered

Jeremiah: ¹⁶ “As for the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the LORD, we are not going to listen to you. ¹⁷ Instead, we will do everything that we have vowed, make offerings to the queen of heaven and pour out libations to her, just as we and our ancestors, our kings and our officials, used to do in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. We used to have plenty of food, and prospered, and saw no misfortune. ¹⁸ But from the time we stopped making offerings to the queen of heaven and pouring out libations to her, we have lacked everything and have perished by the sword and by famine.” ¹⁹ And the women said,^b “Indeed we will go on making offerings to the queen of heaven and pouring out libations to her; do you think that we made cakes for her, marked with her image, and poured out libations to her without our husbands’ being involved?”

²⁰ Then Jeremiah said to all the people, men and women, all the people who were giving him this answer: ²¹ “As for the offerings that you made in the towns of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your ancestors, your kings and your officials, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them? Did it not come into his mind?

²² The LORD could no longer bear the sight of your evil doings, the abominations that you committed; therefore your land became a desolation and a waste and a curse, without inhabitant, as it is to this day. ²³ It is because you burned offerings, and because you sinned against the LORD and did not obey the voice of the LORD or walk in his law and in his statutes and in his decrees, that this disaster has befallen you, as is still evident today.”

²⁴ Jeremiah said to all the people and all the women, “Hear the word of the LORD, all you Judeans who are in the land of Egypt, ²⁵ Thus

^a Heb his

^b Compare Syr: Heb lacks And the women said

9: Their wives, lit., “his wives,” perhaps referring to Solomon (1 Kings 11.1–13), whose wives led him to apostasy and the schism of the empire. 15: It is strange that Jeremiah, who apparently settled as a hostage in Tahpanhes, is here addressed by Judeans residing in upper Egypt. 17: The worship of the queen of heaven was popular throughout the ancient world, including popular religious expression in Israel. Her worship included the making of raisin cakes, expressive of prayers for fertility (v. 19). This goddess represented the evening-star phase of the planet Venus, while in Canaan her brother, Ashtar, represented the morning-star phase (see Isa 14.12–15); see also 7.18n. Have plenty of food . . . prospered . . . saw no misfortune, the claim that all was well when worshipping says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You and your wives have accomplished in deeds what you declared in words, saying, ‘We are determined to perform the vows that we have made, to make offerings to the queen of heaven and to pour out libations to her.’ By all means, keep your vows and make your libations! ²⁶Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all you Judeans who live in the land of Egypt: Lo, I swear by my great name, says the LORD, that my name shall no longer be pronounced on the lips of any of the people of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, ‘As the Lord God lives.’ ²⁷I am going to watch over them for harm and not for good; all the people of Judah who are in the land of Egypt shall perish by the sword and by famine, until not one is left. ²⁸And those who escape the sword shall return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah, few in number; and all the remnant of Judah, who have come to the land of Egypt to settle, shall know whose words will stand, mine or theirs! ²⁹This shall be the sign to you, says the LORD, that I am going to punish you in this place, in order that you may know that my words against you will surely be carried out: ³⁰Thus says the LORD, I am going to give Pharaoh Hophra, king of Egypt, into the hands of his enemies, those who seek his life, just as I gave King Zedekiah of Judah into the hand of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, his enemy who sought his life.”

45 The word that the prophet Jeremiah spoke to Baruch son of Neriah, when he wrote these words in a scroll at the dictation of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah: ²Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to you, O Baruch: ³You said, “Woe is me! The LORD has added sorrow to my pain; I am weary with my groaning, and I find no rest.” ⁴Thus you shall say to him, “Thus says the LORD: I am going to break down what I have built, and pluck up what I have planted—that is, the whole land. ⁵And you, do you seek great things for yourself? Do not seek them; for I am going to bring disaster upon all flesh, says the LORD; but I will give you your life as a prize of war in every place to which you may go.”

46 The word of the LORD that came to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the nations.

²Concerning Egypt, about the army of Pharaoh Neco, king of Egypt, which was by the queen of heaven may refer to the period before the reform of King Josiah (2 Kings 22–23). ²⁷: Watch over them for harm, this last oracle addressed to the people ironically echoes language with which the book began (1.11–12). ^{29–30}: Pharaoh Hophra, also known as Apries (589–570 BCE), a long-standing enemy of Nebuchadrezzar, was deposed by Amasis (569–526 BCE).

45.1–5: Words of promise to Baruch. This third and final cycle of oracles concludes, as did the first two, by recollecting the scroll of 605 BCE (see 36.4–6, 27–32). Using the central code language of the book, a final negative judgment is given: building yields to breaking down and planting yields to plucking up (see 1.10; etc.). But Baruch is reassured of his own survival. 1: The fourth year of King Jehoiakim (605 BCE, the year of Nebuchadrezzar’s ascension to the throne), connects this individual oracle to chs 25 and 36. All three chapters allude to the dismantling of the Judean state and the transition of oral prophecy to written or scribal prophecy, in which Baruch would play a central role. 5: Prize of war, see 21.9; 38.2; 39.18.

46.1–51.64 Oracles against the nations. Jeremiah’s role as “a prophet to the nations” (1.5) is most clearly realized in this final section of the book, commonly referred to as the oracles against the nations (OAN). Collections of oracles against foreign nations are frequent in the prophetic literature (see, e.g., Am 1–2; Isa 13–23; Ezek 25–23). These oracles may preserve one of the early functions of prophecy as “war prophecy”: undermining the strength of the enemy with curses and psychologically fortifying troops for victory. The placement of these oracles is a major difference between the Hebrew (MT) and the Greek (LXX) traditions of the book of Jeremiah, with the latter locating these oracles within the context of ch 25. In the MT, Jeremiah’s oracles of judgment are directed against Egypt (46.2–28), Israel’s first nemesis, Philistia (47.1–7), Moab (48.1–47), Ammon (49.1–6), Edom (49.7–22), Damascus (49.23–27), Kedar and Hazor (49.28–33), Elam (49.34–39), and culminate in a lengthy diatribe against Babylon, Israel/Judah’s then present oppressor (50.1–51.64). This particular organization and placement of the OAN at the end of the book in the MT emphasizes the defeat of Israel’s oppressors and the promise of hope for Judean exiles in Babylonia.

the river Euphrates at Carchemish and which King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon defeated in the fourth year of King Jehoiakim son of Josiah of Judah:

³ Prepare buckler and shield, and advance for battle!

⁴ Harness the horses;
mount the steeds!

Take your stations with your helmets,
whet your lances,
put on your coats of mail!

⁵ Why do I see them terrified?
They have fallen back;

their warriors are beaten down,
and have fled in haste.

They do not look back—
terror is all around!

says the LORD.

⁶ The swift cannot flee away,
nor can the warrior escape;
in the north by the river Euphrates
they have stumbled and fallen.

⁷ Who is this, rising like the Nile,
like rivers whose waters surge?

⁸ Egypt rises like the Nile,
like rivers whose waters surge.

It said, Let me rise, let me cover the earth, let me destroy cities and their inhabitants.

⁹ Advance, O horses,
and dash madly, O chariots!

Let the warriors go forth:

Ethiopia^a and Put who carry the shield,
the Ludim, who draw^b the bow.

¹⁰ That day is the day of the Lord GOD of
hosts,

a day of retribution,
to gain vindication from his foes.

The sword shall devour and be sated,
and drink its fill of their blood.

For the Lord GOD of hosts holds a sacrifice in the land of the north by the river Euphrates.

¹¹ Go up to Gilead, and take balm,
O virgin daughter Egypt!

In vain you have used many medicines;
there is no healing for you.

¹² The nations have heard of your shame,
and the earth is full of your cry;

for warrior has stumbled against warrior;
both have fallen together.

¹³ The word that the LORD spoke to the prophet Jeremiah about the coming of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon to attack the land of Egypt:

¹⁴ Declare in Egypt, and proclaim in Migdol;

proclaim in Memphis and Tahpanhes; Say, "Take your stations and be ready, for the sword shall devour those around

you."

¹⁵ Why has Apis fled?^c

Why did your bull not stand?

—because the LORD thrust him down.

¹⁶ Your multitude stumbled^d and fell, and one said to another,^e

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Cn: Heb who grasp, who draw

^c Gk: Heb Why was it swept away

^d Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Gk: Heb and fell one to another and they said

46.1–28: Against Egypt, two oracles. The first oracle (vv. 3–12) is set in the context of Babylon's defeat of Egypt in 605 BCE at Carchemish on the Euphrates, solidifying Babylonian control over the Levant; cf. 25.1; 36.1; 45.1. The second oracle (vv. 13–28) is set in the context of the later invasion of Egypt by the Babylonian army (cf. 43.9–13). 1: An introduction to the OAN as a whole. 2: Pharaoh Neco II, ca. 610–595 BCE. 3: Buckler . . . shield, two different sizes of shields: the first smaller and the second covering the entire body. The unusual poetic meter of these verses mimics the sound of marching armies (cf. Nah 2.1–9). 5: Terror is all around, language celebrating the Egyptian defeat; see 6.25n. 7–8: Egypt's hubris and politics of domination is ridiculed in light of its present plight: like the annual flooding of the Nile, Egypt's pretensions rose above manageable levels. 9: Put, location uncertain; perhaps Libya. Ludim, Lydians, a people in west-central Asia Minor; see Gen 10.6,13; Ezek 27.10. 11: Gilead . . . balm, see 8.22n. 13: A brief note relates the oracle to Nebuchadnezzar's assault on Egypt, perhaps in 588 BCE. 14: Migdol . . . Memphis . . . Tahpanhes, see 44.1n. 15: Why has Apis fled, following the Greek text, underlying which is a different word division; MT reads "Why is it fallen?" The LXX reads Apis, a bull deity worshiped in Memphis and the subject of elaborate sacrificial and burial rituals. The flight of Apis represents the retreat of the imperial Egyptian armies. 16–24: Mighty Egypt, the nation that once enslaved the Hebrew

Chs 46–51: Places mentioned in the oracles against foreign nations.

“Come, let us go back to our own people and to the land of our birth,
because of the destroying sword.”

¹⁷ Give Pharaoh, king of Egypt, the name “Braggart who missed his chance.”

¹⁸ As I live, says the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts, one is coming
like Tabor among the mountains, and like Carmel by the sea.

¹⁹ Pack your bags for exile, sheltered daughter Egypt!
For Memphis shall become a waste,
a ruin, without inhabitant.

²⁰ A beautiful heifer is Egypt—
a gadfly from the north lights upon her.

²¹ Even her mercenaries in her midst are like fatted calves;
they too have turned and fled together,
they did not stand;

for the day of their calamity has come
upon them,
the time of their punishment.

²² She makes a sound like a snake gliding
away;

for her enemies march in force,
and come against her with axes,
like those who fell trees.

²³ They shall cut down her forest,
says the LORD,

though it is impenetrable,
because they are more numerous than locusts;
they are without number.

²⁴ Daughter Egypt shall be put to shame;
she shall be handed over to a people from the north.

²⁵ The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, said: See, I am bringing punishment upon Amon of Thebes, and Pharaoh, and Egypt people, is no match for the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts. The oracle is a parody on Egypt whose power arrangements are now turned on their head. 18: Like Tabor, a prominent mountain in the Galilee. Like Carmel, a prominent mountain point protecting the seaward (west) end of the Jezreel valley. But the meaning of the Hebrew is unclear. 20: Gadfly from the north, that is, Babylon. 21: Egypt's troops have fled like their Apis bull (v. 15). 22: The snake gliding away may recall an emblem on the Egyptian crown, the uraeus. 25: Amon, the sun god and her gods and her kings, upon Pharaoh and those who trust in him.²⁶ I will hand them over to those who seek their life, to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon and his officers. Afterward Egypt shall be inhabited as in the days of old, says the LORD.

²⁷ But as for you, have no fear, my servant Jacob,
and do not be dismayed, O Israel;
for I am going to save you from far away,
and your offspring from the land of their captivity.
Jacob shall return and have quiet and ease,
and no one shall make him afraid.

²⁸ As for you, have no fear, my servant Jacob,
says the LORD,
for I am with you.
I will make an end of all the nations
among which I have banished you,
but I will not make an end of you!
I will chastise you in just measure,
and I will by no means leave you unpunished.

47 The word of the LORD that came to the prophet Jeremiah concerning the Philistines, before Pharaoh attacked Gaza:

² Thus says the LORD:
See, waters are rising out of the north and shall become an overflowing torrent;
they shall overflow the land and all that fills it,
the city and those who live in it.
People shall cry out,

whose temple was in Thebes in southern Egypt. 26: Afterward Egypt shall be inhabited, that the oracle concludes with a brief word of promise for the restoration of Egypt is strange, but consistent with 48.47; 49.6,39. 27–28: A doublet of 30.10–11 in the exilic language of Second Isaiah, which serves to contrast the defeat of Egypt with the liberation of Judean refugees.

47.1–7: Against Philistia. A pentapolis (Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, and Gath) located on the southern Mediterranean coast, Philistia was a traditional rival of Israel (see, e.g., Judg 13–16; 1 Sam 4–7). 1: A vague historical allusion which some scholars associate with Pharaoh Neco II's military campaign in 609 BCE, although other parts of the judgment oracle point to an invasion from the north, perhaps the Babylonian assault on Ashkelon in 604 BCE (vv. 5,7). 2: Cf. Isa 8.7–8. 4: Tyre and Sidon, part of Phoenicia rather than Philistia, and elsewhere are listed separately from Philistia (25.20–22; Am 1.6–10; Ezek 25.15–28.26). The Philistines were associated with the ancestral land of Caphtor (Crete, Gen 10.14; Deut 2.23; Am 9.7). Tyre, Sidon, and Philistia were later connected with incursions of Hellenic groups (Joel 3.4–6). 5: For similar signs of lamentation, cf. 16.6; 41.5. 6–7: Sword of the LORD, 12.1; 25.31; Isa 34.6.

48.1–47: Against Moab. The most extensive oracle against Moab in the Bible (see also Isa 15–16; Ezek 25.8–11; Am 2.1–3; Zeph 2.8–11; for a more positive perspective on Moab, see Ruth). Numerous voices announce the

and all the inhabitants of the land shall wail.

³ At the noise of the stamping of the hoofs of his stallions, at the clatter of his chariots, at the rumbling of their wheels, parents do not turn back for children,
so feeble are their hands,
⁴ because of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and Sidon every helper that remains.
For the LORD is destroying the Philistines,
the remnant of the coastland of Caphtor.

⁵ Baldness has come upon Gaza, Ashkelon is silenced.
O remnant of their power!^a
How long will you gash yourselves?

⁶ Ah, sword of the LORD!
How long until you are quiet?
Put yourself into your scabbard, rest and be still!

⁷ How can it^b be quiet,
when the LORD has given it an order?
Against Ashkelon and against the seashore—
there he has appointed it.

48 Concerning Moab.

Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:
Alas for Nebo, it is laid waste!

^a Gk: Heb their valley

^b Gk Vg: Heb you

Kiriathaim is put to shame, it is taken;
the fortress is put to shame and broken
down;

²the renown of Moab is no more.
In Heshbon they planned evil against her: “Come, let us cut her off from being a nation!”

You also, O Madmen, shall be brought to silence;^a
the sword shall pursue you.

³Hark! a cry from Horonaim, “Desolation and great destruction!”

⁴“Moab is destroyed!”
her little ones cry out.

⁵For at the ascent of Luhith they go^b up weeping bitterly;
for at the descent of Horonaim they have heard the distressing cry of anguish.

⁶Flee! Save yourselves!
Be like a wild ass^c in the desert!

⁷Surely, because you trusted in your strongholds^d and your treasures,
you also shall be taken;
Chemosh shall go out into exile,
with his priests and his attendants.

⁸The destroyer shall come upon every
town,
and no town shall escape;
the valley shall perish,
and the plain shall be destroyed,
as the LORD has spoken.

⁹Set aside salt for Moab,
for she will surely fall;

her towns shall become a desolation,
with no inhabitant in them.

¹⁰Accursed is the one who is slack in doing the work of the LORD; and accursed is the one who keeps back the sword from bloodshed.

¹¹Moab has been at ease from his youth, settled like wine^e on its dregs;
he has not been emptied from vessel to
vessel,
nor has he gone into exile;
therefore his flavor has remained and his aroma is unspoiled.

¹²Therefore, the time is surely coming, says the LORD, when I shall send to him decanters to decant him, and empty his vessels, and break his^f jars in pieces. ¹³Then Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, their confidence.

¹⁴How can you say, “We are heroes and mighty warriors”?

¹⁵The destroyer of Moab and his towns has come up,
and the choicest of his young men have gone down to slaughter, says the King, whose name is the LORD
of hosts.

^a The place-name Madmen sounds like the Hebrew verb to be silent

^b Cn: Heb he goes

^c Gk Aquila: Heb like Aroer

^d Gk: Heb works

^e Heb lacks like wine

^f Gk Aquila: Heb their fall of a state whose crimes of arrogance and abuse of power had long gone unpunished. Although the poetic-prose diatribe is repetitive and jumbled, the chapter can be broken down into five parts: vv. 1–13, 14–27, 28–33, 34–39, 40–47. 1: Nebo, one of the cities conquered by Israelites (Num 32.3–4). Kiriathaim is mentioned in the Moabite Mesha Inscription as a city rebuilt in the ninth century (see also Ezek 25.9). Although Nebo, Kiriathaim, and other Moabite cities were sometimes controlled by the Israelites (Mesha Inscription; Num 32.37), they were traditionally part of Moabite territory (Deut 32.49). 2: In Heshbon they planned evil, wordplay: “plot, plan,” Heb “hashab.” Heshbon, Tell Hisban, ca. 12 mi (19 km) south-southwest of Amman. 3–5: Horonaim and the ascent of Luhith, see Isa 15.15; locations uncertain. 6: Like a wild ass (Heb “‘aro’er”) in the desert, a reference to the Moabite town Aroer (17.6; Deut 2.36; 2 Kings 10.33). 7: Moab’s crime is identified as reliance upon its military might (strongholds or “works” [see textual note d]) and financial systems (treasures). Chemosh, the chief Moabite god (see Num 21.29; Judg 11.24; 1 Kings 11.7). 9: Salt for Moab refers to the practice of “salting” a conquered territory to destroy its soil’s fertility for generations to come; see Judg 9.45. This is also a wordplay on the terms “salt” (Heb “tsits”) and “fall” or “go out” (Heb “tets”). 10: Probably an editorial comment. 11–12: Uses language referring to Moab’s viticulture; see vv. 32–33. 13: Bethel represented religious apostasy in prophetic critique

¹⁶ The calamity of Moab is near at hand and his doom approaches swiftly.
¹⁷ Mourn over him, all you his neighbors,
and all who know his name;
say, “How the mighty scepter is broken,
the glorious staff!”

¹⁸ Come down from glory,
and sit on the parched ground,
enthroned daughter Dibon!
For the destroyer of Moab has come up against you;
he has destroyed your strongholds.

¹⁹ Stand by the road and watch,
you inhabitant of Aroer!
Ask the man fleeing and the woman escaping;
say, “What has happened?”

²⁰ Moab is put to shame, for it is broken
down;
wail and cry!
Tell it by the Arnon,
that Moab is laid waste.

²¹ Judgment has come upon the tableland, upon Holon, and Jahzah, and Mephaath, ²² and Dibon, and Nebo, and Beth-diblathaim, ²³ and Kiriathaim, and Beth-gamul, and Beth-meon, ²⁴ and Kerioth, and Bozrah, and all the towns of the land of Moab, far and near.
²⁵ The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, says the LORD.

²⁶ Make him drunk, because he magnified himself against the LORD; let Moab wallow in his vomit; he too shall become a laughingstock. ²⁷ Israel was a laughingstock for you, though he was not caught among thieves; but whenever you spoke of him you shook your head!

²⁸ Leave the towns, and live on the rock,
O inhabitants of Moab!

Be like the dove that nests
on the sides of the mouth of a gorge.
²⁹ We have heard of the pride of Moab—
he is very proud—
of his loftiness, his pride, and his arrogance,
and the haughtiness of his heart.

³⁰ I myself know his insolence, says the
LORD;
his boasts are false,
his deeds are false.

³¹ Therefore I wail for Moab;
I cry out for all Moab;
for the people of Kir-heres I mourn.

³² More than for Jazer I weep for you,
O vine of Sibmah!
Your branches crossed over the sea, reached as far as Jazer;^a upon your summer fruits and your vintage the destroyer has fallen.

³³ Gladness and joy have been taken away from the fruitful land of Moab;
I have stopped the wine from the wine
presses;
no one treads them with shouts of joy;
the shouting is not the shout of joy.

³⁴ Heshbon and Elealeh cry out;^b as far as Jahaz they utter their voice, from Zoar to Horonaim and Eglath-shelishiyah. For even the waters of Nimrim have become desolate. ³⁵ And I will bring to an end in Moab, says the LORD, those who offer sacrifice at a high place and make offerings to their gods. ³⁶ Therefore my heart moans for Moab like a flute, and my heart moans like a flute for the people of Kir-heres;
for the riches they gained have perished.

³⁷ For every head is shaved and every beard cut off; on all the hands there are gashes, and

^a Two Mss and Isa 16.8: MT the sea of Jazer

^b Cn: Heb From the cry of Heshbon to Elealeh

(Hos 10.15; Am 3.14; 4.4; 5.5–6), because of the worship associated with the calf that Jeroboam installed there (1 Kings 12.26–31; 2 Kings 10.29). Bethel was also the name of a deity, and that may be implied here by the parallel with Chemosh. 18: Dibon, a Moabite city near Aroer north of the Wadi Arnon (v. 20). 19: Aroer, see v. 6n. 21–24: A later prose voice drives home the comprehensive nature of the divine judgment: judgment will come upon the towns of the central plateau and Moab’s fortified settlements (those that can be located are shown on color Map 6 at the end of the book); cf. Num 32.3; Isa 15.4–6. 25–26: Horn and arm, God’s wrath crushes Moab’s power. 29–33: See Isa 16.6–10. 31: Kir-heres, otherwise known as Kir-hareseth (see Isa 16.7,11) is modern el-Kerak, the imposing and easily defended Moabite city 11 mi (18 km) east of the Dead Sea. 32: Vine of Sibmah, see vv. 11–12n.; Isa 16.8,9. 34–36: For the towns, see vv. 21–24n. 37: Shaved heads, cut off beards, slashed hands, on the loins sackcloth. ³⁸On all the housetops of Moab and in the squares there is nothing but lamentation; for I have broken Moab like a vessel that no one wants, says the LORD. ³⁹How it is broken! How they wail! How Moab has turned his back in shame! So Moab has become a derision and a horror to all his neighbors.

⁴⁰For thus says the LORD:

Look, he shall swoop down like an eagle,
and spread his wings against Moab;

⁴¹the towns^a shall be taken and the strongholds seized.

The hearts of the warriors of Moab, on
that day,
shall be like the heart of a woman in
labor.

⁴²Moab shall be destroyed as a people, because he magnified himself against
the LORD.

⁴³Terror, pit, and trap
are before you, O inhabitants of Moab!
says the LORD.

⁴⁴Everyone who flees from the terror
shall fall into the pit,
and everyone who climbs out of the pit shall be caught in the trap.

For I will bring these things^b upon Moab
in the year of their punishment,
says the LORD.

⁴⁵In the shadow of Heshbon fugitives stop exhausted;
for a fire has gone out from Heshbon,
a flame from the house of Sihon;
it has destroyed the forehead of Moab, the scalp of the people of tumult.^c

⁴⁶Woe to you, O Moab!

The people of Chemosh have perished,
for your sons have been taken captive,
and your daughters into captivity.

⁴⁷Yet I will restore the fortunes of Moab
in the latter days, says the LORD.
Thus far is the judgment on Moab.

49 Concerning the Ammonites.

Thus says the LORD:

Has Israel no sons?

Has he no heir?

Why then has Milcom dispossessed Gad,
and his people settled in its towns?

²Therefore, the time is surely coming,
says the LORD,

when I will sound the battle alarm against Rabbah of the Ammonites;
it shall become a desolate mound,
and its villages shall be burned with
fire;

then Israel shall dispossess those who dispossessed him,
says the LORD.

³Wail, O Heshbon, for Ai is laid waste!
Cry out, O daughters^d of Rabbah!

Put on sackcloth,
lament, and slash yourselves with whips!^e

For Milcom shall go into exile,
with his priests and his attendants.

^a Or Kerioth

^b Gk Syr: Heb bring upon it

^c Or of Shaon

^d Or villages

^e Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

and sackcloth are all conventional forms of mourning; cf. 41.5 and 49.3. 42: He magnified himself against the LORD, Moab's crime is its arrogance. 45–46: See Num 21.26–30. Sihon, the legendary Amorite king of Heshbon. 47: Moab's fortunes will be restored, as will those of Ammon (49.6) and Elam (49.39).

49.1–6: Against Ammon. Located in Transjordan north of Moab, long-time rival Ammon is accused of confiscating Israelite territory as if Israel had no heirs; see also Am 1.13–15. The oracle against Ammon follows that of Moab, as the two are connected in tradition; see Gen 19.30–38; Deut 23.3. Both had recently been used by the Babylonians as proxies in the effort to subdue Judah (2 Kings 24.2). The oracle does not mention Ammon's complicity in the overthrow of Gedaliah's post-587 government (40.13–41.3). Instead, it condemns the unauthorized seizure of Gad under the auspices of its national god Milcom. 1: Milcom . . . Gad, as the east-Jordanian tribe of Reuben tried to establish itself in territory claimed by Moab, so the east-Jordanian tribe of Gad was in competition with the Ammonites, whose national god was Milcom (1 Kings 11.5,33) and who eventually became independent of Israel, thereby claiming their own territory (2 Kings 15.29). 3: Reference to several major Ammonite towns, including Heshbon, the old Amorite city of Sihon (see 48.2n.; Num 21.21–24) and the capital, ⁴ Why do you boast in your strength?

Your strength is ebbing,
O faithless daughter.
You trusted in your treasures, saying,
“Who will attack me?”

⁵ I am going to bring terror upon you,
says the Lord God of hosts,
from all your neighbors,
and you will be scattered, each headlong,
with no one to gather the fugitives.

⁶ But afterward I will restore the fortunes of the Ammonites, says the LORD.

⁷ Concerning Edom.

Thus says the LORD of hosts:

Is there no longer wisdom in Teman?
Has counsel perished from the prudent?
Has their wisdom vanished?

⁸ Flee, turn back, get down low, inhabitants of Dedan!

For I will bring the calamity of Esau upon
him,
the time when I punish him.

⁹ If grape-gatherers came to you,
would they not leave gleanings?

If thieves came by night, even they would pillage only what they wanted.

¹⁰ But as for me, I have stripped Esau bare,

I have uncovered his hiding places,
and he is not able to conceal himself.

His offspring are destroyed, his kinsfolk and his neighbors; and he is no more.

¹¹ Leave your orphans, I will keep them alive;
and let your widows trust in me.

¹² For thus says the LORD: If those who do not deserve to drink the cup still have to drink it, shall you be the one to go unpun-ished? You shall not go unpunished; you must drink it. ¹³ For by myself I have sworn, says the LORD, that Bozrah shall become an object of horror and ridicule, a waste, and an object of cursing; and all her towns shall be perpetual wastes.

¹⁴ I have heard tidings from the LORD, and a messenger has been sent among
the nations:

“Gather yourselves together and come against her,
and rise up for battle!”

¹⁵ For I will make you least among the
nations,
despised by humankind.

¹⁶ The terror you inspire and the pride of your heart have deceived you,

you who live in the clefts of the rock,^a who hold the height of the hill.

Although you make your nest as high as the eagle’s,
from there I will bring you down,

says the LORD.

¹⁷ Edom shall become an object of horror;
everyone who passes by it will be horrified and will hiss because of all its disasters. ¹⁸ As when Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbors were overthrown, says the LORD, no one

^a Or of Sela

Rabbah (2 Sam 11:1), modern Amman. Ai here probably does not refer to the ancient city of Ai near Bethel; the word means “ruin,” and may be used here in reference to Rabbah. 6: Restore the fortunes, see 48:47n.

49:7–22: Against Edom. South of Ammon and Moab, Edom was the third east-Jordanian country that competed with Israel for territory and independence. It is the target of numerous denunciations; e.g., Ps 137; Isa 34:1–17; Ezek 25:12–14; 35:1–9; Ob; Mal 1:2–5. According to Gen 25:19–34, the rivalry originated in Rebekah’s womb between the twin brothers Esau/Edom and Jacob/Israel, intensified with their descendants (see Gen 36; Num 20:14–21; Ob; 1 Kings 11:14–17), and culminated in the sixth century BCE when Edom colluded with Babylon in the destruction of Jerusalem (see Ps 137:7–9; Ezek 25:12–14) and the seizure of southern parts of Judean territory (Ezek 35:1–5; 36:5; Ob 11–14). The only transgression of Edom mentioned in this oracle, however, is national hubris (v. 16). 7: Teman, perhaps in northern Arabia, was associated with Esau, the ancestor of Edom (Gen 36:1,8–11,15). 8: Dedan, a region in northwest Arabia associated with trade (Ezek 25:15–29. 9–10: A variation of Ob 5–6. 12: Cf. 25:15–29. 13: Bozrah, modern Buseirah, a prominent fortified city in northern Edom, will be the target of the divine offensive (see also v. 22). 14–16: Cf. Ob 1–4. Clefts of the rock, Edom was known for its mountainous and hill-top dwellings such as at Sela (“rock”). 18: Sodom and Gomorrah, see 20:16n. A doublet of shall live there, nor shall anyone settle in it.

¹⁹ Like a lion coming up from the thickets of the Jordan against a perennial pasture, I will suddenly chase Edom^a away from it; and I will appoint over it whomever I choose.^b For who is like me? Who can summon me? Who is the shepherd who can stand before me?

²⁰ Therefore hear the plan that the LORD has made against Edom and the purposes that he has formed against the inhabitants of Teman: Surely the little ones of the flock shall be dragged away; surely their fold shall be appalled at their fate. ²¹ At the sound of their fall the earth shall tremble; the sound of their cry shall be heard at the Red Sea.^c ²² Look, he shall mount up and swoop down like an eagle, and spread his wings against Bozrah, and the heart of the warriors of Edom in that day shall be like the heart of a woman in labor.

²³ Concerning Damascus.

Hamath and Arpad are confounded,
for they have heard bad news;
they melt in fear, they are troubled like the sea^d that cannot be quiet.

²⁴ Damascus has become feeble, she turned to flee,
and panic seized her;
anguish and sorrows have taken hold of her,
as of a woman in labor.

²⁵ How the famous city is forsaken,^e
the joyful town!^f

²⁶ Therefore her young men shall fall in her
squares,

and all her soldiers shall be destroyed in
that day,

says the LORD of hosts.

²⁷ And I will kindle a fire at the wall of Damascus,
and it shall devour the strongholds of Ben-hadad.

²⁸ Concerning Kedar and the kingdoms of Hazor that King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon defeated.

Thus says the LORD:

Rise up, advance against Kedar!

Destroy the people of the east!

²⁹ Take their tents and their flocks, their curtains and all their goods;
carry off their camels for yourselves,
and a cry shall go up: "Terror is all around!"

³⁰ Flee, wander far away, hide in deep places,
O inhabitants of Hazor!

says the LORD.

For King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon has made a plan against you and formed a purpose against you.

^a Heb him

^b Or and I will single out the choicest of his rams:
Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or Sea of Reeds

^d Cn: Heb there is trouble in the sea

^e Vg: Heb is not forsaken

^f Syr Vg Tg: Heb the town of my joy

50.40, appropriate here given Edomite associations with the southern Arabah. 19: Lion . . . thickets of the Jordan, see 12.5n. 21: Red Sea, or "Sea of Reeds" (see textual note c), here probably referring to the eastern arm of the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aqaba/Eilat.

49.23–27: Against Damascus, the capital of Syria (Aram), likely a designation for all of western Syria in this context. Another nemesis of Israel, especially during the ninth and eighth centuries BCE (see Isa 7.1–8.4), Syria's military clout had long waned, but 2 Kings 24.1–2 mentions bands of Syrians harassing Judah during Nebuchadnezzar's reign. 23: On the connection of the neighboring kingdoms of Hamath and Arpad, see, e.g., Isa 10.9; 36.19. 27: Cf. Am 1.4,14. Ben-hadad, a general allusion to kings of Aram/Syria; see, e.g., 1 Kings 15.18–20; 2 Kings 6.24; 8.7–15; 13.24–25.

49.28–33: Against Kedar and Hazor. Kedar is likely the designation of Arab tribes located in the desert to the southeast of Judah (see 2.10n.), who lived in unwalled villages (v. 31) and whose economy was based upon camel caravaning (vv. 29,32). Unlike other nations featured thus far, these Arab tribes were not perennial adversaries of Israel or Judah. The oracle gives no reason for the assault against Kedar and Hazor apart from Nebuchadnezzar's "plan/purpose" against them (v. 30). 28: In midwinter 599–598 BCE Nebuchadnezzar led a successful campaign against the Arab tribes in the eastern desert. 29: Terror is all around, see 46.5n. 30: Hazor

³¹ Rise up, advance against a nation at ease, that lives secure,

says the LORD,

that has no gates or bars,
that lives alone.

³² Their camels shall become booty, their herds of cattle a spoil.

I will scatter to every wind
those who have shaven temples, and I will bring calamity against them from every side,

says the LORD.

³³ Hazor shall become a lair of jackals,
an everlasting waste;
no one shall live there,
nor shall anyone settle in it.

³⁴ The word of the LORD that came to the prophet Jeremiah concerning Elam, at the beginning of the reign of King Zedekiah of Judah.

³⁵ Thus says the LORD of hosts: I am going to break the bow of Elam, the mainstay of their might; ³⁶ and I will bring upon Elam the four winds from the four quarters of heaven; and I will scatter them to all these winds, and there shall be no nation to which the exiles from Elam shall not come. ³⁷ I will terrify Elam before their enemies, and before those who seek their life; I will bring disaster upon them, my fierce anger, says the LORD. I will send the sword after them, until I have consumed them; ³⁸ and I will set my throne in Elam, and destroy their king and officials, says the LORD.

³⁹ But in the latter days I will restore the fortunes of Elam, says the LORD.

50 The word that the LORD spoke concerning Babylon, concerning the land of the Chaldeans, by the prophet Jeremiah:

² Declare among the nations and proclaim, set up a banner and proclaim, do not conceal it, say:

Babylon is taken,
Bel is put to shame,
Merodach is dismayed.
Her images are put to shame,
her idols are dismayed.

³ For out of the north a nation has come up against her; it shall make her land a desolation, and no one shall live in it; both human beings and animals shall flee away.

⁴ In those days and in that time, says the LORD, the people of Israel shall come, they and the people of Judah together; they shall come weeping as they seek the LORD their God. ⁵ They shall ask the way to Zion, with faces turned toward it, and they shall come and join^a themselves to the LORD by an everlasting covenant that will never be forgotten.

^a Gk: Heb toward it. Come! They shall join

(v. 30), not to be mistaken for the city in northern Galilee (Josh 11.1), here must also refer to desert nomadic wanderers. 32: Shaven temples, see 9.26n.

49.34–39: Against Elam. The unusually long introduction to this oracle suggests that it was a later addition to the collection. One of the few dated oracles, it is placed in the context of the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah following the first deportation (597 BCE). East of Babylon and north of the Persian Gulf, Elam represents the full geographical scope of the divine program. Bow of Elam (v. 35), cf. Isa 22.6. 34: Beginning of the reign of King Zedekiah, 597 BCE. 36: On the traditional division of the heavens into four quadrants, each with its wind, see Ezek 37.9; Zech 2.6; 6.5. 39: See 48.47; 49.6.

50.1–51.58: Against Babylon. The length of the oracle against Babylon—almost half the size of the entire collection—emphasizes its importance. The cosmic assault on Judah’s archenemy, whose king had previously been described as God’s servant (see 25.9n.), signals the establishment of divine justice and hope for victims of the empire’s repressive power.

50.1–3: Babylon’s destruction is announced. 2: Bel, a title of Marduk, the chief deity of Babylon, related to the Canaanite title “ba’al,” “lord, master” (Isa 46.1); cf. Bel 1.1–22. Merodach, a rendering of Marduk. The name appears in the Bible only otherwise in the royal names of the Babylonian kings, Merodach-baladan (2 Kings 20.12) and Evil-merodach (2 Kings 25.27). 3: The nation out of the north, likely an allusion to Persia, which defeated Babylon in 539 BCE (see also vv. 8–9).

50.4–10: Israel and Judah restored. 8: Cf. Isa 48.20.

⁶ My people have been lost sheep; their shepherds have led them astray, turning them away on the mountains; from mountain to hill they have gone, they have forgotten their fold.⁷ All who found them have devoured them, and their enemies have said, “We are not guilty, because they have sinned against the LORD, the true pasture, the LORD, the hope of their ancestors.”

⁸ Flee from Babylon, and go out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be like male goats leading the flock.⁹ For I am going to stir up and bring against Babylon a company of great nations from the land of the north; and they shall array themselves against her; from there she shall be taken. Their arrows are like the arrows of a skilled warrior who does not return empty-handed.¹⁰ Chaldea shall be plundered; all who plunder her shall be sated, says the LORD.

¹¹ Though you rejoice, though you exult,
O plunderers of my heritage, though you frisk about like a heifer on the grass,
and neigh like stallions,

¹² your mother shall be utterly shamed, and she who bore you shall be disgraced.

Lo, she shall be the last of the nations,
a wilderness, dry land, and a desert.

¹³ Because of the wrath of the LORD she shall not be inhabited,
but shall be an utter desolation;
everyone who passes by Babylon shall be appalled
and hiss because of all her wounds.

¹⁴ Take up your positions around Babylon, all you that bend the bow;
shoot at her, spare no arrows,
for she has sinned against the LORD.

¹⁵ Raise a shout against her from all sides,

“She has surrendered;
her bulwarks have fallen,
her walls are thrown down.”
For this is the vengeance of the LORD:
take vengeance on her,
do to her as she has done.

¹⁶ Cut off from Babylon the sower, and the wielder of the sickle in time of
harvest;
because of the destroying sword
all of them shall return to their own
people,
and all of them shall flee to their own
land.

¹⁷ Israel is a hunted sheep driven away by lions. First the king of Assyria devoured it, and now at the end King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon has gnawed its bones.¹⁸ Therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I am going to punish the king of Babylon and his land, as I punished the king of Assyria.¹⁹ I will restore Israel to its pasture, and it shall feed on Carmel and in Bashan, and on the hills of Ephraim and in Gilead its hunger shall be satisfied.²⁰ In those days and at that time, says the LORD, the iniquity of Israel shall be sought, and there shall be none; and the sins of Judah, and none shall be found; for I will pardon the remnant that I have spared.

²¹ Go up to the land of Merathaim;^a go up against her,
and attack the inhabitants of Pekod^b and utterly destroy the last of them,^c
says the LORD;
do all that I have commanded you.

²² The noise of battle is in the land,
and great destruction!

^a Or of Double Rebellion

^b Or of Punishment

^c Tg: Heb destroy after them

50.11–16: The LORD’s vengeance against Babylon. 12: Your mother, i.e., Babylon. Cities are often spoken of as “mothers” to their inhabitants or surrounding villages.

50.17–20: Israel restored. 19: Carmel, a promontory in the western Jezreel Valley, and Bashan and Gilead in Transjordan were known for their fertility (Isa 33.9; Nah 1.4; Ezek 39.18).

50.21–32: The military assault on Babylon. 21: Merathaim, used only here, perhaps a derisive term for Babylon meaning “double rebellion,” probably playing on the name of southern Babylon, “mat marrati,” “land of the salt-marshes.” Pekod was part of Babylonian territory or an allied territory; see Ezek 23.23; also a play on words, since Heb “paqad” commonly means to “attend to,” as in punishing (vv. 18,27; see 23.2n.). Utterly

²³ How the hammer of the whole earth is cut down and broken!
How Babylon has become
a horror among the nations!
²⁴ You set a snare for yourself and you were caught, O Babylon,
but you did not know it;
you were discovered and seized,
because you challenged the LORD.
²⁵ The LORD has opened his armory, and brought out the weapons of his wrath,
for the Lord God of hosts has a task to do in the land of the Chaldeans.
²⁶ Come against her from every quarter;
open her granaries;
pile her up like heaps of grain, and destroy her utterly;
let nothing be left of her.
²⁷ Kill all her bulls,
let them go down to the slaughter.
Alas for them, their day has come,
the time of their punishment!

²⁸ Listen! Fugitives and refugees from the land of Babylon are coming to declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, vengeance for his temple.

²⁹ Summon archers against Babylon, all who bend the bow. Encamp all around her; let no one escape. Repay her according to her deeds; just as she has done, do to her—for she has arrogantly defied the LORD, the Holy
One of Israel. ³⁰ Therefore her young men shall fall in her squares, and all her soldiers shall be destroyed on that day, says the LORD.

³¹ I am against you, O arrogant one,
says the Lord GOD of hosts;

for your day has come,
the time when I will punish you.
³² The arrogant one shall stumble and fall,
with no one to raise him up,
and I will kindle a fire in his cities,
and it will devour everything around
him.

³³ Thus says the LORD of hosts: The people of Israel are oppressed, and so too are the people of Judah; all their captors have held them fast and refuse to let them go. ³⁴ Their Redeemer is strong; the LORD of hosts is his name. He will surely plead their cause, that he may give rest to the earth, but unrest to the inhabitants of Babylon.

³⁵ A sword against the Chaldeans, says the LORD,
and against the inhabitants of Babylon,
and against her officials and her sages!

³⁶ A sword against the diviners,
so that they may become fools!
A sword against her warriors,
so that they may be destroyed!

³⁷ A sword against her^a horses and against her^a chariots,
and against all the foreign troops in her midst,
so that they may become women!

A sword against all her treasures,
that they may be plundered!

³⁸ A drought^b against her waters, that they may be dried up!
For it is a land of images,
and they go mad over idols.

^a Cn: Heb his

^b Another reading is A sword destroy, technical language for the complete destruction/devotion of an enemy and its assets (see, e.g., Num 21.2–3; Deut 20.17; 1 Sam 15). 24: You set, Heb “I set.”

50.33–34: Israel’s redeemer will plead her cause. The terminology is of family redemption in a legal suit (cf. Isa 47.4). Oppressed, refuse to let them go, their Redeemer, allusions to the Exodus.

50.35–40: Judgment against Babylon. 35–38: The sixfold sword oracle (see v. 38n.) intensifies the language of divine judgment against the empire. The poet employs imagery from the Exodus plagues against Pharaoh to imagine the defeat of Babylon; see “sages,” v. 35 and Ex 7.11 (“wise men”); “horses and chariots,” v. 37 and Ex 14.9,23; 15.19; and “waters,” v. 38 and Ex 14.21–22). 36: Diviners, but Heb suggests a derogatory term for “those who prattle on about nothing.” 37: They may become women, a common slander made against foreign soldiers; cf. 51.30; Isa 19.16; Nah 3.13. 38: Drought, Heb “horeb,” wordplay with “sword,” Heb “hereb,” 40: Sodom and Gomorrah, see 20.16n.

³⁹Therefore wild animals shall live with hyenas in Babylon,^a and ostriches shall inhabit her; she shall never again be peopled, or inhabited for all generations. ⁴⁰As when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbors, says the LORD, so no one shall live there, nor shall anyone settle in her.

⁴¹Look, a people is coming from the north; a mighty nation and many kings are stirring from the farthest parts of the earth.

⁴²They wield bow and spear, they are cruel and have no mercy. The sound of them is like the roaring sea; they ride upon horses, set in array as a warrior for battle, against you, O daughter Babylon!

⁴³The king of Babylon heard news of them, and his hands fell helpless; anguish seized him, pain like that of a woman in labor.

⁴⁴Like a lion coming up from the thickets of the Jordan against a perennial pasture, I will suddenly chase them away from her; and I will appoint over her whomever I choose.^b For who is like me? Who can summon me? Who is the shepherd who can stand before me? ⁴⁵Therefore hear the plan that the LORD has made against Babylon, and the purposes that he has formed against the land of the Chaldeans: Surely the little ones of the flock shall be dragged away; surely their^c fold shall be appalled at their fate. ⁴⁶At the sound of the capture of Babylon the earth shall tremble, and her cry shall be heard among the nations.

51 Thus says the LORD:
I am going to stir up a destructive wind^d against Babylon
and against the inhabitants of Leb-qamai;^e ²and I will send winnowers to Babylon, and they shall winnow her.
They shall empty her land when they come against her from every side on the day of trouble.
³Let not the archer bend his bow, and let him not array himself in his coat of mail.
Do not spare her young men;
utterly destroy her entire army.
⁴They shall fall down slain in the land of the Chaldeans,
and wounded in her streets.
⁵Israel and Judah have not been forsaken by their God, the LORD of hosts, though their land is full of guilt
before the Holy One of Israel.
⁶Flee from the midst of Babylon,
save your lives, each of you!
Do not perish because of her guilt, for this is the time of the LORD's
vengeance;
he is repaying her what is due.
⁷Babylon was a golden cup in the LORD's
hand,
making all the earth drunken;

^a Heb lacks in Babylon

^b Or and I will single out the choicest of her rams: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Syr Gk Tg Compare 49.20: Heb lacks their

^d Or stir up the spirit of a destroyer

^e Leb-qamai is a cryptogram for Kasdim, Chaldea

50.41–43 The assault of the enemy from the north: A doublet of 6.22–24, although now Babylon, not Judah, is the target of the attack.

50.44–46: A quote from the oracle against Edom (49.19–21), although with Babylon as its object. Thickets of the Jordan, see 12.5n. Shepherd, a metaphor for king.

51.1–10: A wind will blow against Babylon. The poet employs the harvest motif (vv. 1–2) and language from the “herem” or “ban” (vv. 3–4) to convey Babylon’s wholesale destruction. The image of winnowing is used ironically to depict a destructive wind that goes far beyond simply separating grain from chaff. 1: Leb-qamai, see textual note e; cf. 25.26n.; 51.41; the term qamai sounds like the word for “standing grain” (Heb “qamah”) which is being winnowed, so that the Leb-qamai suggests “heart” of the standing grain.” 7: On God’s cup of wine, see 25.15–29. Here it is Babylon herself who is God’s cup. The nations drink and “go mad” (see 50.38).

the nations drank of her wine,
and so the nations went mad.

⁸ Suddenly Babylon has fallen and is shattered;
wail for her!

Bring balm for her wound;
perhaps she may be healed.

⁹ We tried to heal Babylon,
but she could not be healed.

Forsake her, and let each of us go to our own country;
for her judgment has reached up to heaven
and has been lifted up even to the skies.

¹⁰ The LORD has brought forth our vindication;
come, let us declare in Zion
the work of the LORD our God.

¹¹ Sharpen the arrows!
Fill the quivers!

The LORD has stirred up the spirit of the kings of the Medes, because his purpose concerning Babylon is to destroy it, for that is the vengeance of the LORD, vengeance for his temple.

¹² Raise a standard against the walls of Babylon;
make the watch strong;

post sentinels;
prepare the ambushes;
for the LORD has both planned and done what he spoke concerning the inhabitants of Babylon.

¹³ You who live by mighty waters, rich in treasures,
your end has come,
the thread of your life is cut.

¹⁴ The LORD of hosts has sworn by himself:
Surely I will fill you with troops like a swarm of locusts,
and they shall raise a shout of victory over you.

¹⁵ It is he who made the earth by his power,
who established the world by his
wisdom,
and by his understanding stretched out
the heavens.

¹⁶ When he utters his voice there is a tumult of waters in the heavens,
and he makes the mist rise from the
ends of the earth.

He makes lightnings for the rain,
and he brings out the wind from his
storehouses.

¹⁷ Everyone is stupid and without
knowledge;
goldsmiths are all put to shame by their
idols;

for their images are false,
and there is no breath in them.

¹⁸ They are worthless, a work of delusion;
at the time of their punishment they
shall perish.

¹⁹ Not like these is the LORD,^a the portion
of Jacob,
for he is the one who formed all things,
and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance;
the LORD of hosts is his name.

²⁰ You are my war club, my weapon of
battle:

with you I smash nations;
with you I destroy kingdoms;

²¹ with you I smash the horse and its rider; with you I smash the chariot and the charioteer;

²² with you I smash man and woman; with you I smash the old man and the boy;

with you I smash the young man and the girl;

^a Heb lacks the LORD

51.11–14: The Medes attack Babylon: Cyrus was king of the empire of Media and Persia, and attacked Babylon in 539 BCE. 11: Stirred up the spirit of the kings of the Medes, cf. 2 Chr 36.22; Ezra 1.1. 13: Mighty waters, Babylon was surrounded by the Euphrates and other waterways as natural defenses. 14: Troops like a swarm of locusts, cf. Joel 1.1–2.11.

51.15–19: A hymn of praise to God. A doublet of 10.12–16 appended here to contrast the power of the God of Israel with the impotence of the idols of Babylon. See also Pss 115.3–8; 135.15–18.

51.20–24: The kings of the Medes (v. 11) are God's weapon of war to be used against Babylon. The repeated term I smash (Heb "nippatsti") is related to the term for "war club" (Heb "mappets"), a common weapon in the ancient Near East. The poet again alludes to the Exodus to imagine the collapse of the empire: the horse and its rider, see Ex 15.1,19,21; chariot and the charioteer, see Ex 14.21–26.

²³with you I smash shepherds and their flocks;
with you I smash farmers and their teams;
with you I smash governors and deputies.

²⁴I will repay Babylon and all the inhabitants of Chaldea before your very eyes for all the wrong that they have done in Zion, says
the LORD.

²⁵I am against you, O destroying
mountain,
says the LORD,
that destroys the whole earth;
I will stretch out my hand against you,
and roll you down from the crags,
and make you a burned-out mountain.
²⁶No stone shall be taken from you for a corner
and no stone for a foundation, but you shall be a perpetual waste,
says the LORD.

²⁷Raise a standard in the land, blow the trumpet among the nations;
prepare the nations for war against her,
summon against her the kingdoms, Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz;
appoint a marshal against her,
bring up horses like bristling locusts.
²⁸Prepare the nations for war against her, the kings of the Medes, with their governors and deputies,
and every land under their dominion.
²⁹The land trembles and writhes, for the LORD's purposes against Babylon stand,

to make the land of Babylon a desolation,
without inhabitant.

³⁰The warriors of Babylon have given up fighting,
they remain in their strongholds;
their strength has failed,
they have become women;
her buildings are set on fire,
her bars are broken.

³¹One runner runs to meet another,
and one messenger to meet another,
to tell the king of Babylon
that his city is taken from end to end:

³²the fords have been seized, the marshes have been burned with
fire,
and the soldiers are in panic.

³³For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God
of Israel:
Daughter Babylon is like a threshing floor
at the time when it is trodden;
yet a little while
and the time of her harvest will come.

³⁴"King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon has devoured me,
he has crushed me;
he has made me an empty vessel,
he has swallowed me like a monster;
he has filled his belly with my delicacies,
he has spewed me out.

³⁵May my torn flesh be avenged on Babylon,"
the inhabitants of Zion shall say.
"May my blood be avenged on the inhabitants of Chaldea," Jerusalem shall say.

51.25–33: Babylon is destroyed and left desolate as Babylon's famous ziggurat (artificial temple mound) will be made an extinct burned-out volcano (v. 25). Babylon has committed war crimes against the whole earth (see, e.g., 50.23), and, therefore God summons the nations to witness and participate in Babylon's subjugation 26: After cities were destroyed, their stone blocks were often reused in the rebuilding process. Even Babylon's ruins, however, will be unfit for future use. 27–33: Ararat, ancient Urartu, modern Armenia, north of Lake Van. Minni, Manneans living south of Lake Urmia. Ashkenaz, the Scythians. See Gen 8.4; 10.3. All were defeated by the Medes in the early sixth century. 27: Marshal, a military official (Nah 3.17). 28: Prepare, lit., "sanctify"; see 6.4–5n. 30: Become women, see 50.37n.

51.34–44: God will seek vengeance against Babylon for devouring Judah. The Judean exiles, voice their own grievance against Babylon. The lawsuit genre is used for accusations of wrongdoing (e.g., 2.9; 11.20; 12.1). The indictment against Babylon and its king is for war crimes. The theme of Babylon "devouring" Judah (v. 34) recurs throughout this section. That Israel is "devoured" is a common theme (see 10.25; 30.16), but here the image is combined with the mythological image of a deity "swallowing" with a voracious appetite (v. 34; Ps 69.15; Prov 1.12) and with the polemic that Bel, the god of Babylon, has such a voracious appetite (v. 44), but will be forced

³⁶ Therefore thus says the LORD:
I am going to defend your cause and take vengeance for you.
I will dry up her sea
and make her fountain dry; ³⁷ and Babylon shall become a heap of
ruins,
a den of jackals,
an object of horror and of hissing,
without inhabitant.

³⁸ Like lions they shall roar together;
they shall growl like lions' whelps.
³⁹ When they are inflamed, I will set out their drink
and make them drunk, until they become merry
and then sleep a perpetual sleep and never wake, says the LORD.
⁴⁰ I will bring them down like lambs to the
slaughter,
like rams and goats.

⁴¹ How Sheshach^a is taken,
the pride of the whole earth seized!
How Babylon has become an object of horror among the nations!

⁴² The sea has risen over Babylon;
she has been covered by its tumultuous waves.

⁴³ Her cities have become an object of horror,
a land of drought and a desert,
a land in which no one lives,
and through which no mortal passes.

⁴⁴ I will punish Bel in Babylon, and make him disgorge what he has swallowed.
The nations shall no longer stream to him;
the wall of Babylon has fallen.

⁴⁵ Come out of her, my people!
Save your lives, each of you,
from the fierce anger of the LORD!
⁴⁶ Do not be fainthearted or fearful at the rumors heard in the land—
one year one rumor comes,
the next year another,
rumors of violence in the land and of ruler against ruler.

⁴⁷ Assuredly, the days are coming when I will punish the images of Babylon;
her whole land shall be put to shame,
and all her slain shall fall in her midst.

⁴⁸ Then the heavens and the earth,
and all that is in them,
shall shout for joy over Babylon;
for the destroyers shall come against them out of the north,
says the LORD.

⁴⁹ Babylon must fall for the slain of Israel, as the slain of all the earth have fallen because of Babylon.

⁵⁰ You survivors of the sword, go, do not linger!
Remember the LORD in a distant land,
and let Jerusalem come into your mind:

⁵¹ We are put to shame, for we have heard insults;
dishonor has covered our face,
for aliens have come into the holy places of the LORD's house.

⁵² Therefore the time is surely coming, says
the LORD,
when I will punish her idols,

^a Sheshach is a cryptogram for Babel, Babylon

by God to disgorge all he has devoured in conquest; cf. Bel 1–22. ³⁶: Dry up her sea, that is, the mythological enemy, the sea-dragon, representing the power of destructive chaos. Marduk, the patron deity of Babylon, was the hero god who slew the sea-dragon Tiamat, and who himself was depicted as a dragon on murals throughout Babylon. ⁴¹: Sheshach, cryptogram for Babel (Babylon); see v. 1; 25.26n. ⁴²: See v. 36. See also Ps 46.2–3. ⁴⁴: Make him disgorge, lit., “bring out,” leading to what follows; cf. v. 34.

51.45–49: Israel is urged to “come out” as that which is “disgorged” from Babylon. The poetry becomes increasingly cosmic in scope, albeit with localized implications: the defeat of Babylonian hegemony, the liberation of the empire's victims, and the celebration of divine justice. The figure of Babylon continued to symbolize the power of God's great destructive enemy; see Rev 18.2–2.

51.50–58: Babylon's ultimate destruction: 50: Remember . . . distant land, cf. Ps 137.4. 51: Aliens (Heb “zarim”), unlike “strangers” (Heb “gerim,” “sojourners”), are dangerous to the solidarity of the community and

and through all her land
 the wounded shall groan.
⁵³ Though Babylon should mount up to heaven,
 and though she should fortify her strong height,
 from me destroyers would come upon her,
 says the LORD.

⁵⁴ Listen!—a cry from Babylon!
 A great crashing from the land of the Chaldeans!

⁵⁵ For the LORD is laying Babylon waste, and stilling her loud clamor.
 Their waves roar like mighty waters,
 the sound of their clamor resounds;

⁵⁶ for a destroyer has come against her,
 against Babylon;
 her warriors are taken,
 their bows are broken;
 for the LORD is a God of recompense,
 he will repay in full.

⁵⁷ I will make her officials and her sages drunk,
 also her governors, her deputies, and
 her warriors;
 they shall sleep a perpetual sleep and never wake,
 says the King, whose name is the LORD
 of hosts.

⁵⁸ Thus says the LORD of hosts:
 The broad wall of Babylon shall be leveled to the ground, and her high gates

shall be burned with fire.
 The peoples exhaust themselves for
 nothing,
 and the nations weary themselves only for fire.^a

⁵⁹ The word that the prophet Jeremiah commanded Seraiah son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, when he went with King Zedekiah of Judah to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. Seraiah was the quartermaster.

⁶⁰ Jeremiah wrote in a^b scroll all the disasters that would come on Babylon, all these words that are written concerning Babylon. ⁶¹ And Jeremiah said to Seraiah: “When you come to Babylon, see that you read all these words, ⁶² and say, ‘O LORD, you yourself threatened to destroy this place so that neither human beings nor animals shall live in it, and it shall be desolate forever.’ ⁶³ When you finish reading this scroll, tie a stone to it, and throw it into the middle of the Euphrates, ⁶⁴ and say, ‘Thus shall Babylon sink, to rise no more, because of the disasters that I am bringing on her.’”^c

Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

52 Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he began to reign; he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Hamutal daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

^a Gk Syr Compare Hab 2.13: Heb and the nations for fire, and they are weary

^b Or one

^c Gk: Heb on her. And they shall weary themselves threaten its integrity. 53: Mount up to heaven, that is, assert itself against God’s authority; cf. Gen 11.1–9; Isa 14.13.

51.59–64: The scroll thrown into the Euphrates. Another allusion to the shift from oral to written prophecy (see also, 25.1–14; 36.1–32; 45.1). The oracles against Babylon were, according to this account, sealed in a scroll and then taken to the Euphrates by courier and thrown in as a prophetic sign and curse that Babylon would so sink in divine disaster. This action is dated to 594 BCE, the year of the likely aborted revolt against Babylon; see 27.1–28.17n. The emissaries sent by Zedekiah to Babylon here may have been in response to a reaffirmation of treaty support by Zedekiah of his Babylonian overlords. 59: Seraiah son of Neriah, apparently Seraiah was Baruch’s brother; see 32.12. Quartermaster, or perhaps “chief of storage houses,” an appropriate official to send to convince the king of Babylon that no revolt was planned. 64: Thus far are the words of Jeremiah, an additional comment calling attention to the supplementary character of the appendix in ch 52. The book of Jeremiah begins and ends with the phrase the words of Jeremiah (see 1.1).

52.1–34: The fall and looting of Jerusalem. A historical appendix derived from 2 Kings 24.18–25.30, although it includes a reference to three deportations to Babylon (in 598, 587, and 582 BCE) and excludes any mention of Gedaliah’s postwar government (see 40.7; 2 Kings 25.22–26). Verses 1–27 are nearly identical to 2 Kings 24.18–25.21. Verses 28–30 provide statistics regarding the numbers of Judeans taken into exile during ²He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, just as Jehoiakim had done. ³Indeed, Jerusalem and Judah so angered the LORD that he expelled them from his presence.

Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. ⁴And in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem, and they laid siege to it; they built siege-works against it all around. ⁵So the city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. ⁶On the ninth day of the fourth month the famine became so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land. ⁷Then a breach was made in the city wall;^a and all the soldiers fled and went out from the city by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, by the king's garden, though the Chaldeans were all around the city. They went in the direction of the Arabah. ⁸But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho; and all his army was scattered, deserting him. ⁹Then they captured the king, and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, and he passed sentence on him. ¹⁰The king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, and also killed all the officers of Judah at Riblah. ¹¹He put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in fetters, and the king of Babylon took him to Babylon, and put him in prison until the day of his death.

¹²In the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month—which was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon—Nebuzaradan the captain of the bodyguard who served the king of Babylon, entered Jerusalem. ¹³He burned the house of the LORD, the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem; every great house he burned down. ¹⁴All the army of the Chaldeans, who were with the captain of the guard, broke down all the walls around Jerusalem. ¹⁵Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried into exile some of the poorest of the people and the rest of the people who were left in the city and the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon, together with the rest of the artisans. ¹⁶But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left some of the poorest people of the land to be vinedressers and tillers of the soil.

¹⁷The pillars of bronze that were in the house of the LORD, and the stands and the bronze sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces, and carried all the bronze to Babylon. ¹⁸They took away the pots, the shovels, the snuffers, the basins, the ladles, and all the vessels of bronze used in the temple service. ¹⁹The captain of the guard took away the small bowls also, the firepans, the basins, the pots, the lampstands, the ladles, and the bowls for libation, both those of gold and those of silver. ²⁰As for the two pillars, the one sea, the twelve bronze bulls that were under the sea, and the stands,^b which King Solomon had made for the house of the LORD, the bronze of all these vessels was beyond weighing. ²¹As for the pillars, the height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, its circumference was twelve cubits; it was hollow and its thickness was four fingers. ²²Upon it was a capital of bronze; the height of the capital was five cubits; latticework and pomegranates, all of bronze, encircled the top of the capital. And the second pillar had the same, with pomegranates. ²³There were ninety-six pomegranates on the sides; all the pomegranates encircling the latticework numbered one hundred.

^a Heb lacks wall

^b Cn: Heb that were under the stands

the three deportations, figures not recorded elsewhere. Verses 31–34 are excerpted nearly verbatim from 2 Kings 25.27–30. This historical recitation from the Deuteronomistic History makes a fitting ending to the Deuteronomistically edited book of Jeremiah. 1: Zedekiah, the last king of Judah (597–586 BCE). 3: A tragic theological conclusion consistent with the Deuteronomistic perspective; see 2 Kings 23.26–27. 4–11: January 587 to August 586 BCE. On the attempted escape and capture of Zedekiah and his fate, cf. 39.1–10. 6: The fifth month was memorialized in commemoration of the destruction of the Temple; see Zech 7.3,5; 8.19. 17: Pillars of bronze, see 1 Kings 7.15–16. Bronze sea, 1 Kings 7.23–26; 2 Kings 16.17. 22–23: Pomegranates, a particularly important symbol used in Israel's ritual decorations, adorning both priestly wear and Temple furnishings; see Ex 28.33;

²⁴ The captain of the guard took the chief priest Seraiah, the second priest Zephaniah, and the three guardians of the threshold; ²⁵ and from the city he took an officer who had been in command of the soldiers, and seven men of the king's council who were found in the city; the secretary of the commander of the army who mustered the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land who were found inside the city.

²⁶ Then Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. ²⁷ And the king of Babylon struck them down, and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile out of its land.

²⁸ This is the number of the people whom Nebuchadnezzar took into exile: in the seventh year, three thousand twenty-three Judeans; ²⁹ in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar he took into exile from Jerusalem eight hundred thirty-two persons; ³⁰ in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took into exile of the Judeans seven hundred forty-five persons; all the persons were four thousand six hundred.

³¹ In the thirty-seventh year of the exile of King Jehoiachin of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth day of the month, King Evil-merodach of Babylon, in the year he began to reign, showed favor to King Jehoiachin of Judah and brought him out of prison; ³² he spoke kindly to him, and gave him a seat above the seats of the other kings who were with him in Babylon. ³³ So Jehoiachin put aside his prison clothes, and every day of his life he dined regularly at the king's table. ³⁴ For his allowance, a regular daily allowance was given him by the king of Babylon, as long as he lived, up to the day of his death.

29.24–25; 1 Kings 7.18–20, 42. 24: Chief priest, a relatively late title for the principal priest (“head” priest, or “first” priest), alongside his principal assistant, the “second” priest; compare with the term “high priest” (lit., “great” priest) in 2 Kings 12.10; 22.4, 8; Hag 1.1. 27: So Judah went into exile out of its land, the motifs of war and exile frame the book of Jeremiah; see 1.3. 30: On the significance of the third deportation (581 BCE), see 43.1–13. 31–34: The final vignette describes Jehoiachin's release from prison in Babylon (see 22.18n.) in 560 BCE, which the refugee community might have interpreted as an overture of hope; on Jehoiachin, see 22.24–30n. 31: Evil-merodach (562–560 BCE), Babylonian king whose name means “man of Marduk”; see 50.2n.

LAMENTATIONS

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND LOCATION IN CANON

The name Lamentations is a translation of the Greek Threnoi, the Septuagint's title of the book. In the Hebrew Bible the book is named after its initial word, 'E*kah*, "How," as in "How lonely sits the city."

In the Christian canon, Lamentations follows the book of Jeremiah because Jeremiah was traditionally thought to have been the author of Lamentations. Jewish tradition also ascribes the book's authorship to Jeremiah, but in the Hebrew Bible Lamentations is located in the Writings, among the Five Scrolls. It is read liturgically on the Ninth of Av (July–August), the day of public mourning for the destruction of the First Temple by the Babylonians in 586 BCE and of the Second Temple by the Romans in 70 CE. In Christian tradition, readings from Lamentations are part of the Holy Week liturgies. The ascription of authorship to Jeremiah derives from the impetus to ascribe all biblical books to inspired biblical authors. Jeremiah, a prophet who lived during the last days of the kingdom of Judah and prophesied its demise, was an obvious choice for Lamentations. Already by late Second Temple times, he was known for composing laments; 2 Chr 35:25 says that Jeremiah composed laments for the death of King Josiah. Modern scholars do not think that Jeremiah actually wrote Lamentations; like most ancient literature, the author remains anonymous. Most likely, each of the book's chapters was written by a different poet, and they then were joined together to form the book.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The five poems that comprise Lamentations, each with its distinctive tone and theme, lament the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple by the Babylonians (see 2 Kings 25:8–21). This was a major and unprecedented catastrophe, both politically and religiously: Judah ceased to exist as an independent country, and sacrificial worship to God could no longer be performed. The sequence of the chapters is not chronological, and despite the vividness of their descriptions, the poems need not to have been written by eyewitnesses to the events. The book was compiled after 586 BCE and before the end of the sixth century BCE, when the Temple was rebuilt. Because Second Isaiah, whose work is dated to 550–538 BCE, seems to have known at least parts of Lamentations, the book was probably in circulation by the mid-sixth century, but the exact time, place, and reason for its composition are unknown.

GENRE

An ancient Near Eastern tradition of laments over the destruction of cities goes back to the Sumerian laments of the early second millennium BCE (e.g., "Lamentation over the Destruction of Ur," "Lamentation over the Destruction of Sumer and Ur," "Nippur Lament"). Despite the generic similarity, however, we cannot draw a direct line of influence from the Sumerian laments to the book of Lamentations. Moreover, the Sumerian laments were recited on the occasion of the rebuilding of a temple, so their "story" has a happy ending. Not so in the book of Lamentations, where hopes for the rebuilding of the Jerusalem Temple remain unrealized, and God, who is so movingly implored to end his people's suffering and exile and to restore them to their former condition, never responds. The origin and development of laments for Jerusalem remain unknown. Perhaps the unprecedented event of the destruction gave rise to a new genre.

STRUCTURE AND INTERPRETATION

The book's first four poems (chs 1; 2; 3; 4) are alphabetic acrostics, a formal device found elsewhere in the Bible (e.g., Pss 111; 112; 145; Prov 31:10–31), in which each verse or stanza begins with successive letters of the Hebrew alphabet, twenty-two in all. Chapter 3 is a triple acrostic; each stanza has three short verses beginning with the same letter. Chapter 5, although not an acrostic, also contains twenty-two verses. In Lamentations this formal device gives expression to the enormity or totality of the destruction ("from A to Z") and also gives structure and closure to the incomprehensible events and unstructured pain that engulfed Judah and its inhabitants.

The language of the book is highly poetic and extraordinarily moving, so that at times we want to avert our eyes from the violence and suffering described. The experience of warfare, siege, famine, and death are individualized—brave men are reduced to begging, mothers are unable to nourish their children. The national catastrophe is thus made concrete, as society disintegrates and people languish and die or are deported. All of this is addressed to God, so that he may feel the suffering of his people and bring it to an end. The entire book may be thought of as an appeal for God's mercy. Yet God remains silent.

If the book fails to move God, it fulfills another function, that of public mourning which both relives and commemorates a catastrophe of incomprehensible proportion. Lamentations does not create a new theology. It assumes the theology of Deuteronomy, where sin leads to divine punishment and exile (see, e.g., Deut 28). God is responsible for the disaster; the Babylonians are merely divine agents. So, God, whose power is not diminished despite the Temple's destruction, must be the one to end the Babylonian dominance and bring about the return from exile. Repentance, the antidote to sin, is mentioned but is not central—this is not penitential prayer; rather, the idea in Lamentations is that the punishment, even if deserved, is unbearable. The immediacy and magnitude of the punishment drowns out everything else.

Adele Berlin

1 How lonely sits the city that once was full of people!
How like a widow she has become,
she that was great among the nations!
She that was a princess among the provinces has become a vassal.

2 She weeps bitterly in the night,
with tears on her cheeks;
among all her lovers
she has no one to comfort her;
all her friends have dealt treacherously with her,
they have become her enemies.

3 Judah has gone into exile with suffering and hard servitude;
she lives now among the nations,
and finds no resting place;
her pursuers have all overtaken her in the midst of her distress.

4 The roads to Zion mourn,
for no one comes to the festivals;
all her gates are desolate,
her priests groan;

her young girls grieve,^a
and her lot is bitter.

5 Her foes have become the masters,
her enemies prosper,
because the LORD has made her suffer for the multitude of her transgressions;
her children have gone away,
captives before the foe.

6 From daughter Zion has departed all her majesty.
Her princes have become like stags
that find no pasture;
they fled without strength
before the pursuer.

7 Jerusalem remembers,
in the days of her affliction and wandering,
all the precious things
that were hers in days of old.
When her people fell into the hand of the foe,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

1.1–22. Lament over the destroyed Jerusalem. The chapter has two parts, vv. 1–11, the lament of the narrator, and vv. 12–22, the lament of the city. Shame, mourning, and suffering are the main themes. The phrase “no one to comfort her/me” occurs four times (vv. 2,9,17,21; cf. vv. 7,16) and emphasizes unceasing mourning.

1.1–11: The poet laments Jerusalem. Jerusalem, personified as a woman, is widowed, abandoned, and shamed. 1: How, or “woe,” a common beginning of dirges (Isa 1.21; Jer 48.17; Lam 2.1; 4.1). 2: Lovers, Judah's political allies who failed to support her. The term also hints that by taking lovers, Jerusalem was unfaithful to God. 3: Suffering and hard servitude is reminiscent of the Egyptian bondage (Ex 1.14; 2.23; 3.7,17; 4.31; 5.11; 6.6), to which the Babylonian exile is likened. 4: Zion, the eastern hill (also called Ophel) in Jerusalem that was the site of the original Jebusite city (2 Sam 5:6–9), often used as a synonym for Jerusalem (this is a synecdoche, or using a part of something to stand for the whole thing). 6: Daughter Zion, or “Mistress Zion,” a common epithet (e.g., and there was no one to help her,

the foe looked on mocking over her downfall.

⁸ Jerusalem sinned grievously,
so she has become a mockery;
all who honored her despise her,
for they have seen her nakedness;
she herself groans,
and turns her face away.

⁹ Her uncleanness was in her skirts;
she took no thought of her future;
her downfall was appalling,
with none to comfort her.
“O LORD, look at my affliction, for the enemy has triumphed!”

¹⁰ Enemies have stretched out their hands over all her precious things;
she has even seen the nations invade her sanctuary,
those whom you forbade
to enter your congregation.

¹¹ All her people groan
as they search for bread;
they trade their treasures for food
to revive their strength.
Look, O LORD, and see how worthless I have become.

¹² Is it nothing to you,^a all you who pass by?
Look and see
if there is any sorrow like my sorrow,
which was brought upon me,
which the LORD inflicted on the day of his fierce anger.

¹³ From on high he sent fire;
it went deep into my bones;
he spread a net for my feet;
he turned me back;
he has left me stunned,
faint all day long.

¹⁴ My transgressions were bound^a into a yoke;
by his hand they were fastened
together;
they weigh on my neck,
sapping my strength;
the Lord handed me over to those whom I cannot withstand.

¹⁵ The LORD has rejected
all my warriors in the midst of me;
he proclaimed a time against me
to crush my young men;
the Lord has trodden as in a wine press
the virgin daughter Judah.

¹⁶ For these things I weep;
my eyes flow with tears;
for a comforter is far from me,
one to revive my courage;
my children are desolate,
for the enemy has prevailed.

¹⁷ Zion stretches out her hands, but there is no one to comfort her;
the LORD has commanded against
Jacob
that his neighbors should become his
foes;

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

1.15; 2.1; 4.22), meaning “dear little Zion.” 8: Mockery, or “banished.” Nakedness, shame, especially sexual shame (cf. Isa 47.5; Jer 13.22; Ezek 16.37; Nah 3.5). 9: Uncleanness, probably not from menstruation but from sexual impropriety; see Num 5.19. Jerusalem’s sin was unfaithfulness to God, the taking of other “lovers.” 10: Precious things, the Temple treasures looted by the victors (cf. 2 Chr 36.10). The Babylonian invasion is conveyed in sexual terms, as a rape of Jerusalem by someone who had no right of access to her. 11: Jerusalem speaks in the final line, and continues speaking in vv. 12–16 and 18–22.

1.12–22. Jerusalem’s lament. 12: Was brought, the Heb word is much stronger and actually conveys violence (cf. 1 Sam 31.4; Jer 38.19; Judg 19.25). Day . . . anger, like “the day of the LORD,” when God comes in judgment against Judah itself (e.g., Am 5.18). 15: Trodden as in a wine press, crushed so the blood runs out (see Deut 32.14; Isa 63.1–2). Virgin, part of the epithet daughter Judah (compare “daughter Zion and see 1.6n.), Heb “betulah” means a girl of marriageable age. 17: Jacob, a common postexilic term for Judah. Filthy thing, a menstruant, who is ritually impure, not fit to come into contact with holy things and off-limits for sexual relations (see Lev 18.19). Jerusalem’s “lovers” (vv. 2,19) distance themselves from her. The narrator interrupts Jerusalem’s speech, just

Jerusalem has become a filthy thing among them.

¹⁸ The LORD is in the right,
for I have rebelled against his word;
but hear, all you peoples,
and behold my suffering;
my young women and young men have gone into captivity.

¹⁹ I called to my lovers but they deceived me;
my priests and elders perished in the city while seeking food
to revive their strength.

²⁰ See, O LORD, how distressed I am;
my stomach churns,
my heart is wrung within me,
because I have been very rebellious.
In the street the sword bereaves;
in the house it is like death.

²¹ They heard how I was groaning, with no one to comfort me.
All my enemies heard of my trouble;
they are glad that you have done it.
Bring on the day you have announced,
and let them be as I am.

²² Let all their evil doing come before you;
and deal with them
as you have dealt with me

because of all my transgressions;
for my groans are many
and my heart is faint.

2 How the Lord in his anger has humiliated^a daughter Zion!
He has thrown down from heaven to earth
the splendor of Israel;
he has not remembered his footstool
in the day of his anger.

² The Lord has destroyed without mercy
all the dwellings of Jacob;
in his wrath he has broken down
the strongholds of daughter Judah;
he has brought down to the ground in dishonor
the kingdom and its rulers.

³ He has cut down in fierce anger
all the might of Israel;
he has withdrawn his right hand from
them
in the face of the enemy;
he has burned like a flaming fire in Jacob, consuming all around.

⁴ He has bent his bow like an enemy,
with his right hand set like a foe;
he has killed all in whom we took pride in the tent of daughter Zion;
he has poured out his fury like fire.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

as she did his (v. 9c). 18: An admission of sin, but the emphasis is on the suffering. 20: Stomach, better “inner organs,” the seat of emotions. In the street, better “outside,” that is, outside the city walls where the fighting took place. Inside the besieged city the inhabitants were ravaged by famine and disease (see Ezek 7.15). 21: The day you have announced, a day of God’s judgment against the enemies of Jerusalem (cf. v. 12n.; Ob 15). 22: Not simply vindictive revenge, this is a plea to restore the world order in which Israel is safe under God’s protection and its enemies are banished; chs 3 and 4 end similarly. The trope of the destruction of the enemy is common in psalms of lament.

2.1–22: The LORD has become like an enemy. The tone changes from the despair of ch 1 to anger, and the focus shifts from the victim to God, the perpetrator. Many verbs of strong military action portray God as a destroying enemy: e.g., “thrown down,” “destroyed,” “cut down,” “burned,” “bent his bow,” “killed.”

2.1–10: God in his anger battles against Jerusalem, destroying the city and the country of Judah. 1: How, see 1.1n. Humiliated, or “made loathsome.” Daughter Zion, see 1.6n. The splendor of Israel, the Temple, thought of as a link between heaven and earth. That link is now broken and formal ritual access to God is cut off. Footstool, i.e., the ark of the covenant or the Temple. God is envisioned as a king sitting in heaven with his feet touching the Temple (see Ps 132.7; Isa 60.13; Ezek 43.7; 1 Chr 28.2). 3: His right hand, God’s fighting arm and the symbol of his power and protection is intentionally withheld from Judah (Ex 15.6,12; Isa 41.10; Pss 48.10; 89.13; 98.1). 4: Tent, an archaic way of referring to the homes in Judah (cf. Jer 30.18) and to the Temple in Jerusalem (cf. Ps 15.1).

⁵The Lord has become like an enemy;
he has destroyed Israel.
He has destroyed all its palaces, laid in ruins its strongholds, and multiplied in daughter Judah mourning and lamentation.

⁶He has broken down his booth like a garden,
he has destroyed his tabernacle;
the LORD has abolished in Zion festival and sabbath,
and in his fierce indignation has spurned
king and priest.

⁷The Lord has scorned his altar, disowned his sanctuary;
he has delivered into the hand of the enemy
the walls of her palaces;
a clamor was raised in the house of the LORD
as on a day of festival.

⁸The LORD determined to lay in ruins
the wall of daughter Zion;
he stretched the line;
he did not withhold his hand from destroying;
he caused rampart and wall to lament;
they languish together.

⁹Her gates have sunk into the ground;
he has ruined and broken her bars;
her king and princes are among the nations;
guidance is no more,
and her prophets obtain
no vision from the LORD.

¹⁰The elders of daughter Zion sit on the ground in silence;
they have thrown dust on their heads
and put on sackcloth;
the young girls of Jerusalem have bowed their heads to the ground.

¹¹My eyes are spent with weeping;
my stomach churns;
my bile is poured out on the ground because of the destruction of my
people,
because infants and babes faint
in the streets of the city.

¹²They cry to their mothers,
“Where is bread and wine?”
as they faint like the wounded
in the streets of the city,
as their life is poured out on their mothers’ bosom.

¹³What can I say for you, to what compare
you,
O daughter Jerusalem?
To what can I liken you, that I may comfort
you,
O virgin daughter Zion?
For vast as the sea is your ruin;
who can heal you?

¹⁴Your prophets have seen for you false and deceptive visions;
they have not exposed your iniquity to restore your fortunes, but have seen oracles for you
that are false and misleading.

6: His booth, a temporary shelter (Job 27:18; Jon 4.5) and also the Temple (Pss 27:5; 76.2). Like a garden: The Temple was destroyed easily, as if it were a booth or hut in a garden. Tabernacle, the “tent of meeting” (cf. Ex 25.1–31.18) constructed during the Exodus from Egypt, used as a metaphor for the Temple. 7: Clamor, the exultant crowing of the invading and plundering enemy has replaced the joyful sounds of the crowds coming to the Temple on festivals. 8–10: We see the towers, walls, and gates disintegrate. The movement is from top to bottom, ending with the inhabitants sitting on the ground in mourning. 8: Stretched the line. Like an architect, God made a plan for unbuilding the city (cf. 2 Kings 21.13; Isa 34.11; Jer 31.39; Zech 1.16; Job 38.5). 9: Guidance, Heb “torah.” 10: Dust and sackcloth, common rituals of mourning (cf. Gen 37.34; Job 16.15; Neh 9.1).

2.11–19: The narrator’s reaction. 11: The narrator’s words echo those of Jerusalem in 1.20. Stomach, see 1.20n. 11–12: Streets, better “squares,” i.e., broad places near the gates. The babies are starving in public. 12: Where is bread and wine? That is, the stored-up food supplies, the staples. There is no food left anywhere. Bread, lit., “grain.” Bosom, or “lap.” The mothers are holding their children where they should find comfort and nourishment as they starve to death. 13: Virgin daughter Zion, see 1.6n., 1.15n. 14: False and deceptive visions, prophecies

¹⁵ All who pass along the way clap their hands at you;
they hiss and wag their heads
at daughter Jerusalem; “Is this the city that was called the perfection of beauty,
the joy of all the earth?”

¹⁶ All your enemies
open their mouths against you;
they hiss, they gnash their teeth,
they cry: “We have devoured her!
Ah, this is the day we longed for;
at last we have seen it!”

¹⁷ The LORD has done what he purposed, he has carried out his threat;
as he ordained long ago,
he has demolished without pity;
he has made the enemy rejoice over you,
and exalted the might of your foes.

¹⁸ Cry aloud^a to the Lord!
O wall of daughter Zion!
Let tears stream down like a torrent day and night!
Give yourself no rest,
your eyes no respite!

¹⁹ Arise, cry out in the night, at the beginning of the watches!
Pour out your heart like water before the presence of the Lord!

Lift your hands to him
for the lives of your children, who faint for hunger
at the head of every street.

²⁰ Look, O LORD, and consider!
To whom have you done this?
Should women eat their offspring,
the children they have borne?
Should priest and prophet be killed in the sanctuary of the Lord?

²¹ The young and the old are lying on the ground in the streets;
my young women and my young men have fallen by the sword;
in the day of your anger you have killed
them,
slaughtering without mercy.

²² You invited my enemies from all around as if for a day of festival;
and on the day of the anger of the LORD
no one escaped or survived;
those whom I bore and reared my enemy has destroyed.

3 I am one who has seen affliction under the rod of God’s^b wrath;
² he has driven and brought me

^a Cn: Heb Their heart cried

^b Heb his

of deliverance from the Babylonian threat that were unfounded (see Jer 28.1–17; 29.8–9). 15: Clap . . . hiss . . . wag, gestures of surprise and derision. The trope of the passerby witnessing the shame of the victims and reacting with shock is common and provides an additional perspective to that of Zion and the narrator. Perfection of beauty, see Ezek 16.14; 27.3; Ps 50.2; joy of all the earth, see Jer 51.41; Ps 48.2. 16: The enemies mock and taunt the victims, taking credit for Judah’s destruction, which v. 17 ascribes to God. The Babylonians never appear in the book; only Edom is named (4.21). 17: Ordained long ago, the decree that if Judah sinned, the Temple would be destroyed and the people exiled from their land (1 Kings 9.6–9). 18: Wall, the physical city should cry out to God on behalf of its people. 19: Watches, the night was divided into three watches (see Ex 14.24; 1 Sam 11.11; Song 3.1–3; 5.7). Nighttime is when suffering seems hardest to bear and when many prayers are offered, with the expectation that God will respond in the morning (cf. Ps 30.5).

2.20–22: Jerusalem’s address to God. 20: Eat their offspring. Cannibalism was a result of the famine during a siege (4.10; 2 Kings 6.28) and a punishment for violating the covenant (Deut 28.53–57); this is a common trope in describing a siege. It is the reversal of the norm, in which women feed their children. 21: Slaughtering, as if preparing meat for food or sacrifice. The idea continues in the next verse, where God invites the enemies as if for a day of festival when they would participate in a sacrificial meal in the Temple. 22: Day of the anger of the LORD, the time of punishment, like “the day of the LORD,” when God will punish those who deserve it (cf. 1.12; 2.1).

3.1–66: The complaint of a male speaker who describes the deportation into exile. The longest and most complex poem of the book, arranged as a triple acrostic: each stanza has three short verses assigned to each into darkness without any light; ³ against me alone he turns his hand,

 again and again, all day long.

⁴ He has made my flesh and my skin waste
 away,
 and broken my bones;

⁵ he has besieged and enveloped me with bitterness and tribulation;

⁶ he has made me sit in darkness like the dead of long ago.

⁷ He has walled me about so that I cannot escape;

he has put heavy chains on me;

⁸ though I call and cry for help,
 he shuts out my prayer;

⁹ he has blocked my ways with hewn stones,
 he has made my paths crooked.

¹⁰ He is a bear lying in wait for me,
 a lion in hiding;

¹¹ he led me off my way and tore me to pieces;

he has made me desolate;

¹² he bent his bow and set me as a mark for his arrow.

¹³ He shot into my vitals
 the arrows of his quiver;

¹⁴ I have become the laughingstock of all my people,
 the object of their taunt-songs all day
 long.

¹⁵ He has filled me with bitterness, he has sated me with wormwood.

¹⁶ He has made my teeth grind on gravel,

and made me cower in ashes;

¹⁷ my soul is bereft of peace;
 I have forgotten what happiness is;

¹⁸ so I say, "Gone is my glory, and all that I had hoped for from the LORD."

¹⁹ The thought of my affliction and my homelessness
 is wormwood and gall!

²⁰ My soul continually thinks
 of it

and is bowed down within me.

²¹ But this I call to mind,
 and therefore I have hope:

successive letter of the alphabet. The logical subdivisions according to content do not correspond to the alphabetic structure, with the result that the reader is pulled along from one thought to the next and interrupted by a new stanza in midthought. The chapter uses the language of lament and of wisdom or theological reflection on God's punishment and mercy. The mood alternates between despair and hope. The identity of the male speaker has long been debated. Some think he was a historical individual (Jeremiah, Jehoiachin, or Zedekiah have been suggested), but it is preferable to take him as a literary persona, the counterpart of the female city speaking in 1.12–22. He is a Job-like figure, using some phraseology similar to Job's (especially in vv. 1–19; cf. Job 16:7–15), crying out to God from his suffering, trying to make sense of the terrible event, and to provoke God's response. But unlike Job, this speaker is not successful, for God never answers him.

3.1–20: The lament of the male persona, who speaks in the voice of a survivor in exile, or perhaps in the collective voice of the people. Verses 1–13 imagine God as a bad shepherd who leads his flock into dark and dangerous places (exile), in stark contrast to the image of God as a good shepherd (as in Ps 23). 1: I am one, lit., "I am the man." Heb "geber" is clearly masculine although NRSV has stripped it of gender. Rod of God's wrath, the shepherd's rod, normally an instrument of protection, is here the rod with which God punishes, as in Isa 10.5, where Assyria is the rod of God's wrath. 2: Driven and brought, like a flock (cf. Isa 40.11; Ps 78.52–53). 6: Darkness like the dead: Exile is often compared to darkness, prison, and death. In exile the Judeans were cut off from access to God's Temple, like a dead person. The dead of long ago, better, "like the eternally dead," who have no hope of life. 8: He shuts out my prayer, see 3.44n. 10: Bear . . . lion, from being a bad shepherd God changes into the dangerous wild animals from whom the shepherd should protect his flock (cf. 1 Sam 17.34–37). 12–13: Instead of shooting at the wild animals, God shoots at the speaker. God is elsewhere a divine archer who shoots disaster from his bow; cf. Deut 32.23–24; Ps 38.2; Job 16.12–13. 15: Bitterness . . . wormwood, a common symbol of suffering, see 3.19; 4.21; Jer 9.14; Job 9.18. 17: My soul, my being or self.

3.21–24: Despair turns to hope in these transitional verses framed by Therefore I have hope / Therefore I will

²² The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases,^a his mercies never come to an end; ²³ they are new every morning;
 great is your faithfulness.
²⁴ “The LORD is my portion,” says my soul,
 “therefore I will hope in him.”
²⁵ The LORD is good to those who wait for
 him,
 to the soul that seeks him.
²⁶ It is good that one should wait quietly for the salvation of the LORD.
²⁷ It is good for one to bear the yoke in youth,
²⁸ to sit alone in silence
 when the Lord has imposed it, ²⁹ to put one’s mouth to the dust
 (there may yet be hope), ³⁰ to give one’s cheek to the smiter, and be filled with insults.
³¹ For the Lord will not reject forever.
³² Although he causes grief, he will have compassion
 according to the abundance of his
 steadfast love;
³³ for he does not willingly afflict or grieve anyone.
³⁴ When all the prisoners of the land
 are crushed under foot, ³⁵ when human rights are perverted in the presence of the Most High,

³⁶ when one’s case is subverted
 —does the Lord not see it?
³⁷ Who can command and have it done,
 if the Lord has not ordained it?
³⁸ Is it not from the mouth of the Most High
 that good and bad come?
³⁹ Why should any who draw breath complain
 about the punishment of their sins?
⁴⁰ Let us test and examine our ways,
 and return to the LORD.
⁴¹ Let us lift up our hearts as well as our hands
 to God in heaven.
⁴² We have transgressed and rebelled,
 and you have not forgiven.
⁴³ You have wrapped yourself with anger and pursued us,
 killing without pity;
⁴⁴ you have wrapped yourself with a cloud
 so that no prayer can pass through.
⁴⁵ You have made us filth and rubbish among the peoples.
⁴⁶ All our enemies
 have opened their mouths against us; ⁴⁷ panic and pitfall have come upon us, devastation and destruction.
⁴⁸ My eyes flow with rivers of tears

^a Syr Tg: Heb LORD, we are not cut off

hope in Him. 22: Steadfast love . . . mercies . . . faithfulness, attributes of God representing covenant loyalty (Ex 34.6–7; see also 2 Sam 7.15; Ps 89.1–3). 24: My portion, Pss 119.57; 142.5.

3.25–39: Drawing on wisdom thought, the poem finds reasons for hope in the face of suffering. 25–27: Good begins each verse, applied to God and to human patience. Humans must wait for God’s merciful help, and in the meantime accept the burden of their suffering (bear the yoke). 29: Put one’s mouth to the dust, accept God’s discipline submissively (cf. Mic 7.17; Ps 72.9). 30: Isa 50.6. 33: Willingly, better “deliberately” (lit., “from his heart”). God does not mete out punishment capriciously. 34–39: Standard biblical theology: all is ordained by God, who is the source of both good and evil (cf. Job 2.10; Isa 45.7); punishment received is punishment deserved.

3.40–47: Communal lament. The discourse shifts back to lament, although now in the first-person plural with direct address to God. At the beginning the tone is conciliatory, but then becomes accusatory. 40–41: As if persuaded by 3.25–29, the speakers call for self-examination, repentance, and contrition. 41: Lift up our hearts as well as our hands, a call for sincerity in repentance, not merely going through the motions of prayer. 42–44: A devastating turning point: confession of sin does not bring forgiveness. 44: Wrapped yourself with a cloud, the cloud through which God revealed himself at Sinai (Ex 19.16), and which protects the people from fatal direct contact with the divine, is here perceived as a barrier that God erected to prevent prayer from reaching him; cf. 3.8.

because of the destruction of my
people.

- ⁴⁹ My eyes will flow without ceasing,
without respite,
⁵⁰ until the LORD from heaven looks down and sees.
⁵¹ My eyes cause me grief at the fate of all the young women in my city.
- ⁵² Those who were my enemies without cause
have hunted me like a bird; ⁵³ they flung me alive into a pit and hurled stones on me; ⁵⁴ water closed over my head;
I said, "I am lost."
- ⁵⁵ I called on your name, O LORD,
from the depths of the pit;
⁵⁶ you heard my plea, "Do not close your ear to my cry for help, but give me relief!" ⁵⁷ You came near when I called on you;
you said, "Do not fear!"
- ⁵⁸ You have taken up my cause, O Lord,
you have redeemed my life.
⁵⁹ You have seen the wrong done to me,
O LORD;
judge my cause.

⁶⁰ You have seen all their malice,
all their plots against me.

- ⁶¹ You have heard their taunts, O LORD,
all their plots against me.
⁶² The whispers and murmurs of my assailants
are against me all day long.
⁶³ Whether they sit or rise—see,
I am the object of their taunt-songs.
- ⁶⁴ Pay them back for their deeds,
O LORD,
according to the work of their hands!
⁶⁵ Give them anguish of heart;
your curse be on them!
⁶⁶ Pursue them in anger and destroy them from under the LORD's heavens.

4 How the gold has grown dim,
how the pure gold is changed!
The sacred stones lie scattered
at the head of every street.

² The precious children of Zion, worth their weight in fine gold—
how they are reckoned as earthen pots,
the work of a potter's hands!

³ Even the jackals offer the breast and nurse their young,

3.48–66: Individual lament. The first-person singular "I" returns, emphasizing the personal dimension of the suffering. 53: Pit, a cistern for holding water or for imprisoning people (cf. Jer 38.6), and also the grave or the nether-world (Sheol; cf. Isa 14.15; Pss 30.3; 88.4). 54: Water closed over my head, the water in the cistern, but also a metaphor for desperation (see Jon 2.6–7; 2 Sam 22.5–6 = Ps 18.4–5). 55–56: Ps 130.1–2. 56: The verbs in the past tense here and in the following verses probably express a wish for the future. 57: Do not fear, the words of an oracle of assurance; see Gen 15.1; Isa 41.14; 43.5. 58–60: Legal language. The poet casts himself as a plaintiff in court where God will judge him innocent and the enemy guilty (cf. 3.34–36). 63: Whether they sit or rise, whatever they do, at all times. 64–66: A call for retribution; see 1.22. 66: From under the LORD's heavens, there is no place in God's world for the wicked.

4.1–22: The community under siege in Jerusalem. The physical and social effects of starvation are graphically described. The progression is realistic: first the children are affected and then the adults. Degradation and debasement is the main theme; those once well-off are now destitute, those once healthy are dying or dead. The "before" and the "after," is achieved by the contrast in color, as the rich palette of the colors of wealth and health (gold, scarlet, white, red, sapphire in vv. 1,2,5,7,8) is drained away to blackness. Heat is another dimension, the unrelenting heat of the summer siege, the dry and blackened skin (v. 8), the parched mouths (v. 4), God's burning anger setting fire to Zion (v. 11). There is no shade, no protection provided by God or the king (v. 20). Like chs 1 and 2, this chapter contains a single alphabetic acrostic and opens with the word How (see 1.1n).

4.1–10: The suffering of the siege. 1: Sacred stones, or gems, and gold, though appearing to be literal, are metaphors for the children (v. 2). 2: Zion, see 1.4n. Earthen pots were cheap and easily broken and discarded, while gold was an expensive and durable material. The children are likened to throwaway objects because no one can care for them. 3: Jackals, considered despicable scavengers. Ostriches, thought to be cruel and

but my people has become cruel, like the ostriches in the wilderness.

⁴The tongue of the infant sticks to the roof of its mouth for thirst;
the children beg for food,
but no one gives them anything.

⁵Those who feasted on delicacies perish in the streets;
those who were brought up in purple cling to ash heaps.

⁶For the chastisement^a of my people has been greater than the punishment^b of Sodom,
which was overthrown in a moment,
though no hand was laid on it.^c

⁷Her princes were purer than snow, whiter than milk;
their bodies were more ruddy than coral,
their hair^c like sapphire.^d

⁸Now their visage is blacker than soot;
they are not recognized in the streets.
Their skin has shriveled on their bones;
it has become as dry as wood.

⁹Happier were those pierced by the
sword
than those pierced by hunger, whose life drains away, deprived of the produce of the field.

¹⁰The hands of compassionate women have boiled their own children;
they became their food
in the destruction of my people.

¹¹The LORD gave full vent to his wrath;
he poured out his hot anger,
and kindled a fire in Zion that consumed its foundations.

¹²The kings of the earth did not believe,
nor did any of the inhabitants of the
world,
that foe or enemy could enter
the gates of Jerusalem.

¹³It was for the sins of her prophets and the iniquities of her priests, who shed the blood of the righteous
in the midst of her.

¹⁴Blindly they wandered through the streets,
so defiled with blood
that no one was able to touch their garments.

¹⁵“Away! Unclean!” people shouted at
them;
“Away! Away! Do not touch!”
So they became fugitives and wanderers;
it was said among the nations,
“They shall stay here no longer.”

¹⁶The LORD himself has scattered them, he will regard them no more;
no honor was shown to the priests,
no favor to the elders.

^a Or iniquity

^b Or sin

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Or lapis lazuli

neglectful parents (cf. Job 39.13–18). My people has become cruel, not willingly but from desperation; they are no longer able to care for their children. 4: The tongue . . . sticks to the roof of the mouth, an expression meaning that no sound is uttered (Ezek 3.26; Ps 137.6; Job 29.10). The children are too weak even to cry. 5: Purple, better “crimson” (cf. Isa 1.18). 6: Sodom, whose punishment was legendary (Gen 19.24–25), was overthrown in an instant, whereas Jerusalem was made to suffer long agony. 7–8: The bright colors associated with vigor have turned to black; now people are dried up. 10: See 2.20n.

4.11–16: God’s wrathful punishment. 12: The Judean belief in the inviolability of Zion, that God would never permit his city to be destroyed (see Pss 46.5; 48.3–8), is here attributed even to foreigners, a creative use of the “passersby” trope (see 2.15n). 13–14: Priests . . . prophets, those most associated with purity and visions are described as the most blind and defiled. 15: Away! Unclean! The public warning that lepers must give so that no one will come in contact with them (Lev 13.45–46).

17 Our eyes failed, ever watching vainly for help;
we were watching eagerly
for a nation that could not save.

18 They dogged our steps so that we could not walk in our
streets;
our end drew near; our days were numbered;
for our end had come.

19 Our pursuers were swifter than the eagles in the heavens;
they chased us on the mountains,
they lay in wait for us in the wilderness.

20 The LORD's anointed, the breath of our life,
was taken in their pits—
the one of whom we said, "Under his shadow
we shall live among the nations."

21 Rejoice and be glad, O daughter Edom, you that live in the land of Uz;
but to you also the cup shall pass;

you shall become drunk and strip yourself bare.

22 The punishment of your iniquity,
O daughter Zion, is accomplished,
he will keep you in exile no longer;
but your iniquity, O daughter Edom, he will punish,
he will uncover your sins.

5 Remember, O LORD, what has befallen us;
look, and see our disgrace!

² Our inheritance has been turned over to strangers,
our homes to aliens.

³ We have become orphans, fatherless;
our mothers are like widows.

⁴ We must pay for the water we drink;
the wood we get must be bought.

⁵ With a yoke^a on our necks we are hard driven;
we are weary, we are given no rest.

⁶ We have made a pact with^b Egypt and Assyria,

^a Symmachus: Heb lacks With a yoke

^b Heb have given the hand to

4.17–22: The voice of the community. As in 3.40–47, the speaker is “we,” describing the final days of the siege and the fall of Jerusalem. 17: For a nation that could not save, most likely Egypt, the major power opposed to Babylonia (see Jer 37.5–10; Isa 30.7). Contrary to what prophets like Jeremiah advised, Judah relied on help from another nation, not from God. 19: Perhaps an allusion to the aftermath of the fall of Jerusalem, when Zedekiah and his soldiers fled the city and were pursued and captured by the Babylonian army (2 Kings 25.4–5). 20: The LORD's anointed, the breath of our life, . . . under his shadow, royal epithets (1 Sam 24.7; 2 Sam 1.14,16). The reference is likely to Zedekiah, the last king of Judah, whose defeat signals the failure of the Davidic dynasty to protect the people. 21–22: A curse on Edom, a neighbor of Judah who was a vassal to Babylonia. Edom is often singled out for negative comment in postexilic literature (Ezek 35; Ob 11; Ps 137.7). Edom is synonymous with Esau (Gen 36.1) and therefore the traditional enemy or rival of Jacob/Israel (=Judah); cf. Mal 1.2–5. 21: Rejoice and be glad, an ironic statement. Daughter Edom, an epithet parallel to Daughter Zion (see 1.6n.). Uz, a region in southern Jordan or northwestern Arabia, often connected with Edom (Gen 36.28; Jer 25.20; Job 1.1; 1 Chr 1.42). The cup, of God's wrath (see 3.15; Jer 25.15–29; 49.12; 51.7; Hab 2.15–16), which will make Edom drunk. Strip yourself bare, expose your nakedness and be shamed as Jerusalem was (1.8–10). 22: The most hopeful sentiment in the book (cf. Joel 3).

5.1–22: A prayer of the survivors in Judah in the aftermath of the destruction. A call to God to notice the abject state of his people in Judah and to restore them to their previous condition. The chapter resembles communal laments and also penitential prayers of the Second Temple period. 1: The plea to God to remember is framed by Why have you forgotten in v. 20. Remember means “to pay mind to” and forget means “to ignore.” 2–3: The breakdown of the institution of the family. 2: Our inheritance, ancestral land was to be kept within the family. Here the reference may be to individual real estate or to the country as a whole. Strangers, those outside the family. Aliens, foreigners. 3: Fatherless, an orphan is a person without a father. Widows and orphans are defenseless and required special protection (e.g., Isa 1.23; Ps 68.5). 4–5: Harsh economic conditions; rampant inflation. Water and wood are basic necessities. 6: Egypt and Assyria, traditional superpowers and enemy-invaders

- to get enough bread.
- ⁷ Our ancestors sinned; they are no more,
and we bear their iniquities.
- ⁸ Slaves rule over us;
there is no one to deliver us from their
hand.
- ⁹ We get our bread at the peril of our lives,
because of the sword in the wilderness.
- ¹⁰ Our skin is black as an oven from the scorching heat of famine.
- ¹¹ Women are raped in Zion, virgins in the towns of Judah.
- ¹² Princes are hung up by their hands;
no respect is shown to the elders.
- ¹³ Young men are compelled to grind,
and boys stagger under loads of wood.
- ¹⁴ The old men have left the city gate,
the young men their music.
- ¹⁵ The joy of our hearts has ceased;
our dancing has been turned to mourning.
- ¹⁶ The crown has fallen from our head;
woe to us, for we have sinned!
- ¹⁷ Because of this our hearts are sick, because of these things our eyes have grown dim:
- ¹⁸ because of Mount Zion, which lies desolate;
jackals prowl over it.
- ¹⁹ But you, O LORD, reign forever;
your throne endures to all generations.
- ²⁰ Why have you forgotten us completely?
Why have you forsaken us these many
days?
- ²¹ Restore us to yourself, O LORD, that we may be restored;
renew our days as of old—
- ²² unless you have utterly rejected us, and are angry with us beyond
measure.

of Israel, are often found in parallelism even when, as in this period, Assyria was long gone (Isa 52.4; Zech 10.10–11). 7: Iniquities also means “punishment.” Earlier sinful generations did not suffer punishment like the current generation. Did the current generation also see itself as sinful and deserving of punishment, or did they think they are paying unfairly for the sins of their ancestors? The verse is ambiguous. 8: Slaves rule over us, previously Judah was ruled by its own king but now it is governed by the lackeys of the Babylonian king (cf. 2 Kings 25.24). 9: Food is scarce. The sword in the wilderness, a difficult phrase which may mean that scavenging in the countryside was dangerous because of marauders. Alternatively, it is a metaphor for the dehydration and starvation of the inhabitants of Judah, who suffer famine that resembles the famine of the siege (v. 10 and cf. 4.8). 11–14: Social order has disintegrated; violence and indignity abound. Women are shamed sexually; leaders are shamed publicly; young and old are denied their proper calling and subjected to abusive labor. 12: Hung up, impalement of corpses was a form of public shaming (Deut 21.22; Josh 10.26–27; 1 Sam 31.10). By their hands, probably meaning by the hands of the enemy (see v. 8), since victims were not generally hung by their hands. A better interpretation may be that this is not a form of execution or corpse display, but a form of torture and humiliation of the living, like putting a person in the stocks. 13: To grind, a task normally done by women (Ex 11.5; Isa 47.2; Job 31.10) or slaves (Judg 16.21) and therefore demeaning if undertaken by a man. The Hebrew is “pull the millstone,” which may refer to a large milling operation in which a donkey would normally pull the heavy millstone, making this line parallel in meaning to the next one. Boys stagger under loads of wood, humans are made to do the work of animals, beasts of burden. 14: City gate, the location of business and legal transactions (Ruth 4.1; Job 29.7). 16: The crown, the emblem of kingship, the Davidic dynasty, or perhaps the crenellated walls of the city. We have sinned, an admission of guilt (cf. 3.42 and 5.7n). 18: Mount Zion, see 1.4n. Jackals, or “foxes,” proverbial inhabitants of ruined cities (see 4.3; Ezek 13.4; Isa 34.11–17; Zeph 2.13–15). 19: A strong theological statement: Even though God’s earthly throne, the Temple, lies in ruins, God continues to reign forever. 21: A wish that Israel’s former relationship with God be reinstated. 22: The book ends in tragic despair, with the suggestion that God’s rejection of the people continues. Unless is difficult in the Hebrew; perhaps it is better translated “but instead,” or even more literally, “for if,” suggesting that the conclusion of the conditional clause has been withheld, thus perpetuating indefinitely the divine rejection with which the book ends.

EZEKIEL

NAME

The book is named for the prophet to whom it is attributed. His name, “Ezekiel,” means “God strengthens.” God’s strengthening turns out to be imperative for Ezekiel, whose rebellious audience is characterized by ingrained defiance and stubbornness; see 2.5n. (“rebellious house”); 3.8–9n. (“hard”).

LOCATION IN CANON

Ezekiel is the last of the three major prophets, the others being Isaiah and Jeremiah. Their books are arranged in presumed chronological order: the first part of the book of Isaiah focuses on the prophet Isaiah’s ministry in Jerusalem in the late eighth century BCE; the prophet Jeremiah was active in the late seventh and early sixth centuries; and Ezekiel’s prophecies follow those of Jeremiah, his older contemporary. (In Christian canons, following the order of the Septuagint [LXX], Lamentations comes between Jeremiah and Ezekiel.) According to the Talmud and in some manuscripts there was another order for the major prophets, in which Ezekiel’s combined message of judgment and salvation appears between Jeremiah’s predominant tone of sorrow and Isaiah’s emphatic promises.

AUTHORSHIP

The only information we have about the prophet comes from the book itself. In this collection, God’s divine prerogative overshadows and submerges the prophetic personality. Since Ezekiel is a literary character within his own prophecies, his shocking and mystifying actions must often be interpreted in a highly symbolic and theological manner, not necessarily as a window into the prophet’s actual personality.

Some facts seem established. Ezekiel was a Judean exile in Babylonia, living in the deportee settlement of Tel-abib (see 3.15n.). His prophetic career stretched from 593 to at least 571 BCE. The prophet and his school—the followers who edited and preserved his prophecies—were members of a lineage of priests in Israel known as the Zadokites (see 1.1–3n.; 44.15–31n.).

At the time of Ezekiel’s exile, the Zadokites controlled the Israelite high priesthood and held power at the Jerusalem Temple. They took a specific priestly theology with them into exile, preserved elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible as a source of the Pentateuch known as the “Holiness School.” The priestly theology of the Holiness School thoroughly infuses the book of Ezekiel.

DATE OF COMPOSITION AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Ezekiel wrote his prophecies, and his followers edited, expanded, and preserved them, in the sixth century BCE in Babylonia, during the exile of the Judeans from their homeland. The Exile thus forms the historical context of the book, and at several points, particularly in the allegory in 17.1–24, Ezekiel refers to the Babylonian subjugation of Judah.

The Babylonians under Nebuchadnezzar II (r. 605–562 BCE) defeated the Egyptians in 605 at the battle of Carchemish. The Egyptians had allied with the great Assyrian empire, which the Babylonians destroyed between 614 and 609. Although these victories made Babylonia the leading political power in Syria-Palestine, including the territory of Judah, the Judeans, often acting in concert with other neighboring states, eventually rebelled. The Babylonians, in an escalating response to the continued efforts of the Judeans to throw them off, exiled the Judeans in two phases, spaced about a decade apart. They first besieged Jerusalem in 597 during the reign of King Jehoiakim, who died during the siege. When his successor, his son Jehoiachin, surrendered to the Babylonians, he, along with many of the Judean ruling class, was exiled to Babylon. The Babylonians installed a puppet king, Zedekiah; when he, too, attempted to rebel, they destroyed Jerusalem and the Temple in 586, and exiled about twenty-five percent of the population, mostly the wealthy, skilled, and educated, to Babylonia. (A third deportation is reported in 581.)

Ezekiel was among the first group of exiles, taken to Babylonia in 597. Even so, he remained well informed about events in Judah, and his prophecies concern both the exiles and those who remained in Judah. He could address both communities as a single entity, since they were in frequent contact with each other, and both were passionately concerned about the fate of Jerusalem. Neither group accepted Ezekiel's indictment of their guilt or believed his prophecies about Jerusalem's coming destruction. After the destruction took place, the prophet's words turned to themes of renewed hope, regeneration, and blessing.

LITERARY HISTORY

The prophet and his followers composed the book in writing and preserved it for the specific purpose of instructing readers at a later time. The written composition and the careful preservation of Ezekiel contrast with much of the other prophetic literature in the Bible, which was spoken directly to a contemporaneous audience. Many of the words of prophets, such as Isaiah, were written down only a considerable time after they had been spoken; therefore they could be, and often were, modified to adapt them to situations that arose in later times. In Ezekiel, however, there are clear indications of an originally written composition and of an early intention to preserve the text. For instance, the thoroughgoing chronological notations show that Ezekiel and his followers took great care to demonstrate the timeliness and veracity of Ezekiel's oracles, and thereby their authority as prophecy. Ezekiel's character as a literary text also makes it a complex book to read and interpret. Much of the other prophetic material of the Bible, as oral literature, generally uses less elaborate forms; Ezekiel, however, is made up of intricate, deliberately composed literary creations. Although some scholars have viewed such literary ornamentation and intricacy as indicating confused layers of literary growth, more recently scholars have argued for literary integrity in the texts, even when the final form has resulted from a process of transmission and editing. This care for the written text and its accurate transmission, as well as for the preservation of authoritative traditions such as the Holiness School material (see Interpretation), mark a breakthrough in the development of written scripture in Israel, and therefore help us to understand the historical processes that created the biblical canon over the centuries.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The book of Ezekiel is complex, but fortunately its organization and outline are agreeably simple. Chapters 1–24 are set before the fall of Jerusalem and are largely prophecies of doom against the city and against Judah. An extended body of material on Ezekiel's call to prophesy begins this section in chs 1–3. Chapters 25–32 are prophecies against foreign nations, forming a bridge between Ezekiel's initial message of doom and his ultimate message of hope. The hope comes in the prophecies of restoration, chs 33–48, dating from the time after Jerusalem's fall. Clearly the capture and destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE was the critical moment in Ezekiel's prophetic career. The prophecies of restoration include an apocalyptic passage (chs 38–39) and an extended utopian vision of a restored Temple and land (chs 40–48).

The prophecies in the book of Ezekiel are among the most fascinating and puzzling writings in the Bible. The prophet expresses his thought through a variety of literary forms, including symbolic action reports, visions, allegories, denunciations, and legal arguments. He sometimes uses bizarre or extreme imagery and elaborates it to an almost excessive point. He has inspired fear, awe, and wonder in readers because he attempts not merely to name but also to embody God's sovereignty, holiness, and mystery in words that come close to the limits of expression.

The style of Ezekiel does not always render reality by direct representation. Instead, it probes behind or beyond observable things and events, using metaphors and mythic poetry to portray the underlying structure of existence or the transcendent realities beneath both plain sensory observation and historical records. The visions in Ezekiel show both inner and outer realities, going beyond or abolishing normal sensory and temporal bounds.

Because of these literary qualities, reading Ezekiel requires a sophisticated approach, in order to avoid mistaking some of the descriptions for historical events, observable behaviors, or factual reports. For example, some interpretations of Ezekiel's behavior take it as evidence of a disoriented or abnormal personality. But the descriptions of these acts—such as muteness (3.22–27), holding prolonged, agonizing postures (4.4–8), and a failure to mourn (24.15–27)—are not evidence of psychological illness but are instead literary images that have rich theological import. The book portrays Ezekiel engaging in bizarre and disturbing behavior in order to provoke recollection of preceding scripture and intense theological reflection. A profound reorientation in the relationship of God and Israel is imminent, the authors believe, and they ask their audience to detect radical implications for life and faith in the metaphorical and parabolic character of their descriptions.

INTERPRETATION

Ezekiel and his editors were Jerusalem priests at the center of Judean society, whose traditions emphasized God's tangible dwelling in Jerusalem's Temple as his home, and the protection and sanctification of God's people that resulted from this divine presence. The exile of the Judean elite and the destruction of Jerusalem directly challenged this theology, since they called into question God's promises to dwell among the Israelites and be their God (Ex 29.45–46). Ezekiel answered these challenges with cosmic, eschatological, and apocalyptic visions of a rebuilt Israel that will fulfill God's promises despite the fall of the earthly Jerusalem (see 1.22–25n., 26–28n.; 37.28n.; 38.12n.; 43.7n.; 48.35n.). In these visions particularly, Ezekiel anticipated much that was yet to come in the biblical writings, including later developments of apocalypticism (see especially Dan 7–12 and, in the New Testament, the book of Revelation).

The specific language and laws of the priests and the traditions of the Temple heavily influenced Ezekiel as a Zadokite. A significant body of these traditions, the "Holiness School" (HS), can be found in the Pentateuch. The Holiness School material extends beyond the confines of Lev 17–26 (known as the "Holiness Code" or "Holiness Collection"), and includes other parts of the Pentateuch often identified as belonging to the Priestly source (P). The relationship between God and Israel assumed by the Holiness School is that of a vassal covenant (see Lev 26.9,15,25), a type of agreement in which guarantees on one side are specifically linked to responsibilities on the other, with significant sanctions if the responsibilities of vassalage are not met. For Ezekiel, this covenant form proved invaluable in interpreting the Exile, since it allowed for the possibility that defilement, injustice, and covenant infidelity on Israel's part could lead to punishments, including exile, without annulling God's eternal promises to Israel (Lev 26.42).

In his allegory of the unfaithful wife (ch 16), the prophet rehearses the failed history of the Israelites' vassal covenant with God. As in a marriage, with all its mutual obligations, God "pledged myself to you and entered into a covenant with you" (16.8). Because Jerusalem proved an adulterous wife, however, God determines to divorce her and expose her to be stoned (16.40; cf. Lev 20.10 [HS]). Jerusalem is doomed, because the people have "despised the oath, breaking the covenant" (16.59; cf. 17.19).

For the Holiness School, God's land is a delicately organized structure of holiness, subject to overthrow through the spread of uncleanness and bloodshed. It is like an uneasy stomach, ready to vomit out those who defile it (Lev 18.24–28). Ezekiel, in 36.16–19, insists that just such regurgitation has now happened. The land has fallen victim to defilement, and God's people have lost possession of it just as the Holiness School warned they would. Defiling any part of the land, God's holy territory, constitutes an assault of impurity on God's shrine (Lev 15.31; 19.30; 26.2; Num 5.3; 19.13; Ezek 8.6; 9.9). If the pollution of the sanctuary becomes willful and chronic, it will eventually force out God's glory (Num 35.34; Ezek 10.19; 11.22–23). Exposed to catastrophic judgment, the people become cut off (Ezek 37.11).

Despite Israel's lack of obedience to the covenant, Ezekiel prophesies a renewed covenantal relationship after the Exile (14.11; 16.60,62). God will guarantee this new vassal covenant's success by transplanting new obedient hearts into the people (11.19–20; 16.60; 36.26–28; 37.23–27). Under God's new plan, the people will "follow my statutes and keep my ordinances and obey them. Then they shall be my people, and I will be their God" (11.20; cf. 36.27; Lev 26.12 [HS]).

The Holiness School stresses the unique sacredness of the people and land of Israel, in the midst of which dwells the glory of the LORD, God's embodied presence. This sacredness includes not only ritual and worship but also morality and social justice. The tangible dwelling of God's glory in the Temple at the center of Israel brings sanctity to all people and groups arrayed around it. It means the realization of Lev 20.26, where God proclaims: "You shall be holy to me; for I the LORD am holy, and I have separated you from the other peoples to be mine."

Since Israel is so intimately associated with God in this theology, the people must constantly grow in personal and collective holiness through their interaction with the divine presence (Ezek 11.12; 20.12; 37.28; Lev 11.44–45; 19.2; 20.7,26 [HS]). God's people, in Ezekiel's ideal world, emulate the holiness of God that sojourns in their midst (37.27; 43.9; cf. Ex 25.8; 29.45–46; 40.34; Lev 26.11; Num 5.3; 35.34 [HS]). From the midst of Israel, God radiates the divine holiness out to the entire land and to every sector of society (37.28; cf. Ex 31.13; Lev 21.15,23; 22.32 [HS]).

1 In the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I was among the exiles by the river Chebar, the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. ²On the fifth day of the month (it was the fifth year of the exile of King Jehoiachin), ³the word of the LORD came to the priest Ezekiel son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar; and the hand of the LORD was on him there.

⁴As I looked, a stormy wind came out of the north: a great cloud with brightness around it and fire flashing forth continually, and in the middle of the fire, something like gleaming amber. ⁵In the middle of it was something like four living creatures. This was their appearance: they were of human form. ⁶Each had four faces, and each of them had four wings. ⁷Their legs were straight, and the soles of their feet were like the sole of a calf's foot; and they sparkled like burnished bronze. ⁸Under their wings on their four sides they had human hands. And the four had their faces and their wings thus: ⁹their wings touched one another; each of them moved straight ahead, without turning as they moved. ¹⁰As for the appearance of their faces: the four had the face of a human being, the face of a lion on the right side, the face of an ox on the left side, and the face of an eagle; ¹¹such were their faces. Their wings were spread out above; each creature had two wings, each of which touched the wing of another, while two covered their bodies. ¹²Each moved straight ahead; wherever the spirit would go, they went, without turning as they went. ¹³In the middle of^a the living creatures there was something that looked like burning coals of fire, like torches moving to and fro among the living creatures; the fire was bright, and lightning issued from the fire. ¹⁴The living creatures darted to and fro, like a flash of lightning.

¹⁵As I looked at the living creatures, I saw a wheel on the earth beside the living creatures, one for each of the four of them.^b ¹⁶As for the appearance of the wheels and their construction: their appearance was like the gleaming of beryl; and the four had

^a Gk OL: Heb And the appearance of

^b Heb of their faces

1.1–3.27: The call of Ezekiel. 1.1–3: Superscription. The thirtieth year, probably Ezekiel's own age, the age for assuming his duties at the Temple (Num 4.3 [HS]). Fifth day, July 31, 593 BCE. The last date in the book (40.1) is 573, so Ezekiel's career fits the normal twenty-year span of a priest's active service (Num 4.3,23,30 [HS]). Chebar, a canal near Nippur mentioned also in fifth-century Babylonian documents. Exile of King Jehoiachin, see 2 Kings 24.6–17. 3: Ezekiel was a Zadokite priest (4.5–6n.; 44.15–31n.), steeped in the traditions of the Holiness School (see Introduction). Despite being a deportee, he never lost his priestly identity (cf. 43.12n.). The name Ezekiel means "God strengthens." Chaldeans, Babylonians. Hand of the LORD (3.14,22; 8.1; 33.22; 37.1; 40.1), Ezekiel will undergo the same divine compulsions and ecstatic trances experienced by Israel's early prophets, such as Elijah and Elisha (1 Kings 18.46; 2 Kings 3.15).

1.4–28a: The throne-chariot vision. The first two-thirds of Ezekiel's vision describes the creatures and wheels below the platform supporting God's throne. The throne-chariot's form reveals a graduated, spatial system of layered sanctity with wheels, heavenly creatures, and a crystalline expanse separating the prophet from the divine presence. 4: Brightness . . . fire flashing forth continually, as in the Holiness School, a brilliant, fiery radiance surrounds God (Ex 24.17; 40.38; Num 16.35, all HS). Something like, Ezekiel struggles to find words to express transcendent otherness. Gleaming amber (Heb "hashmal"), perhaps molten metal, is language about pure preternatural substance that has intrigued interpreters for centuries (see also 1.27; 8.2). Traditions in the Talmud play with translations such as "living fire" and "silent speaking." 5–14: The living creatures are cherubim (10.15,20), guardians of God's throne (see Ex 25.18–22; 1 Kings 6.23–28). In ancient Near Eastern art they are winged, human-headed lions or bulls exhibiting mobility, intelligence, and strength. Such hybrid creatures often guarded entrances to ancient temples and palaces. These creatures have four faces (v. 10), adding the lordly eagle, since square configurations symbolize holiness and cosmic totality in Ezekiel's book (cf. 40.47n.; 41.4; 43.16; 48.20). 13: Torches, cf. Gen 15.17. 15–21: The four . . . wheels (cf. the four faces of the creatures) represent a cosmic reality lying behind earthly wheels in the Temple (1 Kings 7.27–39) or associated with the ark (2 Sam 6.3–7). The appearance of the wheels in Babylonia means that the cosmic throne of God has limitless, omnidirectional mobility and is not tied down to earthly Jerusalem, which is about to be judged and destroyed. See the same form, their construction being something like a wheel within a wheel.

¹⁷ When they moved, they moved in any of the four directions without veering as they moved. ¹⁸ Their rims were tall and awesome, for the rims of all four were full of eyes all around. ¹⁹ When the living creatures moved, the wheels moved beside them; and when the living creatures rose from the earth, the wheels rose. ²⁰ Wherever the spirit would go, they went, and the wheels rose along with them; for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels. ²¹ When they moved, the others moved; when they stopped, the others stopped; and when they rose from the earth, the wheels rose along with them; for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

²² Over the heads of the living creatures there was something like a dome, shining like crystal,^a spread out above their heads. ²³ Under the dome their wings were stretched out straight, one toward another; and each of the creatures had two wings covering its body.

²⁴ When they moved, I heard the sound of their wings like the sound of mighty waters, like the thunder of the Almighty,^b a sound of tumult like the sound of an army; when they stopped, they let down their wings. ²⁵ And there came a voice from above the dome over their heads; when they stopped, they let down their wings.

²⁶ And above the dome over their heads there was something like a throne, in appearance like sapphire;^c and seated above the likeness of a throne was something that seemed like a human form. ²⁷ Upward from what appeared like the loins I saw something like gleaming amber, something that looked like fire enclosed all around; and downward from what looked like the loins I saw something that looked like fire, and there was a splendor all around. ²⁸ Like the bow in a cloud on a rainy day, such was the appearance of the splendor all around. This was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD.

When I saw it, I fell on my face, and I heard the voice of someone speaking.

2 He said to me: O mortal,^d stand up on your feet, and I will speak with you. ² And when he spoke to me, a spirit entered into me and set me on my feet; and I heard him speaking to me. ³ He said to me, Mortal, I am sending you to the people of Israel, to a nation^e of rebels who have rebelled against me; they and their ancestors have transgressed against me to this very day. ⁴ The descendants are impudent and stubborn. I am sending you to them, and you shall say to them, "Thus

^a Gk: Heb like the awesome crystal

^b Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^c Or lapis lazuli

^d Or son of man; Heb ben adam (and so throughout the book when Ezekiel is addressed)

^e Syr: Heb to nations

also 1.26–28n. 18: Full of eyes, symbolic of omniscience (10.12; Zech 4.2,5,10). 22–25: A dome, the cosmic firmament that separates earth and heaven (Gen 1.6–8,14; Pss 19.1; 150.1; Dan 12.3). The Temple mount symbolizes the cosmic mountain where heaven and earth intersect at the dome (see 28.14n.). 26–28: Thus the LORD was still really enthroned atop the cosmos, even though Jerusalem, the symbol of God's cosmic dwelling (Pss 26.8; 63.2; 102.16), was to be destroyed by the Babylonians. 26: Seemed like a human form, Ezekiel provides a rather humanlike image of God in keeping with the imagery of the Holiness School. Cf. images of the Mesopotamian god Ashur with a glowing upper torso and a flaming lower body. Ezekiel's imagery is controversial. Isa 40–66 and the Priestly Torah would be aghast at an association of God with any sort of likeness (see Isa 40.18,25; 46.5). 28: Appearance of the likeness, the qualified language again emphasizes God's holy transcendence (see 1.4n.). The glory, for the Zadokites, represents God's embodied Presence on earth, tangible and accessible; see further 10.1–22n. Israel's divinely appointed role is to know the Presence, be transformed by it, and reflect it.

1.28b–3.27: Ezekiel's commissioning. The length of this section helps buttress Ezekiel's authority in the face of opposition. 1.28b–2.8a: Ezekiel is commissioned in a series of addresses. 1.28b: Fell on my face, a reaction of awe, and a posture of submission (also 3.23; 43.3). 2.1: Mortal (Heb "ben 'adam," see textual note d), a member of the category of "humanity." Ezekiel emphasizes that God and the divine realm tower above this category; the idiom occurs ninety-three times in the book. 2: Spirit (see 3.12,14,24), a vigorous empowerment at receiving God's word. 3: Transgressed, violated the terms of the vassal covenant of the Holiness School (Lev 26.9,15,25).

says the Lord God.”⁵ Whether they hear or refuse to hear (for they are a rebellious house), they shall know that there has been a prophet among them.⁶ And you, O mortal, do not be afraid of them, and do not be afraid of their words, though briers and thorns surround you and you live among scorpions; do not be afraid of their words, and do not be dismayed at their looks, for they are a rebellious house.⁷ You shall speak my words to them, whether they hear or refuse to hear; for they are a rebellious house.

⁸ But you, mortal, hear what I say to you; do not be rebellious like that rebellious house; open your mouth and eat what I give you.⁹ I looked, and a hand was stretched out to me, and a written scroll was in it.¹⁰ He spread it before me; it had writing on the front and on the back, and written on it were words of lamentation and mourning and woe.

3 He said to me, O mortal, eat what is offered to you; eat this scroll, and go, speak to the house of Israel.² So I opened my mouth, and he gave me the scroll to eat.³ He said to me, Mortal, eat this scroll that I give you and fill your stomach with it. Then I ate it; and in my mouth it was as sweet as honey.

⁴ He said to me: Mortal, go to the house of Israel and speak my very words to them.⁵ For you are not sent to a people of obscure speech and difficult language, but to the house of Israel—⁶ not to many peoples of obscure speech and difficult language, whose words you cannot understand. Surely, if I sent you to them, they would listen to you.

⁷ But the house of Israel will not listen to you, for they are not willing to listen to me; because all the house of Israel have a hard forehead and a stubborn heart.⁸ See, I have made your face hard against their faces, and your forehead hard against their foreheads.⁹ Like the hardest stone, harder than flint, I have made your forehead; do not fear them or be dismayed at their looks, for they are a rebellious house.¹⁰ He said to me: Mortal, all my words that I shall speak to you receive in your heart and hear with your ears;¹¹ then go to the exiles, to your people, and speak to them. Say to them, “Thus says the Lord God”; whether they hear or refuse to hear.

¹² Then the spirit lifted me up, and as the glory of the LORD rose^a from its place, I heard behind me the sound of loud rumbling;¹³ it was the sound of the wings of the living creatures brushing against one another, and the sound of the wheels beside them, that sounded like a loud rumbling.¹⁴ The spirit lifted me up and bore me away; I went in bitterness in the heat of my spirit, the hand of the LORD being strong upon me.¹⁵ I came to the exiles at Tel-abib, who lived by the river Chebar.^b And I sat there among them, stunned, for seven days.

¹⁶ At the end of seven days, the word of the LORD came to me:¹⁷ Mortal, I have made you a sentinel for the house of Israel;

^a Cn: Heb and blessed be the glory of the LORD

^b Two Mss Syr: Heb Chebar, and to where they lived. Another reading is Chebar, and I sat where they sat

Vassal covenants had punishments for disobedience: Israel can forfeit its status on God’s land. 5: Rebellious house, a phrase unique to Ezekiel (2.5,6,8; 3.9,26,27; 12.2,3,9,25; 17.12; 24.3) expressing the Holiness School’s emphasis on the people’s ingrained stubbornness and irreverence (cf. Num 17.10).

2.8b–3.3: In keeping with the emerging understanding of God’s word as sacred text, Ezekiel is told to eat a scroll (cf. Jer 1.9; Zech 5.1–4). The scroll depicts the coming, fixed judgment of Judah; see 3.22–27n. 3.3: Jeremiah’s metaphor (Jer 15.16) becomes concrete in Ezekiel. God’s word is sweet (Ps 19.10), even when its contents involve pain. 3.4–9: Preparation for resistance. 5–6: Obscure speech, like the language of Judah’s enemies, perceived as harsh and unintelligible (Isa 33.19; Jer 5.15). 8–9: Hard, or “strong”; compare the meaning of Ezekiel’s name (1.3n.). 3.10–11: A final charge.

3.12–15: Ezekiel returns to his people. 12: Glory of the LORD, see 1.28n.; 10.1–22n. 14: Ezekiel feels either God’s anger at the people or his own distress over his difficult task. The hand of the LORD, see 1.3n. 15: Tel-abib, not modern Tel Aviv but a settlement of exiles near Nippur, not far from the Chebar canal. Chebar, 1.1–3n. Seven days of seclusion was what priests, like Ezekiel, observed during ordination preparations (Lev 8.33–35; Ex 29.35–37).

3.16–21: The sentinel. Prophets as sentries (Jer 6.17; Hos 9.8) provide early warnings of possible dangers (cf. 2 Kings 9.17). Ezekiel is assured that his personal responsibility is limited to delivering such warnings; the members of his audience are accountable for their responses (18.1–32; see also 33.1–9). 16: The word of the LORD

whenever you hear a word from my mouth, you shall give them warning from me.¹⁸ If I say to the wicked, “You shall surely die,” and you give them no warning, or speak to warn the wicked from their wicked way, in order to save their life, those wicked persons shall die for their iniquity; but their blood I will require at your hand.¹⁹ But if you warn the wicked, and they do not turn from their wickedness, or from their wicked way, they shall die for their iniquity; but you will have saved your life.²⁰ Again, if the righteous turn from their righteousness and commit iniquity, and I lay a stumbling block before them, they shall die; because you have not warned them, they shall die for their sin, and their righteous deeds that they have done shall not be remembered; but their blood I will require at your hand.²¹ If, however, you warn the righteous not to sin, and they do not sin, they shall surely live, because they took warning; and you will have saved your life.

²² Then the hand of the LORD was upon me there; and he said to me, Rise up, go out into the valley, and there I will speak with you.

²³ So I rose up and went out into the valley; and the glory of the LORD stood there, like the glory that I had seen by the river Chebar; and I fell on my face.²⁴ The spirit entered into me, and set me on my feet; and he spoke with me and said to me: Go, shut yourself inside your house.²⁵ As for you, mortal, cords shall be placed on you, and you shall be bound with them, so that you cannot go out among the people;²⁶ and I will make your tongue cling to the roof of your mouth, so that you shall be speechless and unable to reprove them; for they are a rebellious house.²⁷ But when I speak with you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them, “Thus says the Lord God”; let those who will hear, hear; and let those who refuse to hear, refuse; for they are a rebellious house.

4 And you, O mortal, take a brick and set it before you. On it portray a city, Jerusalem;² and put siegeworks against it, and build a siege wall against it, and cast up a ramp against it; set camps also against it, and plant battering rams against it all around.³ Then take an iron plate and place it as an iron wall between you and the city; set your face toward it, and let it be in a state of siege, and press the siege against it. This is a sign for the house of Israel.

⁴ Then lie on your left side, and place the punishment of the house of Israel upon it; you shall bear their punishment for the number of the days that you lie there.⁵ For I assign to you a number of days, three hundred ninety days, equal to the number of the

came to me, a form of expression occurring about fifty times in Ezekiel, which marks the beginnings of nearly all his main units of prophetic speech.

3.22–27: Ezekiel’s speechlessness. 22: The hand of the LORD was upon me, a phrase that in Ezekiel frequently introduces a vision; cf. 1.3n. The valley, a specific site near Tel-abib (see 37.1n.). 26: Ezekiel’s speechless state is a powerful literary metaphor with a complex relationship to observable reality (Ezekiel is not literally speechless after this point; cf. 11.25). Its meaning relates to the growing significance of written, authoritative scripture in Ezekiel’s time. Ezekiel falls speechless to let the scroll that he has swallowed (2.8b–3.3n.) have its fulfillment. The judgments of scripture (such as those of the book of Habakkuk) are now inevitable. Silence and isolation bar Ezekiel from normal efforts to intercede for the people with God (see 20.3). The judgments of the swallowed scroll play themselves out in the first half of Ezekiel’s book, after which he regains his speech (24.25–27; 33.21–22).

4.1–24.27: Prophecies of doom against Judah and Jerusalem.

4.1–5.17: Actions symbolizing Jerusalem’s coming siege. Like Ezekiel’s speechlessness, these symbolic actions appear to be literary metaphors rather than observable events (e.g., see 4.4–8n.). 4.1–3: A brick (common in Babylonia) inscribed before baking. Maps inscribed in clay were numerous in Mesopotamia. Iron plate, a baking griddle, standard priestly equipment (Lev 6.21), symbolizing the hostile barrier between the city and God. 4–8: Ezekiel’s symbolic, bodily actions contain complex layers of meaning. At one level the postures illustrate the coming siege of Jerusalem. Verse 6 refers to God’s punishment of Judah in exile over the course of forty years (cf. Num 14.34 [HS]). At a deeper level, Ezekiel depicts God’s pre-siege punishments of Israel in the land (see vv. 5–6n.), which the Holiness School anticipated (see Lev 26.14–32 [HS]). 4–5: Punishment, or “iniquity.” Israelite priests traditionally bore the weight of Israel’s iniquity (Num 18.1 [HS]). 5–6: The 390 years is probably the era years of their punishment; and so you shall bear the punishment of the house of Israel. ⁶When you have completed these, you shall lie down a second time, but on your right side, and bear the punishment of the house of Judah; forty days I assign you, one day for each year. ⁷You shall set your face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and with your arm bared you shall prophesy against it. ⁸See, I am putting cords on you so that you cannot turn from one side to the other until you have completed the days of your siege.

⁹And you, take wheat and barley, beans and lentils, millet and spelt; put them into one vessel, and make bread for yourself. During the number of days that you lie on your side, three hundred ninety days, you shall eat it. ¹⁰The food that you eat shall be twenty shekels a day by weight; at fixed times you shall eat it. ¹¹And you shall drink water by measure, one-sixth of a hin; at fixed times you shall drink. ¹²You shall eat it as a barley-cake, baking it in their sight on human dung. ¹³The LORD said, “Thus shall the people of Israel eat their bread, unclean, among the nations to which I will drive them.” ¹⁴Then I said, “Ah Lord God! I have never defiled myself; from my youth up until now I have never eaten what died of itself or was torn by animals, nor has carrion flesh come into my mouth.” ¹⁵Then he said to me, “See, I will let you have cow’s dung instead of human dung, on which you may prepare your bread.”

¹⁶Then he said to me, Mortal, I am going to break the staff of bread in Jerusalem; they shall eat bread by weight and with fearfulness; and they shall drink water by measure and in dismay. ¹⁷Lacking bread and water, they will look at one another in dismay, and waste away under their punishment.

5 And you, O mortal, take a sharp sword; use it as a barber’s razor and run it over your head and your beard; then take balances for weighing, and divide the hair. ²One third of the hair you shall burn in the fire inside the city, when the days of the siege are completed; one third you shall take and strike with the sword all around the city;^a and one third you shall scatter to the wind, and I will unsheathe the sword after them. ³Then you shall take from these a small number, and bind them in the skirts of your robe. ⁴From these, again, you shall take some, throw them into the fire and burn them up; from there a fire will come out against all the house of Israel.

⁵Thus says the Lord God: This is Jerusalem; I have set her in the center of the nations, with countries all around her. ⁶But she has rebelled against my ordinances and my statutes, becoming more wicked than the nations and the countries all around her, rejecting my ordinances and not following my statutes. ⁷Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you are more turbulent than that Israel’s iniquity polluted the Temple, from its dedication by Solomon until its imminent destruction. The second figure of forty years (roughly one generation) represents the period of Babylonian exile; it echoes the period of wilderness wanderings (see Num 14.34 [HS]). As with the era of wanderings, the Exile sets the stage for a new beginning. 9–17: Coarse bread and rationing symbolize the rigors of the coming siege of Jerusalem (cf. Jer 19.9; Lam 4.10). 9: The necessity of mixing grains in odd combinations indicates scarcity of foodstuffs. 10–11: Siege images and exile images blur in Ezekiel’s multilevel symbolism. Twenty shekels, a ration of only 8 oz (228 gr) of food a day. One-sixth of a hin, approximately .67 qt (.64 L) of water. On this extremely meager diet, Jerusalem’s inhabitants would totter on the brink of starvation (vv. 16–17). 12–13: Human dung, considered unclean (Deut 23.12–14), represents the defiling effects of exile to an unclean land. The Zadokites deemed foreign lands unclean, since God’s holy presence did not reside there to purify and sanctify the territory. 14: Cf. Lev 17.10–16 (HS). 15: Ezekiel was allowed to substitute dried cow’s dung, a common fuel in the Near East. 16: God’s breaking the staff of bread (“food supply”) is a penalty for violating the Holiness School covenant (Lev 26.26). 5.1–17: Barber’s razor, a foreign word, common in Mesopotamia. Acts of shaving and gathering hair appear in Babylonian ritual texts. In Ezekiel, the hair symbolizes a defeated Israel, to be destroyed in three different ways. 3–4: A Babylonian incantation speaks of weighing a patient’s shaved hair after placing it in his garment’s hem. Objects could be carried in the folds of one’s garments for safekeeping (Hag 2.12). Shockingly, Ezekiel portrays the hair, the surviving remnant of Judah, undergoing further judgment. 5: Center of the nations, Jerusalem was viewed the nations that are all around you, and have not followed my statutes or kept my ordinances, but have acted according to the ordinances of the nations that are all around you;⁸ therefore thus says the Lord God: I, I myself, am coming against you; I will execute judgments among you in the sight of the nations.⁹ And because of all your abominations, I will do to you what I have never yet done, and the like of which I will never do again.¹⁰ Surely, parents shall eat their children in your midst, and children shall eat their parents; I will execute judgments on you, and any of you who survive I will scatter to every wind.¹¹ Therefore, as I live, says the Lord God, surely, because you have defiled my sanctuary with all your detestable things and with all your abominations—therefore I will cut you down;^a my eye will not spare, and I will have no pity.¹² One third of you shall die of pestilence or be consumed by famine among you; one third shall fall by the sword around you; and one third I will scatter to every wind and will unsheathe the sword after them.

^a Heb it

¹³ My anger shall spend itself, and I will vent my fury on them and satisfy myself; and they shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken in my jealousy, when I spend my fury on them.¹⁴ Moreover I will make you a desolation and an object of mocking among the nations around you, in the sight of all that pass by.¹⁵ You shall be^b a mockery and a taunt, a warning and a horror, to the nations around you, when I execute judgments on you in anger and fury, and with furious punishments—I, the LORD, have spoken—¹⁶ when I loose against you^c my deadly arrows of famine, arrows for destruction, which I will let loose to destroy you, and when I bring more and more famine upon you, and break your staff of bread.¹⁷ I will send famine and wild animals against you, and they will rob you of your children; pestilence and bloodshed shall pass through you; and I will bring the sword upon you. I, the LORD, have spoken.

6 The word of the LORD came to me: ²O mortal, set your face toward the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them,³ and say, You mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God! Thus says the Lord God to the mountains and the hills, to the ravines and the valleys: I, I myself will bring a sword upon you, and I will destroy your high places.⁴ Your altars shall become desolate, and your incense stands shall be broken; and I will throw down your slain in front of your idols.⁵ I will lay the corpses of the people of Israel in front of their idols; and I will scatter

^a Another reading is I will withdraw

^b Gk Syr Vg Tg; Heb It shall be

^c Heb them

as the mythic center of the earth (see 38.12, “center [lit., navel] of the earth”; 43.13–17n.). 8: Formulaic language for challenging someone to a duel. Sight of the nations, Israel should have been an object lesson in holiness to the nations. 10: Cannibalism was a curse for breaking the Holiness School covenant (Lev 26.29). 11: Defiled my sanctuary, that is, they desecrated God’s holy dwelling and sacred reputation, directly jeopardizing God’s indwelling presence (see Lev 20.3; Num 19.20, both HS; Ezek 23.38). Sin committed anywhere in the land, no matter how far from the Temple, contaminates God’s abode. If textual note a is the correct reading, this verse anticipates the departure of the LORD’s glory from the Temple described in 10.1–22 and 11.22–25. 12: Pestilence . . . famine, Holiness School covenant sanctions in Lev 26.25–26. 13: Jealousy, a key divine trait for the Zadokites; see Num 25.11 (HS). They shall know . . ., 6.7n. 16: Staff of bread, 4.16n. 17: 14.21; Lev 26.22 (HS).

6.1–14: Two prophecies against Israel’s idolatry. 1–10: First prophecy of judgment. 2: Set your face toward, an idiom of Ezekiel (cf. 13.17; 20.46; 21.2; 25.2; 28.21; 29.2; 35.2; 38.2) calling for a hostile orientation. The mountains of Israel, the central highland ridge of the land representing, in Ezekiel, the entire homeland territory (19.9; 33.38; 34.14; 35.12; 37.22; 38.8). Mountains symbolized the intersection of earth and heaven, so Israel’s topography points to its unique status as God’s holy land and the world’s center (38.12; cf. Lev 26.11–12; Zech 2.12). Israel’s mountains are here associated with illegitimate worship, degrading this holy status (v. 9; cf. 18.6). 3: High places were ritual installations or shrines. Their destruction was a curse for breaking the Holiness School covenant (Lev 26.30). 4: Idols translates Ezekiel’s characteristic term “gillulim,” found in Lev 26.30 (HS) and thirty-nine times in Ezekiel, compared with eight times elsewhere in the Bible. The term is contemptuous, probably your bones around your altars. ⁶ Wherever you live, your towns shall be waste and your high places ruined, so that your altars will be waste and ruined, ^a your idols broken and destroyed, your incense stands cut down, and your works wiped out. ⁷ The slain shall fall in your midst; then you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁸ But I will spare some. Some of you shall escape the sword among the nations and be scattered through the countries. ⁹ Those of you who escape shall remember me among the nations where they are carried captive, how I was crushed by their wanton heart that turned away from me, and their wanton eyes that turned after their idols. Then they will be loathsome in their own sight for the evils that they have committed, for all their abominations. ¹⁰ And they shall know that I am the LORD; I did not threaten in vain to bring this disaster upon them.

¹¹ Thus says the Lord God: Clap your hands and stamp your foot, and say, Alas for all the vile abominations of the house of Israel! For they shall fall by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. ¹² Those far off shall die of pestilence; those nearby shall fall by the sword; and any who are left and are spared shall die of famine. Thus I will spend my fury upon them. ¹³ And you shall know that I am the LORD, when their slain lie among their idols around their altars, on every high hill, on all the mountain tops, under every green tree, and under every leafy oak, wherever they offered pleasing odor to all their idols. ¹⁴ I will stretch out my hand against them, and make the land desolate and waste, throughout all their settlements, from the wilderness to Riblah. ^b Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

7 The word of the LORD came to me: ² You, O mortal, thus says the Lord God to the land of Israel:

An end! The end has come upon the four corners of the land.

³ Now the end is upon you, I will let loose my anger upon you; I will judge you according to your ways, I will punish you for all your abominations.

⁴ My eye will not spare you, I will have no pity. I will punish you for your ways, while your abominations are among you.

Then you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁵ Thus says the Lord God: Disaster after disaster! See, it comes.

⁶ An end has come, the end has come. It has awakened against you; see, it comes!

⁷ Your doom^c has come to you, O inhabitant of the land. The time has come, the day is near—of tumult, not of reveling on the mountains.

^a Syr Vg Tg: Heb and be made guilty

^b Another reading is Diblah

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

equating idols with sheep droppings. 6: Towns shall be waste, Lev 26.31 (HS). 7: You shall know . . ., one of over sixty similar closing declarations in Ezekiel (see vv. 10,13–14). Ezekiel shares an emphasis on recognition of the LORD with the Holiness School (e.g., Ex 6.7; 7.5; 10.2; 16.12; 31.13). He prophesies that God's judging and saving acts will prove God's sovereign identity and result in human recognition of God, which means being drawn into direct experience of God's life. The book of Ezekiel de-emphasizes the prophet's individual personality, focusing instead on God's desire to reveal the holiness, the "otherness," of God's own self. To know God's otherness is to align with God's focus on making Israel holy, "other," set apart (see Ex 10.2; 16.32; Lev 23.43 [HS]). 9: The people will finally despair of their state of alienation from God. 11–14: A second prophecy of judgment, beginning with an expressive action (cf. 21.14n.; Num 24.10; Job 27.23) communicating divine distress and anger. 11: Stamp, as did the goddess Anat in the Ugaritic text Aqhat, when the hero Aqhat refuses her wishes. Sword . . . famine . . . pestilence, Lev 26.25–26 (HS). 14: Stretch out my hand, a repeated expression of Ezekiel denoting hard, crushing judgment (14.9,13; 16.27; 25.7; 35.3). From the wilderness of southern Judah to Riblah in central Syria was the maximum historical extent of Israelite territory.

7.1–27: Prophecies on the approaching end. 1–4: The end (cf. 7.6; Am 8.1–3) is doomsday. Four corners, a sweeping totality (cf. the four cherubim in 1.5–6 and the four horns of temple altars, Ex 37.25 [HS]). 5–9: The day (v. 7) is "the day of the LORD," the time of God's appearance to defeat evil and establish justice (Am 5.18–20; Isa 2.11,12–17; Joel 1.15). The experience will be nothing short of cataclysmic (cf. 21.26; Zeph 1.14–18). 6: Awakened

- ⁸ Soon now I will pour out my wrath upon you;
I will spend my anger against you.
I will judge you according to your ways,
and punish you for all your abominations.
- ⁹ My eye will not spare; I will have no pity.
I will punish you according to your ways,
while your abominations are among you.
- Then you shall know that it is I the LORD who strike.
- ¹⁰ See, the day! See, it comes!
Your doom^a has gone out.
The rod has blossomed, pride has budded.
- ¹¹ Violence has grown into a rod of wickedness.
None of them shall remain,
not their abundance, not their wealth;
no pre-eminence among them.^a
- ¹² The time has come, the day draws near;
let not the buyer rejoice, nor the seller mourn,
for wrath is upon all their multitude.
- ¹³ For the sellers shall not return to what has been sold as long as they remain alive. For the vision concerns all their multitude; it shall not be revoked. Because of their iniquity, they cannot maintain their lives.^a
- ¹⁴ They have blown the horn and made everything ready;
but no one goes to battle,
for my wrath is upon all their multitude.
- ¹⁵ The sword is outside, pestilence and famine are inside;
those in the field die by the sword;
those in the city—famine and pestilence devour them.
- ¹⁶ If any survivors escape, they shall be found on the mountains
- like doves of the valleys,
all of them moaning over their iniquity.
- ¹⁷ All hands shall grow feeble,
all knees turn to water.
- ¹⁸ They shall put on sackcloth, horror shall cover them.
Shame shall be on all faces, baldness on all their heads.
- ¹⁹ They shall fling their silver into the streets,
their gold shall be treated as unclean.
Their silver and gold cannot save them on the day of the wrath of the LORD. They shall not satisfy their hunger or fill their stomachs with it. For it was the stumbling block of their iniquity.²⁰ From their^b beautiful ornament, in which they took pride, they made their abominable images, their detestable things; therefore I will make of it an unclean thing to them.
- ²¹ I will hand it over to strangers as booty, to the wicked of the earth as plunder;
they shall profane it.
- ²² I will avert my face from them,
so that they may profane my treasured^c place;
the violent shall enter it,
they shall profane it.
- ²³ Make a chain!^a
For the land is full of bloody crimes;
the city is full of violence.
- ²⁴ I will bring the worst of the nations to take possession of their houses.
I will put an end to the arrogance of the strong,
and their holy places shall be profaned.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Syr Symmachus: Heb its

^c Or secret

(Heb “heqits”) sounds like “end” (Heb “qets”). 9: See v. 4. 10–27: The end spells dissolution of normal life. 10: The term rod (Heb “mutteh”) meaning “perversity” (9.9). 14: The horn calls to the defense, but the people are too enfeebled to respond (v. 17). 18: Wearing coarse sackcloth and shaving the head (baldness) were displays of mourning (cf. 27.31; Am 8.10; Isa 22.12). The disaster will also provoke involuntary reactions of horror and shame. 19: Zeph 1.18. Precious metals often plated wooden idols. Stumbling block of iniquity, a phrase unique to Ezekiel (14.3,4,7; 18.30; 44.12). 20: Beautiful ornament, the gold and silver of the Temple treasury, used to fashion idolatrous images (16.17; 2 Kings 21.7). 22: My treasured place, God’s Temple and its inner sanctum, the Holy of Holies. 23a: Chain, a long train of prisoners for exile (cf. Nah 3.10; Jer 40.1), but see textual note c. 23b: Social ethics, as well as idolatry, concern Ezekiel and the Holiness School (12.19; 28.16). 24: Human arrogance has no place

²⁵ When anguish comes, they will seek peace, but there shall be none.

²⁶ Disaster comes upon disaster,
rumor follows rumor;
they shall keep seeking a vision from the prophet;
instruction shall perish from the priest,
and counsel from the elders.

²⁷ The king shall mourn,
the prince shall be wrapped in despair,
and the hands of the people of the land shall tremble.

According to their way I will deal with them;
according to their own judgments I will judge them.

And they shall know that I am the LORD.

8 In the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house, with the elders of Judah sitting before me, the hand of the Lord GOD fell upon me there. ²I looked, and there was a figure that looked like a human being;^a below what appeared to be its loins it was fire, and above the loins it was like the appearance of brightness, like gleaming amber. ³It stretched out the form of a hand, and took me by a lock of my head; and the spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven, and brought me in visions of God to Jerusalem, to the entrance of the gateway of the inner court that faces north, to the seat of the image of jealousy, which provokes to jealousy. ⁴And the glory of the God of Israel was there, like the vision that I had seen in the valley.

⁵Then God^b said to me, “O mortal, lift up your eyes now in the direction of the north.” So I lifted up my eyes toward the north, and there, north of the altar gate, in the entrance, was this image of jealousy. ⁶He said to me, “Mortal, do you see what they are doing, the great abominations that the house of Israel are committing here, to drive me far from my sanctuary? Yet you will see still greater abominations.”

⁷And he brought me to the entrance of the court; I looked, and there was a hole in the wall. ⁸Then he said to me, “Mortal, dig through the wall”; and when I dug through the wall, there was an entrance. ⁹He said to me, “Go in, and see the vile abominations

^a Gk: Heb like fire

^b Heb he

in Zadokite theology (see Introduction), where God is uncontestably sovereign (Lev 26.19 [HS]). 25–27: The invasion and siege bring total upheaval and confusion (cf. 21.26). 27: Wrapped in despair, a striking metaphor.

8.1–11.25: Visions of Temple abominations. Ezekiel experiences visions of horrendous pollution that make God’s continued indwelling of Jerusalem’s Temple inconceivable. As God’s Presence departs, fiery holiness purges the city (10.2,6–7; cf. Num 16.35–38 [HS]). In the visions, Ezekiel saw beyond the observable offenses of his time into the ingrained, polluted spirit of Israel’s land and Temple. A single locale mystically hosts separate apostasies (8.3,14); the Northern Kingdom, though now dispersed, reappears (9.9). 8.1–18: The vision of idolatry. 1: Sixth year . . . sixth month . . . fifth day, September 17, 592 BCE. The elders in exile with the prophet (cf. 14.1; 20.1) were the traditional leaders of Israel’s family lines. They have stepped in to fill a leadership vacuum. Note that they respect Ezekiel’s social status. The hand of the LORD (see 1.3n.) yanks Ezekiel far from Babylonia. 2: The figure is God described anthropomorphically in the tradition of the Holiness School (as in 1.26–27). 3: By a lock of my head, cf. Bel 36. An Assyrian vision story describes Nergal, an underworld god, seizing a prince by the hair and dragging him into his presence. The north gateway to the Temple’s inner courtyard (see 9.2; 2 Kings 15.35; Jer 20.2), also termed the altar gate (v. 5), led directly to the traditional zone of sacrificial slaughter (Lev 1.11). Altars and chambers oriented northward were of special Zadokite concern (40.38–43,46; Ex 40.22 [HS]). The image of jealousy is perhaps the carved image of the goddess Asherah that King Manasseh set up in the Temple (2 Kings 21.7; 2 Chr 33.7). The image provoked God, whom the Holiness School understands to demand exclusive allegiance (see Num 25.11 [HS]). Though removed by Ezekiel’s time (2 Kings 23.6), the image stood out starkly in the prophet’s transhistorical perception. 4: See 3.22–23. The glory, see 10.1–22n. 5: Mortal, see 2.1n. 6: Drive me far, now Ezekiel sees why God’s throne chariot had relocated to Babylonia. The Presence returns to a new Temple in 43.1–7. 7–13: Ezekiel views the story of rebellion in Num 16 as prototypical, and describes the elders of Judah repeating their actions (Num 16.2,17,35 [HS]; 44.6–14n.). 8: Dig, penetrating priestly chambers or that they are committing here.”¹⁰ So I went in and looked; there, portrayed on the wall all around, were all kinds of creeping things, and loathsome animals, and all the idols of the house of Israel.¹¹ Before them stood seventy of the elders of the house of Israel, with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan standing among them. Each had his censer in his hand, and the fragrant cloud of incense was ascending.¹² Then he said to me, “Mortal, have you seen what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the dark, each in his room of images? For they say, ‘The LORD does not see us, the LORD has forsaken the land.’”¹³ He said also to me, “You will see still greater abominations that they are committing.”

¹⁴ Then he brought me to the entrance of the north gate of the house of the LORD; women were sitting there weeping for Tammuz.¹⁵ Then he said to me, “Have you seen this, O mortal? You will see still greater abominations than these.”

¹⁶ And he brought me into the inner court of the house of the LORD; there, at the entrance of the temple of the LORD, between the porch and the altar, were about twenty-five men, with their backs to the temple of the LORD, and their faces toward the east, prostrating themselves to the sun toward the east.¹⁷ Then he said to me, “Have you seen this, O mortal? Is it not bad enough that the house of Judah commits the abominations done here? Must they fill the land with violence, and provoke my anger still further? See, they are putting the branch to their nose!¹⁸ Therefore I will act in wrath; my eye will not spare, nor will I have pity; and though they cry in my hearing with a loud voice, I will not listen to them.”

9 Then he cried in my hearing with a loud voice, saying, “Draw near, you executioners of the city, each with his destroying weapon in his hand.”² And six men came from the direction of the upper gate, which faces north, each with his weapon for slaughter in his hand; among them was a man clothed in linen, with a writing case at his side. They went in and stood beside the bronze altar.

³ Now the glory of the God of Israel had gone up from the cherub on which it rested to the threshold of the house. The LORD called to the man clothed in linen, who had the writing case at his side;⁴ and said to him, “Go through the city, through Jerusalem, and put a mark on the foreheads of those who sigh and groan over all the abominations that are committed in it.”⁵ To the others he said in my hearing, “Pass through the city after him, and kill; your eye shall not spare, and you shall show no pity.⁶ Cut down old men, young men and young women, little children and women, but touch no one who has the sacristies flanking the gatehouse and lining the inside of the courtyard wall. 10: The engravings are idols, prohibited in Lev 26.30 HS. Images of creeping things would be doubly detestable (Lev 20.25 [HS]). 11: The mention of Jaazaniah among the encroachers is disturbing, given his family’s record of faithfulness. His father Shaphan was active in King Josiah’s reform movement (2 Kings 22), and his brother Ahikam and nephew Gedaliah assisted and protected Jeremiah (Jer 26.24; 39.14). 12: The elders’ idea that the LORD has forsaken the land becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy (see 11.22–23). 14–15: Tammuz, a Mesopotamian god; the weeping was for his periodic descent into the underworld. Transtemporal perception is again suggested here, since Ezekiel sees the weeping rite in the sixth month (v. 1) and not in the fourth month (June–July), when it was normally practiced. 16–17: The climactic abomination seen by Ezekiel was sun worship in the Temple’s very doorway. Solar veneration is evidenced by 2 Kings 23.5,11, by horse figurines with sun disks found at Lachish, Hazor, and Jerusalem, and by an Israelite ritual stand found at Taanach. 17–18: The branch gesture may express an entreaty, which God then rejects in v. 18a (read “but” instead of therefore; a parallel rejection of all pleas then appears in v. 18b). A relief of the Assyrian king Sennacherib shows him using the branch gesture to entreat the gods.

9.1–11: The punishment of the guilty. 1–2: From the upper gate (8.3n.; Jer 20.2), facing the ominous north (cf. 38.6; Jer 1.14–15), come seven executioners (divine functionaries sent to punish), comparable to the seven covenant enforcers of the Aramaic Sefire inscription. Among the seven is a man clothed in linen, a bleached fabric signifying purity, which was worn by divine messengers (Dan 10.5) and by priests (44.17; Lev 6.10 [HS]). 3: On the departure of the glory, see 10.1–22n. The cherub, in the singular (also 10.4), is used of the inanimate pair of statues in the Temple. The actual living entities are referred to with the Heb plural, “cherubim.” 4: The mark was the Heb letter “taw,” made like an X. 6: The elders are those of 8.16. 7: Ezekiel’s Holiness School tradi-

mark. And begin at my sanctuary.” So they began with the elders who were in front of the house. ⁷ Then he said to them, “Defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain. Go!” So they went out and killed in the city. ⁸ While they were killing, and I was left alone, I fell prostrate on my face and cried out, “Ah Lord God! will you destroy all who remain of Israel as you pour out your wrath upon Jerusalem?” ⁹ He said to me, “The guilt of the house of Israel and Judah is exceedingly great; the land is full of bloodshed and the city full of perversity; for they say, ‘The LORD has forsaken the land, and the LORD does not see.’” ¹⁰ As for me, my eye will not spare, nor will I have pity, but I will bring down their deeds upon their heads.”

¹¹ Then the man clothed in linen, with the writing case at his side, brought back word, saying, “I have done as you commanded me.”

10 Then I looked, and above the dome that was over the heads of the cherubim there appeared above them something like a sapphire,^a in form resembling a throne. ² He said to the man clothed in linen, “Go within the wheelwork underneath the cherubim; fill your hands with burning coals from among the cherubim, and scatter them over the city.” He went in as I looked on. ³ Now the cherubim were standing on the south side of the house when the man went in; and a cloud filled the inner court. ⁴ Then the glory of the LORD rose up from the cherub to the threshold of the house; the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the glory of the LORD. ⁵ The sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard as far as the outer court, like the voice of God Almighty^b when he speaks.

⁶ When he commanded the man clothed in linen, “Take fire from within the wheelwork, from among the cherubim,” he went in and stood beside a wheel. ⁷ And a cherub stretched out his hand from among the cherubim to the fire that was among the cherubim, took some of it and put it into the hands of the man clothed in linen, who took it and went out. ⁸ The cherubim appeared to have the form of a human hand under their wings.

⁹ I looked, and there were four wheels beside the cherubim, one beside each cherub; and the appearance of the wheels was like gleaming beryl. ¹⁰ And as for their appearance, the four looked alike, something like a wheel within a wheel. ¹¹ When they moved, they moved in any of the four directions without veering as they moved; but in whatever direction the front wheel faced, the others followed without veering as they moved. ¹² Their entire body, their rims, their spokes, their wings, and the wheels—the wheels of the four of them—were full of eyes all around. ¹³ As for the wheels, they were called in my hearing “the wheelwork.” ¹⁴ Each one had four faces: the first face was that of the cherub, the second face was that of a human being, the third that of a lion, and the fourth that of an eagle.

¹⁵ The cherubim rose up. These were the living creatures that I saw by the river Chebar. ¹⁶ When the cherubim moved, the tions stressed that corpses defile (Lev 21.1; Num 5.2–3; 9.6; 19.11,13 [HS]). 8: All who remain are those still in the homeland after Ezekiel’s exile in 597 BCE.

^a Or lapis lazuli

^b Traditional rendering of Heb El Shaddai

10.1–22 and 11.22–25: The departure of the LORD’s glory is described in three versions (9.3; 10.4; 11.22). The glory (see 1.28n.), for the Zadokites, is God’s single, indivisible body. Ezek 43.2 distinguishes the glory from the radiance that it emits. Ideally, the glory remains substantively interconnected with the Temple on an ongoing basis (Ex 40.38; Num 9.15 [HS]). The glory has been present in Jerusalem (8.4,12b) but defilement forces it to depart, first to the doorway of the Temple (also 9.3), then to the east gate of the Temple’s outer courtyard (10.18–19), and then, in 11.22–25, east over the Mount of Olives toward Babylon, where Ezekiel first saw it (1.28; 3.22–23; cf. 8.4; 11.16). Eventually, the glory returns to the Temple (43.2–5; 44.4). 1: Cherubim, see 1.5–14n. 2: Man clothed in linen, see 9.1–2n. Wheelwork, see 1.4–28a. Burning coals, cf. 1.13; Lev 16.12; Ps 18.8,13. 3–4: The throne-chariot comes to collect the glory from the cherub statues (see 9.3n.). The cloud filling the Temple recalls Ex 16.10; 40.34–35 (HS); it both conceals and reveals the divine presence. 12: Eyes all around, see 1.18n. 14: That of the cherub, the bull face of 1.10 (some ancient cherubim were bovine). 15: Chebar, 1.1–3n.

wheels moved beside them; and when the cherubim lifted up their wings to rise up from the earth, the wheels at their side did not veer.¹⁷ When they stopped, the others stopped, and when they rose up, the others rose up with them; for the spirit of the living creatures was in them.

¹⁸Then the glory of the LORD went out from the threshold of the house and stopped above the cherubim.¹⁹The cherubim lifted up their wings and rose up from the earth in my sight as they went out with the wheels beside them. They stopped at the entrance of the east gate of the house of the LORD; and the glory of the God of Israel was above them.

²⁰These were the living creatures that I saw underneath the God of Israel by the river Chebar; and I knew that they were cherubim.²¹Each had four faces, each four wings, and underneath their wings something like human hands.²²As for what their faces were like, they were the same faces whose appearance I had seen by the river Chebar. Each one moved straight ahead.

11 The spirit lifted me up and brought me to the east gate of the house of the LORD, which faces east. There, at the entrance of the gateway, were twenty-five men; among them I saw Jaazaniah son of Azzur, and Pelatiah son of Benaiah, officials of the people.²He said to me, “Mortal, these are the men who devise iniquity and who give wicked counsel in this city;³ they say, ‘The time is not near to build houses; this city is the pot, and we are the meat.’⁴Therefore prophesy against them; prophesy, O mortal.”

⁵Then the spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and he said to me, “Say, Thus says the LORD: This is what you think, O house of Israel; I know the things that come into your mind.⁶You have killed many in this city, and have filled its streets with the slain.⁷Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: The slain whom you have placed within it are the meat, and this city is the pot; but you shall be taken out of it.⁸You have feared the sword; and I will bring the sword upon you, says the Lord GOD.⁹I will take you out of it and give you over to the hands of foreigners, and execute judgments upon you.¹⁰You shall fall by the sword; I will judge you at the border of Israel. And you shall know that I am the LORD.¹¹This city shall not be your pot, and you shall not be the meat inside it; I will judge you at the border of Israel.¹²Then you shall know that I am the LORD, whose statutes you have not followed, and whose ordinances you have not kept, but you have acted according to the ordinances of the nations that are around you.”

¹³Now, while I was prophesying, Pelatiah son of Benaiah died. Then I fell down on my face, cried with a loud voice, and said, “Ah Lord GOD! will you make a full end of the remnant of Israel?”

¹⁴Then the word of the LORD came to me:¹⁵Mortal, your kinsfolk, your own kin, your fellow exiles,³ the whole house of Israel, all of them, are those of whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, “They have gone far from the LORD; to us this land is given for a

^a Gk Syr: Heb people of your kindred

11.1–25: Judgment and promise. 11.1–13: A disputation over the city. Twenty-five men, the elders of 8.16; 9.6, leading counselors after the first exile of 597 BCE. Among them are Jaazaniah (not the man in 8.11) and Pelatiah (see v. 13). Wicked counsel perhaps refers to the plot against Babylonia in Jer 27.1–3; 37.5,7,11. 3: Focused on fortifying Jerusalem for the rebellion, the leaders postpone domestic construction. The pot, an impenetrable metal cauldron or sturdy crock, a metaphor of smug reliance on Zion’s ironclad invulnerability (the metaphor recurs in 24.3–8). Meat, the choice portion, while the exiles in Babylonia are perceived as discarded bones (v. 15). 5–13: When God’s Presence departs (see 1.15–21n.,26–28n.), Zion will be defenseless and the elders taken out (see Lev 18.25,28 [HS]). A morally complacent trust in Zion protects no one (cf. 24.1–14), but they will be judged at the border of Israel (vv. 10–11; perhaps Riblah; see 6.14n.; 2 Kings 25.6,18–21). 13: The death of Pelatiah (see v. 1) is a prophecy, not an actual event. Ezekiel’s desperate question at the end of this verse receives a reassuring negative answer in vv. 14–21.

11.14–21: The future lies with the exiles. This early (pre-586, see v. 15) oracle of promise disputes the pretentious claims of those who remained in the land. Ezekiel warns them that the exile group constitutes the true Israel (cf. 20.41–42). 15: Your fellow exiles, see textual note a; the rare Heb noun translated “kindred” denotes people who, according to the Holiness School, should be defended against the permanent alienation of their possession.”¹⁶ Therefore say: Thus says the Lord God: Though I removed them far away among the nations, and though I scattered them among the countries, yet I have been a sanctuary to them for a little while^a in the countries where they have gone.¹⁷ Therefore say: Thus says the Lord God: I will gather you from the peoples, and assemble you out of the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.¹⁸ When they come there, they will remove from it all its detestable things and all its abominations.¹⁹ I will give them one^b heart, and put a new spirit within them; I will remove the heart of stone from their flesh and give them a heart of flesh,²⁰ so that they may follow my statutes and keep my ordinances and obey them. Then they shall be my people, and I will be their God.²¹ But as for those whose heart goes after their detestable things and their abominations,^c I will bring their deeds upon their own heads, says the Lord God.

²² Then the cherubim lifted up their wings, with the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was above them.²³ And the glory of the LORD ascended from the middle of the city, and stopped on the mountain east of the city.²⁴ The spirit lifted me up and brought me in a vision by the spirit of God into Chaldea, to the exiles. Then the vision that I had seen left me.²⁵ And I told the exiles all the things that the LORD had shown me.

12 The word of the LORD came to me:² Mortal, you are living in the midst of a rebellious house, who have eyes to see but do not see, who have ears to hear but do not hear;³ for they are a rebellious house. Therefore, mortal, prepare for yourself an exile’s baggage, and go into exile by day in their sight; you shall go like an exile from your place to another place in their sight. Perhaps they will understand, though they are a rebellious house.⁴ You shall bring out your baggage by day in their sight, as baggage for exile; and you shall go out yourself at evening in their sight, as those do who go into exile.

⁵ Dig through the wall in their sight, and carry the baggage through it.⁶ In their sight you shall lift the baggage on your shoulder, and carry it out in the dark; you shall cover your face, so that you may not see the land; for I have made you a sign for the house of Israel.

⁷ I did just as I was commanded. I brought out my baggage by day, as baggage for exile, and in the evening I dug through the wall with my own hands; I brought it out in the dark, carrying it on my shoulder in their sight.

⁸ In the morning the word of the LORD came to me:⁹ Mortal, has not the house of Israel, the rebellious house, said to you, “What are you doing?”¹⁰ Say to them, “Thus says the Lord God: This oracle concerns the prince in Jerusalem and all the house of Israel in it.”¹¹ Say, “I am a sign for you: as I have done, so shall it be done to them; they shall go into exile, into captivity.”¹² And the prince who is among them shall lift his baggage on his shoulder in the dark, and shall go out; he^d shall dig through the wall and carry it through; he shall cover his face, so that he may not see the land with his eyes.

¹³ I will spread my net over him, and he shall

^a Or to some extent

^b Another reading is a new

^c Cn: Heb And to the heart of their detestable things and their abominations their heart goes

^d Gk Syr: Heb they

land (Lev 25.25–28). The Jerusalemites are violating Holiness School traditions (see 45.8–9n.). 16: A sanctuary, the Hebrew indicates that the glory of the LORD is now tabernacling with the exiles rather than with those who remained behind (cf. v. 23). 17–21: Promise of restoration to the exiles from before the city’s fall in 586 BCE, as shown by the concerns of v. 21. 19: New heart, see 36.26n. 20: The new covenant, cf. 16.60; 36.27–28; 37.23,27.

11.22–25: Two reports conclude the Temple visions. 22–23: See 10.1–22n. The mountain east of the city is the Mount of Olives. 24: Chaldea, Babylonia.

12.1–20: Two symbolic actions. 12.1–16: First symbol, an exile’s baggage. Ezekiel symbolizes the Jerusalemites leaving the city with exiles’ typical sacks (see Jer 10.17; 46.19), such as those depicted in Assyrian reliefs showing the Judean captives from Lachish. 5: Dig, fugitives would frantically dig out of the city through partially breached walls. 10–12: Zedekiah (the prince, vv. 10,12) left the city by night, was captured (17.20), and blinded (may not see, vv. 6,12; 2 Kings 25.4,7; Jer 39.1–10). The oracle was revised to bring out its fit with events. 12: The Heb text may mean be caught in my snare; and I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Chaldeans, yet he shall not see it; and he shall die there. ¹⁴ I will scatter to every wind all who are around him, his helpers and all his troops; and I will unsheathe the sword behind them. ¹⁵ And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them through the countries. ¹⁶ But I will let a few of them escape from the sword, from famine and pestilence, so that they may tell of all their abominations among the nations where they go; then they shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁷ The word of the LORD came to me:

¹⁸ Mortal, eat your bread with quaking, and drink your water with trembling and with fearfulness; ¹⁹ and say to the people of the land, Thus says the Lord God concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread with fearfulness, and drink their water in dismay, because their land shall be stripped of all it contains, on account of the violence of all those who live in it. ²⁰ The inhabited cities shall be laid waste, and the land shall become a desolation; and you shall know that I am the LORD.

²¹ The word of the LORD came to me:

²² Mortal, what is this proverb of yours about the land of Israel, which says, “The days are prolonged, and every vision comes to nothing”? ²³ Tell them therefore, “Thus says the Lord God: I will put an end to this proverb, and they shall use it no more as a proverb in Israel.” But say to them, The days are near, and the fulfillment of every vision. ²⁴ For there shall no longer be any false vision or flattering divination within the house of Israel. ²⁵ But I the LORD will speak the word that I speak, and it will be fulfilled. It will no longer be delayed; but in your days, O rebellious house, I will speak the word and fulfill it, says the Lord God.

²⁶ The word of the LORD came to me:

²⁷ Mortal, the house of Israel is saying, “The vision that he sees is for many years ahead; he prophesies for distant times.” ²⁸ Therefore say to them, Thus says the Lord God: None of my words will be delayed any longer, but the word that I speak will be fulfilled, says the Lord God.

13 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, prophesy against the prophets of Israel who are prophesying; say to those who prophesy out of their own imagination: “Hear the word of the LORD!” ³ Thus says the Lord God, Alas for the senseless prophets who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing! ⁴ Your prophets have been like jackals among ruins, O Israel. ⁵ You have not gone up into the breaches, or repaired a wall for the house of Israel, so that it might stand in battle on the day of the LORD. ⁶ They have envisioned falsehood and lying divination; they say, “Says the LORD,” when the LORD has not sent them, and yet they wait for the fulfillment of their word! ⁷ Have you not seen a false vision or uttered a lying divination, when you have said, “Says the LORD,” even though I did not speak?

⁸ Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have uttered falsehood and envisioned lies, I am against you, says the Lord God. ⁹ My hand will be against the prophets who see false visions and utter lying divinations; they shall not be in the council of my people, nor be enrolled in the register of the house of Israel, nor shall they enter the land of Israel; and you shall know that I am the Lord God. ¹⁰ Because, in truth, because they

“they [the besiegers] will dig through the wall to bring [the prince] out through it” (see textual note d). 14: 5.2,12; 17.21; Lev 26.33 (HS). 15–16: 14.21–23.

12.17–20: Second symbol, eating with trembling. The people’s emotional breakdown (cf. Ps 80.5) is prophesied.

12.21–28: Disputations about prophecy. Ezekiel condemns the people’s skepticism (vv. 22,27; Jer 5.12; 17.15). 26–28: Second disputation.

13.1–23: Oracles against false prophecy. 1–16: False prophets, advocating nationalistic hope, were robbing people of their chance to find life amid the inevitable judgment. 4: Like a pack of scavenging jackals, the false prophets preside over a coming ruined city (Lam 5.18). 5: To go up into the breaches (cf. 22.30, Ps 106.23) is to risk one’s life by arguing with God on the people’s behalf (9.8; 11.13). Day of the LORD, see 7.5–9n. 10–16: No peace, cf. Jer 6.14; 8.11. Traditions of Zion’s divine invulnerability are generating false hopes. Whitewash, better “plaster.”

have misled my people, saying, “Peace,” when there is no peace; and because, when the people build a wall, these prophets^a smear whitewash on it. ¹¹ Say to those who smear whitewash on it that it shall fall. There will be a deluge of rain,^b great hailstones will fall, and a stormy wind will break out. ¹² When the wall falls, will it not be said to you, “Where is the whitewash you smeared on it?” ¹³ Therefore thus says the Lord God: In my wrath I will make a stormy wind break out, and in my anger there shall be a deluge of rain, and hailstones in wrath to destroy it. ¹⁴ I will break down the wall that you have smeared with whitewash, and bring it to the ground, so that its foundation will be laid bare; when it falls, you shall perish within it; and you shall know that I am the LORD. ¹⁵ Thus I will spend my wrath upon the wall, and upon those who have smeared it with whitewash; and I will say to you, The wall is no more, nor those who smeared it— ¹⁶ the prophets of Israel who prophesied concerning Jerusalem and saw visions of peace for it, when there was no peace, says the Lord God.

¹⁷ As for you, mortal, set your face against the daughters of your people, who prophesy out of their own imagination; prophesy against them ¹⁸ and say, Thus says the Lord God: Woe to the women who sew bands on all wrists, and make veils for the heads of persons of every height, in the hunt for human lives! Will you hunt down lives among my people, and maintain your own lives? ¹⁹ You have profaned me among my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, putting to death persons who should not die and keeping alive persons who should not live, by your lies to my people, who listen to lies.

²⁰ Therefore thus says the Lord God: I am against your bands with which you hunt lives;^c I will tear them from your arms, and let the lives go free, the lives that you hunt down like birds. ²¹ I will tear off your veils, and save my people from your hands; they shall no longer be prey in your hands; and you shall know that I am the LORD. ²² Because you have disheartened the righteous falsely, although I have not disheartened them, and you have encouraged the wicked not to turn from their wicked way and save their lives; ²³ therefore you shall no longer see false visions or practice divination; I will save my people from your hand. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

14 Certain elders of Israel came to me and sat down before me. ² And the word of the LORD came to me: ³ Mortal, these men have taken their idols into their hearts, and placed their iniquity as a stumbling block before them; shall I let myself be consulted by them? ⁴ Therefore speak to them, and say to them, Thus says the Lord God: Any of those of the house of Israel who take their idols into their hearts and place their iniquity as a stumbling block before them, and yet come to the prophet—I the LORD will answer those who come with the multitude of their idols, ⁵ in order that I may take hold of the hearts of the house of Israel, all of whom are estranged from me through their idols.

⁶ Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord God: Repent and turn away from your idols; and turn away your faces from all your abominations. ⁷ For any of those

^a Heb they

^b Heb rain and you

^c Gk Syr: Heb lives for birds

The false prophets’ flimsy messages (Jer 23; 27–29) were like mud-plaster that would dissolve in the coming storm/judgment.

13.17–23: Against sorceresses. For a meager fee (v. 19), some exiles safeguarded the wicked and attacked their enemies through black magic. Bands and veils (perhaps “head clothes” or “necklaces” with amulets attached) were likely magical devices used in Babylonian witchcraft to attack and defend, respectively. Babylonian incantations speak of “the knot of evil magic” and limbs “paralyzed” by magic. 18: The sorceresses entrap souls like hunters trapping prey (cf. Prov 6.6).

14.1–11: A legal case involving consultation. Ezekiel uses the legal language of the Holiness School (cf. Lev 17.3–4, 8–9; 20.6) to indict sinful elders who try to consult God (cf. 8.1; 20.1). Consultation is refused, since the words for the situation have already been inscribed as scripture (see 3.22–27n.). 1: Elders, see 8.1n. 3: Placed their iniquity . . . before them, i.e., embraced the wickedness that will ruin them. 5: Idols, not necessarily only false gods here, but any religious duplicity. 6: Repent, cf. 18.21,30; 33.11. 7: Aliens, see 22.7,29; 47.21–23n. The Holiness of the house of Israel, or of the aliens who reside in Israel, who separate themselves from me, taking their idols into their hearts and placing their iniquity as a stumbling block before them, and yet come to a prophet to inquire of me by him, I the LORD will answer them myself. ⁸ I will set my face against them; I will make them a sign and a byword and cut them off from the midst of my people; and you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁹ If a prophet is deceived and speaks a word, I, the LORD, have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand against him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. ¹⁰ And they shall bear their punishment—the punishment of the inquirer and the punishment of the prophet shall be the same—¹¹ so that the house of Israel may no longer go astray from me, nor defile themselves any more with all their transgressions. Then they shall be my people, and I will be their God, says the Lord God.

¹² The word of the LORD came to me:

¹³ Mortal, when a land sins against me by acting faithlessly, and I stretch out my hand against it, and break its staff of bread and send famine upon it, and cut off from it human beings and animals, ¹⁴ even if Noah, Daniel,^a and Job, these three, were in it, they would save only their own lives by their righteousness, says the Lord God. ¹⁵ If I send wild animals through the land to ravage it, so that it is made desolate, and no one may pass through because of the animals; ¹⁶ even if these three men were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, they would save neither sons nor daughters; they alone would be saved, but the land would be desolate. ¹⁷ Or if I bring a sword

upon that land and say, “Let a sword pass through the land,” and I cut off human beings and animals from it; ¹⁸ though these three men were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, they would save neither sons nor daughters, but they alone would be saved. ¹⁹ Or if I send a pestilence into that land, and pour out my wrath upon it with blood, to cut off humans and animals from it; ²⁰ even if Noah, Daniel,^a and Job were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, they would save neither son nor daughter; they would save only their own lives by their righteousness.

²¹ For thus says the Lord God: How much more when I send upon Jerusalem my four deadly acts of judgment, sword, famine, wild animals, and pestilence, to cut off humans and animals from it! ²² Yet, survivors shall be left in it, sons and daughters who will be brought out; they will come out to you. When you see their ways and their deeds, you will be consoled for the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, for all that I have brought upon it. ²³ They shall console you, when you see their ways and their deeds; and you shall know that it was not without cause that I did all that I have done in it, says the Lord God.

15 The word of the LORD came to me:

²⁰ O mortal, how does the wood of the vine surpass all other wood—the vine branch that is among the trees of the forest?

³ Is wood taken from it to make anything? Does one take a peg from it on which to hang any object?

⁴ It is put in the fire for fuel;

^a Or, as otherwise read, Danel

School placed them under the codes of the covenant (Lev 19.33–34; Num 15.13–16). 9–11: Prophets may be deceived into violating God’s prohibition of consultation (cf. 1 Kings 13.18–19). God determines to punish swayed prophets along with idolatrous inquirers (cf. 1 Kings 22.23). 11: Employing the covenant formula, Ezekiel prophesies a new bilateral relationship of God and people (11.20; 16.60,62; 36.28; Lev 26.12 [HS]).

14.12–23: The inevitability of God’s judgment. Jerusalem’s impending punishment is inevitable (a matter of scriptural record, 2.8b–3.3n.). Unlike the case of infamous Sodom (Gen 18.22–33), only righteous individuals themselves can be saved. 14: Noah (Gen 6.9) and Job (Job 1.1), who are not Israelites, are renowned for their righteousness. Daniel (also 28.3) is a third non-Israelite, the ideally righteous ruler Danel (see textual note a) of the Ugaritic texts (ca. 1400 BCE), not the hero of the biblical book of Daniel. 21: On the four agents of judgment, see 5.17 (cf. 5.10n.; 33.27). The four scenarios in vv. 13–14, 15–16, 17–18, and 19–20 each highlight one of the agents. 22–23: Console, since their wicked behavior would prove the justice of God’s judgment.

15.1–8: Analogy of the useless vine. A wild vine of the forest is practically useless—its fruit may be poisonous (2 Kings 4.39–40), and it is unusable for woodworking. This metaphor for Jerusalem shows it has no when the fire has consumed both ends

of it
and the middle of it is charred, is it useful for anything?

⁵When it was whole it was used for
nothing;
how much less—when the fire has consumed it,
and it is charred—
can it ever be used for anything!

⁶Therefore thus says the Lord God: Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so I will give up the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
⁷I will set my face against them; although they escape from the fire, the fire shall still consume them; and you shall know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them.
⁸And I will make the land desolate, because they have acted faithlessly, says the Lord God.
16 The word of the LORD came to me:
²Mortal, make known to Jerusalem her abominations, ³and say, Thus says the Lord God to Jerusalem: Your origin and your birth were in the land of the Canaanites; your father was an Amorite, and your mother a Hittite. ⁴As for your birth, on the day you were born your navel cord was not cut, nor were you washed with water to cleanse you, nor rubbed with salt, nor wrapped in cloths. ⁵No eye pitied you, to do any of these things for you out of compassion for you; but you were thrown out in the open field, for you were abhorred on the day you were born.

⁶I passed by you, and saw you flailing about in your blood. As you lay in your blood, I said to you, “Live! ⁷and grow up^a like a plant of the field.” You grew up and became tall and arrived at full womanhood;^b your breasts were formed, and your hair had grown; yet you were naked and bare.

⁸I passed by you again and looked on you;
you were at the age for love. I spread the edge of my cloak over you, and covered your nakedness: I pledged myself to you and entered into a covenant with you, says the Lord God, and you became mine. ⁹Then I bathed you with water and washed off the blood from you, and anointed you with oil. ¹⁰I clothed you with embroidered cloth and with sandals of fine leather; I bound you in fine linen and covered you with rich fabric.^c ¹¹I adorned you with ornaments: I put bracelets on your arms, a chain on your neck, ¹²a ring on your nose, earrings in your ears, and a beautiful crown upon your head. ¹³You were adorned with gold and silver, while your clothing was of fine linen, rich fabric,^c and embroidered cloth. You had choice flour and honey and oil for food. You grew exceedingly beautiful, fit to be a queen. ¹⁴Your fame spread among

^a Gk Syr: Heb Live! I made you a myriad

^b Cn: Heb ornament of ornaments

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

intrinsic worthiness apart from God’s mysterious election. 7: They escaped from total devastation in 597 BCE, when the Babylonians first attacked Jerusalem. They shall still see fiery destruction in 586 BCE.

16.1–63: The allegory of the unfaithful wife. Expanding the earlier prophetic symbol of Israel as an unfaithful wife, Ezekiel may be borrowing themes of excess and lewdness from the Babylonian carnival of the goddess Ishtar in order to reveal Jerusalem’s chaotic spiritual state and to suggest a carnivalesque opening up of new cosmic possibilities. 1–8: Jerusalem, the foundling. 3: The Canaanites, Amorites, and Hittites (cf. v. 45) were Israel’s predecessors (e.g., Ex 3.8,17; Josh 3.10), who, according to the Holiness School, defiled the land (vv. 44–52; Lev 18.24–25). Jerusalem was a Canaanite (Jebusite) city, which King David captured and assimilated (2 Sam 5.6–10). 4: Salt was thought to make the skin firm or to sanitize it. Wrapping in swaddling cloths was a sign of care (Wis 7.4). 5–7: By God’s intervention, the exposed infant grew into full womanhood (lit., “the loveliest of adornments”). 8: Covering a woman’s nakedness, taking a wife and sharing in her sexuality (Ruth 3.9; Deut 22.30; 27.20). I pledged myself, see 20.5. The bilateral and legally binding relationship of marriage constituted a covenant in the ancient world (Mal 2.14; Prov 2.17). Several biblical texts depict God’s covenant with Israel as a marriage (Hos 1–3; Jer 2.2; 31.32; Isa 50.1; 54.5–6), and ancient vassal treaties spoke of the covenant relationship as “love.” 9–14: The beautiful bride. 9: Mesopotamian marriage rites describe a “day of bathing” and the future husband pouring oil on his betrothed’s head. The blood may signify the breaking of the virginal bride’s hymen (see Deut 22.13–21) or, considering the time compression of the allegory, it may be the birth blood of v. 6. 10. The bride’s clothes represent allusions to the tabernacle’s materials (Ex 25.5; 35.6–7; Num 4.6 [all HS]), since the nations on account of your beauty, for it was perfect because of my splendor that I had bestowed on you, says the Lord God.

¹⁵ But you trusted in your beauty, and played the whore because of your fame, and lavished your whorings on any passer-by.^a ¹⁶ You took some of your garments, and made for yourself colorful shrines, and on them played the whore; nothing like this has ever been or ever shall be.^b ¹⁷ You also took your beautiful jewels of my gold and my silver that I had given you, and made for yourself male images, and with them played the whore;
¹⁸ and you took your embroidered garments to cover them, and set my oil and my incense before them. ¹⁹ Also my bread that I gave you—I fed you with choice flour and oil and honey—you set it before them as a pleasing odor; and so it was, says the Lord God. ²⁰ You took your sons and your daughters, whom you had borne to me, and these you sacrificed to them to be devoured. As if your whorings were not enough! ²¹ You slaughtered my children and delivered them up as an offering to them. ²² And in all your abominations and your whorings you did not remember the days of your youth, when you were naked and bare, flailing about in your blood.

²³ After all your wickedness (woe, woe to you! says the Lord God), ²⁴ you built yourself a platform and made yourself a lofty place in every square; ²⁵ at the head of every street you built your lofty place and prostituted your beauty, offering yourself to every passer-by, and multiplying your whoring.

²⁶ You played the whore with the Egyptians, your lustful neighbors, multiplying your

whoring, to provoke me to anger. ²⁷ Therefore I stretched out my hand against you, reduced your rations, and gave you up to the will of your enemies, the daughters of the Philistines, who were ashamed of your lewd behavior. ²⁸ You played the whore with the Assyrians, because you were insatiable; you played the whore with them, and still you were not satisfied. ²⁹ You multiplied your whoring with Chaldea, the land of merchants; and even with this you were not satisfied.

³⁰ How sick is your heart, says the Lord God, that you did all these things, the deeds of a brazen whore; ³¹ building your platform at the head of every street, and making your lofty place in every square! Yet you were not like a whore, because you scorned payment. ³² Adulterous wife, who receives strangers instead of her husband! ³³ Gifts are given to all whores; but you gave your gifts to all your lovers, bribing them to come to you from all around for your whorings. ³⁴ So you were different from other women in your whorings: no one solicited you to play the whore; and you gave payment, while no payment was given to you; you were different.

³⁵ Therefore, O whore, hear the word of the LORD: ³⁶ Thus says the Lord God, Because your lust was poured out and your nakedness uncovered in your whoring with your lovers, and because of all your abominable idols, and because of the blood of your children that you gave to them, ³⁷ therefore, I will gather all your lovers, with whom you took pleasure,

^a Heb adds let it be his

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

Jerusalem houses God's shrine. 15–34: Sexual betrayal. Ezekiel expands Hosea's (Hos 1–3) and Jeremiah's (Jer 3.1–13) metaphor of Israel as an unfaithful wife. Jerusalem's perversion runs amok, even perverting prostitution (vv. 31–34)—now the clients are the ones to receive payment for sex. 20–22: Children were offered as sacrifices (20.26,31; 23.37n.; 2 Kings 23.10; Jer 7.31; 32.35; Isa 57.5,9), against the prohibitions of the Holiness School (Lev 18.21; 20.2). 26: On illicit relations with Egypt, see 17.7n. Lustful neighbors, the Hebrew denotes their oversized genitals (cf. 23.20). 27: King Sennacherib of Assyria transferred Judean territory to the Philistines in 701 BCE. Even pagan foreigners are ashamed of Jerusalem's behavior. 28: Judah willingly became an Assyrian vassal in 734 BCE (see 2 Kings 16.7–8). Assyrian records mention that King Manasseh of Judah (698/687–642 BCE) was a loyal vassal. 29: Chaldea, Babylonia. Already in the eighth century BCE, King Hezekiah of Judah entertained a Babylonian embassy (2 Kings 20.12–19). Later, King Jehoiakim of Judah (608–598 BCE) became a vassal of Babylonia (2 Kings 24.1) as did King Zedekiah (597–586 BCE; 17.13–14; 2 Kings 24.20; 2 Chr 36.13). 33: Gifts, see 2 Kings 16.7–9; 18.14–16; 23.34–35; Jer 2.18 for examples of Judah's payment of tribute to foreign powers. 35–43: The threat of punishment. God follows Holiness School rules about punishing adultery (Lev 20.10). The real subject is not the divorce of a human woman, however, but military action against Jerusalem. The stoning is a metaphor all those you loved and all those you hated; I will gather them against you from all around, and will uncover your nakedness to them, so that they may see all your nakedness.³⁸ I will judge you as women who commit adultery and shed blood are judged, and bring blood upon you in wrath and jealousy.³⁹ I will deliver you into their hands, and they shall throw down your platform and break down your lofty places; they shall strip you of your clothes and take your beautiful objects and leave you naked and bare.⁴⁰ They shall bring up a mob against you, and they shall stone you and cut you to pieces with their swords.⁴¹ They shall burn your houses and execute judgments on you in the sight of many women; I will stop you from playing the whore, and you shall also make no more payments.⁴² So I will satisfy my fury on you, and my jealousy shall turn away from you; I will be calm, and will be angry no longer.⁴³ Because you have not remembered the days of your youth, but have enraged me with all these things; therefore, I have returned your deeds upon your head, says the Lord God.

Have you not committed lewdness beyond all your abominations?⁴⁴ See, everyone who uses proverbs will use this proverb about you, “Like mother, like daughter.”⁴⁵ You are the daughter of your mother, who loathed her husband and her children; and you are the sister of your sisters, who loathed their husbands and their children. Your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite.

⁴⁶ Your elder sister is Samaria, who lived with her daughters to the north of you; and your younger sister, who lived to the south of you, is Sodom with her daughters.⁴⁷ You not only followed their ways, and acted according to their abominations; within a very little time you were more corrupt than they in all your ways.⁴⁸ As I live, says the Lord God, your sister Sodom and her daughters have not done as you and your daughters have done.⁴⁹ This was the guilt of your sister Sodom: she and her daughters had pride, excess of food, and prosperous ease, but did not aid the poor and needy.⁵⁰ They were haughty, and did abominable things before me; therefore I removed them when I saw it.⁵¹ Samaria has not committed half your sins; you have committed more abominations than they, and have made your sisters appear righteous by all the abominations that you have committed.⁵² Bear your disgrace, you also, for you have brought about for your sisters a more favorable judgment; because of your sins in which you acted more abominably than they, they are more in the right than you. So be ashamed, you also, and bear your disgrace, for you have made your sisters appear righteous.

⁵³ I will restore their fortunes, the fortunes of Sodom and her daughters and the fortunes of Samaria and her daughters, and I will restore your own fortunes along with theirs,⁵⁴ in order that you may bear your disgrace and be ashamed of all that you have done, becoming a consolation to them.⁵⁵ As for your sisters, Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former state, Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former state, and you and your daughters shall return to your former state.⁵⁶ Was not your sister Sodom a byword in your mouth in the day of your pride,⁵⁷ before your wickedness was uncovered? Now you are a mockery to the daughters of Aram^a and all her neighbors, and to the daughters of the Philistines, those all around who despise you.⁵⁸ You must bear the penalty of your lewdness and your abominations, says the LORD.

⁵⁹ Yes, thus says the Lord God: I will deal with you as you have done, you who have despised the oath, breaking the covenant;⁶⁰ yet I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish with you an everlasting covenant.⁶¹ Then you will remember your ways, and be ashamed when I^a take your sisters, both your elder and your younger, and give them to you as daughters, but not on account of my^b covenant with you.⁶² I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall know that I am the LORD,⁶³ in order that you may remember and be confounded, and never open your mouth again because of your shame, when I forgive you all that you have done, says the Lord God.

^a Another reading is Edom

(Deut 22.21–24); the real threat is soldiers’ swords (v. 40) and the destruction of an entire city’s houses (v. 41); cf. 2 Kings 25.8–11. 44–58: Additional accusation. This section elaborates the preceding theme, showing Jerusalem to be so much worse than Samaria (2 Kings 17) and Sodom (Gen 19), both of which were destroyed for their sins, that they appear righteous by comparison (Jer 3.11). 45: Cf. v. 3. 46: Elder sister, better “bigger sister” (which makes more sense historically). Likewise, Sodom is a “smaller” sister, not a younger one. 49: Sodom’s characteristic sin is not sexual but social and moral. Ezekiel’s Holiness School traditions especially stressed social justice and care for the poor (Lev 19.9–15, 33–35; 23.22; 25.13–17 [HS]). 53–58: God will restore all three sisters, humiliating Jerusalem. 57: Aram, probably to be read as “Edom” (see textual note a; cf. 36.5). 59–63: Jerusalem’s

17 The word of the LORD came to me:
²O mortal, propound a riddle, and speak an allegory to the house of Israel. ³Say: Thus says the Lord God:

A great eagle, with great wings and long pinions, rich in plumage of many colors,
 came to the Lebanon.

He took the top of the cedar,
⁴broke off its topmost shoot;
 he carried it to a land of trade,
 set it in a city of merchants.

⁵Then he took a seed from the land, placed it in fertile soil;
 a plant^c by abundant waters,
 he set it like a willow twig.

⁶It sprouted and became a vine spreading out, but low;
 its branches turned toward him,
 its roots remained where it stood.
 So it became a vine;

it brought forth branches,
 put forth foliage.

⁷There was another great eagle, with great wings and much plumage.

And see! This vine stretched out its roots toward him;
 it shot out its branches toward him,
 so that he might water it.

From the bed where it was planted ⁸it was transplanted

to good soil by abundant waters, so that it might produce branches and bear fruit
 and become a noble vine.

⁹Say: Thus says the Lord God:
 Will it prosper?

Will he not pull up its roots,
 cause its fruit to rot^c and wither, its fresh sprouting leaves to fade?
 No strong arm or mighty army will be needed
 to pull it from its roots.

¹⁰When it is transplanted, will it thrive?
 When the east wind strikes it,
 will it not utterly wither,
 wither on the bed where it grew?

¹¹Then the word of the LORD came to me:
¹²Say now to the rebellious house: Do you not know what these things mean? Tell them:
 The king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, took

^a Syr: Heb you

^b Heb lacks my

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

restoration. Though Israel had despised the covenant, God will remember the promises to the ancestors, as the Holiness School anticipated (Lev 26.42,45). 60: Everlasting covenant, cf. 37.26. Woman Jerusalem here represents Israel as a whole. 61: Samaria and Sodom go from siblings to daughters, a subordinate status that does not detract from the ancient promises. 62: Will establish my covenant (see also v. 60), a phrase characteristic of the Holiness School (e.g., Gen 17.7; Ex 6.4; Lev 26.9 [HS]).

17.1–24: The allegorical fable of the eagles. 1–10: The fable. 3–4: Great eagle, the Babylonian king Nebuchadrezzar; Lebanon, Jerusalem; top of the cedar, house of David (Jer 22.23); topmost shoot, Jehoiachin, Judean king who was exiled to Babylon in 597 BCE (2 Kings 24.8–16); land of trade, Babylonia; city of merchants, Babylon. 5: Seed from the land, Zedekiah, the last king of Judah (597–586 BCE); placed it in fertile soil, i.e., made him king in Judah (2 Kings 24.17). 6: Low, submissive to King Nebuchadrezzar. Branches turned toward him, loyal in his vassalage. 7: Another great eagle, Psammetichus II of Egypt (594–588 BCE), with whom Zedekiah negotiated for assistance against Babylonia (Jer 37.5). 8: Was transplanted to . . ., or read: “remained planted in.” 9–10: Zedekiah’s doom is sure, but the agent of punishment (he, v. 9; the east wind, v. 10) is not fixed. Verse 9b suggests that God’s first choice had been to pull up the vine directly, without using the mighty army that Babylon ended up sending (see v. 17). God personally wields the desert east wind in Ex 10.13; 14.21; Isa 11.15; Hos 13.15; Jonah 4.8. 11–21: The interpretation. See 2 Kings 24. 13: Under oath, 2 Chr 36.13. Nebuchadrezzar would have to punish Zedekiah for its king and its officials, and brought them back with him to Babylon. ¹³ He took one of the royal offspring and made a covenant with him, putting him under oath (he had taken away the chief men of the land), ¹⁴ so that the kingdom might be humble and not lift itself up, and that by keeping his covenant it might stand. ¹⁵ But he rebelled against him by sending ambassadors to Egypt, in order that they might give him horses and a large army. Will he succeed? Can one escape who does such things? Can he break the covenant and yet escape? ¹⁶ As I live, says the Lord God, surely in the place where the king resides who made him king, whose oath he despised, and whose covenant with him he broke—in Babylon he shall die. ¹⁷ Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company will not help him in war, when ramps are cast up and siege walls built to cut off many lives. ¹⁸ Because he despised the oath and broke the covenant, because he gave his hand and yet did all these things, he shall not escape. ¹⁹ Therefore thus says the Lord God: As I live, I will surely return upon his head my oath that he despised, and my covenant that he broke. ²⁰ I will spread my net over him, and he shall be caught in my snare; I will bring him to Babylon and enter into judgment with him there for the treason he has committed against me. ²¹ All the pick^a of his troops shall fall by the sword, and the survivors shall be scattered to every wind; and you shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken.

²² Thus says the Lord God:
 I myself will take a sprig from the lofty top of a cedar;
 I will set it out.
 I will break off a tender one from the topmost of its young twigs;
 I myself will plant it
 on a high and lofty mountain.
²³ On the mountain height of Israel
 I will plant it,
 in order that it may produce boughs and bear fruit,
 and become a noble cedar.
 Under it every kind of bird will live;
 in the shade of its branches will nest winged creatures of every kind.
²⁴ All the trees of the field shall know that I am the LORD.
 I bring low the high tree,
 I make high the low tree;
 I dry up the green tree
 and make the dry tree flourish.
 I the LORD have spoken;
 I will accomplish it.

18 The word of the LORD came to me: ² What do you mean by repeating this proverb concerning the land of Israel, “The parents have eaten sour grapes, and the children’s teeth are set on edge”? ³ As I live, says the Lord God, this proverb shall no more be used by you in Israel. ⁴ Know that all lives are mine; the life of the parent as well as the life

^a Another reading is fugitives

violating his oath of loyalty (see v. 7n.). 19–21: Just as Nebuchadnezzar will not overlook Zedekiah’s breaking his oath of loyalty, so also will God punish him for breaking the LORD’s covenant with Israel (16.59). 22–24: The fable expanded, an allegory about the restoration of the Davidic monarchy. Other passages in Ezekiel that speak of a new, ideal Davidic ruler include 29.21; 34.23–24; 37.24–25. 22: As in v. 3, the top of a cedar is the house of David, but now God becomes the great eagle cultivating it. For the metaphor of the ideal coming ruler as a sprig, twig, or branch, cf. Isa 11.1; 53.2; Jer 23.5–6; 33.15; Zech 3.8; 6.12. Tender means the ruler will be humble and vulnerable. The ideal king Josiah had been described with this wording (2 Kings 22.19). 23: Noble cedar, the archetypal “cosmic tree” in Near Eastern mythology. In a royal stele from Teima, a Babylonian king holds a symbolic cosmic tree as his scepter.

18.1–32: Being accountable. 1–4: The text does not deny the notion of corporate (communal) punishment or contradict the statement of Ex 20.5 that parents can pass on the consequences of sin to their children. In places such as 16.44 and 20.4,30 Ezekiel affirms that sins and their punishments may involve long-term consequences for individuals and for the corporate community. What Ezekiel is stressing is that the exiles cannot hide behind a defense of fatalism but must take responsibility for their present circumstances and their future. The prophet’s audience is far from an innocent generation, and it is not appropriate for them to view their present fate as inexorably determined by past actions of their ancestors (cf. Jer 31.29–30, which quotes the same proverb). 4: Ezekiel’s stress on individual responsibility is not innovative but recalls Num 16.22–24 (HS; cf. Deut 24.16).

of the child is mine: it is only the person who sins that shall die.

⁵ If a man is righteous and does what is lawful and right—⁶ if he does not eat upon the mountains or lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, does not defile his neighbor's wife or approach a woman during her menstrual period,⁷ does not oppress anyone, but restores to the debtor his pledge, commits no robbery, gives his bread to the hungry and covers the naked with a garment,⁸ does not take advance or accrued interest, withholds his hand from iniquity, executes true justice between contending parties,⁹ follows my statutes, and is careful to observe my ordinances, acting faithfully—such a one is righteous; he shall surely live, says the Lord God.

¹⁰ If he has a son who is violent, a shedder of blood,¹¹ who does any of these things (though his father^a does none of them), who eats upon the mountains, defiles his neighbor's wife,¹² oppresses the poor and needy, commits robbery, does not restore the pledge, lifts up his eyes to the idols, commits abomination,¹³ takes advance or accrued interest; shall he then live? He shall not. He has done all these abominable things; he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon himself.

¹⁴ But if this man has a son who sees all the sins that his father has done, considers, and does not do likewise,¹⁵ who does not eat upon the mountains or lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, does not defile his neighbor's wife,¹⁶ does not wrong anyone, exacts no pledge, commits no robbery, but gives his bread to the hungry and covers the naked with a garment,

¹⁷ withholds his hand from iniquity,^b takes no advance or accrued interest, observes my ordinances, and follows my statutes; he shall not die for his father's iniquity; he shall surely live.¹⁸ As for his father, because he practiced extortion, robbed his brother, and did what is not good among his people, he dies for his iniquity.

¹⁹ Yet you say, "Why should not the son suffer for the iniquity of the father?" When the son has done what is lawful and right, and has been careful to observe all my statutes, he shall surely live.²⁰ The person who sins shall die. A child shall not suffer for the iniquity of a parent, nor a parent suffer for the iniquity of a child; the righteousness of the righteous shall be his own, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be his own.

²¹ But if the wicked turn away from all their sins that they have committed and keep all my statutes and do what is lawful and right, they shall surely live; they shall not die.²² None of the transgressions that they have committed shall be remembered against them; for the righteousness that they have done they shall live.²³ Have I any pleasure in the death of the wicked, says the Lord God, and not rather that they should turn from their ways and live?²⁴ But when the righteous turn away from their righteousness and commit iniquity and do the same abominable things that the wicked do, shall they live? None of the righteous deeds that they have done shall be remembered; for the treachery of which they are guilty and the sin they have committed, they shall die.

^a Heb he

^b Gk: Heb the poor

God, who owns all lives, i.e., "the spirits of all flesh" (Num 16.22 [HS]), desires life for each human creature (cf. Ezek 18.23,32; 33.11), and those Israelites who separate themselves from all offenders against God's holiness will surely find salvation in the midst of God's judgment (Num 16.24 [HS]; cf. Deut 24.16). 5–9: First, a description of a righteous generation. The list includes both ritual and ethical provisions; Ezekiel's theology shares with the Holiness School a concern with the entire range of sin from ceremonial to moral. 6: Eat upon the mountains, idolatrous sacrifices at high places (6.1–14). Lift up his eyes, seek aid from (cf. 23.27; 33.25). Defile his neighbor's wife, Lev 18.20 (HS). Menstrual period, Lev 18.19 (HS). 7: Oppress anyone, Lev 25.17 (HS). Restores to the debtor his pledge, returns any security on a loan once a debt is repaid. Robbery, Lev 19.13 (HS). 8: Interest, Lev 25.36 (HS). Executes true justice, Lev 19.15 (HS); Zech 7.9. 10–13: Second, a description of a wicked generation. A life opposite to that of the father. 10: Shedder of blood, 16.38; 22.3; 23.45; 33.25; Num 35.33–34 (HS). 14–18: Third, a righteous generation; another reversal. 19–20: Summation: neither the righteousness nor the wickedness of a previous generation is transferable to the next; cf. Deut 24.16. 21–24: Within an individual's life the same argument pertains. 23: See v. 4n.

²⁵ Yet you say, “The way of the Lord is unfair.” Hear now, O house of Israel: Is my way unfair? Is it not your ways that are unfair? ²⁶ When the righteous turn away from their righteousness and commit iniquity, they shall die for it; for the iniquity that they have committed they shall die. ²⁷ Again, when the wicked turn away from the wickedness they have committed and do what is lawful and right, they shall save their life. ²⁸ Because they considered and turned away from all the transgressions that they had committed, they shall surely live; they shall not die. ²⁹ Yet the house of Israel says, “The way of the Lord is unfair.” O house of Israel, are my ways unfair? Is it not your ways that are unfair?

³⁰ Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, all of you according to your ways, says the Lord God. Repent and turn from all your transgressions; otherwise iniquity will be your ruin.^a ³¹ Cast away from you all the transgressions that you have committed against me, and get yourselves a new heart and a new spirit! Why will you die, O house of Israel? ³² For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone, says the Lord God. Turn, then, and live.

19 As for you, raise up a lamentation for the princes of Israel, ² and say:

What a lioness was your mother among lions!
She lay down among young lions,
rearing her cubs.

³ She raised up one of her cubs;
he became a young lion,
and he learned to catch prey;
he devoured humans.

⁴ The nations sounded an alarm against him;

he was caught in their pit;
and they brought him with hooks
to the land of Egypt.

⁵ When she saw that she was thwarted,
that her hope was lost,
she took another of her cubs
and made him a young lion.

⁶ He prowled among the lions;
he became a young lion,
and he learned to catch prey;
he devoured people.

⁷ And he ravaged their strongholds,^b and laid waste their towns;
the land was appalled, and all in it,
at the sound of his roaring.

⁸ The nations set upon him from the provinces all around;
they spread their net over him;
he was caught in their pit.

⁹ With hooks they put him in a cage, and brought him to the king of Babylon;

they brought him into custody,
so that his voice should be heard no
more
on the mountains of Israel.

¹⁰ Your mother was like a vine in a vineyard^c
transplanted by the water, fruitful and full of branches from abundant water.

^a Or so that they shall not be a stumbling block of iniquity to you

^b Heb his widows

^c Cn: Heb in your blood

25–29: To object is to misunderstand God’s justice; cf. 33.17,20. 30–32: The invitation to repentance is open (cf. 14.6; 33.11). The prophet’s call that the people create for themselves a new heart and a new spirit is later replaced by an emphasis that God will have to take the initiative and perform this action (36.26n.; cf. 11.19; Jer 32.39). Why will you die? see 33.11n.

19.1–14: Two funeral dirges. 1–9: First dirge. 1: Lamentation, a parody of a dirge, condemning the exploitative rule of Judah’s last monarchs. Princes, the book’s preferred term for Israel’s rulers (cf. 12.10; 19.1; 34.24; 37.25; 44.1–3n.). 2: The lioness is Judah (cf. Gen 49.9). 3–4: The first cub is King Jehoahaz (Shallum), taken to Egypt in 609 BCE (2 Kings 23.30–34; Jer 22.10–12). 5–9: The second cub could be Jehoiakim, since the land was appalled (v. 7) during his reign (cf. 2 Kings 24.4; Jer 22.13–19). The biblical references (2 Chr 36.6; Dan 1.1–2) to his being taken into Babylonian custody (v. 9) are questionable historically, however, so the second cub is probably a composite symbol that also includes subsequent kings such as Zedekiah, exiled to Babylon in 586 BCE (2 Kings 25.7; Jer 39.7). Zedekiah and the first “cub” had the same literal mother, Hamutal (2 Kings 23.31; 24.18; Jer 52.1). 10–14: Second dirge. 10: The vine is Judah, and its towering growth signals arrogant pride.

¹¹ Its strongest stem became a ruler's scepter;^a it towered aloft
 among the thick boughs;
 it stood out in its height
 with its mass of branches.
¹² But it was plucked up in fury,
 cast down to the ground;
 the east wind dried it up;
 its fruit was stripped off,
 its strong stem was withered;
 the fire consumed it.
¹³ Now it is transplanted into the
 wilderness,
 into a dry and thirsty land.
¹⁴ And fire has gone out from its stem, has consumed its branches and fruit,
 so that there remains in it no strong stem,
 no scepter for ruling.

This is a lamentation, and it is used as a lamentation.

20 In the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, certain elders of Israel came to consult the LORD, and sat down before me.

² And the word of the LORD came to me:

³ Mortal, speak to the elders of Israel, and say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Why are you coming? To consult me? As I live, says the Lord God, I will not be consulted by you.

⁴ Will you judge them, mortal, will you judge them? Then let them know the abominations of their ancestors, ⁵ and say to them: Thus says the Lord God: On the day when I chose Israel, I swore to the offspring of the house of Jacob—making myself known to them in the land of Egypt—I swore to them, saying, I am the LORD your God. ⁶ On that day I swore to them that I would bring them out of the land of Egypt into a land that I had searched out for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, the most glorious of all lands. ⁷ And I said to them, Cast away the detestable things your eyes feast on, every one of you, and do not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt; I am the LORD your God. ⁸ But they rebelled against me and would not listen to me; not one of them cast away the detestable things their eyes feasted on, nor did they forsake the idols of Egypt.

Then I thought I would pour out my wrath upon them and spend my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt. ⁹ But I acted for the sake of my name, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations among whom they lived, in whose sight I made myself known to them in bringing them out of the land of Egypt. ¹⁰ So I led them out of the land of Egypt and brought them into the wilderness. ¹¹ I gave them my statutes and showed them my ordinances, by whose observance everyone shall live. ¹² Moreover I gave them my sabbaths, as a sign between me and them, so that they might know that I the LORD sanctify them. ¹³ But the house of Israel

^a Heb Its strongest stems became rulers' scepters

11–13: The strongest stem is plural in Hebrew (textual note a), signifying that both Jehoiakim and Zedekiah are in mind (see 19.5–9n.). The east wind, see 17.10n.; transplanted, Judah is exiled to Babylonia.

20.1–44: Israel's pattern of rebellion. Israel has repeatedly failed to appreciate the LORD's holiness (vv. 12,20,26) and exhibit it to the world (vv. 9,14,22,39,41). The effect of Ezekiel's rhetoric is to drive home how the pattern of rebellion is inevitable for the present generation (vv. 30–32). 1–4: Seventh year . . . fifth month . . . tenth day, August 14, 591 BCE. The elders probably inquire about worship in exile (see v. 32), perhaps about building a shrine. Consultation of the LORD, however, is prohibited (see v. 31n.; 3.22–27n.; 14.1–11n.). 3: Mortal, see 2.1n. 5–9: Rebellion in Egypt. 5: I am the LORD, Ex 6.7 (HS). 6: Ex 6.8 (HS). Milk and honey (also v. 15), see Lev 20.24 (HS; cf. Ex 3.8; Deut 6.3). Most glorious, in Zadokite theology, God is patriotically devoted to Israel's land (Lev 25.23 [HS]; Ezek 7.22; 34.26; 35.10; 36.5). 7–8: On idolatrous worship in Egypt, see Josh 24.14; Ezek 23.3,8. Ex 32.1–6 suggests that life in Egypt had fostered a comfort level with worship images and orgiastic rites. I am the LORD your God, Lev 19.4 (HS). 9: For the sake of my name (vv. 14,22,39,44; cf. 36.20–23; 39.7,25; 43.7–8), God's intense concern for God's name is a motif from the Holiness School (see Lev 18.21; 19.12; 20.3; 21.6; 22.2,32 [HS]). The focus is not God's personal concern for honor but God's determination to act irrespective of the people's intractability. God acts in a manner set by God's character (God's "name"). 10–17: Rebellion in the wilderness. 11: Lev 18.5 (HS). 12–13: The Holiness School emphasizes the sabbath (Ex 31.13; Lev 19.30; 26.2 [HS]), stressing it as a sign of priestly service even of laypeople. On the sabbath as a sign, see Ex 31.17. For a violation of the sabbath rebelled against me in the wilderness; they did not observe my statutes but rejected my ordinances, by whose observance everyone shall live; and my sabbaths they greatly profaned.

Then I thought I would pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness, to make an end of them.¹⁴ But I acted for the sake of my name, so that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations, in whose sight I had brought them out.¹⁵ Moreover I swore to them in the wilderness that I would not bring them into the land that I had given them, a land flowing with milk and honey, the most glorious of all lands,¹⁶ because they rejected my ordinances and did not observe my statutes, and profaned my sabbaths; for their heart went after their idols.¹⁷ Nevertheless my eye spared them, and I did not destroy them or make an end of them in the wilderness.

¹⁸I said to their children in the wilderness, Do not follow the statutes of your parents, nor observe their ordinances, nor defile yourselves with their idols.¹⁹ I the LORD am your God; follow my statutes, and be careful to observe my ordinances,²⁰ and hallow my sabbaths that they may be a sign between me and you, so that you may know that I the LORD am your God.²¹ But the children rebelled against me; they did not follow my statutes, and were not careful to observe my ordinances, by whose observance everyone shall live; they profaned my sabbaths.

Then I thought I would pour out my wrath upon them and spend my anger against them in the wilderness.²² But I withheld my hand, and acted for the sake of my name, so that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations, in whose sight I had brought them out.²³ Moreover I swore to them in the wilderness that I would scatter them among the nations and disperse them through the countries,²⁴ because they had not executed my ordinances, but had rejected my statutes and profaned my sabbaths, and their eyes were set on their ancestors' idols.²⁵ Moreover I gave them statutes that were not good and ordinances by which they could not live.²⁶ I defiled them through their very gifts, in their offering up all their firstborn, in order that I might horrify them, so that they might know that I am the LORD.

²⁷Therefore, mortal, speak to the house of Israel and say to them, Thus says the Lord God: In this again your ancestors blasphemed me, by dealing treacherously with me.²⁸ For when I had brought them into the land that I swore to give them, then wherever they saw any high hill or any leafy tree, there they offered their sacrifices and presented the provocation of their offering; there they sent up their pleasing odors, and there they poured out their drink offerings.²⁹ (I said to them, What is the high place to which you go? So it is called Bamah^a to this day.)

³⁰Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord God: Will you defile yourselves after the manner of your ancestors and go astray after their detestable things?³¹ When you offer your gifts and make your children pass through the fire, you defile yourselves with all your idols to this day. And shall I be consulted by you, O house of Israel? As I live, says the Lord God, I will not be consulted by you.

³²What is in your mind shall never happen—the thought, “Let us be like the nations, like the tribes of the countries, and worship wood and stone.”

³³As I live, says the Lord God, surely with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out, I will be king over you.³⁴ I will bring you out from the peoples

^a That is High Place

within HS narrative, see Ex 16.27–30. 18–26: Rebellion of the next generation. 25–26: The people were probably using the “law of the firstborn” (Ex 22.29; 34.19) to legitimate child sacrifice (16.20–22n.). God let them become defiled through God’s very law (cf. 14.9n.). On God’s good gifts provoking perversion, cf. 7.20; 16.14–15,17–21; 28.14–15. 27–32: Application of the passage to Ezekiel’s contemporaries. 29: High place, 6.3n. The Heb word for “high place” (“bamah”) is explained by the nearby words (“what” [“mah”] and “go” [“ba”]). 31: See 16.20–22n.; 23.37; Deut 18.10; 2 Kings 16.3; 17.17; 21.6. The end of the verse echoes v. 3, forming an inclusio (envelope) around the passage. 33–38: A new Exodus. An oracle of promise, but with an angry tone dating prior to Jerusalem’s destruction in 586 BCE. God will triumph with Israel, through force if necessary (see Introduction; Lev 26.42 and gather you out of the countries where you are scattered, with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out;³⁵ and I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there I will enter into judgment with you face to face.³⁶ As I entered into judgment with your ancestors in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so I will enter into judgment with you, says the Lord God.³⁷ I will make you pass under the staff, and will bring you within the bond of the covenant.³⁸ I will purge out the rebels among you, and those who transgress against me; I will bring them out of the land where they reside as aliens, but they shall not enter the land of Israel. Then you shall know that I am the Lord.

³⁹ As for you, O house of Israel, thus says the Lord God: Go serve your idols, every one of you now and hereafter, if you will not listen to me; but my holy name you shall no more profane with your gifts and your idols.

⁴⁰ For on my holy mountain, the mountain height of Israel, says the Lord God, there all the house of Israel, all of them, shall serve me in the land; there I will accept them, and there I will require your contributions and the choicest of your gifts, with all your sacred things.⁴¹ As a pleasing odor I will accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples, and gather you out of the countries where you have been scattered; and I will manifest my holiness among you in the sight of the nations.⁴² You shall know that I am the Lord, when I bring you into the land of Israel, the country that I swore to give to your ancestors.⁴³ There you shall remember your ways and all the deeds by which you have polluted yourselves; and you shall loathe yourselves for all the evils that you have committed.

⁴⁴ And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I deal with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, or corrupt deeds, O house of Israel, says the Lord God.

⁴⁵ ^a The word of the Lord came to me:

⁴⁶ Mortal, set your face toward the south, preach against the south, and prophesy against the forest land in the Negeb;⁴⁷ say to the forest of the Negeb, Hear the word of the Lord: Thus says the Lord God, I will kindle a fire in you, and it shall devour every green tree in you and every dry tree; the blazing flame shall not be quenched, and all faces from south to north shall be scorched by it.⁴⁸ All flesh shall see that I the Lord have kindled it; it shall not be quenched.⁴⁹ Then I said, "Ah Lord God! they are saying of me, 'Is he not a maker of allegories?'"

21 ^b The word of the Lord came to me:
² Mortal, set your face toward Jerusalem and preach against the sanctuaries; prophesy against the land of Israel³ and say to the land of Israel, Thus says the Lord: I am coming against you, and will draw my sword out of its sheath, and will cut off from you both righteous and wicked.⁴ Because I will cut off from you both righteous and wicked, therefore my sword shall go out of its sheath against all flesh from south to north;⁵ and all flesh shall know that I the Lord have drawn my sword out of its sheath; it shall not be sheathed again.⁶ Moan therefore, mortal; moan with breaking heart and bitter grief before their eyes.⁷ And when they say to you, "Why do you moan?" you shall say, "Because of the news that has come. Every heart will melt and all hands will be feeble, every spirit will faint and all knees will turn to water. See, it comes and it will be fulfilled," says the Lord God.

^a Ch 21.1 in Heb

^b Ch 21.6 in Heb

[HS.] As in the wilderness (Num 14.26–35 [HS]), the unfaithful will be purged. 37: Pass under the staff, see Lev 27.32 (HS). 39–44: Final acceptance. After the new Exodus, deity, nation, and land will be united in covenant once and for all. 40: The entire land, with the Temple high upon it (40.2), is God's "cosmic" mountain, the "lofty highlands" of Israel (cf. 17.23; 34.14). All of them includes the Northern Kingdom (37.22).

20.45–21.32: Sword prophecies (Lev 26.25,33 [HS]). 20.45–21.7: The sword against all flesh. 20.45–49: South and Negeb (the south country) both stand for Judah and Jerusalem, which lie south of their attackers. 49: Saying Ezekiel speaks in riddles, making up stories, the people cannot take a claim of Jerusalem's vulnerability seriously (see 3.7; 11.3n.; 13.10–16n.; 33.32). 21.1–5: The preceding forest fire is interpreted as the sword of God. 2: Sanctuaries, sacred precincts of the Temple (cf. Lev 21.28 [HS]). 6–7: The message is reiterated through an expressive action.

⁸ And the word of the LORD came to me:
⁹ Mortal, prophesy and say: Thus says the Lord; Say:

A sword, a sword is sharpened,
 it is also polished;

¹⁰ it is sharpened for slaughter,
 honed to flash like lightning!

How can we make merry?

You have despised the rod, and all discipline.^a

¹¹ The sword^b is given to be polished, to be grasped in the hand;
 it is sharpened, the sword is polished,
 to be placed in the slayer's hand.

¹² Cry and wail, O mortal, for it is against my people;
 it is against all Israel's princes;
 they are thrown to the sword,
 together with my people.

Ah! Strike the thigh!

¹³ For consider: What! If you despise the rod, will it not happen?^a says the Lord GOD.

¹⁴ And you, mortal, prophesy;
 strike hand to hand.

Let the sword fall twice, thrice;
 it is a sword for killing.

A sword for great slaughter—
 it surrounds them;

¹⁵ therefore hearts melt and many stumble.

At all their gates I have set
 the point^a of the sword.

Ah! It is made for flashing, it is polished^c for slaughter.

¹⁶ Attack to the right!

Engage to the left!
 —wherever your edge is directed.

¹⁷ I too will strike hand to hand,
 I will satisfy my fury;
 I the LORD have spoken.

¹⁸ The word of the LORD came to me:

¹⁹ Mortal, mark out two roads for the sword of the king of Babylon to come; both of them shall issue from the same land. And make a signpost, make it for a fork in the road leading to a city; ²⁰ mark out the road for the sword to come to Rabbah of the Ammonites or to Judah and to^d Jerusalem the fortified. ²¹ For the king of Babylon stands at the parting of the way, at the fork in the two roads, to use divination; he shakes the arrows, he consults the teraphim,^e he inspects the liver. ²² Into his right hand comes the lot for Jerusalem, to set battering rams, to call out for slaughter, for raising the battle cry, to set battering rams against the gates, to cast up ramps, to build siege towers. ²³ But to them it will seem like a false divination; they have sworn solemn oaths; but he brings their guilt to remembrance, bringing about their capture.

²⁴ Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have brought your guilt to remembrance, in that your transgressions are uncovered, so that in all your deeds your sins appear—because you have come to remembrance, you shall be taken in hand.^f

²⁵ As for you, vile, wicked prince of Israel, you whose day has come,
 the time of final punishment,

²⁶ thus says the Lord GOD:

Remove the turban, take off the crown;
 things shall not remain as they are.

Exalt that which is low,
 abase that which is high.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb It

^c Tg: Heb wrapped up

^d Gk Syr: Heb Judah in

^e Or the household gods

^f Or be taken captive

21.8–17: Song of the sword. The sword is first polished (vv. 8–13), and then engaged (vv. 14–17). 12: Strike the thigh, a sign of mourning (Jer 31.19). 14: Strike hand to hand, in vexation (also v. 17; cf. 6.11).

21.18–32: The sword of Nebuchadrezzar. 18–24: A symbolic act. 20: Rabbah (modern Amman, Jordan), capital of Ammon (25.5), an ally of Judah against Babylonia (Jer 27.3). 21: Perhaps from Riblah (see 2 Kings 25.6), Nebuchadrezzar uses divination to determine which rebel to attack first: belomancy: casting of arrows inscribed with names of projected victims; necromancy: teraphim were a traditional family's ancestor figurines (Gen 31.19; 1 Sam 19.13), sometimes expected to convey messages to the living (see Zech 10.2); and hepatoscopy: making predictions based on the appearance of an animal liver. 23: They have sworn, read: "they have received sworn guarantees," i.e., guarantees of Jerusalem's invulnerability (20.49n.). 25–27: The sword will strike King Zedekiah (Jer 21.7), and life will turn upside down. Zechariah will later envision an end-time restoration of both turban

²⁷ A ruin, a ruin, a ruin—
I will make it!

(Such has never occurred.)

Until he comes whose right it is;
to him I will give it.

²⁸ As for you, mortal, prophesy, and say, Thus says the Lord God concerning the Am-monites, and concerning their reproach; say:

A sword, a sword! Drawn for slaughter, polished to consume,^a to flash like lightning.

²⁹ Offering false visions for you, divining lies for you,
they place you over the necks of the vile, wicked ones—
those whose day has come,
the time of final punishment.

³⁰ Return it to its sheath!

In the place where you were created,
in the land of your origin,
I will judge you.

³¹ I will pour out my indignation upon you, with the fire of my wrath
I will blow upon you.

I will deliver you into brutish hands,
those skillful to destroy.

³² You shall be fuel for the fire,
your blood shall enter the earth;
you shall be remembered no more,
for I the LORD have spoken.

22 The word of the LORD came to me:
² You, mortal, will you judge, will you judge the bloody city? Then declare to it all its abominable deeds. ³ You shall say, Thus says the Lord God: A city! Shedding blood within itself; its time has come; making its idols, defiling itself. ⁴ You have become guilty by the blood that you have shed, and defiled by the idols that you have made; you have brought your day near, the appointed time of your years has come. Therefore I have made you a disgrace before the nations, and a mockery to all the countries. ⁵ Those who are near and those who are far from you will mock you, you infamous one, full of tumult.

⁶ The princes of Israel in you, everyone according to his power, have been bent on shedding blood. ⁷ Father and mother are treated with contempt in you; the alien residing within you suffers extortion; the orphan and the widow are wronged in you. ⁸ You have despised my holy things, and profaned my sabbaths. ⁹ In you are those who slander to shed blood, those in you who eat upon the mountains, who commit lewdness in your midst. ¹⁰ In you they uncover their fathers' nakedness; in you they violate women in their menstrual periods. ¹¹ One commits abomination with his neighbor's wife; another lewdly defiles his daughter-in-law; another in you defiles his sister, his father's daughter.
¹² In you, they take bribes to shed blood;
you take both advance interest and accrued interest, and make gain of your neighbors by extortion; and you have forgotten me, says
the Lord God.

¹³ See, I strike my hands together at the dishonest gain you have made, and at the blood that has been shed within you. ¹⁴ Can your courage endure, or can your hands remain strong in the days when I shall deal with you? I the LORD have spoken, and I will do it. ¹⁵ I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you through the countries, and I will purge your filthiness out of you. ¹⁶ And I^b shall be profaned through you in the sight of the nations; and you shall know that I am
the LORD.

^a Cn: Heb to contain

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb you and crown in twin passages (see Zech 3:5; 6:14). 27: Until . . ., language from Gen 49:10–12; it would be a full measure of time until God set things right. 21.28–32: A poem addressing the Babylonian sword directly and telling it of its own eventual punishment. 28: A prose introduction alerts the Ammonites (see v. 20) that their glee over the sword's work (25:3,6) will be short-lived. 29: As with Judah, false reassurances and a belief that the Babylonians are divining lies (see v. 23n.) circulated in Ammon. 30–32: Although Nebuchadnezzar served as God's agent, he himself, and Babylonia, will eventually face God's judgment (cf. Hab 3:16; Zech 1:15).

22.1–31: Prophecies of smelting judgment. 22.1–16: A prophecy against Jerusalem, the bloody city. The indictment of vv. 6–12 contains a catalogue of sins based on the regulations of the Holiness School (Lev 18–20). 13–16: In scorn and anger (strike my hands together, 21:14,17) God will punish this bloody city (18:10n.; Num 35:33–34 [HS]). 16: The Hebrew reads: "You will profane/dishonor yourself."

¹⁷The word of the LORD came to me: ¹⁸Mortal, the house of Israel has become dross to me; all of them, silver,^a bronze, tin, iron, and lead. In the smelter they have become dross. ¹⁹Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have all become dross, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem. ²⁰As one gathers silver, bronze, iron, lead, and tin into a smelter, to blow the fire upon them in order to melt them; so I will gather you in my anger and in my wrath, and I will put you in and melt you. ²¹I will gather you and blow upon you with the fire of my wrath, and you shall be melted within it. ²²As silver is melted in a smelter, so you shall be melted in it; and you shall know that I the LORD have poured out my wrath upon you.

²³The word of the LORD came to me: ²⁴Mortal, say to it: You are a land that is not cleansed, not rained upon in the day of indignation. ²⁵Its princes^b within it are like a roaring lion tearing the prey; they have devoured human lives; they have taken treasure and precious things; they have made many widows within it. ²⁶Its priests have done violence to my teaching and have profaned my holy things; they have made no distinction between the holy and the common, neither have they taught the difference between the unclean and the clean, and they have disregarded my sabbaths, so that I am profaned among them. ²⁷Its officials within it are like wolves tearing the prey, shedding blood, destroying lives to get dishonest gain. ²⁸Its prophets have smeared whitewash on their behalf, seeing false visions and divining lies for them, saying, “Thus says the Lord God,” when the LORD has not spoken. ²⁹The people of the land have practiced extortion and committed robbery; they have oppressed the poor and needy, and have extorted from the alien without redress. ³⁰And I sought for anyone among them who would repair the wall and stand in the breach before me on behalf of the land, so that I would not destroy it; but I found no one. ³¹Therefore I have poured out my indignation upon them; I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath; I have returned their conduct upon their heads, says the Lord God.

23 The word of the LORD came to me: ²Mortal, there were two women, the daughters of one mother; ³they played the whore in Egypt; they played the whore in their youth; their breasts were caressed there, and their virgin bosoms were fondled. ⁴Oholah was the name of the elder and Oholibah the name of her sister. They became mine, and they bore sons and daughters. As for their names, Oholah is Samaria, and Oholibah is Jerusalem.

⁵Oholah played the whore while she was mine; she lusted after her lovers the Assyrians, warriors^c ⁶clothed in blue, governors and commanders, all of them handsome young men, mounted horsemen. ⁷She bestowed her favors upon them, the choicest men of Assyria all of them; and she defiled herself with all the idols of everyone for whom she lusted. ⁸She did not give up her whorings that she had practiced since Egypt; for in her youth men had lain with her and fondled her virgin bosom and poured out their lust upon her. ⁹Therefore I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the Assyrians, for whom she lusted. ¹⁰These

^a Transposed from the end of the verse; compare verse 20

^b Gk: Heb indignation. ²⁵A conspiracy of its prophets

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

22.17–22: Israel is slag, waste metal. The judgment will be like a smelter in which base metals are removed.

22.23–31: All classes of Judean society are corrupt. Cf. Jer 8.8–10; Zeph 3.3–4. 26: 42.20; 44.23; Lev 10.10–11 (HS). 28: 13.10–16n. 30: 13.5n.

23.1–49: The allegory of the sisters, Oholah and Oholibah (cf. ch 16 and annotations there). 1–4: Introduction. 3: In Egypt, thus Israel's apostasy was deep rooted (20.5–9). 4: The wordplay Oholah, “her [own] tent” (Samaria), and Oholibah, “my tent [is] in her,” (Jerusalem), suggests that though the Northern Kingdom had shrines to the Lord, God's real dwelling (tent) was in Jerusalem, thus emphasizing the enormity of Judah's apostasy. See Gen 36.2 for a similar type of name. Oholah/Samaria is a “bigger” sister, not an elder one (see 16.46n.). The image of marrying sisters comes from Jeremiah (Jer 3.6–11). 5–10: Oholah. The Northern Kingdom is condemned for its alliances with Assyria (e.g., 2 Kings 15.19; 17.3). Like Jeremiah (4.30; same rare word for “lovers” as in Ezek 23.5,9), Ezekiel viewed foreign alliances as disloyalty to God. 10: The fall of Samaria to Assyria in 722 BCE.

uncovered her nakedness; they seized her sons and her daughters; and they killed her with the sword. Judgment was executed upon her, and she became a byword among women.

¹¹ Her sister Oholibah saw this, yet she was more corrupt than she in her lusting and in her whorings, which were worse than those of her sister. ¹² She lusted after the Assyrians, governors and commanders, warriors^a clothed in full armor, mounted horsemen, all of them handsome young men. ¹³ And I saw that she was defiled; they both took the same way. ¹⁴ But she carried her whorings further; she saw male figures carved on the wall, images of the Chaldeans portrayed in vermilion, ¹⁵ with belts around their waists, with flowing turbans on their heads, all of them looking like officers—a picture of Babylonians whose native land was Chaldea. ¹⁶ When she saw them she lusted after them, and sent messengers to them in Chaldea. ¹⁷ And the Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their lust; and after she defiled herself with them, she turned from them in disgust. ¹⁸ When she carried on her whorings so openly and flaunted her nakedness, I turned in disgust from her, as I had turned from her sister. ¹⁹ Yet she increased her whorings, remembering the days of her youth, when she played the whore in the land of Egypt ²⁰ and lusted after her paramours there, whose members were like those of donkeys, and whose emission was like that of stallions. ²¹ Thus you longed for the lewdness of your youth, when the Egyptians^b fondled your bosom and caressed^c your young breasts.

²² Therefore, O Oholibah, thus says the Lord God: I will rouse against you your lovers from whom you turned in disgust, and I will bring them against you from every side: ²³ the Babylonians and all the Chaldeans, Pekod and Shoa and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them, handsome young men, governors and commanders all of them, officers and warriors,^d all of them riding on horses. ²⁴ They shall come against you from the north^e with chariots and wagons and a host of peoples; they shall set themselves against you on every side with buckler, shield, and helmet, and I will commit the judgment to them, and they shall judge you according to their ordinances. ²⁵ I will direct my indignation against you, in order that they may deal with you in fury. They shall cut off your nose and your ears, and your survivors shall fall by the sword. They shall seize your sons and your daughters, and your survivors shall be devoured by fire. ²⁶ They shall also strip you of your clothes and take away your fine jewels. ²⁷ So I will put an end to your lewdness and your whoring brought from the land of Egypt; you shall not long for them, or remember Egypt any more. ²⁸ For thus says the Lord God: I will deliver you into the hands of those whom you hate, into the hands of those from whom you turned in disgust; ²⁹ and they shall deal with you in hatred, and take away all the fruit of your labor, and leave you naked and bare, and the nakedness of your whorings shall be exposed. Your lewdness and your whorings³⁰ have brought this upon you, because you played the whore with the nations, and polluted yourself with their idols. ³¹ You have gone the way of your sister; therefore I will give her cup into your hand. ³² Thus says the Lord God:

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Two Mss: MT from Egypt

^c Cn: Heb for the sake of

^d Compare verses 6 and 12: Heb officers and called ones

^e Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

11–21: Judah had allied itself with Assyria (2 Kings 16.7–9) and then with Babylon (17.13; 2 Kings 24.1,17; cf. Isa 39.1–8). 14–15: Judean emissaries saw impressive painted wall reliefs. 17: Judah swung to an anti-Babylonian policy (2 Kings 24.20; Jer 27.3). 19: The passage moves to the contemporary event of Judah's alliance with Egypt (17.7,15). 20: The reference is to oversized genitals and ejaculations; cf. 16.26n. Horses are proverbially oversexed (Jer 5.8). 22–35: Announcements about Oholibah's punishment. 23: Kindred allies of the Babylonians included Pekod (an important Aramean tribe in southeast Babylonia), Shoa and Koa (Aramean tribes from east of the Tigris called Sutu and Qutu in Babylonian texts). The three names sound like Hebrew words for "punishment" ("pequdah"), "scream" ("shu'a"), and "shriek" ("qa'ah"). Assyrian troops were co-opted by their Babylonian conquerors. 32–34: The poem of the cup of wrath (Jer 25.15–29; Hab 2.16; Ob 16) links Jerusalem's fate with

You shall drink your sister's cup, deep and wide;
 you shall be scorned and derided,
 it holds so much.

³³You shall be filled with drunkenness and sorrow.

A cup of horror and desolation
 is the cup of your sister Samaria; ³⁴you shall drink it and drain it out,
 and gnaw its sherds,
 and tear out your breasts;

for I have spoken, says the Lord God. ³⁵Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because you have forgotten me and cast me behind your back, therefore bear the consequences of your lewdness and whorings.

³⁶The LORD said to me: Mortal, will you judge Oholah and Oholibah? Then declare to them their abominable deeds. ³⁷For they have committed adultery, and blood is on their hands; with their idols they have committed adultery; and they have even offered up to them for food the children whom they had borne to me. ³⁸Moreover this they have done to me: they have defiled my sanctuary on the same day and profaned my sabbaths. ³⁹For when they had slaughtered their children for their idols, on the same day they came into my sanctuary to profane it. This is what they did in my house.

⁴⁰They even sent for men to come from far away, to whom a messenger was sent, and they came. For them you bathed yourself, painted your eyes, and decked yourself with ornaments; ⁴¹you sat on a stately couch, with a table spread before it on which you had placed my incense and my oil. ⁴²The sound of a raucous multitude was around her, with many of the rabble brought in drunken from the wilderness; and they put bracelets on the arms^a of the women, and beautiful crowns upon their heads.

⁴³Then I said, Ah, she is worn out with adulteries, but they carry on their sexual acts with her. ⁴⁴For they have gone in to her, as one goes in to a whore. Thus they went in to Oholah and to Oholibah, wanton women. ⁴⁵But righteous judges shall declare them guilty of adultery and of bloodshed; because they are adulteresses and blood is on their hands.

⁴⁶For thus says the Lord God: Bring up an assembly against them, and make them an object of terror and of plunder. ⁴⁷The assembly shall stone them and with their swords they shall cut them down; they shall kill their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses. ⁴⁸Thus will I put an end to lewdness in the land, so that all women may take warning and not commit lewdness as you have done. ⁴⁹They shall repay you for your lewdness, and you shall bear the penalty for your sinful idolatry; and you shall know that I am the Lord God.

24 In the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: ²Mortal, write down the name of this day, this very day. The king of Babylon has laid siege to Jerusalem this very day. ³And utter an allegory to the rebellious house and say to them, Thus says the Lord God:

Set on the pot, set it on,
 pour in water also;
⁴put in it the pieces,
 all the good pieces, the thigh and the shoulder;
 fill it with choice bones.
⁵Take the choicest one of the flock,
 pile the logs^b under it;
 boil its pieces,^c
 seethe^d also its bones in it.

^a Heb hands

^b Compare verse 10: Heb the bones

^c Two Mss: Heb its boilings

^d Cn: Heb its bones seethe

Samaria's. 36–49: The case against the sisters. As adulterers are stoned (Lev 20.10 [HS]), so the adultery (i.e., idolatry, child sacrifice, profanation of the sabbath, foreign alliances) of Samaria and Judah has been and will be punished. 37: 16.20–22n. 40: Cf. vv. 16–17. 48: Oholibah's fate becomes an object lesson (cf. v. 10; 26.16; 27.35; 30.9).

24.1–14: The allegory of the pot is a disputation with those still insisting Jerusalem is as inviolable as a cauldron (11.3). Ezekiel turns the cauldron image on its head by depicting it as a dirty pot about to be cleaned by overheating (like a modern self-cleaning oven; vv. 5,9) until the bones inside are burned (v. 10). 1: Ninth year . . . tenth month . . . tenth day, January 15, 588 BCE, the day that the Babylonian siege of Jerusalem began. 5: Jerusalem

⁶Therefore thus says the Lord God:
 Woe to the bloody city,
 the pot whose rust is in it,
 whose rust has not gone out of it!
 Empty it piece by piece, making no choice at all.^a ⁷For the blood she shed is inside it;
 she placed it on a bare rock;
 she did not pour it out on the ground,
 to cover it with earth.
⁸To rouse my wrath, to take
 vengeance,
 I have placed the blood she shed
 on a bare rock,
 so that it may not be covered.
⁹Therefore thus says the Lord God:
 Woe to the bloody city!
 I will even make the pile great.
¹⁰Heap up the logs, kindle the fire;
 boil the meat well, mix in the spices,
 let the bones be burned.
¹¹Stand it empty upon the coals, so that it may become hot, its copper glow,
 its filth melt in it, its rust be consumed.
¹²In vain I have wearied myself;^b its thick rust does not depart.
 To the fire with its rust!^c ¹³Yet, when I cleansed you in your filthy lewdness,
 you did not become clean from your filth;
 you shall not again be cleansed
 until I have satisfied my fury upon you.
¹⁴I the LORD have spoken; the time is coming,
 I will act. I will not refrain, I will not spare, I will not relent. According to your ways and your doings I will judge you, says the Lord GOD.

¹⁵The word of the LORD came to me: ¹⁶Mortal, with one blow I am about to take away from you the delight of your eyes; yet you shall not mourn or weep, nor shall your tears run down. ¹⁷Sigh, but not aloud; make no mourning for the dead. Bind on your turban, and put your sandals on your feet;
 do not cover your upper lip or eat the bread of mourners.^d ¹⁸So I spoke to the people in the morning, and at evening my wife died.
 And on the next morning I did as I was commanded.

¹⁹Then the people said to me, “Will you not tell us what these things mean for us, that you are acting this way?” ²⁰Then I said to them: The word of the LORD came to me: ²¹Say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord God: I will profane my sanctuary, the pride of your power, the delight of your eyes, and your heart’s desire; and your sons and your daughters whom you left behind shall fall by the sword. ²²And you shall do as I have done; you shall not cover your upper lip or eat the bread of mourners.^d ²³Your turbans shall be on your heads and your sandals on your feet; you shall not mourn or weep, but you shall pine away in your iniquities and groan to one another. ²⁴Thus Ezekiel shall be a sign to you; you shall do just as he has done.
 When this comes, then you shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

^a Heb piece, no lot has fallen on it

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Vg Tg: Heb of men

will be boiled as its assailants heap siege equipment around it. 6–8: Ezekiel interprets and expands the image of the pot to provide reasons for Jerusalem’s punishment. Rust, or, alternatively, “encrusted gunk” (also vv. 11–12), represents injustice and bloodguilt (22.6–12). 7–8: Cover it, see Lev 17.13 (HS); Job 16.18.

24.15–27: The death of Ezekiel’s wife. Ezekiel’s symbolic action echoes the language and symbolism of Aaron’s silent mourning in Lev 10.1–7. Here again, the book is steeped in the theology of the Holiness School (see Introduction). 16–17: Ezekiel must stifle all expressions of mourning, such as the unbinding of the hair, the removal of shoes, the covering of the upper lip, and the eating of the bread of mourners. See Lev 10.1–7, where the Holiness School stresses that Aaron’s silence at God’s epiphany must include shunning all participation in mourning rituals. Holiness and death are antithetical realities for Zadokite priests, and those in contact with God’s holiness must avoid the realm of death and mourning (see 44.25n.). In acting out an avoidance of mourning like Aaron’s, Ezekiel conveys to the people that the fall of Jerusalem will be a major epiphany of divine holiness on earth. 22–24: The people’s deep, silent grief will signify a profound discernment of divine judgment, in contrast to their previous skepticism and enmity toward Ezekiel. It will also entail recognition of God’s

²⁵ And you, mortal, on the day when I take from them their stronghold, their joy and glory, the delight of their eyes and their heart's affection, and also^a their sons and their daughters, ²⁶ on that day, one who has escaped will come to you to report to you the news. ²⁷ On that day your mouth shall be opened to the one who has escaped, and you shall speak and no longer be silent. So you shall be a sign to them; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

25 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, set your face toward the Ammonites and prophesy against them. ³ Say to the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord GOD: Thus says the Lord GOD, Because you said, "Aha!" over my sanctuary when it was profaned, and over the land of Israel when it was made desolate, and over the house of Judah when it went into exile; ⁴ therefore I am handing you over to the people of the east for a possession. They shall set their encampments among you and pitch their tents in your midst; they shall eat your fruit, and they shall drink your milk. ⁵ I will make Rabbah a pasture for camels and Ammon a fold for flocks. Then you shall know that I am the LORD. ⁶ For thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have clapped your hands and stamped your feet and rejoiced with all the malice within you against the land of Israel, ⁷ therefore I have stretched out my hand against you, and will hand you over as plunder to the nations. I will cut you off from the peoples and will make you perish out of the countries; I will destroy you. Then you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁸ Thus says the Lord GOD: Because Moab^b said, The house of Judah is like all the other nations, ⁹ therefore I will lay open the flank of Moab from the towns^c on its frontier, the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim. ¹⁰ I will give it along with Ammon to the people of the east as a possession. Thus Ammon shall be remembered no more among the nations, ¹¹ and I will execute judgments upon Moab. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

¹² Thus says the Lord GOD: Because Edom acted revengefully against the house of Judah and has grievously offended in taking vengeance upon them, ¹³ therefore thus says the Lord GOD, I will stretch out my hand against Edom, and cut off from it humans and animals, and I will make it desolate; from Teman even to Dedan they shall fall by the sword. ¹⁴ I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel; and they shall act in Edom according to my anger and according to my wrath; and they shall know my vengeance, says the Lord GOD.

¹⁵ Thus says the Lord GOD: Because with unending hostilities the Philistines acted in vengeance, and with malice of heart took revenge in destruction; ¹⁶ therefore thus says

^a Heb lacks and also

^b Gk Old Latin: Heb Moab and Seir

^c Heb towns from its towns otherness (v. 24). 25–27: Release predicted. The prophet's muted response to the death of his wife has been a continuation of his speechlessness (3.22–27). When word of Jerusalem's fall reaches Ezekiel (see 33.21–22), his tongue will be loosed (3.27) and his speechlessness transferred to the people (v. 23). That is, they will fully accept God's insistence from the start of the book on radically prioritizing the divine intention and its sure performance. They will drop a false reliance on the pride of their power (v. 21) and their stronghold (v. 25).

25.1–32.32: Oracles against the nations. This part of Ezekiel is an effective bridge between the book's message of doom and its message of hope. Here, doom for Israel's antagonists spells hope for Israel itself. Seven nations (Ammon, Moab, Edom, Philistia, Tyre, Sidon, and Egypt) will be punished before Israel is restored (36.5–7).

25.1–17: Oracles against Ammon, Moab, Edom, and Philistia. 1–7: Against Ammon (21.28; Am 1.13–15; Jer 49.1–6). Ammon, which maliciously gloated over Judah's fall (Lam 2.15–16), is to be occupied by the people of the east (v. 4; cf. Isa 11.14), i.e., nomadic Arab tribes. 5: Rabbah (modern Amman, Jordan) was the Ammonite capital. 8–11: Against Moab. Cf. Jer 48. 8: Cf. 20.32. 9: God will lay bare Moab's high tableland (flank), destroying three fortified cities, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim, all just east of the northern end of the Dead Sea. 12–14: Against Edom. Cf. Jer 49.7–22; Ob; Ps 137.3. 12: Vengeance, Ob 10–14; Ps 137.7. 13: Destruction will stretch from Teman in southern Edom to Dedan in northern Arabia, localities also associated with Edom in Jer 49.7–8. 14: Ob 18–21. 15–17: Against Philistia. Cf. Jer 47. 16: Cut off the Cherethites is a wordplay in Heb.

Chs 25–32: Places mentioned in the oracles against foreign nations.

the Lord GOD, I will stretch out my hand against the Philistines, cut off the Cherethites, and destroy the rest of the seacoast.¹⁷ I will execute great vengeance on them with wrathful punishments. Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I lay my vengeance on them.

26 In the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me:² Mortal, because Tyre said concerning Jerusalem,

“Aha, broken is the gateway of the peoples; it has swung open to me; I shall be replenished, now that it is wasted,”

³ therefore, thus says the Lord GOD:

See, I am against you, O Tyre!

I will hurl many nations against you, as the sea hurls its waves.

⁴ They shall destroy the walls of Tyre and break down its towers.

I will scrape its soil from it and make it a bare rock.

⁵ It shall become, in the midst of the sea, a place for spreading nets.

I have spoken, says the Lord GOD.

It shall become plunder for the nations,

⁶ and its daughter-towns in the country shall be killed by the sword.

Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

⁷ For thus says the Lord GOD: I will bring against Tyre from the north King

These coastal dwellers are probably Cretans; the Philistines originally came from Aegean islands; cf. 1 Sam 30:14; Am 9:7; Zeph 2:5; Jer 47:4.

26.1–28.19: Oracles against Tyre. 26.1–21: Nebuchadnezzar will destroy Tyre. 1–6: Tyre is judged for gloating over the fall of Jerusalem, a commercial rival, excited to take over the city’s trade. 1: The month number is missing, and even the final months of the eleventh year (mid-February or mid-March 586) would be before Jerusalem’s fall. Thus, Ezekiel is either anticipating the inevitable fall of Jerusalem (v. 2) or the original Hebrew spoke of the eleventh month of the twelfth year, February 3, 585 BCE. 7–14: Nebuchadnezzar will besiege the island city, offshore from the mainland city, after destroying the outlying settlements (daughter-towns, vv. 6, 8). In fact, Nebuchadnezzar besieged the island of Tyre (after the mainland fell) for thirteen years. Tyre lost the war, but it was not destroyed or pillaged (as prophesied, v. 12). This state of affairs is addressed in 29.17–21. Tyre finally fell to Alexander the Great in 332 BCE. 11: Strong pillars may refer to famed columns of gold and emerald Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon, king of kings, together with horses, chariots, cavalry, and a great and powerful army.

⁸Your daughter-towns in the country he shall put to the sword.

He shall set up a siege wall against you, cast up a ramp against you, and raise a roof of shields against you.

⁹He shall direct the shock of his battering rams against your walls and break down your towers with his axes.

¹⁰His horses shall be so many that their dust shall cover you.

At the noise of cavalry, wheels, and chariots your very walls shall shake, when he enters your gates like those entering a breached city.

¹¹With the hoofs of his horses he shall trample all your streets.

He shall put your people to the sword, and your strong pillars shall fall to the ground.

¹²They will plunder your riches and loot your merchandise; they shall break down your walls and destroy your fine houses. Your stones and timber and soil they shall cast into the water.

¹³I will silence the music of your songs; the sound of your lyres shall be heard no more.

¹⁴I will make you a bare rock; you shall be a place for spreading nets.

You shall never again be rebuilt, for I the LORD have spoken, says the Lord God.

¹⁵Thus says the Lord God to Tyre: Shall not the coastlands shake at the sound of your fall, when the wounded groan, when slaughter goes on within you? ¹⁶Then all the princes of the sea shall step down from their thrones; they shall remove their robes and strip off their embroidered garments. They shall clothe themselves with trembling, and shall sit on the ground; they shall tremble every moment, and be appalled at you. ¹⁷And they shall raise a lamentation over you, and say to you:

How you have vanished^a from the seas,

O city renowned, once mighty on the sea, you and your inhabitants,^b who imposed your^c terror on all the mainland!^d ¹⁸Now the coastlands tremble on the day of your fall; the coastlands by the sea are dismayed at your passing.

¹⁹For thus says the Lord God: When I make you a city laid waste, like cities that are not inhabited, when I bring up the deep over you, and the great waters cover you, ²⁰then I will thrust you down with those who descend into the Pit, to the people of long ago, and I will make you live in the world below, among primeval ruins, with those who go down to the Pit, so that you will not be inhabited or have a place^e in the land of the living. ²¹I will bring you to a dreadful end, and you shall be no more; though sought for, you will never be found again, says the Lord God.

27 The word of the LORD came to me:

²Now you, mortal, raise a lamentation over Tyre, ³and say to Tyre, which sits at the entrance to the sea, merchant of the peoples on many coastlands, Thus says the Lord God: O Tyre, you have said,

“I am perfect in beauty.”

⁴Your borders are in the heart of the seas; your builders made perfect your beauty.

^a Gk OL Aquila: Heb have vanished, O inhabited one,

^b Heb it and its inhabitants

^c Heb their

^d Cn: Heb its inhabitants

^e Gk: Heb I will give beauty

at the entrance of Tyre's temple of Melqart. 14: Cf. vv. 4–5. 15–18: Dirge of the princes of the sea, perhaps coastal cities in trade alliance with Tyre. 19–21: The simile of the attack of the sea in v. 3 is here heightened into mythic metaphor. The primordial deep (Gen 1.2) will cover the wasted city, which will descend into the abode of the dead (Sheol, see 31.15–18; 32.17–32; Isa 14.15), never to resurface.

27:1–36: Dirge over the ship Tyre. Metaphorical language serves Ezekiel's need to push beyond the ordinarily observable and speak of ultimate realities. 1–25: Tyre's glory. 2: Lamentation, better, a funerary “dirge,” in which present downfall is contrasted with past glory. 3: Perfect in beauty is supposed to be Jerusalem's epithet

⁵ They made all your planks of fir trees from Senir;
they took a cedar from Lebanon
to make a mast for you.
⁶ From oaks of Bashan
they made your oars;
they made your deck of pines^a from the coasts of Cyprus, inlaid with ivory.
⁷ Of fine embroidered linen from Egypt was your sail,
serving as your ensign;
blue and purple from the coasts of Elishah was your awning.
⁸ The inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad were your rowers;
skilled men of Zemer^b were within you,
they were your pilots.
⁹ The elders of Gebal and its artisans were within you,
caulking your seams;
all the ships of the sea with their mariners were within you,
to barter for your wares.
¹⁰ Paras^c and Lud and Put were in your army,
your mighty warriors;
they hung shield and helmet in you;
they gave you splendor.
¹¹ Men of Arvad and Helech^d were on your walls all around;
men of Gamad were at your towers.
They hung their quivers all around your walls;
they made perfect your beauty.
¹² Tarshish did business with you out of the abundance of your great wealth; silver, iron, tin, and lead they exchanged for your wares.

¹³ Javan, Tubal, and Meshech traded with you; they exchanged human beings and vessels of bronze for your merchandise. ¹⁴ Beth-togarmah exchanged for your wares horses, war horses, and mules. ¹⁵ The Rhodians^e traded with you; many coastlands were your own special markets; they brought you in payment ivory tusks and ebony. ¹⁶ Edom^f did business with you because of your abundant goods;
they exchanged for your wares turquoise,
purple, embroidered work, fine linen, coral,
and rubies. ¹⁷ Judah and the land of Israel traded with you; they exchanged for your merchandise wheat from Minnith, millet,^g honey, oil, and balm. ¹⁸ Damascus traded with you for your abundant goods—because of your great wealth of every kind—wine of Helbon, and white wool. ¹⁹ Vedan and Javan from Uzal^g entered into trade for your wares; wrought iron, cassia, and sweet cane were bartered for your merchandise. ²⁰ Dedan traded with you in saddlecloths for riding.
²¹ Arabia and all the princes of Kedar were your favored dealers in lambs, rams, and goats; in these they did business with you.
²² The merchants of Sheba and Raamah traded with you; they exchanged for your wares

^a Or boxwood

^b Cn Compare Gen 10.18: Heb your skilled men, O Tyre

^c Or Persia

^d Or and your army

^e Gk: Heb The Dedanites

^f Another reading is Aram

^g Meaning of Heb uncertain

(16.14; Lam 2.15), not Tyre's. 5–9: The good ship Tyre was constructed of the best materials. 5: Senir is Mount Hermon, located in southern Syria (Deut 3.9). 6: Bashan is east of the Sea of Galilee, known for its oak forests. 7: Elishah is probably Cyprus. 8–9: The ship's crew was from Sidon, Arvad, Zemer (textual note b), and Gebal (By-blos), Phoenician island and port cities. 10: The ship's warriors included those from Persia (textual note c), Lud (Lydia in western Asia Minor), and Put (Libya). 11: Literal reality (Tyre as a city) momentarily intrudes into Ezekiel's ship metaphor. Arvad, see v. 8. Helech, possibly Cilicia, in southeastern Asia Minor. The men of Gamad are perhaps the Cimmerians or Cappadocians in eastern Asia Minor. 12–25: A (mostly prose) description of the gallant ship's cargo of rich wares from many nations. 12–15: Tyre's commercial empire is described first in horizontal fashion from west to east: Tarshish, perhaps Tarsus in southern Asia Minor, or Tartessus in southern Spain, or Sardinia; Javan, Ionians, i.e., the Greeks of the Aegean; Tubal and Meshech, Assyrian "Tabal" and "Mushki," peoples settled in Asia Minor; Beth-togarmah, Assyrian "Tilgarimmu," in eastern Asia Minor (Armenia), east of the southernmost Halys River, east of Tubal. 16–19: The description then moves vertically from south to north-east: Edom; Judah and Israel; Minnith, an Ammonite city (Judg 11.33); Damascus; Helbon, a famed wine center 13 mi (21 km) northwest of Damascus. 20–22: The Arabian region is treated next: Dedan, in northwest Arabia (see the best of all kinds of spices, and all precious stones, and gold.²³ Haran, Canneh, Eden, the merchants of Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad traded with you.²⁴ These traded with you in choice garments, in clothes of blue and embroidered work, and in carpets of colored material, bound with cords and made secure; in these they traded with you.^a ²⁵ The ships of Tarshish traveled for you in your trade.

So you were filled and heavily laden
in the heart of the seas.

²⁶ Your rowers have brought you into the high seas.

The east wind has wrecked you
in the heart of the seas.

²⁷ Your riches, your wares, your merchandise,

your mariners and your pilots, your caulkers, your dealers in
merchandise,

and all your warriors within you,
with all the company
that is with you,

sink into the heart of the seas on the day of your ruin.

²⁸ At the sound of the cry of your pilots
the countryside shakes,

²⁹ and down from their ships come all that handle the oar.

The mariners and all the pilots of the sea stand on the shore

³⁰ and wail aloud over you, and cry bitterly.

They throw dust on their heads and wallow in ashes;

³¹ they make themselves bald for you,
and put on sackcloth,

and they weep over you in bitterness of soul,
with bitter mourning.

³² In their wailing they raise a lamentation for you,

and lament over you:

“Who was ever destroyed^b like Tyre
in the midst of the sea?

³³ When your wares came from the seas,
you satisfied many peoples;
with your abundant wealth and
merchandise

you enriched the kings of the earth.

³⁴ Now you are wrecked by the seas,
in the depths of the waters;
your merchandise and all your crew have sunk with you.

³⁵ All the inhabitants of the coastlands
are appalled at you;
and their kings are horribly afraid,
their faces are convulsed.

³⁶ The merchants among the peoples hiss at you;
you have come to a dreadful end
and shall be no more forever.”

28 The word of the LORD came to me:
² Mortal, say to the prince of Tyre,
Thus says the Lord God:

Because your heart is proud and you have said, “I am a god;
I sit in the seat of the gods,
in the heart of the seas,”

yet you are but a mortal, and no god, though you compare your mind
with the mind of a god.

³ You are indeed wiser than Daniel;^c no secret is hidden from you;

⁴ by your wisdom and your understanding
you have amassed wealth for yourself, and have gathered gold and silver into your treasuries.

^a Cn: Heb in your market

^b Tg Vg: Heb like silence

^c Or, as otherwise read, Danel also textual note e, on the previous page); Kedar, a tribal group of northern Arabia; Sheba and Raamah, in south-west Arabia. Several Mesopotamian cities conclude the list (v. 23): Haran, in northwest Mesopotamia; Canneh, a town near Haran; Eden, the Aramaean state of Bit-Adini, south of Haran; Asshur, south of Nineveh; Chilmad, unidentified. 25: Ships of Tarshish, see vv. 12–15n.; 1 Kings 10.22; 22.48; Ps 48.7; Isa 23.1. 26–36: Tyre’s past glory contrasts sharply with its sudden end. As in 19.12, the east wind (sirocco) is an agent of destruction (cf. Ps 48.7). The sudden end of the great commercial city brings astonishment, fear, and grief to seafarers, merchants, and inhabitants of the coastlands. 31: 7.18n.

28.1–10: Oracle against the leader of Tyre. 2: Tyre’s ruler (prince), who represents the people of Tyre, is judged for his pride (a universal offense, Prov 16.5). Hubris leads to self-deification. Thus the prince of Tyre sat in the seat of the gods (cf. Isa 14.13–14). Heart of the seas, see 28.14n. 3: In the Ugaritic texts, Danel is the wise

⁵ By your great wisdom in trade you have increased your wealth, and your heart has become proud in your wealth.

⁶ Therefore thus says the Lord God:
 Because you compare your mind
 with the mind of a god,
⁷ therefore, I will bring strangers against
 you,
 the most terrible of the nations;
 they shall draw their swords against the beauty of your wisdom
 and defile your splendor.

⁸ They shall thrust you down to the Pit, and you shall die a violent death
 in the heart of the seas.

⁹ Will you still say, “I am a god,” in the presence of those who kill you, though you are but a mortal, and no god,
 in the hands of those who wound
 you?

¹⁰ You shall die the death of the uncircumcised
 by the hand of foreigners;
 for I have spoken, says the Lord God.

¹¹ Moreover the word of the LORD came to me: ¹² Mortal, raise a lamentation over the king of Tyre, and say to him, Thus says the Lord God:

You were the signet of perfection,^a full of wisdom and perfect in beauty.

¹³ You were in Eden, the garden of God;
 every precious stone was your covering,
 carnelian, chrysolite, and moonstone,
 beryl, onyx, and jasper,
 sapphire,^b turquoise, and emerald;
 and worked in gold were your settings and your engravings.^a

On the day that you were created they were prepared.

¹⁴ With an anointed cherub as guardian I placed you;^a
 you were on the holy mountain of God;
 you walked among the stones of fire.

¹⁵ You were blameless in your ways from the day that you were created, until iniquity was found in you.

¹⁶ In the abundance of your trade you were filled with violence, and you sinned;
 so I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God,
 and the guardian cherub drove you out from among the stones of fire.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or lapis lazuli

judge of widows and orphans (see 14.14n.). 6–10: The leader will be slain by the most terrible of the nations, Babylonia (30.10–11), and come to an ignominious end (the death of the uncircumcised, v. 10) in the Pit (v. 8), that is, Sheol, a netherworld abode where the dead are cut off from life and community (32.30). Like the Israelites, the Phoenicians practiced circumcision; see also 31.18; 32.19.

28.11–19: A dirge over the king of Tyre. The passage reworks 28.1–10 based on a mythic tale in which a celestial figure met his downfall through hubris (cf. the Ugaritic myth of Athtar). Since this myth was familiar outside of Israel, it provided Ezekiel a basis for judging a nation that was outside Israel’s covenant. 12: The king of Tyre replicates the tragic paradigm of an archetypal being, a great cherub (see v. 14n., v. 16b n.). Cherubim are not companions to humans, as in the NRSV translation, but are interlocked with the divine presence (cf. 1.5–14n.). Wisdom, cf. the Ugaritic god Athtar, celebrated for knowledge and understanding, but unable successfully to occupy the throne at the cosmic center for which he longed. 13: Eden, ancient images of cherubim often appear in association with stylized trees, which mark paradise, God’s garden (cf. Gen 3.24; Ezek 31.9; 41.18). With the cherub’s covering of precious stones, cf. the stones of the high priest’s breastplate in Ex 28.17–20, which itself must have had a symbolic connection to Eden (cf. 43.13–17n.). 14: See textual note a; the Heb reads, “You were an anointed cherub.” The outstretched, shielding wings of a cherub made it an effective guardian of the cosmic center (cf. Gen 3.24). Tyre’s ruler might initially have appreciated the comparison to a cherub. Eden (v. 13) sat atop the mythic cosmic mountain, the holy mountain of God that connects earth and heaven (cf. 40.2; 43.13–17n.). Rivers flow from God’s mountain to fill earth’s lakes and oceans, making the mountain the “heart of the seas” (v. 2; cf. 47.1–12; Gen 2.10–14; Ps 46.4; Zech 14.8). Stones of fire, the astral coterie of the cherub. 16–19: The dirge moves from the cherub’s past glory to his downfall through hubris. 16a: The actual referent (Tyre’s corrupt trade) intrudes into the allegorical figure (the primal cherub’s sin) here. 16b: The NRSV is following the Septuagint (cf. Gen 3.23–24). The Heb reads, “I drove you out, O guardian cherub.” For demotions

¹⁷Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor.

I cast you to the ground;
I exposed you before kings,
to feast their eyes on you.

¹⁸By the multitude of your iniquities, in the unrighteousness of your trade,
you profaned your sanctuaries.
So I brought out fire from within you;
it consumed you,
and I turned you to ashes on the earth
in the sight of all who saw you.

¹⁹All who know you among the peoples
are appalled at you;
you have come to a dreadful end
and shall be no more forever.

²⁰The word of the LORD came to me: ²¹Mortal, set your face toward Sidon, and prophesy against it, ²²and say, Thus says the Lord God:
I am against you, O Sidon,
and I will gain glory in your midst.

They shall know that I am the LORD
when I execute judgments in it, and manifest my holiness in it;

²³for I will send pestilence into it, and bloodshed into its streets;
and the dead shall fall in its midst, by the sword that is against it on every side.

And they shall know that I am the LORD.

²⁴The house of Israel shall no longer find a pricking brier or a piercing thorn among all their neighbors who have treated them with contempt. And they shall know that I am the Lord God.

²⁵Thus says the Lord God: When I gather the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and manifest my holiness in them in the sight of the nations, then they shall settle on their own soil that I gave to my servant Jacob. ²⁶They shall live in safety in it, and shall build houses and plant vineyards. They shall live in safety, when I execute judgments upon all their neighbors who have treated them with contempt. And they shall know that I am the LORD their God.

29 In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: ²Mortal, set your face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt; ³speak, and say, Thus says the Lord God:

I am against you,
Pharaoh king of Egypt,
the great dragon sprawling
in the midst of its channels, saying, “My Nile is my own;
I made it for myself.”

⁴I will put hooks in your jaws, and make the fish of your channels stick to your scales.

I will draw you up from your channels, with all the fish of your channels sticking to your scales.

⁵I will fling you into the wilderness,
you and all the fish of your channels;
you shall fall in the open field,
and not be gathered and buried.

To the animals of the earth and to the birds of the air
I have given you as food.

⁶Then all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know
that I am the LORD
because you⁹ were a staff of reed
to the house of Israel;

^a Gk Syr Vg: Heb they

of supernatural figures, cf. Ps 82.6–7; Isa 14.12; Lk 10.18. 17–18: To the ground, in Ugaritic myth, Athtar likewise descends to the “earth”/“underworld.” A priestly being (see v. 13n.) should guard all holy ground, but this diabolical cherub actually profaned . . . sanctuaries.

28.20–26: Oracle against Sidon, another Phoenician city, on the Mediterranean coast north of Tyre. 24–26: Sidon’s doom spells God’s vindication. 24: Cf. Num 33.55 (HS). 25–26: Cf. 34.28; Lev 25.19.

29.1–32.32: Prophecies against Egypt. 29.1–16: Against Pharaoh 1: Tenth year . . . tenth month . . . twelfth day, January 7, 587 BCE. 3: Dragon, the reptilian crocodile (a signature creature of Egypt). Pharaohs, such as Unas and Thutmose III, compared themselves with crocodiles and crocodile gods. The Heb term takes on more of its common mythological connotations of a monster of watery chaos in 32.1–16. Its channels, the Nile delta and canals. My own; I made it, in Egyptian religion the pharaoh created and controlled the Nile. 4: Hooks, cf. 38.4; Isa 37.29. Fish of your channels, the Egyptians and their mercenaries. 6b–9a: Staff of reed, compare the Assyrian

⁷ when they grasped you with the hand, you broke,
and tore all their shoulders;
and when they leaned on you, you broke,
and made all their legs unsteady.^a

⁸ Therefore, thus says the Lord GOD: I will bring a sword upon you, and will cut off from you human being and animal; ⁹ and the land of Egypt shall be a desolation and a waste. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

Because you^b said, “The Nile is mine, and I made it,” ¹⁰ therefore, I am against you, and against your channels, and I will make the land of Egypt an utter waste and desolation, from Migdol to Syene, as far as the border of Ethiopia.^c ¹¹ No human foot shall pass through it, and no animal foot shall pass through it; it shall be uninhabited forty years. ¹² I will make the land of Egypt a desolation among desolated countries; and her cities shall be a desolation forty years among cities that are laid waste. I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them among the countries.

¹³ Further, thus says the Lord GOD: At the end of forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they were scattered; ¹⁴ and I will restore the fortunes of Egypt, and bring them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their origin; and there they shall be a lowly kingdom. ¹⁵ It shall be the most lowly of the kingdoms, and never again exalt itself above the nations; and I will make them so small that they will never again rule over the nations. ¹⁶ The Egyptians^d shall never again be the reliance of the house of Israel; they will recall their iniquity, when they turned to them for aid. Then they shall know that I am the Lord GOD.

¹⁷ In the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: ¹⁸ Mortal, King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon made his army labor hard against Tyre; every head was made bald and every shoulder was rubbed bare; yet neither he nor his army got anything from Tyre to pay for the labor that he had expended against it. ¹⁹ Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: I will give the land of Egypt to King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon; and he shall carry off its wealth and despoil it and plunder it; and it shall be the wages for his army. ²⁰ I have given him the land of Egypt as his payment for which he labored, because they worked for me, says the Lord GOD.

²¹ On that day I will cause a horn to sprout up for the house of Israel, and I will open your lips among them. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

30 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, prophesy, and say, Thus says the Lord GOD:

Wail, “Alas for the day!”

³ For a day is near,
the day of the LORD is near;
it will be a day of clouds,
a time of doom^e for the nations.

⁴ A sword shall come upon Egypt, and anguish shall be in Ethiopia,^c when the slain fall in Egypt,

^a Syr: Heb stand

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb he

^c Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^d Heb It

^e Heb lacks of doom

Rabshakeh’s similar belittlement of Egypt in 2 Kings 18.21; Isa 36.6. Pharaoh Hophra’s attack against Nebuchadrezzar in the spring of 588 BCE had failed to relieve Jerusalem (Jer 37.5–10). 10: Migdol to Syene, northern and southern Egyptian localities, together signifying all Egypt. 11: Forty years, 4.6; Num 14.33 (HS). 13–16: The sole promise of Egyptian restoration in Ezekiel, though Egypt will be restored only as a lowly kingdom. 14: Pathros, southern Egypt.

29.17–21: Egypt as “wages” for Nebuchadrezzar, instead of Tyre. 17: Twenty-seventh year . . . first month . . . first day, Ezekiel’s latest dated oracle, April 26, 571 BCE. This unique passage amends the Tyre prophecies (26.12) in light of subsequent events. Nebuchadrezzar will get sufficient plunder from Egypt to compensate for his lack of booty from the siege of Tyre. The preservation of an earlier, embarrassingly unfulfilled prophecy (ch 26) in the book shows how quickly Ezekiel’s prophecies took on scriptural authority. 21: Horn may refer to a reestablished Davidic leadership in Israel (Ps 132.17); cf. 17.22–24n.

30.1–19: The doom of Egypt. 1–9: The day of the LORD (cf. Amos 5.18) is God’s judgment day on the Israelites (7.5–9n.; 13.5) but also, as here, doomsday for the nations (38.18; 39.8; Judg 5.20; Isa 2.12; Ob 1.15).

and its wealth is carried away,
and its foundations are torn down.

⁵ Ethiopia,^a and Put, and Lud, and all Arabia, and Libya,^b and the people of the allied land^c shall fall with them by the sword.

⁶ Thus says the LORD:
Those who support Egypt shall fall,
and its proud might shall come down;
from Migdol to Syene
they shall fall within it by the sword,
says the Lord God.

⁷ They shall be desolated among other desolated countries,
and their cities shall lie among cities
laid waste.

⁸ Then they shall know that I am the
LORD,
when I have set fire to Egypt,
and all who help it are broken.

⁹ On that day, messengers shall go out from me in ships to terrify the unsuspecting Ethiopians;^d and anguish shall come upon them on the day of Egypt's doom;^e for it is coming!

¹⁰ Thus says the Lord God:
I will put an end to the hordes of Egypt, by the hand of King Nebuchadrezzar of Babylon.

¹¹ He and his people with him, the most terrible of the nations, shall be brought in to destroy the
land;
and they shall draw their swords against Egypt,
and fill the land with the slain.

¹² I will dry up the channels, and will sell the land into the hand of evildoers;
I will bring desolation upon the land and everything in it
by the hand of foreigners;
I the LORD have spoken.

¹³ Thus says the Lord GOD:
I will destroy the idols and put an end to the images in Memphis;
there shall no longer be a prince in the land of Egypt;
so I will put fear in the land of Egypt.

¹⁴ I will make Pathros a desolation, and will set fire to Zoan, and will execute acts of judgment on Thebes.

¹⁵ I will pour my wrath upon Pelusium,
the stronghold of Egypt, and cut off the hordes of Thebes.

¹⁶ I will set fire to Egypt;
Pelusium shall be in great agony;
Thebes shall be breached, and Memphis face adversaries
by day.

¹⁷ The young men of On and of Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword;
and the cities themselves^f shall go into
captivity.

¹⁸ At Tehaphnehes the day shall be dark,
when I break there the dominion of Egypt,
and its proud might shall come to an end;

the city^g shall be covered by a cloud,
and its daughter-towns shall go into
captivity.

¹⁹ Thus I will execute acts of judgment on Egypt.
Then they shall know that I am the
LORD.

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Compare Gk Syr Vg: Heb Cub

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Or Nubians; Heb Cush

^e Heb the day of Egypt

^f Heb and they

^g Heb she

5: Put, and Lud, see 27.10n. 6–9: Egypt's allies will collapse. Migdol to Syene, see 29.10n. Unsuspecting Ethiopians, the enormity of Egypt's fall is emphasized by describing onlookers' reactions. 10–12: Nebuchadrezzar is Egypt's destroyer. 12: Channels, see 29.3n. 13–19: All Egypt will be destroyed. Images are condemned in Holiness School texts, such as Lev 19.4; 26.1. Memphis, south of Cairo, was the ancient capital of lower (northern) Egypt. Pathros, see 29.14n. Zoan, in the northeast delta region. Thebes, capital of upper Egypt, is present-day Karnak and Luxor. Pelusium, east of Zoan, in the delta region. On is Heliopolis, slightly northeast of Memphis. Pi-beseth, Bubastis, in the eastern delta. Tehaphnehes, Tahpanhes, on Egypt's northeastern frontier.

²⁰ In the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: ²¹ Mortal, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt; it has not been bound up for healing or wrapped with a bandage, so that it may become strong to wield the sword. ²² Therefore thus says the Lord God: I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and will break his arms, both the strong arm and the one that was broken; and I will make the sword fall from his hand. ²³ I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them throughout the lands. ²⁴ I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, and put my sword in his hand; but I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he will groan before him with the groans of one mortally wounded. ²⁵ I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall. And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon. He shall stretch it out against the land of Egypt, ²⁶ and I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the countries. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

31 In the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, say to Pharaoh king of Egypt and to his hordes:

Whom are you like in your greatness?

³ Consider Assyria, a cedar of Lebanon, with fair branches and forest shade, and of great height, its top among the clouds.^a

⁴ The waters nourished it, the deep made it grow tall, making its rivers flow^b around the place it was planted, sending forth its streams to all the trees of the field.

⁵ So it towered high above all the trees of the field; its boughs grew large and its branches long, from abundant water in its shoots.

⁶ All the birds of the air made their nests in its boughs; under its branches all the animals of the field gave birth to their young; and in its shade all great nations lived.

⁷ It was beautiful in its greatness, in the length of its branches; for its roots went down to abundant water.

⁸ The cedars in the garden of God could not rival it, nor the fir trees equal its boughs; the plane trees were as nothing compared with its branches; no tree in the garden of God was like it in beauty.

⁹ I made it beautiful with its mass of branches, the envy of all the trees of Eden that were in the garden of God.

¹⁰ Therefore thus says the Lord God: Because it^c towered high and set its top among the clouds,^a and its heart was proud of its

^a Gk: Heb thick boughs

^b Gk: Heb rivers going

^c Syr Vg: Heb you

30.20–26: Pharaoh disarmed. 20: Eleventh year . . . first month . . . seventh day, April 29, 587 BCE. The body imagery of broken arms represents military defeat. Nebuchadrezzar had broken one arm of Hophra the year before (vv. 20–21; see 29.6b–9a n.; Jer 37.5). The next time, he will break both arms (vv. 22–26). 26: Cf. 29.12.

31.1–18: Assyria and Egypt compared. 1: Eleventh year . . . third month . . . first day, June 21, 587 BCE. Ezekiel uses the archetype of the “cosmic tree” (see 17.22–24n.; Zech 4; Dan 4) to emphasize that, as with Assyria, the cause for Egypt’s fall will be pride (hubris). 3a: See Nah 3.8–10 for a similar comparison of Egypt and Assyria. The fact of Assyria’s downfall supports the credibility of Ezekiel’s judgments against Egypt. Ezekiel’s image of Assyria as a tree may have its source of inspiration in Isa 10.33–34. 3b–9: A dirge for the cosmic tree begins by describing its former glory. 4–6: The deep (Heb “tehom”), here, the world’s subterranean sweet-waters (Gen 7.11), nourished the tree so that it reached into the heavens and sheltered all life (cf. Dan 4.11–12). 7–9: The splendor of the great cedar was incomparable (v. 18), surpassing those in the garden of God (28.13). 10–18: The tree’s two-phased disaster. God will have it cut down; the life it sheltered will be dispersed (vv. 10–14). Once felled, it will height,¹¹ I gave it into the hand of the prince of the nations; he has dealt with it as its wickedness deserves. I have cast it out.¹² Foreigners from the most terrible of the nations have cut it down and left it. On the mountains and in all the valleys its branches have fallen, and its boughs lie broken in all the watercourses of the land; and all the peoples of the earth went away from its shade and left it.

¹³ On its fallen trunk settle all the birds of the air, and among its boughs lodge
all the wild animals.

¹⁴ All this is in order that no trees by the waters may grow to lofty height or set their tops among the clouds,^a and that no trees that drink water may reach up to them in height.

For all of them are handed over to death,
to the world below;
along with all mortals,
with those who go down to the Pit.

¹⁵ Thus says the Lord God: On the day it went down to Sheol I closed the deep over it and covered it; I restrained its rivers, and its mighty waters were checked. I clothed Lebanon in gloom for it, and all the trees of the field fainted because of it.¹⁶ I made the nations quake at the sound of its fall, when I cast it down to Sheol with those who go down to the Pit; and all the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that were well watered, were consoled in the world below.¹⁷ They also went down to Sheol with it, to those killed by the sword, along with its allies,^b those who lived in its shade among the nations.

¹⁸ Which among the trees of Eden was like you in glory and in greatness? Now you shall be brought down with the trees of Eden to the world below; you shall lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are killed by the sword. This is Pharaoh and all his horde, says the Lord God.

32 In the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me:² Mortal, raise a lamentation over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say to him:

You consider yourself a lion among the nations,
but you are like a dragon in the seas;
you thrash about in your streams, trouble the water with your feet,
and foul your^c streams.

³ Thus says the Lord God:

In an assembly of many peoples
I will throw my net over you;
and I^d will haul you up in my dragnet.

⁴ I will throw you on the ground,
on the open field I will fling you,
and will cause all the birds of the air to settle on you,
and I will let the wild animals of the whole earth gorge themselves
with you.

⁵ I will strew your flesh on the mountains, and fill the valleys with your carcass.^e

⁶ I will drench the land with your flowing blood
up to the mountains,
and the watercourses will be filled with
you.

^a Gk: Heb thick boughs

^b Heb its arms

^c Heb their

^d Gk Vg: Heb they

^e Symmachus Syr Vg: Heb your height

crash down still farther (vv. 15–18) into the Pit of the dead (v. 14), i.e., to Sheol in the underworld (see 32.17–32). 11: Prince of the nations, Nabopolassar, founder of the Neo-Babylonian Empire, or possibly Nebuchadnezzar. 18: Uncircumcised, see 28.6–10n., 32.17–32n.

32.1–16: Dirge over Pharaoh. 1: Twelfth year . . . twelfth month . . . first day, March 3, 585 BCE. Pharaohs such as Seti I and Ramesses III boasted that they were fierce or enraged lions. Ezekiel declares that Pharaoh is better viewed as a sea-dragon. Mesopotamian mythology saw lions and dragon-monsters as parallel; the creature Labbu was actually a lion-serpent. In Egyptian mythology, the demon Ammit, “Swallower of the Dead,” was part lion, part crocodile, and part hippopotamus. 2: Dragon, a monstrous crocodile as in 29.3, but here with the fantastic proportions of the mythological chaos monster that the term signifies in Job 7.12; Ps 74.13; Isa 27.1; 51.9. In his hubris, Pharaoh aspires to rock the cosmos (in the seas, cf. Isa 27.1 and the watery chaos of Pss 46.3; 93.3). Verses 2,13–14 show, however, that in reality he can stir up only a little local trouble, muddying the water with his feet. 3–8: His punishment. Verses 6–8 recall the “day of the LORD” (see 30.1–9n.; Isa 13.10; Joel 2.2,30); they ⁷When I blot you out, I will cover the heavens, and make their stars dark;

I will cover the sun with a cloud,
and the moon shall not give its light.

⁸All the shining lights of the heavens
I will darken above you,
and put darkness on your land,
says the Lord God.

⁹I will trouble the hearts of many peoples,
as I carry you captive^a among the nations,
into countries you have not known.

¹⁰I will make many peoples appalled at you;
their kings shall shudder because of you.
When I brandish my sword before them,
they shall tremble every moment for their lives, each one of them, on the day of your downfall.

¹¹For thus says the Lord God:
The sword of the king of Babylon shall come against you.

¹²I will cause your hordes to fall
by the swords of mighty ones,
all of them most terrible among the nations.

They shall bring to ruin the pride of Egypt,
and all its hordes shall perish.

¹³I will destroy all its livestock from beside abundant waters;
and no human foot shall trouble them any more,
nor shall the hoofs of cattle trouble them.

¹⁴Then I will make their waters clear, and cause their streams to run like oil,
says the Lord God.

¹⁵When I make the land of Egypt desolate and when the land is stripped of all that fills it, when I strike down all who live in it,
then they shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁶This is a lamentation; it shall be chanted.
The women of the nations shall chant it.

Over Egypt and all its hordes they shall
chant it,
says the Lord God.

¹⁷In the twelfth year, in the first month,^b on the fifteenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me:

¹⁸Mortal, wail over the hordes of Egypt,
and send them down,
with Egypt^c and the daughters of majestic
nations,
to the world below,
with those who go down to the Pit.

¹⁹“Whom do you surpass in beauty?
Go down! Be laid to rest with the uncircumcised!”

²⁰They shall fall among those who are killed by the sword. Egypt^d has been handed over to the sword; carry away both it and its hordes.

²¹The mighty chiefs shall speak of them, with their helpers, out of the midst of Sheol: “They have come down, they lie still, the uncircumcised, killed by the sword.”

²²Assyria is there, and all its company, their graves all around it, all of them killed,

^a Gk: Heb bring your destruction

^b Gk: Heb lacks in the first month

^c Heb it

^d Heb It

also echo two Exodus plagues against Egypt: blood (Ex 7:17); darkness (Ex 10.21–23 [HS]). 9–10: The nations’ reactions (cf. 26.16; 27.35). 11–15: The sword of God (v. 10; 30.4; Lev 26.25,33 [HS]) is concretely the Babylonians’ sword (cf. 30.25). 14: Reversing v. 2, God restores the Nile’s natural state (cf. Lev 26.34–35 [HS]). 16: Women served as mourners in the ancient world (see Jer 9.17–18).

32.17–32: Egypt in the underworld. 17: Twelfth year . . . first month . . . fifteenth day, helped by the Septuagint (textual note b), the date can be read as April 27, 586 BCE. Like Tyre (28.10), pompous Egypt belongs dumped in the depths of the underworld (the Pit, “Sheol”), in recesses reserved for uncircumcised heathen and those slaughtered in battle. Like Meshech and Tubal, the Egyptians belong segregated from the renowned pagan warriors who entered the netherworld in full battle dress (v. 27). The Egyptians, at least their priests and kings, practiced circumcision, as did the Edomites (v. 29) and the Sidonians (v. 30; cf. 28.10n.). Thus, their fate is to the disgrace of all three peoples. 22–30: A roster. In its dishonorable demise Egypt will join others who were objects of God’s wrath (Isa 14.9–11), such as Assyria (31.3–17); Elam (defeated by Assyria, its western neighbor); Meshech and Tubal (see 27.12–15n.); Edom (25.12–14); princes of the north (unnamed rulers in Phoenicia and Syria); fallen by the sword. ²³ Their graves are set in the uttermost parts of the Pit. Its company is all around its grave, all of them killed, fallen by the sword, who spread terror in the land of the living.

²⁴ Elam is there, and all its hordes around its grave; all of them killed, fallen by the sword, who went down uncircumcised into the world below, who spread terror in the land of the living. They bear their shame with those who go down to the Pit. ²⁵ They have made Elam^a a bed among the slain with all its hordes, their graves all around it, all of them uncircumcised, killed by the sword; for terror of them was spread in the land of the living, and they bear their shame with those who go down to the Pit; they are placed among the slain.

²⁶ Meshech and Tubal are there, and all their multitude, their graves all around them, all of them uncircumcised, killed by the sword; for they spread terror in the land of the living. ²⁷ And they do not lie with the fallen warriors of long ago^b who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, whose swords were laid under their heads, and whose shields^c are upon their bones; for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living. ²⁸ So you shall be broken and lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are killed by the sword.

²⁹ Edom is there, its kings and all its princes, who for all their might are laid with those who are killed by the sword; they lie with the uncircumcised, with those who go down to the Pit.

³⁰ The princes of the north are there, all of them, and all the Sidonians, who have gone down in shame with the slain, for all the terror that they caused by their might; they lie uncircumcised with those who are killed by the sword, and bear their shame with those who go down to the Pit.

³¹ When Pharaoh sees them, he will be consoled for all his hordes—Pharaoh and all his army, killed by the sword, says the Lord GOD. ³² For he^d spread terror in the land of the living; therefore he shall be laid to rest among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword—Pharaoh and all his multitude, says the Lord GOD.

33 The word of the LORD came to me: ² O Mortal, speak to your people and say to them, If I bring the sword upon a land, and the people of the land take one of their number as their sentinel; ³ and if the sentinel sees the sword coming upon the land and blows the trumpet and warns the people; ⁴ then if any who hear the sound of the trumpet do not take warning, and the sword comes and takes them away, their blood shall be upon their own heads. ⁵ They heard the sound of the trumpet and did not take warning; their blood shall be upon themselves. But if they had taken warning, they would have saved their lives. ⁶ But if the sentinel sees the sword coming and does not blow the trumpet, so that the people are not warned, and the sword comes and takes any of them, they are taken away in their iniquity, but their blood I will require at the sentinel's hand.

⁷ So you, mortal, I have made a sentinel for the house of Israel; whenever you hear a word from my mouth, you shall give them warning from me. ⁸ If I say to the wicked, "O wicked ones, you shall surely die," and you do not speak to warn the wicked to turn from their ways, the wicked shall die in their iniquity, but their blood I will require at your hand. ⁹ But if you warn the wicked to turn from their ways, and they do not

^a Heb it

^b Gk Old Latin: Heb of the uncircumcised

^c Cn: Heb iniquities

^d Cn: Heb I

and Sidon (28.20–26). 23: The uttermost parts of the Pit constitute, in mythic poetry, a fate opposite to the goal of ascending the cosmic mountain (Isa 14.15; Jonah 2.4–6).

33.1–39.29: Prophecies of Israel's restoration. 33.1–20: Clarification of Ezekiel's role. The social setting is given in v. 10. The exiles are now resigned to their condemnation and to Jerusalem's destruction, but this resignation has led to an unanticipated, paralyzing hopelessness. Ezekiel delivers two responses to their demoralized state: God desires people to live, and sin is forgivable. 1–9: God reminds Ezekiel of his commission as a sentinel (3.16–21). This metaphor had originally assuaged Ezekiel's reluctance about his calling. Here the prophet's role as sentinel is stressed again to explain how the intention behind Ezekiel's doom prophecy is not turn from their ways, the wicked shall die in their iniquity, but you will have saved your life.

¹⁰ Now you, mortal, say to the house of Israel, Thus you have said: “Our transgressions and our sins weigh upon us, and we waste away because of them; how then can we live?” ¹¹ Say to them, As I live, says the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from their ways and live; turn back, turn back from your evil ways; for why will you die, O house of Israel? ¹² And you, mortal, say to your people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not save them when they transgress; and as for the wickedness of the wicked, it shall not make them stumble when they turn from their wickedness; and the righteous shall not be able to live by their righteousness^a when they sin.

¹³ Though I say to the righteous that they shall surely live, yet if they trust in their righteousness and commit iniquity, none of their righteous deeds shall be remembered; but in the iniquity that they have committed they shall die. ¹⁴ Again, though I say to the wicked, “You shall surely die,” yet if they turn from their sin and do what is lawful and right— ¹⁵ if the wicked restore the pledge, give back what they have taken by robbery, and walk in the statutes of life, committing no iniquity—they shall surely live, they shall not die. ¹⁶ None of the sins that they have committed shall be remembered against them; they have done what is lawful and right, they shall surely live.

¹⁷ Yet your people say, “The way of the Lord is not just,” when it is their own way that is not just. ¹⁸ When the righteous turn from their righteousness, and commit iniquity, they shall die for it. ^b ¹⁹ And when the wicked turn from their wickedness, and do what is lawful and right, they shall live by it. ^b ²⁰ Yet you say, “The way of the Lord is not just.” O house of Israel, I will judge all of you according to your ways!

²¹ In the twelfth year of our exile, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month, someone who had escaped from Jerusalem came to me and said, “The city has fallen.” ²² Now the hand of the LORD had been upon me the evening before the fugitive came; but he had opened my mouth by the time the fugitive came to me in the morning; so my mouth was opened, and I was no longer unable to speak.

²³ The word of the LORD came to me:

²⁴ Mortal, the inhabitants of these waste places in the land of Israel keep saying, “Abraham was only one man, yet he got possession of the land; but we are many; the land is surely given us to possess.” ²⁵ Therefore say to them, Thus says the Lord God: You eat flesh with the blood, and lift up your eyes to your idols, and shed blood; shall you then possess the land? ²⁶ You depend on your swords, you commit abominations, and each of you defiles his neighbor’s wife; shall you then

^a Heb by it

^b Heb them

death but life, to call the people to repentance. 10–20: Repentance as the way to life. This oracle reemphasizes ch 18 and its stress on the moral autonomy of generations. Earlier this material had aimed to convict the exiles of their personal culpability. Here, Ezekiel’s theme of taking responsibility is used to show that one’s personal sinfulness is forgivable. 11: Cf. 18.23n.; 18.31. God’s impassioned plea is for all to find life, even the wicked.

33.21–22: Release from speechlessness. 21: Twelfth year . . . tenth month . . . fifth day, the exiles from Jerusalem arrived in Babylonia on January 19, 585 bce, about half a year after Jerusalem’s fall. (See Ezra 7.9 for a comparable travel time.) Escaped from Jerusalem, escaped death by exile to Babylonia. 22: Opened my mouth, Ezekiel’s concurrent release from the speechlessness of 3.26–27 was predicted at 24.27. The event is a watershed: the written judgment on Jerusalem of scripture, symbolized by the “written scroll” of 2.9–10, had been fulfilled, and now a new prophetic message of promise was possible.

33.23–33: Resistance in the homeland and in exile. 23–29: Disputation over possession of homeland property. Verse 24 reveals the social setting. The homelanderers are repeating their earlier claim to the land (11.15). Verses 25–26 indict them in terms echoing 18.1–20; 22.11; Lev 19.16,26 (HS). Isa 51.2 contrasts with Ezekiel in its positive use of the Abraham tradition (Gen 15). 25: The Heb wording (“you eat over the blood”) may refer to a sacrificial rite of augury or witchcraft (see Lev 19.26 [HS]) similar to the Assyrian apum and Hittite/Hurrian api (“pit”) rites possess the land? ²⁷ Say this to them, Thus says the Lord God: As I live, surely those who are in the waste places shall fall by the sword; and those who are in the open field I will give to the wild animals to be devoured; and those who are in strongholds and in caves shall die by pestilence. ²⁸ I will make the land a desolation and a waste, and its proud might shall come to an end; and the mountains of Israel shall be so desolate that no one will pass through. ²⁹ Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I have made the land a desolation and a waste because of all their abominations that they have committed.

³⁰ As for you, mortal, your people who talk together about you by the walls, and at the doors of the houses, say to one another, each to a neighbor, “Come and hear what the word is that comes from the LORD.” ³¹ They come to you as people come, and they sit before you as my people, and they hear your words, but they will not obey them. For flattery is on their lips, but their heart is set on their gain. ³² To them you are like a singer of love songs,^a one who has a beautiful voice and plays well on an instrument; they hear what you say, but they will not do it. ³³ When this comes—and come it will!—then they shall know that a prophet has been among them.

34 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel: prophesy, and say to them—to the shepherds: Thus says the Lord God: Ah, you shepherds of Israel who have been feeding yourselves! Should not shepherds feed the sheep? ³ You eat the fat, you clothe yourselves with the wool, you slaughter the fatlings; but you do not feed the sheep. ⁴ You have not strengthened the weak, you have not healed the sick, you have not bound up the injured, you have not brought back the strayed, you have not sought the lost, but with force and harshness you have ruled them. ⁵ So they were scattered, because there was no shepherd; and scattered, they became food for all the wild animals. ⁶ My sheep were scattered, they wandered over all the mountains and on every high hill; my sheep were scattered over all the face of the earth, with no one to search or seek for them.

⁷ Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: ⁸ As I live, says the Lord God, because my sheep have become a prey, and my sheep have become food for all the wild animals, since there was no shepherd; and because my shepherds have not searched for my sheep, but the shepherds have fed themselves, and have not fed my sheep; ⁹ therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: ¹⁰ Thus says the Lord God, I am against the shepherds; and I will demand my sheep at their hand, and put a stop to their feeding the sheep; no longer shall the shepherds feed themselves. I will rescue my sheep from their mouths, so that they may not be food for them.

¹¹ For thus says the Lord God: I myself will search for my sheep, and will seek them out. ¹² As shepherds seek out their flocks when they are among their scattered sheep, so I will seek out my sheep. I will rescue them from all the places to which they have been scattered on a day of clouds and thick darkness. ¹³ I will bring them out from the peoples and gather them from the countries, and will bring them into their own land; and I will feed them on the mountains of Israel, by the watercourses, and in all the inhabited parts of the land. ¹⁴ I will feed them with good pasture, and the mountain heights of Israel shall be their pas-

^a Cn: Heb like a love song

summoning up dead spirits from a pit. 27: On the three punishments, cf. 5:17; 14:21. 30–33: With the fulfillment of his prophecy of Jerusalem’s destruction, Ezekiel’s popularity grew. Unfortunately, the response of many exiles to Ezekiel’s words was shallow, lacking in personal commitment. 32: Love songs, the Hebrew indicates that Ezekiel’s words were just erotic entertainment to them; the same word is mistranslated “flattery” in v. 31.

34.1–31: The shepherds of Israel. 1–10: Israel’s kings are symbolized by shepherds, contracted by God to care for the people (my sheep, v. 6); the metaphor was widespread in the ancient Near East. But they had abused their people and scattered them. The chapter combines priestly (“Holiness School,” see the next page) and Jeremician (Jer 10:21; 23:1–4) language. 5: Wild animals, Judah’s attackers, especially Babylonia. 7–10: Punishment of the shepherds and rescue of the flock. Cf. Zech 11:8. 11–16: God is the good shepherd (Isa 40:11; Jer 31:10) who will gather the entire dispersed flock. 12: Day of clouds and thick darkness, the day of the LORD, as in ture; there they shall lie down in good grazing land, and they shall feed on rich pasture on the mountains of Israel. ¹⁵ I myself will be the shepherd of my sheep, and I will make them lie down, says the Lord God. ¹⁶ I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the strayed, and I will bind up the injured, and I will strengthen the weak, but the fat and the strong I will destroy. I will feed them with justice.

¹⁷ As for you, my flock, thus says the Lord God: I shall judge between sheep and sheep, between rams and goats: ¹⁸ Is it not enough for you to feed on the good pasture, but you must tread down with your feet the rest of your pasture? When you drink of clear water, must you foul the rest with your feet? ¹⁹ And must my sheep eat what you have trodden with your feet, and drink what you have fouled with your feet?

²⁰ Therefore, thus says the Lord God to them: I myself will judge between the fat sheep and the lean sheep. ²¹ Because you pushed with flank and shoulder, and butted at all the weak animals with your horns until you scattered them far and wide, ²² I will save my flock, and they shall no longer be ravaged; and I will judge between sheep and sheep.

²³ I will set up over them one shepherd, my servant David, and he shall feed them: he shall feed them and be their shepherd. ²⁴ And I, the LORD, will be their God, and my servant David shall be prince among them; I, the LORD, have spoken.

²⁵ I will make with them a covenant of peace and banish wild animals from the land, so that they may live in the wild and sleep in the woods securely. ²⁶ I will make them and the region around my hill a blessing; and I will send down the showers in their season; they shall be showers of blessing. ²⁷ The trees of the field shall yield their fruit, and the earth shall yield its increase. They shall be secure on their soil; and they shall know that I am the LORD, when I break the bars of their yoke, and save them from the hands of those who enslaved them. ²⁸ They shall no more be plunder for the nations, nor shall the animals of the land devour them; they shall live in safety, and no one shall make them afraid. ²⁹ I will provide for them a splendid vegetation so that they shall no more be consumed with hunger in the land, and no longer suffer the insults of the nations. ³⁰ They shall know that I, the LORD their God, am with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, says the Lord God. ³¹ You are my sheep, the sheep of my pasture^a and I am your God, says the Lord God.

35 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, set your face against Mount Seir, and prophesy against it, ³ and say to it, Thus says the Lord God:

I am against you, Mount Seir;
I stretch out my hand against you to make you a desolation and a waste.

⁴ I lay your towns in ruins;
you shall become a desolation,
and you shall know that I am the LORD.

⁵ Because you cherished an ancient enmity, and gave over the people of Israel to the power of the sword at the time of their calamity, at the time of their final punishment;

^a Gk OL: Heb pasture, you are people

Joel 2.2 and Zeph 1.15 (see 30.1–9n.; 32.3–8n.) 16: The focus shifts to God's care for needy individuals within the flock and to God's judgment of particular sheep (not just their shepherds). 17–31: A new order for Israel. 17–24: God will purge out oppressor "sheep" among the flock (20.38). 23–24: God will install a Davidic ruler (37.22–25; Jer 23.3–6; 30.9; Zech 6.12). Their shepherd, cf. Zech 13.7. Prince, see 44.1–3n. 25–31: An announcement of future blessedness dependent on the Holiness School: God will banish wild animals (v. 25; see Lev 26.6 [HS]), bless the people from the holy mountain (my hill, v. 26; cf. 40.2), and break the bars of their yoke (v. 27; see Lev 26.13 [HS]). Thus, the people will live in safety (v. 28; see Lev 26.5–6 [HS]). 25: Wild animals endangered humans, though Israel did not hunt them. God removes their threat from society; cf. Lev 25.7 (HS), but still cares for the life of wild carnivores (see Lev 25.7 [HS]). 29: Insults, see 36.15.

35.1–36.15: Oracle on behalf of the mountains of Israel. 35.1–15: Oracles against Edom. Edom already stands judged (see 25.12–14), but its punishment reappears here as a foil for the restoration message of 35.1–36.15. Ezekiel's prophecies of restoration generally have as foils past wrongs, which they aim to reverse. 1–4: First oracle. 2: Mount Seir is the mountain plateau of Edom's homeland (Gen 36.8). 5–9: Second oracle. 5: Cf. 25.12; Ob 10–14; Ps 137.7. The ancient enmity refers to the rivalry between Esau, the ancestor of the Edomites, and Jacob, ⁶ therefore, as I live, says the Lord God, I will prepare you for blood, and blood shall pursue you; since you did not hate bloodshed, bloodshed shall pursue you. ⁷ I will make Mount Seir a waste and a desolation; and I will cut off from it all who come and go. ⁸ I will fill its mountains with the slain; on your hills and in your valleys and in all your watercourses those killed with the sword shall fall. ⁹ I will make you a perpetual desolation, and your cities shall never be inhabited. Then you shall know that I am the LORD.

¹⁰ Because you said, “These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will take possession of them,”—although the LORD was there—¹¹ therefore, as I live, says the Lord God, I will deal with you according to the anger and envy that you showed because of your hatred against them; and I will make myself known among you,^a when I judge you. ¹² You shall know that I, the LORD, have heard all the abusive speech that you uttered against the mountains of Israel, saying, “They are laid desolate, they are given us to devour.” ¹³ And you magnified yourselves against me with your mouth, and multiplied your words against me; I heard it. ¹⁴ Thus says the Lord God: As the whole earth rejoices, I will make you desolate. ¹⁵ As you rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so I will deal with you; you shall be desolate, Mount Seir, and all Edom, all of it. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

36 And you, mortal, prophesy to the mountains of Israel, and say: O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD. ² Thus says the Lord God: Because the enemy said of you, “Aha!” and, “The ancient heights have become our possession,”³ therefore prophesy, and say: Thus says the Lord God: Because they made you desolate indeed, and crushed you from all sides, so that you became the possession of the rest of the nations, and you became an object of gossip and slander among the people; ⁴ therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord God: Thus says the Lord God to the mountains and the hills, the watercourses and the valleys, the desolate wastes and the deserted towns, which have become a source of plunder and an object of derision to the rest of the nations all around; ⁵ therefore thus says the Lord God: I am speaking in my hot jealousy against the rest of the nations, and against all Edom, who, with wholehearted joy and utter contempt, took my land as their possession, because of its pasture, to plunder it. ⁶ Therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains and hills, to the watercourses and valleys, Thus says the Lord God: I am speaking in my jealous wrath, because you have suffered the insults of the nations; ⁷ therefore thus says the Lord God: I swear that the nations that are all around you shall themselves suffer insults.

⁸ But you, O mountains of Israel, shall shoot out your branches, and yield your fruit to my people Israel; for they shall soon come home. ⁹ See now, I am for you; I will turn to you, and you shall be tilled and sown; ¹⁰ and I will multiply your population, the whole house of Israel, all of it; the towns shall be inhabited and the waste places rebuilt; ¹¹ and I will multiply human beings and animals upon you. They shall increase and be fruitful; and I will cause you to be inhabited as in your former times, and will do more good to you than ever before. Then you shall know that I

^a Gk: Heb them

the ancestor of the Israelites; see Gen 25.21–34; 27.10–13: Third oracle. 10: Two nations, Israel and Judah. The LORD was there until the glory left (see 10.1–22n, 11.22–25n.); however, the glory will return (48.35). 14–15: Fourth oracle. 15a: As Edom rejoiced over Judah’s fall (Ob 12), so the world will rejoice over Edom’s fall. 36.1–12: Reversing the land’s flawed past. Mountains of Israel, see 6.1–10n. The highlands, representing all Israel, are here promised deliverance and blessing. Ezekiel couches the promises as divine judgments, which are rooted in God’s anger over the slurs that the land has attracted. Though dispossessed by Edom (35.1–15) and surrounding nations (Neh 2.19), Israel will be restored to her heritage. This oracle reverses ch 6 (e.g., contrast v. 10 with 6.4–7). 5: God’s anthropopathic identification with the land of Israel is shown by the phrase my land (cf. Lev 25.23 [HS]). 8–12: Beyond the people’s repatriation and inner healing, God grants them new fruitfulness within a transformed environment. See also vv. 33–38. 9: Lev 26.9 (HS). 10: All of it, including the Northern Kingdom (37.21–22). 11: Lev 26.9 (HS).

am the LORD. ¹²I will lead people upon you—my people Israel—and they shall possess you, and you shall be their inheritance. No longer shall you bereave them of children.

¹³Thus says the Lord God: Because they say to you, “You devour people, and you bereave your nation of children,” ¹⁴therefore you shall no longer devour people and no longer bereave your nation of children, says the Lord God; ¹⁵and no longer will I let you hear the insults of the nations, no longer shall you bear the disgrace of the peoples; and no longer shall you cause your nation to stumble, says the Lord God.

¹⁶The word of the LORD came to me: ¹⁷Mortal, when the house of Israel lived on their own soil, they defiled it with their ways and their deeds; their conduct in my sight was like the uncleanness of a woman in her menstrual period. ¹⁸So I poured out my wrath upon them for the blood that they had shed upon the land, and for the idols with which they had defiled it. ¹⁹I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed through the countries; in accordance with their conduct and their deeds I judged them. ²⁰But when they came to the nations, wherever they came, they profaned my holy name, in that it was said of them, “These are the people of the LORD, and yet they had to go out of his land.” ²¹But I had concern for my holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations to which they came.

²²Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord God: It is not for your sake, O house of Israel, that I am about to act, but for the sake of my holy name, which you have profaned among the nations to which you came. ²³I will sanctify my great name, which has been profaned among the nations, and which you have profaned among them; and the nations shall know that I am the LORD, says the Lord God, when through you I display my holiness before their eyes. ²⁴I will take you from the nations, and gather you from all the countries, and bring you into your own land. ²⁵I will sprinkle clean water upon you, and you shall be clean from all your uncleannesses, and from all your idols I will cleanse you. ²⁶A new heart I will give you, and a new spirit I will put within you; and I will remove from your body the heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh. ²⁷I will put my spirit within you, and make you follow my statutes and be careful to observe my ordinances. ²⁸Then you shall live in the land that I gave to your ancestors; and you shall be my people, and I will be your God. ²⁹I will save you from all your uncleannesses, and I will summon the grain and make it abundant and lay no famine upon you. ³⁰I will make the fruit of the tree and the produce of the field

12: An editorial transition to vv. 13–15. 13–15: No more disgrace. The land had been feared as a devouring land at least since the time that Israel first reconnoitered it (Num 13.32 HS). In Ezekiel’s new Exodus and settlement, there will be no place for such defamation.

36.16–38: God’s honor causing the restoration. 16–21: Historical prologue. According to the Holiness School, the homeland vomits out inhabitants who defile it (Lev 18.25,28). 17: Uncleanness, see Lev 15.19–30 (Priestly tradition); 18.19 (HS). 20: My holy name, 20.9n. God’s name was desecrated (cf. Lev 20.3; 22.2,32 [HS]) either because the Exile made God look powerless to protect the Israelites (NRSV’s interpretation; cf. Num 14.16) or because God’s people from God’s own land proved to be depraved (alternate sense of the Hebrew). 22–32: Verses 22 and 32 form an envelope around this section by their parallel assertions that the restoration is not something deserved. According to v. 31, the people show remorse only after their restoration to the land. This chapter thus moves beyond texts such as Lev 26.40–42; Jer 31.18–20, where repentance is the driving motivation behind restoration. 23c–38: The absence of these verses in an important Greek papyrus suggests that this section may be a secondary addition. 24: A reversal of v. 19. 25: God will sprinkle them (cf. Num 19.20 [HS]; Ps 51.7), purifying them, since human beings cannot make themselves clean. 26: Ezekiel’s calls to repentance have failed (see 18.31n.). A radical, new creation (cf. 11.19; Ps 51.10) will be needed to break the people’s bondage to the cycles of sin and retribution of Israel’s past (ch 20). The concept of excising the people’s old incorrigible heart of stone (cf. 2.4; 3.7–9; Zech 7.12) and engrafting a completely new heart goes beyond Jer 31.33 and Deut 30.1–6, and is in keeping with Ezekiel’s focus on God’s sovereignty in effecting salvation (20.33–34). 27: The infusion of God’s spirit (cf. 37.14; 39.29; Ps 51.10–11; Joel 2.29; Zech 12.10) effects a fundamental regeneration of the people, so that obedience to the covenant (Lev 26.3 [HS]) will come naturally and the restoration will be permanent. 29–30: Lev 26.4 (HS).

abundant, so that you may never again suffer the disgrace of famine among the nations.

³¹Then you shall remember your evil ways, and your dealings that were not good; and you shall loathe yourselves for your iniquities and your abominable deeds. ³²It is not for your sake that I will act, says the Lord God; let that be known to you. Be ashamed and dismayed for your ways, O house of Israel.

³³Thus says the Lord God: On the day that I cleanse you from all your iniquities, I will cause the towns to be inhabited, and the waste places shall be rebuilt. ³⁴The land that was desolate shall be tilled, instead of being the desolation that it was in the sight of all who passed by. ³⁵And they will say, “This land that was desolate has become like the garden of Eden; and the waste and desolate and ruined towns are now inhabited and fortified.” ³⁶Then the nations that are left all around you shall know that I, the Lord, have rebuilt the ruined places, and replanted that which was desolate; I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will do it.

³⁷Thus says the Lord God: I will also let the house of Israel ask me to do this for them: to increase their population like a flock. ³⁸Like the flock for sacrifices,^a like the flock at Jerusalem during her appointed festivals, so shall the ruined towns be filled with flocks of people. Then they shall know that I am the Lord.

37 The hand of the Lord came upon me, and he brought me out by the spirit of the Lord and set me down in the middle of a valley; it was full of bones. ²He led me all around them; there were very many lying in the valley, and they were very dry. ³He said to me, “Mortal, can these bones live?” I answered, “O Lord God, you know.” ⁴Then he said to me, “Prophecy to these bones, and say to them: O dry bones, hear the word of the Lord. ⁵Thus says the Lord God to these bones: I will cause breath^b to enter you, and you shall live. ⁶I will lay sinews on you, and will cause flesh to come upon you, and cover you with skin, and put breath^b in you, and you shall live; and you shall know that I am the Lord.”

⁷So I prophesied as I had been commanded; and as I prophesied, suddenly there was a noise, a rattling, and the bones came together, bone to its bone. ⁸I looked, and there were sinews on them, and flesh had come upon them, and skin had covered them; but there was no breath in them. ⁹Then he said to me, “Prophecy to the breath, prophesy, mortal, and say to the breath:^c Thus says the Lord God: Come from the four winds, O breath,^c and breathe upon these slain, that they may live.” ¹⁰I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood on their feet, a vast multitude.

¹¹Then he said to me, “Mortal, these bones are the whole house of Israel. They say, ‘Our bones are dried up, and our hope is lost; we are cut off completely.’ ¹²Therefore prophesy,

^a Heb flock of holy things

^b Or spirit

^c Or wind or spirit

33–36: The skeptical nations (v. 20) will recognize Israel’s transformation to a paradise as God’s act. 35: Eden, Gen 2.4–14; cf. Ezek 47.1–12n.; Isa 51.3. God will now be at home in Israel just as in God’s own garden. 37–38: Note the reversal of 14.3; 20.3,31. As Jerusalem always bustled with flocks at pilgrimage times, Israel will now teem with human interaction, mutuality, and spiritual energy (a blessing of the Holiness School covenant; Lev 26.9). Thus, the proliferation of the flock will signal its consecration (see textual note a).

37.1–14: Vision of the valley of dry bones. 1: A valley, in Heb “the valley,” the same locale as in 3.22; 8.4. 3: Ezekiel does not yet realize that this vision refers to the exiles’ coming repatriation. At this point, he contemplates actual bodily resurrection as at least a theoretical possibility (cf. 1 Kings 17.22; 2 Kings 4.35; 13.21; Isa 26.19). Further, even to serve just as a compelling metaphor for repatriation, the original audience must have considered the idea of physical resurrection to be credible. 4–8: The first of two prophecies that are enfolded within the vision. As in Gen 2.7, life is generated here in two stages. 9–10: Suspense builds, as a second prophesying is required to animate the bones. Hebrew “ruah” can mean “spirit,” “breath,” or “wind”; thus there is a constant wordplay here (see v. 14n.). Four winds refers to God’s cosmic reach (1.17; 42.15–20n.; Zech 6.5). These slain, Ezekiel now assumes that he is surveying an old battlefield; the word translated multitude in v. 10 commonly means “army.” 11–14: The interpretation. Verse 11 finally reveals the actual life setting of the prophecy by and say to them, Thus says the Lord God: I am going to open your graves, and bring you up from your graves, O my people; and I will bring you back to the land of Israel. ¹³ And you shall know that I am the LORD, when I open your graves, and bring you up from your graves, O my people. ¹⁴ I will put my spirit within you, and you shall live, and I will place you on your own soil; then you shall know that I, the LORD, have spoken and will act, says the LORD.”

¹⁵ The word of the LORD came to me: ¹⁶ Mortal, take a stick and write on it, “For Judah, and the Israelites associated with it”; then take another stick and write on it, “For Joseph (the stick of Ephraim) and all the house of Israel associated with it”; ¹⁷ and join them together into one stick, so that they may become one in your hand. ¹⁸ And when your people say to you, “Will you not show us what you mean by these?” ¹⁹ say to them, Thus says the Lord God: I am about to take the stick of Joseph (which is in the hand of Ephraim) and the tribes of Israel associated with it; and I will put the stick of Judah upon it,^a and make them one stick, in order that they may be one in my hand. ²⁰ When the sticks on which you write are in your hand before their eyes, ²¹ then say to them, Thus says the Lord God: I will take the people of Israel from the nations among which they have gone, and will gather them from every quarter, and bring them to their own land. ²² I will make them one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king over them all. Never again shall they be two nations, and never again shall they be divided into two kingdoms. ²³ They shall never again defile themselves with their idols and their detestable things, or with any of their transgressions. I will save them from all the apostasies into which they have fallen,^b and will cleanse them. Then they shall be my people, and I will be their God.

²⁴ My servant David shall be king over them; and they shall all have one shepherd. They shall follow my ordinances and be careful to observe my statutes. ²⁵ They shall live in the land that I gave to my servant Jacob, in which your ancestors lived; they and their children and their children’s children shall live there forever; and my servant David shall be their prince forever. ²⁶ I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them; and I will bless^c them and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary among them forevermore. ²⁷ My dwelling place shall be with them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. ²⁸ Then the nations shall know that I the LORD sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary is among them forevermore.

38 The word of the LORD came to me: ² Mortal, set your face toward Gog, of the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal. Prophecy against him

^a Heb I will put them upon it

^b Another reading is from all the settlements in which they have sinned

^c Tg: Heb give

citing the exiles’ lament (cf. 8.12). The exiles’ bones are dried, a metaphor for a downcast spirit (Prov 17.22; 15.30). The metaphor of resurrection is the antidote to such despair. Cut off, a metaphor for being within the power of death (Ps 88.5; Lam 3.54). In vv. 12–14, the passage shifts to a metaphor of disinterment as an antidote to the latter complaint. 14: My spirit, cf. v. 1. Beyond political repatriation, and even biological resuscitation, the vision is about end-time regeneration (cf. 36.27; 39.29; Joel 2.28–29; Zech 12.10).

37.15–28: The symbolic action of the two sticks (cf. Zech 11.7–14) envisions the reunification of the southern (Judah) and northern (Joseph/Ephraim/Israel) tribes. Zadokite theology is oriented toward tribal unity; see 44.1–3n. Full restoration will be realized (34.28; 36.10): covenantal living (11.20) in the promised land (28.25) under the Davidic shepherd (34.23–24) in a covenant of peace (34.25). At that time, God will permanently return to the central sanctuary (43.9). 22: Mountains of Israel, 6.1–10n. 25: Prince, ruling chieftain (cf. 12.10; 19.1; 34.24; 44.1–3n.). 27: Dwelling place, in the theology of the Holiness School, God’s glory properly dwells among God’s people (cf. Ex 25.8; 29.45–46; 40.34; Lev 26.11; Num 5.3; 35.34 [HS]). 28: As in the ideal of the Holiness School, God sanctifies Israel by radiating the divine holiness out to the entire land (cf. Ex 31.13; Lev 19.2; 21.15; 22.32 [HS]).

38.1–39.29: The Gog of Magog oracles are early apocalyptic prophecy, describing the imminent attack of an embodied evil from the north against the promised land. After a cataclysmic, doomsday battle, God will be acknowledged by all nations as the undisputed victor (38.23; 39.21–29). At this point in the book, Ezekiel’s

³ and say: Thus says the Lord God: I am against you, O Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal; ⁴ I will turn you around and put hooks into your jaws, and I will lead you out with all your army, horses and horsemen, all of them clothed in full armor, a great company, all of them with shield and buckler, wielding swords. ⁵ Persia, Ethiopia,^a and Put are with them, all of them with buckler and helmet; ⁶ Gomer and all its troops; Beth-togarmah from the remotest parts of the north with all its troops—many peoples are with you.

⁷ Be ready and keep ready, you and all the companies that are assembled around you, and hold yourselves in reserve for them.

⁸ After many days you shall be mustered; in the latter years you shall go against a land restored from war, a land where people were gathered from many nations on the mountains of Israel, which had long lain waste; its people were brought out from the nations and now are living in safety, all of them. ⁹ You shall advance, coming on like a storm; you shall be like a cloud covering the land, you and all your troops, and many peoples with you.

¹⁰ Thus says the Lord God: On that day thoughts will come into your mind, and you will devise an evil scheme. ¹¹ You will say, “I will go up against the land of unwalled villages; I will fall upon the quiet people who live in safety, all of them living without walls, and having no bars or gates”; ¹² to seize spoil and carry off plunder; to assail the waste places that are now inhabited, and the people who were gathered from the nations, who are acquiring cattle and goods, who live at the center^b of the earth. ¹³ Sheba and Dedan and the merchants of Tarshish and all its young warriors^c will say to you, “Have you come to seize spoil? Have you assembled your horde to carry off plunder, to carry away silver and gold, to take away cattle and goods, to seize a great amount of booty?”

¹⁴ Therefore, mortal, prophesy, and say to Gog: Thus says the Lord God: On that day when my people Israel are living securely, you will rouse yourself^d ¹⁵ and come from your place out of the remotest parts of the north, you and many peoples with you, all of them riding on horses, a great horde, a mighty army; ¹⁶ you will come up against my people Israel, like a cloud covering the earth. In the latter days I will bring you against my land, so that the nations may know me, when through you, O Gog, I display my holiness before their eyes.

¹⁷ Thus says the Lord God: Are you he of whom I spoke in former days by my servants the prophets of Israel, who in those days prophesied for years that I would bring you against them? ¹⁸ On that day, when Gog

^a Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^b Heb navel

^c Heb young lions

^d Gk: Heb will you not know?

prophecies of restoration, which aim to reverse preceding tragedies, have not yet reversed Israel's Babylonian destruction. One role of the northern foe here is to play surrogate for Babylon, although Gog's army actually represents the transcendent power behind all principalities and blocs of evil that challenge God's sovereignty. 38.1–9: Prophecy against Gog. 2: Gog, no mere cipher or code-term for a this-worldly nation, but a mythic-realistic entity: tangibly real, but of mythological proportions. He is God's archetypal enemy, arising against God's people on doomsday. The name “Gog” may come from Num 24.7, understood to actually mention him (see the Septuagint). Magog, a place name taken from Gen 10.2; cf. the sound of the Heb text in Num 24.7. Meshech and Tubal, see 27.12–15n.; Gen 10.2. 5: Put, Libya; Gen 10.5. 6: Gomer, the Cimmericians in Asia Minor (Gen 10.2–3), far north of Israel. Beth-togarmah, see 27.12–15n. 10–13: The perspective shifts from God's sovereign, external control of history (vv. 3–9) to Gog's interior motives. 11: Unwalled is rhetorical hyperbole (cf. the fortified cities of Ezek 36:35): this monster is a slayer of the defenseless. 12: Center, see 5.5n.; 6.1–10n.; Zech 2.12. 13: Sheba, Dedan, and Tarshish were all engaged in trade; see 27.12–15n., 20–22n. 14–16: God's purpose is to display holiness and provoke the nations' recognition. 17: Transition from prophecies of Gog's invasion to prophecies of Gog's defeat. Texts such as Jer 4.6; 6.22 assume that earth's remote north will harbor forces of chaos until God conclusively vanquishes them, but v. 17 draws more directly on texts such as Num 24:7 (LXX) and Isa 14.4b–21, 24–27. The verse presupposes that a collection of prophetic scripture exists by the late exilic era. 18–23: Expansion of the Gog oracles, radicalizing their apocalyptic and priestly fervor. The radical mag-comes against the land of Israel, says the Lord God, my wrath shall be aroused. ¹⁹ For in my jealousy and in my blazing wrath I declare: On that day there shall be a great shaking in the land of Israel; ²⁰ the fish of the sea, and the birds of the air, and the animals of the field, and all creeping things that creep on the ground, and all human beings that are on the face of the earth, shall quake at my presence, and the mountains shall be thrown down, and the cliffs shall fall, and every wall shall tumble to the ground. ²¹ I will summon the sword against Gog^a in^b all my mountains, says the Lord God; the swords of all will be against their comrades. ²² With pestilence and bloodshed I will enter into judgment with him; and I will pour down torrential rains and hailstones, fire and sulfur, upon him and his troops and the many peoples that are with him. ²³ So I will display my greatness and my holiness and make myself known in the eyes of many nations. Then they shall know that I am the LORD.

39 And you, mortal, prophesy against Gog, and say: Thus says the Lord God: I am against you, O Gog, chief prince of Meshech and Tubal! ² I will turn you around and drive you forward, and bring you up from the remotest parts of the north, and lead you against the mountains of Israel. ³ I will strike your bow from your left hand, and will make your arrows drop out of your right hand. ⁴ You shall fall on the mountains of Israel, you and all your troops and the peoples that are with you; I will give you to birds of prey of every kind and to the wild animals to be devoured. ⁵ You shall fall in the open field; for I have spoken, says the Lord God. ⁶ I will send fire on Magog and on those who live securely in the coastlands; and they shall know that I am the LORD.

⁷ My holy name I will make known among my people Israel; and I will not let my holy name be profaned any more; and the nations shall know that I am the LORD, the Holy One in Israel. ⁸ It has come! It has happened, says the Lord God. This is the day of which I have spoken.

⁹ Then those who live in the towns of Israel will go out and make fires of the weapons and burn them—bucklers and shields, bows and arrows, handpikes and spears—and they will make fires of them for seven years. ¹⁰ They will not need to take wood out of the field or cut down any trees in the forests, for they will make their fires of the weapons; they will despoil those who despoiled them, and plunder those who plundered them, says the Lord God.

¹¹ On that day I will give to Gog a place for burial in Israel, the Valley of the Travelers^c east of the sea; it shall block the path of the travelers, for there Gog and all his horde will be buried; it shall be called the Valley of Hamon-gog.^d ¹² Seven months the house of Israel shall spend burying them, in order to cleanse the land. ¹³ All the people of the land shall bury them; and it will bring them honor on the day that I show my glory, says the Lord God. ¹⁴ They will set apart men to pass through the land regularly and bury any invaders^e who remain on the face of the land, so as to cleanse it; for seven months they

^a Heb him

^b Heb to or for

^c Or of the Abarim

^d That is, the Horde of Gog

^e Heb travelers

nitide of the apocalyptic threat is clear from the cosmic collapse (cf. Joel 2.10,30; Zech 14.4–5). 39.1–10: The fall of Gog. Gog will be defeated both in the field (vv. 1–5) and back at home (v. 6). God’s holy name will then be established (vv. 7–8; cf. 20.9n.; 36.22). 9–10: Everything of the enemy’s is devoted to the LORD alone. 11–16: Additional expansion of the God oracles. See 38.18–23n. In keeping with the Ezekiel group’s status as priests, increasing priestly concern accompanies the increased apocalyptic feeling; this section draws heavily on Holiness School traditions about the defiling effect of corpses (44.25–26; Lev 21.1; 22.4,7; Num 5.2–3; 9.6; 19.11 [HS]). Contact with a corpse creates a contagion that will “defile the tabernacle of the LORD” (Num 19.13 [HS]). 11: The travelers seem to be the enemy departed, whose great numbers stop up passage to the underworld. Ezek 16.21; 20.26; and 23.36–42 use the same Heb verb (“travel”) to describe child sacrifice in the Valley of Hinnom, a locale alluded to in the sound of the name Valley of Hamon-gog (“Hordes of Gog,” “Gog’s Mob”). Dan 11.45 will later closely follow v. 11’s geographical picture of Gog’s final end east of the sea, that is, the Mediterranean. 12: The shall make their search. ¹⁵ As the searchers^a pass through the land, anyone who sees a human bone shall set up a sign by it, until the buriers have buried it in the Valley of Hamongog.^b ¹⁶ (A city Hamonah^c is there also.) Thus they shall cleanse the land.

¹⁷ As for you, mortal, thus says the Lord God: Speak to the birds of every kind and to all the wild animals: Assemble and come, gather from all around to the sacrificial feast that I am preparing for you, a great sacrificial feast on the mountains of Israel, and you shall eat flesh and drink blood. ¹⁸ You shall eat the flesh of the mighty, and drink the blood of the princes of the earth—of rams, of lambs, and of goats, of bulls, all of them fatlings of Bashan. ¹⁹ You shall eat fat until you are filled, and drink blood until you are drunk, at the sacrificial feast that I am preparing for you. ²⁰ And you shall be filled at my table with horses and charioteers,^d with warriors and all kinds of soldiers, says the Lord God.

²¹ I will display my glory among the nations; and all the nations shall see my judgment that I have executed, and my hand that I have laid on them. ²² The house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God, from that day forward. ²³ And the nations shall know that the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity, because they dealt treacherously with me. So I hid my face from them and gave them into the hand of their adversaries, and they all fell by the sword. ²⁴ I dealt with them according to their uncleanness and their transgressions, and hid my face from them.

²⁵ Therefore thus says the Lord God: Now I will restore the fortunes of Jacob, and have mercy on the whole house of Israel; and I will be jealous for my holy name. ²⁶ They shall forget^e their shame, and all the treachery they have practiced against me, when they live securely in their land with no one to make them afraid, ²⁷ when I have brought them back from the peoples and gathered them from their enemies' lands, and through them have displayed my holiness in the sight of many nations. ²⁸ Then they shall know that I am the LORD their God because I sent them into exile among the nations, and then gathered them into their own land. I will leave none of them behind; ²⁹ and I will never again hide my face from them, when I pour out my spirit upon the house of Israel, says the Lord God.

40 In the twenty-fifth year of our exile, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city was struck down, on that very day, the hand of the LORD was upon me, and he brought me there. ² He brought me,

^a Heb travelers

^b That is, the Horde of Gog

^c That is The Horde

^d Heb chariots

^e Another reading is They shall bear

seven months required to bury the dead underscores the magnitude of the apocalyptic threat. 16: In 5.7; 7.12–14, Hamonah, “turbulent,” signified Jerusalem. In Ezek 45.6–7; 48.35 a new central metropolis, located south of a new Temple, upstages the old tumultuous capital. 17–20: Cf. 39.4b. An invitation to the animal world to attend an apocalyptic, “sacrificial” feast (cf. Isa 34.5–7; Zeph 1.7), perhaps a mock funerary banquet. 18: Animals consume blood and fat, which in normal sacrifices are exclusively God’s (44.15; Lev 3.17 [HS]). Bashan, in northern Transjordan, was noted for its cattle. 21–29: Secondary summary and concluding oracles. 25: Now I will restore, a shift in focus to a stage before the end-times. The victory and restoration are linked here with the familiar language and narrative line of Ezekiel (5.8 [reversed]; 28.26; 34.28–30). My holy name, 20.9n. 29: Cf. 36.27n.; 37.9,14; Ps 51.10–11; Zech 12.10; Joel 2.28–29.

40.1–48.35: Utopian vision of a restored Temple and land. Ezekiel details a utopian Temple that includes new ideal features that aim permanently to prevent the wrongs of the past—those that led to the destruction of Solomon’s Temple in 586 BCE. New Temple fortifications and new land boundaries will demarcate the holiness of the land and people (e.g., 42.20n.) with the Temple functioning as an organizing center of this holiness (43.12). In accordance with the Holiness School, the plan provides for the settlements and entire people of Israel to be encompassed by the holiness of God, whose dwelling in their midst is now to be permanently safeguarded (43.7; 44.1–3; 48.35). This section of Ezekiel does not prophesy a literal future for the Temple; rather, it offers a Temple plan as an embodiment of the values of Ezekiel and his followers.

in visions of God, to the land of Israel, and set me down upon a very high mountain, on which was a structure like a city to the south.

³When he brought me there, a man was there, whose appearance shone like bronze, with a linen cord and a measuring reed in his hand; and he was standing in the gateway.

⁴The man said to me, “Mortal, look closely and listen attentively, and set your mind upon all that I shall show you, for you were brought here in order that I might show it to you; declare all that you see to the house of Israel.”

⁵Now there was a wall all around the outside of the temple area. The length of the measuring reed in the man’s hand was six long cubits, each being a cubit and a hand-breadth in length; so he measured the thickness of the wall, one reed; and the height, one reed. ⁶Then he went into the gateway facing east, going up its steps, and measured the threshold of the gate, one reed deep.^a There were ⁷recesses, and each recess was one reed wide and one reed deep; and the space between the recesses, five cubits; and the threshold of the gate by the vestibule of the gate at the inner end was one reed deep. ⁸Then he measured the inner vestibule of the gateway, one cubit. ⁹Then he measured the vestibule of the gateway, eight cubits; and its pilasters, two cubits; and the vestibule of the gate was at the inner end. ¹⁰There were three recesses on either side of the east gate; the three were of the same size; and the pilasters on either side were of the same size. ¹¹Then

he measured the width of the opening of the gateway, ten cubits; and the width of the gateway, thirteen cubits. ¹²There was a barrier before the recesses, one cubit on either side; and the recesses were six cubits on either side. ¹³Then he measured the gate from the back^b of the one recess to the back^b of the other, a width of twenty-five cubits, from wall to wall.^c ¹⁴He measured^d also the vestibule, twenty cubits; and the gate next to the pilaster on every side of the court.^e ¹⁵From the front of the gate at the entrance to the end of the inner vestibule of the gate was fifty cubits. ¹⁶The recesses and their pilasters had windows, with shutters^e on the inside of the gateway all around, and the vestibules also had windows on the inside all around; and on the pilasters were palm trees.

¹⁷Then he brought me into the outer court; there were chambers there, and a pavement, all around the court; thirty chambers fronted on the pavement. ¹⁸The pavement ran along the side of the gates, corresponding to the length of the gates; this was the lower pavement. ¹⁹Then he measured the distance from the inner front of^f the lower gate to the outer front of the inner court, one hundred cubits.^g

^a Heb deep, and one threshold, one reed deep

^b Gk: Heb roof

^c Heb opening facing opening

^d Heb made

^e Meaning of Heb uncertain

^f Compare Gk: Heb from before

^g Heb adds the east and the north

40.1–42.20: The new Temple. Key modifications of the Temple, such as immense gate-towers and graded zones of holiness, secure the hierarchical world of the Holiness School. 40.1–27: The Temple area and gates: 1–5: Twenty-fifth year . . . beginning . . . tenth day, April 28, 573 BCE. At the age for retirement from priestly service (Num 4.3; 8.23–25 [HS]), Ezekiel is transported in a vision (cf. 8.2–3) to the mythic cosmic mountain (very high mountain, v. 2); cf. 5.5; 17.22; 28.14; 38.12; Zech 14.10). 2: A city, the Temple compound. 3: Shone like bronze, a radiant, supernatural figure (cf. 1.7). 5: An outer wall surrounded the entire Temple compound. The long cubit was about 21 in (53 cm). The reed was about 10.5 ft (3.2 m) long. 6–16: The compound’s outer gate-towers were massive. They consisted of an outer threshold (foyer area), a long hallway with recesses (guard alcoves), a second, inner, threshold area, and a vestibule room (an entry-porch or narthex) facing the inside of the Temple compound. Heavy pilasters (piers) with windows separated the inside guardrooms (three on each side). 6: East, cf. the garden of Eden’s east entrance (Gen 3.24). This gate is treated further in 43.1–5; 44.1–3. 8: One cubit, rather “one reed,” 10.5 ft (3.2 m) 10: Several excavated gateways, such as those at Gezer, Hazor, and Megiddo, have side rooms. 14: The Heb text here makes the jamb-posts on the porch of colossal height, “sixty cubits”: over ten stories (105 ft [32 m]). 16: Palm trees, see 28.13n. In many cultures, trees are “door guardians,” gateways between worlds. 17–19: The compound’s outer courtyard. The thirty chambers around the court’s periphery were for people to meet and eat their sacrifices together (Jer 35.2; Neh 13.4–12). See also 46.21–24. 19: Outer front, ²⁰ Then he measured the gate of the outer court that faced north—its depth and width. ²¹ Its recesses, three on either side, and its pilasters and its vestibule were of the same size as those of the first gate; its depth was fifty cubits, and its width twenty-five cubits. ²² Its windows, its vestibule, and its palm trees were of the same size as those of the gate that faced toward the east. Seven steps led up to it; and its vestibule was on the inside.^a ²³ Opposite the gate on the north, as on the east, was a gate to the inner court; he measured from gate to gate, one hundred cubits.

²⁴ Then he led me toward the south, and there was a gate on the south; and he measured its pilasters and its vestibule; they had the same dimensions as the others. ²⁵ There were windows all around in it and in its vestibule, like the windows of the others; its depth was fifty cubits, and its width twenty-five cubits. ²⁶ There were seven steps leading up to it; its vestibule was on the inside.^a It had palm trees on its pilasters, one on either side. ²⁷ There was a gate on the south of the inner court; and he measured from gate to gate toward the south, one hundred cubits.

²⁸ Then he brought me to the inner court by the south gate, and he measured the south gate; it was of the same dimensions as the others. ²⁹ Its recesses, its pilasters, and its vestibule were of the same size as the others; and there were windows all around in it and in its vestibule; its depth was fifty cubits, and its width twenty-five cubits. ³⁰ There were vestibules all around, twenty-five cubits deep and five cubits wide. ³¹ Its vestibule faced the outer court, and palm trees were on its pilasters, and its stairway had eight steps.

³² Then he brought me to the inner court on the east side, and he measured the gate; it was of the same size as the others. ³³ Its recesses, its pilasters, and its vestibule were of the same dimensions as the others; and there were windows all around in it and in its vestibule; its depth was fifty cubits, and its width twenty-five cubits. ³⁴ Its vestibule faced the outer court, and it had palm trees on its pilasters, on either side; and its stairway had eight steps.

³⁵ Then he brought me to the north gate, and he measured it; it had the same dimensions as the others. ³⁶ Its recesses, its pilasters, and its vestibule were of the same size as the others;^b and it had windows all around. Its depth was fifty cubits, and its width twenty-five cubits. ³⁷ Its vestibule^c faced the outer court, and it had palm trees on its pilasters, on either side; and its stairway had eight steps.

³⁸ There was a chamber with its door in the vestibule of the gate,^d where the burnt offering was to be washed. ³⁹ And in the vestibule of the gate were two tables on either side, on which the burnt offering and the sin offering and the guilt offering were to be slaughtered. ⁴⁰ On the outside of the vestibule^e at the entrance of the north gate were two tables; and on the other side of the vestibule of the gate were two tables. ⁴¹ Four tables were on the inside, and four tables on the outside of the side of the gate, eight tables, on which the sacrifices were to be slaughtered. ⁴² There were also four tables of hewn stone for the burnt offering, a cubit and a half long, and one cubit and a half wide, and one cubit high, on which the instruments were to be laid with which the burnt offerings and the sac-

^a Gk: Heb before them

^b One Ms: Compare verses 29 and 33; MT lacks were of the same size as the others

^c Gk Vg Compare verses 26, 31, 34: Heb pilasters

^d Cn: Heb at the pilasters of the gates

^e Cn: Heb to him who goes up the inner courtyard's perimeter, with which the front of the inner gatehouses was flush. 20–27: The northern and southern gate-towers of the outer courtyard were identical to the east gate-tower. Steps up to the gates (vv. 22,26) show the holiness of the elevated Temple compound. 28–46: The inner gate-towers. Only priests could pass through the three inner gate-towers, which guarded access to the raised inner courtyard (42.14; 44.19; 46.3). 31: Eight steps led to the raised courtyard, demarcating a new gradation of holiness (vv. 34,37). The foundation of the raised terrace formed a barrier, allowing the courtyard to lack a wall proper (except for the 175 ft [53.3 m] façade in 42.2). 38–43: The vestibules (porches or narthexes) of the inner gates had associated tables and tools for the preparation of sacrifices. Burnt, sin, and guilt offerings, the “most holy” sacrifices (42.13; 44.13; see Lev 22.15, Num 5.9–10; 18.8–10, all HS), which had to be cooked or burned only on the central rifices were slaughtered.⁴³ There were pegs, one handbreadth long, fastened all around the inside. And on the tables the flesh of the offering was to be laid.

⁴⁴ On the outside of the inner gateway there were chambers for the singers in the inner court, one^a at the side of the north gate facing south, the other at the side of the east gate facing north.⁴⁵ He said to me, “This chamber that faces south is for the priests who have charge of the temple,⁴⁶ and the chamber that faces north is for the priests who have charge of the altar; these are the descendants of Zadok, who alone among the descendants of Levi may come near to the LORD to minister to him.”⁴⁷ He measured the court, one hundred cubits deep, and one hundred cubits wide, a square; and the altar was in front of the temple.

⁴⁸ Then he brought me to the vestibule of the temple and measured the pilasters of the vestibule, five cubits on either side; and the width of the gate was fourteen cubits; and the sidewalls of the gate were three cubits^b on either side.⁴⁹ The depth of the vestibule was twenty cubits, and the width twelve^c cubits; ten steps led up^d to it; and there were pillars beside the pilasters on either side.

41 Then he brought me to the nave, and measured the pilasters; on each side six cubits was the width of the pilasters.^e
² The width of the entrance was ten cubits; and the sidewalls of the entrance were five cubits on either side. He measured the length of the nave, forty cubits, and its width, twenty cubits.³ Then he went into the inner room and measured the pilasters of the entrance, two cubits; and the width of the entrance, six cubits; and the sidewalls^f of the entrance, seven cubits.⁴ He measured the depth of the room, twenty cubits, and its width, twenty cubits, beyond the nave. And he said to me, This is the most holy place.

⁵ Then he measured the wall of the temple, six cubits thick; and the width of the side chambers, four cubits, all around the temple.⁶ The side chambers were in three stories, one over another, thirty in each story. There were offsets^g all around the wall of the temple to serve as supports for the side chambers, so that they should not be supported by the wall of the temple.⁷ The passageway^h of the side chambers widened from story to story; for the structure was supplied with a stairway all around the temple. For this reason the structure became wider from story to story. One ascended from the bottom story to the uppermost story by way of the middle one.⁸ I saw also

^a Heb lacks one

^b Gk: Heb and the width of the gate was three cubits

^c Gk: Heb eleven

^d Gk: Heb and by steps that went up

^e Compare Gk: Heb tent

^f Gk: Heb width

^g Gk Compare 1 Kings 6.6: Heb they entered

^h Cn: Heb it was surrounded altar. 44–46: Priests' barracks or chambers for guard duty flanked the north and south gatehouses. These are different from the sacristy chambers of 42.1–14. 44: Chambers for the singers, read “two chambers.” East gate, read “south gate” with the Septuagint. 46b: Only Zadokite priests, such as Ezekiel and his group, may sacrifice at the altar (43.19; 44.15–31n.). Non-Zadokite sons of Aaron occupied the other, south-facing chamber. Levites are not allowed in the inner courtyard at all. Priestly altar and sanctuary duties are already distinguished in Num 18.5 (HS). 40.47–41.4: The Temple proper. The great girth of the pillasters (40.48) indicates the Temple vestibule (entry-porch) may be of immense height, taller even than the gate-towers. The successive entrances to the Temple's three rooms become narrower, symbolizing increasing holiness (40.48; 41.2; 41.3). The porch is proportionally elongated compared with Solomon's design (40.49; 1 Kings 6.3). 40.47: Court, not the entire inner courtyard, but the area around the great altar. A square, symbolic of what is cosmic, transcendent, and holy. 49: Steps up to the Temple building, which sat on another raised platform (41.8), again indicate increasing holiness. The freestanding pillars perhaps symbolize bronze mountains on earth's horizon (Zech 6.1–8; 1 Kings 7.15–22), a cosmic portal to God's presence. 41.3–4: The adytum (inner room or most holy place), too holy for Ezekiel to enter, was a perfect square of 35 ft (10.6 m) per side. The cubic space is stable, simple, and empty, casting the reader's imagination toward the uniquely substantial bodily Presence that will indwell it. 41.5–15a: Annexes and surroundings. The three tiers of thirty small supply chambers per tier on the sides of the Temple (cf. 1 Kings 6.5–10) probably stored equipment for services and people's offerings (cf. 44.30; 1 Kings 14.26;

that the temple had a raised platform all around; the foundations of the side chambers measured a full reed of six long cubits.⁹ The thickness of the outer wall of the side chambers was five cubits; and the free space between the side chambers of the temple¹⁰ and the chambers of the court was a width of twenty cubits all around the temple on every side.¹¹ The side chambers opened onto the area left free, one door toward the north, and another door toward the south; and the width of the part that was left free was five cubits all around.

¹²The building that was facing the temple yard on the west side was seventy cubits wide; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick all around, and its depth ninety cubits.

¹³Then he measured the temple, one hundred cubits deep; and the yard and the building with its walls, one hundred cubits deep;¹⁴ also the width of the east front of the temple and the yard, one hundred cubits.

¹⁵Then he measured the depth of the building facing the yard at the west, together with its galleries^a on either side, one hundred cubits.

The nave of the temple and the inner room and the outer^b vestibule¹⁶ were paneled,^c and, all around, all three had windows with recessed^d frames. Facing the threshold the temple was paneled with wood all around, from the floor up to the windows (now the windows were covered),¹⁷ to the space above the door, even to the inner room, and on the outside. And on all the walls all around in the inner room and the nave there was a pattern.^e¹⁸ It was formed of cherubim and palm trees, a palm tree between cherub and cherub. Each cherub had two faces:¹⁹ a human face turned toward the palm tree on the one side, and the face of a young lion turned toward the palm tree on the other side. They were carved on the whole temple all around;²⁰ from the floor to the area above the door, cherubim and palm trees were carved on the wall.^f

²¹The doorposts of the nave were square. In front of the holy place was something resembling²² an altar of wood, three cubits high, two cubits long, and two cubits wide;⁹ its corners, its base,^h and its walls were of wood. He said to me, "This is the table that stands before the LORD."²³ The nave and the holy place had each a double door.²⁴ The doors had two leaves apiece, two swinging leaves for each door.²⁵ On the doors of the nave were carved cherubim and palm trees, such as were carved on the walls; and there was a canopy of wood in front of the vestibule outside.²⁶ And there were recessed windows and palm trees on either side, on the sidewalls of the vestibule.ⁱ

42 Then he led me out into the outer court, toward the north, and he brought me to the chambers that were opposite the temple yard and opposite the building on the north.² The length of the building that was on the north side^j was^k one hundred cubits, and the width

^a Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk: Heb of the court

^c Gk: Heb the thresholds

^d Cn Compare Gk 1 Kings 6.4: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Heb measures

^f Cn Compare verse 25: Heb and the wall

^g Gk: Heb lacks two cubits wide

^h Gk: Heb length

ⁱ Cn: Heb vestibule. And the side chambers of the temple and the canopies

^j Gk: Heb door

^k Gk: Heb before the length

2 Kings 14.14). 10: Chambers of the court, sacristy chambers introduced later in 42.1–14. 12: The rear, west building may be for storage or perhaps symbolizes the stables of the divine chariot force, chariots that Zech 6.5 identifies with Ezekiel's four cosmic winds/spirits (see 37.9–10n). 15b–26: Wall decoration and interior furnishings. 18–20: Eden, God's dwelling, had fantastic trees and cherubim (cf. 28.13n.), a feature of Solomon's Temple also (1 Kings 6.29–30). 22: The Zadokites single out the table (see Lev 24.5–9 HS) as symbolic of an anthropomorphic God enjoying table fellowship with Israel.

42.1–14: The priests' chambers. Sacristy chambers, where the priests dressed and ate sacrificial meals, lay on the north and south sides of the raised inner courtyard, directly west of the north and south gate-towers. 2: On the fifty cubits.³ Across the twenty cubits that belonged to the inner court, and facing the pavement that belonged to the outer court, the chambers rose^a gallery^b by gallery^b in three stories.⁴ In front of the chambers was a passage on the inner side, ten cubits wide and one hundred cubits deep,^c and its^d entrances were on the north.⁵ Now the upper chambers were narrower, for the galleries^b took more away from them than from the lower and middle chambers in the building.⁶ For they were in three stories, and they had no pillars like the pillars of the outer^e court; for this reason the upper chambers were set back from the ground more than the lower and the middle ones.⁷ There was a wall outside parallel to the chambers, toward the outer court, opposite the chambers, fifty cubits long.⁸ For the chambers on the outer court were fifty cubits long, while those opposite the temple were one hundred cubits long.⁹ At the foot of these chambers ran a passage that one entered from the east in order to enter them from the outer court.¹⁰ The width of the passage^f was fixed by the wall of the court.

On the south⁹ also, opposite the vacant area and opposite the building, there were chambers¹¹ with a passage in front of them; they were similar to the chambers on the north, of the same length and width, with the same exits^h and arrangements and doors.¹² So the entrances of the chambers to the south were entered through the entrance at the head of the corresponding passage, from the east, along the matching wall.^b

¹³ Then he said to me, “The north chambers and the south chambers opposite the vacant area are the holy chambers, where the priests who approach the LORD shall eat the most holy offerings; there they shall deposit the most holy offerings—the grain offering, the sin offering, and the guilt offering—for the place is holy.¹⁴ When the priests enter the holy place, they shall not go out of it into the outer court without laying there the vestments in which they minister, for these are holy; they shall put on other garments before they go near to the area open to the people.”

¹⁵ When he had finished measuring the interior of the temple area, he led me out by the gate that faces east, and measured the temple area all around.¹⁶ He measured the east side with the measuring reed, five hundred cubits by the measuring reed.¹⁷ Then he turned and measuredⁱ the north side, five hundred cubits by the measuring reed.¹⁸ Then he turned and measuredⁱ the south side, five hundred cubits by the measuring reed.¹⁹ Then he turned to the west side and measured, five hundred cubits by the measuring reed.²⁰ He measured it on the four sides. It had a wall around it, five hundred cubits long and five hundred cubits wide, to make a separation between the holy and the common.

43 Then he brought me to the gate, the gate facing east.² And there, the glory of the God of Israel was coming from the east; the sound was like the sound of mighty

^a Heb lacks the chambers rose

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Gk Syr: Heb a way of one cubit

^d Heb their

^e Gk: Heb lacks outer

^f Heb lacks of the passage

^g Gk: Heb east

^h Heb and all their exits

ⁱ Gk: Heb measuring reed all around.

He measured size, see 40.31n. 9: Outer court, not the large public courtyard but the small area up on the inner terrace between the gate-tower and the sacristies. The priests could move between sacristies and altar without leaving the inner courtyard (see v. 14). 13: On the offerings, see 40.38–43n. 14: See 44.19n. 15–20: The measuring completed. The total Temple area is a perfect square of 875 ft (267 m) per side (see 40.47n.). The Heb idiom (“wind”; NRSV side) used here to express direction suggestively points to the Temple’s expansive valence, its cosmic influence (cf. 37.9). 20: Marking boundaries of holiness, distinguishing between the holy and the common, was a central concern of the Zadokites (22.26; 44.23; Lev 10.10–11 [HS]).

43.1–12: Return of the glory of the Lord. As God on the throne-chariot had forsaken the Temple by the east gate (10.18–19; 11.22–23), so God’s glory (see 10.1–22n.) returns through the same gate (40.6–16; 44.1–3). 2: Sound, see waters; and the earth shone with his glory. ³The^a vision I saw was like the vision that I had seen when he came to destroy the city, and^b like the vision that I had seen by the river Chebar; and I fell upon my face. ⁴As the glory of the LORD entered the temple by the gate facing east, ⁵the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court; and the glory of the LORD filled the temple.

⁶While the man was standing beside me, I heard someone speaking to me out of the temple. ⁷He said to me: Mortal, this is the place of my throne and the place for the soles of my feet, where I will reside among the people of Israel forever. The house of Israel shall no more defile my holy name, neither they nor their kings, by their whoring, and by the corpses of their kings at their death.^c ⁸When they placed their threshold by my threshold and their doorposts beside my doorposts, with only a wall between me and them, they were defiling my holy name by their abominations that they committed; therefore I have consumed them in my anger. ⁹Now let them put away their idolatry and the corpses of their kings far from me, and I will reside among them forever.

¹⁰As for you, mortal, describe the temple to the house of Israel, and let them measure the pattern; and let them be ashamed of their iniquities. ¹¹When they are ashamed of all that they have done, make known to them the plan of the temple, its arrangement, its exits and its entrances, and its whole form—all its ordinances and its entire plan and all its laws; and write it down in their sight, so that they may observe and follow the entire plan and all its ordinances. ¹²This is the law of the temple: the whole territory on the top of the mountain all around shall be most holy. This is the law of the temple.

¹³These are the dimensions of the altar by cubits (the cubit being one cubit and a handbreadth): its base shall be one cubit high,^d and one cubit wide, with a rim of one span around its edge. This shall be the height of the altar: ¹⁴From the base on the ground to the lower ledge, two cubits, with a width of one cubit; and from the smaller ledge to the larger ledge, four cubits, with a width of one cubit; ¹⁵and the altar hearth, four cubits; and from the altar hearth projecting upward, four horns. ¹⁶The altar hearth shall be square, twelve cubits long by twelve wide. ¹⁷The ledge also shall be square, fourteen cubits long by fourteen wide, with a rim around it half a cubit wide, and its surrounding base, one cubit. Its steps shall face east.

¹⁸Then he said to me: Mortal, thus says the Lord GOD: These are the ordinances for the altar: On the day when it is erected for offering burnt offerings upon it and for dashing blood against it, ¹⁹you shall give to the levitical priests of the family of Zadok, who draw near to me to minister to me, says the Lord GOD, a bull for a sin offering. ²⁰And you shall take some of its blood, and put it on the four horns of the altar, and on the four corners of the ledge, and upon the rim all around; thus

^a Gk: Heb Like the vision

^b Syr: Heb and the visions

^c Or on their high places

^d Gk: Heb lacks high

1.4n. 3: Chebar, 1.1–3n. Fell, 1.28n.; 3.23. 6–12: God warns against any more royal encroachment on the Temple. 7: Mortal, 2.1n. Corpses, the Heb term (also Lev 26.30 [HS]) probably refers to offerings venerating the dead and to the funeral pillars at which they occurred. Isa 56.3–5 shows a very different stance than Ezekiel. 10–12: Instructions and statement of purpose. 10: Pattern, as in 28.12, the Heb term, which resembles the term “pattern” (Ex 25.9 [HS]), indicates “perfection.” 12: Law of the temple, it was the priests, such as Ezekiel, who transmitted such catechetical instruction to people (44.23n.).

43.13–17: The altar of burnt offerings (40.47). The altar, the architectural center of the Temple complex, visible to all ritual participants, is shaped like the Babylonian ziggurats, meant to be cosmic centers and gateways to heaven (cf. 5.5n.; 38.12n.; Gen 11.4). The base on the ground (v. 14) is literally “the lap/bosom of the earth,” earth’s center and nexus with the heavenly realm. The altar hearth (v. 15) in Hebrew is spelled like “the mountain of God” (see 28.14n.). 15: Horns, see 1 Kings 1.50n. 16: Hearth, the altar’s top layer for burning sacrifices. 17: The height of the altar, over 17 ft (5.2 m), necessitated steps (contrast Ex 20.26). 43.18–27: The altar’s consecration. On the analogy of earlier rites (Ex 40.1–38 [HS]; Lev 8.14–15), the priests of Zadok (40.46n.; 44.15–31n.) must dedicate the altar upon its completion. 20: Atonement is necessary not due to the

you shall purify it and make atonement for it. ²¹You shall also take the bull of the sin offering, and it shall be burnt in the appointed place belonging to the temple, outside the sacred area.

²²On the second day you shall offer a male goat without blemish for a sin offering; and the altar shall be purified, as it was purified with the bull. ²³When you have finished purifying it, you shall offer a bull without blemish and a ram from the flock without blemish. ²⁴You shall present them before the LORD, and the priests shall throw salt on them and offer them up as a burnt offering to the LORD. ²⁵For seven days you shall provide daily a goat for a sin offering; also a bull and a ram from the flock, without blemish, shall be provided. ²⁶Seven days shall they make atonement for the altar and cleanse it, and so consecrate it. ²⁷When these days are over, then from the eighth day onward the priests shall offer upon the altar your burnt offerings and your offerings of well-being; and I will accept you, says the Lord God.

44 Then he brought me back to the outer gate of the sanctuary, which faces east; and it was shut. ²The LORD said to me: This gate shall remain shut; it shall not be opened, and no one shall enter by it; for the LORD, the God of Israel, has entered by it; therefore it shall remain shut. ³Only the prince, because he is a prince, may sit in it to eat food before the LORD; he shall enter by way of the vestibule of the gate, and shall go out by the same way.

⁴Then he brought me by way of the north gate to the front of the temple; and I looked, and lo! the glory of the LORD filled the temple of the LORD; and I fell upon my face. ⁵The LORD said to me: Mortal, mark well, look closely, and listen attentively to all that I shall tell you concerning all the ordinances of the temple of the LORD and all its laws; and mark well those who may be admitted to^a the temple and all those who are to be excluded from the sanctuary. ⁶Say to the rebellious house,^b to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord God: O house of Israel, let there be an end to all your abominations⁷ in admitting foreigners, uncircumcised in heart and flesh, to be in my sanctuary, profaning my temple when you offer to me my food, the fat and the blood. You^c have broken my covenant with all your abominations. ⁸And you have not kept charge of my sacred offerings; but you have appointed foreigners^d to act for you in keeping my charge in my sanctuary.

⁹Thus says the Lord God: No foreigner, uncircumcised in heart and flesh, of all the foreigners who are among the people of Israel, shall enter my sanctuary. ¹⁰But the Levites who went far from me, going astray from me after their idols when Israel went astray, shall bear their punishment. ¹¹They shall be

^a Cn: Heb the entrance of

^b Gk: Heb lacks house

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb They

^d Heb lacks foreigners

altar's sin or pollution, but to "wipe it of its ordinariness" (Rashi). 21: Lev 4.11–12; 8.16–17.

44.1–3: The outer east gate. Babylon's Sacred Gate, normally closed, opened for processions of the god Marduk. In contrast, this gate-tower (40.6–14) remains closed permanently, symbolizing God's perpetual presence inside the Temple (43.7,9). Thus shut, the gate-complex becomes a ceremonial room, where the prince eats his part of the sacrificial meal (43.27; Lev 7.15; 22.21). The term prince ("ruling chieftain," 19.1n.; Num 10.4 [HS]) derives from Israel's tribal past, and Ezekiel uses it to uphold the kinship networks of the countryside and the landed patrimonies that supported them (see 45.8–9n.; 46.18n.). The Holiness School is concerned with organizing and stabilizing God's entire holy territory including the countryside, not an isolated royal capital.

44.4–31: Temple ordinances. 4–5: A renewed commission. 6–16: Under the influence of the Holiness School, Ezekiel finds particular past wrongs needing reversal encapsulated in Num 16–18, a text about the rebellion of Levites during Israel's wilderness wanderings. 7–8: The primary reference is to a prototypical narrative: the Levites' encroachment on priestly prerogatives in Num 16.40; 18.4,7 (HS). The Levites are foreigners, that is, "outsiders" with respect to the priestly obligations of the sanctuary and the altar. 9: All non-priests, including actual foreigners, are barred from the inner courtyard/priestly platform of the sanctuary. Resident aliens are welcome, however, in the Temple's outer, public courtyard (cf. 47.21–23n.). 10–14: Here, the Levites are restored to the circumscribed responsibilities in God's shrine that they received after their rebellion in the wilderness (Num 18.3–4 [HS]). 10: When Israel went astray, Num 16.2,22,41. Bear their punishment, Num 18.23. 11: The limitation of the slaughtering of ministers in my sanctuary, having oversight at the gates of the temple, and serving in the temple; they shall slaughter the burnt offering and the sacrifice for the people, and they shall attend on them and serve them.¹² Because they ministered to them before their idols and made the house of Israel stumble into iniquity, therefore I have sworn concerning them, says the Lord God, that they shall bear their punishment.¹³ They shall not come near to me, to serve me as priest, nor come near any of my sacred offerings, the things that are most sacred; but they shall bear their shame, and the consequences of the abominations that they have committed.¹⁴ Yet I will appoint them to keep charge of the temple, to do all its chores, all that is to be done in it.

¹⁵ But the levitical priests, the descendants of Zadok, who kept the charge of my sanctuary when the people of Israel went astray from me, shall come near to me to minister to me; and they shall attend me to offer me the fat and the blood, says the Lord God.¹⁶ It is they who shall enter my sanctuary, it is they who shall approach my table, to minister to me, and they shall keep my charge.¹⁷ When they enter the gates of the inner court, they shall wear linen vestments; they shall have nothing of wool on them, while they minister at the gates of the inner court, and within.

¹⁸ They shall have linen turbans on their heads, and linen undergarments on their loins; they shall not bind themselves with anything that causes sweat.¹⁹ When they go out into the outer court to the people, they shall remove the vestments in which they have been ministering, and lay them in the holy chambers; and they shall put on other garments, so that they may not communicate holiness to the people with their vestments.

²⁰ They shall not shave their heads or let their locks grow long; they shall only trim the hair of their heads.²¹ No priest shall drink wine when he enters the inner court.²² They shall not marry a widow, or a divorced woman, but only a virgin of the stock of the house of Israel, or a widow who is the widow of a priest.²³ They shall teach my people the difference between the holy and the common, and show them how to distinguish between the unclean and the clean.²⁴ In a controversy they shall act as judges, and they shall decide it according to my judgments. They shall keep my laws and my statutes regarding all my appointed festivals, and they shall keep my sabbaths holy.²⁵ They shall not defile themselves by going near to a dead person; for father or mother, however, and for son or daughter, and for brother or unmarried sister they may defile themselves.²⁶ After he has become clean, they shall count seven days for him.²⁷ On the day that he goes into the holy place, into the inner court, to minister in the holy place, he shall offer his sin offering, says the Lord God.

²⁸ This shall be their inheritance: I am their inheritance; and you shall give them no holding in Israel; I am their holding.²⁹ They shall eat the grain offering, the sin offering, and the guilt offering; and every devoted thing in Israel shall be theirs.³⁰ The first of all the first fruits of all kinds, and every offer-sacrifices to the Levites, thus disenfranchising the general populace, is a new holiness stricture that goes beyond Lev 1.5,11. Attend . . . and serve, Num 16.9. 13: Num 18.3. 14: Num 18.4. 15–31: The Zadokite priesthood (see 40.46b n.; 43.19; 48.11). The Zadokites, one of at least three Israelite priestly lineages, had been the central priests at Jerusalem's preexilic Temple. Their origins trace back to Solomon's elevation of Zadok (2 Sam 20.25; 1 Kings 1.7–8,41–45; 2.26–27). 1 Chr 6.50–53 and 24.31 trace Zadok's ancestry back to Eleazar, Aaron's son. Here, vv. 15–16 refer to how Aaron and Eleazar had been faithful during the Levites' rebellion (Num 16.11,20–22,36–40,46–50), and Ezekiel views the Zadokites as present embryonically in their actions. 15–16: Num 18.7 (cf. Lev 16.14–15). 17–31: Priestly rules. 17: Linen vestments, see 9.1–2n.; Ex 39.27–29 (HS). 19: 42.14. Communicate holiness, cf. 46.20. In Zadokite theology, holiness is something quasi-physical, a sort of plasma that is both contagious in a destructive, negative sense (2 Sam 6.6–8) and communicable in a positive sense (2 Sam 6.11). See Lev 6.18; Num 17.3 (HS); cf. Ex 29.37; 30.29; Lev 6.27. 20: The care of the hair, Lev 21.5 (HS). 21: No wine before service, Lev 10.9 (HS). 22: Proper marriage, Lev 21.7,13–15 (HS). 23: Teaching of the people, 22.26; Lev 10.10–11 (HS); 2 Chr 17.9; Hag 2.10–13. 24: Judges, 1 Chr 23.4; 2 Chr 19.11. My sabbaths, Ex 31.13; Lev 19.3,30; 26.2 (HS). 25: Defilement by a corpse, see 39.11–16n.; Lev 21.1–3 (HS). 28: No land inheritance, 45.1–5; 48.8–14; Num 18.20–24 (HS). 29–30: Eating sacrifices and first fruits, Num 18.9–13 (HS); Lev 2.3; 6.16,26; 7.6–7. Every devoted thing, Num 18.14 (HS). 31: Lev 7.24; 22.8 (HS).

ing of all kinds from all your offerings, shall belong to the priests; you shall also give to the priests the first of your dough, in order that a blessing may rest on your house.³¹ The priests shall not eat of anything, whether bird or animal, that died of itself or was torn by animals.

45 When you allot the land as an inheritance, you shall set aside for the LORD a portion of the land as a holy district, twenty-five thousand cubits long and twenty^a thousand cubits wide; it shall be holy throughout its entire extent.² Of this, a square plot of five hundred by five hundred cubits shall be for the sanctuary, with fifty cubits for an open space around it.³ In the holy district you shall measure off a section twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand wide, in which shall be the sanctuary, the most holy place.⁴ It shall be a holy portion of the land; it shall be for the priests, who minister in the sanctuary and approach the LORD to minister to him; and it shall be both a place for their houses and a holy place for the sanctuary.⁵ Another section, twenty-five thousand cubits long and ten thousand cubits wide, shall be for the Levites who minister at the temple, as their holding for cities to live in.^b

⁶ Alongside the portion set apart as the holy district you shall assign as a holding for the city an area five thousand cubits wide, and twenty-five thousand cubits long; it shall belong to the whole house of Israel.

⁷ And to the prince shall belong the land on both sides of the holy district and the holding of the city, alongside the holy district and the holding of the city, on the west and on the east, corresponding in length to one of the tribal portions, and extending from the western to the eastern boundary⁸ of the land. It is to be his property in Israel. And my princes shall no longer oppress my people; but they shall let the house of Israel have the land according to their tribes.

⁹ Thus says the Lord God: Enough, O princes of Israel! Put away violence and oppression, and do what is just and right. Cease your evictions of my people, says the Lord God.

¹⁰ You shall have honest balances, an honest ephah, and an honest bath.^c ¹¹ The ephah and the bath shall be of the same measure, the bath containing one-tenth of a homer, and the ephah one-tenth of a homer; the homer shall be the standard measure.¹² The shekel shall be twenty gerahs. Twenty shekels, twenty-five shekels, and fifteen shekels shall make a mina for you.

¹³ This is the offering that you shall make: one-sixth of an ephah from each homer of wheat, and one-sixth of an ephah from each homer of barley,¹⁴ and as the fixed portion of oil,^d one-tenth of a bath from each cor (the cor,^e like the homer, contains ten baths);¹⁵ and one sheep from every flock of two hundred, from the pastures of Israel. This is the offering for grain offerings, burnt offerings, and offerings of well-being, to

^a Gk: Heb ten

^b Gk: Heb as their holding, twenty chambers

^c A Heb measure of volume

^d Cn: Heb oil, the bath the oil

^e Vg: Heb homer

45.1–9: The distribution of land (continued in 47:13–48:35) is idealized. A holy district (Heb “terumah”) is to contain a section for the Levites and a section for the priests. The latter includes the square section for the Temple area (42:15–20). 6: The holding for the city, now separated from the Temple and no longer called Jerusalem, lies south of the holy district (v. 6) and makes with the holy district (v. 1) a square area of ca. 8 mi (13 km) per side. The configuration contrasts sharply with Isa 12.6; Jer 3.17; Isa 60.14. 7: The prince (see 44.1–3n.) is to hold the strips of land to the west and east of this square area. 8–9: In accordance with the ideals of the Holiness School (Lev 19.35; 25.10,23–24,42), princes are denied the power to evict subjects from their family homesteads (cf. 11.15n.; 22.27; 46.18n.).

45.10–17: Weights and measures for offerings. For present-day equivalents of ephah, bath, homer, shekel, gerah, and mina, see table of Weights and Measures on pages 2316–17. 10: The Holiness School insisted on honest measures (see Lev 19.35–36). 13–17: The people will bring gifts for the regular sacrifices to the prince, who, as their representative, will present them. These offerings are additional to personal, voluntary offerings (46.12) and to the donations given to the priests of 44.30.

make atonement for them, says the Lord God.
¹⁶All the people of the land shall join with the prince in Israel in making this offering.
¹⁷But this shall be the obligation of the prince regarding the burnt offerings, grain offerings, and drink offerings, at the festivals, the new moons, and the sabbaths, all the appointed festivals of the house of Israel: he shall provide the sin offerings, grain offerings, the burnt offerings, and the offerings of well-being, to make atonement for the house of Israel.

¹⁸Thus says the Lord God: In the first month, on the first day of the month, you shall take a young bull without blemish, and purify the sanctuary. ¹⁹The priest shall take some of the blood of the sin offering and put it on the doorposts of the temple, the four corners of the ledge of the altar, and the posts of the gate of the inner court. ²⁰You shall do the same on the seventh day of the month for anyone who has sinned through error or ignorance; so you shall make atonement for the temple.

²¹In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month, you shall celebrate the festival of the passover, and for seven days unleavened bread shall be eaten. ²²On that day the prince shall provide for himself and all the people of the land a young bull for a sin offering. ²³And during the seven days of the festival he shall provide as a burnt offering to the LORD seven young bulls and seven rams without blemish, on each of the seven days; and a male goat daily for a sin offering. ²⁴He shall provide as a grain offering an ephah for each bull, an ephah for each ram, and a hin of oil to each ephah. ²⁵In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month and for the seven days of the festival, he shall make the same provision for sin offerings, burnt offerings, and grain offerings, and for the oil.

46 Thus says the Lord God: The gate of the inner court that faces east shall remain closed on the six working days; but on the sabbath day it shall be opened and on the day of the new moon it shall be opened. ²The prince shall enter by the vestibule of the gate from outside, and shall take his stand by the post of the gate. The priests shall offer his burnt offering and his offerings of well-being, and he shall bow down at the threshold of the gate. Then he shall go out, but the gate shall not be closed until evening. ³The people of the land shall bow down at the entrance of that gate before the LORD on the sabbaths and on the new moons. ⁴The burnt offering that the prince offers to the LORD on the sabbath day shall be six lambs without blemish and a ram without blemish; ⁵and the grain offering with the ram shall be an ephah, and the grain offering with the lambs shall be as much as he wishes to give, together with a hin of oil to each ephah. ⁶On the day of the new moon he shall offer a young bull without blemish, and six lambs and a ram, which shall be without blemish; ⁷as a grain offering he shall provide an ephah with the bull and an ephah with the ram, and with the lambs as much as he wishes, together with a hin of oil to each ephah. ⁸When the prince enters, he shall come in by the vestibule of the gate, and he shall go out by the same way.

⁹When the people of the land come before the LORD at the appointed festivals, whoever enters by the north gate to worship shall go out by the south gate; and whoever enters by the south gate shall go out by the north gate:

45.18–25: Festival regulations. 18–20: A new annual ritual for purifying the Temple, appropriated from the purification element of the Babylonian New Year festival. 19,22: As in the vision of paired leaders in Zech 4.3,11–14, the [head] priest works in concert with the prince, who provides the festival offerings. 21–25: Ezekiel's brief festival-calendar transforms the passover (Ex 12; Lev 23.4–8) and the festival of booths (the festival of the seventh month in v. 25; see Lev 23.33–36) into semiannual rites of purification. It omits the festival of weeks (Pentecost; Lev 23.15–21). 24: Ephah and hin, see Table of Weights and Measures.

46.1–15: Gate regulations and the prince's minor offerings. 1–7: Both weekly and monthly, the prince (see 44.1–3n.) shall bring offerings (vv. 4–7; 45.17) up to the inner east gatehouse leading to the altar (40.32–34). Kings might have performed priestly functions in preexilic times (1 Kings 8.63; 2 Kings 16.12–13), but now the prince stands by while the priests offer the sacrifices. On Ezekiel's emphasis on sabbaths (Num 28.9–10), see 20.12–13n. For the new moon (i.e., monthly) sacrifices, see 45.17; Num 28.11–15. 2: Threshold, the doorstep is a traditional liminal "thin space," of great symbolic significance. 8–10: Exit procedures. Reverent caution requires they shall not return by way of the gate by which they entered, but shall go out straight ahead.¹⁰ When they come in, the prince shall come in with them; and when they go out, he shall go out.

¹¹ At the festivals and the appointed seasons the grain offering with a young bull shall be an ephah, and with a ram an ephah, and with the lambs as much as one wishes to give, together with a hin of oil to an ephah.

¹² When the prince provides a freewill offering, either a burnt offering or offerings of well-being as a freewill offering to the LORD, the gate facing east shall be opened for him; and he shall offer his burnt offering or his offerings of well-being as he does on the sabbath day. Then he shall go out, and after he has gone out the gate shall be closed.

¹³ He shall provide a lamb, a yearling, without blemish, for a burnt offering to the LORD daily; morning by morning he shall provide it.¹⁴ And he shall provide a grain offering with it morning by morning regularly, one-sixth of an ephah, and one-third of a hin of oil to moisten the choice flour, as a grain offering to the LORD; this is the ordinance for all time.

¹⁵ Thus the lamb and the grain offering and the oil shall be provided, morning by morning, as a regular burnt offering.

¹⁶ Thus says the Lord God: If the prince makes a gift to any of his sons out of his inheritance,^a it shall belong to his sons, it is their holding by inheritance.¹⁷ But if he makes a gift out of his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall be his to the year of liberty; then it shall revert to the prince; only his sons may keep a gift from his inheritance.¹⁸ The prince shall not take any of the inheritance of the people, thrusting them out of their holding; he shall give his sons their inheritance out of his own holding, so that none of my people shall be dispossessed of their holding.

¹⁹ Then he brought me through the entrance, which was at the side of the gate, to the north row of the holy chambers for the priests; and there I saw a place at the extreme western end of them.²⁰ He said to me, "This is the place where the priests shall boil the guilt offering and the sin offering, and where they shall bake the grain offering, in order not to bring them out into the outer court and so communicate holiness to the people."

²¹ Then he brought me out to the outer court, and led me past the four corners of the court; and in each corner of the court there was a court—²² in the four corners of the court were small^b courts, forty cubits long and thirty wide; the four were of the same size.²³ On the inside, around each of the four courts^c was a row of masonry, with hearths made at the bottom of the rows all around.²⁴ Then he said to me, "These are the kitchens where those who serve at the temple shall boil the sacrifices of the people."

47 Then he brought me back to the entrance of the temple; there, water was flowing from below the threshold of the temple toward the east (for the temple faced east); and the water was flowing down from

^a Gk: Heb it is his inheritance

^b Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb the four of them expeditious movement in a sacral precinct so tangibly close to God's indwelling presence. 11–15: Further rules. 12: When the prince makes a freewill offering (Lev 22.18–23 [HS]), the inner east gate (v. 1) may be opened. 13–15: In both HS and Ezekiel, the daily sacrifice is the core Temple rite (cf. Dan 8.11), symbolizing how all Israelites must daily grow in holiness (Ex 29.38–46; Lev 24.3–4 [HS]).

46.16–18: The prince's land. The landed inheritance of the chieftain (45.7; 48.21–22) was to be inalienable from his lineage. When given to a nonrelative, it had to be returned on the year of liberty, the jubilee year (Lev 25.8–17 [HS]). 18: See 45.8–9n. Ezekiel reverses the monarchy's radical restructuring of land ownership and tenure (see 1 Kings 21.1–16; Isa 5.8; Mic 2.2) and upholds the Zadokite ideal of permanent land tenure for each family on its ancestral homestead (Lev 19.35; 25.10,23–24,42).

46.19–24: Sacrificial kitchens. 19–20: Behind (west of) the priest's sacristies (42.1–14) were kitchens for preparing offerings (42.13) for priestly consumption. Communicate holiness, see 42.14; 44.19n. 21–24: Kitchens for the Levites to prepare sacrifices that the general populace ate were in all four corners of the outer courtyard.

47.1–12: The sacred river. This paradisiacal wonder (see 28.14n.) is also found in Joel 3.18 and Zech 14.8 (Zadokite apocalyptic prophecy). 1: East . . . south end, the southeastern orientation directs the healing waters below the south end of the threshold of the temple, south of the altar.² Then he brought me out by way of the north gate, and led me around on the outside to the outer gate that faces toward the east;^a and the water was coming out on the south side.

³ Going on eastward with a cord in his hand, the man measured one thousand cubits, and then led me through the water; and it was ankle-deep. ⁴ Again he measured one thousand, and led me through the water; and it was knee-deep. Again he measured one thousand, and led me through the water; and it was up to the waist. ⁵ Again he measured one thousand, and it was a river that I could not cross, for the water had risen; it was deep enough to swim in, a river that could not be crossed. ⁶ He said to me, “Mortal, have you seen this?”

Then he led me back along the bank of the river. ⁷ As I came back, I saw on the bank of the river a great many trees on the one side and on the other. ⁸ He said to me, “This water flows toward the eastern region and goes down into the Arabah; and when it enters the sea, the sea of stagnant waters, the water will become fresh. ⁹ Wherever the river goes,^b every living creature that swarms will live, and there will be very many fish, once these waters reach there. It will become fresh; and everything will live where the river goes. ¹⁰ People will stand fishing beside the sea^c from En-ge-di to En-eglaim; it will be a place for the spreading of nets; its fish will be of a great many kinds, like the fish of the Great Sea. ¹¹ But its swamps and marshes will not become fresh; they are to be left for salt. ¹² On the banks, on both sides of the river, there will grow all kinds of trees for food. Their leaves will not wither nor their fruit fail, but they will bear fresh fruit every month, because the water for them flows from the sanctuary. Their fruit will be for food, and their leaves for healing.”

Chs 47–48: Tribal territories in the restored Israel

¹³ Thus says the Lord God: These are the boundaries by which you shall divide the land for inheritance among the twelve tribes of Israel. Joseph shall have two portions.

¹⁴ You shall divide it equally; I swore to give it to your ancestors, and this land shall fall to you as your inheritance.

¹⁵ This shall be the boundary of the land: On the north side, from the Great Sea by way of Hethlon to Lebo-hamath, and on

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb the two rivers go

^c Heb it

specifically to the barren Judean desert region south of Jerusalem where their transformative effect will be most pronounced. 2: Coming out, the Heb verb conveys the sound of water gurgling from a jug like ones emitting streams of life in ancient temple art. 7,12: Trees, Mesopotamian incantations and exorcisms speak of the healing power of the waters and “kishkanu-tree” of Paradise/Eridu. 8: Arabah, the Rift Valley, in which the Dead Sea (the sea of stagnant waters) is located. 10: En-ge-di to En-eglaim, two springs on either side of the Dead Sea. The Great Sea, the Mediterranean. 11: Salt would supply Temple rituals (43.24).

47.13–48.29: A new holy land. 47.13–23: Boundary and allotment instructions. The reunited kin of Israel receive the land as twelve tribes (v. 21). Ezekiel is mostly following the highly ideal presentation of the land found in the priestly material of Num 34. 14: I swore, 20.6; 36.28. 15–20: National boundaries. Several of the

to Zedad,^a ¹⁶ Berothah, Sibraim (which lies between the border of Damascus and the border of Hamath), as far as Hazer-hatticon, which is on the border of Hauran.¹⁷ So the boundary shall run from the sea to Hazar-enon, which is north of the border of Damascus, with the border of Hamath to the north.^b This shall be the north side.

¹⁸ On the east side, between Hauran and Damascus; along the Jordan between Gilead and the land of Israel; to the eastern sea and as far as Tamar.^c This shall be the east side.

¹⁹ On the south side, it shall run from Tamar as far as the waters of Meribath-kadesh, from there along the Wadi of Egypt^d to the Great Sea. This shall be the south side.

²⁰ On the west side, the Great Sea shall be the boundary to a point opposite Lebo-hamath. This shall be the west side.

²¹ So you shall divide this land among you according to the tribes of Israel.²² You shall allot it as an inheritance for yourselves and for the aliens who reside among you and have begotten children among you. They shall be to you as citizens of Israel; with you they shall be allotted an inheritance among the tribes of Israel.²³ In whatever tribe aliens reside, there you shall assign them their inheritance, says the Lord God.

48 These are the names of the tribes: Beginning at the northern border, on the Hethlon road,^e from Lebo-hamath, as far as Hazar-enon (which is on the border of Damascus, with Hamath to the north), and^f extending from the east side to the west,^g Dan, one portion.² Adjoining the territory of Dan, from the east side to the west, Asher, one portion.³ Adjoining the territory of Asher, from the east side to the west, Naphtali, one portion.⁴ Adjoining the territory of Naphtali, from the east side to the west, Manasseh, one portion.⁵ Adjoining the territory of Manasseh, from the east side to the west, Ephraim, one portion.⁶ Adjoining the territory of Ephraim, from the east side to the west, Reuben, one portion.⁷ Adjoining the territory of Reuben, from the east side to the west, Judah, one portion.

⁸ Adjoining the territory of Judah, from the east side to the west, shall be the portion that you shall set apart, twenty-five thousand cubits in width, and in length equal to one of the tribal portions, from the east side to the west, with the sanctuary in the middle of it.⁹ The portion that you shall set apart for the LORD shall be twenty-five thousand cubits in length, and twenty^h thousand in width.

¹⁰ These shall be the allotments of the holy portion: the priests shall have an allotment measuring twenty-five thousand cubits on the northern side, ten thousand cubits in width on the western side, ten thousand in width on the eastern side, and twenty-five thousand in length on the southern side, with the sanctuary of the LORD in the middle

^a Gk: Heb Lebo-zedad, ¹⁶*Hamath*

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Compare Syr: Heb you shall measure

^d Heb lacks of Egypt

^e Compare 47:15: Heb by the side of the way

^f Cn: Heb and they shall be his

^g Gk Compare verses 2-8: Heb the east side the west

^h Compare 45:1: Heb ten sites mentioned are unidentified. The north border (vv. 15–17) runs from the upper coast of modern Lebanon to a point about 90 mi (145 km) east. The border then drops south past the large region around Damascus. The east border (v. 18) runs down past Hauran, the large plateau that extends east of the Sea of Galilee and then jogs west to follow the Jordan to Tamar, a site south of the Dead Sea (eastern sea) (Num 34.10–12). Territory in the Transjordan is not included in the new land (contrast Num 34.13–15). South border (v. 19): from Tamar through Kadesh-barnea (Meribath-kadesh in HS tradition) to the Wadi of Egypt (1 Kings 8.65n.) and the Mediterranean (Num 34.3–5). West border (v. 20): the Mediterranean Sea (Num 34.6). 21–23: Allotment. That resident aliens and native Israelites should be treated alike was a firm principle of the Holiness School: Num 15.29; Lev 19.33–34; 24.22. In a highly inclusive move, Ezekiel radicalizes the principle to give aliens their own allotted portions of land; see also 44.9n.

48.1–29: Tribal and holy-district allotments. All tribes receive equal allotments consisting of idealized strips of land. Ephraim and Manasseh (“Joseph,” 47:13) receive a portion each, but Levi, the priestly tribe, is omitted, so that the tribal allotments number twelve in all. 1–7: Seven tribes north of the central strip (vv. 8–22; 45.1–9). 1: Hethlon, Lebo-hamath, sites on the land’s northern border (47:15). 8–22: The central strip. The description of it. ¹¹ This shall be for the consecrated priests, the descendants^a of Zadok, who kept my charge, who did not go astray when the people of Israel went astray, as the Levites did. ¹² It shall belong to them as a special portion from the holy portion of the land, a most holy place, adjoining the territory of the Levites. ¹³ Alongside the territory of the priests, the Levites shall have an allotment twenty-five thousand cubits in length and ten thousand in width. The whole length shall be twenty-five thousand cubits and the width twenty^b thousand. ¹⁴ They shall not sell or exchange any of it; they shall not transfer this choice portion of the land, for it is holy to the LORD.

¹⁵ The remainder, five thousand cubits in width and twenty-five thousand in length, shall be for ordinary use for the city, for dwellings and for open country. In the middle of it shall be the city; ¹⁶ and these shall be its dimensions: the north side four thousand five hundred cubits, the south side four thousand five hundred, the east side four thousand five hundred, and the west side four thousand five hundred. ¹⁷ The city shall have open land: on the north two hundred fifty cubits, on the south two hundred fifty, on the east two hundred fifty, on the west two hundred fifty. ¹⁸ The remainder of the length alongside the holy portion shall be ten thousand cubits to the east, and ten thousand to the west, and it shall be alongside the holy portion. Its produce shall be food for the workers of the city. ¹⁹ The workers of the city, from all the tribes of Israel, shall cultivate it. ²⁰ The whole portion that you shall set apart shall be twenty-five thousand cubits square, that is, the holy portion together with the property of the city.

²¹ What remains on both sides of the holy portion and of the property of the city shall belong to the prince. Extending from the twenty-five thousand cubits of the holy portion to the east border, and westward from the twenty-five thousand cubits to the west border, parallel to the tribal portions, it shall belong to the prince. The holy portion with the sanctuary of the temple in the middle of it, ²² and the property of the Levites and of the city, shall be in the middle of that which belongs to the prince. The portion of the prince shall lie between the territory of Judah and the territory of Benjamin.

²³ As for the rest of the tribes: from the east side to the west, Benjamin, one portion. ²⁴ Adjoining the territory of Benjamin, from the east side to the west, Simeon, one portion. ²⁵ Adjoining the territory of Simeon, from the east side to the west, Issachar, one portion. ²⁶ Adjoining the territory of Issachar, from the east side to the west, Zebulun, one portion. ²⁷ Adjoining the territory of Zebulun, from the east side to the west, Gad, one portion. ²⁸ And adjoining the territory of Gad to the south, the boundary shall run from Tamar to the waters of Meribath-kadesh, from there along the Wadi of Egypt^c to the Great Sea. ²⁹ This is the land that you shall allot as an inheritance among the tribes of Israel, and these are their portions, says the Lord GOD.

³⁰ These shall be the exits of the city: On the north side, which is to be four thousand five hundred cubits by measure, ³¹ three gates, the gate of Reuben, the gate of Judah, and the gate of Levi, the gates of the city being named after the tribes of Israel. ³² On the east side, which is to be four thousand five hundred cubits, three gates, the gate of

^a One Ms Gk: Heb of the descendants

^b Gk: Heb ten

^c Heb lacks of Egypt

matches and expands 45.1–9. 11–12: See 44.6–16n.; 44.15–31n. The Heb text appears to read: “As for . . . the Zadokites . . . , they shall have [their own, individual] district (Heb “terumah”) out of the [total priestly] district of the land—(a) most holy (tract).” 15: Ordinary (“common” as opposed to “holy”) use, see 22.26; 42.20n.; 44.23; Lev 10.10 (HS). 16–17: The area of the central city formed a square (see 40.47n.), symbolizing its role as a portal to God’s presence for pilgrims. 21–22: The allotment of the prince, as described in 45.7. 23–29: Five tribes south of the central strip. 28: See 47.19.

48.30–35: The new city. Three gates on each of the city’s four sides, each named after a tribe. 35: The city’s new name The LORD is just over There (Heb “Yahweh-shammah”) designates it as a key waypoint or port of call for pilgrims planning to visit the new Temple complex to the north.

Joseph, the gate of Benjamin, and the gate of Dan. ³³On the south side, which is to be four thousand five hundred cubits by measure, three gates, the gate of Simeon, the gate of Issachar, and the gate of Zebulun. ³⁴On the west side, which is to be four thousand five hundred cubits, three gates,^a the gate of Gad, the gate of Asher, and the gate of Naphtali.

³⁵The circumference of the city shall be eighteen thousand cubits. And the name of the city from that time on shall be, The LORD is There.

^a One Ms Gk Syr: MT their gates three

DANIEL

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

The book of Daniel is named for its main character, an exiled Judean sage who serves in the court of Nebuchadnezzar and his successors. Daniel is an interpreter of divinely sent dreams and messages who later becomes the recipient of visions and dreams himself. The Daniel of this book is not the same figure mentioned in Ezekiel (14.14,20; 28.3). Ezekiel associates that character, called either Dan’el or Daniel, with Noah and Job, who lived in the distant past and were known for their exceeding wisdom and righteousness.

In the Christian canon, the book is located immediately after Ezekiel. This placement is derived from Daniel’s location in the Septuagint and reflects the Christian understanding that Daniel is a prophet. Jewish tradition, however, puts Daniel in the section of the Tanakh called the Writings (Heb Ketubim) between the books of Esther and Ezra, perhaps because of its late date of composition. In the Jewish tradition, Daniel is highly regarded, but not typically viewed as a prophet (see b. San. 94a, b. Meg. 3a; b. B. Bat. 14b).

HISTORICAL CONTEXT, COMPOSITION, AND CANONIC STATUS

According to ch 1, Daniel was taken to Babylon at the beginning of the Babylonian exile and was chosen to serve in the royal court. This setting, however, does not necessarily reflect the realities of the book’s historical context and composition. Several major historical errors in ch 1 suggest that the author wrote long after the Babylonian conquest of Judah and very likely was not attempting to write a historical account at all, but rather a series of historical fictions set in that time period. The writers of chs 1–6 were Jewish scribes who had some knowledge of the foreign culture about which they were writing, but it is not clear that they served in the royal administration, as Daniel and his friends are depicted as doing. Though foreigners did serve in lower-ranking posts in the Babylonian and Persian courts, there is no evidence that they held senior positions. The court tales probably began as individual stories that were written during the Persian period (539–333 BCE). They were originally written in Aramaic, the common language of the Persian Empire, although ch 1 was later translated into Hebrew. Clues embedded in the stories suggest that the tales circulated independently among the Jews of Babylonia and the eastern Diaspora until they were collected and edited as a book. The stories were updated during the early Hellenistic period (333–170 BCE) and reflect the challenges of trying to maintain one’s distinctive religious and ethnic identity as a minority in a foreign culture. By depicting various moments in which the characters’ theological commitments and cultural distinctiveness are challenged, the stories model how to negotiate a foreign culture without fully accommodating to it or rejecting it. Although there are instances where Daniel and the other Jewish men must resist the king in order to maintain fidelity to the God of Israel, the tales are mostly optimistic about the king’s ability to recognize Daniel’s God as the “God of gods and Lord of kings” (2.47)

In contrast to the first half of the book, the second half has a decidedly negative view of foreign power. Chapters 7–12 contain four separate apocalypses describing the end of gentile kingdoms, with ch 7 providing the connecting link between the later apocalypses and the earlier court tales. Although it has a view of imperial power similar to that of ch 8, ch 7 contains many parallels to ch 2 and was written in Aramaic. Chapters 8–12, however, were composed in Hebrew in Judea between 167 and 164 BCE. Their intended audience was probably narrower than that of the tales and included other scribes who opposed the Greek Seleucid king who ruled over Judea, Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164). The apocalypses encourage resistance toward foreign kingship rather than accommodation or negotiation. They focus on the desecration of the Temple and the king’s defiance of the Jewish God. Details concerning the little horn (chs 7–8) and the king of the north (chs 10–11) refer to Antiochus IV. In 167, Antiochus IV, for reasons that are not clearly understood, outlawed the practice of Judaism in Judea and desecrated the Jerusalem Temple. This unprecedented series of events set into motion the Maccabean revolt (see 1 Macc 1–2; 2 Mac 5). The book ends without mentioning the rededication of the Temple in December 164, or Antiochus’s death at about the same time.

Those responsible for the apocalypses were not associated with the Maccabees, but may have been “the wise ones” (Heb maskilim, 11.33). The description of the maskilim indicates that they were pious Jewish scribes and teachers who sought divinely revealed knowledge. They adopted the figure of Daniel as their model representative. The apocalyptic visions retold past and present events, so that the faithful community could discern the hidden patterns by which God had shaped the history of foreign rule; by means of this understanding they could anticipate the future. In showing the limits of royal power, the apocalypses tried to make sense of the chaos caused by Antiochus IV and make visible God's power and presence.

The book's compositional history continued after it was translated into Greek. Greek Daniel includes two poetic sections inserted in ch 3 and two additional tales (Susanna; Bel and the Dragon). The additions are deuterocanonical for Roman Catholic and Orthodox Christians, but are noncanonical for Jews and Protestants. The additions are located in the Old Testament Apocrypha.

INTERPRETATION

The themes of the sovereign power of God and of God's relationship to foreign kings unite the various materials found in Daniel. The Babylonian exile and the foreign rule of Judea raised questions about God's power to shape historical events. Chapters 1–7 respond to those questions by showing God delegating authority to those very powers that had conquered Judea, thus asserting the universal power of Judea's God as the force behind even these events. Chapters 8–12, however, show that gentile kings do not necessarily rule with God's approval. Even so, historical forces contain gentile power until the end time at which point God will intervene to end foreign rule completely.

Amy C. Merrill Willis

1 In the third year of the reign of King Jehoiakim of Judah, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came to Jerusalem and besieged it. ²The Lord let King Jehoiakim of Judah fall into his power, as well as some of the vessels of the house of God. These he brought to the land of Shinar,^a and placed the vessels in the treasury of his gods.

³Then the king commanded his palace master Ashpenaz to bring some of the Israelites of the royal family and of the nobility, ⁴young men without physical defect and handsome, versed in every branch of wisdom, endowed with knowledge and insight, and competent to serve in the king's palace; they were to be taught the literature and language of the Chaldeans. ⁵The king assigned them a daily portion of the royal rations of food and wine. They were to be educated for three years, so that at the end of that time they could be stationed in the king's court. ⁶Among them were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, from the tribe of Judah. ⁷The palace master gave them other names: Daniel he called Belteshazzar, Hananiah he called Shadrach, Mishael he called Meshach, and Azariah he called Abednego.

^a Gk Theodotion: Heb adds to the house of his own gods

1.1–21: The Babylonian exile. Chapter 1, which is in Hebrew, introduces the book's theme of divine sovereignty and its main characters, Daniel and the Jewish courtiers. 1: The third year . . . Jehoiakim is 606 BCE (see 2 Chr 36.5–7), but Nebuchadnezzar ruled from 605–562 BCE (see 2 Kings 24–25; 1 Chr 6; 2 Chr 36; Jer 25.1; 27–29). He did not capture Jerusalem until 597, during the reign of Jehoiachin, son of Jehoiakim. The dating formula may harmonize information in 2 Chr 36 with the account in 2 Kings 24.1. 2: The Lord, not Nebuchadnezzar, is the agent. Shinar, ancient name for Babylon (Gen 10.10; 11.2; Josh 7.21; Isa 11.11; Zech 5.11), associated with pride. Vessels (see ch 5; 2 Kings 24.13; 25.13–15; 2 Chr 36.7,10). His gods, Marduk, the Babylonian creator god, and Marduk's son Nabu (or Nebo; see Isa 46.1), whose name is used in Nebuchadnezzar's own name.

1.3–7: Jews in the court of the foreign king. Conquered peoples were often brought into the king's court and provided with training and food to promote assimilation. Many Judean exiles were noble born (see 2 Kings 24.14–16). 4: Without physical defect refers to the purity laws concerning priests (Lev 21.17–23) or to good appearance (2 Sam 14.25). Versed in . . . wisdom, educated for royal service. Chaldeans, Babylonians. The literature of the Chaldeans is the corpus of Babylonian divination and astrology texts. 5: Daily portion, kings often gave generous food rations to their courtiers in return for loyalty, a practice particularly prominent under Persian monarchs. 6–7: The Jewish youths are given court names that may refer to other gods such as Mithra (“Meshach”), and

⁸ But Daniel resolved that he would not defile himself with the royal rations of food and wine; so he asked the palace master to allow him not to defile himself. ⁹ Now God allowed Daniel to receive favor and compassion from the palace master. ¹⁰ The palace master said to Daniel, “I am afraid of my lord the king; he has appointed your food and your drink. If he should see you in poorer condition than the other young men of your own age, you would endanger my head with the king.” ¹¹ Then Daniel asked the guard whom the palace master had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: ¹² “Please test your servants for ten days. Let us be given vegetables to eat and water to drink. ¹³ You can then compare our appearance with the appearance of the young men who eat the royal rations, and deal with your servants according to what you observe.” ¹⁴ So he agreed to this proposal and tested them for ten days. ¹⁵ At the end of ten days it was observed that they appeared better and fatter than all the young men who had been eating the royal rations. ¹⁶ So the guard continued to withdraw their royal rations and the wine they were to drink, and gave them vegetables. ¹⁷ To these four young men God gave knowledge and skill in every aspect of literature and wisdom; Daniel also had insight into all visions and dreams.

¹⁸ At the end of the time that the king had set for them to be brought in, the palace master brought them into the presence of Nebuchadnezzar, ¹⁹ and the king spoke with them. And among them all, no one was found to compare with Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; therefore they were stationed in the king’s court. ²⁰ In every matter of wisdom and understanding concerning which the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters in his whole kingdom. ²¹ And Daniel continued there until the first year of King Cyrus.

2 In the second year of Nebuchadnezzar’s reign, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed such dreams that his spirit was troubled and his sleep left him. ² So the king commanded that the magicians, the enchanters, the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans be summoned to tell the king his dreams. When they came in and stood before the king, ³ he said to them, “I have had such a dream that my spirit is troubled by the desire to understand it.” ⁴ The Chaldeans said to the king (in Aramaic),^a “O king, live forever! Tell your servants the

^a The text from this point to the end of chapter 7 is in Aramaic

Nebo (“nego”). Name changes and double names were part of life in a foreign court (Gen 41.45; 2 Kings 24.17; Esth 2.7), but these are probably unintentional distortions of actual Babylonian- and Persian-period names.

1.8–17: Daniel’s resistance. 8: Defile, refers to ritual concerns. The king’s food may include items prohibited by the Torah or sacrificed to idols, but the problem is not clear. Refusing gentile food is a way to resist royal authority and assert religious identity (Tob 1.10–11; Esth 14.17; 1 Macc 1.62–63; Jdt 12.1–4). 11: Daniel asked, Daniel approaches the guard in private, perhaps to protect the palace master. 12: Test . . . ten days, may be a standard period for testing (Rev 2.10). Vegetables, lit., “seeds.” Daniel’s diet of vegetables and water has no biblical basis, but contrasts with the royal meat and wine. 15: Daniel’s diet proves better than the king’s royal rations. 17: God’s power, not Nebuchadnezzar’s training, gives the men knowledge in the divinatory arts. Dreams and visions, Daniel’s skill likens him to Joseph (Gen 39–50).

1.18–21: The Jewish courtiers are promoted. 20: Magicians, experts in dream interpretation (2.2; Gen 41.8,24; see also Ex 7.11,22; 8.7,8–19; 9.11). Enchanters, diagnosed and treated illnesses caused by evil spirits. 21: First year of King Cyrus, 539 BCE (see 6.28; 10.1; 2 Chr 36.22–23; Ezra 1.1–2; 6.3; Isa 45; 1 Esd 2.1–3).

2.1–12: Nebuchadnezzar’s dream. 1: The second year, 604 BCE (but see 1.1n). Dreams, a recurring motif in the book, were portents of the future (Gen 15.21; 20.3; 28.11–15; 37.5–10; 41.1–32; Judg 7.13–15; 1 Kings 3.5–15). This story may reflect a report by the Neo-Babylonian king Nabonidus (559–536 BCE) of a disturbing dream early in his reign. 2: The king convenes the experts, but with disappointing results (see also 4.5–6; 5.7–8; Gen 41.8). Magicians, enchanters (see 1.20n.); sorcerers and Chaldeans, professional diviners (see 1.4n.) Compare with the biblical view of sorcery in Isa 47.9,12. 4: The language switches from Hebrew to Aramaic with the greeting. It will return to Hebrew in 8.1. O king, live forever, a customary royal greeting (3.9; 5.10; 1 Kings 1.31; Neh 2.3). 4–5: It was standard for the dreamer to describe the dream when seeking an interpretation (Gen 41.1–8). 5: Torn limb from limb, threat of severe punishment is a folklore device that heightens drama and shows the king’s volatility (3.19; 2 Macc 1.16).

dream, and we will reveal the interpretation.”⁵ The king answered the Chaldeans, “This is a public decree: if you do not tell me both the dream and its interpretation, you shall be torn limb from limb, and your houses shall be laid in ruins.⁶ But if you do tell me the dream and its interpretation, you shall receive from me gifts and rewards and great honor. Therefore tell me the dream and its interpretation.”⁷ They answered a second time, “Let the king first tell his servants the dream, then we can give its interpretation.”⁸ The king answered, “I know with certainty that you are trying to gain time, because you see I have firmly decreed:⁹ if you do not tell me the dream, there is but one verdict for you. You have agreed to speak lying and misleading words to me until things take a turn. Therefore, tell me the dream, and I shall know that you can give me its interpretation.”¹⁰ The Chaldeans answered the king, “There is no one on earth who can reveal what the king demands! In fact no king, however great and powerful, has ever asked such a thing of any magician or enchanter or Chaldean.¹¹ The thing that the king is asking is too difficult, and no one can reveal it to the king except the gods, whose dwelling is not with mortals.”

¹² Because of this the king flew into a violent rage and commanded that all the wise men of Babylon be destroyed.¹³ The decree was issued, and the wise men were about to be executed; and they looked for

Daniel and his companions, to execute them.¹⁴ Then Daniel responded with prudence and discretion to Arioch, the king’s chief executioner, who had gone out to execute the wise men of Babylon;¹⁵ he asked Arioch, the royal official, “Why is the decree of the king so urgent?” Arioch then explained the matter to Daniel.¹⁶ So Daniel went in and requested that the king give him time and he would tell the king the interpretation.

¹⁷ Then Daniel went to his home and informed his companions, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,¹⁸ and told them to seek mercy from the God of heaven concerning this mystery, so that Daniel and his companions with the rest of the wise men of Babylon might not perish.¹⁹ Then the mystery was revealed to Daniel in a vision of the night, and Daniel blessed the God of heaven.

²⁰ Daniel said:

“Blessed be the name of God from age to age,

for wisdom and power are his.

²¹ He changes times and seasons, deposes kings and sets up kings;
he gives wisdom to the wise and knowledge to those who have understanding.

²² He reveals deep and hidden
things;
he knows what is in the darkness,
and light dwells with him.

2.13–23: Daniel seeks a solution. These verses are likely a later addition, as they create contradictions with other parts of the story. 13: Daniel and his friends are among the Babylonian wise men condemned to death. 16–17: Daniel’s audience with the king conflicts with vv. 24–25, where Nebuchadnezzar does not know Daniel (cf. 1.18–20). The contradictions are likely an indication that the stories circulated independently and in different versions. 17: The friends are listed with their Hebrew names, not their Babylonian names (see 1.6–7). 18: The God of heaven, the Persians’ term for the God of Israel (see Ezra 1.2; 5.11–12; 6.9–10; 7.12,21,23) and a common way of referring to the deity throughout the Persian and Hellenistic periods (2 Chr 36.23; Neh 1.4–5; 2.4,20; Ps 136.26; Jon 1.9; Tob 7.12; 8.15; Jdt 5.8; 6.19; 11.17). Mystery, a Persian loan word for cosmic and eschatological revelations (2.19,27–30,47; 4.9; see also Rom 11.25; 16.25; 1 Cor 2.1; 15.51). The term is frequent in the Dead Sea Scrolls. 19: Vision of the night, Daniel receives a dream (v. 28; 7.2; Isa 29.7) that discloses the contents of Nebuchadnezzar’s dream. 20–23: One of four doxologies found in the book (see 4.1–2; 4.34–35; 6.26–27), highlighting the connection between power and knowledge and proclaiming the sovereignty of God. 20: Blessed be the name of God, a recurring theme in Jewish prayers and hymns (see Pss 41.13; 106.48; 113.2; Job 1.21; Mt 6.9; the Kaddish). From age to age, or “from of old and forever”; God is an ancient deity (see 7.9,13; Ps 90.2). Wisdom and power, the Babylonians and the Persians each attributed these qualities to their gods, but the Jewish God is the source of what the king and the wise men desire. 21: Times and seasons, God has the power to propel history, to inaugurate new eras (7.12); deposes kings and sets up, God established Nebuchadnezzar’s authority (2.37–38). God will depose

²³To you, O God of my ancestors,
I give thanks and praise,
for you have given me wisdom and power,
and have now revealed to me what we asked of you,
for you have revealed to us what the king ordered.”

²⁴Therefore Daniel went to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and said to him, “Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon; bring me in before the king, and I will give the king the interpretation.”

²⁵Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel before the king and said to him: “I have found among the exiles from Judah a man who can tell the king the interpretation.” ²⁶The king said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, “Are you able to tell me the dream that I have seen and its interpretation?” ²⁷Daniel answered the king, “No wise men, enchanters, magicians, or diviners can show to the king the mystery that the king is asking, ²⁸but there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, and he has disclosed to King Nebuchadnezzar what will happen at the end of days. Your dream and the visions of your head as you lay in bed were these: ²⁹To you, O king, as you lay in bed, came thoughts of what would be hereafter, and the revealer of mysteries disclosed to you what is to be. ³⁰But as for me, this mystery has not been revealed to me because of any wisdom that I have more than any other living being, but in order that the interpretation may be known to the king and that you may understand the thoughts of your mind.

³¹“You were looking, O king, and lo! there was a great statue. This statue was huge, its brilliance extraordinary; it was standing before you, and its appearance was frightening. ³²The head of that statue was of fine gold, its chest and arms of silver, its middle and thighs of bronze, ³³its legs of iron, its feet partly of iron and partly of clay. ³⁴As you looked on, a stone was cut out, not by human hands, and it struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay and broke them in pieces. ³⁵Then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, were all broken in pieces and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, so that not a trace of them could be found. But the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

³⁶“This was the dream; now we will tell the king its interpretation. ³⁷You, O king, the king of kings—to whom the God of heaven has given the kingdom, the power, the might, and the glory, ³⁸into whose hand he has given human beings, wherever they live, the wild animals of the field, and the Belshazzar in ch 5. 22: Deep and hidden things, Job 12.22–23. 23: God of my ancestors, a common epithet for God elsewhere (see Ex 3.13,15–16; Deut 1.11–21; 4.1; Josh 18.3; 2 Chr 13.12), but atypical in Daniel.

2.24–30: Daniel’s audience with the king. 24–25: see vv. 2.13n., 16–17n. Apparently the king has not met Daniel before. Arioch introduces him as a Judean exile, not as one of the Babylonian wise men (cf. 1.18–20). 26: Belteshazzar, see 1.7n. The name may mean “Protect the life of the king,” in Babylonian “Balat-shar-utsur.” 27: Enchanters . . . diviners, see 1.4n.; 1.20n. 28: The God in heaven, a universalizing designation for the deity that nevertheless distinguishes the Jewish God from the gods of the gentiles (see 2.11; 2.18n.). End of days, or “end of the era.” The phrase is eschatological (10.14; Isa 2.2; Mic 4.1; Hos 3.5; Ezek 38.16; often in the Dead Sea Scrolls) and here refers to the end of foreign rule. 30: Daniel lifts up God’s power, not his own cleverness.

2.31–35: Nebuchadnezzar’s dream of the statue. 31: Giant figures occur in ancient Near Eastern dream reports and would recall oversized statues of deities and rulers in the Persian and Hellenistic periods. 32–33: Gold, silver, bronze, iron, and iron mixed with clay; the metals decrease in value as they move downward toward the feet. The use of different metals for successive historical periods can be traced to Persian (Bahman Yasht) and Greek (Hesiod, Works and Days) traditions. 34–35: The stone contrasts with the statue made by human hands. Not by human hands, God’s action in history. A great mountain, a reference either to Mount Zion (Isa 2.2; Mic 4.2), or to God (Deut 32.4; 1 Sam 2.2; 2 Sam 22.32; Ps 18.31; Isa 44.8; Hab 1.12), or to the ancestors of Israel (Isa 51.1–2).

2.36–45: Daniel’s interpretation. The four metals are kingdoms. The schema was adapted from a Persian tradition to emphasize that God shapes the history of Jews and gentiles alike (see also Sib. Or. 4). 38: Head of gold, Nebuchadnezzar and the Neo-Babylonian Empire. Into whose hand, God has given Nebuchadnezzar world birds of the air, and whom he has established as ruler over them all—you are the head of gold. ³⁹After you shall arise another kingdom inferior to yours, and yet a third kingdom of bronze, which shall rule over the whole earth. ⁴⁰And there shall be a fourth kingdom, strong as iron; just as iron crushes and smashes everything,^a it shall crush and shatter all these. ⁴¹As you saw the feet and toes partly of potter's clay and partly of iron, it shall be a divided kingdom; but some of the strength of iron shall be in it, as you saw the iron mixed with the clay. ⁴²As the toes of the feet were part iron and part clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong and partly brittle. ⁴³As you saw the iron mixed with clay, so will they mix with one another in marriage,^b but they will not hold together, just as iron does not mix with clay. ⁴⁴And in the days of those kings the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that shall never be destroyed, nor shall this kingdom be left to another people. It shall crush all these kingdoms and bring them to an end, and it shall stand forever; ⁴⁵just as you saw that a stone was cut from the mountain not by hands, and that it crushed the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver, and the gold. The great God has informed the king what shall be hereafter. The dream is certain, and its interpretation trustworthy.”

⁴⁶Then King Nebuchadnezzar fell on his face, worshiped Daniel, and commanded that a grain offering and incense be offered to him. ⁴⁷The king said to Daniel, “Truly, your God is God of gods and Lord of kings and a revealer of mysteries, for you have been able to reveal this mystery!” ⁴⁸Then the king promoted Daniel, gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon and chief prefect over all the wise men of Babylon. ⁴⁹Daniel made a request of the king, and he appointed Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego over the affairs of the province of Babylon. But Daniel remained at the king's court.

3 King Nebuchadnezzar made a golden statue whose height was sixty cubits and whose width was six cubits; he set it up on the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. ²Then King Nebuchadnezzar sent for the satraps, the prefects, and the governors, the counselors, the treasurers, the justices, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces, to assemble and come to the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. ³So the satraps, the prefects, and the governors, the counselors, the treasurer-

^a Gk Theodotion Syr Vg: Aram adds and like iron that crushes

^b Aram by human seed

dominion (see Jer 25.9; 27.5–7; 28.14). 39: Another kingdom, Media, east of Mesopotamia (silver). The Medes never ruled over Judea, but were remembered as the Babylonians' successors (see 5.31; 6.1; 9.1; Jer 51.11). Cyrus the Great was king of Media and Persia when he attacked Babylon in 539 BCE. Third kingdom of bronze, Persia (see 6.28; 10.1). 40: Iron, the Greek empire of Alexander the Great and his successors (8.20–21; 10.20). 41: Potter's clay and partly iron, the divided nature of Alexander's empire after his death. Two successor groups fought each other for control of Judea: the Ptolemies in Egypt, who ruled Judea 323–198 BCE, and the Seleucids in Syria, who ruled Judea 198–163 BCE. 43: In marriage, intermarriages between the warring dynasties in 252 and 194/93 BCE were unsuccessful (see also 11.6n., 11.17n.). 44: A kingdom that shall never be destroyed could refer to God's direct rule or to Israel; cf. 7.27, where it is the people Israel who will possess the kingdom. 45: Cut from the mountain, cf. 2.35n.

2.46–49: Conclusion. 46: Nebuchadnezzar praises God and, ironically, worships Daniel as a god or, perhaps, worships the manifestation of God in him. 47: Your God, although Nebuchadnezzar recognizes the power of Daniel's God, he is not a convert. 48–49: The courtiers are elevated over all the wise men, like Joseph in Gen 41.37–45 (see also Esth 8.1–2).

3.1–7: Nebuchadnezzar's golden statue. The story has many folkloristic qualities, but its origins may be rooted in remembrances of the Neo-Babylonian king Nabonidus (see 2.1n.), who commissioned a nontraditional statue of the god Marduk that the Babylonian priests refused to recognize as legitimate. 1: The dimensions of the statue, approximately 90 ft x 9 ft (27 x 3 m), make little sense and are likely exaggerated. Dura, a generic term for “fortress” or “enclosure”; the exact location is unclear. 2–5: The lengthy and repeated lists (of officials, vv. 2,3; musical instruments, vv. 5,7,10,15; and clothing, v. 21) are typical of the tales (see also 2.2; 4.7;

ers, the justices, the magistrates, and all the officials of the provinces, assembled for the dedication of the statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up. When they were standing before the statue that Nebuchadnezzar had set up, ⁴ the herald proclaimed aloud, “You are commanded, O peoples, nations, and languages, ⁵ that when you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble, you are to fall down and worship the golden statue that King Nebuchadnezzar has set up. ⁶ Whoever does not fall down and worship shall immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire.” ⁷ Therefore, as soon as all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble, all the peoples, nations, and languages fell down and worshipped the golden statue that King Nebuchadnezzar had set up.

⁸ Accordingly, at this time certain Chaldeans came forward and denounced the Jews. ⁹ They said to King Nebuchadnezzar, “O king, live forever! ¹⁰ You, O king, have made a decree, that everyone who hears the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble, shall fall down and worship the golden statue, ¹¹ and whoever does not fall down and worship shall be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire. ¹² There are certain Jews whom you have appointed over the affairs of the province of Babylon: Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. These pay no heed to you, O king. They do not serve your gods and they do not worship the golden statue that you have set up.”

¹³ Then Nebuchadnezzar in furious rage commanded that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego be brought in; so they brought those men before the king. ¹⁴ Nebuchadnezzar said to them, “Is it true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you do not serve my gods and you do not worship the golden statue that I have set up? ¹⁵ Now if you are ready when you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, trigon, harp, drum, and entire musical ensemble to fall down and worship the statue that I have made, well and good. ^a But if you do not worship, you shall immediately be thrown into a furnace of blazing fire, and who is the god that will deliver you out of my hands?”

¹⁶ Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered the king, “O Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need to present a defense to you in this matter. ¹⁷ If our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the furnace of blazing fire and out of your hand, O king, let him deliver us. ^b ¹⁸ But if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not serve your gods and we will not worship the golden statue that you have set up.”

¹⁹ Then Nebuchadnezzar was so filled with rage against Shadrach, Meshach, and

^a Aram lacks well and good

^b Or If our God whom we serve is able to deliver us, he will deliver us from the furnace of blazing fire and out of your hand, O king.

5.7; 6.7) and parody similar lists found in royal inscriptions. 5: The musical instruments have Greek names. 6: The threat of death is a folkloristic element. Prior to the reign of Antiochus IV (175–163 BCE), the death penalty was not used for acts of religious disobedience. 7: All the peoples, nations, and languages, the scene dramatizes Nebuchadnezzar’s power to elicit universal obedience.

3.8–12: Accusations against the Jews. 8: Chaldeans, see 1.4n.; 2.2n. Chaldeans is also an ethnic designation for Babylonians (e.g., Isa 13.19). Here it is possible that both ethnic and professional animosity is implied in their actions (see also Esth 3.8). Denounced (lit., “ate the pieces of”), the Chaldeans take aggressive action against the friends. As Torah-observant Jews, the friends could not obey the command. 9: Live forever, see 2.4n. 10: Repetition of the instruments brings comic relief. 12: Whom you have appointed, see 2.49. Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, see 1.6–7n. Daniel’s absence from the story suggests that this was originally an independent tale.

3.13–18: Resisting the king. 13: Rage, the king’s exaggerated anger is typical of court tales (see also 2.5n., 12–13; Esth 1.12). 15: Out of my hands, a symbol for the giving and receiving of royal power (see 1.2; 2.35,38). The king has yet to fully learn that the Jewish God both gives power (2.38) and takes it away. 16: Defense, the three friends resist the king by refusing to defend their action. 17–18: The friends’ fidelity to God is unconditional. Their stance becomes a model for resisting Antiochus IV (see 1 Macc 2.59).

3.19–30: The fiery furnace. 19: Rage, see 3.13n. The reference to seven is a common folkloristic element; the Abednego that his face was distorted. He ordered the furnace heated up seven times more than was customary,²⁰ and ordered some of the strongest guards in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego and to throw them into the furnace of blazing fire.²¹ So the men were bound, still wearing their tunics,^a their trousers,^a their hats, and their other garments, and they were thrown into the furnace of blazing fire.²² Because the king's command was urgent and the furnace was so overheated, the raging flames killed the men who lifted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego.²³ But the three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, fell down, bound, into the furnace of blazing fire.

²⁴ Then King Nebuchadnezzar was astonished and rose up quickly. He said to his counselors, "Was it not three men that we threw bound into the fire?" They answered the king, "True, O king."²⁵ He replied, "But I see four men unbound, walking in the middle of the fire, and they are not hurt; and the fourth has the appearance of a god."^b ²⁶ Nebuchadnezzar then approached the door of the furnace of blazing fire and said, "Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the Most High God, come out! Come here!" So Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego came out from the fire.²⁷ And the satraps, the prefects, the governors, and the king's counselors gathered together and saw that the fire had not had any power over the bodies of those men; the hair of their heads was not singed, their tunics^a were not harmed, and not even the smell of fire came from them.²⁸ Nebuchadnezzar said, "Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who has sent his angel and delivered his servants who trusted in him. They disobeyed the king's command and yielded up their bodies rather than serve and worship any god except their own God."²⁹ Therefore I make a decree: Any people, nation, or language that utters blasphemy against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego shall be torn limb from limb, and their houses laid in ruins; for there is no other god who is able to deliver in this way."³⁰ Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon.

4^c King Nebuchadnezzar to all peoples, nations, and languages that live throughout the earth: May you have abundant prosperity! ² The signs and wonders that the Most High God has worked for me I am pleased to recount.

³ How great are his signs, how mighty his wonders!
His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,

^a Meaning of Aram word uncertain

^b Aram a son of the gods

^c Ch 3.31 in Aram

king's outrageous command would be impossible to carry out. 21: There was no time to strip the prisoners first. 24: In the Septuagint, followed by Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Bibles, the "Prayer of Azariah" and the "Song of the Three Jews" begins here. Astonished, the story is told from Nebuchadnezzar's perspective. 25: Four men, the king sees the mysterious fourth figure but cannot make sense of the scene. Walking in the middle of the fire but unhurt evokes the image of the burning bush (Ex 3.2). Appearance of a god (lit., "a son of the gods/God"). Original readers would have understood the fourth man to be an angel (v. 28; see also Gen 16.7; Ex 14.19; 1 Kings 19.5–8; 2 Macc 10.29–30), but early Christians identified the figure as Christ. 26: Nebuchadnezzar realizes which god can deliver the men (see 3.15). Most High God, a universal title for the supreme god used during the Hellenistic period by Jews and gentiles (4.2; 5.18,21; Gen 14.19; Num 24.16; Isa 14.14; Ps 78.35,36; Jdt 13.18; Sir 7.9; 24.23; 41.8; Mk 5.7; Lk 8.28; Acts 16.17; Heb 7.1). 28–30: The Jewish courtiers' disobedience is rewarded. 29: See 2.5.

4.1–3: Nebuchadnezzar's praise. See also 2.20–23; 4.34–35; 6.26–27. The doxologies were inserted to connect the tales. Because 3.29 mentioned a decree addressed to "any people, nation, or language," some interpreters took 4.1–3 to be the text of that decree and understood it to be the conclusion of that narrative. The chapter and verse numbering in the Tanakh reflects this interpretation. 1: All peoples, Nebuchadnezzar is presented as monarch of a universal, multiethnic empire (see 2.38; 3.4,7,29; 6.25). 2: Signs and wonders, a phrase used also to describe God's actions with Pharaoh in the Exodus (see Ex 7.3; Deut 6.22; 7.19; 26.8; 29.2–3; 34.11; Pss 105.27; 135.9). Most High God, see 3.26n. 3: His kingship is everlasting, similar to Daniel's statement in 2.44 (cf. 7.27; see also Ps 145.13).

and his sovereignty is from generation to generation.

^{4a}I, Nebuchadnezzar, was living at ease in my home and prospering in my palace.

⁵I saw a dream that frightened me; my fantasies in bed and the visions of my head terrified me. ⁶So I made a decree that all the wise men of Babylon should be brought before me, in order that they might tell me the interpretation of the dream. ⁷Then the magicians, the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the diviners came in, and I told them the dream, but they could not tell me its interpretation. ⁸At last Daniel came in before me—he who was named Belteshazzar after the name of my god, and who is endowed with a spirit of the holy gods^b—and I told him the dream: ⁹“O Belteshazzar, chief of the magicians, I know that you are endowed with a spirit of the holy gods^b and that no mystery is too difficult for you. Hear^c the dream that I saw; tell me its interpretation.

^{10d}Upon my bed this is what I saw; there was a tree at the center of the earth, and its height was great.

¹¹The tree grew great and strong, its top reached to heaven, and it was visible to the ends of the whole earth.

¹²Its foliage was beautiful, its fruit abundant, and it provided food for all.

The animals of the field found shade under it, the birds of the air nested in its branches, and from it all living beings were fed.

¹³“I continued looking, in the visions of my head as I lay in bed, and there was a holy watcher, coming down from heaven. ¹⁴He cried aloud and said:

‘Cut down the tree and chop off its branches, strip off its foliage and scatter its fruit. Let the animals flee from beneath it and the birds from its branches.

¹⁵But leave its stump and roots in the ground, with a band of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field. Let him be bathed with the dew of heaven, and let his lot be with the animals of the field in the grass of the earth.

¹⁶Let his mind be changed from that of a human, and let the mind of an animal be given to him.

And let seven times pass over him.

¹⁷The sentence is rendered by decree of the watchers, the decision is given by order of the holy ones,

^a Ch 4.1 in Aram

^b Or a holy, divine spirit

^c Theodotion: Aram The visions of

^d Theodotion Syr Compare Gk: Aram adds The visions of my head

4.4–18: Nebuchadnezzar’s dream of the tree. This story, like aspects of chs 2 and 3, originated with remembrances of Nabonidus, which were transferred to Nebuchadnezzar (see 2.1–12n.; 3.1–7n.; 5.2n.). 4: The king narrates the dream report. The narration changes to third-person in vv. 19–33. 5: Disturbing dreams were bad portents of the future (see 2.1n.; 2.3; 7.1,15; 8.27) and are a recurring motif in court tales (cf. Gen 40.6; 41.8). 7: Magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, see 1.20n.; 2.2n. The failure of the non-Jewish courtiers recalls 2.7. 8: Belteshazzar, see 1.7n., 2.26n. The name’s etymology is inaccurate; it does not refer to the god Bel (i.e., Marduk). A spirit of the holy gods, can also be translated “spirit of the holy God” (see Gen 41.38; Josh 24.19). Spirit refers to Daniel’s divinely given abilities (see 2.47). 10–12: A tree at the center of the earth, a widespread image in the ancient Near East; here it refers to the king’s role in maintaining the divine order of the world (see Ezek 17; 31). 11: Reached to heaven, evokes pridefulness (Gen 11.4; see Dan 1.2n.) although the tree is also the source of nurture for the animals (see Ezek 31.6). 13: A holy watcher, an angel (4.17,23; 8.13; a common term for angels in Jubilees, and 1 Enoch). 15: A band of iron and bronze, may symbolize a shackle for the king. Let him be bathed, the imagery shifts from the king as the tree to the king as a wild beast. 16: The king is demoted from his elevated status to being the basest of animals. Seven times, seven years. 17: He gives it to whom he will, see Jer 27.5–6. The holy ones, synonymous with watchers.

in order that all who live may know that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of mortals;
he gives it to whom he will
and sets over it the lowliest of human beings.’

¹⁸“This is the dream that I, King Nebuchadnezzar, saw. Now you, Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation, since all the wise men of my kingdom are unable to tell me the interpretation. You are able, however, for you are endowed with a spirit of the holy gods.”^a ¹⁹Then Daniel, who was called Belteshazzar, was severely distressed for a while. His thoughts terrified him. The king said, “Belteshazzar, do not let the dream or the interpretation terrify you.” Belteshazzar answered, “My lord, may the dream be for those who hate you, and its interpretation for your enemies!”²⁰The tree that you saw, which grew great and strong, so that its top reached to heaven and was visible to the end of the whole earth,²¹ whose foliage was beautiful and its fruit abundant, and which provided food for all, under which animals of the field lived, and in whose branches the birds of the air had nests—²² it is you, O king! You have grown great and strong. Your greatness has increased and reaches to heaven, and your sovereignty to the ends of the earth.²³ And whereas the king saw a holy watcher coming down from heaven and saying, ‘Cut down the tree and destroy it, but leave its stump and roots in the ground, with a band of iron and bronze, in the grass of the field; and let him be bathed with the dew of heaven, and let his lot be with the animals of the field, until seven times pass over him’—²⁴ this is the interpretation, O king, and it is a decree of the Most High that has come upon my lord the king:²⁵ You shall be driven away from human society, and your dwelling shall be with the wild animals. You shall be made to eat grass like oxen, you shall be bathed with the dew of heaven, and seven times shall pass over you, until you have learned that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals, and gives it to whom he will.²⁶ As it was commanded to leave the stump and roots of the tree, your kingdom shall be re-established for you from the time that you learn that Heaven is sovereign.²⁷ Therefore, O king, may my counsel be acceptable to you: atone for^b your sins with righteousness, and your iniquities with mercy to the oppressed, so that your prosperity may be prolonged.”

²⁸All this came upon King Nebuchadnezzar.²⁹ At the end of twelve months he was walking on the roof of the royal palace of Babylon,³⁰ and the king said, “Is this not magnificent Babylon, which I have built as a royal capital by my mighty power and for my glorious majesty?”³¹ While the words were still in the king’s mouth, a voice came from heaven: “O King Nebuchadnezzar, to you it is declared: The kingdom has departed from you!³² You shall be driven away from human society, and your dwelling shall be with the animals of the field. You shall be made to eat grass like oxen, and seven times shall pass over you, until you have learned that the Most High has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals and gives it to whom he will.”³³ Immediately the sentence was fulfilled against Nebuchadnezzar. He was driven away from human society, ate grass like oxen, and his body was bathed with the

^a Or a holy, divine spirit

^b Aram break off

4.19–27: Daniel’s interpretation. 19: Daniel’s distress shows sympathy for the king. 22: The king’s power is all-encompassing, much as in 2.37–38. 24: Most High, see 3.26n. 26: Heaven, a circumlocution for God. 27: The judgment is irrevocable, but the king’s righteousness (lit., “almsgiving”) will delay the sentence.

4.28–33: Nebuchadnezzar’s transformation. 29: Walking on the roof may suggest royal arrogance (see 2 Sam 11.2). 31: A voice from heaven, see v. 13. A heavenly voice becomes an increasingly common motif in Second Temple Jewish and early Christian writings (Mt 3.17; Mk 1.11; Lk 3.22; many instances in rabbinic texts). 32–33: The king’s affliction and banishment may reflect Nabonidus’s experiences. In The Prayer of Nabonidus (4Q242) from Qumran, the king was afflicted by God for seven years and healed by an unnamed Jewish exorcist. In reality, Nabonidus departed Babylon and spent ten years in the remote town of Tema in northern Arabia. 33: Eagles’ feathers anticipates the description of the first beast in 7.4 and its transformation.

dew of heaven, until his hair grew as long as eagles' feathers and his nails became like birds' claws.

³⁴ When that period was over, I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted my eyes to heaven, and my reason returned to me.

I blessed the Most High,
and praised and honored the one who lives forever.
For his sovereignty is an everlasting sovereignty,
and his kingdom endures from generation to generation.

³⁵ All the inhabitants of the earth are accounted as nothing,
and he does what he wills with the host of heaven
and the inhabitants of the earth.

There is no one who can stay his hand or say to him, "What are you doing?"

³⁶ At that time my reason returned to me; and my majesty and splendor were restored to me for the glory of my kingdom. My counselors and my lords sought me out, I was re-established over my kingdom, and still more greatness was added to me. ³⁷ Now I, Nebuchadnezzar, praise and extol and honor the King of heaven, for all his works are truth,
and his ways are justice;
and he is able to bring low
those who walk in pride.

5 King Belshazzar made a great festival for a thousand of his lords, and he was drinking wine in the presence of the thousand.

² Under the influence of the wine, Belshazzar commanded that they bring in the vessels of gold and silver that his father Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the temple in Jerusalem, so that the king and his lords, his wives, and his concubines might drink from them.

³ So they brought in the vessels of gold and silver^a that had been taken out of the temple, the house of God in Jerusalem, and the king and his lords, his wives, and his concubines drank from them. ⁴ They drank the wine and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood, and stone.

⁵ Immediately the fingers of a human hand appeared and began writing on the plaster of the wall of the royal palace, next to the lampstand. The king was watching the hand as it wrote. ⁶ Then the king's face turned pale, and his thoughts terrified him. His limbs gave way, and his knees knocked together. ⁷ The king cried aloud to bring in the enchanters, the Chaldeans, and the diviners; and the king said to the wise men of Babylon, "Whoever can read this writing and tell me its interpretation shall be clothed in purple, have a chain of gold around his neck, and rank third in

^a Theodotion Vg: Aram lacks and silver

4.34–37: Restoration of the king. 34: The king is restored only after the period of punishment has been fulfilled. With the restoration of Nebuchadnezzar's sanity, the first-person narration resumes. 34–35: The language echoes and expands the opening doxology (v. 3). 36: The king's power is connected to his knowledge of God's sovereignty. 37: Nebuchadnezzar's final words form the climax to the cycle of stories about him. King of Heaven, a term found only in the Bible (see 5.23), unlike Most High (v. 34) which was used by Jews and gentiles alike.

5.1–4: Belshazzar's blasphemy. 1: Belshazzar ruled as an unofficial co-regent from 553 to 543 BCE while his father, Nabonidus, was away in Tema (see 4.32–33n.). A great festival, royal feasts were opportunities for the extravagant display of kingly power. 2–3: Under the influence, Babylonian and Persian royal feasts were known for unrestrained drinking (Esth 1.8,10). Vessels of gold and silver, see 1.2n. Nebuchadnezzar placed the Temple vessels in the treasury, but Belshazzar debased them by using them as drinking cups. His father Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar was not Belshazzar's father. 4: Praised the gods of gold and silver, a similar phrase is found in The Prayer of Nabonidus (4Q242). The description of the idols evokes the criticism of the prophets and other writings (Deut 4.28; Isa 44.9–20; Jer 10.3–5; Bel v. 7).

5.5–9: The mysterious handwriting on the wall. The appearance of the hand comes in response to Belshazzar's defilement of the sacred vessels. 5: Immediately, judgment is swift. Began writing, the written word was a symbol of power in a largely illiterate world. 6: The king's emotional response is described in physical terms. His limbs gave way, lit., "the knots of his loins loosened"; see also v. 12n.; Ps 69.23; Isa 21.3; Ezek 21.7; Nah 2.10. 7: Enchanters, etc., see 1.4n.; 1.20n. Read this writing, the test is to read and interpret. Purple, the king promises to the kingdom.”⁸ Then all the king’s wise men came in, but they could not read the writing or tell the king the interpretation.⁹ Then King Belshazzar became greatly terrified and his face turned pale, and his lords were perplexed.

¹⁰ The queen, when she heard the discussion of the king and his lords, came into the banqueting hall. The queen said, “O king, live forever! Do not let your thoughts terrify you or your face grow pale.”¹¹ There is a man in your kingdom who is endowed with a spirit of the holy gods.^a In the days of your father he was found to have enlightenment, understanding, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods. Your father, King Nebuchadnezzar, made him chief of the magicians, enchanters, Chaldeans, and diviners,^b because an excellent spirit, knowledge, and understanding to interpret dreams, explain riddles, and solve problems were found in this Daniel, whom the king named Beltshazzar. Now let Daniel be called, and he will give the interpretation.”

¹³ Then Daniel was brought in before the king. The king said to Daniel, “So you are Daniel, one of the exiles of Judah, whom my father the king brought from Judah?¹⁴ I have heard of you that a spirit of the gods^c is in you, and that enlightenment, understanding, and excellent wisdom are found in you.¹⁵ Now the wise men, the enchanters, have been brought in before me to read this writing and tell me its interpretation, but they were not able to give the interpretation of the matter.¹⁶ But I have heard that you can give interpretations and solve problems. Now if you are able to read the writing and tell me its interpretation, you shall be clothed in purple, have a chain of gold around your neck, and rank third in the kingdom.”

¹⁷ Then Daniel answered in the presence of the king, “Let your gifts be for yourself, or give your rewards to someone else! Nevertheless I will read the writing to the king and let him know the interpretation.”¹⁸ O king, the Most High God gave your father Nebuchadnezzar kingship, greatness, glory, and majesty.¹⁹ And because of the greatness that he gave him, all peoples, nations, and languages trembled and feared before him. He killed those he wanted to kill, kept alive those he wanted to keep alive, honored those he wanted to honor, and degraded those he wanted to degrade.²⁰ But when his heart was lifted up and his spirit was hardened so that he acted proudly, he was deposed from his kingly throne, and his glory was stripped from him.²¹ He was driven from human society, and his mind was made like that of an animal. His dwelling was with the wild asses, he was fed grass like oxen, and his body was bathed with the dew of heaven, until he learned that the Most High God has sovereignty over the kingdom of mortals, and sets over it whomever he will.²² And you, Belshazzar his son, have not humbled your heart, even though you knew all this!²³ You have exalted yourself against the Lord of heaven! The vessels of his temple have been brought in before you, and you and your lords, your wives and your concubines have been drinking wine from them. You have praised the gods of silver and gold, of

^a Or a holy, divine spirit

^b Aram adds the king your father

^c Or a divine spirit

reward the successful courtier with status symbols and power. 8: The failure of the sages is a standard element in the court-contest tale (see 2.2n.; 4.6–7n.).

5.10–12: The queen mother intervenes. Because she has knowledge of events from the previous king’s reign, the queen is probably Belshazzar’s mother or grandmother. The only woman to speak in the MT version of Daniel, she recognizes Daniel’s importance. O king, live forever! See 2.4n. The greeting is unintentionally ironic, since Belshazzar will die that night. 11: Holy gods, see 4.8n. 12: Solve problems, lit., “loosen knots,” Daniel’s ability to loosen knots marks a contrast to the king’s knots being loosened in terror (v. 6n.).

5.13–28: Daniel before the king. 13: The king does not know Daniel. Brought from Judah, see 1.3–4. 14: Spirit of the gods, see 4.8n. 17–23: These verses serve to integrate ch 5 with the narratives about Nebuchadnezzar in chs 2–4, especially 4.30–37. 17: Daniel’s sharp response contrasts with his more sympathetic exchange with Nebuchadnezzar in 4.19. Daniel utters prophetic judgment (1 Kings 21.20–24). 18: Nebuchadnezzar’s power was a divine gift (cf. 2.37). 19: He killed . . . kept alive, activities usually attributed to God alone; see Deut 32.9; 1 Sam 2.6–7; Job 5.11; Ps 75.7–8; Tob 4.19; Sir 7.11. 23: Exalted yourself, compare the description of Belshazzar with the bronze, iron, wood, and stone, which do not see or hear or know; but the God in whose power is your very breath, and to whom belong all your ways, you have not honored.

²⁴“So from his presence the hand was sent and this writing was inscribed. ²⁵And this is the writing that was inscribed: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN. ²⁶This is the interpretation of the matter: MENE, God has numbered the days of^a your kingdom and brought it to an end; ²⁷TEKEL, you have been weighed on the scales and found wanting; ²⁸PERES,^b your kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians.”

²⁹Then Belshazzar gave the command, and Daniel was clothed in purple, a chain of gold was put around his neck, and a proclamation was made concerning him that he should rank third in the kingdom.

³⁰That very night Belshazzar, the Chaldean king, was killed. ³¹^cAnd Darius the Mede received the kingdom, being about sixty-two years old.

6 It pleased Darius to set over the kingdom one hundred twenty satraps, stationed throughout the whole kingdom, ²and over them three presidents, including Daniel; to these the satraps gave account, so that the king might suffer no loss. ³Soon Daniel distinguished himself above all the other presidents and satraps because an excellent spirit was in him, and the king planned to appoint him over the whole kingdom. ⁴So the presidents and the satraps tried to find grounds for complaint against Daniel in connection with the kingdom. But they could find no grounds for complaint or any corruption, because he was faithful, and no negligence or corruption could be found in him. ⁵The men said, “We shall not find any ground for complaint against this Daniel unless we find it in connection with the law of his God.”

⁶So the presidents and satraps conspired and came to the king and said to him, “O King Darius, live forever! ⁷All the presidents of the kingdom, the prefects and the satraps, the counselors and the governors are agreed that the king should establish an ordinance and enforce an interdict, that whoever prays to anyone, divine or human, for thirty days, except to you, O king, shall be thrown into a den of lions. ⁸Now, O king, establish the interdict and sign the document, so that it cannot be changed, according to the law of the Medes and the Persians, which cannot be revoked.” ⁹Therefore King Darius signed the document and interdict.

^a Aram lacks the days of

^b The singular of Parsin

^c Ch 6.1 in Aram

little horn in 8.11,25. 24–28: MENE, MENE, TEKEL, and PARSIN, a riddle using units of money as the key: MENE = mina (ca. 20 oz [.5 kg]), TEKEL = shekel (one sixtieth of a mina), and PARSIN = half-minas. Daniel interprets the words according to the related verbs, as puns on the king’s power: MENE = counted, TEKEL = weighed, PARSIN = divided or assessed.

5.29–31: The king’s final acts. 29–30: The king recognizes Daniel’s worth, but the lesson is learned too late. Judgment on the king is immediate. 30: Chaldean, see 3.8n. Was killed, according to the Greek historian Xenophon, Nabonidus and those with him were killed in 539 BCE when the Persians seized Babylon. This likely included Belshazzar. 31: No such person as Darius the Mede is known outside this biblical reference; later references in Jewish and Christian sources are dependent on the account in the book of Daniel. Babylon was seized by Cyrus the Persian who was also the king of Media. The king mentioned here may be a confused reference to Darius I of Persia (522–486 BCE). See also 2.39n.; 6.1n.; 7.5; 8.3–4; 9.1; 11.1.

6.1–9: The plot against Daniel. A court-conflict tale resembling ch 3 in structure and theme. 1: Darius, see 5.31n. Darius I organized the Persian Empire into satrapies. The number is a folkloristic exaggeration (see Esth 1.1; 8.9; 1 Esd 3.2). 3: Daniel’s rise to power resembles Joseph’s (Gen 41.40–3). 4–5: Jealousy is the source of conflict, but Daniel’s religious identity is used against him. 6: O king, see 2.4n.; 5.10. 7–9: The courtiers propose to elevate the king over all gods. In agreeing to the plan, the king shows his gullibility (see also Esth 1.19–2.1). 7: Den of lions, an unknown punishment in the ancient Near East. The lion was a symbol of royal power. 8–9: The law . . . which cannot be revoked, a folkloristic motif; see also Esth 1.19; 3.8–10; 8.8–10. The motif emphasizes the limits of kingly power. The gullible king is a typical character in court stories; cf. Ahasuerus in Esther and Esarhaddon in Ahiqar.

¹⁰ Although Daniel knew that the document had been signed, he continued to go to his house, which had windows in its upper room open toward Jerusalem, and to get down on his knees three times a day to pray to his God and praise him, just as he had done previously. ¹¹ The conspirators came and found Daniel praying and seeking mercy before his God. ¹² Then they approached the king and said concerning the interdict, “O king! Did you not sign an interdict, that anyone who prays to anyone, divine or human, within thirty days except to you, O king, shall be thrown into a den of lions?” The king answered, “The thing stands fast, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which cannot be revoked.” ¹³ Then they responded to the king, “Daniel, one of the exiles from Judah, pays no attention to you, O king, or to the interdict you have signed, but he is saying his prayers three times a day.”

¹⁴ When the king heard the charge, he was very much distressed. He was determined to save Daniel, and until the sun went down he made every effort to rescue him. ¹⁵ Then the conspirators came to the king and said to him, “Know, O king, that it is a law of the Medes and Persians that no interdict or ordinance that the king establishes can be changed.”

¹⁶ Then the king gave the command, and Daniel was brought and thrown into the den of lions. The king said to Daniel, “May your God, whom you faithfully serve, deliver you!” ¹⁷ A stone was brought and laid on the mouth of the den, and the king sealed it with his own signet and with the signet of his lords, so that nothing might be changed concerning Daniel. ¹⁸ Then the king went to his palace and spent the night fasting; no food was brought to him, and sleep fled from him.

¹⁹ Then, at break of day, the king got up and hurried to the den of lions. ²⁰ When he came near the den where Daniel was, he cried out anxiously to Daniel, “O Daniel, servant of the living God, has your God whom you faithfully serve been able to deliver you from the lions?” ²¹ Daniel then said to the king, “O king, live forever! ²² My God sent his angel and shut the lions’ mouths so that they would not hurt me, because I was found blameless before him; and also before you, O king, I have done no wrong.” ²³ Then the king was exceedingly glad and commanded that Daniel be taken up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no kind of harm was found on him, because he had trusted in his God. ²⁴ The king gave a command, and those who had accused Daniel were brought and thrown into the den of lions—they, their children, and their wives. Before they reached the bottom of the den the lions overpowered them and broke all their bones in pieces.

²⁵ Then King Darius wrote to all peoples and nations of every language throughout the whole world: “May you have abundant prosperity! ²⁶ I make a decree, that in all my royal dominion people should tremble and fear before the God of Daniel:

For he is the living God, enduring forever.

His kingdom shall never be destroyed,
and his dominion has no end.

²⁷ He delivers and rescues, he works signs and wonders in heaven and on earth;

6:10–15: Daniel accused. 10: Toward Jerusalem, Jewish custom was to pray toward the Temple (1 Kings 8.30,35; 2 Chr 6.34; 1 Esd 4.58). Praying on one’s knees, see 1 Kings 8.54. Praying three times a day developed in the Second Temple period (Ps 55.17; m. Ber. 4.5). 13: Exiles from Judah suggests ethnic antagonism on the part of the conspirators (cf. 3.8,12). 14–15: The decree that exalts the king’s power has trapped the king along with Daniel.

6.16–24: The lions’ den. A more developed version of this story appears in Bel vv. 33–42. 16: May your God, compare to Nebuchadnezzar’s words in 3.15. 17: The king sealed it, compare Bel vv. 10–15. 19–23: The focus is on the king’s emotions, not Daniel’s (cf. 2.1,3,12; 3.13,19,24; 4.5; 5.6,9). 22: Sent his angel, see also 3.25. I have done no wrong, Daniel’s deliverance is vindication of his status before God and king. 24: The punishment of the families along with the courtiers may be a folkloristic exaggeration similar to 2.5,12. Elsewhere such punishment is prohibited (Deut 24.16; but see Num 16.27–33).

6.25–28 The king exalts Daniel and Daniel’s God. The strongest praise of God in the tales. 25–26: The doxology is framed as a letter to all the people; see also 4.1–3,34–37. 26: The king’s decree represents gentile recog-

for he has saved Daniel from the power of the lions.”

²⁸ So this Daniel prospered during the reign of Darius and the reign of Cyrus the Persian.

7 In the first year of King Belshazzar of Babylon, Daniel had a dream and visions of his head as he lay in bed. Then he wrote down the dream:^a ² I,^b Daniel, saw in my vision by night the four winds of heaven stirring up the great sea, ³ and four great beasts came up out of the sea, different from one another. ⁴ The first was like a lion and had eagles’ wings. Then, as I watched, its wings were plucked off, and it was lifted up from the ground and made to stand on two feet like a human being; and a human mind was given to it. ⁵ Another beast appeared, a second one, that looked like a bear. It was raised up on one side, had three tusks^c in its mouth among its teeth and was told, “Arise, devour many bodies!” ⁶ After this, as I watched, another appeared, like a leopard. The beast had four wings of a bird on its back and four heads; and dominion was given to it. ⁷ After this I saw in the visions by night a fourth beast, terrifying and dreadful and exceedingly strong. It had great iron teeth and was devouring, breaking in pieces, and stamping what was left with its feet. It was different from all the beasts that preceded it, and it had ten horns. ⁸ I was considering the horns, when another horn appeared, a little one coming up among them; to make room for it, three of the earlier horns were plucked up by the roots. There were eyes like human eyes in this horn, and a mouth speaking arrogantly.

⁹ As I watched,
thrones were set in place,

^a QMs Theodotion: MT adds the beginning of the words; he said

^b Theodotion: Aram Daniel answered and said, I

^c Or ribs

tion of the Jewish God’s sovereignty over all nations and peoples. 28: Cyrus the Persian (ruled 559–530 BCE) released the Judean exiles from Babylon in 538 (see also 1.21n.; 2.39n.; 5.31n.; Isa 44.28; 45.1; Ezra 1.1–4).

7:1–8: First apocalypse. Daniel, not the king, is the recipient of visions; now he is not the interpreter as in chs 2 and 4, but the one needing interpretation. This vision was likely written prior to Antiochus IV’s reign (175–164 BCE) and updated just before he desecrated the Temple in 167. 1: First year of Belshazzar, 553 BCE (see 5.1n.). Dream and visions: similar to Nebuchadnezzar (2.28). Then he wrote, writing down the vision is part of the motif of secret and revealed knowledge that is characteristic of apocalyptic literature (see also 12.9). 2: The narration switches to first person. Four winds of heaven, cosmic winds sent by the divine to act upon the waters (see Gen 1.2); the number four connotes totality. The great sea, chaotic waters and sea monsters that the divine warrior must vanquish (Isa 27.1; Pss 74.13–17; 89.9–10; 93.3–4). 3: Four great beasts, the world kingdoms of Babylonia, Media, Persia, and Greece (see 2.36–45nn.). 4: First, the Neo-Babylonian empire (2.38); lion, a reference to Nebuchadnezzar, who transforms into a beast and back into a human (see 4.33n.). Eagles’ wings, a symbol of military speed and power. 5: A second one, Media was mistakenly thought by the authors of Daniel to be the empire that defeated Babylon (2.39; 5.31; 8.20; 11.1; cf. Jer 51.11). Raised up, standing on its hind legs. Three tusks, this empire is predatory. 6: Another appeared, Persia (2.39b; 6.28; 8.20; 10.1,20). Like a leopard, Hos 13.7–8 refers to the ravaging power of leopard, bear, lion, and an unnamed wild animal. Four wings, a reference to the speed of Persia’s wide-ranging military conquests (see 2.39). 7: A fourth beast, Alexander the Great’s empire (2.40; 8.21). Ten horns, the Seleucid dynasty, which ruled Syria and Judea after Alexander. Horns are symbols of power (8.20; Ezek 29.21; Zech 1.18; Ps 132.17). Ten is a round number, not the actual number of monarchs. 8: A little horn, Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 BCE), the Seleucid usurper of the throne (8.9; 1 Macc 1.41–50). Three . . . plucked up, Antiochus IV was fourth in the line of succession, after his brother, Seleucus IV, and his brother’s sons, Antiochus and Demetrius. Seleucus was murdered by his prime minister, Heliodorus (see 2 Macc 3), and Demetrius was exiled to Rome. Antiochus IV was directly responsible only for the death of his nephew Antiochus, but the book of Daniel apparently holds him responsible for killing or displacing all three. Human eyes . . . and a mouth speaking arrogantly, eyes and mouth are often associated with haughty and boastful behavior (Prov 6.17; 10.6; 21.4; Isa 2.11; 5.15).

7:9–14: The divine throne. The scene shifts from the beasts to the divine throne and the heavenly council acting as a legal court (see 1 Kings 22.19; Isa 6; 1 En. 90.20; Rev 4). 9: An Ancient One, lit., “an Ancient of Days”; see also Isa 40.28; Deut 33.27. White as snow . . . like pure wool, indicates righteousness (Isa 1.18) and also and an Ancient One^a took his throne, his clothing was white as snow,

and the hair of his head like pure wool;

his throne was fiery flames,
and its wheels were burning fire.

¹⁰ A stream of fire issued and flowed out from his presence.

A thousand thousands served him,
and ten thousand times ten thousand stood attending him.

The court sat in judgment,
and the books were opened.

¹¹ I watched then because of the noise of the arrogant words that the horn was speaking. And as I watched, the beast was put to death, and its body destroyed and given over to be burned with fire. ¹² As for the rest of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but their lives were prolonged for a season and a time. ¹³ As I watched in the night visions,

I saw one like a human being^b coming with the clouds of heaven.

And he came to the Ancient One^c and was presented before him.

¹⁴ To him was given dominion and glory and kingship, that all peoples, nations, and languages should serve him.

His dominion is an everlasting dominion
that shall not pass away,
and his kingship is one that shall never be destroyed.

¹⁵ As for me, Daniel, my spirit was troubled within me,^d and the visions of my head terrified me. ¹⁶ I approached one of the attendants to ask him the truth concerning all this. So he said that he would disclose to me the interpretation of the matter: ¹⁷ “As for these four great beasts, four kings shall arise out of the earth. ¹⁸ But the holy ones of the Most High shall receive the kingdom and possess the kingdom forever—forever and ever.”

¹⁹ Then I desired to know the truth concerning the fourth beast, which was different from all the rest, exceedingly terrifying, with its teeth of iron and claws of bronze, and which devoured and broke in pieces, and stamped what was left with its feet; ²⁰ and concerning the ten horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn, which came up and to make room for which three of them fell out—the horn that had eyes and a mouth that spoke arrogantly, and that seemed greater than the others. ²¹ As I looked, this horn made war with the holy ones and was prevailing over them, ²² until the Ancient One^c came; then judgment was given for the holy ones of the Most High, and the time arrived when the holy ones gained possession of the kingdom.

^a Aram an Ancient of Days

^b Aram one like a son of man

^c Aram the Ancient of Days

^d Aram troubled in its sheath

brightness, which sets the divine apart from humans (Mk 9.2–3; Rev 3.5). His throne . . . wheels, see also Ezek 1.4,15–21. 10: The deity is frequently associated with fire (Ex 3.2; 13.21–22; Ps 18.8). A thousand thousands, the vast angelic host that serves God (Ps 68.17; Rev 5.11). The books, records of human deeds recorded by the divine court (Isa 65.6; Mal 3.16; 1 En. 90.20; Rev 20.12). 11–12: The fourth beast is singled out for destruction; the other beasts are simply stripped of power. 13: One like a human being, lit., “one like a son of man,” contrasts with the beasts. The humanlike one may be the archangel Michael (10.13,21; 12.1; Rev 12), or as a corporate symbol of faithful Israelites (see vv. 18,27). In traditional Christian interpretation it is understood Jesus Christ (e.g., Mt 24.30–31). See also 8.17n. 14: Unlike the previous kingdoms, the rule of the humanlike one will not end (see also v. 27; 2.44; 4.3,34; 6.26).

7.15–18: Interpretation. Daniel needs the help of an interpreting angel. 17: The four kings are the kingdoms of Babylon, Media, Persia, and Greece (v. 3; see 2.36–45nn.). 18: The holy ones, the divine council of angels (4.13,17,23; Ps 89.5; Job 5.1; 15.15; Zech 14.5; Deut 33.2; Prov 30.3; Sir 42.17; 45.2; Jub 17.11; 1 En. 12.2; 14.23).

7.19–28: The end of foreign power. 19–21: The actions of Antiochus IV against the Jewish community before the Temple was desecrated. Events on earth reflect heavenly realities. 22: Anticipates the end of foreign rule

²³ This is what he said: “As for the fourth beast, there shall be a fourth kingdom on earth that shall be different from all the other kingdoms;
it shall devour the whole earth,
and trample it down, and break it to pieces.

²⁴ As for the ten horns,
out of this kingdom ten kings shall arise,
and another shall arise after them.
This one shall be different from the former ones,
and shall put down three kings.

²⁵ He shall speak words against the Most High,
shall wear out the holy ones of the Most High,
and shall attempt to change the sacred seasons and the law;
and they shall be given into his power
for a time, two times,^a and half a time.

²⁶ Then the court shall sit in judgment,
and his dominion shall be taken away,
to be consumed and totally destroyed.

²⁷ The kingship and dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Most High;
their kingdom shall be an everlasting
kingdom,
and all dominions shall serve and obey
them.”

²⁸ Here the account ends. As for me, Daniel, my thoughts greatly terrified me, and my face turned pale; but I kept the matter in my mind.

8 In the third year of the reign of King
Belshazzar a vision appeared to me,
Daniel, after the one that had appeared to me at first. ² In the vision I was looking and saw myself in Susa the capital, in the province of Elam,^b and I was by the river Ulai.^c ³ I looked up and saw a ram standing beside the river.^d It had two horns. Both horns were long, but one was longer than the other, and the longer one came up second. ⁴ I saw the ram charging westward and northward and southward. All beasts were powerless to withstand it, and no one could rescue from its power; it did as it pleased and became strong.

⁵ As I was watching, a male goat appeared from the west, coming across the face of the whole earth without touching the ground.
The goat had a horn^e between its eyes. ⁶ It came toward the ram with the two horns that I had seen standing beside the river,^d and it ran at it with savage force. ⁷ I saw it approaching the ram. It was enraged against it and struck the ram, breaking its two horns.
The ram did not have power to withstand it; it threw the ram down to the ground and trampled upon it, and there was no one who could rescue the ram from its power. ⁸ Then the male goat grew exceedingly great; but at the height of its power, the great horn was broken, and in its place there came up four prominent horns toward the four winds of heaven.

⁹ Out of one of them came another^f horn, a little one, which grew exceedingly great toward the south, toward the east, and

^a Aram a time, times

^b Gk Theodotion: MT QMs repeat in the vision I was looking

^c Or the Ulai Gate

^d Or gate

^e Theodotion: Gk one horn; Heb a horn of vision

^f Cn Compare 7.8: Heb one and the exaltation of the faithful community. 23–25: see 7.7–8n. 25: Change the sacred seasons and the law, Antiochus’s interference with Jewish religious life and Temple practices. Time, two times, and half a time, three and a half years (compare 4.26). Although this was approximately the duration of Antiochus’s persecution, it is more likely used because it is half of seven, the number of completion and fulfillment. 28: Despite the interpretation, Daniel remains perplexed by the mysterious character of the dream.

8.1–14: Second apocalypse. The language shifts back to Hebrew from Aramaic (see 2.4n.). 1: Third year of Belshazzar, 551 BCE (see 7.1n.). After the one, the vision in ch 7. 2: Susa, a Persian capital (Esth 1.2). Daniel is by the River Ulai in spirit (cf. 10.4; Ezek 1.1.). 3: Two horns, Media and Persia (see 7.7n.; 8.20). One was longer, Persia, the more dominant kingdom. 5: Goat, Alexander the Great (v. 21). Goats and rams represent human leaders (Ex 15.15; 2 Kings 24.15; Ezek 31.11; Isa 14.9; Jer 50.8). 8: A summary of Alexander’s career and death. Four prominent horns, Alexander’s successors, who divided his kingdom. 9: A little one, see 7.8n.

toward the beautiful land.¹⁰ It grew as high as the host of heaven. It threw down to the earth some of the host and some of the stars, and trampled on them.¹¹ Even against the prince of the host it acted arrogantly; it took the regular burnt offering away from him and overthrew the place of his sanctuary.¹² Because of wickedness, the host was given over to it together with the regular burnt offering;^a it cast truth to the ground, and kept prospering in what it did.¹³ Then I heard a holy one speaking, and another holy one said to the one that spoke, “For how long is this vision concerning the regular burnt offering, the transgression that makes desolate, and the giving over of the sanctuary and host to be trampled?”^a¹⁴ And he answered him,^b “For two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings; then the sanctuary shall be restored to its rightful state.”

¹⁵ When I, Daniel, had seen the vision, I tried to understand it. Then someone appeared standing before me, having the appearance of a man,¹⁶ and I heard a human voice by the Ulai, calling, “Gabriel, help this man understand the vision.”¹⁷ So he came near where I stood; and when he came, I became frightened and fell prostrate. But he said to me, “Understand, O mortal,^c that the vision is for the time of the end.”

¹⁸ As he was speaking to me, I fell into a trance, face to the ground; then he touched me and set me on my feet.¹⁹ He said, “Listen, and I will tell you what will take place later in the period of wrath; for it refers to the appointed time of the end.”²⁰ As for the ram that you saw with the two horns, these are the kings of Media and Persia.²¹ The male goat^d is the king of Greece, and the great horn between its eyes is the first king.²² As for the horn that was broken, in place of which four others arose, four kingdoms shall arise from his^e nation, but not with his power.

²³ At the end of their rule, when the transgressions have reached their full measure,
a king of bold countenance shall arise,
skilled in intrigue.

²⁴ He shall grow strong in power,^f shall cause fearful destruction, and shall succeed in what he does.
He shall destroy the powerful and the people of the holy ones.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Theodotion Syr Vg: Heb me

^c Heb son of man

^d Or shaggy male goat

^e Gk Theodotion Vg: Heb the

^f Theodotion and one Gk Ms: Heb repeats (from 8.22) but not with his power

10–12: Antiochus’s desecration of the Jerusalem Temple, 167–164 BCE. 10: Host, angelic legion of warriors. Threw down . . . stars, another term for angelic warriors (Judg 5.20). Some of the host are defeated by opposing forces (Rev 12.4). 11: Prince of the host, Michael; prince is often a term for a high-ranking angel (10.13; 10.20; 12.1; Josh 5.14). 12: Regular burnt offering, Antiochus IV suspended the twice daily offerings to God and replaced them with pagan offerings (1 Macc 1.45,54,59). Truth, or true religion is, for Daniel, worship of the God of Israel only. 13: Holy one, see 7.18n. For how long . . . ?, a recurring question posed to God in reference to national disaster (Isa 6.11; Jer 12.4; Zech 1.12; Pss 6.4; 79.5). The transgression that makes desolate is likely the structure erected on the altar of burnt offering in the Temple (1 Macc 1.54; 2 Macc 6.2); the Heb term (“pesha’ shomem”) is a play on the expression “Baal Shamem,” or “lord of heaven,” an epithet of the Canaanite and Syrian god Baal, also used for Zeus. 14: Two thousand three hundred evenings and mornings are eleven hundred and fifty days, a little less than three and a half years (7.25).

8.15–27: Interpretation. 15–16: Appearance of a man, indicates an angel or heavenly being (Gen 1.26; Ps 8.5). Gabriel, lit., “man of God,” a messenger (Lk 1.19,26) and an interpreting angel; the first instance of a named angel in the Bible. 17: Frightened . . . prostrate, a typical response to an epiphany (10.9; Josh 5.14; Ezek 1.28; 3.23; Rev. 1.17). Mortal, Heb “ben ’adam,” lit., “son of man,” the term used by God to address Ezekiel in his vision (e.g., Ezek 2.1; see also Ps 8.4; Job 25.6; etc.) 18: Trance, a standard part of visionary experience (Gen 15.12; Rev 1.17). Touched me, see 10.10,16,18; Rev 1.17. Set me on my feet, see Ezek 2.1–2. 19: Period of wrath, the gentile domination of Israel. The time of the end refers to the final period of tribulation that brings divine judgment, justice to the faithful, and punishments to the wicked (Hab 2.30). 23: Transgressions . . . full measure, God will punish the

²⁵ By his cunning
 he shall make deceit prosper under his
 hand,
 and in his own mind he shall be great.
 Without warning he shall destroy many and shall even rise up against the Prince of princes.
 But he shall be broken, and not by human
 hands.

²⁶ The vision of the evenings and the mornings that has been told is true. As for you, seal up the vision, for it refers to many days from now.”

²⁷ So I, Daniel, was overcome and lay sick for some days; then I arose and went about the king’s business. But I was dismayed by the vision and did not understand it.

9 In the first year of Darius son of Ahas-uerus, by birth a Mede, who became king over the realm of the Chaldeans—² in the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, perceived in the books the number of years that, according to the word of the LORD to the prophet Jeremiah, must be fulfilled for the devastation of Jerusalem, namely, seventy years.

³ Then I turned to the Lord God, to seek an answer by prayer and supplication with fasting and sackcloth and ashes. ⁴ I prayed to the LORD my God and made confession, saying,

“Ah, Lord, great and awesome God, keeping covenant and steadfast love with those who love you and keep your commandments, ⁵ we have sinned and done wrong, acted wickedly and rebelled, turning aside from your commandments and ordinances. ⁶ We have not listened to your servants the prophets, who spoke in your name to our kings, our princes, and our ancestors, and to all the people of the land.

⁷ “Righteousness is on your side, O Lord,
 but open shame, as at this day, falls on us,
 the people of Judah, the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and all Israel, those who are near and those who are far away, in all the lands to which you have driven them, because of the treachery that they have committed against you. ⁸ Open shame, O LORD, falls on us, our kings, our officials, and our ancestors, because we have sinned against you. ⁹ To the Lord our God belong mercy and forgiveness, for we have rebelled against him, ¹⁰ and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God by following his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets.

¹¹ “All Israel has transgressed your law and turned aside, refusing to obey your voice. So the curse and the oath written in the law of Moses, the servant of God, have been poured out upon us, because we have sinned against
 you. ¹² He has confirmed his words, which he spoke against us and against our rulers, by bringing upon us a calamity so great that what has been done against Jerusalem has never before been done under the whole heaven. ¹³ Just as it is written in the law of Moses, all this calamity has come upon us.
 We did not entreat the favor of the LORD our God, turning from our iniquities and reflecting on his^a fidelity. ¹⁴ So the LORD kept watch

^a Heb your

foreign king only after his sins can get no worse (Gen 15:16; 2 Macc 6:14). 25: Without warning, a surprise attack on Jerusalem (see 9:19; 1 Macc 1:29–30); Prince of princes, perhaps God, or the chief angel (see v. 11n.). Not by human hands, 2:34,45. 26–27: Although it supposedly refers to the distant future, the reader understands that the revelation pertains to the present and immediate future.

9.1–3: Introduction. 1: Darius, see 5:31n. Ahasuerus, or Xerxes, was the son of Darius I, not the father (Ezra 4:5–6). 2: LORD, the deity’s proper name, YHWH, as opposed to the universal name for the deity (see 2:18n.). YHWH is used throughout the Bible, but it is unusual in Daniel, occurring only in this ch (vv. 4,8,10,14,20). Daniel’s use of the divine name aligns his piety with other biblical figures (see also Ezra 9; Neh 9; Bar 1:15–3:8). Seventy years refers to Jer 25:11,12; 29:10. Devastation, the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE 3: Daniel seeks God in prayer to fulfill what is required by Jer 29:13–14. Fasting, sackcloth, and ashes signify repentance (Jon 3:6; Esth 4:1–4; Ezra 9:3–4). Fasting also serves as preparation for visionary experiences (Ex 34:28; 1 Kings 19:8; 2 Esd 6:35).

9.4–19: Daniel’s prayer resembles other postexilic Jewish prayers (Ezra 9; Neh 1:5–11; 9; Ps 79); it begins with communal confession of guilt and repentance (cf. 1 Kings 8:46–50; 2 Chr 6:37; Ps 106:6). 4: Steadfast love characterizes covenantal relationships (cf. Deut 7:9). 7: All Israel, includes the northern tribes that were conquered and scattered in 722 BCE. 11: The curse, see Deut 28:15–68; 29:20; Lev 26:27–45; Neh 10:29. The community’s over this calamity until he brought it upon us. Indeed, the LORD our God is right in all that he has done; for we have disobeyed his voice.

¹⁵“And now, O Lord our God, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand and made your name renowned even to this day—we have sinned, we have done wickedly. ¹⁶O Lord, in view of all your righteous acts, let your anger and wrath, we pray, turn away from your city Jerusalem, your holy mountain; because of our sins and the iniquities of our ancestors, Jerusalem and your people have become a disgrace among all our neighbors. ¹⁷Now therefore, O our God, listen to the prayer of your servant and to his supplication, and for your own sake, Lord,^a let your face shine upon your desolated sanctuary. ¹⁸Incline your ear, O my God, and hear. Open your eyes and look at our desolation and the city that bears your name. We do not present our supplication before you on the ground of our righteousness, but on the ground of your great mercies. ¹⁹O Lord, hear; O Lord, forgive; O Lord, listen and act and do not delay! For your own sake, O my God, because your city and your people bear your name!”

²⁰While I was speaking, and was praying and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God on behalf of the holy mountain of my God—²¹while I was speaking in prayer, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen before in a vision, came to me in swift flight at the time of the evening sacrifice. ²²He came^b and said to me, “Daniel, I have now come out to give you wisdom and understanding. ²³At the beginning of your supplications a word went out, and I have come to declare it, for you are greatly beloved. So consider the word and understand the vision:

²⁴“Seventy weeks are decreed for your people and your holy city: to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal both vision and prophet, and to anoint a most holy place.^c ²⁵Know therefore and understand: from the time that the word went out to restore and rebuild Jerusalem until the time of an anointed prince, there shall be seven weeks; and for sixty-two weeks it shall be built again with streets and moat, but in a troubled time. ²⁶After the sixty-two weeks, an anointed one shall be cut off and shall have nothing, and the troops of the prince who is to come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary. Its^d end shall come with a flood, and to the end there shall be war. Desolations are decreed. ²⁷He shall make a strong covenant with many for one week, and for half of the week he shall make sacrifice and

^a Theodotion Vg Compare Syr: Heb for the Lord's sake

^b Gk Syr: Heb He made to understand

^c Or thing or one

^d Or His

suffering is the result of their breach of covenant. 15: Now, the prayer shifts to supplication (Ezra 9.8,10; Neh 9.32). The Exodus from Egypt is invoked (cf. Deut 6.21; 9.26). 16: Holy mountain, Zion. 16: On Jerusalem and the Temple, see also 8.13; 9.26–27; 11.31; 12.11. 17: The desolated sanctuary connects Antiochus's desecration of the Second Temple in 167 BCE with the Babylonian destruction of Solomon's Temple. 18: The city, Jerusalem.

9.20–27: Third apocalypse. 21: Gabriel, see 8.15–16n. Swift flight, first mention in the Bible of human-like angels having the ability to fly (cf. Gen 19.1; Judg 6.11; Isa 6.6; Ezek 1.5–14). The evening sacrifice, see also Ex 29.38–42. 23: A word went out, see Isa 55.11. 24: Seventy weeks, Jeremiah's prophecy is revised to seventy year-weeks, or 490 years; a sevenfold punishment, cf. Lev 26.18; Zech 1.12; 2 Chr 36.21. In Hebrew, the words for “weeks” and “seventy” have the same consonants, thus grounding Daniel's reinterpretation of Jeremiah. The numbers are symbolic approximations, not strict chronological calculations. To finish the transgression, the sins of the people will run their course, allowing for restoration. Most holy place, the Temple. 25: From the time the word went out probably refers to Jeremiah's prophecy (Jer 25.11; v. 2n.). Alternatively, it might refer to the edict of Cyrus, authorizing the restoration of Jerusalem, which was promulgated in 538 BCE. An anointed prince, the high priest Joshua (Zech 4.14; Ezra 2.2; 3.2; Hag 1.12–14). Seven weeks, a jubilee period (Lev 25). 26: An anointed one shall be cut off, the high priest Onias III was murdered in 172 or 171 BCE (2 Macc 4.34) and shortly thereafter Jerusalem was attacked by the prince who is to come, Antiochus IV. 27: A strong covenant, the high priest Jason and other powerful Judeans supported Antiochus IV (1 Macc 1.11). Sacrifice, see 8.11–12n. Abomination, see 11.30–31n.

offering cease; and in their place^a shall be an abomination that desolates, until the decreed end is poured out upon the desolator.”

10 In the third year of King Cyrus of Persia a word was revealed to Daniel, who was named Belteshazzar. The word was true, and it concerned a great conflict. He understood the word, having received understanding in the vision.

²At that time I, Daniel, had been mourning for three weeks. ³I had eaten no rich food, no meat or wine had entered my mouth, and I had not anointed myself at all, for the full three weeks. ⁴On the twenty-fourth day of the first month, as I was standing on the bank of the great river (that is, the Tigris), ⁵I looked up and saw a man clothed in linen, with a belt of gold from Uphaz around his waist. ⁶His body was like beryl, his face like lightning, his eyes like flaming torches, his arms and legs like the gleam of burnished bronze, and the sound of his words like the roar of a multitude. ⁷I, Daniel, alone saw the vision; the people who were with me did not see the vision, though a great trembling fell upon them, and they fled and hid themselves. ⁸So I was left alone to see this great vision. My strength left me, and my complexion grew deathly pale, and I retained no strength. ⁹Then I heard the sound of his words; and when I heard the sound of his words, I fell into a trance, face to the ground.

¹⁰But then a hand touched me and roused me to my hands and knees. ¹¹He said to me, “Daniel, greatly beloved, pay attention to the words that I am going to speak to you. Stand on your feet, for I have now been sent to you.” So while he was speaking this word to me, I stood up trembling. ¹²He said to me, “Do not fear, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your mind to gain understanding and to humble yourself before your God, your words have been heard, and I have come because of your words. ¹³But the prince of the kingdom of Persia opposed me twenty-one days. So Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me, and I left him there with the prince of the kingdom of Persia,^b ¹⁴and have come to help you understand what is to happen to your people at the end of days. For there is a further vision for those days.”

¹⁵While he was speaking these words to me, I turned my face toward the ground and was speechless. ¹⁶Then one in human form touched my lips, and I opened my mouth

^a Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Theodotion: Heb I was left there with the kings of Persia

10.1–9: Gabriel appears to Daniel. Chapters 10–12 comprise one extended apocalypse consisting of an epiphany of the angel Gabriel in ch 10.1–11.1; an apocalyptic revelation in 11.2–12.4; and a concluding dialogue in 12.5–13. 1: Third year of King Cyrus, 536 BCE; see 1.21n. Word and vision are complementary ways of referring to a revelation (cf. Isa 1.1; Jer 1.1–2). A great conflict, lit., “a great struggle,” either the content of the revelation or difficulty in understanding the revelation. 3: No rich food, lit., “no pleasant bread,” perhaps unleavened bread; see v. 4n. No meat or wine recalls 1.8–12. 4: Twenty-fourth day of the first month, Daniel is fasting during Passover. Normally, fasting was suspended on the sabbath and during festivals (Jdt 8.6). Mourning and fasting prepare one for a revelation (2 Esd 5.13; 2 Bar 5.6–7). On the bank, visions often happen by rivers (8.2; Gen 32.25–31; Ezek 1.1). The great river is usually the Euphrates (Gen 15.18; Josh 1.4). 5: Linen is angelic attire (Ezek 9.2,3,11; 10.2,6,11). The angel is Gabriel. Gold from Uphaz, perhaps an error by the scribe for “and fine gold” (Heb u-paz) or a corruption of “gold of Ophir” (Job 28.16; Ps 45.9; Isa 13.12). 6: Like beryl, cf. Ezek 1.16; 10.9. Like lightening . . . flaming torches, the influence of Ezekiel’s vision of the divine is apparent (Ezek 1.13). Burnished bronze, see Ezek 1.7; Rev 1.15. The brightness of his appearance highlights Gabriel’s divine authority. Roar of a multitude, cf. Ezek 1.24; 3.13; 10.5. 7: Alone, cf. Acts 9.7. Fear is a typical response to a divine encounter (Ex 19.15–16; Josh 5.14; Judg 6.22). 8–9: The experience is overwhelming for Daniel who has difficulty regaining his composure, cf. 8.18; Ezek 1.28b–2.2. 9: Trance, see 8.18n.

10.10–11.1: Gabriel strengthens Daniel for the revelation. 10: Touched, see 8.18n. 11: Greatly beloved, also 9.19; but cf. Ezek 2.3 where the prophet is simply addressed as “mortal.” 12: Do not fear, a common angelic assurance (Gen 15.1; 26.24; Judg 6.23). 13: Prince of . . . Persia, Persia’s patron angel (see also 8.20). Each nation has its own designated heavenly beings (Deut 32.8–9) and their heavenly battles mirror earthly battles (Judg 5.20; Rev 12). Michael, lit., “who is like God?” Chief princes, Michael was one of four archangels (1 En. 9) and Israel’s guardian (10.21; 12.1). 14: Cf. Hab 2.2–3. 16: Human form, see 8.15. Touched my lips, preparation for a revelation (Isa 6.7;

to speak, and said to the one who stood before me, “My lord, because of the vision such pains have come upon me that I retain no strength.¹⁷ How can my lord’s servant talk with my lord? For I am shaking,^a no strength remains in me, and no breath is left in me.”

¹⁸ Again one in human form touched me and strengthened me. ¹⁹ He said, “Do not fear, greatly beloved, you are safe. Be strong and courageous!” When he spoke to me, I was strengthened and said, “Let my lord speak, for you have strengthened me.” ²⁰ Then he said, “Do you know why I have come to you? Now I must return to fight against the prince of Persia, and when I am through with him, the prince of Greece will come.” ²¹ But I am to tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth. There is no one with me who contends against these princes except Michael, your 11 prince. ¹ As for me, in the first year of Darius the Mede, I stood up to support and strengthen him.

² “Now I will announce the truth to you. Three more kings shall arise in Persia. The fourth shall be far richer than all of them, and when he has become strong through his riches, he shall stir up all against the kingdom of Greece. ³ Then a warrior king shall arise, who shall rule with great dominion and take action as he pleases. ⁴ And while still rising in power, his kingdom shall be broken and divided toward the four winds of heaven, but not to his posterity, nor according to the dominion with which he ruled; for his kingdom shall be uprooted and go to others besides these.

⁵ “Then the king of the south shall grow strong, but one of his officers shall grow stronger than he and shall rule a realm greater than his own realm. ⁶ After some years they shall make an alliance, and the daughter of the king of the south shall come to the king of the north to ratify the agreement. But she shall not retain her power, and his offspring shall not endure. She shall be given up, she and her attendants and her child and the one who supported her.

“In those times ⁷ a branch from her roots shall rise up in his place. He shall come against the army and enter the fortress of the king of the north, and he shall take action against them and prevail. ⁸ Even their gods, with their idols and with their precious vessels of silver and gold, he shall carry off to Egypt as spoils of war. For some years he shall refrain from attacking the king of the north; ⁹ then the latter shall invade the realm of the king of the south, but will return to his own land.

¹⁰ “His sons shall wage war and assemble a multitude of great forces, which shall advance like a flood and pass through, and again shall carry the war as far as his fortress. ¹¹ Moved with rage, the king of the south shall go out and do battle against the king of the north, who shall muster a great multitude,

^a Gk: Heb from now

Jer 1.9). 16–19: See notes on vv. 8–9, 11. 20: Prince of Greece, another warrior angel. 21: Book of truth, contains a record of future events (1 En. 81.1–4; 93.2); it is distinct from the books of judgment (7.10), the book of life (12.2), and the sealed book (12.4). 11.1: The meaning is unclear; perhaps Gabriel supported Darius the Mede, who acted favorably toward Daniel (see 5.31; 6.23–27).

11.2–12:4: The fourth apocalypse. History is framed in terms of military dominance that alternates between a figurative king of the north (kings of the Seleucid dynasty originating from Syria) and a king of the south (kings of the Ptolemaic dynasty in Egypt). Some details cannot be reconciled with nonbiblical sources.

11.2–4: Persian and Greek succession. Persia, see 7.6n.; 8.3n. 2: There were more than four kings of Persia, but four signals totality. Far richer, Persian monarchs enjoyed the reputation of being fabulously wealthy. 3: Warrior king, Alexander the Great. 4: Broken . . . divided refers to Alexander’s death in 323 BCE and the subsequent division of his territories; see 2.41n.; 7.7–8n. Four winds of heaven, see 7.2n.

11.5–19: The Seleucids and the Ptolemies. 5: The king of the south, Ptolemy I (305–283 BCE) of Egypt; his officer is Seleucus I Nicanor (312–281 BCE) who ruled Syria. 6: In 250, Ptolemy II Philadelphus (285–246 BCE) gave his daughter, Berenice, in marriage to the king of the north, Antiochus II Theos (261–246 BCE). Rivals murdered Berenice and her son. 7: A branch, Ptolemy III Evergetes (246–221 BCE), Berenice’s brother, who invaded Seleucid territory. 9: Seleucus II Callinicus (246–225 BCE) invaded Ptolemy’s territory in reprisal. 10: Seleucus II’s sons were Seleucus III Ceraunus (225–223 BCE) and the militarily successful Antiochus III the Great (223–187 BCE). 11: Ptolemy IV Philopator (221–204 which shall, however, be defeated by his enemy.¹² When the multitude has been carried off, his heart shall be exalted, and he shall overthrow tens of thousands, but he shall not prevail.¹³ For the king of the north shall again raise a multitude, larger than the former, and after some years^a he shall advance with a great army and abundant supplies.

¹⁴ “In those times many shall rise against the king of the south. The lawless among your own people shall lift themselves up in order to fulfill the vision, but they shall fail.¹⁵ Then the king of the north shall come and throw up siegeworks, and take a well-fortified city. And the forces of the south shall not stand, not even his picked troops, for there shall be no strength to resist.¹⁶ But he who comes against him shall take the actions he pleases, and no one shall withstand him. He shall take a position in the beautiful land, and all of it shall be in his power.¹⁷ He shall set his mind to come with the strength of his whole kingdom, and he shall bring terms of peace^b and perform them. In order to destroy the kingdom,^c he shall give him a woman in marriage; but it shall not succeed or be to his advantage.¹⁸ Afterward he shall turn to the coastlands, and shall capture many. But a commander shall put an end to his insolence; indeed,^d he shall turn his insolence back upon him.¹⁹ Then he shall turn back toward the fortresses of his own land, but he shall stumble and fall, and shall not be found.

²⁰ “Then shall arise in his place one who shall send an official for the glory of the kingdom; but within a few days he shall be broken, though not in anger or in battle.²¹ In his place shall arise a contemptible person on whom royal majesty had not been conferred; he shall come in without warning and obtain the kingdom through intrigue.²² Armies shall be utterly swept away and broken before him, and the prince of the covenant as well.²³ And after an alliance is made with him, he shall act deceitfully and become strong with a small party.²⁴ Without warning he shall come into the richest parts^e of the province and do what none of his predecessors had ever done, lavishing plunder, spoil, and wealth on them. He shall devise plans against strongholds, but only for a time.²⁵ He shall stir up his power and determination against the king of the south with a great army, and the king of the south shall wage war with a much greater and stronger army. But he shall not succeed, for plots shall be devised against him²⁶ by those who eat of the royal rations. They shall break him, his army shall be swept away, and many shall fall slain.²⁷ The two kings, their minds bent on evil, shall sit at one table and exchange lies. But it shall not succeed, for there remains an end at the time appointed.²⁸ He shall return to his land with great wealth, but his heart shall be set against the holy

^a Heb and at the end of the times years

^b Gk: Heb kingdom, and upright ones with him

^c Heb it

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Or among the richest men

BCE) defeated Antiochus III at Raphia in 217. 13: Antiochus III had military successes in Syria and Palestine (212–205 BCE). 14: Many shall rise, rebellions within Egypt against the Ptolemies. The lawless among your own people, the pro-Antiochus faction in Judea. 15: After claiming Jerusalem in the battle of Panion in 200, Antiochus III claimed victory at Sidon, the well-fortified city. 16: The actions he pleases, cf. 11.3,36. Antiochus III is at the height of his power. The beautiful land, Jerusalem (cf. 8.9; 11.41). 17: Antiochus III offered his daughter Cleopatra in marriage to Ptolemy V Epiphanes (204–180 BCE). Cleopatra undermined her father’s intention, which had been to ruin her husband. 18: The coastlands, territories in Greece and Thrace, which Antiochus III tried to claim. He was defeated by the Romans at Magnesia in 189. A commander, Scipio. 19: Fall, Antiochus III died in 187 after raiding a temple in Elemais. 20: Then shall arise, Seleucus IV Philopator (187–175 BCE) who sent the official Heliodorus to the Jerusalem Temple for funds (2 Macc 3).

11.21–28: Antiochus IV Epiphanes. 21: Contemptible person, Antiochus IV (175–164 BCE) usurped the throne from his nephew and had him assassinated. 22: The prince of the covenant, the High Priest Onias III; see 9.26n. 23: Antiochus IV made an alliance with the king of Pergamon. 24: Antiochus IV was lavish to an unprecedented degree with gifts. He then taxed Persia to refill his coffers. 25–26: Antiochus IV is blamed for initiating war with Egypt (see also 1 Macc 1.16). Those . . . rations, Ptolemy’s advisors, Eulaeus and Lenaeus, whose advice was catastrophic. 27: The two kings, Antiochus IV and Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145 BCE). 28: Against the holy covenant, Antiochus’s attack on Jerusalem and the Temple in 169 (1 Macc 1.20–21; 2 Macc 5.11–21; see also 9.26n.).

covenant. He shall work his will, and return to his own land.

²⁹“At the time appointed he shall return and come into the south, but this time it shall not be as it was before. ³⁰For ships of Kittim shall come against him, and he shall lose heart and withdraw. He shall be enraged and take action against the holy covenant. He shall turn back and pay heed to those who forsake the holy covenant. ³¹Forces sent by him shall occupy and profane the temple and fortress. They shall abolish the regular burnt offering and set up the abomination that makes desolate. ³²He shall seduce with intrigue those who violate the covenant; but the people who are loyal to their God shall stand firm and take action. ³³The wise among the people shall give understanding to many; for some days, however, they shall fall by sword and flame, and suffer captivity and plunder. ³⁴When they fall victim, they shall receive a little help, and many shall join them insincerely. ³⁵Some of the wise shall fall, so that they may be refined, purified, and cleansed,^a until the time of the end, for there is still an interval until the time appointed.

³⁶“The king shall act as he pleases. He shall exalt himself and consider himself greater than any god, and shall speak horrendous things against the God of gods. He shall prosper until the period of wrath is completed, for what is determined shall be done. ³⁷He shall pay no respect to the gods of his ancestors, or to the one beloved by women; he shall pay no respect to any other god, for he shall consider himself greater than all.

³⁸He shall honor the god of fortresses instead of these; a god whom his ancestors did not know he shall honor with gold and silver, with precious stones and costly gifts. ³⁹He shall deal with the strongest fortresses by the help of a foreign god. Those who acknowledge him he shall make more wealthy, and shall appoint them as rulers over many, and shall distribute the land for a price.

⁴⁰“At the time of the end the king of the south shall attack him. But the king of the north shall rush upon him like a whirlwind, with chariots and horsemen, and with many ships. He shall advance against countries and pass through like a flood. ⁴¹He shall come into the beautiful land, and tens of thousands shall fall victim, but Edom and Moab and the main part of the Ammonites shall escape from his power. ⁴²He shall stretch out his hand against the countries, and the land of Egypt shall not escape. ⁴³He shall become ruler of the treasures of gold and of silver, and all the riches of Egypt; and the Libyans and the Ethiopians^b shall follow in his train. ⁴⁴But reports from the east and the north shall alarm him, and he shall go out with great fury to bring ruin and complete destruction to many. ⁴⁵He shall pitch his palatial tents between the sea and the beautiful holy mountain. Yet he shall come to his end, with no one to help him.

^a Heb made them white

^b Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

11.29–39: Antiochus’s attacks on the Jews. 29: At the appointed time introduces the climactic events of history. 30: Kittim, refers generally to places in the eastern Mediterranean (Gen 10.4; 1 Macc 1.1). Here it is Rome, which stopped Antiochus when he invaded Egypt in 168. 30–31: Against the holy covenant, Antiochus sent troops to Jerusalem in 167 (1 Macc 1.29–32; 2 Macc 5.24–26). The abomination, an altar erected to Zeus Olympios in the Temple (8.10–12n.; 1 Macc 1.54; see also Mk 13.14). 32: Violate the covenant, the High Priest Menelaus and others who supported extreme Hellenization in Jerusalem. Loyal, factions who opposed the Hellenizing party. 33–35: The wise (Heb “maskilim”) who instruct others about God’s hidden plans (cf. Isa 53.11–12). 34: A little help, the wise lack strong support. 35: Fall, some will be martyred (cf. 1 Macc 1.63; 2 Macc 7). Refined, death will purify the wise (Ps 17.3; Jer 6.29; 9.7; Wis 3.1–8; Sir 2.5). 36–39: Antiochus IV blasphemes the God of Israel and other gods. 37: Beloved by women, perhaps Tammuz/Adonis (Ezek 8.14), or the Greek god Dionysus. 38: God of fortresses, Zeus Olympios (2 Macc 6.2). 39: Fortresses, the Hebrew text of this verse is garbled and the meaning is unclear but it seems to refer to the Acra in Jerusalem, which was occupied by foreign troops.

11.40–45: The end-time. These verses anticipate a future eschatological battle using elements from Ezek 38.8–13; Zech 14.2; Pss 2; 48. 41: Edom . . . Moab . . . Ammonites, ancient enemies of Israel (see 2 Sam 11–12; 2 Kings 3; Lam 4.21–22). 45: Come to his end, Antiochus IV died in Persia in 164 BCE.

12 “At that time Michael, the great prince, the protector of your people, shall arise. There shall be a time of anguish, such as has never occurred since nations first came into existence. But at that time your people shall be delivered, everyone who is found written in the book. ² Many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth^a shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. ³ Those who are wise shall shine like the brightness of the sky,^b and those who lead many to righteousness, like the stars forever and ever. ⁴ But you, Daniel, keep the words secret and the book sealed until the time of the end. Many shall be running back and forth, and evil^c shall increase.”

⁵ Then I, Daniel, looked, and two others appeared, one standing on this bank of the stream and one on the other. ⁶ One of them said to the man clothed in linen, who was upstream, “How long shall it be until the end of these wonders?” ⁷ The man clothed in linen, who was upstream, raised his right hand and his left hand toward heaven. And I heard him swear by the one who lives forever that it would be for a time, two times, and half a time,^d and that when the shattering of the power of the holy people comes to an end, all these things would be accomplished. ⁸ I heard but could not understand; so I said, “My lord, what shall be the outcome of these things?” ⁹ He said, “Go your way, Daniel, for the words are to remain secret and sealed until the time of the end. ¹⁰ Many shall be purified, cleansed, and refined, but the wicked shall continue to act wickedly. None of the wicked shall understand, but those who are wise shall understand. ¹¹ From the time that the regular burnt offering is taken away and the abomination that desolates is set up, there shall be one thousand two hundred ninety days. ¹² Happy are those who persevere and attain the thousand three hundred thirty-five days. ¹³ But you, go your way,^e and rest; you shall rise for your reward at the end of the days.”

^a Or the land of dust

^b Or dome

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb knowledge

^d Heb a time, times, and a half

^e Gk Theodotion: Heb adds to the end

12.1–4: Deliverance. 1: Michael, see 10.12n. The book is the book of life (Ps. 69.28; Isa 4.3; Mal 3.16–18; Rev 20.12,15). 2–3: Not all the dead will be resurrected, but only the righteous and the unrighteous who have not yet received appropriate rewards and punishments (see also Isa 26.19; 66.24; 2 Macc 7.9; 12.44; Wis 3.7). 4: The book probably refers to all of Daniel’s visions. They contain secret knowledge that may not be disclosed until the time of fulfillment (8.26–27n.; Isa 8.16; Rev 5.1–5).

12.5–13: Epilogue. 5–6: Two others . . . man clothed in linen, apparently angelic figures; cf. 8.13–16n.; 10.5n. 7: Time, two times, and half a time, see 7.25n. 11–12: Two new calculations for the arrival of the end-time, probably added when the calculation of 8.14 did not materialize. The numbers may have symbolic significance, probably relating to the time, two times, and half a time pattern. 13: Rest, a reference to death and also reward (Isa 57.1–2).

HOSEA

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The book of Hosea consists of a narrative about the prophet and sayings attributed to him. Hosea began his career in the final days of Jeroboam II (1.1), whose long reign (788–747 BCE) capped a century of political stability and economic prosperity in the Northern Kingdom of Israel under the dynasty founded by Jehu in 842. Jeroboam died in 747, two years before Tiglath-pileser III came to power in Assyria (745) and initiated a program of imperial expansion. A prolonged national crisis ensued, which ended with the demise of the Northern Kingdom. Israel floundered under the Assyrian onslaught. Of the six kings who reigned in the next two decades, four were assassinated as the nation veered between appeasement, at the cost of heavy tribute, and rebellion, seeking futile alliances with Syria and Egypt (see 2 Kings 14.23–17.41). When Hosea’s prophetic career ended is uncertain, though his oracles appear to allude to events right up to the Assyrian siege of Samaria in 722 (13.10–11,16).

After the destruction of Samaria, Hosea’s words were preserved and transmitted in the Southern Kingdom of Judah. Some or all of the references to Judah may have been added in this era as Hosea’s words were reinterpreted to address an analogous situation there (e.g., 1.7; 3.5; 11.12). It is also possible, however, that Hosea himself, though a northern prophet, addressed Judah as well.

As a prophet of the Northern Kingdom, Hosea presents a unique perspective among the prophets as an Israelite native, not a Judahite like his near contemporary Amos, who viewed the events from the south. The text gives little information about the prophet himself. Indeed, the only personal detail is the name of his father, Beeri (1.1). Chapters 1–3 narrate Hosea’s marriage to the promiscuous Gomer and the birth of their three children, Jezreel, Lo-ruhamah, and Lo-ammi, but it is debatable whether one can deduce actual biographical facts from this description of family life.

CANONICAL STATUS AND LOCATION IN CANON

The book of Hosea stands first in that part of the latter prophets called the Book of the Twelve, also known as the Minor Prophets because of their relative brevity in comparison with Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel. Along with Amos, Hosea was the first of the “writing prophets,” those prophets whose speeches were collected and edited as literary documents.

CONTENTS AND STRUCTURE

The book consists primarily of speeches critiquing the political, social, and, above all, religious life of the Northern Kingdom of Israel in the final days before its conquest and destruction by the Assyrians in 722 BCE. Hosea often refers to the Northern Kingdom under the titles of “Ephraim,” its largest tribe, and “Samaria,” its capital (see 4.17n.). Over the course of three decades (ca. 750–720 BCE), Hosea interpreted the unfolding disaster as a divine punishment—the Assyrians were merely God’s tool—for violation of the exclusive demands of the LORD. With frequent allusions to earlier Israelite traditions, Hosea portrayed Israel’s entire history as a spiritual decline from an ideal time, its “youth” in the period of the Exodus from Egypt (2.15; 11.1).

During this national crisis, Hosea issued an unrelenting critique of existing political and religious institutions. Through dynastic kingship, political alliances with other nations, and, above all, illicit religious practices, Israel had violated the divine claim upon it for exclusive dependence upon and worship of the LORD. As divine punishment, Israel would be stripped of political and religious institutions too corrupt to be reformed and its land left desolate and barren. Israel would, in essence, find itself again in the wilderness. The severity of the prophetic critique is juxtaposed with language of divine longing and compassion (11.1–11; 13.4–7). In the short term, Hosea presented the annihilation of the Northern Kingdom as inevitable. Drawing, however, on a pattern discerned in Israel’s sacred traditions, Hosea ultimately offered hope. In this new wilderness, as in the Sinai desert, Israel would recognize its dependence on the LORD and be restored to a harmonious state with God and with nature (2.14–23).

Hosea is best known for his metaphors, drawn from the natural world, agriculture, and kinship structures: Israel as the LORD’s wife, Israel as the LORD’s son. These familial metaphors are introduced in two narrative sections about the prophet's own life at the beginning of the book (1.2–2.1; 3.1–5). The prophet's personal life is presented as a paradigm of the relationship between the LORD and Israel.

Insofar as these chapters construct a biographical story for prophetic purposes, it can be said that Hosea deals with Gomer as the LORD deals with Israel. Gomer is “a wife of whoredom” (1.2), best understood as “a promiscuous woman.” She bore three children, of whom Hosea was perhaps not the father (2.4–5). After a period of marital separation, Hosea took her back (3.1–5). In a similar way, Israel, the LORD's unfaithful wife, will be separated from her husband and home but, just as Hosea bought back Gomer (3.2), the LORD will restore Israel. Hosea's image of Israel's sexual misconduct may be more than symbolic; its illicit rituals are described as having a sexual dimension (e.g., 4.13–19; 9.1).

The book has two major sections, which appear to be roughly chronological. Chapters 1–3 contain the material about Hosea's marriage and can be understood against the background of the last days of Jeroboam II, since 1.4 announces the demise of the Jehu dynasty of which Jeroboam was the final ruler. The second major section, chs 4–14, consists entirely of prophetic speeches that seem to allude to the chaotic days following the demise of the house of Jehu and the prolonged Assyrian crisis. Boundaries between individual speech units in this second section are hard to discern. It seems to fall into two parts (chs 4–11; 12–14), rhetorically couched as legal indictments of Israel for breach of covenant (4.1; 12.2), and ending with images of restoration (11.1–11; 14.1–7).

Gregory Mobley

1 The word of the LORD that came to Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Kings Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah of Judah, and in the days of King Jeroboam son of Joash of Israel.

² When the LORD first spoke through Hosea, the LORD said to Hosea, “Go, take for yourself a wife of whoredom and have children of whoredom, for the land commits great whoredom by forsaking the LORD.” ³ So he went and took Gomer daughter of Diblaim, and she conceived and bore him a son.

⁴ And the LORD said to him, “Name him Jezreel;^a for in a little while I will punish the house of Jehu for the blood of Jezreel, and I will put an end to the kingdom of the house of Israel. ⁵ On that day I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.”

⁶ She conceived again and bore a daughter. Then the LORD said to him, “Name her Lo-ruhamah,^b for I will no longer have pity on

^a That is God sows

^b That is Not pitied

1.1: Superscription. Word of the LORD, the customary term for prophetic verbal revelation (Jer 18.18). For similar introductions to prophetic books, see Joel 1.1, Mic 1.1, Zeph 1.1, and Mal 1.1. Hosea (= Hoshea) is also the name for other persons in the Hebrew Bible (e.g., Num 13.8; 2 Kings 15.3; 1 Chr 27.20; Neh 10.23) and means “salvation” or “deliverance.” Days of Kings Uzziah . . . , these kings of Judah reigned in Jerusalem in the last half of the eighth century BCE (see 2 Kings 14.23–20.21). Uzziah was a contemporary of Jeroboam II, who ruled 788–747 BCE in Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, and Ahaz was king in Judah when Samaria fell. Presumably Hosea prophesied late in Jeroboam's reign and after his death.

1.2–3.5: Hosea's family life as a symbolic vehicle for divine communication. The prophetic acts of Hosea, detailed in two sections (1.2–2.1; 3.1–5), exemplify God's relationship with Israel in allegorical fashion. Between the narrative sections, a prophetic speech (2.2–23) indicts Israel for unfaithfulness and offers hope for restoration after a period of punishment.

1.2–2.1: Hosea's marriage to Gomer, and the birth, naming, and renaming of their children as prophetic signs. The marital states of Jeremiah (Jer 16.1–2) and Ezekiel (Ezek 24) also took on prophetic significance; Isaiah similarly gave his children symbolic names (Isa 7.3,10,14; 8.1,3). 1.2: Wife of whoredom, a promiscuous woman. Children of whoredom, children born of promiscuity. 4–8: Birth of three children, each with symbolic names. 4: Jezreel (“God sows”), the site where Jehu's bloody coup d'état began (2 Kings 9–10) and where Ahab conspired to murder Naboth and seize his vineyard (1 Kings 21). House of Jehu, the Israelite dynasty founded by Jehu in 842 BCE extended for a century, ending with Jeroboam II. 6: Lo-ruhamah, “Not loved, not pitied”; cf. Ezek 16.4–5.

the house of Israel or forgive them. ⁷But I will have pity on the house of Judah, and I will save them by the LORD their God; I will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by war, or by horses, or by horsemen.”

⁸When she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived and bore a son. ⁹Then the LORD said, “Name him Lo-ammi,^a for you are not my people and I am not your God.”^b

^{10c} Yet the number of the people of Israel shall be like the sand of the sea, which can be neither measured nor numbered; and in the place where it was said to them, “You are not my people,” it shall be said to them, “Children of the living God.” ¹¹The people of Judah and the people of Israel shall be gathered together, and they shall appoint for themselves one head; and they shall take possession of^d the land, for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

2 ^e Say to your brother,^f Ammi,^g and to your sister,^h Ruhamah.ⁱ

² Plead with your mother, plead—for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband—
that she put away her whoring from her
face,
and her adultery from between her breasts,

³ or I will strip her naked and expose her as in the day she was born, and make her like a wilderness,
and turn her into a parched land,
and kill her with thirst.

⁴ Upon her children also I will have no pity, because they are children of whoredom.

⁵ For their mother has played the whore;
she who conceived them has acted shamefully.

For she said, “I will go after my lovers;
they give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, my oil and my
drink.”

⁶ Therefore I will hedge up her^j way with thorns;
and I will build a wall against her,
so that she cannot find her paths.

⁷ She shall pursue her lovers, but not overtake them;
and she shall seek them,
but shall not find them.

Then she shall say, “I will go and return to my first husband, for it was better with me than than now.”

⁸ She did not know that it was I who gave her

^a That is Not my people

^b Heb I am not yours

^c Ch 2.1 in Heb

^d Heb rise up from

^e Ch 2.3 in Heb

^f Gk: Heb brothers

^g That is My people

^h Gk Vg: Heb sisters

ⁱ That is Pitied

^j Gk Syr: Heb your

7: This amendment to the doom promised in v. 6 was likely added by a later Judean editor. 8: Weaned the child, probably at age three (1 Sam 1.22; 2 Chr 31.16). 9: Lo-ammi, “Not my people.” You are not my people, God rejects the language of his covenant with Israel; see Ex 6.7; Deut 29.13. I am not your God can also be read, “I am not I Am for you,” as if God now withdraws the intimacy extended to Moses through revelation of the divine name (Ex 3.14). 1.10–2.1: Jezreel’s exaltation (1.11) and the renaming of Lo-ruhamah (2.1, Ruhamah, “Loved”) and Lo-ammi (2.1, Ammi, “My people”) signal restoration. 1.10: For the sand of the sea, see the divine promise to Abraham (Gen 22.17) and Jacob (Gen 32.12); cf. Gen 15.5; 16.10; 1 Kings 3.8. Children of the living God, in contrast to “children of whoredom” (1.2). 11: The prophet anticipates unification of the kingdoms of Israel and Judah, which had been separated since the tenth century BCE. The day of Jezreel will be one of triumph and glory; contrast 1.4–5.

2.2–23: A prophetic speech based on the preceding sign-acts. Israel wrongly attributed its agricultural fertility to Baal, a Canaanite god. For this infidelity, the LORD first initiates divorce against Israel, the promiscuous wife, then promises a re-betrothal. The metaphor of adulterous marriage and violent punishment should be interpreted with caution. It is a literary device to be viewed within its historical context, where a culture of honor and shame was used to control women’s sexuality. 2: Plead with, take legal action against. 3: Ezek 16.35–43 elaborates on these punishments. The covenant was first forged in the wilderness (Ex 19.1), though here wilderness is a symbol for barrenness and Israel’s infidelity; see also v. 14n. 4: No pity, a pun on Lo-ruhamah; see 1.6n. 5: My lovers, other gods. Wool and . . . flax, pastoral and agricultural products, respectively, used for clothing. 6: Sexual access will be prevented (see Song 8.9). 8: The LORD, not Baal, is Israel’s benefactor.

the grain, the wine, and the oil, and who lavished upon her silver and gold that they used for Baal.

⁹Therefore I will take back my grain in its time,
and my wine in its season;
and I will take away my wool and my flax,
which were to cover her nakedness.

¹⁰Now I will uncover her shame in the sight of her lovers, and no one shall rescue her out of my
hand.

¹¹I will put an end to all her mirth, her festivals, her new moons, her sabbaths,
and all her appointed festivals.

¹²I will lay waste her vines and her fig
trees,
of which she said,

“These are my pay,
which my lovers have given me.”

I will make them a forest, and the wild animals shall devour them.

¹³I will punish her for the festival days of the Baals,
when she offered incense to them and decked herself with her ring and jewelry,
and went after her lovers,
and forgot me, says the LORD.

¹⁴Therefore, I will now allure her,
and bring her into the wilderness,
and speak tenderly to her.

¹⁵From there I will give her her vineyards, and make the Valley of Achor a door of hope.

There she shall respond as in the days of her youth,
as at the time when she came out of the land of Egypt.

¹⁶On that day, says the LORD, you will call me,
“My husband,” and no longer will you call me, “My Baal.”^a ¹⁷For I will remove the names of the Baals from her mouth, and they shall be mentioned by name no more. ¹⁸I will make for you^b a covenant on that day with the wild animals, the birds of the air, and the creeping things of the ground; and I will abolish^c the bow, the sword, and war from the land; and I will make you lie down in safety. ¹⁹And I will take you for my wife forever; I will take you for my wife in righteousness and in justice, in steadfast love, and in mercy. ²⁰I will take you for my wife in faithfulness; and you shall know the LORD.

²¹On that day I will answer, says the LORD,
I will answer the heavens
and they shall answer the earth;

²²and the earth shall answer the grain, the wine, and the oil,
and they shall answer Jezreel;^d

^a That is, “My master”

^b Heb them

^c Heb break

^d That is God sows

11: Festivals . . . new moons . . . sabbaths, the seasonal agricultural festivals (Ex 34.21–24) and the customary occasions for worship (Num 29.6; Ex 20.8) were now diluted by elements of the worship of Baal. 13: Baals, manifestations of the god Baal at various shrines. Offered incense, incense itself was a lawful Israelite element of worship (Ex 30.7–8) but here, unlawfully, it is offered to other gods (cf. 1 Kings 22.44; Isa 65.3). Decked herself, cf. Isa 3.16–22. 14: Allure her, courtship language. The wilderness signifies Israel’s early years after the Exodus, remembered here, in terms of the marital metaphor, as a honeymoon (Jer 2.2). The wilderness can also be a place of judgment (Ezek 20.33–38). In both cases, the wilderness is a place for transformation. Speak tenderly, see Isa 40.2. 15: Achor, a site just east of the Dead Sea where Israel got into “trouble” (the meaning of “Achor”) soon after leaving the wilderness (Josh 7.22–26). 16: My Baal, in secular usage, “ba’al” could also mean “husband.” In this wordplay, Israel is to address the LORD as “husband” (Heb “ish”), not as “husband” (Heb “ba’al”; see also note a). 17: Baals, see 2.13n. 18: Animals, birds . . . , creeping things, the phrases recall Gen 1.27–31 and suggest a return to a state of blessing. See also Lev 26.6. 20: You shall know, “knowledge” implies covenant faithfulness and, in terms of the marital metaphor employed, sexual intimacy. 21–23: A conclusion to chs 1–2: The renaming of the children (see 1.4, 6, 9n.; 2.1n.) follows the re-betrothal of the LORD and Israel. Human faithfulness (or its lack) to the LORD has implications for the natural world. Jezreel, meaning “God sows,” another symbol of restoration; see 1.4n.; 1.11n. Through a wordplay, the prophet indicates that the people will grow like plants upon their return to the land, that is,

²³ and I will sow him^a for myself in the land.

And I will have pity on Lo-ruhamah,^b and I will say to Lo-ammi,^c “You are my people”;
and he shall say, “You are my God.”

3 The LORD said to me again, “Go, love a woman who has a lover and is an adulteress, just as the LORD loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods and love raisin cakes.”² So I bought her for fifteen shekels of silver and a homer of barley and a measure of wine.^d ³ And I said to her, “You must remain as mine for many days; you shall not play the whore, you shall not have intercourse with a man, nor I with you.”⁴ For the Israelites shall remain many days without king or prince, without sacrifice or pillar, without ephod or teraphim.⁵ Afterward the Israelites shall return and seek the LORD their God, and David their king; they shall come in awe to the LORD and to his goodness in the latter days.

4 Hear the word of the LORD, O people of Israel;

for the LORD has an indictment against the inhabitants of the land.

There is no faithfulness or loyalty,
and no knowledge of God in the land.

² Swearing, lying, and murder, and stealing and adultery break out;
bloodshed follows bloodshed.

³ Therefore the land mourns, and all who live in it languish;
together with the wild animals
and the birds of the air,
even the fish of the sea are perishing.

⁴ Yet let no one contend,
and let none accuse,
for with you is my contention,
O priest.^e

⁵ You shall stumble by day;

^a Cn: Heb her

^b That is Not pitied

^c That is Not my people

^d Gk: Heb a homer of barley and a lethech of barley

^e Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

they shall answer “God sows,” and I will sow him for myself in the land. 23: Cf. Ex 6.7; Lev 26.12.

3.1–5: The restoration of Hosea’s marriage. In a like manner, the LORD’s relationship to Israel will be restored. This section is in the first person while 1.2–2.1 was in the third. Gomer is not mentioned here by name, so it is possible that the wife here is a different woman. 1: Raisin cakes were associated with illicit worship (Isa 16.7; Jer 7.18; 44.19). 2: Shekel, ca. .4 oz (11.5 g); homer, about 6.5 bu (230 L). From whom Hosea bought her is not indicated. 3–4: A transitional period is announced during which, on one level, the marital partners forgo relations, and on another, the covenant partners lack their customary mediators (king, prince) and religious mediations. Pillar, see 10.2n.; Gen 31.45. Ephod, Ex 28.6–14; 39.2–7; Judg 8.24–28; 1 Sam 2.18. Teraphim, Gen 31.19; probably ancestor statues. 5: David their king, the only reference in Hosea to a specifically Judahite institution such as the Davidic dynasty, Jerusalem, or Zion; probably a later addition.

4.1–14.9: The prophetic speeches of Hosea indict Israel for unfaithfulness and announce the divine judgment, while offering hope of eventual restoration. The boundaries between individual speech units in the remainder of the book are unclear. This may in part reflect the style of the prophet and may in part be due to later editorial rearrangement.

4.1–12.1: The LORD has an indictment against Israel. 4.1–3: General indictment against the people. 1: Hear the word of the LORD, an introduction in the prophetic style, which serves both the immediately following speech and the remainder of the book. Israel, the primary referent here is the Northern Kingdom (also known as Ephraim) but, like all of Hosea’s prophecies, after 722 BCE the prophecy is transmitted in Judah; so the address is also to Israel in its broader sense as the people with whom God had made a covenant. Indictment is a legal term: On God’s behalf, the prophet files suit against the people for breach of covenant. Faithfulness, loyalty (steadfast love), and knowledge of God are major theological terms in Hosea (2.19–20; 4.6; 5.4.7; 6.3,6; 10.12; 11.3–4,12b; 12.6). 2: Swearing . . ., five of the Ten Commandments referred to (Ex 20.7,13–16; Deut 5.11,17–20). 3: See 2.21–23n.

4.4–19: An indictment of corrupt religious practices. 4–8: The corruption issues from the priests, perhaps such as Amaziah, priest of Bethel, who opposed Hosea’s contemporary Amos (Amos 7.10–17). 4: Legally, there are no grounds for a counterclaim against God. Contend, contention, the same legal terminology translated in 4.1 as “indictment.” 5–6: The phrases destroy your mother and forget your children build on the foundation of the prophet also shall stumble with you by night,

and I will destroy your mother.

⁶ My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge;
because you have rejected knowledge,
I reject you from being a priest to me.
And since you have forgotten the law of
your God,
I also will forget your children.

⁷ The more they increased,
the more they sinned against me;
they changed^a their glory into shame.

⁸ They feed on the sin of my people;
they are greedy for their iniquity.

⁹ And it shall be like people, like priest;
I will punish them for their ways,
and repay them for their deeds.

¹⁰ They shall eat, but not be satisfied;
they shall play the whore, but not multiply;
because they have forsaken the LORD to devote themselves to ¹¹ whoredom.

Wine and new wine
take away the understanding.

¹² My people consult a piece of wood, and their divining rod gives them oracles.

For a spirit of whoredom has led them
astray,
and they have played the whore,
forsaking their God.

¹³ They sacrifice on the tops of the
mountains,

and make offerings upon the hills,
under oak, poplar, and terebinth,
because their shade is good.

Therefore your daughters play the whore, and your daughters-in-law commit adultery.

¹⁴ I will not punish your daughters when they play the whore, nor your daughters-in-law when they commit adultery;
for the men themselves go aside with whores,
and sacrifice with temple prostitutes;
thus a people without understanding comes to ruin.

¹⁵ Though you play the whore, O Israel,
do not let Judah become guilty.
Do not enter into Gilgal,
or go up to Beth-aven,
and do not swear, “As the LORD lives.”

¹⁶ Like a stubborn heifer, Israel is stubborn;
can the LORD now feed them
like a lamb in a broad pasture?

¹⁷ Ephraim is joined to idols—let him alone.

¹⁸ When their drinking is ended, they indulge in sexual orgies;
they love lewdness more than their glory.^b

^a Ancient Heb tradition: MT I will change

^b Cn Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

1.2–3.5. Forgotten the law (Heb “torah”) of your God, the teachings of Moses; cf. 4.2. Priests were responsible for teaching the people; cf. Deut 33:10. 7: The more . . . the more, for a similar formulation, see 11.2. 8: They feed, the priests depend on the sacrificial system for food. Since more sins require more sacrifices, Hosea accuses the priests of a debased relationship in their role in the process of atonement. 9–14: The corruption, detailed here in terms of drunkenness, sexual activity, and divination, spreads from priests to the rest of society. 10: Human fertility, also part of the divine blessing (Gen 1.28), is affected by human unfaithfulness. The saying has the form of a futility curse in which actions do not produce their expected results; cf. Deut 28.38–42. 11–12: Whoredom, that is, improper worship and veneration of fertility deities. 12: Piece of wood, divining rod, the exact referents are unknown. Trees or wooden symbols were associated with the worship of Asherah, a Canaanite goddess. 13: A reference to high-place sanctuaries and their sacred groves (Deut 12.2). Their shade, note the contrast between this shade and that of 14.7. 14: Temple prostitutes, lit., “sacred women,” i.e., female ritual officials, a feature of Canaanite but not orthodox Israelite practice. Without understanding, see 2.20n. 15–19: An admonishment to Judah: Do not let the contamination spread to you. 15: Gilgal, Beth-aven (i.e., Bethel; Am 5.5), the northern shrines closest to Judah. Beth-aven (lit., “house of worthlessness”) is a pejorative name for Bethel (“house of God”). 16: Stubborn heifer, see 10.11. 17: Ephraim was the name for the region surrounding Samaria. Though often

¹⁹ A wind has wrapped them^a in its wings, and they shall be ashamed because of their altars.^b

5 Hear this, O priests!
Give heed, O house of Israel!
Listen, O house of the king!
For the judgment pertains to you;
for you have been a snare at Mizpah,
and a net spread upon Tabor, ²and a pit dug deep in Shittim;^c
but I will punish all of them.

³I know Ephraim,
and Israel is not hidden from me;
for now, O Ephraim, you have played the whore;
Israel is defiled.

⁴Their deeds do not permit them to return to their God.
For the spirit of whoredom is within
them,
and they do not know the LORD.

⁵Israel's pride testifies against him;
Ephraim^d stumbles in his guilt;
Judah also stumbles with them.

⁶With their flocks and herds they shall go to seek the LORD,
but they will not find him;
he has withdrawn from them.

⁷They have dealt faithlessly with the LORD;

for they have borne illegitimate
children.
Now the new moon shall devour them along with their fields.

⁸Blow the horn in Gibeah,
the trumpet in Ramah.
Sound the alarm at Beth-aven;
look behind you, Benjamin!
⁹Ephraim shall become a desolation
in the day of punishment;
among the tribes of Israel
I declare what is sure.

¹⁰The princes of Judah have become like those who remove the landmark;
on them I will pour out my wrath like water.

¹¹Ephraim is oppressed, crushed in
judgment,
because he was determined to go after vanity.^e

¹²Therefore I am like maggots to Ephraim, and like rotteness to the house of Judah.

^a Heb her

^b Gk Syr: Heb sacrifices

^c Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Heb Israel and Ephraim

^e Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

used as a general term for the Northern Kingdom, its use here and Hosea's preference for it over Israel in the rest of the book could reflect a changed political situation. Israel gradually lost its territory in Transjordan, Galilee, and Jezreel in this period; in the end Ephraim was all that remained.

5.1–6.6: The people do not know the LORD. 5.1: The judgment, in a legal sense. Mizpah, a fortress city on the border between Judah and Israel (1 Kings 15.22), probably housed a sanctuary, like many border towns. Tabor, a mountain in northern Israel, overlooking the Jezreel Valley (Ps 89.12); probably the site of a sanctuary (Deut 33.18–19). 2: Shittim, a border town in Transjordan; the final encampment of the Israelites before they crossed the Jordan; also site of an infamy (9.10; Num 25.1–9). 3–4: Note the wordplay with “knowledge”: The LORD knows (is aware of) Ephraim (‘s deeds) but they do not know (demonstrate loyalty toward) the LORD. See 2.20n. Spirit of whoredom, see 4.11–12n. 5–7: Because of their disloyalty, the LORD will not be available to the people at festivals. 5: Israel's pride, also in 7.10. 6: They shall go, in pilgrimage festivals. As in 6.6; Amos 5.21–24, and Mic 6.6–8, liturgies and rites untethered from ethical behavior are ignored by God. 7: New moon shall devour, meaning obscure. 8–14: In the day of punishment the LORD will become the enemy of Israel (Am 9.2–4). This section may refer to the Syro-Ephraimite War (2 Kings 15.27–30) in 735 BCE, when Israel under Pekah formed a coalition with Syria to force Judah to join a rebellion against Assyria. 8: Blow the horn, the alarm signal used by sentinels. Gibeah, Ramah, Benjaminite towns just north of Jerusalem, situated on the path an invading army would take approaching from the south (Isa 10.28–32); Beth-aven, see 4.15n. This may refer to a Judahite counterattack after the Syro-Ephraimite initiative failed. 10–14: There is no defense against God. 10: Remove the landmark, a landmark is a boundary marker, defining the extent of property; the removal of such amounted to land theft; see Deut 19.14;

¹³ When Ephraim saw his sickness, and Judah his wound,
then Ephraim went to Assyria, and sent to the great king.^a But he is not able to cure you or heal your wound.
¹⁴ For I will be like a lion to Ephraim, and like a young lion to the house of Judah.
I myself will tear and go away;
I will carry off, and no one shall rescue.
¹⁵ I will return again to my place until they acknowledge their guilt and seek my face.
In their distress they will beg my favor:
6 “Come, let us return to the LORD;
for it is he who has torn, and he will heal us;
he has struck down, and he will bind us up.
² After two days he will revive us;
on the third day he will raise us up,
that we may live before him.
³ Let us know, let us press on to know the LORD;
his appearing is as sure as the dawn;
he will come to us like the showers,
like the spring rains that water the
earth.”
⁴ What shall I do with you, O Ephraim?
What shall I do with you, O Judah?
Your love is like a morning cloud,
like the dew that goes away early.
⁵ Therefore I have hewn them by the prophets,

I have killed them by the words of my
mouth,
and my^b judgment goes forth as the light.
⁶ For I desire steadfast love and not sacrifice,
the knowledge of God rather than burnt offerings.
⁷ But at^c Adam they transgressed the
covenant;
there they dealt faithlessly with me.
⁸ Gilead is a city of evildoers, tracked with blood.
⁹ As robbers lie in wait^d for someone,
so the priests are banded together;^e
they murder on the road to Shechem, they commit a most monstrous crime.
¹⁰ In the house of Israel I have seen a horrible thing;
Ephraim’s whoredom is there, Israel is defiled.
¹¹ For you also, O Judah, a harvest is appointed.

When I would restore the fortunes of my
people,

^a Cn: Heb to a king who will contend

^b Gk Syr: Heb your

^c Cn: Heb like

^d Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Syr: Heb are a company

27.17; Prov 22.28; 23.10. 13: Went to Assyria, Hoshea, the final king in Samaria (732–722 BCE), sought to appease Assyria in the wake of Pekah’s failed rebellion (2 Kings 16.3). 14: Lion, see Job 10.16; Lam 3.10.

5.15–6.6: God punishes not to annihilate but in order to inspire repentance. This section is in the form of a dialogue. 5.15: Seek . . . in your distress, cf. Deut 4.29–30. 6.1: God both punishes and heals; see Deut 32.39; Job 5.18. 2: The punishment is temporary. Two days . . . third day, idiomatic expression for a brief period of time. 3: Spring rains, the latter (March–April) rains (Deut 11.14). 4–6: A summary of the entire speech. 4: What shall I do with you, it seems as if Israel’s relationship with God is irrevocably broken, but see 11.8. 6: God desires covenant loyalty, a persistent theme of the prophets (Am 5.22–24; Mic 6.6–8). Knowledge of God, see 2.20n.

6.7–11a: An unholy gazetteer. 7: At Adam, a town in central Transjordan, close to where the Israelites crossed the Jordan (Josh 3.16). But it is also possible to read Adam here as personal, i.e., “to a man” they have transgressed. 8: Men from Gilead participated in the assassination of King Pekahiah (2 Kings 15.25). 9: Shechem, a major Ephraimite town, 7 mi (12 km) southeast of Samaria. Their monstrous crime is unspecified, though it may involve mistreatment of pilgrims, indecent religious acts, or brutal opposition to prophetic activity. For examples of Shechem’s history of violence, see Gen 34; Judg 9. 10: Ephraim’s whoredom, see 4.11–12n.; 4.17.

6.11b–7.7: A corrupt people and government. The author uses the metaphor of an oven to describe the heated activity of Israel’s idolaters, the fervent celebration of the enthronement ritual, the hot anger of those who

7¹ when I would heal Israel, the corruption of Ephraim is revealed,
 and the wicked deeds of Samaria;
 for they deal falsely,
 the thief breaks in,
 and the bandits raid outside.
² But they do not consider that I remember all their wickedness.
 Now their deeds surround them,
 they are before my face.
³ By their wickedness they make the king glad,
 and the officials by their treachery.
⁴ They are all adulterers;
 they are like a heated oven,
 whose baker does not need to stir the fire,
 from the kneading of the dough until it is leavened.
⁵ On the day of our king the officials became sick with the heat of wine;
 he stretched out his hand with mockers.
⁶ For they are kindled^a like an oven, their heart burns within them;
 all night their anger smolders;
 in the morning it blazes like a flaming
 fire.
⁷ All of them are hot as an oven,
 and they devour their rulers.
 All their kings have fallen;
 none of them calls upon me.
⁸ Ephraim mixes himself with the
 peoples;
 Ephraim is a cake not turned.
⁹ Foreigners devour his strength,
 but he does not know it;
 gray hairs are sprinkled upon him,
 but he does not know it.
¹⁰ Israel's pride testifies against^b him;

yet they do not return to the LORD their
 God,
 or seek him, for all this.

¹¹ Ephraim has become like a dove, silly and without sense;
 they call upon Egypt, they go to Assyria.
¹² As they go, I will cast my net over them;
 I will bring them down like birds of the air;
 I will discipline them according to the report made to their assembly.^c ¹³ Woe to them, for they have strayed from
 me!
 Destruction to them, for they have rebelled against me!
 I would redeem them,
 but they speak lies against me.
¹⁴ They do not cry to me from the heart, but they wail upon their beds;
 they gash themselves for grain and wine;
 they rebel against me.
¹⁵ It was I who trained and strengthened their arms,
 yet they plot evil against me.
¹⁶ They turn to that which does not profit;^d
 they have become like a defective bow;
 their officials shall fall by the sword
 because of the rage of their tongue.
 So much for their babbling in the land of Egypt.

^a Gk Syr: Heb brought near

^b Or humbles

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

oppose the king, and the burning violence of assassination. 7:1: The theme of healing again (5.13; 6.1). Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom. 4: The time between the kneading of the dough and its fermentation is apparently when the oven was hottest. 5: Day of our king, perhaps at coronation. 6: An oven was typically a cylindrical earthenware structure with an opening at the top that permitted smoke or flames to escape (cf. Gen 15.17). 7: Devour their rulers, four Israelite kings were assassinated between 747 and 732 BCE.

7.8–16: Mixing, religious and political, is bad. 8–10: Ephraim is a half-baked cake. 10: Cf. 5.5. 11: The dove was considered silly because it was overly familiar with humans and easily captured. Ephraim, the Northern Kingdom, flits between Egypt and Assyria, seeking alliances to its detriment. Egypt and Assyria are the “foreigners” of v. 9. For the historical background, see 2 Kings 15.19–20; 17.3–4. 14: The contrast is between acceptable forms of prayer, crying to me from the heart, and those which were unacceptable, such as wailing upon their beds (Isa 57.8) and self-mutilation (they gash themselves) (Deut 14.1; 1 Kings 18.28). 15: Cf. 11.3–4. 16: Babbling, i.e., negotiations conducted in the Egyptian language.

8 Set the trumpet to your lips!
 One like a vulture^a is over the house of
 the LORD,
 because they have broken my covenant,
 and transgressed my law.
² Israel cries to me,
 “My God, we—Israel—know you!”
³ Israel has spurned the good;
 the enemy shall pursue him.
⁴ They made kings, but not through me;
 they set up princes, but without my knowledge.
 With their silver and gold they made idols
 for their own destruction.
⁵ Your calf is rejected, O Samaria.
 My anger burns against them.
 How long will they be incapable of innocence?
⁶ For it is from Israel,
 an artisan made it;
 it is not God.
 The calf of Samaria
 shall be broken to pieces.^b ⁷ For they sow the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind.
 The standing grain has no heads,
 it shall yield no meal;
 if it were to yield,
 foreigners would devour it.
⁸ Israel is swallowed up;
 now they are among the nations
 as a useless vessel.
⁹ For they have gone up to Assyria,
 a wild ass wandering alone;
 Ephraim has bargained for lovers.

¹⁰ Though they bargain with the nations,
 I will now gather them up.
 They shall soon writhe
 under the burden of kings and princes.

¹¹ When Ephraim multiplied altars to expiate sin,
 they became to him altars for sinning.
¹² Though I write for him the multitude of my instructions,
 they are regarded as a strange thing.
¹³ Though they offer choice sacrifices,^c though they eat flesh,
 the LORD does not accept them.
 Now he will remember their iniquity,
 and punish their sins;
 they shall return to Egypt.
¹⁴ Israel has forgotten his Maker,
 and built palaces;
 and Judah has multiplied fortified cities;
 but I will send a fire upon his cities,
 and it shall devour his strongholds.

9 Do not rejoice, O Israel!
 Do not exult^d as other nations do;
 for you have played the whore, departing from your God.
 You have loved a prostitute’s pay on all threshing floors.
² Threshing floor and wine vat shall not feed them,
 and the new wine shall fail them.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or shall go up in flames

^c Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk: Heb To exultation

8.1–14: For the crime of assimilating foreign political models and religious practices, the punishment is foreign domination. 1–3: A military alarm signals the approach of an enemy, the Assyrians, the vehicle of divine judgment against Israel. This section is in the form of a dialogue. 1: Vulture, or eagle, a symbol of the Assyrian army (Jer 49.22). 2: Know, see 2.20n. 4: They made kings . . . without my knowledge, without endorsement from the LORD by a prophet. 5–6: There were calf images at the northern shrines of Dan and Bethel (1 Kings 12.28); the singular calf here probably refers to that at Bethel (10.5), the shrine closest to the city of Samaria. An artisan, see Isa 40.19–20. 7–10: As punishment for political defection, Israel will be subjugated by foreigners. Wind, a reference to useless vanity (see Prov 11.29; Eccl 1.14,17), here implying Israel’s idol worship, will become a destructive whirlwind. See also 12.1. 9: The phrase a wild ass . . . Ephraim plays on the Heb words for wild ass (“pere”) and Ephraim (“eprayim”); cf. Jer 2.24. Bargained for lovers, had relations with Syria, Egypt, and Assyria. 11–14: As punishment for religious defection, Israel shall return to Egypt (cf. 9.3,6; 11.5; Deut 17.16). 12: My instructions, my “torahs,” the legacy of Moses.

9.1–6: Israel’s festivals are condemned. 1: Prostitute’s pay, Gen 38.17; Deut 23.17; Mic 1.7. Threshing floors, harvest festivals were an occasion for communal worship; in this case, illicit worship. They were also the site of ³They shall not remain in the land of the LORD;

but Ephraim shall return to Egypt,
and in Assyria they shall eat unclean food.

⁴They shall not pour drink offerings of wine to the LORD, and their sacrifices shall not please him.
Such sacrifices shall be like mourners' bread;
all who eat of it shall be defiled;
for their bread shall be for their hunger only;
it shall not come to the house of the LORD.

⁵What will you do on the day of appointed festival, and on the day of the festival of the LORD?

⁶For even if they escape destruction,
Egypt shall gather them,
Memphis shall bury them.
Nettles shall possess their precious things of silver;^a thorns shall be in their tents.

⁷The days of punishment have come,
the days of recompense have come;
Israel cries,^b
"The prophet is a fool,
the man of the spirit is mad!" Because of your great iniquity, your hostility is great.

⁸The prophet is a sentinel for my God over Ephraim,
yet a fowler's snare is on all his ways,
and hostility in the house of his God.

⁹They have deeply corrupted themselves as in the days of Gibeah;
he will remember their iniquity,
he will punish their sins.

¹⁰Like grapes in the wilderness,
I found Israel.
Like the first fruit on the fig tree,
in its first season,
I saw your ancestors.
But they came to Baal-peor,
and consecrated themselves to a thing of shame,
and became detestable like the thing they loved.

¹¹Ephraim's glory shall fly away like a bird—no birth, no pregnancy, no conception!

¹²Even if they bring up children,
I will bereave them until no one is left.
Woe to them indeed

when I depart from them!

¹³Once I saw Ephraim as a young palm planted in a lovely meadow,^a but now Ephraim must lead out his children for slaughter.

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Cn Compare Gk: Heb shall know sexual overtures (Ruth 3). 3: See 8.11–14n.; Am 7.17. 4: Drink offerings were not, in themselves, forbidden; cf. Gen 35.14. Mourners' bread was unclean because of association with the dead. 6: Memphis was the capital of Lower (northern) Egypt. Tents here probably refers to festival structures.

9.7–9: A response to the prophet's critics. 7: Man of the spirit, that is, the prophet (see Isa 11.2; 61.1; Ezek 2.2; Mic 3.8). 8: For the prophet as sentinel who sees at a distance and announces the divine approach, see Isa 21.6; Jer 6.17; Ezek 3.16–21; 33.6–8. House of his God, either the region as a whole or a former sanctuary where the prophet is no longer welcome (see 9.4). 9: Gibeah, the infamous episode there and its aftermath are detailed in Judg 19–21.

9.10–11.11: Before and after. This section consists of a series of four metaphors (Israel as grapes in the wilderness, a luxuriant vine, a heifer trained, a beloved child) used to characterize the people's former fidelity and health, and contrasted with their present corrupt state brought about by religious, social, and political misdeeds. As the first three metaphors unfold, the cumulative message appears to be that the covenant is irrevocably broken and Israel is to be abandoned (9.17; 10.10; 10.15). The fourth part, the culmination of the series and, for many scholars, the culmination of the prophecies of Hosea, initially continues in this vein (11.1–7), but then dramatically shifts from an angry to a compassionate tone (11.8–11).

9.10–17: Israel, grapes in the wilderness found by God (v. 10), is now desiccated (v. 16). 10: First fruit, a reference to Israel's divine election in the wilderness (see Deut 32.10; Jer 2.2–3). Baal-peor, the site of grave

¹⁴ Give them, O LORD—what will you give?
Give them a miscarrying womb
and dry breasts.

¹⁵ Every evil of theirs began at Gilgal;
there I came to hate them.
Because of the wickedness of their deeds
I will drive them out of my house.
I will love them no more;
all their officials are rebels.

¹⁶ Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up,
they shall bear no fruit.
Even though they give birth,
I will kill the cherished offspring of their womb.

¹⁷ Because they have not listened to him,
my God will reject them;
they shall become wanderers among
the nations.

10 Israel is a luxuriant vine that yields its fruit.
The more his fruit increased
the more altars he built;
as his country improved,
he improved his pillars.
² Their heart is false;
now they must bear their guilt.
The LORD³ will break down their altars,
and destroy their pillars.

³ For now they will say:
“We have no king,
for we do not fear the LORD,
and a king—what could he do for us?” ⁴ They utter mere words;
with empty oaths they make covenants;

so litigation springs up like poisonous weeds
in the furrows of the field.

⁵ The inhabitants of Samaria tremble for the calf^b of Beth-aven.
Its people shall mourn for it, and its idolatrous priests shall wail^c
over it,
over its glory that has departed from it.
⁶ The thing itself shall be carried to Assyria as tribute to the great king.^d Ephraim shall be put to shame, and Israel shall be ashamed of his idol.^e

⁷ Samaria’s king shall perish like a chip on the face of the waters.

⁸ The high places of Aven, the sin of Israel, shall be destroyed.
Thorn and thistle shall grow up on their altars.
They shall say to the mountains, Cover us,
and to the hills, Fall on us.

⁹ Since the days of Gibeah you have sinned, O Israel;
there they have continued.
Shall not war overtake them in Gibeah?
¹⁰ I will come^f against the wayward people to punish them;
and nations shall be gathered against
them
when they are punished^g for their double iniquity.

^a Heb he

^b Gk Syr: Heb calves

^c Cn: Heb exult

^d Cn: Heb to a king who will contend

^e Cn: Heb counsel

^f Cn Compare Gk: Heb In my desire

^g Gk: Heb bound disloyalty during the wilderness period (see Num 25.1–18). Thing of shame, a pejorative epithet for Baal. 15: Gilgal, a venerable Israelite shrine near Jericho (e.g., Josh 4.20; 10.43; 1 Sam 7.16); condemned here as the site of illicit worship (4.15; 12.11; Am 4.4; 5.5). Also, at Gilgal the LORD reluctantly acceded to the people’s request for a king (1 Sam 10.14–11.25).

10.1–10: Israel, a luxuriant vine (v. 1), is now weedy (v. 4) and overrun with thorns (v. 8). 1–2: In Canaan Israel increased in sin (here adopting illicit religious practices) as it increased in prosperity; cf. Deut 6.10–15. 2: Pillars, standing stones, condemned in Ex 23.24; see 3.4. 4: Empty oaths, Ex 20.7. 5: Calf, 8.5n. Beth-aven, see 4.15n. 8: Aven, 10.5n. Mountains, Cover us . . ., this phrase will be reused in New Testament depictions of divine judgment (Lk 23.30; Rev 6.16). 9: Gibeah, 9.9n. 10: God is a commander of the nations who will direct them against Israel. Double iniquity, Gibeah’s former sin (see 9.9n.) and present guilt.

- ¹¹ Ephraim was a trained heifer that loved to thresh,
and I spared her fair neck;
but I will make Ephraim break the ground;
Judah must plow;
Jacob must harrow for himself.
- ¹² Sow for yourselves righteousness;
reap steadfast love;
break up your fallow ground;
for it is time to seek the LORD,
that he may come and rain righteousness upon you.
- ¹³ You have plowed wickedness,
you have reaped injustice,
you have eaten the fruit of lies.
Because you have trusted in your power and in the multitude of your warriors, ¹⁴ therefore the tumult of war shall rise against your people,
and all your fortresses shall be destroyed,
as Shalman destroyed Beth-arbel on the day of battle
when mothers were dashed in pieces with their children.
- ¹⁵ Thus it shall be done to you, O Bethel,
because of your great wickedness.
At dawn the king of Israel shall be utterly cut off.
- 11 When Israel was a child, I loved him,
and out of Egypt I called my son.
- ² The more I^a called them,
the more they went from me;^b
they kept sacrificing to the Baals, and offering incense to idols.
- ³ Yet it was I who taught Ephraim to walk,
I took them up in my^c arms;
- but they did not know that I healed
them.
- ⁴ I led them with cords of human kindness,
with bands of love.
I was to them like those who lift infants to their cheeks.^d I bent down to them and fed them.
- ⁵ They shall return to the land of Egypt, and Assyria shall be their king, because they have refused to return to
me.
- ⁶ The sword rages in their cities,
it consumes their oracle-priests,
and devours because of their schemes.
- ⁷ My people are bent on turning away from
me.
To the Most High they call,
but he does not raise them up at all.^e
- ⁸ How can I give you up, Ephraim?
How can I hand you over, O Israel?
How can I make you like Admah?
How can I treat you like Zeboiim?
My heart recoils within me;
my compassion grows warm and tender.
- ⁹ I will not execute my fierce anger;
I will not again destroy Ephraim;
for I am God and no mortal,
the Holy One in your midst,
and I will not come in wrath.^e

^a Gk: Heb they

^b Gk: Heb them

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb his

^d Or who ease the yoke on their jaws

^e Meaning of Heb uncertain

10.11–15: Heifer Israel now plows wickedness. 11: Trained heifer, compare with 4.16. Spared her . . . neck, i.e., she was unyoked. 12: Break up your fallow ground, Jer 4.3. Rain is a frequent prophetic symbol of divine restoration and blessing (Isa 44.3; 45.8; 55.10). 13: Contrast Ps 20.7, 44.6, Isa 31.1. 14: Shalman . . . Beth-arbel, the allusion is unknown, but perhaps refers to the Assyrian king Shalmaneser V (see 2 Kings 17.3) or the Moabite king Salamanehu. 15: Bethel, see 8.5–6n.

11.1–11: A divine soliloquy: Israel as God's wayward child. This speech employs the culminating, and most intimate, metaphor in the series: Israel as the LORD's child. It also ends this long section, which began in 4.1, on a hopeful note. Here, the divine mood shifts from anger to compassion. 1: Cf. Ex 4.22. 2: Baals, see 2.13n. 3: Cf. 7.15. 5: Return to . . . Egypt, 8.13; 9.3. 8–9: At the pivotal point of this soliloquy, divine compassion overcomes divine anger. This is perhaps the Bible's strongest affirmation of divine mercy since it occurs without prophetic intercession or despite the people's refusal to return (v. 5), that is, repent. Admah, Zeboiim, cities destroyed

¹⁰ They shall go after the LORD, who roars like a lion;
 when he roars,
 his children shall come trembling from
 the west.
¹¹ They shall come trembling like birds
 from Egypt,
 and like doves from the land of Assyria;
 and I will return them to their homes,
 says the LORD.

¹² ^a Ephraim has surrounded me with lies,
 and the house of Israel with deceit;
 but Judah still walks^b with God,
 and is faithful to the Holy One.

12 Ephraim herds the wind, and pursues the east wind all day long;
 they multiply falsehood and violence;
 they make a treaty with Assyria,
 and oil is carried to Egypt.

² The LORD has an indictment against Judah,
 and will punish Jacob according to his
 ways,
 and repay him according to his deeds.

³ In the womb he tried to supplant his brother,
 and in his manhood he strove with God.

⁴ He strove with the angel and prevailed, he wept and sought his favor;
 he met him at Bethel,
 and there he spoke with him.^c

⁵ The LORD the God of hosts,
 the LORD is his name!

⁶ But as for you, return to your God,

hold fast to love and justice,
 and wait continually for your God.

⁷ A trader, in whose hands are false balances, he loves to oppress.

⁸ Ephraim has said, "Ah, I am rich,
 I have gained wealth for myself;
 in all of my gain
 no offense has been found in me that would be sin."^d

⁹ I am the LORD your God
 from the land of Egypt;
 I will make you live in tents again,
 as in the days of the appointed festival.

¹⁰ I spoke to the prophets;
 it was I who multiplied visions, and through the prophets I will bring destruction.

¹¹ In Gilead^e there is iniquity, they shall surely come to nothing.
 In Gilgal they sacrifice bulls, so their altars shall be like stone heaps on the furrows of the field.

¹² Jacob fled to the land of Aram, there Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he guarded sheep.^f

¹³ By a prophet the LORD brought Israel up
 from Egypt,

^a Ch 12.1 in Heb

^b Heb roams or rules

^c Gk Syr: Heb us

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Compare Syr: Heb Gilead

^f Heb lacks sheep

along with Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19; Deut 29.23). 10: In contrast with 5.14, this lion's roar is not aggressive but is a summons to its mate or cubs. 11: Doves, contrast 7.11. These doves exhibit a homing instinct. Egypt and Assyria, contrast 9.3.

11.12–12.1: The futility of foreign alliances. 11.12: But Judah still . . ., perhaps a later addition. 12.1: Cf. 8.7. Treaty with Assyria, see 2 Kings 15.19–20; 17.3. Oil . . . to Egypt, Samaria was renowned for its olive oil, used here as a commodity of tribute to Egypt, which produced little.

12.2–14.9: Rebellion and restoration. Another major division in the book (like 4.1–12.1), which begins with the announcement of an indictment and ends with an oracle of hope.

12.2–13.16: A divine lawsuit against Israel, which mixes historical retrospection with contemporary critique. For a historical summary with a similar tone, see Ps 106. 12.2: The LORD has an indictment, cf. 4.1. 3: Gen 25.26; 32.22–30. 4–5: Gen 28.11–17; 35.5–8. 7: See Am 8.5. Trader, the Hebrew word can also mean "Canaanite," thus a doubly condemnatory pun. 8: As if prosperity were proof of virtue. 9: I am the LORD your God, see Ex 20.2; Deut 5.6; Ps 81.10; Isa 43.3. Tents, a customary feature of seasonal rites (Lev 23.34–43; Deut 16.13) and symbolic of the wilderness period, will be all that remains for Israel following the divine punishment. 11: Gilead, see 6.8n.; Gilgal, see 9.15n. 12–13: Jacob . . . guarded sheep, Gen 29.1–30. 13: By a prophet, the first reference is clearly to and by a prophet he was guarded.

¹⁴ Ephraim has given bitter offense, so his Lord will bring his crimes down on him
 and pay him back for his insults.
13 When Ephraim spoke, there was trembling;
 he was exalted in Israel;
 but he incurred guilt through Baal and died.
² And now they keep on sinning and make a cast image for
 themselves,
 idols of silver made according to their
 understanding,
 all of them the work of artisans.
 “Sacrifice to these,” they say.^a People are kissing calves!
³ Therefore they shall be like the morning mist
 or like the dew that goes away early,
 like chaff that swirls from the threshing floor
 or like smoke from a window.
⁴ Yet I have been the LORD your God ever since the land of Egypt;
 you know no God but me,
 and besides me there is no savior.
⁵ It was I who fed^b you in the wilderness,
 in the land of drought.
⁶ When I fed^c them, they were satisfied; they were satisfied, and their heart was proud;
 therefore they forgot me.
⁷ So I will become like a lion to them,
 like a leopard I will lurk beside the way.
⁸ I will fall upon them like a bear robbed of her cubs,
 and will tear open the covering of their
 heart;

there I will devour them like a lion,
 as a wild animal would mangle them.

⁹ I will destroy you, O Israel;
 who can help you?^d ¹⁰ Where now is^e your king, that he may save you?
 Where in all your cities are your rulers,
 of whom you said,
 “Give me a king and rulers?”
¹¹ I gave you a king in my anger, and I took him away in my wrath.

¹² Ephraim’s iniquity is bound up; his sin is kept in store.
¹³ The pangs of childbirth come for him,
 but he is an unwise son;
 for at the proper time he does not present himself
 at the mouth of the womb.

¹⁴ Shall I ransom them from the power of Sheol?
 Shall I redeem them from Death?
 O Death, where are^f your plagues?
 O Sheol, where is^f your destruction?
 Compassion is hidden from my eyes.

¹⁵ Although he may flourish among rushes,^g
 the east wind shall come, a blast from
 the LORD,

^a Cn Compare Gk: Heb To these they say sacrifices of people

^b Gk Syr: Heb knew

^c Cn: Heb according to their pasture

^d Gk Syr: Heb for in me is your help

^e Gk Syr Vg: Heb I will be

^f Gk Syr: Heb I will be

^g Or among brothers

Moses; the second may be Moses as well, or Samuel (1 Sam 3.20) or Elijah (1 Kings 18.22). 13.1: An allusion to Ephraim’s relative prosperity during much of the Divided Monarchy. 2: Kissing calves, see 8.5–6n.; 1 Kings 19.18. 3: Morning mist, cf. 6.4. 4: See 12.9n. 5: Cf. 11.4. 8: A bear robbed of her cubs, a popular image for ferocity (2 Sam 17.8; Prov 17.12). Lion, see 5.14; 11.10. 9–11: This may refer to the deposing of Hoshea by the Assyrians in 723 BCE (2 Kings 17.4). 10: King . . . may save, read this in light of 13.4: the LORD alone is Israel’s savior. Give me a king, Israel requested human leadership; see 1 Sam 8.6,19; 12.13,17. 11: I gave . . . a king in my anger, cf. 1 Sam 12. 13: The pain of divine judgment is designed not to kill but to induce new life, yet Israel, unwise, refuses to budge. 14: Sheol, the abode of all the dead, both righteous and unrighteous. Death (Mot), the Canaanite deity of the underworld, is probably referred to here; cf. Job 18.13; Ps 49.14; Isa 28.15; Hab 2.5. In this judgment speech, compassion is hidden, unlike 11.8. 15: Flourish among rushes, alludes to political reliance on Egypt, which will be blown away by the rising from the wilderness;

 and his fountain shall dry up, his spring shall be parched.
 It shall strip his treasury of every precious thing.
^{16a}Samaria shall bear her guilt, because she has rebelled against her
 God;
 they shall fall by the sword, their little ones shall be dashed in
 pieces,
 and their pregnant women ripped open.

14 Return, O Israel, to the LORD your God, for you have stumbled because of your
 iniquity.

²Take words with you
 and return to the LORD;
 say to him,

“Take away all guilt;
 accept that which is good,
 and we will offer
 the fruit^b of our lips.

³Assyria shall not save us;
 we will not ride upon horses;
 we will say no more, ‘Our God,’
 to the work of our hands.
 In you the orphan finds mercy.”

⁴I will heal their disloyalty;
 I will love them freely,
 for my anger has turned from them.

⁵I will be like the dew to Israel;

he shall blossom like the lily,
 he shall strike root like the forests of Lebanon.^c

⁶His shoots shall spread out;
 his beauty shall be like the olive tree,
 and his fragrance like that of Lebanon.

⁷They shall again live beneath my^d
 shadow,
 they shall flourish as a garden;^e
 they shall blossom like the vine, their fragrance shall be like the wine of Lebanon.

⁸O Ephraim, what have I^f to do with idols?
 It is I who answer and look after you.^g

I am like an evergreen cypress;
 your faithfulness^h comes from me.

⁹Those who are wise understand these
 things;
 those who are discerning know them.
 For the ways of the LORD are right,
 and the upright walk in them,
 but transgressors stumble in them.

^a Ch 14.1 in Heb

^b GkSyr: Heb bulls

^c Cn: Heb like Lebanon

^d Heb his

^e Cn: Heb they shall grow grain

^f Or What more has Ephraim

^g Heb him

^h Heb your fruit

“east wind,” Assyria. The east wind . . . a blast from the LORD, contrasts the east wind, which was the vehicle of the LORD’s deliverance of Israel at the Reed Sea (Ex 14.21; 15.8). 16: The ravages of conquering armies; cf. 10.14; 2 Kings 8.12; Ps 137.9; Am 1.13.

14.1–8: A final plea for repentance and a vision of restoration. 2–3: Take words, i.e., take these words: The prophet coaches Israel in repentance. 3: Horses, cf. Ps 20.7. The work of our hands, see 8.6. Mercy or “pity,” the same root as in Lo-ruhamah/Ruhamah (1.6; 2.1). 5: Dew is a life-sustaining necessity in the dry land of Israel (Ps 133.3); contrast the image in 6.4; 13.3. 6: This fragrance is of the aromatic Lebanese cedar forest; in the next verse, of Lebanese scented wine. 7–8: My shadow, more common is the poetic image of the “shade” under God’s wings (Ps 17.8; 36.8); uniquely here, God’s shade is that of a great tree. In contrast to the trees used in Canaanite worship (see 4.12n.), God’s presence is everlasting, like the abundant foliage of an evergreen.

14.9: A postscript in the style of wisdom literature. For the first half of the verse, cf. Ps 107.43; Jer 9.12; for the second, Prov 10.29.

JOEL

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

The book begins with a brief superscription stating that the word of the LORD came to Joel the son of Bethuel. No chronological formula is given to indicate the book's date, unlike the surrounding books of Hosea and Amos, which are both dated to the eighth century BCE. There is good reason to think that the book of Joel derives from a much later period, probably the Persian era (539–333 BCE), because it refers to the Greeks (3.6); it includes imagery attested elsewhere in late prophetic literature; it alludes to other biblical texts, some of which were written in the late monarchic period (Obadiah) or the Persian period (Malachi); and the name "Joel," which means "Yahweh is God," is prominent in Persian-period biblical literature. Of the prophet himself nothing is known except his father's name.

LOCATION IN CANON

In the Masoretic Text (and in English translations that follow its order) Joel comes between two books attributed to much earlier prophets, Hosea and Amos. That may be due to two similar verses, Joel 3.16a and Am 1.2a. In the Septuagint, however, Joel is the fourth book of the Minor Prophets, after Hosea, Amos, and Micah.

STRUCTURE, CONTENTS, AND INTERPRETATION

The book of Joel describes a crisis in harrowing terms. The crisis and its resolution are reported in 1.1–2.27. Scholars, however, often attribute 2.28–3.21 to another author or authors. In this section, described as late prophetic or early apocalyptic literature, the world of ritual disappears and is replaced by the return of prophecy, cosmic symbolism, conflict with foreign nations, and images of fertility. These later verses also include more allusions to other biblical texts than 1.1–2.27.

The book offers multiple images of agricultural ruin and its impact on life in Judah. The prophet speaks of drought in the land (e.g., 1.10,12,17,20), and envisions a locust plague in the language of military attack. Locusts were known for their destructive potential to strip all vegetation from the countryside (see Ex 10.15; Amos 7:1–2) and are compared with military forces in other ancient Near Eastern literature.

Although the book's rhetoric of destruction is comparable to that found in other prophetic books, the message is quite different. Rather than offering a critique of Israel's behavior, Joel summons the people to respond to the crisis by performing rituals. Plural imperative verbs—fast, lament, wail, blow (the trumpet), put on sackcloth—are a hallmark of this summons.

The book has a distinctive theological position. Though Joel clearly thinks that God was the ultimate cause of the disaster (2.19), the prophet offers no reason for the deity's action. Hence, it is not clear that the crisis should be conceived as judgment for the people's prior misdeeds. Nonetheless, the book affirms that Israel's God is sovereign.

David L. Petersen

1 The word of the LORD that came to Joel son of Pethuel:

2 Hear this, O elders,
give ear, all inhabitants of the land!
Has such a thing happened in your days,
or in the days of your ancestors?
3 Tell your children of it,
and let your children tell their children,
and their children another generation.

4 What the cutting locust left,
the swarming locust has eaten.
What the swarming locust left,
the hopping locust has eaten,
and what the hopping locust left,
the destroying locust has eaten.

5 Wake up, you drunkards, and weep;
and wail, all you wine-drinkers,
over the sweet wine,
for it is cut off from your mouth.

6 For a nation has invaded my land, powerful and innumerable;
its teeth are lions' teeth,
and it has the fangs of a lioness.

7 It has laid waste my vines,
and splintered my fig trees;
it has stripped off their bark and thrown
it down;
their branches have turned white.

8 Lament like a virgin dressed in sackcloth for the husband of her youth.

9 The grain offering and the drink offering are cut off
from the house of the LORD.

The priests mourn,
the ministers of the LORD.

10 The fields are devastated,
the ground mourns;
for the grain is destroyed,
the wine dries up,
the oil fails.

11 Be dismayed, you farmers,
wail, you vinedressers,
over the wheat and the barley;
for the crops of the field are ruined.

12 The vine withers,
the fig tree droops.
Pomegranate, palm, and apple—
all the trees of the field are dried up;
surely, joy withers away
among the people.

13 Put on sackcloth and lament, you priests;
wail, you ministers of the altar.
Come, pass the night in sackcloth,
you ministers of my God!
Grain offering and drink offering are withheld from the house of your God.

1.1: Superscription. Unlike Hos 1.1 and Am 1.1, there is no reference to a king during whose reign Joel prophesied. This probably suggests a date when Israel was no longer a monarchy.

1.2–2.17: Crisis and call to action. A series of staccato-like poems, some of which depict the crisis (e.g., 1.17–18), more of which call people to act (e.g., 1.14). 1.2–2.0: Different groups are commanded to undertake various rituals of lament and petition to the LORD. 2–3: The prophet strikes an intergenerational note, which involves both hearing and telling. Elders, probably village or regional officials (cf. Ezra 5.9; 6.8,14; 10.8,14), stand in parallel with the hyperbolic all inhabitants of the land. Ancestors, lit., “fathers.” The rhetorical question, which has an obvious negative answer, does not reveal the nature of such a thing. 4: Rather than different species, these nouns probably refer to the developmental stages of the locust. For Joel, the four forms represent four attacks on the vegetation (cf. Am 4.9). For other references to locust plagues see Ex 10.12; Pss 78.46; 105.34–35. 5–7: Drunkards may be too negative a translation. In these speeches Joel does not regularly indict Israelites, so here he may simply be referring to those who enjoy wine. Joel 3.18 promises the return of sweet wine. The admonition to wail may involve ritual lament as in Jer 4.8, not simply crying. 6–7: The reference to my land (cf. 2.18; Lev 25.23) suggests that God is speaking. The poem offers the reason for the commands: a nation of vast numbers is ferocious; it is destroying Israel’s vines (note the earlier reference to wine) and fig trees, both of which must grow for a long time before they bear fruit. 8–10: Virgin may mean a young woman who is grief-stricken at the death of her husband. Again, the reason for the command follows the command itself. Rituals at the Temple—grain offering, drink offering—could not take place because wine, grain, and oil (cf. 2.19, which promises their return) were no longer available. 11–12: Now farmers must lament the demise of eight different harvests, divided into crops and trees. 11: Vinedresser, a person who prunes grape vines. 13–14: Priests (cf. 1.9–11) are now commanded

¹⁴ Sanctify a fast,
call a solemn assembly.
Gather the elders
and all the inhabitants of the land to the house of the LORD your God,
and cry out to the LORD.

¹⁵ Alas for the day!
For the day of the LORD is near,
and as destruction from the Almighty^a it comes.

¹⁶ Is not the food cut off before our eyes,
joy and gladness
from the house of our God?

¹⁷ The seed shrivels under the clods,^b
the storehouses are desolate;
the granaries are ruined
because the grain has failed.

¹⁸ How the animals groan!
The herds of cattle wander about because there is no pasture for them;
even the flocks of sheep are dazed.^c

¹⁹ To you, O LORD, I cry.
For fire has devoured
the pastures of the wilderness,
and flames have burned
all the trees of the field.

²⁰ Even the wild animals cry to you because the watercourses are dried up, and fire has devoured
the pastures of the wilderness.

2 Blow the trumpet in Zion;
sound the alarm on my holy mountain!
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble,

for the day of the LORD is coming, it is near—

² a day of darkness and gloom,
a day of clouds and thick darkness!
Like blackness spread upon the mountains
a great and powerful army comes;
their like has never been from of old,
nor will be again after them
in ages to come.

³ Fire devours in front of them,
and behind them a flame burns.
Before them the land is like the garden of Eden,
but after them a desolate wilderness,
and nothing escapes them.

⁴ They have the appearance of horses, and like war-horses they charge.

⁵ As with the rumbling of chariots, they leap on the tops of the mountains,
like the crackling of a flame of fire devouring the stubble, like a powerful army
drawn up for battle.

⁶ Before them peoples are in anguish, all faces grow pale.^b

⁷ Like warriors they charge, like soldiers they scale the wall.
Each keeps to its own course,
they do not swerve from^d their paths.

⁸ They do not jostle one another,

^a Traditional rendering of Heb Shaddai

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Compare Gk Syr Vg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^d Gk Syr Vg: Heb they do not take a pledge along to lament and put on sackcloth, which was worn during mourning rites (e.g., Am 8.10) and other difficult times (e.g., Ps 35.13); see 2 Sam 12.16 for passing the night in a comparable ritual. A fast could be a public event (cf. Zech 7.3–5; 8.18–19; Ezra 8.21–23; Neh 1.4–11). For a different perspective on a solemn assembly, see Am 5.21; Isa 1:13. Elders and all the inhabitants of the land echo 1.2. 15–20: These verses may be a single lament, spoken by the prophet, the people, or their priests. The day of the LORD (see also 2.1,11,31; 3:14) symbolizes God's theophanic and judging presence (cf. Am 5:18; Ob 15; Zeph 1.7,14–15; Isa 13.6; Ezek 13.5). 16: A rhetorical question, with an obvious affirmative response. 18: Domestic animals also suffer. 20: Even the wild animals completes the picture of all life—plant and animal—suffering through the attack, fire, and drought.

2.1–17: Though similar to ch 1, these poems focus more on describing the calamity than commanding a response. 1–2: The day of the LORD . . . is near (see 1.15n.), even though catastrophe has already struck. Darkness is an anticipated feature of the day (see also Am 5:18; Zeph 1:15), highlighted in the advent of a great and powerful army. 3–4: The scene before the onslaught (2.3,6,10), like the garden of Eden (see Gen 2.8–9; 13:10; Isa 51:3), stands in contrast with the devastation afterward, a desolate wilderness. 5–7: The similes like a powerful

each keeps to its own track;
 they burst through the weapons
 and are not halted.
⁹They leap upon the city,
 they run upon the walls;
 they climb up into the houses, they enter through the windows like a thief.

¹⁰The earth quakes before them,
 the heavens tremble.
 The sun and the moon are darkened,
 and the stars withdraw their shining.
¹¹The LORD utters his voice
 at the head of his army;
 how vast is his host!
 Numberless are those who obey his command.
 Truly the day of the LORD is great;
 terrible indeed—who can endure it?

¹²Yet even now, says the LORD, return to me with all your heart, with fasting, with weeping, and with
 mourning;
¹³rend your hearts and not your clothing.
 Return to the LORD, your God,
 for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love,
 and relents from punishing.
¹⁴Who knows whether he will not turn and relent,
 and leave a blessing behind him,
 a grain offering and a drink offering for the LORD, your God?

¹⁵Blow the trumpet in Zion;
 sanctify a fast;
 call a solemn assembly;
¹⁶gather the people.
 Sanctify the congregation;
 assemble the aged;
 gather the children,
 even infants at the breast.
 Let the bridegroom leave his room,
 and the bride her canopy.
¹⁷Between the vestibule and the altar let the priests, the ministers of the LORD, weep.
 Let them say, “Spare your people, O LORD, and do not make your heritage a mockery,
 a byword among the nations.
 Why should it be said among the peoples,
 ‘Where is their God?’ ”

¹⁸Then the LORD became jealous for his
 land,
 and had pity on his people.
¹⁹In response to his people the LORD said:
 I am sending you
 grain, wine, and oil,
 and you will be satisfied;
 and I will no more make you a mockery among the nations.
²⁰I will remove the northern army far from
 you,
 and drive it into a parched and desolate
 land,
 its front into the eastern sea,

army and like warriors make it clear that locusts, not an army with chariots, are meant. 10–11: The earth quakes is typical of a theophany (e.g., Ps 77.18), as is the darkening of astral objects (cf. Isa 13.10). God is the general of his army, which may describe the locusts, and thus explains why the locusts are related to the day of the LORD. 12–13: Language from ch 1 reappears, calling for a ritual response. The reference to heart reflects Deuteronomic idioms (Deut 10.16; 30.2). The characterization of the LORD in v. 13b appears elsewhere, though Joel omits mention of God’s judgment (see, e.g., Ex 34.6–7; Num 14.18). 14: Who knows . . ., cf. Jon 3.9. The LORD may leave an offering for himself. 15–16: Cf. 1.14. 17: Vestibule refers to the entry hall of the Temple (see 1 Kings 6.3). The altar was in the Temple courtyard. The priests, stationed between the altar and the vestibule, are to utter the prayer given to them by Joel. Cf. Ex 32.12; Deut 9.26–28 for similar logic.

2.18–27: The LORD responds. Since the deity responds, one may infer that the people, especially the priests, complied with Joel’s commands, though the book does not report the people’s actual response to Joel’s admonitions. 18–19: Jealous, better “zealous”; cf. Zech 1.14; Isa 9.7. God’s first concern, even before the people, was his land (see 1.6–7n.). Grain, wine, and oil, mentioned as absent in 1.10. The reference to mockery among the nations suggests that God responded directly to the prayer in 2.17. 20: Northern army is probably an allusion to the mythic enemy from the north (cf. Jer 1.13–15; 4.6; 6.1). Eastern sea, the Dead Sea; western sea, the Mediterranean.

and its rear into the western sea;
its stench and foul smell will rise up.
Surely he has done great things!

²¹ Do not fear, O soil;
be glad and rejoice,
for the LORD has done great things!

²² Do not fear, you animals of the field, for the pastures of the wilderness are green;
the tree bears its fruit,
the fig tree and vine give their full yield.

²³ O children of Zion, be glad and rejoice in the LORD your God;
for he has given the early rain^a for your
vindication, he has poured down for you abundant rain,
the early and the later rain, as before.

²⁴ The threshing floors shall be full of grain,
the vats shall overflow with wine and oil.

²⁵ I will repay you for the years that the swarming locust has eaten,
the hopper, the destroyer, and the cutter,
my great army, which I sent against you.

²⁶ You shall eat in plenty and be satisfied, and praise the name of the LORD your God,
who has dealt wondrously with you.

And my people shall never again be put to
shame.

²⁷ You shall know that I am in the midst of Israel,
and that I, the LORD, am your God and there is no other.

And my people shall never again be put to
shame.

^{28b} Then afterward
I will pour out my spirit on all flesh;
your sons and your daughters shall prophesy,
your old men shall dream dreams,
and your young men shall see visions.

²⁹ Even on the male and female slaves,
in those days, I will pour out my spirit.

³⁰ I will show portents in the heavens and on the earth, blood and fire and columns of smoke. ³¹ The sun shall be turned to darkness, and the moon to blood, before the great and terrible day of the LORD comes. ³² Then everyone who calls on the name of the LORD shall be saved; for in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there shall be those who escape, as the LORD has said, and among the survivors shall be those whom the LORD calls.

3^c For then, in those days and at that time, when I restore the fortunes of Judah and Jerusalem, ² I will gather all the

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Ch 3.1 in Heb

^c Ch 4.1 in Heb

Stench and foul smell may reflect the plague traditions, cf. Ex 7.18; 8.14. 21: The land is now personified as soil. 22: The imagery represents a reversal of the earlier situation. Animals of the field will have pastureland (cf. 1.18), and fig tree and vine will bear fruit (cf. 1.12). 23: Abundant rain replaces the earlier drought (1.20). Children of Zion, cf. Ps 149.2. Human life focuses on Jerusalem. Early rain, in late fall; later rain, in early spring. 25: Repay often has legal connotations; cf. Ex 21.34. Years is much longer than the attack earlier described. The four forms of locust appear here in a different order from that in 1.4. 26–27: The promise of restoration is confirmed by allusion to the covenantal relationship with the only true God; cf. Isa 45.5,6,18.

2.28–3.21. A future of well-being for Israel. Poetic and prose oracles focusing on Israel and their human enemies. God will again bring victory that will result in marvelous fertility. 2.28–29: Pour out my spirit here implies enabling various forms of prophetic revelation (cf. Ezek 39.29). What had been limited to the house of David (Zech 12.10) or the prophets is now available to all Israel. Cf. Acts 2.16–21. 30–32: These verses are probably poetic. Portents are cosmic events. On the sky darkening, cf. Isa 13.10; 34.4; Jer 4.23; Ezek 32.7–8; Am 8.9. In Joel 2.10, the locusts had darkened the sky; now God is the cause. Calls on the name of the LORD, i.e., worships the LORD. Those who escape and survivors probably refer to those not killed in an eschatological battle; cf. Zech 14.16, which includes non-Israelites. 3.1–3: These verses are probably poetic. They depict an eschatological tradition that the LORD will judge the nations. 2: Valley of Jehoshaphat, probably not the Kidron Valley in Jerusalem, but a nations and bring them down to the valley of Jehoshaphat, and I will enter into judgment with them there, on account of my people and my heritage Israel, because they have scattered them among the nations. They have divided my land,³ and cast lots for my people, and traded boys for prostitutes, and sold girls for wine, and drunk it down.

⁴What are you to me, O Tyre and Sidon, and all the regions of Philistia? Are you paying me back for something? If you are paying me back, I will turn your deeds back upon your own heads swiftly and speedily. ⁵For you have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried my rich treasures into your temples.^a ⁶You have sold the people of Judah and Jerusalem to the Greeks, removing them far from their own border. ⁷But now I will rouse them to leave the places to which you have sold them, and I will turn your deeds back upon your own heads. ⁸I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the people of Judah, and they will sell them to the Sabeans, to a nation far away; for the LORD has spoken.

⁹Proclaim this among the nations:
Prepare war,^b
stir up the warriors.

Let all the soldiers draw near,
let them come up.

¹⁰Beat your plowshares into swords,
and your pruning hooks into spears;
let the weakling say, "I am a warrior."

¹¹Come quickly,^c all you nations all around,

gather yourselves there.
Bring down your warriors, O LORD.
¹²Let the nations rouse themselves, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat;
for there I will sit to judge
all the neighboring nations.

¹³Put in the sickle,
for the harvest is ripe.
Go in, tread,
for the wine press is full.
The vats overflow,
for their wickedness is great.

¹⁴Multitudes, multitudes,
in the valley of decision!
For the day of the LORD is near
in the valley of decision.

¹⁵The sun and the moon are darkened, and the stars withdraw their shining.

¹⁶The LORD roars from Zion,
and utters his voice from Jerusalem,
and the heavens and the earth shake.

But the LORD is a refuge for his people,
a stronghold for the people of Israel.

^a Or palaces

^b Heb sanctify war

^c Meaning of Heb uncertain

symbolic place, a plain broad enough for the nations to be gathered and defeated, but cf. 2 Chr 20.20–26. 3: On charges of enslavement, cf. Am 2.6; 8.6. On foreign nations that cast lots, see Ob 11; Nah 3.10.

3.4–21: Punishment of foreign nations and weal for Judah: In the tradition of oracles against foreign nations, coastal territories are initially indicted. Verses 4–8, which may be intrusive, may refer to events dating to the mid-fourth century BCE, a time when these regions could have worked in concert. 5: According to 2 Kings 25.13–17, the Babylonians removed the gold from Jerusalem's Temple. 6: On sale of children to Greece, cf. Ezek 27.13 ("Javan" = Ionia). 7–8: The LORD will requite the coastal regions by selling their children to Judah. Sabeans, or the land of Sheba, in the southern Arabian peninsula. 9–13: The oracle begun in vv. 1–3 resumes. Plural imperative verbs predominate in vv. 9–11, though speakers and audiences are ambiguous. The nations, or perhaps the divine council, are commanded to prepare for war. Verse 11b is directed to the LORD whereas in v. 12 the deity is speaking. Verse 13 is addressed either to the divine council or to Israel. 10: A reversal of the imagery in Isa 2.4 and Mic 4.3. 12: Jehoshaphat is a wordplay on judge (Heb "shaphat"). 13: Images of fertility, as in ch 2, reappear. 14–21: A series of poetic fragments (vv. 14–15, 16, 17, 18, 19–21) now ensues. 14–15: The motif of darkening before the day of the LORD echoes 2.30–31; cf. 2.1–2n. The motif of valley (see 3.2, 12) may explain why this oracle appears here. 16a: This part of the verse is identical with Am 1.2 and may be why these two books are situated next

¹⁷ So you shall know that I, the LORD your God, dwell in Zion, my holy mountain.
 And Jerusalem shall be holy,
 and strangers shall never again pass through it.

¹⁸ In that day
 the mountains shall drip sweet wine,
 the hills shall flow with milk,
 and all the stream beds of Judah shall flow with water;
 a fountain shall come forth from the house
 of the LORD
 and water the Wadi Shittim.

¹⁹ Egypt shall become a desolation and Edom a desolate wilderness, because of the violence done to the people of Judah,
 in whose land they have shed innocent
 blood.

²⁰ But Judah shall be inhabited forever, and Jerusalem to all generations.

²¹ I will avenge their blood, and I will not clear the guilty,^a
 for the LORD dwells in Zion.

^a Gk Syr: Heb I will hold innocent their blood that I have not held innocent to each other; see the Introduction. 17: You shall know, cf. 2.27. 18: The first part of this verse is almost identical with the last part of Am 9:13. For such preternatural fertility, cf. Isa 65.17–25; Zech 14.6–11. On a fountain and river flowing from the Temple, see Ezek 47.1–12; Zech 14.8. Wadi Shittim, literally “Wadi of Acacias”; as with the valley of Jehoshaphat (v. 12), the location is unknown. It may symbolize fertility. 19–21: A final punitive oracle against Egypt and Edom (cf. Ob; Ps 137; Mal 1.3–4; Sir 50.26), an unusual combination of an empire and a small state. That the LORD dwells in or is located at Zion is an important motif near the end of the book (vv. 16,17,18,21).

AMOS

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The book of Amos is a compilation of sayings attributed to the prophet Amos, who was active in the first half of the eighth century BCE, during the long and peaceful reigns of Jeroboam II of Israel (788–747 BCE; Am 1.1) and Uzziah of Judah (785–733 BCE). In this period, Israel attained a height of territorial expansion and national prosperity never again reached. At the same time, this prosperity led to gross inequities between urban elite and the poor. Through manipulation of debt and credit, wealthy landowners amassed capital and estates at the expense of small farmers. The smallest debt served as the thin edge of a wedge that lenders could use to separate farmers from their patrimonial lands and to deprive them of personal liberty.

Into this scene stepped Amos, himself a farmer and herder from Tekoa, a small village in Judah, who was probably active as a prophet during the decade 760–750 BCE. Amos denounced the society of the Northern Kingdom, Israel, in vivid language, bitterly describing the decadent opulence, immorality, and smug piety of the elite who “trample the head of the poor into the dust of the earth” (2.7). Amos’s program, in contrast, called for “justice” and “righteousness” (5.7,24; 6.12), terms that connote social equality and concern for the disadvantaged (Isa 5.7; Mic 6.8). Amos also condemned impure religion, which for him and the other prophets meant worship of deities other than the LORD, the use of images (5.26) to represent God, and worship at illicit shrines (3.14; 4.4).

The narrative about Amos’s encounter with Amaziah (7.1–7) and the superscription (1.1) yield the only portrait of the prophet. A native of the Southern Kingdom of Judah who raised livestock and tended fruit trees, Amos prophesied to and in the Northern Kingdom of Israel. At the royal sanctuary of Bethel (7.13), his bitter invective, voiced as a divine word (“I hate, I despise your festivals,” 5.21) no doubt scandalized pilgrims from Samaria, capital of the Northern Kingdom. His confrontation with the priest Amaziah remains one of the unforgettable scenes in biblical prophecy. Expelled from Bethel and commanded not to prophesy there again, Amos perhaps returned to Judah where he, or like-minded scribes, wrote down the essence of his public preaching in substantially its present form.

Although the reigns of Jeroboam II and Uzziah were relatively peaceful and prosperous in Israel and Judah, the region experienced calamitous upheaval shortly thereafter when Tiglath-pileser III assumed the throne in Assyria (745–727 BCE). He began the period of Assyria’s greatest expansion in the west, including conquering the smaller kingdoms of Syria-Palestine. His successors, Shalmaneser V (727–722) and Sargon II (722–705), invaded the Northern Kingdom and conquered Samaria in 722. Within a few decades of Amos’s prophetic activity, the Northern Kingdom saw devastation and destruction which made his foreboding words all the more sobering.

LOCATION IN CANON

Amos’s prophetic career was roughly contemporaneous with that of Hosea, though Amos probably preceded him. Chronologically, then, Amos inaugurated the era of classical prophecy. In the Septuagint the book of Amos directly follows Hosea. The traditional arrangement of the Book of the Twelve (see p. 971) in the Masoretic Text and in English translations, however, is based not solely on chronology but often on specific verbal similarities or catchwords that link the end of one book to the beginning of the next. Amos is linked to the preceding book of Joel by identical phrases (see Joel 3.16a and Am 1.2a) and to the following book of Obadiah by a similar subject (Edom in Am 9.12 and in Ob 1).

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The book of Amos has three major parts: chs 1–2 are presented as a single speech, an ethical tour of the region from the divine perspective, which climaxes in judgment on Israel itself; chs 3–6 are the least unified section, a collection of short prophetic sayings indicting Israel for sin and injustice; chs 7–9 contain the visions of Amos, as well as the Amaziah narrative (7.10–17), and a final speech of comfort (9.11–15) addressed not to Israel but to Judah. The best approach for readers is to follow the sequence of the book itself. The book contains a variety of material. Some of Amos’s sayings are presented as messenger speeches (“Thus says the LORD”), others as visions (“This is what the LORD showed me”), especially in chs 7–9. Amos, in a legal style of indictment followed by punishment (“therefore . . .”) announced judgments (e.g., 1.3–2.16), delivered funeral orations (e.g., 5.1–2) to lament the fate of Israel, and gave exhortations (e.g., 5.6). He rarely encouraged (but see 9.11–15 and the notes there). In addition to the preceding types of prophetic sayings, the book contains three hymnic fragments (4.13; 5.8–9; 9.5–6) and one narrative (7.10–17).

INTERPRETATION

Against the background of Israelite tradition about “the day of the LORD,” occasions celebrated from the past and eagerly anticipated in the future when the LORD dramatically intervenes in human affairs, Amos announced that such a day was imminent. This time, however, the fortified palaces and temples of Israel would be leveled along with those of Israel’s rival nations (1.3–2.3) when God executed the divine version of “justice and righteousness.” Israel’s covenant with God (3.2) did not absolve it from this ethical standard, which Amos universalized (9.7–8). Though Amos affirmed the special quality of God’s relationship with Israel, he stressed that it entailed a special ethical responsibility (3.1–2). Historically, the agent of this divine punishment would be the Assyrian army (not mentioned in Amos, but see Isa 10.5–11). The frequent references to exile in Amos (e.g., 3.11; 6.7; 7.17) reflect a grim threat: the Assyrian imperial practice of deporting and transplanting conquered peoples.

Amos described himself as “a herdsman, and a dresser of sycamore trees” (7.14). The latter tree is not the same as a North American “sycamore” (Platanus occidentalis), but a type of wild fig tree (Ficus sycomorus). These wild figs were gathered by poor people. The small fruit of this tree was inferior to that from the domesticated fig tree (Ficus carica). By “dressing” or gashing the small fruit of this tree, Amos and his cohorts hastened their ripening. This single, vivid detail about Amos’s background in 7.14 speaks volumes about the prophet’s ethics and harsh tone. It explains his solidarity with the poor (2.6–7; 5.11; 8.4) who literally “scratched out” a living in rural Judah and Ephraim, desperate for any harvest, however sparse and bitter. As noted, Amos rebuked far more often than he comforted. This arborist with his knife understood that pruning was required for revitalization and new growth. Amos lashed out at the elite’s prosperity gained at the expense of the poor, upsetting their “baskets of summer fruit” (8.1–2).

The book of Amos begins and ends with references to an earthquake (1.1 and the images of shaking in 9.1–9). The exact year is unknown (760 has been proposed), but some archaeological evidence of a catastrophe exists. Did this earthquake, so severe that it was recalled centuries later (Zech 14.5), offer cosmic validation of Amos’s preaching? One cannot know. Still, even today one can feel the aftershocks of Amos, the first in a brilliant succession of biblical prophets whose words, now preserved in written form, have left their indelible stamp on later thought about God and human history.

Gregory Mobley

1 The words of Amos, who was among the shepherds of Tekoa, which he saw concerning Israel in the days of King Uzziah of Judah and in the days of King Jeroboam son of Joash of Israel, two years^a before the earthquake. ² And he said:

The LORD roars from Zion,
and utters his voice from Jerusalem;

the pastures of the shepherds wither,
and the top of Carmel dries up.

³ Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Damascus,

^a Or during two years

1.1: Superscription. Amos means “one supported” (by the LORD); for a longer form of the same name, see “Amasiah” (“Yah[weh] supports”; 2 Chr 17.16). Among the shepherds, the word translated “shepherds” probably denotes a herder or owner of large flocks rather than a hired worker; the same word is translated “sheep breeder” in 2 Kings 3.4, its only other occurrence in the Bible. See also 7.14–15. Tekoa was a town in Judah, ca. 10 mi (16 km) south of Jerusalem, and the home of an anonymous “wise woman” in 2 Sam 14.2. He saw, see Isa 2.1; Mic 1.1; Nah 1.1; visions were common among prophets from Judah (e.g., Isaiah and Ezekiel). For Amos’s visions, see chs 7–9. Uzziah reigned over the Southern Kingdom 785–733 BCE. Jeroboam II reigned over the Northern Kingdom 788–747, suggesting a maximum span of forty years for Amos’s career. On the earthquake, see Introduction.

1.2–2.16: A speech against the nations. A common feature of Israelite prophecy was the indictment of foreign nations, which implied the LORD’s universal sovereignty. In general, Amos indicts the neighboring peoples and for four, I will not revoke the punishment;^a because they have threshed Gilead with threshing sledges of iron.

Chs 1–2: Places mentioned in the oracles against foreign nations.

⁴ So I will send a fire on the house of Hazael, and it shall devour the strongholds of Ben-hadad.

⁵ I will break the gate bars of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitants from the Valley of Aven, and the one who holds the scepter from Beth-eden;

^a Heb cause it to return

for ethical transgressions on the order of war crimes. The prophet condemns their actions not only against Israel and Judah but also against other neighboring peoples. Thus, the scope of God’s concern spans the larger international community. All the nations mentioned were either subject to or allies of the Davidic and Solomonic monarchy, and therefore bound by treaties to which the LORD would have been a witness and for which he was now acting as an enforcer. Near the end of this section, when Amos addresses Judah and Israel, the ethical standard is more exacting. 1.2: This introductory verse occurs in similar form in Joel 3.16 (cf. Jer 25.30). The LORD roars, Amos uses the image of God as lion again in 3.4,8. From Zion, Ps 50.1–2. The sequence from Jerusalem . . . (to) Carmel traces the trajectory of the book as Amos, a southerner from the vicinity of Jerusalem, addresses the Northern Kingdom, whose northwest boundary was Mt. Carmel (see 9.3n.). 3,6,8, etc.: Thus says the LORD and the conclusion says the LORD are standard formulas identifying prophetic oracles. The idiom for three . . . and for four indicates “more than enough” (Prov 30.18; Job 33.14).

1.3–5: Against Damascus (cf. Isa 17.1–3; Jer 49.23–27; Zech 9.1–4). Damascus was the capital of Syria (Aram). They have threshed Gilead, Gilead was Israelite territory in northern Transjordan, particularly vulnerable to Syrian aggression (2 Kings 10.32–33); threshing was often used to symbolize martial brutality (Isa 41.15; Mic 4.13); for an example of terroristic “threshing,” see Judg 8.7,16. Hazael and Ben-hadad II were Syrian rulers (2 Kings 13.3). The Valley of Aven probably refers to the Beqa region between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges; Beth-eden, known in Assyrian records as Bit Adini, was a city-state on the Euphrates. The Hebrew names of both places, “Valley of Sin” and “House of Pleasure,” respectively, have symbolic overtones. Kir is the place of Syrian origins (9.7) and exile (2 Kings 16.9); its precise location is unknown.

and the people of Aram shall go into exile to Kir,
 says the LORD.

⁶ Thus says the LORD:
 For three transgressions of Gaza,
 and for four, I will not revoke the
 punishment;^a
 because they carried into exile entire communities,
 to hand them over to Edom.

⁷ So I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza,
 fire that shall devour its strongholds.

⁸ I will cut off the inhabitants from Ashdod,
 and the one who holds the scepter from Ashkelon;
 I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the remnant of the Philistines shall perish,
 says the Lord God.

⁹ Thus says the LORD:
 For three transgressions of Tyre,
 and for four, I will not revoke the
 punishment;^a
 because they delivered entire communities
 over to Edom,
 and did not remember the covenant of kinship.

¹⁰ So I will send a fire on the wall of Tyre,
 fire that shall devour its strongholds.

¹¹ Thus says the LORD:
 For three transgressions of Edom,
 and for four, I will not revoke the
 punishment;^a

because he pursued his brother with the
 sword
 and cast off all pity;
 he maintained his anger perpetually,^b and kept his wrath^c forever.

¹² So I will send a fire on Teman, and it shall devour the strongholds of Bozrah.

¹³ Thus says the LORD:
 For three transgressions of the Ammonites,
 and for four, I will not revoke the
 punishment;^a
 because they have ripped open pregnant women in Gilead
 in order to enlarge their territory.

¹⁴ So I will kindle a fire against the wall of Rabbah,
 fire that shall devour its strongholds,
 with shouting on the day of battle, with a storm on the day of the whirlwind;

¹⁵ then their king shall go into exile,
 he and his officials together,
 says the LORD.

2 Thus says the LORD:
 For three transgressions of Moab,
 and for four, I will not revoke the
 punishment;^a
 because he burned to lime
 the bones of the king of Edom.

^a Heb cause it to return

^b Syr Vg: Heb and his anger tore perpetually

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb and his wrath kept

1.6–8: Against Philistia. Four cities of the Philistine pentapolis (1 Sam 6.17) on the southeast coast of the Mediterranean are condemned for their slave traffic with Edom (2 Chr 21.16–17; Joel 3.4–8; Zeph 2.4–7).

1.9–10: Against Tyre (see Joel 3.4–8). Tyre was a Phoenician seaport north of Israel. Covenant of kinship (lit., “covenant of brothers”), cf. 1 Kings 5.12; 9.13.

1.11–12: Against Edom (Isa 34; Joel 3.19; Ezek 25.12). Edom, located south and east of the Dead Sea, was a perennial rival of neighboring Judah, especially in the exilic and postexilic era (Ps 137.7; Ob). The term his brother, i.e., Judah (Mal 1.2), draws on the ancient tradition of kinship between Jacob and Esau (Esau was “the father of Edom,” Gen 36.43) and also connotes a treaty relationship (see vv. 9–10n.). Teman, a synonym for Edom. Bozrah, modern Buseirah, 40 km (25 mi) south of the Dead Sea.

1.13–15: Against Ammon (Zeph 2.8–11), which is condemned for atrocities against Israelites to its immediate north, in Gilead. Rabbah, the Ammonite capital (modern Amman).

2.1–3: Against Moab, Israel’s neighbor and rival southeast of the Jordan (Isa 15.1–16.14). Burned to lime, for the practice of desecrating a corpse through disinterment and incineration, see 2 Kings 23.16–20; Isa 33.12. Kerioth, location uncertain; see Jer 48.24,41.

² So I will send a fire on Moab, and it shall devour the strongholds of Kerioth,
and Moab shall die amid uproar, amid shouting and the sound of the trumpet;

³ I will cut off the ruler from its midst,
and will kill all its officials with him,
says the LORD.

⁴ Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Judah,
and for four, I will not revoke the
punishment;^a
because they have rejected the law of the LORD,
and have not kept his statutes,
but they have been led astray by the same
lies
after which their ancestors walked.

⁵ So I will send a fire on Judah,
and it shall devour the strongholds of Jerusalem.

⁶ Thus says the LORD:
For three transgressions of Israel,
and for four, I will not revoke the
punishment;^a
because they sell the righteous for
silver,
and the needy for a pair of sandals—

⁷ they who trample the head of the poor into the dust of the earth, and push the afflicted out of the way;

father and son go in to the same girl,

so that my holy name is profaned;
⁸ they lay themselves down beside every altar
on garments taken in pledge;
and in the house of their God they drink
wine bought with fines they imposed.

⁹ Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, whose height was like the height of cedars,

and who was as strong as oaks;
I destroyed his fruit above,
and his roots beneath.

¹⁰ Also I brought you up out of the land of Egypt,
and led you forty years in the
wilderness,
to possess the land of the Amorite.

¹¹ And I raised up some of your children to be prophets
and some of your youths to be nazirites.^b
Is it not indeed so, O people of Israel?
says the LORD.

¹² But you made the nazirites^b drink wine, and commanded the prophets, saying, “You shall not prophesy.”

^a Heb cause it to return

^b That is, those separated or those consecrated

2.4–5: Against Judah. Because of similarities between its language and that of the Deuteronomistic Reform (e.g., 2 Kings 17.15) in the late seventh century BCE, many scholars consider this oracle a later addition, but it is consistent with Amos’s view that all nations stand accountable before God. Unlike in the previous indictments of foreign nations for crimes against humanity, Judah is held responsible for crimes against God.

2.6–16: Against Israel. Amos’s ethical tour finally reaches home, where it surely shocked its audience. Israel can refer both to the Northern Kingdom, as the counterpart of Judah (2.4), and to the entire people that God brought out of Egypt (see 2.10; 3.1). Using the same literary form, Amos shows that Israel stands under divine judgment too, for oppression of the poor and for immorality. 6: They sell the righteous . . . and the needy into debt slavery. 7: Same girl probably does not refer to ritual prostitutes but to young unmarried women who, like the “needy” and the poor, were being exploited. 8: Garments taken in pledge, see the prohibitions in Ex 22.25; Deut 24.17. The exploitation of the poor is especially odious when commodities gained unjustly, the above garments and wine, were paraded before the deity at the altar of the house of their God. 9: The Amorite . . . whose height, pre-Israelite inhabitants of Canaan such as the Amorites (see Ezek 16.3) were often depicted as gigantic (Num 13.32–33; Deut 1.28). 10: Deut 1.19–21. In contrast to the preceding indictments, the prophet invokes God’s history with Israel as grounds for impending punishment. 11–12: Nazirites, consecrated individuals who undertook

¹³ So, I will press you down in your place, just as a cart presses down when it is full of sheaves.^a ¹⁴ Flight shall perish from the swift, and the strong shall not retain their
 strength,
 nor shall the mighty save their lives;
¹⁵ those who handle the bow shall not stand, and those who are swift of foot shall not save themselves,
 nor shall those who ride horses save their lives;
¹⁶ and those who are stout of heart among the mighty
 shall flee away naked in that day,
 says the LORD.

3 Hear this word that the LORD has spoken against you, O people of Israel, against the whole family that I brought up out of the land of Egypt:

² You only have I known of all the families of the earth;
 therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities.
³ Do two walk together
 unless they have made an appointment?
⁴ Does a lion roar in the forest,
 when it has no prey?
 Does a young lion cry out from its den,
 if it has caught nothing?

⁵ Does a bird fall into a snare on the earth,
 when there is no trap for it?
 Does a snare spring up from the ground,
 when it has taken nothing?
⁶ Is a trumpet blown in a city,
 and the people are not afraid?
 Does disaster befall a city,
 unless the LORD has done it?
⁷ Surely the Lord God does nothing, without revealing his secret to his servants the prophets.
⁸ The lion has roared;
 who will not fear?
 The Lord God has spoken;
 who can but prophesy?

⁹ Proclaim to the strongholds in Ashdod, and to the strongholds in the land of Egypt,
 and say, “Assemble yourselves on Mount^b Samaria,
 and see what great tumults are within it,
 and what oppressions are in its midst.”
¹⁰ They do not know how to do right, says
 the LORD,
 those who store up violence and robbery in their strongholds.
¹¹ Therefore thus says the Lord God:
 An adversary shall surround the land,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain
^b Gk Syr: Heb the mountains of vows, including abstinence from wine; Num 6.2; Judg 13.5. 13–16: The effects of the earthquake (1.1; 9.1). 16: Naked, unarmed and exposed; cf. Isa 20.1–6.

3.1–6.14: Judgment speeches against Israel come in three sections, each with the same opening (3.1; 4.1; 5.1).

3.1–2: A chosen people are held to a higher standard. 2: You only have I known, knowledge here refers to a relationship through covenant. The phrase all the families of the earth recalls traditions about divine promises to Abram (Gen 12.3) and Moses (Ex 19.4–6; Deut 7.6).

3.3–8: A series of rhetorical questions, which permit only a single response, build to an inescapable conclusion in v. 8b: The call to prophecy, unsolicited, cannot be resisted (7.14–15). Furthermore, the self-evident truths of vv. 1–8a render the audience susceptible to a truth in 8b it would naturally resist: Amos speaks on behalf of the LORD. 4: A lion roar, see 1.2. 6: Trumpet, the shofar, the ram’s horn. 7: His secret to his servants the prophets, for positive and negative illustrations of this principle, see, respectively, Gen 18.17–19 and 2 Kings 4.27. Because the phrase “his servants the prophets” is Deuteronomistic (see 2 Kings 21.10), and because the verse is in a different form, some scholars consider it a later addition (see 2.3–4n.). 8: Who can but prophesy? Just as in chs 1–2, seven indictments against other peoples (1.3–2.5) rhetorically set a trap, sprung in the eighth against Israel itself, in this chapter seven questions (3.3–6) build to a crescendo; cf. 7.14–15 for Amos’s reluctance to accept the call to prophecy.

3.9–15: Neighboring nations are invited to witness the LORD’s complaint against the elite of Israelite society, who dwelt in strongholds, massive fortified palaces. 9: Ashdod, a Philistine city on the Mediterranean coast; see 1.6–8. Samaria, capital of the Northern Kingdom. 11: God addresses Samaria directly and promises the com-

and strip you of your defense;
and your strongholds shall be
plundered.

¹² Thus says the LORD: As the shepherd rescues from the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear, so shall the people of Israel who live in Samaria be rescued, with the corner of a couch and part^a of a bed.

¹³ Hear, and testify against the house of Jacob, says the Lord GOD, the God of hosts:

¹⁴ On the day I punish Israel for its
transgressions,
I will punish the altars of Bethel,
and the horns of the altar shall be cut off
and fall to the ground.

¹⁵ I will tear down the winter house as well as the summer house;
and the houses of ivory shall perish,
and the great houses^b shall come to an end,
says the LORD.

who say to their husbands, “Bring something to drink!”

² The Lord GOD has sworn by his holiness:
The time is surely coming upon you,
when they shall take you away with hooks,
even the last of you with fishhooks.

³ Through breaches in the wall you shall leave,
each one straight ahead;
and you shall be flung out into Harmon,^a

says the LORD.

⁴ Come to Bethel—and transgress;
to Gilgal—and multiply transgression;
bring your sacrifices every morning,
your tithes every three days;

⁵ bring a thank offering of leavened bread,
and proclaim freewill offerings, publish
them;
for so you love to do, O people of Israel!

says the Lord GOD.

4 Hear this word, you cows of Bashan who are on Mount Samaria, who oppress the poor, who crush the
needy,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or many houses

ing of an adversary, though whether the figure is a divine or human agent of God's judgment is difficult to say (cf. Isa 10.5; Jer 25.8; Lam 2.5). 12: As Amos, a pastoralist himself (7.14) knew, a shepherd was absolved of blame for loss of livestock if there were even small remains, legs, or a piece of an ear, of a predator's attack. With sarcasm, Amos suggests that after the divine punishment, announced by the roar of a lion (1.2; 3.8), only scraps would remain from the palaces of Samaria. Thus, Israel's remains do not signify the survival of a righteous remnant, but rather they justify God's judgment, just as the remains of an animal's carcass vindicate the shepherd (Ex 22.13). 13: House of Jacob, the Northern Kingdom of Israel; cf. 9.8. 14: Bethel was near the southern border of the Northern Kingdom, ca. 18 km (11 mi) north of Jerusalem. For Bethel as a shrine of the Northern Kingdom, see 1 Kings 12.25–30; for Amos and Bethel, see 4.4; 5.5–6; 7.10–13. Grasping the horns of the altar, the projections at the corners of an altar, brought asylum (Ex 21.14; 1 Kings 2.28–34). 15: The LORD will raze the tokens of conspicuous Israelite consumption: the winter house, the summer house, and the houses decorated with carved ivory inlay (see 6.4), such as the royal palace in Samaria built by Ahab (1 Kings 22.39) and whose winter house is mentioned in 1 Kings 21.1.

4.1–3: Israel's luxurious excesses. Wealthy and greedy women of Samaria would be punished along with their husbands. 1: Bashan, a fertile region in the northern Transjordan renowned for its cattle (Ps 22.12). Jeremiah (31.18) and Hosea (4.16) also compared Israel—its menfolk too—to cows. 2: Hooks . . . fishhooks, the terms are obscure but perhaps refer to the practice of leading away prisoners with hooks through their noses, as depicted in ancient Near Eastern art (cf. Isa 37.29). 3: Straight ahead, with the city walls in ruins, the captives will be easily taken away.

4.4–5: Israel's piety is satirized. 4: Bethel, see 3.14n. Gilgal, a venerable Israelite shrine near Jericho (e.g., Josh 4.20; 10.43; 1 Sam 7.16), condemned by Amos (5.5) and his contemporary Hosea (Hos 4.15; 9.15; 12.11). The ritual practices listed here are prescribed elsewhere; for the morning sacrifice, see Ex 29.29; tithes, see Lev 27.30–32; Deut 14.28–29; thank offering of leavened bread, see Lev 7.13; freewill offerings, see Num 15.3. Note the association of tithes with Bethel in Gen 28.22.

⁶ I gave you cleanness of teeth in all your cities, and lack of bread in all your places,
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

⁷ And I also withheld the rain from you when there were still three months to the harvest;

I would send rain on one city,
and send no rain on another city;
one field would be rained upon,
and the field on which it did not rain
withered;

⁸ so two or three towns wandered to one town
to drink water, and were not satisfied;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

⁹ I struck you with blight and mildew;
I laid waste^a your gardens and your vineyards;
the locust devoured your fig trees and
your olive trees;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

¹⁰ I sent among you a pestilence after the manner of Egypt;
I killed your young men with the sword;
I carried away your horses;^b and I made the stench of your camp go up into your nostrils;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

¹¹ I overthrew some of you,
as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah,

and you were like a brand snatched from the fire;
yet you did not return to me,
says the LORD.

¹² Therefore thus I will do to you, O Israel;
because I will do this to you,
prepare to meet your God, O Israel!

¹³ For lo, the one who forms the mountains, creates the wind, reveals his thoughts to mortals,
makes the morning darkness, and treads on the heights of the
earth—
the LORD, the God of hosts, is his
name!

5 Hear this word that I take up over you in lamentation, O house of Israel:

² Fallen, no more to rise,
is maiden Israel;
forsaken on her land,
with no one to raise her up.

³ For thus says the Lord God:
The city that marched out a thousand shall have a hundred left,
and that which marched out a hundred shall have ten left.^c

⁴ For thus says the LORD to the house of Israel:
Seek me and live;

^a Cn: Heb the multitude of

^b Heb with the captivity of your horses

^c Heb adds to the house of Israel

4.6–13: Israel has ignored the divine warnings issued through plagues. These plagues typify the curses a treaty partner brought on itself through disobedience. Israel's covenantal documents contained such curses (Lev 26.14–39; Deut 28.15–68). 6: Cleanness of teeth (i.e., famine). 10: A pestilence after the manner of Egypt, Ex 9.3–7,15. The stench of unburied corpses, as in Isa 34.3. 11: The verb overthrew here could refer to an earthquake, as it seems to in Gen 19.25,29, where the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah is described. 13: The first of three doxologies interspersed throughout Amos (5.8–9; 9.5–6). These hymnlike sections emphasize that the God Israel encounters in judgment is the creator.

5.1–3: Lament for Israel. Among the forms of prophetic speech was the lament; hearing one's own funeral speech delivered by a prophet must have had a sobering effect (cf. Jer 9.17–22).

5.4–7: A plea for repentance. Though the lament form was meant to convey a sense of inevitable judgment, there is yet time to seek the LORD and live (v. 6), an exhortation to turn to God or abide by God's precepts (Ps

⁵ but do not seek Bethel, and do not enter into Gilgal or cross over to Beer-sheba;
for Gilgal shall surely go into exile,
and Bethel shall come to nothing.

⁶ Seek the LORD and live, or he will break out against the house of Joseph like fire,
and it will devour Bethel, with no one to quench it.

⁷ Ah, you that turn justice to wormwood, and bring righteousness to the ground!

⁸ The one who made the Pleiades and Orion,
and turns deep darkness into the morning,
and darkens the day into night,
who calls for the waters of the sea,
and pours them out on the surface of
the earth,
the LORD is his name,

⁹ who makes destruction flash out against the strong,
so that destruction comes upon the fortress.

¹⁰ They hate the one who reproveth in the gate,
and they abhor the one who speaks the truth.

¹¹ Therefore because you trample on the poor
and take from them levies of grain,
you have built houses of hewn stone,

but you shall not live in them;
you have planted pleasant vineyards,
but you shall not drink their wine.

¹² For I know how many are your
transgressions,
and how great are your sins—
you who afflict the righteous, who take a bribe,
and push aside the needy in the gate.
¹³ Therefore the prudent will keep silent in such a time;
for it is an evil time.

¹⁴ Seek good and not evil,
that you may live;
and so the LORD, the God of hosts, will be
with you,
just as you have said.

¹⁵ Hate evil and love good,
and establish justice in the gate;
it may be that the LORD, the God of hosts, will be gracious to the remnant of Joseph.

¹⁶ Therefore thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord:
In all the squares there shall be wailing;
and in all the streets they shall say, “Alas! alas!”
They shall call the farmers to mourning, and those skilled in lamentation, to wailing;
¹⁷ in all the vineyards there shall be wailing,
for I will pass through the midst of you,
says the LORD.

24.6; Prov 28.5; Isa 55.6). The prophet enjoins Israel to seek the LORD, not the sanctuaries of the LORD. 5: For Bethel and Gilgal, see 3.14n.; 4.4n. Beer-sheba, though in the Negeb to the far south, was a shrine associated with Israel's ancestors (Gen 21.25–31; 26.23; 46.1–4) and would have attracted pilgrims from the north. 6: House of Joseph, (i.e., the Northern Kingdom). Its two main parts were Ephraim and Manasseh, named for the sons of Joseph (Gen 41.50–52; 48). 7: The dried leaves of wormwood were aromatic and bitter; here, injustice leads to bitterness (see 6.12).

5.8–9: The second doxology (see 4.13n.). 8: Pleiades and Orion also occur together in Job 9.9; 38.31. Though astral bodies could inspire illicit worship (e.g., 2 Kings 23.5), to the faithful they testified to God's power (e.g., Ps 8.3).

5.10–17: Amos condemns a corrupt legal system. 10–13: At the very site of legal proceedings, the city gate, the truth is rejected, the poor are plundered, and witnesses are bribed. 11: A futility curse, in which the connections between actions and their expected effects are broken; cf. Deut 28.30–31,38–46; Mic 6.14–15; Zeph 1.13. 12: Cf. 2.6–7. 14–15: Another plea for repentance; see vv. 4–7; Joseph, see 5.6n. 16–17: Staying with the images of village life and returning to the motif of lament (5.1–3), Amos depicts the divine punishment for injustice. 16: Skilled in lamentation, professional mourners; see Jer 9.17–21; Ezek 32.16; Eccl 12.5; 2 Chr 35.25.

¹⁸ Alas for you who desire the day of the
LORD!
Why do you want the day of the
LORD?

It is darkness, not light;
¹⁹ as if someone fled from a lion,
and was met by a bear;
or went into the house and rested a hand
against the wall,
and was bitten by a snake.

²⁰ Is not the day of the LORD darkness, not
light,
and gloom with no brightness in it?

²¹ I hate, I despise your festivals, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies.

²² Even though you offer me your burnt offerings and grain offerings,
I will not accept them;
and the offerings of well-being of your fatted animals
I will not look upon.

²³ Take away from me the noise of your songs;
I will not listen to the melody of your harps.

²⁴ But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream.

²⁵ Did you bring to me sacrifices and offerings the forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel? ²⁶ You shall take up Sak-kuth your king, and Kaiwan your star-god, your images,^a which you made for yourselves;
²⁷ therefore I will take you into exile beyond Damascus, says the LORD, whose name is the God of hosts.

6 Alas for those who are at ease in Zion, and for those who feel secure on Mount Samaria,

the notables of the first of the nations,
to whom the house of Israel resorts!

² Cross over to Calneh, and see;
from there go to Hamath the great;
then go down to Gath of the Philistines.
Are you better^b than these kingdoms?

Or is your^c territory greater than their^d territory,

³ O you that put far away the evil day,
and bring near a reign of violence?

⁴ Alas for those who lie on beds of ivory,
and lounge on their couches,

^a Heb your images, your star-god

^b Or Are they better

^c Heb their

^d Heb your

5.18–6.14: A series of “woe” sayings (5.18–25; 6.1–3; 6.4–14) complete the section of judgment speeches.

5.18–20: The day of the LORD, in which Israelites expected to be vindicated against their enemies, will be, as depicted already in 1.1–2.16, a day when Israel too receives its judgment. See also Isa 13.6,9; Jer 46.10; Joel 2.1–2; Mal 4.5.

5.21–27: The LORD delights not in abundance of festivals and sacrifices but in justice and righteousness. See also Isa 1.10–17; Mic 6.6–8; Ps 50. 21–23: The language is harsh. Festivals refers to the three pilgrimage feasts (Ex 23.14–17; 34.18,22–23; Deut 16.16), as does solemn assemblies (Lev 23.36; Deut 16.8). The sacrifices in v. 22 were prescribed; see, e.g., Lev 7.8–14. Songs is often used of hymns (see 8.3), such as the psalms (e.g., see title of Ps 120). For a similar view, see Isa 1.11–17. 24: Justice and righteousness, care for the poor. An ever-flowing stream is a riverbed that never fails, as opposed to a wadi, common in Israel’s landscape, which had runoff water only in the rainy season. 25: As in Jeremiah (2.2–3) and Hosea (2.14–20; 9.10), the period in the wilderness after the Exodus is recalled as an ideal. Like Jer 7.21–23, the rhetorical question presumes that sacrifice was not a component of Israel’s religious system immediately after the Exodus. This is inconsistent with other biblical traditions (contrast Ex 20–Num 10). 26: Sakkuth and Kaiwan (Saturn) designate known Assyrian deities. Sakkuth may be the same as the “Succoth” whose cult the Babylonians established in Samaria after its fall (2 Kings 17.30). 27: Damascus, 1.3–5n.

6.1–7: An indictment of conspicuous consumption. 1: Amos targets the elite of the capitals of both Judah (Zion, i.e., Jerusalem) and Israel (Mount Samaria). 2: Cf. Isa 10.9–11. Calneh and Hamath were prosperous cities of Syria, conquered by the Assyrians in 738 BCE; the allusion to Gath, the only Philistine city unmentioned in 1.6–8, could refer to its defeat at the hands of Syria (2 Kings 12.18) or Judah (2 Chr 26.6), or its conquest by the Assyrians in 711. 4: Beds of ivory, see 3.15n. Hundreds of ivory fragments have been excavated from the site of and eat lambs from the flock, and calves from the stall;

⁵ who sing idle songs to the sound of the harp,
 and like David improvise on instruments of music;
⁶ who drink wine from bowls, and anoint themselves with the finest oils,
 but are not grieved over the ruin of Joseph!
⁷ Therefore they shall now be the first to go into exile,
 and the revelry of the loungers shall pass away.

⁸ The Lord God has sworn by himself (says the LORD, the God of hosts):
 I abhor the pride of Jacob and hate his strongholds;
 and I will deliver up the city and all that is in it.

⁹ If ten people remain in one house, they shall die. ¹⁰ And if a relative, one who burns the dead,^a shall take up the body to bring it out of the house, and shall say to someone in the innermost parts of the house, "Is anyone else with you?" the answer will come, "No." Then the relative^b shall say, "Hush! We must not mention the name of the LORD."

¹¹ See, the LORD commands, and the great house shall be shattered
 to bits,
 and the little house to pieces.

¹² Do horses run on rocks?
 Does one plow the sea with oxen?^c
 But you have turned justice into poison and the fruit of righteousness into
 wormwood—

¹³ you who rejoice in Lo-debar,^d who say, "Have we not by our own strength
 taken Karnaim^e for ourselves?"

¹⁴ Indeed, I am raising up against you a nation,
 O house of Israel, says the LORD, the God of hosts,
 and they shall oppress you from Lebo-hamath
 to the Wadi Arabah.

7 This is what the Lord God showed me:
 he was forming locusts at the time the latter growth began to sprout (it was the latter growth after the king's mowings). ² When

^a Or who makes a burning for him

^b Heb he

^c Or Does one plow them with oxen

^d Or in a thing of nothingness

^e Or horns

Samaria. 5: David, 1 Sam 16.23; 1 Chr 23.5; Neh 12.36. 6–7: Joseph, see 5.6n. The elite of Samaria, accustomed to the choicest products, will be the first chosen for deportation by the Assyrians. 7: The revelry (Heb "marzeah") was a social and funerary ritual banquet of Canaanite origin; cf. Jer 16.5.

6.8–14: Judgment on Israel. Jacob, here referring to the Northern Kingdom. The house of Israel, both as a sociopolitical body and as representative of its palatial strongholds, is doomed. 9–10: Burns the dead probably refers to practices to stop the spread of infection. In this extremity, the few survivors dare not mention the name of the LORD, out of fear of inviting their own destruction from a deity still intent on destruction. 12: Israel's legal and moral machinations are a perversion bordering on the absurd. Wormwood, see 5.7n. 13: Lo-debar and Karnaim are two cities east of the Jordan recovered for Israel by Jeroboam II (2 Kings 14.25). The verse puns on the names of the cities, which mean "No-thing" and "Horns (i.e., strength)," respectively. 14: An unnamed nation will be the instrument of God's judgment. From Lebo-hamath to the Wadi Arabah, the farthest limits of Israelite territory (see 2 Kings 14.25), from the Orontes Valley in Lebanon to the north to the Rift Valley in the southeast.

7.1–9.15: The visions of Amos. The final section of the book consists of accounts and interpretations of five visions which become increasingly severe (7.1–3, 4–6, 7–9; 8.1–3; 9.1–6), a biographical account about the prophet (7.10–17), and prophetic oracles (8.4–14; 9.5–15).

7.1–9: The first three of five visions and Amos's intercession. Amos acts as an intercessor on behalf of Israel (see Gen 18.17; Ex 32.7–14). Yet prophetic intercession, while effective in the short term, will ultimately not deter God from punishing sinful Israel.

7.1–3: Judgment by locusts (cf. Joel 1.2–7). 1: A locust plague at the time of the latter growth endangered the spring planting, just sprouting, after the harvest of the winter crops. 2: The prophet appeals to God's sense of proportion:

they had finished eating the grass of the land,
I said,

“O Lord GOD, forgive, I beg you!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!”

³The LORD relented concerning this;
“It shall not be,” said the LORD.

⁴This is what the Lord GOD showed me:
the Lord GOD was calling for a shower of fire,^a and it devoured the great deep and was eating up the land. ⁵Then I said,

“O Lord GOD, cease, I beg you!
How can Jacob stand?
He is so small!”

⁶The LORD relented concerning this;
“This also shall not be,” said the Lord
GOD.

⁷This is what he showed me: the Lord was standing beside a wall built with a plumb line, with a plumb line in his hand. ⁸And the LORD said to me, “Amos, what do you see?”
And I said, “A plumb line.” Then the Lord
said,

“See, I am setting a plumb line in the midst of my people Israel;
I will never again pass them by;

⁹the high places of Isaac shall be made desolate,
and the sanctuaries of Israel shall be
laid waste,

and I will rise against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.”

¹⁰Then Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent to King Jeroboam of Israel, saying, “Amos has conspired against you in the very center of the house of Israel; the land is not able to bear all his words. ¹¹For thus Amos has said, ‘Jeroboam shall die by the sword, and Israel must go into exile away from his land.’”

¹²And Amaziah said to Amos, “O seer, go, flee away to the land of Judah, earn your bread there, and prophesy there; ¹³but never again prophesy at Bethel, for it is the king’s sanctuary, and it is a temple of the kingdom.”

¹⁴Then Amos answered Amaziah, “I am^b no prophet, nor a prophet’s son; but I am^b a herdsman, and a dresser of sycamore trees, ¹⁵and the LORD took me from following the flock, and the LORD said to me, ‘Go, prophesy to my people Israel.’”

¹⁶“Now therefore hear the word of the LORD.
You say, ‘Do not prophesy against Israel, and do not preach against the house of Isaac.’”

¹⁷Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Your wife shall become a prostitute in the city,

^a Or for a judgment by fire

^b Or was

Israel (Jacob) is so small and, by implication, God is so big (cf. Job 7.20). ³: The LORD relented, God’s mind changed concerning the punishment, although forgiveness is not offered, as Amos requested (see also Ex 32.14; Joel 2.13; Jon 4.2).

7.4–6: Judgment by fire. ⁴: The great deep, the cosmic waters under the earth and over the heavens (see Gen 1.2).

7.7–9: Israel falls short. The plumb line (2 Kings 21.13–15), a device for determining the true vertical line of a structure, reveals that Israel’s religious and political institutions do not measure up and will be destroyed; here the prophet offers no intercessory protest or plea, though he does maintain a dialogue with God. High places were open-air sanctuaries. Though acceptable in earlier eras, Amos and Hosea (10.8) condemned them as places of illicit worship. Isaac, a rare designation for the Northern Kingdom (see v. 16). House of Jeroboam, the royal dynasty of Jeroboam II (788–747 BCE).

7.10–17: Amos and Amaziah. This episode, a narrative illustration of 2.12 in the form of a dramatic encounter between the royal priest and the prophet, the classic outsider, is here perhaps because the reference to King Jeroboam (v. 10) picks up the phrase “house of Jeroboam” (v. 9). Amaziah was the official priest of the royal shrine at Bethel (see 3.14n.). ¹⁰: Whether or not the charge against Amos is accurate, prophets such as Elisha did engage in political upheavals (2 Kings 9.1–10). ¹¹: For thus Amos has said, Amaziah does not attribute the prophet’s words to God. The first utterance Amaziah cites (Jeroboam shall die . . .) is the rough but not exact equivalent of 7.9; the second phrase (Israel must go . . .) is similar to 4.2–3; 5.5,26–27; 6.7; 9.4. ¹²: Earn your bread, lit., “eat bread.” ¹⁴: Amos asserts that he is neither a professional prophet (1 Sam 9.6–10; Mic 3.5–8,11) nor a member of a prophetic guild (2 Kings 2.3; 1 Sam 10.5; 1 Kings 22.6), but a herdsman of cattle (cf. 1.11n.) and seasonally a dresser of sycamore trees (see Introduction). ¹⁵: Cf. 2 Sam 7.8. ¹⁷: A dreadful string of curses: May your wife . . . become and your sons and your daughters shall fall by the sword,

and your land shall be parceled out by line;
you yourself shall die in an unclean land,
and Israel shall surely go into exile away from its land.’”

8 This is what the Lord GOD showed me—a basket of summer fruit.^{a 2} He said, “Amos, what do you see?” And I said, “A basket of summer fruit.”^a Then the LORD said to me,

“The end^b has come upon my people
Israel;

I will never again pass them by.

³The songs of the temple^c shall become wailings in that day,”

says the Lord GOD;

“the dead bodies shall be many,
cast out in every place. Be silent!”

⁴Hear this, you that trample on the
needy,
and bring to ruin the poor of the land,

⁵saying, “When will the new moon be over so that we may sell grain;
and the sabbath,
so that we may offer wheat for sale?

We will make the ephah small and the shekel great,
and practice deceit with false balances, ⁶buying the poor for silver
and the needy for a pair of sandals,
and selling the sweepings of the wheat.”

⁷The LORD has sworn by the pride of Jacob: Surely I will never forget any of their deeds.

⁸Shall not the land tremble on this account,
and everyone mourn who lives in it,
and all of it rise like the Nile,
and be tossed about and sink again, like the Nile of Egypt?

⁹On that day, says the Lord GOD,
I will make the sun go down at noon,
and darken the earth in broad daylight.

¹⁰I will turn your feasts into mourning,
and all your songs into lamentation;
I will bring sackcloth on all loins,
and baldness on every head;

^a Heb qayits

^b Heb qets

^c Or palace

a prostitute; may others acquire title to your land (i.e., parcel it out with a measuring line). Israel shall surely go, Amos closes his response to Amaziah by repeating the latter’s words from v. 11.

8.1–9.15: Further visions and oracles. The final two chapters of Amos have a similar outline: Both begin with visions (8.1–3; 9.1–6), followed by oracles with many literary connections (cf. 8.8 with 9.5; 8.9 with 9.11; 8.11 with 9.13).

8.1–3: Fourth vision. A basket of ripe summer fruit symbolizes the immediacy of Israel’s end. Note the pun in Hebrew between summer fruit, “qayits,” and end, “qets.” 2: I will never again pass them by, God will no longer mitigate Israel’s punishment, see 7.8. Contrast 5.17, where God’s presence brings destruction. 3: Songs of the temple, see 5.21–23n. Wailings, see 5.16. Be silent, after the conclusion of the fourth and before the fifth and final vision (9.1–4) the prophet who had interceded and maintained dialogue with God through the previous visions is rendered speechless.

8.4–14: Judgment speeches against Israel; cf. 3.1–6.14. 4–6: Rapacious and fraudulent business practices victimize the poor; cf. 2.6–7. 5: The merchants are impatient for the holy days to pass so they can resume their fraudulent business (Lev 19.35–36; Deut 25.13–16). The new moon, see Num 29.6. Ephah small, sell less than the apparent volume; an ephah was ca. .66 bu (23 l). Shekel great, overcharge; a shekel weighed ca. .4 oz (11.5 gr). False balances, scales rigged in the merchant’s favor. 6: Buying the poor probably refers to outright slavery, as opposed to selling the righteous (2.6) into debt slavery. Sweepings of the wheat, they sell the chaff as wheat. 7: Pride of Jacob, may be an epithet for God (cf. 1 Sam 15.29) or for Israel (see Ps 47.4). Here the term is ironic, for it is the sinful pride of Israel that prompts God’s reproach (see 6.8; Jer 13.9; Hos 7.10). That God does not forget is often a comfort (see Deut 4.31; Ps 9.12; Isa 49.15), but here it brings judgment. 8: Tremble, perhaps another reference to an earthquake (see Introduction). Like the Nile ... tossed about and sink, the annual inundation of the Nile (9.5; Jer 46.7–8). 9–10: A solar eclipse portends divine punishment and elicits mourning rituals. Sackcloth and baldness were customary expressions of mourning associated with national disaster (e.g., Isa 22.12). An only

I will make it like the mourning for an only son, and the end of it like a bitter day.

¹¹The time is surely coming, says the Lord GOD, when I will send a famine on the land;
not a famine of bread, or a thirst for water,
but of hearing the words of the LORD.

¹²They shall wander from sea to sea,
and from north to east;
they shall run to and fro, seeking the word
of the LORD,
but they shall not find it.

¹³In that day the beautiful young women and the young men
shall faint for thirst.

¹⁴Those who swear by Ashimah of Samaria,
and say, “As your god lives, O Dan,”
and, “As the way of Beer-sheba lives”— they shall fall, and never rise again.

9 I saw the LORD standing beside^a the altar, and he said:
Strike the capitals until the thresholds shake, and shatter them on the heads of all the people;^b
and those who are left I will kill with the
sword;
not one of them shall flee away,
not one of them shall escape.

²Though they dig into Sheol,
from there shall my hand take them;

though they climb up to heaven,
from there I will bring them down.
³Though they hide themselves on the top of Carmel,

from there I will search out and take
them;
and though they hide from my sight at the bottom of the sea,
there I will command the sea-serpent,
and it shall bite them.

⁴And though they go into captivity in front of their enemies, there I will command the sword, and it shall kill them;
and I will fix my eyes on them
for harm and not for good.

⁵The Lord, GOD of hosts,
he who touches the earth and it melts,
and all who live in it mourn,
and all of it rises like the Nile,
and sinks again, like the Nile of Egypt;

⁶who builds his upper chambers in the
heavens,
and founds his vault upon the earth;
who calls for the waters of the sea,
and pours them out upon the surface of
the earth—
the LORD is his name.

^a Or on

^b Heb all of them

son, Jer 6.26; Zech 12.10. 11–12: No longer will God’s judgment come as a famine or drought (contrast 4.6), but rather as an absence of prophecy, thus extinguishing the intercessory role of prophets in times of turmoil. 14: Ashimah (or “guilt”) of Samaria could be a Syrian deity (2 Kings 17.30) or a disparaging reference (“the guilt”) to the practice of treating the cosmic LORD merely as the patron of a local shrine, whether in the center of Israel (Samaria), the farthest north (Dan), or the farthest south (Beer-sheba).

9.1–6: Fifth vision. For other appearances of the LORD at shrines, see 1 Sam 3.1–18; Isa 6.1–13. 1: Probably the altar at Bethel (3.14; 7.10) is intended. Capital, the top of a pillar. Threshold, the foundational slab of the doorposts. The entire structure, from ceiling to foundation, will shake; see Isa 6.4. 2: Sheol, the place of the dead (Job 10.19–22; Isa 14.11,15), which, Amos asserts, is within God’s purview (Ps 139.7–12), though many feared it was not (e.g., Ps 6.6; 88.3–5). 3: Mount Carmel, which juts into the Mediterranean at the northwestern border of Israel, reaches a summit of ca. 550 m (1,800 ft) above sea level and also boasts caves and forests for those who wish to hide. Sea-serpent, sea monsters, personifications of chaos, are at times cast as opponents of God (Ps 72.13); at other times, as here, as God’s servants (Ps 104.25–26; Job 41). 5–6: The third hymnlike passage (4.13; 5.8–9). 5: See 8.8n. 6: Upper chambers, Ps 104.3. The vault is another name for the celestial barrier thought to separate the earth from the cosmic waters (Gen 1.6–8; Prov 8.27).

⁷ Are you not like the Ethiopians^a to me,
O people of Israel? says the LORD.
Did I not bring Israel up from the land of Egypt,

and the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?

⁸ The eyes of the Lord GOD are upon the sinful kingdom,
and I will destroy it from the face of the
earth
—except that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob,

says the LORD.

⁹ For lo, I will command, and shake the house of Israel among all
the nations
as one shakes with a sieve,
but no pebble shall fall to the ground.

¹⁰ All the sinners of my people shall die by
the sword,
who say, “Evil shall not overtake or meet us.”

¹¹ On that day I will raise up the booth of David that is fallen,
and repair its^b breaches,
and raise up its^c ruins,
and rebuild it as in the days of old;

¹² in order that they may possess the remnant of Edom

and all the nations who are called by my
name,
says the LORD who does this.

¹³ The time is surely coming, says the
LORD,
when the one who plows shall overtake
the one who reaps,
and the treader of grapes the one who sows the seed;
the mountains shall drip sweet wine,
and all the hills shall flow with it.

¹⁴ I will restore the fortunes of my people
Israel,
and they shall rebuild the ruined cities
and inhabit them;
they shall plant vineyards and drink their
wine,
and they shall make gardens and eat their fruit.

¹⁵ I will plant them upon their land, and they shall never again be plucked up
out of the land that I have given them,
says the LORD your God.

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

^b Gk: Heb their

^c Gk: Heb his

9.7–10: Israel has no claim to special privilege. Amos refutes the idea that Israel's relationship with God implies its superiority. This oracle suggests, positively, that God has enacted other exoduses at other times and places and, negatively, that Israel stands in judgment alongside the nations; see 3.2. 7: Like the Ethiopians, even distant Nubia is within God's purview. Philistines from Caphtor (probably Crete) (Jer 47.4). Kir, see 1.5n. 8: Though the political entity of the Northern Kingdom will be destroyed, the people of Israel, here the House of Jacob, will not. 9: Sieve, used to separate grain from stones picked up on the threshing room floor.

9.11–15: An oracle of restoration. Prophetic collections often end on a similar, hopeful note; many, as above, refer to that day (Hos 14.1–7; Joel 3.18–21; Mic 7.11–20; Zeph 3.14–20; Hag 2.20; Zech 14.6,20; Mal 14.1–5). 11: Booth of David, elsewhere in Amos, the fate of the Davidic dynasty, depicted here as in ruins, had not been a concern. This verse, at least, sounds like it stems from a later time, after the dynasty had fallen. The phrase “booth of David” suggests a more fragile structure than the more frequent “house of David” (cf. 2 Sam 7.11; Isa 1.8). 12: Edom was a traditional rival of Judah, not Israel, so this is further evidence that part or all of this final oracle was added after the fall of Samaria in 722 BCE, at a time when the book was reinterpreted for Judahites. 13: See Joel 3.18–21. Shall overtake, see Lev 26.5.

OBADIAH

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND CANONICAL STATUS

The name Obadiah means “servant of Yah[weh].” Other persons with the same name occur in the books of Kings, Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah, though none of them seems related. Because no information about the prophet is found in the book, this oracle is functionally anonymous.

Obadiah is the shortest book in the Hebrew Bible, containing only verse numbers. Although some ancient manuscripts place it between Joel and Jonah, its placement in the Masoretic Text between Amos and Jonah (reflected in the NRSV) is seen by some scholars as reflection of the editors’ attempt to create a theologically unified Book of the Twelve. The similarity between Amos’s final statements on Edom (Am 9.11–12) and Obadiah’s critique of Edom lends credence to this view.

CONTENTS AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

Obadiah makes three interlocking claims: Edom, a nation east of Judah, is currently in distress; this distress is just recompense for its treatment of Judah, its brother; and in a future reversal of fortunes Judah’s exiles will possess the land of Edom. The accusations leveled against Edom in vv. 10–14, that Edom stood aside while strangers attacked Jerusalem and even aided in the invasion of the city, are usually understood to refer to Edomite action during the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE.

Other biblical books share Obadiah’s anger against Edom. Anti-Edomite oracles appear in Isa 34.5–8; 63.1–4; Ezek 25.12–13; 35.5–6,15; 36.5; Joel 3.19; and Jer 49.7–22; the language of the latter closely parallels Obadiah. Psalm 137.7 calls for revenge against Edom, and Ezek 36.5 and 1 Esd 4.50 join Obadiah in charging that Edomites/Idumeans confiscated Judah’s land. Obadiah sees Edom’s activities as especially heinous due to the brotherhood of the two nations; the tradition that Edom and Judah descend from the brothers Esau and Jacob is found in Gen 25; Deut 2.5; and Mal 1.2–5.

Archaeologists and historians confirm the instability of this area during the seventh and sixth centuries BCE, fomented by a series of Babylonian invasions. Ostraca from Arad suggest that after the Babylonian invasion of Judah in 597 Edom gained control of Judean territory in the Negeb; after the second Babylonian invasion of Judah in 586, Edomite control may have reached farther north into the Shephelah.

In 552 BCE, the Babylonian king Nabonidus invaded Edom, attacked the city of Sela, and integrated the Edomite kingdom into the province of Arabia. Edomite territory later became part of the Arab kingdom of Qedar and then the Persian province of Idumea. The closing verses of Obadiah may reflect Judean glee in these territorial losses, as well as the hope that Judah would reclaim the Negeb and extend its borders in every direction. Hence, while many date Obadiah close to the traumatic events of 586, it instead may have been written in a later generation, as its author sought to establish Judah’s land claims by recalling Edom’s past crimes and appealing to the rhetoric of brotherhood. Perhaps already in the book of Obadiah, but certainly in the following centuries, “Edom” was used symbolically to describe nations who oppose God.

Julia M. O’Brien

¹The vision of Obadiah.

Thus says the Lord God concerning Edom:
We have heard a report from the Lord,
and a messenger has been sent among
the nations:

“Rise up! Let us rise against it for battle!”

²I will surely make you least among the
nations;
you shall be utterly despised.

³Your proud heart has deceived you, you that live in the clefts of the rock,^a whose dwelling is in the heights.

You say in your heart,

“Who will bring me down to the ground?”

⁴Though you soar aloft like the eagle, though your nest is set among the stars,
from there I will bring you down,
says the Lord.

⁵If thieves came to you,
if plunderers by night
—how you have been destroyed!— would they not steal only what they wanted?

If grape-gatherers came to you,
would they not leave gleanings?

⁶How Esau has been pillaged, his treasures searched out!

⁷All your allies have deceived you,
they have driven you to the border;
your confederates have prevailed against
you;

those who ate^b your bread have set a trap for you—

there is no understanding of it.

⁸On that day, says the Lord,
I will destroy the wise out of Edom,
and understanding out of Mount Esau.

⁹Your warriors shall be shattered, O Teman,
so that everyone from Mount Esau will be cut off.

¹⁰For the slaughter and violence done to your brother Jacob,
shame shall cover you,
and you shall be cut off forever.

^a Or clefts of Sela

^b Cn: Heb lacks those who ate

1a: Superscription. A distinctively prophetic term, vision also occurs in Isa 1.1 and Nah 1.1.

1b–4: Edom’s pending destruction. These verses closely parallel Jer 49.12–16, although in Jeremiah feminine forms are used to describe Edom. The theme of reversal runs throughout the book: Edom’s fortunes have changed. 1b–2: “Thus says the Lord” is the classic form of “prophetic messenger speech,” marking the words as those of the deity. Both other nations and God are described as rising up against Edom. 3: Prophetic books frequently condemn the proud, especially among the nations (Isa 10.12; 13.11,19; 16.6; Jer 48.29; Zeph 2.10; 9.6; Zech 10.11). 3–4: Clefts of the rock: the same Heb word means “rock” (see Ps 137.9) and “Sela,” an Edomite city captured by the Babylonian armies in 552 BCE and linked with the later city of Petra. Repeated pairs of opposites (proud/despised; heights/ground; soar aloft/bring down) underscore the reversal of Edom’s fate.

5–7: Edom at the hand of the nations. These verses imply that Edom’s former allies have begun its devastation, as in Jer 49.9–10. 5: A difficult verse, suggesting that Edom’s loss is beyond that caused by simple thieves. Leave gleanings, see Deut 24.21. 6: Esau is described as Jacob’s brother and the ancestor of the Edomites in Gen 25. 7: Edom’s former allies and confederates are not named. The Hebrew of this verse is difficult.

8–9: Edom at the hand of God. God will complete Edom’s devastation on that day, a common prophetic term for “the day of the Lord” (see v. 15), when God defeats Israel’s enemies. Phrases are shared with Jer 49.7, 22. Only Obadiah uses the phrase Mount Esau; Deut 2.2 speaks instead of “Mount Seir,” the mountainous region on the boundary between Edom and Judah. 9: Teman refers either to the northern region of Edom (as in Am 1.12) or to Edom as a whole.

10–14: Edom as treacherous brother. Edom’s actions are especially treacherous because Esau/Edom was the brother of Jacob/Judah (Gen 25.7). On the day appears nine times in this unit, apparently referring to the traumatic day of Jerusalem’s fall. The accusations against Edom build—that Edom stood aside, gloated, boasted, looted, and finally committed physical acts against fleeing Judeans. Although the NRSV translates 12–14 as you should not have, the forms are Heb jussives; see textual note a, on the next page. While Ps 137.7 also blames Edomites, claiming they rejoiced in Jerusalem’s destruction, 2 Kings 24.2 blames bands of Arameans, Moabites, and Ammonites for coming up against Jerusalem, with no mention of Edomites. Jeremiah 40.11 indicates that Judeans fleeing the Babylonians had escaped to Moab, Ammon, Edom and elsewhere. 11: Cast lots, see Joel 3.3.

¹¹ On the day that you stood aside, on the day that strangers carried off his
 wealth,
 and foreigners entered his gates and cast lots for Jerusalem, you too were like one of them.

¹² But you should not have gloated^a over^b your brother
 on the day of his misfortune;
 you should not have rejoiced over the people of Judah
 on the day of their ruin;
 you should not have boasted
 on the day of distress.

¹³ You should not have entered the gate of
 my people
 on the day of their calamity;
 you should not have joined in the gloating over Judah's^c disaster
 on the day of his calamity;
 you should not have looted his goods
 on the day of his calamity.

¹⁴ You should not have stood at the crossings
 to cut off his fugitives;
 you should not have handed over his survivors
 on the day of distress.

¹⁵ For the day of the LORD is near against all
 the nations.
 As you have done, it shall be done to
 you;
 your deeds shall return on your own
 head.

¹⁶ For as you have drunk on my holy
 mountain,
 all the nations around you shall drink;
 they shall drink and gulp down,^d and shall be as though they had never been.

¹⁷ But on Mount Zion there shall be those that escape,
 and it shall be holy;
 and the house of Jacob shall take possession of those who dispossessed them.

¹⁸ The house of Jacob shall be a fire,
 the house of Joseph a flame,
 and the house of Esau stubble;
 they shall burn them and consume them,
 and there shall be no survivor of the house of Esau;
 for the LORD has spoken.

¹⁹ Those of the Negeb shall possess Mount Esau,
 and those of the Shephelah the land of the Philistines;
 they shall possess the land of Ephraim and
 the land of Samaria,
 and Benjamin shall possess Gilead.

²⁰ The exiles of the Israelites who are in Halah^e

^a Heb But do not gloat (and similarly through verse 14)

^b Heb on the day of

^c Heb his

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Cn: Heb in this army

15–18: The day of the LORD. Edom's fate will be shared by all hostile nations, as they suffer a reversal of fates on the day that God acts to (re)establish justice. 16: As in other prophetic books, retribution is depicted as drinking a cup of wrath (Isa 51.17,22; Jer 25.17; Hab 2.16; Zech 12.2). 17–18: The reversal of fates will benefit Judah, whose devastation will turn to preeminence. 17: Mount Zion, a synonym for Jerusalem, is contrasted with Mount Esau in v. 8. The house of Jacob, here southern Israel (i.e., Judah). 18: The house of Joseph is Israel, the Northern Kingdom destroyed in 722 BCE. As in Mal 4.1, the day of the LORD will burn the unrighteous like stubble.

19–21: Reclamation and expansion of territory. 19: Judeans in the Negeb will expand eastward to take Edom. Those in the Shephelah, the western foothills of Judah, will seize territory from the neighboring Philistines and then advance northward, first into the tribal territory of Ephraim and then farther northward to Samaria. The southern Judean tribe of Benjamin will expand eastward across the Jordan River to take the land of Gilead. 20: Survivors of both the Assyrian destruction of the Northern Kingdom in the eighth century BCE and the Babylonian destruction of the Southern Kingdom in the sixth century BCE will return to aid in Judah's territorial expansion. Those exiled to the Assyrian territory of Halath (2 Kings 17.6) will take Zarephath in Phoenicia, territory never previously possessed by Israel. Those exiled by the Babylonians will return from Sepharad, location unknown, and possess the Negeb, mentioned at the beginning of the unit. 21: The concluding verse justifies Mount Zion's control of Mount Esau (see 17n.), under the auspices of Judah's God.

OBADIAH

shall possess^a Phoenicia as far as Zarephath;
and the exiles of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad
shall possess the towns of the Negeb.
²¹Those who have been saved^b shall go up to Mount Zion

to rule Mount Esau;
and the kingdom shall be the LORD'S.

^a Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Or Saviors

JONAH

NAME AND LOCATION IN CANON

The book of Jonah is a story about a prophet rather than a collection of his prophecies, as we find in the other prophetic books. It is the fifth of the Minor Prophets in the Hebrew Bible, where its placement between Obadiah and Micah reflects midrashic traditions concerning the dating of Obadiah, Jonah, and Micah. The Septuagint places Jonah as the sixth of the twelve Minor Prophets and Nahum as the seventh, an arrangement also reflected in 2 Esd 1.38–40.

Jonah son of Amittai is mentioned elsewhere in the Bible only in 2 Kings 14.25 as a prophet who prophesied in the Northern Kingdom of Israel in the days of King Jeroboam II in the mid-eighth century BCE. The author of the book likely chose Jonah as his protagonist since attributing the events to a prophet mentioned in Israel's history granted his work authenticity, and because the event described in Kings deals with God's compassion and mercy, the central theme of the book of Jonah: in Kings the Northern Kingdom is spared, while in Jonah, the Assyrian Empire, its enemy, is forgiven.

STRUCTURE

The book is in two parts, each with three scenes:

Chs 1–2	God's first call to Jonah
1.1–3	Jonah's commission and attempt to flee
1.4–16	The moral: one cannot flee from God
2.1–11	Jonah, in the fish, prays and is saved
Chs 3–4	God's second call to Jonah
3.1–4	Jonah's mission and its completion
3.5–10	The repentance of Nineveh and God's forgiveness
4.1–11	Jonah's prayer-complaint, and the moral he learns from God

The two parts are symmetrical: the opening command assigning both missions is almost identical; the formulation of Jonah's flight and that of the fulfillment of the second mission open with the same words, "Jonah set out" (1.3; 3.3); both second scenes feature foreigners who are depicted favorably in contrast to Jonah; similar phrasing is used when the ship captain and the king of Nineveh express their belief in God when they are in danger, though unsure that their belief will save them (1.6; 3.6–9); Jonah prays to God in both final scenes: in 2.2 in order to save himself, and in 4.2–3 to express frustration over God's saving the people of Nineveh.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

The author of the book of Jonah is unknown. Its language places it in the Second Temple period, its vocabulary and syntax corresponding with those of the Bible's later books, Aramaic sources, and rabbinic literature. The book was apparently written after the destruction of the Assyrian capital of Nineveh in 612 BCE, since it refers to that city in the past tense (3.3), and the king is not called the "king of Assyria" but the "king of Nineveh" (3.6), an inappropriate title. The book should be dated no later than the third century BCE.

A late date is also suggested by Jonah's use of earlier biblical texts. For example, in the story of the flood, the earth is described as being "filled with violence" (Gen 6.11,13), while in Jonah, the king of Nineveh expresses the hope that repentance will cause the people to "turn from . . . the violence that is in their hands" (3.8). In the flood story, God's regret over creating humankind causes God to want now to destroy it (Gen 6.6), while in Jonah, God regrets the impulse to destroy the Ninevites (Jon 3.10). Similarly, the evil of the Ninevites and their punishment is like that of the inhabitants of Sodom (1.2; cf. Gen 18.20), while Jonah appears as Abraham's opposite. In the story of Sodom, Abraham pleads with God to save the city for the sake of the few righteous people without expecting the city's repentance (Gen 18.22–33). Jonah, in contrast, flees, refusing to warn the Ninevites lest they repent and be saved. Jonah is also depicted as the opposite of Abraham's nephew Lot, who warned his sons-in-law of imminent destruction until being taken from Sodom by angels; Jonah's proclamation, "Forty days more, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!" (3.4) is recited unwillingly, and then he even leaves the city to watch events unfold with complete lack of interest (4.5). Jonah is also contrasted with Moses, who was willing to die if God did not forgive the Israelites after they made the golden calf (Ex 32). Jonah's actions are also patterned after those of Elijah, who fled from Jezebel and his mission and asked to die (1 Kings 19). Jonah 4.2 appears to quote God's attributes (Ex 34.6–7) as they are presented in Joel 2.13. Jeremiah's prophecies (Jer 26.3; 36.7) echo in the words of the king of Nineveh who, with Jonah behaving as an anti-prophet, himself assumes the role of prophet and rouses his people to repent (3.8). He also used Ps 107.23–32 to shape ch 1.

INTERPRETATION

Jonah is not a historical book in the sense of recalling events that actually occurred; its characters and setting provide the means for the writer to convey his message. Part of that message concerns the power of repentance. Repentance, however, is not the book's central theme: if it were, the first three chapters would suffice, and Jonah's flight would be irrelevant. Instead, the book of Jonah concerns the essence of prophecy. Jonah knows God's attributes, that he is "gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love, and ready to relent from punishing" (4.2). He knows that God will relent from destroying Nineveh and thus he flees, certain that his prophecy of destruction will be proven false. Jonah represents the concept, expressed explicitly in Deut 18.21–22, that the single proof for a prophecy's truth is its realization. God seeks to teach Jonah values more lofty than a prophecy's realization or a prophet's reliability—the saving of God's creation when found worthy. The book therefore illustrates the position—voiced openly in Jer 28.9—that although a prophecy of peace must be fulfilled in order to prove that its deliverer is a true prophet, a prophecy of destruction is meant, from the outset, to educate and bring repentance. This holds true even for foreign nations: the prophecy of doom is a conditional prophecy that will come true only in the absence of repentance (Jer 18.7–8).

The book of Jonah, unlike other prophetic writings, uses humor or irony to make its point. Exaggerated behavior (running away from God, 1.3); inappropriate actions (sleeping through a violent storm, 1.5); outlandish situations (offering a prayer of thanksgiving from inside a fish's belly, 2.1); ludicrous commands (animals must fast and wear sackcloth, 3.7–8); and emotions either contrary to expectation (anger at mercy, 4.1–2) or out of proportion (being angry enough to die because a plant has withered, 4.9) appear throughout the story.

The book has a role disproportionate to its size within religious tradition. Judaism, picking up on its theme of repentance, reads it liturgically on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. It is cited several times in the New Testament, where Jonah prefigures Jesus who spent "three days and three nights . . . in the heart of the earth" (Mt 12.40).

Yair Zakovitch

1 Now the word of the LORD came to Jonah son of Amittai, saying, ²“Go at once to Nineveh, that great city, and cry out against it; for their wickedness has come up before me.” ³But Jonah set out to flee to Tarshish from the presence of the LORD. He went down to Joppa and found a ship going to Tarshish; so he paid his fare and went on board, to go with them to Tarshish, away from the presence of the LORD.

⁴But the LORD hurled a great wind upon the sea, and such a mighty storm came upon the sea that the ship threatened to break up. ⁵Then the mariners were afraid, and each cried to his god. They threw the cargo that was in the ship into the sea, to lighten it for them. Jonah, meanwhile, had gone down into the hold of the ship and had lain down, and was fast asleep. ⁶The captain came and said to him, “What are you doing sound asleep? Get up, call on your god! Perhaps the god will spare us a thought so that we do not perish.”

⁷The sailors^a said to one another, “Come, let us cast lots, so that we may know on whose account this calamity has come upon us.” So they cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonah. ⁸Then they said to him, “Tell us why this calamity has come upon us. What is your occupation? Where do you come from? What is your country? And of what people are you?” ⁹“I am a Hebrew,” he replied. “I worship the LORD, the God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land.” ¹⁰Then the men were even more afraid, and said to him, “What is this that you have done!” For the men knew that he was fleeing from the presence of the LORD, because he had told them so.

¹¹Then they said to him, “What shall we do to you, that the sea may quiet down for us?” For the sea was growing more and more tempestuous. ¹²He said to them, “Pick me up and throw me into the sea; then the sea will quiet down for you; for I know it is because of me that this great storm has come upon you.” ¹³Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring the ship back to land, but they could not, for the sea grew more and more stormy against them. ¹⁴Then they cried out to the LORD, “Please, O LORD, we pray, do not let us perish on account of this man’s life. Do not make us guilty of innocent blood; for you, O LORD, have done as it pleased you.” ¹⁵So they picked Jonah up and threw him into the sea; and the sea ceased from its raging. ¹⁶Then the men feared the LORD even more, and they offered a sacrifice to the LORD and made vows.

¹⁷^bBut the LORD provided a large fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights.

^a Heb They

^b Ch 2.1 in Heb

1–2: God’s first call to Jonah. 1.1–3: Jonah’s commission and attempt to flee. Neither what Jonah was commanded to say nor the reason for his flight is given. Jonah’s full name, which means “dove, the son of truth,” may be symbolic. Joppa, modern Jaffa, is on the Mediterranean coast near Tel Aviv. Tarshish (Isa 23.1; Ezek 27.22,25) is probably Tartessus in southwestern Spain, which was the farthest point in the west to which Phoenician sailors had reached in their Mediterranean voyages. 4–16: The moral: one cannot flee from God. Jonah realizes the impossibility of flight—God, ruler of the seas, causes a great storm. The sailors call to their gods for help, before turning to the practical matter of tossing the ship’s cargo into the sea, whereas Jonah continues to flee, this time escaping into sleep. Ironically the prophet takes no part in the attempted rescue, and the ship’s captain must rouse Jonah to call out to his God. 7: Using lots, a standard form of divination in the ancient Near East, the sailors discover who is responsible; curious, they ask Jonah a series of questions. 9: Jonah’s answer reveals another irony: although he knew that God made the sea, Jonah fled to the sea to escape him. Jonah identifies himself as a Hebrew, a term typically used of Israelites among non-Israelites. The LORD, the God of heaven is a title found only in Second Temple period biblical texts. 16: The section ends with the report of the sailors’ awe (feared; cf. vv. 5,10) of the LORD; their sacrifice and vows show their belief in him. 17: Provided, the verb appears three more times (4.6,7,8), always indicating a divine act that immediately affects Jonah’s situation. The fish carries out God’s will in order to teach the prophet a lesson, like the she-ass whose mouth is opened by God to mock the prophet Balaam (Num 22.28–30) and the ravens that feed Elijah (1 Kings 17.6) in order to teach Elijah that God is merciful.

2 Then Jonah prayed to the LORD his God from the belly of the fish, ²saying, “I called to the LORD out of my distress, and he answered me; out of the belly of Sheol I cried, and you heard my voice. ³You cast me into the deep, into the heart of the seas, and the flood surrounded me; all your waves and your billows passed over me. ⁴Then I said, ‘I am driven away from your sight; how^a shall I look again upon your holy temple?’ ⁵The waters closed in over me; the deep surrounded me; weeds were wrapped around my head ⁶at the roots of the mountains. I went down to the land whose bars closed upon me forever; yet you brought up my life from the Pit, O LORD my God. ⁷As my life was ebbing away, I remembered the LORD; and my prayer came to you, into your holy temple. ⁸Those who worship vain idols forsake their true loyalty. ⁹But I with the voice of thanksgiving will sacrifice to you;

2.10–11: Jonah, in the fish, prays and is saved. Jonah had avoided turning to God on the ship, but now he has no other choice. The psalm (like those in 1 Sam 2.1–10 and Isa 38.9–20) was incorporated into the story at a secondary stage. It is a psalm of thanksgiving and not a prayer for salvation, and does not correspond to the context, although it has loose connections with Jonah’s situation. The image of drowning, expressing suffering in Psalms (e.g., Ps 69.2–3,15–16), reflects an ancient concept that the netherworld is found in the deep, at the roots of the mountains; its doors are bolted (v. 6) and none who enter will return. Despite the poet’s being in Sheol, God, in his holy temple, nevertheless hears his prayer (v. 7). 2: Sheol, the underworld, the abode of the dead. 4: The wish to visit the temple, God’s home, is common in Psalms (e.g., 5.7). 9: Cf. 1.16. 10: God who made the sea and the dry land (1.9) returns Jonah from the sea to the dry land. God speaks to the fish, not yet to Jonah directly. The term “spew” (literally, “vomit”) mocks Jonah.

3–4: God’s second call to Jonah. 3.1–10: Jonah’s mission and its completion. This time Jonah obeys. Before we hear of Jonah entering Nineveh, the storyteller dwells on Nineveh’s size, a significant detail in that all its inhabitants may perish. 3: A three days’ walk across, excavations have revealed a city ca. 2.5 mi (4.2 km) long and 1.25 mi (2.5 km) wide; thus the description of its size is an exaggeration. Jonah’s proclamation, after walking only a third of the way in, is cursory, even omitting the preliminary “Thus said the Lord,” proof of his insincerity and his disinterest in the Ninevites’ repentance. 4: Forty days is frequently a stereotypical period of time in the Bible (e.g., Gen 8.6; Ex 24.18). 5–10: The Ninevites repent and God forgives. Despite Jonah’s brevity, the Ninevites believe in God and perform customs of mourning and repentance (cf. 2 Sam 3.31; Job 2.12; Dan 9.3);

what I have vowed I will pay.

Deliverance belongs to the LORD!”

¹⁰Then the LORD spoke to the fish, and it spewed Jonah out upon the dry land.

3 The word of the LORD came to Jonah a second time, saying, ²“Get up, go to Nineveh, that great city, and proclaim to it the message that I tell you.” ³So Jonah set out and went to Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an exceedingly large city, a three days’ walk across. ⁴Jonah began to go into the city, going a day’s walk. And he cried out, “Forty days more, and Nineveh shall be overthrown!” ⁵And the people of Nineveh believed God; they proclaimed a fast, and everyone, great and small, put on sackcloth.

⁶When the news reached the king of Nineveh, he rose from his throne, removed his robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. ⁷Then he had a proclamation made in Nineveh: “By the decree of the king and his nobles: No human being or animal, no herd or flock, shall taste anything. They shall not feed, nor shall they drink water. ⁸Human beings and animals shall be covered with sackcloth, and they shall cry mightily to God. All shall turn from their evil ways and from the violence that is in their hands. ⁹ Who knows? God may relent and change his mind; he may turn from his fierce anger, so that we do not perish.”

^a Theodotion: Heb surely

¹⁰ When God saw what they did, how they turned from their evil ways, God changed his mind about the calamity that he had said he would bring upon them; and he did not do it.

4 But this was very displeasing to Jonah, and he became angry. ² He prayed to the LORD and said, “O LORD! Is not this what I said while I was still in my own country? That is why I fled to Tarshish at the beginning; for I knew that you are a gracious God and merciful, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love, and ready to relent from punishing.

³ And now, O LORD, please take my life from me, for it is better for me to die than to live.”

⁴ And the LORD said, “Is it right for you to be angry?” ⁵ Then Jonah went out of the city and sat down east of the city, and made a booth for himself there. He sat under it in the shade, waiting to see what would become of the city.

⁶ The LORD God appointed a bush,^a and made it come up over Jonah, to give shade over his head, to save him from his discomfort; so Jonah was very happy about the bush. ⁷ But when dawn came up the next day, God appointed a worm that attacked the bush, so that it withered. ⁸ When the sun rose, God prepared a sultry east wind, and the sun beat down on the head of Jonah so that he was faint and asked that he might die. He said, “It is better for me to die than to live.”

⁹ But God said to Jonah, “Is it right for you to be angry about the bush?” And he said, “Yes, angry enough to die.” ¹⁰ Then the LORD said, “You are concerned about the bush, for which you did not labor and which you did not grow; it came into being in a night and perished in a night. ¹¹ And should I not be concerned about Nineveh, that great city, in which there are more than a hundred and twenty thousand persons who do not know their right hand from their left, and also many animals?”

^a Heb qiqayon, possibly the castor bean plant

even the animals repent. 9: Cf. 1.6. These foreigners understand that supplications before God may awaken his mercy, a notion tightly linked with the lesson the author wishes to impart.

4.1–11: Jonah’s prayer-complaint, and the moral he learns from God. 2–3: Jonah’s second prayer to God is ironic: previously he asked for mercy for himself (2.2), now he resents the mercy shown toward the Ninevites. The prayer is in two parts: in v. 2 he provides his reasoning, in v. 3 he makes his request. 2: Jonah describes God’s character with words taken from God’s self-definition in Ex 34.6–7. It is similar to other biblical texts (Pss 86.15; 103.8; 145.8; Neh 9.31; 2 Chr 30.9; Joel 2.13) that quote only the part about God’s mercy (and not his severity—see Ex 34.7b). Jonah objects to God’s compassion, turning praise for God into condemnation. 3: An ironic reversal of 1 Kings 19.4, where Elijah offers legitimate reasons to die. 11: The size of the city is again exaggerated. The book concludes with a question, which Jonah does not answer, suggesting that he is not the focus of this story. Instead it is didactic, suggesting that the reader must carefully ponder the nature of God.

MICAH

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The book of Micah gives us little information about the prophet himself, for whom the book is named. According to 1.1, Micah prophesied in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah whose reigns spanned 759–687 BCE. Possible allusions to the fall of Samaria, the capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, in 722 (1.6), and to the campaign of Sennacherib, the Assyrian king, in 701 (1.10–16), place the prophet in the final quarter of the eighth century. As such he was a younger contemporary of Isaiah of Jerusalem. Like Hosea, Amos, and especially Isaiah, Micah lived in a tumultuous era, the events of which are recounted in 2 Kings 16–20.

LOCATION IN CANON

The prophet Micah was among the earliest of the Minor Prophets. In the organization of the Book of the Twelve in the Masoretic Text (MT), Micah follows Jonah, an arrangement apparently based on chronology since, according to 2 Kings 14.25, Jonah also lived in the eighth century. Micah is loosely connected to the following book of Nahum by catchwords; compare the final section of Micah (7.18–19) with the initial unit of Nahum (1.1–3).

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The book may be divided into three sections: chs 1–3; 4–5; 6–7. Some scholars think that chs 1–3 form the oldest core of the book; it is characterized by the judgmental tone for which Micah was most famous (Jer 26.18). Chs 1–3 consist mainly of oracles of judgment; chs 4–5 of oracles of hope. The final section, chs 6–7, begins with judgment and moves to hope. This alternation between judgment and hope may conform to some pattern in Micah's preaching or it may be an organizing device of later editors. The book of Micah may also have material from subsequent periods (e.g., 4.10 speaks of the Babylonian exile; 7.11 seems to reflect the postexilic period). Further evidence of editorial activity is the close correspondence between Micah 4.1–5 and Isaiah 2.2–5.

INTERPRETATION

Micah offered a theological interpretation of the dizzying events near the end of the eighth century: the fall of Samaria, the expansion of Jerusalem fueled by emigrants from the north, and the international situation made unstable by an aggressive superpower, Assyria. Micah, from a small town southwest of Jerusalem, Moresheth-gath, had a populist message. He expressed disdain for the corruptions and pretensions of Jerusalem and its leaders. He recalled the traditions of early Israel (3.9–10; 6.3–5), and condemned religious practice unaccompanied by ethical performance (6.6–8).

While Amos and Hosea condemned the high places, provincial shrines where the proper worship of the LORD was diluted by illicit elements, Micah called Jerusalem itself a high place (1.5) and announced its destruction, for which he was long remembered; a century after Micah, in a rare direct quotation of one prophet by another, Jeremiah (26.18) quotes Micah (3.12). At the same time, Micah never lost faith in the future. The middle section of the book, chs 4–5, contains images of a restored and glorious Zion to which the nations make pilgrimage, and of an ideal king (5.2–5).

It is instructive to see how Micah's rural background shaped his populist vision of the ideal king, or "messiah." Isaiah, Micah's contemporary, used the birth of a royal child (Hezekiah, son of Ahaz, was probably intended) in the Judahite capital of Jerusalem as a symbol of hope (Isa 7.10–14). Micah affirmed the Davidic lineage of the ideal king by tracing his roots to Bethlehem (5.2), David's home village (1 Sam 17:12), but also reminded his audience that their greatest king once did and will again emerge from "one of the little clans of Judah" (5.2).

Gregory Mobley

1 The word of the LORD that came to Micah of Moresheth in the days of Kings Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah of Judah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem.

²Hear, you peoples, all of you;
listen, O earth, and all that is in it;
and let the Lord God be a witness against
you,
the Lord from his holy temple.

³For lo, the LORD is coming out of his
place,
and will come down and tread upon the high places of the earth.

⁴Then the mountains will melt under him and the valleys will burst open,
like wax near the fire,
like waters poured down a steep place.

⁵All this is for the transgression of Jacob and for the sins of the house of Israel.
What is the transgression of Jacob?
Is it not Samaria?
And what is the high place^a of Judah?
Is it not Jerusalem?

⁶Therefore I will make Samaria a heap in the open country,

a place for planting vineyards.
I will pour down her stones into the valley,
and uncover her foundations.

⁷All her images shall be beaten to pieces,
all her wages shall be burned with fire,
and all her idols I will lay waste;
for as the wages of a prostitute she gathered them,
and as the wages of a prostitute they shall again be used.

⁸For this I will lament and wail;
I will go barefoot and naked;
I will make lamentation like the jackals,
and mourning like the ostriches.

⁹For her wound^b is incurable.
It has come to Judah;
it has reached to the gate of my people,
to Jerusalem.

¹⁰Tell it not in Gath,
weep not at all;
in Beth-leaphrah

^a Heb what are the high places

^b Gk Syr Vg: Heb wounds

1.1: Superscription. Among the Minor Prophets, this superscription is closest in form to those for Hosea (1.1), Amos (1.1), and Zephaniah (1.1). Micah is a short form of the name Micaiah (1 Kings 22), which means, “Who is like Yahweh?” Moresheth, a small town in southwest Judah (cf. 1.14), probably Tell el-Judeideh, 23 mi (37 km) southwest of Jerusalem. Jotham reigned from ca. 759 to 743 BCE; Ahaz from 743/735 to 727/715; Hezekiah from 727/715 to 698/687 (the data are inconsistent for the reigns of Ahaz and Hezekiah). Which he saw, Judean prophecy often had a visionary quality (e.g., Isa 1.1; Ezek 1.1.; Am 1.1; Ob 1; Nah 1.1; Hab 1.1).

1.2–3.12: Speeches condemning Judean society and its leaders. This collection of speeches begins with an indictment of Samaria, capital of the Northern Kingdom, and ends with an indictment of Jerusalem, capital of the Southern Kingdom. This first major section of Micah is dominated by judgment speeches.

1.2–7: The coming of the LORD. In grand style, the LORD descends from heaven to punish Samaria. This oracle is probably to be dated before 722 BCE, when Samaria fell to the Assyrians. 2: Hear, you peoples, 1 Kings 22.28. Listen, O earth, Isa 1:2. Lord God, Heb “Adonai YHWH.” His holy temple, his heavenly abode; see Ps 11.4; Hab 2:20. 3–4: Judg 5.4; Pss 68.8; 97.1–5; Isa 26.21. 3: High places, in general, hills and mountains (cf. Am 4.13), here perhaps with the specific connotation of illicit rural shrines. 5: Jacob, poetic synonym for Israel; cf. Gen 32.28. High place usually designates an open-air shrine but seems to refer here to the Solomonic Temple. The linked condemnation of Samaria and Jerusalem is also found in Am 6.1. 7: This destruction of images is consistent with Deuteronomic law (Deut 7.25; 12.3). The phrase wages of a prostitute recalls the imagery of Hos 2.2–13; cf. Deut 23.18; Ezek 16.31.

1.8–16: A lament for Samaria, and Jerusalem too. 8: Barefoot . . . naked, conventional mourning behavior (2 Sam 15.30; Ezek 24.17,23), employed for effect by Micah’s contemporary Isaiah (Isa 20.2). Jackals and ostriches, associated with desolation because they frequented ruins and produced eerie howls or cries; see also Job 30.29; Isa 34.13.

1.10–16: These towns in southwestern Judah lay along the path of the Assyrian king Sennacherib’s campaign in 701 BCE (2 Kings 18–19; Isa 36–37), although the specific locations of several are unknown. There is a pun in virtually every verse of this section, lost in translation. To capture the wordplay in English one might translate v.

roll yourselves in the dust.
¹¹ Pass on your way,
 inhabitants of Shaphir,
 in nakedness and shame;
 the inhabitants of Zaanan
 do not come forth;
 Beth-ezel is wailing
 and shall remove its support from you.
¹² For the inhabitants of Maroth wait anxiously for good, yet disaster has come down from the LORD to the gate of Jerusalem.
¹³ Harness the steeds to the chariots, inhabitants of Lachish;
 it was the beginning of sin
 to daughter Zion,
 for in you were found
 the transgressions of Israel.
¹⁴ Therefore you shall give parting gifts to Moresbeth-gath;
 the houses of Achzib shall be a deception
 to the kings of Israel.
¹⁵ I will again bring a conqueror upon you, inhabitants of Mareshah;
 the glory of Israel
 shall come to Adullam.
¹⁶ Make yourselves bald and cut off your hair
 for your pampered children;
 make yourselves as bald as the eagle,
 for they have gone from you into exile.

2 Alas for those who devise wickedness and evil deeds^a on their beds!
 When the morning dawns, they perform it,
 because it is in their power.

² They covet fields, and seize them;
 houses, and take them away;

they oppress householder and house,
 people and their inheritance.
³ Therefore thus says the LORD:
 Now, I am devising against this family an evil
 from which you cannot remove your necks;
 and you shall not walk haughtily,
 for it will be an evil time.
⁴ On that day they shall take up a taunt song against you,
 and wail with bitter lamentation,
 and say, “We are utterly ruined;
 the LORD^b alters the inheritance of my
 people;
 how he removes it from me!
 Among our captors^c he parcels out our fields.”
⁵ Therefore you will have no one to cast the line by lot
 in the assembly of the LORD.
⁶ “Do not preach”—thus they preach—“one should not preach of such things;
 disgrace will not overtake us.”
⁷ Should this be said, O house of Jacob?
 Is the LORD’s patience exhausted?
 Are these his doings?
 Do not my words do good to one who walks uprightly?
⁸ But you rise up against my people^d as an enemy;

^a Cn: Heb work evil

^b Heb he

^c Cn: Heb the rebellious

^d Cn: Heb But yesterday my people rose

12: “the inhabitants of Bitterness wait . . . for something sweet.” 10: Gath, one of the five Philistine cities on the coast; 2 Sam 1.20b. 13: Sennacherib’s siege of Lachish, an important city 28 mi (45 km) southwest of Jerusalem, is depicted in Assyrian records. 14: Moresbeth-gath, see 1.1n. 15: Mareshah, later known as Marisa, is modern Tell Sandahanna, 3 mi (5 km) northeast of Lachish. 16: Make yourselves bald, an extreme form of mourning behavior (e.g., Isa 15.2; Jer 7.29; 16.6; Am 8.10). Pampered children (better, “children of your delight”) is not pejorative. It depicts the grief of parents bereft of exiled children. The eagle, more exactly, the griffon vulture.

2.1–5: The LORD will punish the land barons. 1–2: Ps 36.4; Isa 5.8–12; 32.7. Micah condemns the injustice and inhumanity of creditors who, through manipulation of credit and courts, foreclose on family farms. 2: Covet, Ex 20:17. 3: The evil will be like a yoke on their necks. 4: Taunt song, cf. Num 21.27–30; Isa 23.15–16; Hab 2.6. 5: Cast the line by lot, on a piece of land, thus acquiring title to it (Josh 18.6–10; Ps 16.6). For another prophetic vision of a future redistribution of the land, see Ezek 48.

2.6–11: The prophet responds to criticism. Micah, like other prophets (Isa 30.10; Jer 5.31; Am 2.12), realizes his uncompromising message is not one his audience wants to hear. 8: Strip the robe, cf. Am 2:8.

you strip the robe from the peaceful,^a from those who pass by trustingly with no thought of war.

⁹The women of my people you drive out from their pleasant houses;
from their young children you take away
my glory forever.

¹⁰Arise and go;
for this is no place to rest,
because of uncleanness that destroys with a grievous destruction.^b

¹¹If someone were to go about uttering empty falsehoods,
saying, “I will preach to you of wine and strong drink,”
such a one would be the preacher for this people!

¹²I will surely gather all of you, O Jacob,
I will gather the survivors of Israel;
I will set them together
like sheep in a fold,
like a flock in its pasture;
it will resound with people.

¹³The one who breaks out will go up before
them;
they will break through and pass the
gate,
going out by it.
Their king will pass on before them,
the LORD at their head.

3 And I said:
Listen, you heads of Jacob and rulers of the house of Israel!
Should you not know justice?— ²you who hate the good and love the
evil,
who tear the skin off my people,^c
and the flesh off their bones; ³who eat the flesh of my people, flay their skin off them,

break their bones in pieces,
and chop them up like meat^d in a kettle,
like flesh in a caldron.

⁴Then they will cry to the LORD,
but he will not answer them;
he will hide his face from them at that
time,
because they have acted wickedly.

⁵Thus says the LORD concerning the prophets
who lead my people astray, who cry “Peace”
when they have something to eat, but declare war against those who put nothing into their mouths.

⁶Therefore it shall be night to you, without vision,
and darkness to you, without revelation.

The sun shall go down upon the prophets,
and the day shall be black over them;

⁷the seers shall be disgraced, and the diviners put to shame;
they shall all cover their lips,
for there is no answer from God.

⁸But as for me, I am filled with power, with the spirit of the LORD,
and with justice and might,
to declare to Jacob his transgression
and to Israel his sin.

^a Cn: Heb from before a garment

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb from them

^d Gk: Heb as

2.12–13: A shift to an oracle of encouragement. Against the background of exile, whether in 722 or 587 BCE, this oracle counters despair with images of the LORD as shepherd (v. 12) and victorious king (v. 13); cf. Isa 40.10–11. 13: The one who breaks out (i.e., the LORD); see Ex 19.22; 2 Sam 5.20; 6.8.

3.1–4: The LORD will punish the judicial leaders. Corrupt judges are described as cannibals; Ezekiel also used this image (Ezek 11.5–12; 24.1–14). 1: Listen, lit., “Hear,” as in 1.1; 3.9; 6.1; 6.9b, a common introduction to Micah’s oracles. 2: For comparison, Isa 5.20; for contrast, Am 5.15. 4: Futile cry to the LORD (i.e., prayer), cf. Isa 1.15.

3.5–8: The LORD will punish the religious leaders. Micah’s rival prophets are crowd pleasers (see also 2.11), inspired on commission (v. 5; cf. v. 11); by contrast, see Micah’s source of inspiration in v. 8. 6: A time without vision, 1 Sam 3.1. 7: Seers, see 1 Sam 9.9. Diviners, see Deut 13.1. Cover their lips, a sign of mourning (Lev 13.45; Ezek 24.17,22). 8: Filled . . . with the spirit, Isa 11.2; 61.1–3; Ezek 2.2.

⁹ Hear this, you rulers of the house of Jacob
 and chiefs of the house of Israel, who abhor justice
 and pervert all equity, ¹⁰ who build Zion with blood and Jerusalem with wrong!
¹¹ Its rulers give judgment for a bribe,
 its priests teach for a price,
 its prophets give oracles for money;
 yet they lean upon the LORD and say, “Surely the LORD is with us!
 No harm shall come upon us.”
¹² Therefore because of you
 Zion shall be plowed as a field;
 Jerusalem shall become a heap of ruins,
 and the mountain of the house a wooded height.

4 In days to come
 the mountain of the LORD’s house
 shall be established as the highest of the
 mountains,
 and shall be raised up above the hills.
 Peoples shall stream to it, ² and many nations shall come and say:
 “Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD,
 to the house of the God of Jacob;

that he may teach us his ways
 and that we may walk in his paths.”
 For out of Zion shall go forth instruction,
 and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.

³ He shall judge between many peoples, and shall arbitrate between strong nations far away;
 they shall beat their swords into
 plowshares,
 and their spears into pruning
 hooks;

nation shall not lift up sword against
 nation,
 neither shall they learn war any
 more;

⁴ but they shall all sit under their own vines and under their own fig
 trees,
 and no one shall make them afraid;
 for the mouth of the LORD of hosts has
 spoken.

⁵ For all the peoples walk,
 each in the name of its god,
 but we will walk in the name of the LORD our God
 forever and ever.

3.9–12: Summary: Its leadership corrupt, Jerusalem is doomed. The first section ends with Micah’s bold assertion that Jerusalem and the Temple itself shall be destroyed because of the corruption of its leaders. 10: Who build Zion, following the collapse of the Northern Kingdom, Jerusalem expanded as it absorbed refugees; Hab 2.12. 11–12: Prophecy is inseparable from context: Here, hopes in Zion’s inviolability are dashed; contrast Ps 46, where they are confirmed. Heap of ruins, Jerusalem’s fate shall be similar to that of Samaria (1.6). This parallel reveals a key strategy of the preexilic Judean prophets: The fall of Samaria served as an example to Judah. 12: This prophecy was quoted at the trial of Jeremiah (Jer 26.18). Mountain of the house, see 4.1.

4.1–5.15: Speeches promising divine restoration and exaltation of the people Israel and the city Jerusalem. A series of poems depicts an ideal age (“that day”) when God reigns, Israel triumphs, and the nations are judged. Some scholars date this section to the exilic or postexilic period (see 4.10n.). Alternately, possible allusions to the Babylonian exile (e.g., 4.6,10) could stem from editors who recast Micah’s oracles for a later audience.

4.1–8: The ideal age is depicted in three poems, the first of which (vv. 1–4) is nearly identical to Isaiah 2.2–4. 1–2: There is a universal pilgrimage to Mount Zion, to which cosmic significance is ascribed here as the mountain of the Lord’s house. 1: Highest of the mountains, claims for Mount Zion’s height (Ps 48.3; Ezek 40.2) were symbolic, not topographic. 2: Instruction, Heb “torah.” 3–4: A classic articulation of the Israelite prophetic ideal: peace and a social equality rooted in family ownership of land. 3: Swords into plowshares (or “plowpoints,” a stick with a small metal point), i.e., the transition from war to peace, as the militia citizens convert to farmers. For the opposite movement, see Joel 3.10; 1 Kings 4.25; 2 Kings 18.31 = Isa 36.16. 5: Like its similarly worded parallel in Isa 2.5, this verse may have been read antiphonally, as an “Amen” to the visionary speech of

⁶ In that day, says the LORD,
I will assemble the lame and gather those who have been driven
away,
and those whom I have afflicted.

⁷ The lame I will make the remnant, and those who were cast off, a strong
nation;
and the LORD will reign over them in Mount Zion
now and forevermore.

⁸ And you, O tower of the flock, hill of daughter Zion,
to you it shall come,
the former dominion shall come,
the sovereignty of daughter
Jerusalem.

⁹ Now why do you cry aloud?
Is there no king in you?
Has your counselor perished, that pangs have seized you like a woman in labor?

¹⁰ Writhe and groan,^a O daughter Zion, like a woman in labor;
for now you shall go forth from the city
and camp in the open country;
you shall go to Babylon.
There you shall be rescued,
there the LORD will redeem you from the hands of your enemies.

¹¹ Now many nations
are assembled against you,

saying, "Let her be profaned, and let our eyes gaze upon Zion."

¹² But they do not know the thoughts of the LORD;
they do not understand his plan,
that he has gathered them as sheaves to the threshing floor.

¹³ Arise and thresh, O daughter Zion,
for I will make your horn iron and your hoofs bronze;
you shall beat in pieces many peoples,
and shall^b devote their gain to the LORD, their wealth to the Lord of the whole
earth.

5^c Now you are walled around with a wall;^d siege is laid against us;
with a rod they strike the ruler of Israel
upon the cheek.

^{2e} But you, O Bethlehem of Ephrathah, who are one of the little clans of Judah,
from you shall come forth for me
one who is to rule in Israel, whose origin is from of old,
from ancient days.

³ Therefore he shall give them up until the time

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Gk Syr Tg: Heb and I will

^c Ch 4.14 in Heb

^d Cn Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Ch 5.1 in Heb

4.1–4 (= Isa 2.2–4). 6–7: Cf. Zeph 3.19–20. 8: Tower of the flock, an old epithet for Jerusalem (see "tower of Eder" in Gen 35.21; "Eder" means "flock"). Daughter Zion, a metaphorical term for Jerusalem; cf. 2 Kings 19.21; Lam 1.6. Cities were frequently represented as female in the ancient Near East.

4.9–10: The LORD will rescue the exiles. This speech, which describes the exiles' march to Babylon and promises their redemption, addresses the situation of the sixth century BCE, not the eighth. Like a woman in labor, Isa 13.8; 26.17; Jer 4.31.

4.11–13: Israel will crush its enemies. The LORD has planned a stunning reversal. At the very place outside Jerusalem where hostile nations assemble, the city gate (also the site of threshing floors), Israel shall trample them like an ox's hooves smash husks of grain; cf. Isa 41.14–16. Assembled against you; cf. Pss 1.2; 48.4; Ezek 38.7–9. 13: For Israel as bovine, see Hos 10.11. Devote their gain, Deut 20.16; Josh 6.18–19.

5.1: Strike . . . the cheek, a gesture of insult; see 1 Kings 22.24; Job 16.10; Ps 3.7; Lam 3.30.

5.2–5a: A messianic poem. A new David shall arise, not from Jerusalem but from Bethlehem, David's place of birth, to rule in this ideal age. The New Testament interprets this poem as referring to the birth of Jesus (Mt 2.6; cf. Jn 7.40–43). 2: Bethlehem, located 6 mi (10 km) south of Jerusalem; Gen 35.19; Ruth 4.11; 1 Sam 17.12. Ephrathah, the name of a Judahite clan and region; the latter includes the village of Bethlehem. The prophet Amos (9.11) also uses the phrase of old in reference to David. 3: Isaiah of Jerusalem, a contemporary of Micah, also described when she who is in labor has brought forth;

 then the rest of his kindred shall return to the people of Israel.
⁴ And he shall stand and feed his flock in the strength of the LORD, in the majesty of the name of the LORD
 his God.
 And they shall live secure, for now he shall be great
 to the ends of the earth;
⁵ and he shall be the one of peace.

If the Assyrians come into our land and tread upon our soil,^a we will raise against them seven shepherds
 and eight installed as rulers.
⁶ They shall rule the land of Assyria with
 the sword,
 and the land of Nimrod with the drawn sword;^b
 they^c shall rescue us from the Assyrians
 if they come into our land or tread within our border.

⁷ Then the remnant of Jacob,
 surrounded by many peoples,
 shall be like dew from the LORD,
 like showers on the grass,
 which do not depend upon people or wait for any mortal.

⁸ And among the nations the remnant of Jacob,
 surrounded by many peoples,
 shall be like a lion among the animals of the forest,

like a young lion among the flocks of sheep,
 which, when it goes through, treads
 down
 and tears in pieces, with no one to deliver.
⁹ Your hand shall be lifted up over your
 adversaries,
 and all your enemies shall be cut off.
¹⁰ In that day, says the LORD,
 I will cut off your horses from among
 you
 and will destroy your chariots;
¹¹ and I will cut off the cities of your land and throw down all your strongholds;
¹² and I will cut off sorceries from your
 hand,
 and you shall have no more soothsayers;
¹³ and I will cut off your images and your pillars from among you, and you shall bow down no more to the work of your hands; ¹⁴ and I will uproot your sacred poles^d from among you
 and destroy your towns.
¹⁵ And in anger and wrath I will execute vengeance
 on the nations that did not obey.

^a Gk: Heb in our palaces

^b Cn: Heb in its entrances

^c Heb he

^d Heb Asherim

the birth of an ideal king (7:14; 9:6). She who is in labor, either the actual mother of the future ruler or perhaps symbolically Zion (see 4:10). 4: His flock, cf. 2:12–13.

5:5b–6: Assyria will be defeated. In the new age, Israel will not lack for leaders (contrast chs 2–3). 5: Seven . . . eight, a sufficient number (see Am 1:3n). 6: Land of Nimrod, Assyria; Gen 10:8–11 identifies Nimrod as a legendary warrior and king of Assyria.

5:7–9: Israel gains the upper hand. 7: Dew, Israel's continued existence, like the dew each morning, is guaranteed by God; cf. 2 Sam 17:12.

5:10–15: But before reconstruction, demolition. The repetition of first-person verbs at the beginning of each line (I will cut off, four times; I will uproot; I will execute vengeance) sets the tone. 10: Cut off your horses . . . and . . . chariots, Israel must rely on the LORD, not military force (Pss 20:17; 33:13–17; Zech 9:10). 11: Jer 5:17; Hos 10:12–14. 12: The precise forms these means of divination took are unknown; for the biblical prohibition, see Deut 18:10–11. 13–14: Pillars and sacred poles, Canaanite ritual objects, banned for Israel (Ex 34:13). According to 2 Kings 18:4, King Hezekiah did cut off and uproot these sites of illicit worship.

6 Hear what the LORD says: Rise, plead your case before the
 mountains,
 and let the hills hear your voice.
²Hear, you mountains, the controversy of
 the LORD,
 and you enduring foundations of the
 earth;
 for the LORD has a controversy with his
 people,
 and he will contend with Israel.
³“O my people, what have I done to you?
 In what have I wearied you? Answer
 me!
⁴For I brought you up from the land of Egypt,
 and redeemed you from the house of slavery;
 and I sent before you Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.
⁵O my people, remember now what King Balak of Moab devised,
 what Balaam son of Beor answered him,
 and what happened from Shittim to Gilgal, that you may know the saving acts of
 the LORD.”
⁶“With what shall I come before the LORD, and bow myself before God on high?

Shall I come before him with burnt
 offerings,
 with calves a year old?
⁷Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams,
 with ten thousands of rivers of oil?
 Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression,
 the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?”
⁸He has told you, O mortal, what is good;
 and what does the LORD require of you
 but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God?
⁹The voice of the LORD cries to the city
 (it is sound wisdom to fear your name):
 Hear, O tribe and assembly of the city!^a ¹⁰Can I forget^b the treasures of wickedness in the house of the
 wicked,
 and the scant measure that is accursed?
¹¹Can I tolerate wicked scales and a bag of dishonest weights?

^a Cn Compare Gk: Heb tribe, and who has appointed it yet?

^b Cn: Meaning of Heb uncertain

6.1–7.20: A prophetic sampler moves from legal indictment of Israel’s guilt to liturgical affirmation of God’s mercy. The final section of Micah consists of four units, of different genres, which extend the themes of the first section (1.2–3.12).

6.1–8: A divine lawsuit for violation of covenant. There are frequent shifts of speakers here, from the LORD (v. 1) to the prophet (v. 2) and back to the LORD (vv. 3–5), to a spokesperson for the community (vv. 6–7) and back to the prophet (v. 8), who delivers the punchline, the epitome of the entire Israelite prophetic tradition. 1–2: The audience, in the style of ancient treaty witnesses, is the heavenly court whose members (mountains, hills, foundations of the earth) are not deified as in Israel’s neighboring religions but personified for dramatic effect; cf. Isa 1.2; Deut 32.1. Controversy, lawsuit. 4–5: A summary of what the LORD had done for Israel, bringing it out of Egypt to the Promised Land, under the leadership of Moses, Aaron, and Miriam. Cf. Ex 20.2; Hos 12.13. 4: Note the prominence of Miriam (Ex 15.20–21). 5: Balak, Balaam, Num 22–24. 5: From Shittim (Josh 3.1) to Gilgal (Josh 4.19) refers to the crossing of the Jordan. 6–7: For similar attitudes toward animal sacrifices, see Isa 1.11; Pss 50.13; 51.16–17. 6: Cf. Pss 15.1; 24.3. Burnt offerings were sacrifices wholly dedicated to God with no share for participants in the ritual. Calves a year old, Lev 9:3. 7: My firstborn, though human sacrifice was occasionally practiced in the Iron Age, the exaggerated terms elsewhere (“thousands of rams,” “ten thousands of rivers of oil”) suggest that Micah is being rhetorical. 8: In this single sentence the prophet sums up a century of brilliant prophecy; see Am 5.21–24; Hos 6.6; Isa 1.11–17. Kindness, Heb “hesed,” covenant loyalty. Walk humbly means “live ever mindful of,” “in communion with”; cf. Gen 5:24.

6.9–16: Jerusalem, the corrupt city, is cursed. Jerusalem, as wicked as Samaria (see v. 16), must be destroyed. This speech can be read as a separate oracle or as the judicial sentence following the indictment in 6.1–8. 10: Treasures of wickedness, that is, wealth gained through wrongdoing. 11: Wicked scales, Lev 19:36; Deut 25:13–15;

¹²Your^a wealthy are full of violence;
your^b inhabitants speak lies,
with tongues of deceit in their mouths.

¹³Therefore I have begun^c to strike you
down,
making you desolate because of your sins.

¹⁴You shall eat, but not be satisfied, and there shall be a gnawing hunger
within you;
you shall put away, but not save,
and what you save, I will hand over to
the sword.

¹⁵You shall sow, but not reap;
you shall tread olives, but not anoint yourselves with oil;
you shall tread grapes, but not drink
wine.

¹⁶For you have kept the statutes of Omri^d and all the works of the house of Ahab, and you have followed their counsels.
Therefore I will make you a desolation, and your^e inhabitants an object of hissing;
so you shall bear the scorn of my
people.

7 Woe is me! For I have become like one who,
after the summer fruit has been gathered,
after the vintage has been gleaned,
finds no cluster to eat;
there is no first-ripe fig for which I hunger.

²The faithful have disappeared from the
land,
and there is no one left who is upright;
they all lie in wait for blood,
and they hunt each other with nets.

³Their hands are skilled to do evil;
the official and the judge ask for a
bribe,
and the powerful dictate what they desire;
thus they pervert justice.^f

⁴The best of them is like a brier, the most upright of them a thorn hedge.
The day of their^g sentinels, of their^g punishment, has come;
now their confusion is at hand.

⁵Put no trust in a friend, have no confidence in a loved one;
guard the doors of your mouth
from her who lies in your embrace;

⁶for the son treats the father with contempt,
the daughter rises up against her mother,
the daughter-in-law against her mother-
in-law;
your enemies are members of your own household.

⁷But as for me, I will look to the LORD,
I will wait for the God of my salvation;
my God will hear me.

⁸Do not rejoice over me, O my enemy;
when I fall, I shall rise;
when I sit in darkness,
the LORD will be a light to me.

^a Heb Whose

^b Heb whose

^c Gk Syr Vg: Heb have made sick

^d Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb the statutes of Omri are kept

^e Heb its

^f Cn: Heb they weave it

^g Heb your

cf. Am 8:5; Ezek 45:10. 14–16: For other “futility curses” in which actions fail to produce normal and expected results, see Deut 28:30–31, 38–46. 16: Omri, Ahab, rulers of the Northern Kingdom in the ninth century BCE; see 1 Kings 16:25–34. Object of hissing, Zeph 2:15.

7:1–7: A lament for a desperate society. 1: Gleaned, Lev 19:9–10; 23:22; Deut 24:19–21; Ruth 2–3. The first-ripe fig was the most delicious. 2: Abraham (Gen 18:23–33), Jeremiah (Jer 5:1), and Ezekiel (Ezek 22:30) also searched for an honest person. 3: The perversion of justice by officials is frequently condemned by the prophets; cf. Hos 7:3; Amos 5:12; Zeph 3:1–5. 5: Cf. Jer 9:4. 6: Son treats the father with contempt, daughter. . . against mother, cf. Matt 10:35–36; Lk 12:53; contrast with Mal 4:6.

7:8–20: A final liturgy. This final unit contains shifts in content, if not speakers, and may have been designed for worship. It begins with lament (vv. 8–10), followed by an oracle of encouragement (vv. 11–13) and prayer (vv. 14–17), before closing with hopeful affirmation of God’s great mercy. 8–10: The prophet speaks as Israel.

⁹ I must bear the indignation of the LORD, because I have sinned against him, until he takes my side
and executes judgment for me.
He will bring me out to the light;
I shall see his vindication.
¹⁰ Then my enemy will see,
and shame will cover her who said to
me,
“Where is the LORD your God?”
My eyes will see her downfall;^a now she will be trodden down like the mire of the streets.

¹¹ A day for the building of your walls!
In that day the boundary shall be far extended.

¹² In that day they will come to you from Assyria to^b Egypt,
and from Egypt to the River, from sea to sea and from mountain to
mountain.

¹³ But the earth will be desolate because of its inhabitants,
for the fruit of their doings.

¹⁴ Shepherd your people with your staff,
the flock that belongs to you,
which lives alone in a forest
in the midst of a garden land;
let them feed in Bashan and Gilead
as in the days of old.

¹⁵ As in the days when you came out of the land of Egypt,

show us^c marvelous things.
¹⁶ The nations shall see and be ashamed of all their might;
they shall lay their hands on their mouths;
their ears shall be deaf;
¹⁷ they shall lick dust like a snake,
like the crawling things of the earth;
they shall come trembling out of their fortresses;
they shall turn in dread to the LORD our God,
and they shall stand in fear of you.

¹⁸ Who is a God like you, pardoning
iniquity
and passing over the transgression of the remnant of your^d possession?
He does not retain his anger forever, because he delights in showing clemency.

¹⁹ He will again have compassion upon us;
he will tread our iniquities under foot.
You will cast all our^e sins into the depths of the sea.

²⁰ You will show faithfulness to Jacob and unswerving loyalty to Abraham, as you have sworn to our ancestors from the days of old.

^a Heb lacks downfall

^b One Ms: MT Assyria and cities of

^c Cn: Heb I will show him

^d Heb his

^e Gk Syr Vg Tg: Heb their

9: Jer 10.19. 10: Shame will cover her, Ob 10. Mire of the streets, Isa 10.6. 11–13: The references to the (re)building of your walls (Neh 2.17) and the restoration of former boundaries (Isa 54.2–3) suggest that this oracle was probably written in the early postexilic period. 12: Cf. 4.1–2; Isa 19.23–25. The River, the Euphrates. 14: Shepherd, see 2.12–13. Bashan and Gilead in northern Transjordan were known for their fertility. 18–19: Cf. Ex 34.6–7; Ps 103.8–10; contrast Nah 1.2–3. 18: The sentence Who is a God like you is reminiscent of the prophet’s name (1.1n.). 20: Gen 12.1–3; 17.6–8.

NAHUM

NAME AND CONTENTS

Nahum, the name of the prophet and the book that contains his words, derives from the Hebrew word for “comfort.” It may be a shortened form of Nehemiah—“the LORD has comforted.”

The book is dominated by the genre of the “oracle against the nations,” which pronounces God’s judgment on those other than Israel or Judah. While Isaiah, Jeremiah, Zephaniah, and other books contain such oracles against multiple nations, Nahum focuses on only one: Assyria. Throughout Nahum, God is cast as a mighty warrior whose armies violently defeat the foe. After an opening depiction of God as a cosmic power in ch 1, the book turns in chs 2 and 3 to vivid images of Nineveh, the capital of Assyria, in the midst of siege and defeat. The images of warfare are stark and disturbing: captive slave women beat their breasts (2.7), dead bodies fill Nineveh’s streets (3.3), and Nineveh itself is portrayed as a woman who is sexually assaulted by God (3.5–7). The author shows no pity for Nineveh or its inhabitants, instead delighting in its overthrow and claiming that all nations do the same (3.19).

AUTHORSHIP, DATE OF COMPOSITION, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Nahum was written sometime after the fall of the Egyptian city of Thebes (mentioned in Nah 3.8) in 663 BCE. Because the book looks forward to the fall of Nineveh, accomplished by a coalition of Babylonians and Medes in 612 BCE, it is often dated to just before that major event. Recent interpretation of the prophetic books, however, suggests that the oracles provide retrospective interpretations of Israel’s history, so the book could date after 612 BCE. To readers aware that Nineveh had indeed fallen, Nahum would reveal not only God’s powerful hand in international affairs but also the role of prophets in preparing each generation for events to come.

LOCATION IN CANON

The book is the seventh of the twelve Minor Prophets (see the Introduction to the Prophetic Books). The books of Hosea, Amos, and Micah devote much attention to explaining that Israel and Judah fell because of the people’s sin. The next three books of the Twelve, begun by Nahum, explain God’s sovereignty over the nations through which God carried out that punishment. Nahum envisions God punishing Nineveh, the capital of the Assyrian empire in the eighth century BCE. The Assyrians are infamous to the biblical writers for their destruction of the Northern Kingdom of Israel in 722 BCE; even after Assyria passed from world dominance, it remained a symbol for brutal imperial control, as seen in works of the Hellenistic period such as the books of Judith and Tobit. Following Nahum, Habakkuk pointedly calls for God’s action against the Babylonians, and Zephaniah joins oracles against Judah with oracles against the nations and offers a glimmer of hope for both.

Many readers contrast Nahum negatively with the book of Jonah, which describes the Assyrians as repenting and insists that God cares about the Ninevites. The difference between the books, however, may be due less to different ancient assessments of the Assyrians than to the different messages and rhetorical strategies of the books. While Jonah demonstrates the depths of divine mercy by showing stereotypically evil Ninevites in the act of repentance, Nahum establishes the sovereignty of God over all tyrants by showing powerful Nineveh in defeat. Within the book of Nahum, the power of God is good news for Judah, as seen especially in ch 1, where God’s anger is presented as an act of care for Judah: God will serve as a stronghold to those who seek divine refuge (1.7), caring enough about their affliction to become angry on their behalf.

STRUCTURE

The book can be outlined as follows:

- 1.1: Superscription
- 1.2–8: God as divine warrior
- 1.9–15: Announcement of punishment against Nineveh and salvation for Judah
- 2.1–13: The siege of Nineveh
- 3.1–19: Further taunts against Nineveh and the Assyrian king

INTERPRETATION

Over the history of the book's interpretation, Nahum's celebration of Nineveh's violent overthrow has been variously assessed. In commentaries from Qumran (4QpNah) and early church fathers (such as Tertullian and Cyril of Alexandria), Nineveh becomes the symbol for the authors' own enemies, and the awesome power of God is celebrated. Many modern interpreters, however, underscore the dangerous ideologies of the book, in which the oppressed imitates the oppressor, and evil is symbolized as a woman.

Julia M. O'Brien

1 An oracle concerning Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum of Elkosh.

² A jealous and avenging God is the

LORD,

the LORD is avenging and wrathful;
the LORD takes vengeance on his
adversaries
and rages against his enemies.

³ The LORD is slow to anger but great in
power,

and the LORD will by no means clear the guilty.

His way is in whirlwind and storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet.

⁴ He rebukes the sea and makes it dry, and he dries up all the rivers;

Bashan and Carmel wither,
and the bloom of Lebanon fades.

⁵ The mountains quake before him, and the hills melt;
the earth heaves before him,
the world and all who live in it.

⁶ Who can stand before his indignation?
Who can endure the heat of his anger?

His wrath is poured out like fire, and by him the rocks are broken in pieces.

⁷ The LORD is good,
a stronghold in a day of trouble;
he protects those who take refuge in him,
⁸ even in a rushing flood.

He will make a full end of his adversaries,^a and will pursue his enemies into darkness.

^a Gk: Heb of her place

1.1: Superscription. Like other prophetic books, Nahum begins with a description of its contents. Oracle also begins prophetic collections in Isa 13; Hab 1; Zech 9; 12; and Mal 1. Although other prophetic books mention the writing of prophecy, Nahum is the only one explicitly called a book; the Heb term (“seper”) refers to anything that is written regardless of length or the nature of its composition. Vision in the Hebrew Bible refers almost exclusively to prophecy. It includes not only specifically visual phenomena but other forms of perception as well. Words related to seeing are linked with the reception of prophecy in the superscriptions of Amos, Micah, Obadiah, and Habakkuk. The location of Elkosh is unknown.

1.2–8: God as divine warrior. Before addressing the specific issue of Nineveh, the book seeks to establish God's power and might. These verses form a partial acrostic; that is, most lines in vv. 2–8 begin with successive letters of the first half of Hebrew alphabet. 2–3a: First, God's attributes are named and God's character established: God is jealous for God's people and does not ignore wrongdoing. This version of Israel's confession of faith (see Ex 34.6; Jon 4.2; Ps 86.15) highlights vengeance, the deity's willingness and power to right wrongs. 3b–5: God's appearance on earth, the divine theophany, is as an angry, cosmic warrior; cf. 2 Sam 22.8–16 = Ps 18.7–15; Ps 29; Hab 3.3–12. 4: The language may allude to ancient Near Eastern cosmologies, in which the deities “River” and “Sea” were defeated by a more powerful storm god; see also Isa 51.9–10; Hab 3; Pss 74.13; 89.12. Bashan in northern Transjordan, Carmel on Israel's northern Mediterranean coast, and Lebanon are areas known for agricultural fertility; God is powerful enough to dry them up. 5: God's appearance shakes mountains (Judg 5.5; Ps 18.7; Isa 64.1). 6–8: As expressed in the first of several rhetorical questions in the book, no one who opposes this God can stand, while no one who seeks divine refuge will suffer. In Hebrew as in English, anger is associated with heat (e.g., Ex 32:22; Judg 6:39; Jer 7:20; 17:4).

⁹ Why do you plot against the LORD?
 He will make an end;
 no adversary will rise up twice.
¹⁰ Like thorns they are entangled, like drunkards they are drunk;
 they are consumed like dry straw.
¹¹ From you one has gone out who plots evil against the LORD, one who counsels wickedness.

¹² Thus says the LORD, “Though they are at full strength and many,^a
 they will be cut off and pass away.
 Though I have afflicted you,
 I will afflict you no more.
¹³ And now I will break off his yoke from
 you
 and snap the bonds that bind you.” ¹⁴ The LORD has commanded concerning
 you:
 “Your name shall be perpetuated no longer;
 from the house of your gods I will cut off
 the carved image and the cast image.
 I will make your grave, for you are worthless.”

¹⁵ ^b Look! On the mountains the feet of one who brings good tidings, who proclaims peace!
 Celebrate your festivals, O Judah, fulfill your vows,

for never again shall the wicked invade
 you;
 they are utterly cut off.

2 A shatterer^c has come up against you.
 Guard the ramparts;
 watch the road;
 gird your loins;
 collect all your strength.

² (For the LORD is restoring the majesty of Jacob,
 as well as the majesty of Israel, though ravagers have ravaged them and ruined their branches.)

³ The shields of his warriors are red;
 his soldiers are clothed in crimson.
 The metal on the chariots flashes on the day when he musters them;
 the chargers^d prance.

⁴ The chariots race madly through the
 streets,
 they rush to and fro through the
 squares;

their appearance is like torches,
 they dart like lightning.

⁵ He calls his officers;
 they stumble as they come forward;
 they hasten to the wall,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Ch 2.1 in Heb

^c Cn: Heb scatterer

^d Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb cypresses

1.9–15: Announcement of punishment against Nineveh and salvation for Judah. The shift in addressee to “you” marks a move from the general description of divine power to its specific application. The gender and identity of “you,” however, change in the course of the unit: the masculine plural “you” of v. 9 is unidentified, the feminine singular “you” in vv. 11–13, 15 likely refers to Judah, and the masculine singular “you” in v. 14 likely is the king of Assyria. Many of the references in these verses, such as to “the one who plots evil” (v. 11), are unclear. 12: While acknowledging a role in Judah’s oppression, God promises that its salvation has begun. 13: His yoke, the political oppression of the king of Assyria. 14: Threats against the king of Assyria include loss of reputation, religious practice, and life itself. The king is worthless or, in Hebrew, a “trifling.” 15: A messenger brings the good news of the imminent death of the enemy to Judah, who can now celebrate its own religious traditions. One who brings good tidings, see 2 Sam 18.27, 31; Isa 40.9; 41.27; 52.7. Fulfill your vows, presumably vows made to God during the oppression in hope of deliverance.

2.1–13: The siege of Nineveh. A vivid description of the divine warrior’s battle against the city of Nineveh. 1: You is a feminine form, likely Nineveh. Here, as later in the book, the call for Nineveh to protect itself is sarcastic. Shatterer, lit., “scatterer” (see textual note c), may be God, who leads warriors against Nineveh (vv. 3–6). A form of this word is used for the divine warrior’s activity in Hab 3.14 and Isa 24.1. 2: Parenthetical reminder that Nineveh’s downfall avenges the devastation of the Northern Kingdom of Israel (722 BCE), whose ancestor is Jacob. 3–6: Descriptive language and active verbs create arresting images of God’s invading army. 5: He likely is and the mantelet^a is set up.

⁶The river gates are opened,
 the palace trembles.
⁷It is decreed^d that the city^b be exiled,
 its slave women led away, moaning like doves
 and beating their breasts.
⁸Nineveh is like a pool whose waters^c run away.
 “Halt! Halt!”—
 but no one turns back.
⁹“Plunder the silver,
 plunder the gold!
 There is no end of treasure!
 An abundance of every precious thing!”

¹⁰Devastation, desolation, and
 destruction!
 Hearts faint and knees tremble,
 all loins quake,
 all faces grow pale!
¹¹What became of the lions’ den,
 the cave^d of the young lions,
 where the lion goes,
 and the lion’s cubs, with no one to disturb them?
¹²The lion has torn enough for his whelps
 and strangled prey for his lionesses;
 he has filled his caves with prey
 and his dens with torn flesh.

¹³See, I am against you, says the LORD of hosts, and I will burn your^e chariots in smoke, and the sword shall devour your young lions; I will cut off your prey from the earth, and the voice of your messengers shall be heard no more.

3 Ah! City of bloodshed, utterly deceitful, full of booty—
 no end to the plunder!
²The crack of whip and rumble of wheel, galloping horse and bounding chariot!
³Horsemen charging,
 flashing sword and glittering spear,
 piles of dead,
 heaps of corpses,
 dead bodies without end—
 they stumble over the bodies!
⁴Because of the countless debaucheries of the prostitute,
 gracefully alluring, mistress of sorcery,
 who enslaves^f nations through her debaucheries,
 and peoples through her sorcery,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb it

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb a pool, from the days that she has become, and they

^d Cn: Heb pasture

^e Heb her

^f Heb sells

the king of Assyria, who tries in vain to defend the city by bolstering its walls. 6–8a: The actual fall of the city is depicted with water imagery, conventional imagery found in other ancient Near Eastern documents and in Jer 51.42. 6: The river gates: Nineveh was situated on the east bank of the Tigris River, whose tributary, the Khosr, flowed through the city, so it is possible that actual flooding occurred during the attack; see v. 8. 7: The description of the mourning of the slave women adds poignancy to the scene; in Hebrew the sound of the words mimics mourning. Moaning like doves, cf. Isa 38.14; 59.11. 8b–10: The NRSV has added quotation marks to highlight the writer’s attempt to reproduce the shouts of the warriors. Incomplete sentences give a breathless feeling to the chaotic scene. 10a: The first three words begin with the same letter in English, as the NRSV attempts to mirror the alliteration found in the Hebrew version of the phrase. 11–13: The author begins a taunt of the Assyrian king by comparing him to a lion, an animal frequently associated with the Assyrian empire in its own art. Although the king (lion) has provided much wealth (prey) for his citizens (his whelps), God will cut off both. The you of v. 13 is feminine, turning the taunt to Nineveh herself. The verse ties together previous parts of Nahum: the description of chariots in 2.4, the analogy of the den of the lion in 2.11–12, and the reference to a messenger in 1.15: while a messenger brought good news to Judah, now the messengers of the Assyrians are cut off.

3.1–19: Further taunts against Nineveh and the Assyrian king. Nahum’s personification of Nineveh as a woman, begun in the previous chapter, turns derogatory, as the city is envisioned as a prostitute who is taunted as well as assaulted. 1–3: The absence of verbs creates a montage of horrific images of the city’s destruction. 1: Ah (Heb “hoy”) is an exclamation calling attention to Nineveh. City of bloodshed: similar language is used for Israel, Judah, and Jerusalem in Ezek 7.23; 9.9; and for Babylon in Hab 2.12. 4–7: The punishment of the prostitute Nineveh begins. 4: While the Heb term for prostitute can refer to one who receives money for sex acts, it also is

- ⁵ I am against you,
says the LORD of hosts,
and will lift up your skirts over your
face;
and I will let nations look on your nakedness
and kingdoms on your shame.
- ⁶ I will throw filth at you and treat you with contempt,
and make you a spectacle.
- ⁷ Then all who see you will shrink from you and say,
“Nineveh is devastated; who will bemoan
her?”
Where shall I seek comforters for you?
- ⁸ Are you better than Thebes^a that sat by the Nile,
with water around her,
her rampart a sea,
water her wall?
- ⁹ Ethiopia^b was her strength,
Egypt too, and that without limit;
Put and the Libyans were her^c helpers.
- ¹⁰ Yet she became an exile,
she went into captivity;
even her infants were dashed in pieces
at the head of every street;
lots were cast for her nobles,
all her dignitaries were bound in fetters.
- ¹¹ You also will be drunken,
- you will go into hiding;^d you will seek
a refuge from the enemy.
- ¹² All your fortresses are like fig trees with first-ripe figs—
if shaken they fall
into the mouth of the eater.
- ¹³ Look at your troops:
they are women in your midst.
The gates of your land
are wide open to your foes;
fire has devoured the bars of your gates.
- ¹⁴ Draw water for the siege, strengthen your forts;
trample the clay,
tread the mortar,
take hold of the brick mold!
- ¹⁵ There the fire will devour you,
the sword will cut you off.
It will devour you like the locust.
- Multiply yourselves like the locust, multiply like the grasshopper!
- ¹⁶ You increased your merchants more than the stars of the heavens.
The locust sheds its skin and flies away.

^a Heb No-amon

^b Or Nubia; Heb Cush

^c Gk: Heb your

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

used in the Bible to refer to promiscuity and unfaithfulness (Deut 22.21; 31.16; Ezek 23.3; Hos 4.13–14). Here the term may function as a slur against the city rather than a description of its activities. Nineveh's control over and appeal to other nations is attributed to sorcery and seduction. 5: God will personally take action against Nineveh. The uncovering of nakedness is a matter of shame (Gen 9.22–23; Lev 18–20; Isa 47.3; Lam 1.8; Hab 2.15) and is often a prelude to sexual violation (Jer 13.22). 6: Nineveh's nakedness will be made into a spectacle, as is the punished woman in Hos 2.10. 7: The absence of comforters for Nineveh is ironic, given that the name Nahum derives from the word for “comfort.” The image of Nineveh as a devastated woman finds a parallel in the depiction of Jerusalem in the book of Lamentations. 8–13: Nineveh is threatened with the same fate that befell Thebes, the most important city in southern Egypt, which was conquered by the Assyrians in 664 BCE. 8: The threat starts in the form of a rhetorical question, one of many in the book. 9–10: Thebes' sea defenses and her allies Ethiopia, Put, and the Libyans could not protect her. Just as she went into exile and her infants were dashed in pieces (see Isa 13.16; Ps 137.9), so Nineveh will suffer. The geographical identity of Put is disputed. 11: Military defeat is often described as stumbling as though drunken (Isa 51.22; Jer 25.16,27; 51.3). 13: Nineveh's troops are taunted as being as weak as women, language also used in Assyrian documents to describe defeated soldiers. Gates may be an allusion to female genitals (as also perhaps in Isa 3.26). Nineveh is open to violation. 14–17: The call for Nineveh to fortify itself for battle is sarcastic, as in 2.1: the city's fate is sealed. Locust imagery is used in several ways in these verses: Nineveh will be devoured as by the locust (v. 15a), even should its warriors multiply like locusts (v. 15b), and those charged with protecting the city are as undependable as swarms of locusts (v. 17). 16–17: Merchants may allude to Assyria's economic power in the ancient world. Merchants, guards, and scribes, ¹⁷Your guards are like grasshoppers, your scribes like swarms^a of locusts

 settling on the fences
 on a cold day—
 when the sun rises, they fly away;
 no one knows where they have gone.

¹⁸Your shepherds are asleep,
 O king of Assyria;
 your nobles slumber.

Your people are scattered on the
 mountains
 with no one to gather them.
¹⁹There is no assuaging your hurt,
 your wound is mortal.
 All who hear the news about you clap their hands over you.
 For who has ever escaped your endless cruelty?

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

each part of a thriving society, all abandon Nineveh. 18–19: Shepherd imagery dominates the final taunt against the king of Assyria. The one who was once called the lion (2.11–12) is here described as having incompetent shepherds, a common designation for leaders or nobles (Jer 3.15; 10.21; 25.35; Ezek 34:2–12). 19: All nations are described as celebrating the Assyrian king's defeat because of Nineveh's endless cruelty. A final rhetorical question ends the book, a feature shared with the book of Jonah, also concerned with Nineveh.

HABAKKUK

AUTHORSHIP AND LITERARY HISTORY

Despite the book's first-person style, we know nothing about Habakkuk as a person. His name, similar to an Akkadian word for a certain type of plant, does not appear elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible. Both of the book's superscriptions (1.1 and 3.1) explicitly identify him as a prophet.

Habakkuk appears as a character in later Jewish and Christian literature. In the Addition to Daniel known as Bel and the Dragon, he is transported by an angel to feed Daniel in the lions' den (Bel 33–39). A commentary on Habakkuk from Qumran, called a “pesher” for its style of applying the biblical text directly to events of the writer's own day, provides not only an early copy of the text itself but also a glimpse of how Habakkuk's words resonated with a later generation.

CONTENT AND LITERARY STYLE

Habakkuk complains about the violence of the Babylonians, called the Chaldeans in 1.6. Their empire came to power in the seventh century BCE after defeating the Assyrians. As described in 1 Kings 23–25, Babylonia soon dominated Judah's political life and in 586 BCE destroyed its independent existence as a state: Babylonian armies burned the Temple in Jerusalem and exiled many of the population.

Other prophetic collections such as Isa 14.3–23 and Jer 50–51 pronounce God's judgment on Babylon for its cruelty. While Habakkuk's anti-Babylonian rhetoric is similar, even sharing some vocabulary with Jeremiah, its literary style is different. The core of the book takes the form of alternating speeches of the prophet and God (1.2–17 and 2.1–20). In each case, the prophet voices the community's complaint in the first person, granting it immediacy and poignancy. God's ensuing speech does not directly answer the prophet but rather raises new issues for consideration. The book ends with the speech of the prophet, cast as a prayer for God to act as a warrior on behalf of the people.

DATE OF COMPOSITION AND LOCATION IN THE CANON

Because of its anti-Babylonian theme, Habakkuk is often dated to the late seventh century BCE, the height of Babylonian power. Its frequent use of liturgical forms and vocabulary, however, has been seen as evidence that the book in its final form dates to the Persian period. The closing prayer closely mirrors psalms of petition (complete with the refrain of Selah), and while the “watchpost” of 2.1 may be read as a military metaphor, the same word is used to describe the stations of priests and Levites during the Second Temple period (e.g., 2 Chr 7.6; Neh 12.9).

Habakkuk is the eighth of the twelve Minor Prophets (see Introduction to the Prophetic Books [p. 971–75]). Its placement between Nahum and Zephaniah advances the chronological arc of the Book of the Twelve from the defeat of the Assyrians (Nahum) to the rise of the Babylonians (Habakkuk), followed by an imperative for repentance lest the nation fall (Zephaniah). Nahum and Habakkuk explain that a righteous deity may use an unrighteous nation to punish Israel and Judah but that the unrighteous nation will itself be punished. Zephaniah reiterates those themes and offers hope to Judah and a glimmer of hope for the nations.

INTERPRETATION

A classic question in monotheistic traditions is why, if God is just and caring, do believers suffer? While the traditions preserved in Deuteronomy–Kings insist on the justice of God, the book of Habakkuk complains about the suffering of the community at the hand of tyrants. Nowhere does Habakkuk attempt to solve the problem of God's apparent injustice. Instead, it models the legitimacy of human protest as well as the power of trusting in God's power even when it is not apparent.

Julia M. O'Brien

1 The oracle that the prophet Habakkuk saw.

² O LORD, how long shall I cry for help, and you will not listen?
Or cry to you “Violence!”
and you will not save?

³ Why do you make me see wrongdoing and look at trouble?
Destruction and violence are before me;
strife and contention arise.

⁴ So the law becomes slack and justice never prevails.
The wicked surround the righteous—therefore judgment comes forth perverted.

⁵ Look at the nations, and see!
Be astonished! Be astounded!
For a work is being done in your days that you would not believe if you were told.

⁶ For I am rousing the Chaldeans, that fierce and impetuous nation,
who march through the breadth of the earth to seize dwellings not their own.

⁷ Dread and fearsome are they;
their justice and dignity proceed from
themselves.

⁸ Their horses are swifter than leopards, more menacing than wolves at dusk;
their horses charge.

Their horsemen come from far away;
they fly like an eagle swift to devour.

⁹ They all come for violence, with faces pressing^a forward;
they gather captives like sand.

¹⁰ At kings they scoff, and of rulers they make sport.

They laugh at every fortress,
and heap up earth to take it.

¹¹ Then they sweep by like the wind;
they transgress and become guilty;
their own might is their god!

¹² Are you not from of old,
O LORD my God, my Holy One?
You^b shall not die.

O LORD, you have marked them for
judgment;
and you, O Rock, have established them
for punishment.

¹³ Your eyes are too pure to behold evil,
and you cannot look on wrongdoing;
why do you look on the treacherous,

^a Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Ancient Heb tradition: MT We

1.1: Superscription. Like Nahum, which precedes it, the book of Habakkuk is called an oracle; Nahum is also called a vision, deriving from the same Hebrew verbal root as saw (cf. also Isa 1.1; Am 1.1). The superscription explicitly labels Habakkuk a prophet (Hab 1.1; 3.1; see Hag 1.1 and Zech 1.1).

1.2–17: First interaction between the prophet and God. 2–4: The prophet speaks. While it is common for prophetic books to begin with the prophet speaking for God, Habakkuk pointedly begins with the prophet speaking to God, complaining about injustice. As in psalms of petition, “how long” introduces complaint and petition (Pss 6.3; 13.1; 35.17; 74.10; 79.5). Although he speaks in the first person, the prophet seems to speak for the community. 4: The law becomes slack: This could refer to the reign of Jehoiakim (608–598 BCE), when the reforms of his father Josiah languished (2 Kings 23.35–37; cf. Jer 2.8). The law (Heb “torah”) formed the basis of Josiah’s reforms. The complaint that the wicked surround the righteous will be repeated in v. 13. 5–11: God speaks. Rather than directly answering the prophet’s questions, God addresses the community as a whole (you is plural), explaining that God is rousing the Chaldeans (the Neo-Babylonian Empire, ca. 612–539 BCE); although they are fierce, they are being sent by God. The NRSV refers throughout this unit to they, but the Hebrew alternates between singular and plural references to the enemy. In response to the prophet’s complaint of violence in v. 2, God explains that the Babylonians come for violence (v. 9), and the complaint about the lack of justice in v. 4 is countered with the acknowledgment that the Babylonians make their own justice (v. 7). God’s words intensify rather than satisfy the prophet’s claims by stressing that the Babylonians are marching at God’s command. 12–17: The prophet speaks. Having received no answer to his complaints, the prophet again appeals to God to save. 12–13: As in numerous psalms, the prophet appeals to God’s goodness and constancy as the basis for his request: why, if God is good, does God not act? 12: From of old, Ps 74.12. As textual note b explains, the MT changed the original reading of You to We in order to avoid the possibility of suggesting that God could die; this change is one of the medieval “tiqqune sopherim” (“restorations of the scribes”). 13: The claim that the wicked and are silent when the wicked swallow those more righteous than they?

¹⁴ You have made people like the fish of the
sea,
like crawling things that have no ruler.

¹⁵ The enemy^a brings all of them up with a hook;
he drags them out with his net,
he gathers them in his seine;
so he rejoices and exults.

¹⁶ Therefore he sacrifices to his net and makes offerings to his seine;
for by them his portion is lavish,
and his food is rich.

¹⁷ Is he then to keep on emptying his net,
and destroying nations without mercy?

2 I will stand at my watchpost, and station myself on the rampart;
I will keep watch to see what he will say
to me,
and what he^b will answer concerning my complaint.

² Then the LORD answered me and said:
Write the vision;
make it plain on tablets,
so that a runner may read it.

³ For there is still a vision for the appointed
time;
it speaks of the end, and does not lie.

If it seems to tarry, wait for it;
it will surely come, it will not delay.

⁴ Look at the proud!
Their spirit is not right in them,
but the righteous live by their faith.^c

⁵ Moreover, wealth^d is treacherous;
the arrogant do not endure.
They open their throats wide as Sheol;
like Death they never have enough.
They gather all nations for themselves,
and collect all peoples as their own.

⁶ Shall not everyone taunt such people and, with mocking riddles, say about them, “Alas for you who heap up what is not your own!”

How long will you load yourselves with goods taken in pledge?

⁷ Will not your own creditors suddenly rise, and those who make you tremble wake
up?

Then you will be booty for them.

⁸ Because you have plundered many
nations,
all that survive of the peoples shall plunder you—

^a Heb He

^b Syr: Heb I

^c Or faithfulness

^d Other Heb Mss read wine

oppress the righteous repeats the prophet's initial complaint in 1.4. 14–17: People, Heb “adam,” the word used in Gen 1 to describe all humanity. In the Priestly account of creation, humanity was given dominion over the fish of the sea and crawling things (Gen 1.26,28); now the people have become fish in the net of the enemy. 16: The enemy even treats his power, his net, as his god.

2.1–20: Second interaction between the prophet and God. 1: The prophet may be imaged as a sentinel posted on the city walls (see Isa 21.6–12; 62.7; Ezek 3.17; 33.7; Hos 9.8) or as a priest serving at his post (see 2 Chr 7.6; Neh 12.9). 2: God's reply will be a vision, from the same Hebrew word as “saw” in the book's super-scription (1.1). It will be made plain to all, written largely enough that a runner (running messenger) can read it. 3–5: All three verses constitute God's reply: the prophet is told to trust that an answer will come, despite its apparent delay. 4: Although Rom 1.17; Gal 3.11; and Heb 10.38–39 draw heavily on this verse to prioritize faith over works, the Heb word is better understood as “faithfulness.” Like the previous verse and 3.16, it stresses that the one who patiently awaits God's response will be rewarded. 5: The proud of v. 4 are here linked with wealth and the arrogant. Sheol, the abode of the dead. In ancient Canaanite and Israelite literature, death and the underworld are often depicted as having an open mouth with an insatiable appetite; see Isa 5.14; Prov 30.15–16. 6–20: God's extended response, in five taunts. Continuing the condemnation of pride and wealth are five taunts (6b–8; 9–11; 12–14; 15–17; 18–19); the first four begin with “alas” (Heb “hoy”), a term often used in funeral laments (1 Kings 13.30; Jer 22.18), while “alas” appears within the body of the fifth. The condemnation of rapaciousness, arrogance, and violence matches the description of Babylon in 1.6–11. 6–8: The first taunt condemns the voracious appetite of the Babylonians. Common to prophetic literature is the affirmation that the evil will suffer the same pains they inflicted on others (Ob 15). 6b: Alas, a term often used in funeral because of human bloodshed, and violence to the earth,

to cities and all who live in them.

⁹ “Alas for you who get evil gain for your house,
setting your nest on high
to be safe from the reach of harm!”

¹⁰ You have devised shame for your house by cutting off many peoples;
you have forfeited your life.

¹¹ The very stones will cry out from the wall,
and the plaster^a will respond from the woodwork.

¹² “Alas for you who build a town by
bloodshed,
and found a city on iniquity!”

¹³ Is it not from the LORD of hosts that peoples labor only to feed the
flames,
and nations weary themselves for
nothing?

¹⁴ But the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD,
as the waters cover the sea.

¹⁵ “Alas for you who make your neighbors
drink,
pouring out your wrath^b until they are
drunk,

in order to gaze on their nakedness!”

¹⁶ You will be sated with contempt instead of glory.

Drink, you yourself, and stagger!^c
The cup in the LORD’s right hand will come around to you,
and shame will come upon your glory!

¹⁷ For the violence done to Lebanon will
overwhelm you;
the destruction of the animals will terrify you—^d
because of human bloodshed and violence
to the earth,
to cities and all who live in them.

¹⁸ What use is an idol
once its maker has shaped it—a cast image, a teacher of lies?
For its maker trusts in what has been made,
though the product is only an idol that cannot speak!

¹⁹ Alas for you who say to the wood, “Wake
up!”
to silent stone, “Rouse yourself!”
Can it teach?
See, it is gold and silver plated,
and there is no breath in it at all.

²⁰ But the LORD is in his holy temple;
let all the earth keep silence before him!

3 A prayer of the prophet Habakkuk ac- cording to Shigionoth.

^a Or beam

^b Or poison

^c QMs Gk: MT be uncircumcised

^d Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

laments (1 Kings 13.30; Jer 22.18). 9–11: Like Ob 3–4, the second taunt chastises the arrogance of the proud in setting their nest high; their very houses will rise up against them. 12–14: The third taunt contrasts the aspirations of the peoples and the power of God. 14: Isa 11.9. 15–17: The fourth taunt insists that Babylon’s fortunes will be reversed, using the imagery of drinking: she who made others drink of her wrath will herself drink God’s cup of punishment (Jer 25.15–27; 51.7). Throughout the prophetic books, the punished suffer nakedness and shame (Jer 13.26; Ezek 7.18; Nah 3.5; Ob 10). 17: Isa 14.8; 37.24 suggest that both Assyrian and Babylonian kings cut down the famous cedars of Lebanon; this verse suggests that the animals themselves will take revenge. Bloodshed and violence, mentioned earlier in 2.8. 18–20: The fifth taunt differs from the others: “alas” does not begin the unit, and the theme of idolatry is introduced for the first time since 1.16. Isaiah 40.18–20; 44.9–20 also lampoon the making of an idol.

3.1–19: The prayer of the prophet. The prophet, unsatisfied with God’s previous responses, turns from complaint to petition. He invokes the biblical memory that God once marched as a divine warrior to vindicate the people (Nah 1; Ex 15; Deut 33; Isa 13) as the basis for his request that God march again to establish justice. 1: The book’s second superscription (see also 1.1) not only marks this chapter as a prayer but also provides instruction for its musical performance. The singular form of Shigionoth appears in the superscription to Ps 7; its meaning

² O LORD, I have heard of your renown, and I stand in awe, O LORD, of your work.

In our own time revive it;
in our own time make it known;
in wrath may you remember mercy.

³ God came from Teman,
the Holy One from Mount Paran. Selah
His glory covered the heavens, and the earth was full of his praise.

⁴ The brightness was like the sun;
rays came forth from his hand,
where his power lay hidden.

⁵ Before him went pestilence, and plague followed close behind.

⁶ He stopped and shook the earth;
he looked and made the nations
tremble.

The eternal mountains were shattered;
along his ancient pathways
the everlasting hills sank low.

⁷ I saw the tents of Cushan under affliction;
the tent-curtains of the land of Midian trembled.

⁸ Was your wrath against the rivers,^a
O LORD?

Or your anger against the rivers,^a or your rage against the sea,^b when you drove your horses, your chariots to victory?

⁹ You brandished your naked bow, sated^c were the arrows at your command.^d

Selah

You split the earth with rivers.
¹⁰ The mountains saw you, and writhed;
a torrent of water swept by;
the deep gave forth its voice.

The sun^e raised high its hands;
¹¹ the moon^f stood still in its exalted place, at the light of your arrows speeding by,
at the gleam of your flashing spear.

¹² In fury you trod the earth,
in anger you trampled nations.

¹³ You came forth to save your people, to save your anointed.

You crushed the head of the wicked house, laying it bare from foundation to roof.^d

Selah

¹⁴ You pierced with their^g own arrows the head^h of his warriors,ⁱ who came like a whirlwind to scatter us,^j gloating as if ready to devour the poor who were in hiding.

¹⁵ You trampled the sea with your horses, churning the mighty waters.

^a Or against River

^b Or against Sea

^c Cn: Heb oaths

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Heb It

^f Heb sun, moon

^g Heb his

^h Or leader

ⁱ Vg Compare Gk Syr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^j Heb me

is unknown. Other musical notations end vv. 3,9,13, and the book as a whole. They may indicate that, like the Psalms, Hab 3 had its origins in Temple liturgy. 2: The prophet makes his opening petition for God to revive God's saving work in our own time and show mercy. 3–15: A vision of the divine warrior. Although in Hebrew the verb tenses are ambiguous, the NRSV has rendered them in the past tense to underscore that the vision is a memory of how God acted in the past, particularly in delivering the Israelites from Egyptian bondage. 3: As in Deut 33.2 and Judg 5.4, the divine warrior began his march from Teman (synonymous with Edom, as in Ob 9) and Paran, areas in Transjordan associated with God's dramatic deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt. Selah, as in vv. 9 and 13, is a notation common to Psalms; its meaning is unclear, although it may indicate a musical pause. 4–11: The description of God's dominance over mountains, rivers, etc., has strong mythical connotations and may allude to the cosmologies of other ancient Near Eastern cultures, in which River and Sea were deities defeated by a more powerful god (see translation notes a and b). Parallels are found in Pss 74.12–15; 89.9–10. Throughout these verses, the divine warrior's scope is cosmic, as God brandishes chariots, bow, arrows and spear while subduing all the earth. 5: Pestilence and plague are pictured as divine attendants; cf. Ps 79.49. Plague (Heb "Resheph") is a well-attested deity in nonbiblical sources. 7: Although the location of Cushan is unknown, it is here linked with Midian, another area connected with the Transjordanian wanderings of the Israelites. 10–11: These and other verses are difficult to translate. Mountains ... writhed, a common image in depictions of theophanies (divine appearances); cf. Pss 29.5–8; 114.3–7. 12: As in Nah 1, God's anger is understood to be a positive force for action against injustice. 15: Further echoes of God's deliverance of the Israelites at the Red Sea (see Ex 15).

¹⁶ I hear, and I tremble within;
 my lips quiver at the sound.
 Rottenness enters into my bones,
 and my steps tremble^a beneath me.
 I wait quietly for the day of calamity to come upon the people who attack us.

¹⁷ Though the fig tree does not blossom, and no fruit is on the vines;
 though the produce of the olive fails,
 and the fields yield no food;
 though the flock is cut off from the fold,

and there is no herd in the stalls, ¹⁸ yet I will rejoice in the LORD;
 I will exult in the God of my salvation.
¹⁹ GOD, the Lord, is my strength;
 he makes my feet like the feet of a deer,
 and makes me tread upon the heights.^b

To the leader: with stringed^c instruments.

^a Cn Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^b Heb my heights

^c Heb my stringed

16–19a: The prophet's response to the vision. 16: Having heard a recital of the divine warrior's power in vv. 3–15, the prophet now is awestruck and is able to trust that God will indeed act again. He has received the vision promised by God in 2.3 and can wait quietly (2.20; see also 2.4n) for the day of calamity for his enemies. Since the liturgy to which the prophet is portrayed as responding is likely postexilic, the chapter as a whole and perhaps the book itself may date to the postexilic period. 17–19: Although God's saving acts are not yet evident and the people and its land continue to suffer, the vision has allowed the prophet to trust in God's saving power. 19: The book closes with a psalmlike affirmation that God is the prophet's strength (Ps 118.14) and makes his feet like the feet of a deer (Ps 18.33 = 2 Sam 22.34). The concluding instruction to the music leader to accompany the text with stringed instruments (see Pss 4; 6; 45; 54; 55; etc.) reinforces the psalmlike style of the chapter.

ZEPHANIAH

NAME, CANONICAL LOCATION, AND DATE OF COMPOSITION

Zephaniah is the ninth of the twelve Minor Prophets in both the Masoretic Text (MT) and the Septuagint (LXX). Its superscription provides more detailed information than do those of Nahum and Habakkuk, the two books that precede it in the canon.

The superscription's four-generation genealogy links the prophet (whose name means "the LORD has hidden" or "the LORD has stored up") with the reign of the Judean king Josiah (640–609 BCE). Second Kings 22–23 lauds Josiah as one of Judah's great religious reformers; before his death in 609 BCE, he removed foreign images from the Temple in Jerusalem, centralized worship practices, and established for Judah a degree of political independence from the Assyrian Empire. Resonating strongly with this narrative, Zephaniah blames Judeans for mixing worship of the LORD with the worship of other deities (1.4–5) and accuses the royal court of dressing in foreign attire (1.8–9).

While the literary setting of the book in the seventh century BCE is obvious, the book may actually have been composed or at least substantially edited at a later date. The concluding promise of salvation for "daughter Jerusalem" (3.14–20), for example, reflects an exilic or postexilic perspective in its concern with the return of exiles to the city.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION

Much of Zephaniah mirrors other prophetic books. It opens with a dramatic announcement of "the day of the LORD," a time in which God will act decisively to (re-)establish justice (Joel 1.15; 3.14; Am 5.18; Ob 15; Zech 12.4). It pairs oracles against foreign nations (cf. Isa 13–23; Jer 46–51; Ezek 25–32; Am 1.3–2.3) with oracles against Judah (cf. Isa 3; 5; Jer 1; 3; Am 2; Mic 2), accusing Judah of idolatry and injustice (cf. Isa 5.7; Jer 2.28; 11.13) and the nations of arrogance (cf. Isa 16.6; Jer 48.29; Zech 10.11). Zephaniah also ends with an announcement of salvation to "daughter Jerusalem," similar to those found in other prophetic books (e.g., Mic 4; Zech 2; 9). Its opening chapter, however, is distinctive for its comprehensive and harrowing depiction of the devastation of the earth and its inhabitants. Through insistent repetition and allusions to the creation narratives, it delivers an all-encompassing litany of doom that remains one of the most enduring images of judgment from the Hebrew Bible.

The book's powerful language for divine judgment captivated the imagination of later interpreters. The Apocalypse of Zephaniah, a Jewish document usually dated between 100 BCE and 70 CE, describes the prophet's tour of hell as well as his brief visit to heaven. The Dies irae ("day of wrath"), a thirteenth-century Christian sequence long included in the Mass for the Dead, quotes the Latin translation of Zephaniah 1.15. "Shoah," the Hebrew word for ruin in 1.15, is now a designation for the devastation of European Jewry known as the Holocaust.

Julia M. O'Brien

1 The word of the LORD that came to Zephaniah son of Cushi son of Gedaliah son of Amariah son of Hezekiah, in the days of King Josiah son of Amon of Judah.

²I will utterly sweep away everything from the face of the earth, says the
LORD.

³I will sweep away humans and animals;
I will sweep away the birds of the air and the fish of the sea.

I will make the wicked stumble.^a
I will cut off humanity
from the face of the earth, says the
LORD.

⁴I will stretch out my hand against Judah, and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem;

and I will cut off from this place every remnant of Baal
and the name of the idolatrous priests;^b

⁵those who bow down on the roofs to the host of the heavens;
those who bow down and swear to the
LORD,

but also swear by Milcom;^c ⁶those who have turned back from following the LORD,

who have not sought the LORD or inquired of him.

⁷Be silent before the Lord God!
For the day of the LORD is at hand;
the LORD has prepared a sacrifice,
he has consecrated his guests.

⁸And on the day of the LORD's sacrifice
I will punish the officials and the king's sons
and all who dress themselves in foreign attire.

⁹On that day I will punish all who leap over the threshold, who fill their master's house with violence and fraud.

¹⁰On that day, says the LORD,
a cry will be heard from the Fish Gate,
a wail from the Second Quarter,
a loud crash from the hills.

¹¹The inhabitants of the Mortar wail,
for all the traders have perished;
all who weigh out silver are cut off.

¹²At that time I will search Jerusalem with lamps,
and I will punish the people

^a Cn: Heb sea, and those who cause the wicked to stumble

^b Compare Gk: Heb the idolatrous priests with the priests

^c Gk Mss Syr Vg: Heb Malcam (or, their king)

1.1: Superscription. Cushi may be either a name or an ethnic designation, “Ethiopian” (see 2.12 and 3.10). If Hezekiah is the eighth-century reformer King Hezekiah (727/715–698/687 BCE; 2 Kings 18–20), then Zephaniah was a member of the royal family, which may be indicated by the unusually long genealogy. Josiah (640–609 BCE) was also a reformer (2 Kings 22–23), although his father Amon had sacrificed to carved images (2 Chr 33.22).

1.2–18: The coming day of the LORD. 2–3: Punishment is announced against everything on the face of the earth. The language echoes that used in the creation and flood narratives (Gen 1; 6.7; 7.4 and 8.8): everything (lit., “all”); humans (Heb “adam”); face of the earth (Heb “adamah”). God’s announcement returns the earth to the destruction announced in Gen 6–7 and overturns the divine promise in Gen 8–9 never again to destroy the earth. 4–5: The language of cut off continues, as God charges Judah’s inhabitants with combining worship of the LORD with worship of other deities such as the Canaanite god Baal, the astral deities known as the host of the heavens, and the Ammonite god Milcom. These charges, as well as the term for idolatrous priests, fit well with the accounts of Manasseh’s idolatry in 2 Kings 21 and Josiah’s reforms in 2 Kings 23; see also Jer 19.13; 32.29. 5: Repetition within v. 5 underscores the duplicity of the people: they bow down and swear both to the host of heaven and to Yahweh. 7–18: The day of the LORD (Joel 1.15; 3.14; Am 5.18; Ob 15; Zech 12.4). Verse 7 introduces vocabulary that will dominate this unit: day appears thirteen times through the end of the chapter. 7–13: The implications of the day for Judah. 7: Be silent, cf. Hab 2.20. Though court officials might be expected to be the guests at the LORD’s sacrificial banquet, in an ironic turn they are described as the sacrifice itself. 8–13: A listing of Judah’s crimes. 8–9: The linkage between those who adopt foreign attire with those who leap over the threshold, likely a non-Judean religious custom (cf. 1 Sam 5.5), connects assimilation with idolatry. 10–11: The Fish Gate (Neh 3.3; 12.39), the Second Quarter (2 Kings 22.14), and the Mortar (unidentified) likely all refer to wealthy districts in Jerusalem, where traders work. 12–13: Like the fourth-century BCE Greek philosopher Diogenes who roamed Athens with a lamp seeking who rest complacently^a on their dregs, those who say in their hearts,

 “The LORD will not do good,
 nor will he do harm.”
¹³ Their wealth shall be plundered, and their houses laid waste.
 Though they build houses,
 they shall not inhabit them;
 though they plant vineyards,
 they shall not drink wine from them.

¹⁴ The great day of the LORD is near,
 near and hastening fast;
 the sound of the day of the LORD is bitter,
 the warrior cries aloud there.

¹⁵ That day will be a day of wrath,
 a day of distress and anguish,
 a day of ruin and devastation,
 a day of darkness and gloom,
 a day of clouds and thick darkness,
¹⁶ a day of trumpet blast and battle cry
 against the fortified cities and against the lofty battlements.

¹⁷ I will bring such distress upon people that they shall walk like the blind;
 because they have sinned against the
 LORD,
 their blood shall be poured out like dust,
 and their flesh like dung.

¹⁸ Neither their silver nor their gold will be able to save them
 on the day of the LORD’s wrath;
 in the fire of his passion
 the whole earth shall be consumed;
 for a full, a terrible end he will make of all the inhabitants of

 the earth.

2 Gather together, gather,
 O shameless nation,
² before you are driven away like the drifting chaff,^b before there comes upon you
 the fierce anger of the LORD,
 before there comes upon you
 the day of the LORD’s wrath.

³ Seek the LORD, all you humble of the
 land,
 who do his commands;
 seek righteousness, seek humility;
 perhaps you may be hidden
 on the day of the LORD’s wrath.

⁴ For Gaza shall be deserted, and Ashkelon shall become a desolation;
 Ashdod’s people shall be driven out at noon,
 and Ekron shall be uprooted.

⁵ Ah, inhabitants of the seacoast, you nation of the Cherethites!
 The word of the LORD is against you,
 O Canaan, land of the Philistines;
 and I will destroy you until no inhabitant is left.

⁶ And you, O seacoast, shall be pastures, meadows for shepherds
 and folds for flocks.

^a Heb who thicken

^b Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb before a decree is born; like chaff a day has passed away an honest man, the LORD will search Jerusalem with lamps to find the guilty. Because they doubt God’s oversight of the world (see also Mal 2:17), their labor will not be successful (see Deut 28:30–31 and cf. Isa 65:21). 14–18: The chapter ends as it began, with attention on all the inhabitants of the earth (v. 18). As elsewhere in the prophets, the day is one of divine wrath (Isa 13:9) from which silver and gold provide no protection (Ezek 7:19). The sins of Judah lead to the destruction of all creation. 15: The term day appears six times in this verse; “Dies irae,” the Vulgate translation of day of wrath, is the title of the well-known medieval sequence for the dead; ruin translates Heb “sho’ah,” a term today used for the Holocaust. Compare Am 5:18–20.

2.1–3: Call to repentance. Although the day of the LORD is imminent, Judah’s repentance may yet stave off destruction. 1: The shameless nation likely is Judah. 3: As in Joel 2:14 and Jon 3:8–9, Zephaniah underscores that some could perhaps survive if they seek righteousness (Isa 51:1).

2.4–15: Judgment on the nations. The call for Judah to repent shifts to the announcement that Judah’s enemies will be destroyed. 4: Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, and Ekron are four of the five major cities of the Philistines (Josh 13:3). Missing from the traditional list is Gath, destroyed by the Assyrians ca. 712 BCE. 5: The Cherethites

Ch 2.4-15: Places mentioned in the oracles against foreign nations.

⁷The seacoast shall become the possession of the remnant of the house of Judah, on which they shall pasture, and in the houses of Ashkelon they shall lie down at evening. For the LORD their God will be mindful of them and restore their fortunes.

⁸I have heard the taunts of Moab and the revilings of the Ammonites, how they have taunted my people and made boasts against their territory.

⁹Therefore, as I live, says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, Moab shall become like Sodom and the Ammonites like Gomorrah, a land possessed by nettles and salt pits, and a waste forever. The remnant of my people shall plunder them, and the survivors of my nation shall possess them.

¹⁰This shall be their lot in return for their pride, because they scoffed and boasted against the people of the LORD of hosts.
¹¹The LORD will be terrible against them; he will shrivel all the gods of the earth, and to him shall bow down, each in its place, all the coasts and islands of the nations.

¹²You also, O Ethiopians,^a shall be killed by my sword.

¹³And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and he will make Nineveh a desolation, a dry waste like the desert.

^a Or Nubians; Heb Cushites

may be synonymous with Philistines (Ezek 25.16; 2 Sam 8.18n.), who ruled the area along the Mediterranean seacoast. 7: Remnant and restore their fortunes may reflect the situation of the Babylonian exile; see also v. 9; 3.18–20n. 8–11: Threats against Moab and the Ammonites, two of Judah’s eastern neighbors, are common in prophetic literature (Jer 48–49; Ezek 25; Am 1–2), as is the use of Sodom and Gomorrah to connote total annihilation (Gen 19; Isa 1.9; 13.19; Jer 23.14; 50.4). 9: See v. 7n. 12: The brief mention of the Ethiopians (Heb “Cush,” see 1.1n) seems out of place. 13–15: Assyria, with its capital Nineveh, receives the greatest condemnation, in keeping with ¹⁴ Herds shall lie down in it, every wild animal;^a

the desert owl^b and the screech owl^b shall lodge on its capitals;
the owl^c shall hoot at the window,
the raven^d croak on the threshold;
for its cedar work will be laid bare.

¹⁵ Is this the exultant city that lived secure,
that said to itself,
“I am, and there is no one else”?
What a desolation it has become,
a lair for wild animals!
Everyone who passes by it hisses and shakes the fist.

3 Ah, soiled, defiled, oppressing city!

² It has listened to no voice;
it has accepted no correction.
It has not trusted in the LORD;
it has not drawn near to its God.

³ The officials within it are roaring lions;
its judges are evening wolves that leave nothing until the morning.

⁴ Its prophets are reckless,
faithless persons;
its priests have profaned what is sacred,
they have done violence to the law.

⁵ The LORD within it is righteous;
he does no wrong.
Every morning he renders his judgment,
each dawn without fail;
but the unjust knows no shame.

⁶ I have cut off nations;
their battlements are in ruins;

I have laid waste their streets
so that no one walks in them;
their cities have been made desolate,
without people, without inhabitants.

⁷ I said, “Surely the city^e will fear me, it will accept correction;
it will not lose sight^f
of all that I have brought upon it.”
But they were the more eager to make all their deeds corrupt.

⁸ Therefore wait for me, says the LORD, for the day when I arise as a witness.
For my decision is to gather nations,
to assemble kingdoms,
to pour out upon them my indignation,
all the heat of my anger;
for in the fire of my passion
all the earth shall be consumed.

⁹ At that time I will change the speech of the peoples
to a pure speech,
that all of them may call on the name of
the LORD
and serve him with one accord.

¹⁰ From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia^g my suppliants, my scattered ones, shall bring my offering.

^a Tg Compare Gk: Heb nation

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb a voice

^d Gk Vg: Heb desolation

^e Heb it

^f Gk Syr: Heb its dwelling will not be cut off

^g Or Nubia; Heb Cush

the book’s Assyrian setting outlined in 1.1. While the translation of the animal vocabulary is difficult, the threat that a city could become the lair for wild animals was common in the ancient world (Isa 13.19–22; 24.11–15). Hisses and shakes the fist, ancient gestures of cursing (Jer 19.8; 49.17; Lam 2.15).

3.1–7: Judgment against Jerusalem. The city Jerusalem is no better than the nations previously judged. Officials, judges, prophets, and priests encompass the entire leadership of the city (Jer 6.13; 14.18). Their deceit sets in contrast the righteousness and just judgments of God. 6–7: God’s punishment of the nations should have served as a warning for Judah to fear God and repent (cf. Am 4).

3.8–10: Judgment and salvation of the nations. 8: The day of the LORD, which dominated ch 1, returns; it is here described as a day of God’s decision to act against the nations (Joel 3.14). 9: A more universal hope follows, in which all peoples will call on Judah’s God (Isa 2; Mal 1.11; Ps 68.31). The punishment of those who built the tower of Babel (Gen 11.9) is reversed. 10: Scattered ones, Judeans who have been exiled to places such as Ethiopia (Heb “Cush”; see 1.1n.; 2.12), will join in this worldwide worship of God.

¹¹ On that day you shall not be put to shame because of all the deeds by which you have rebelled against me;
for then I will remove from your midst
your proudly exultant ones, and you shall no longer be haughty
in my holy mountain.

¹² For I will leave in the midst of you a people humble and lowly.
They shall seek refuge in the name of the
LORD—

¹³ the remnant of Israel;
they shall do no wrong
and utter no lies,
nor shall a deceitful tongue
be found in their mouths.
Then they will pasture and lie down,
and no one shall make them afraid.

¹⁴ Sing aloud, O daughter Zion; shout, O Israel!
Rejoice and exult with all your heart,
O daughter Jerusalem!

¹⁵ The LORD has taken away the judgments
against you,
he has turned away your enemies.
The king of Israel, the LORD, is in your
midst;

you shall fear disaster no more.

¹⁶ On that day it shall be said to Jerusalem:
Do not fear, O Zion;
do not let your hands grow weak.

¹⁷ The LORD, your God, is in your midst, a warrior who gives victory;
he will rejoice over you with gladness,
he will renew you^a in his love;
he will exult over you with loud singing¹⁸
as on a day of festival.^b

I will remove disaster from you,^c so that you will not bear reproach for it.

¹⁹ I will deal with all your oppressors at that time.

And I will save the lame
and gather the outcast, and I will change their shame into praise and renown in all the earth.

²⁰ At that time I will bring you home, at the time when I gather you;
for I will make you renowned and praised among all the peoples of the earth, when I restore your fortunes
before your eyes, says the LORD.

^a GkSyr: Heb he will be silent

^b GkSyr: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Cn: Heb I will remove from you; they were

3.11–13: Salvation in Jerusalem. Focus returns to Jerusalem, for which feminine Heb forms are used. 11: At the time of salvation, God will remove the city's shame (3.19; Joel 2.26–27) and those who are haughty (Isa 2.11,12,17), highly negative terms in prophetic books. My holy mountain, Mount Zion, site of the Temple. 12–13: As in 2.7,9, this verse envisions salvation not for all of Judah but only for a remnant. The humble, those urged in 2.3 to seek righteousness, will survive. Their peaceful state will be like that of guarded sheep.

3.14–20: Salvation of daughter Jerusalem. The feminine characterization of Jerusalem expands to its depiction as a daughter, a designation of the city used throughout the prophets to underscore its vulnerability and utter dependency on God. 15–17: The presence of God as strong king and warrior means that daughter Jerusalem does not need to fear or grow weak (Zech 2.10–11; 9.9–1). 17–18: The Heb is obscure; see textual notes. 17: God the warrior will sing and rejoice, just as Jerusalem was called to do in 3.14. 3.18–20: I will remove disaster from you, contrasting with the beginning of the book, 1.2–3. Restore your fortunes, see 2.7. The deep concern for the ingathering of exiles likely reflects postexilic sentiments, indicating either that these verses were later added to a late-Assyrian-period book or that the book itself was written in the postexilic period as a retrospective look at the time of King Josiah. The language is highly reminiscent of the promises made to Jerusalem in Zech 1–2, as well those made to daughter Zion in Mic 4.6–7, which also envisions the return of the lame and outcast (the same Heb word is translated as “those who were cast off” in Mic 4.7).

HAGGAI

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND CANONICAL STATUS

The book offers no biographical information about Haggai, the prophet for whom the book is named. The name Haggai is related to the Hebrew word for festival (hag), perhaps indicating that he was born on a feast day. The book reports Haggai's prophetic activity during a brief period of less than four months in 520 BCE; see also Ezra 5.1. For Haggai as one of the twelve Minor Prophets, see the Introduction to the Prophetic Books (p. 971–75).

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The chronological formula with which the book begins (and which then reappears in 1.15b–2.1) is similar in style to those found in other books, e.g., 2 Kings 3.1; Hos 1.1; Am 1.1. The book of Haggai, however, records events after the destruction of the kingdom of Judah in 586 BCE and so has no native king to whom to refer (cf. Esth 3.7; Dan 7.1; 8.1; 9.1; 10.1; 11.1). Instead, Haggai is dated to the reign of a Persian ruler, Darius I. Darius was the king during whose reign (522–486 BCE) the Temple in Jerusalem was dedicated (515). The temple of Solomon had been destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 (see 2 Kings 26.8–21). The rebuilding inaugurates what scholars refer to as the Second Temple period. Early in Darius's reign, several Persian colonies revolted, most notably Egypt, in response to which the empire launched both military and administrative campaigns to restore regional security. It was therefore in his interest to have a politically stable Syria-Palestine from which to move toward Egypt.

Because the book does not mention the completion of the Temple in 515 BCE, it was probably written before that event.

STRUCTURE, CONTENTS, AND INTERPRETATION

Though many English translations construe the book as prose, substantial portions may be poetic, e.g., 1.4–9. The book presents a brief apologetic, historical narrative, focused on the rebuilding of the Temple, and, in four dated oracles, on Haggai's role in persuading the community to complete that project. Haggai interpreted the plight of those in Yehud (the name given to the territory around Jerusalem by the Persians). Although 2 Chr 36.22–23 highlights the role of Cyrus in the rebuilding of the Temple, the book of Haggai emphasizes that local leaders should receive the credit. The book's final oracle broaches another issue, the royal prerogatives of Zerubbabel, heir to the Davidic throne, and the glory that would ensue with a king enthroned.

David L. Petersen

1 In the second year of King Darius, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest: ² Thus says the LORD of hosts:

These people say the time has not yet come to rebuild the LORD's house. ³ Then the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: ⁴ Is it a time for you yourselves to live in your paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins? ⁵ Now therefore thus says the

1.1–11: Haggai indicts the people. 1: The second year, 520 BCE. The sixth month, Elul (August–September). The first day of the month was a time for special rituals; the date is ironic, since the place where such rituals took place is in ruins. Zerubbabel (1 Chr 3.19; Ezra 2.2; 3.2,8; 5.2; Neh 12.1; Zech 4.6–10), the grandson of Jehoiachin (2 Kings 24.8–17; 1 Chr 3.16–19), and thus a descendant of David. Joshua, Zech 3.1–10; 6.11 (= Jeshua in Ezra 2–5). Addressing the two together suggests that Yehud was led by both political and religious leaders, cf. Zech 4.10b–14. 2: For reasons unknown, the community has resisted rebuilding the Temple. 3–5: Even though Zerubbabel and Joshua had been addressed previously, Haggai appears to speak directly to the community. 4: Haggai charges the people not only with not building the Temple but also with living in lavish, i.e., paneled, houses. (Solomon's palace was paneled with cedar, 1 Kings 7.7.) The issue of time (vv. 2,4) is important. Haggai's rhetorical question receives no direct answer, but the answer is obviously “no.” 5: Consider, lit., “set to your hearts,”

LORD of hosts: Consider how you have fared. ⁶You have sown much, and harvested little; you eat, but you never have enough; you drink, but you never have your fill; you clothe yourselves, but no one is warm; and you that earn wages earn wages to put them into a bag with holes.

⁷Thus says the LORD of hosts: Consider how you have fared. ⁸Go up to the hills and bring wood and build the house, so that I may take pleasure in it and be honored, says the LORD. ⁹You have looked for much, and, lo, it came to little; and when you brought it home, I blew it away. Why? says the LORD of hosts. Because my house lies in ruins, while all of you hurry off to your own houses. ¹⁰Therefore the heavens above you have withheld the dew, and the earth has withheld its produce. ¹¹And I have called for a drought on the land and the hills, on the grain, the new wine, the oil, on what the soil produces, on human beings and animals, and on all their labors.

¹²Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the LORD their God, and the words of the prophet Haggai, as the LORD their God had sent him; and the people feared the LORD. ¹³Then Haggai, the messenger of the LORD, spoke to the people with the LORD's message, saying, I am with you, says the LORD. ¹⁴And the LORD stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and worked on the house of the LORD of hosts, their God, ¹⁵on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month. In the second year of King Darius, 2 ¹in the seventh month, on the twenty-first day of the month, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: ²Speak now to Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the remnant of the people, and say, ³Who is left among you that saw this house in its former glory? How does it look to you now? Is it not in your sight as nothing? ⁴Yet now take courage, O Zerubbabel, says the LORD; take courage, O Joshua, son of Jehozadak, the high priest; take courage, all you people of the land, says the LORD; work, for I am with you, says the LORD of hosts, ⁵according to a recurring phrase (1.7; 2.15,18). 6: Haggai analyzes the status quo, using imagery drawn from futility curses; cf. Deut 28.38; Hos 4.10. Such misfortune stands in marked contrast with the luxurious houses in which the people live. 7–11: A call to action. 8: Haggai's central admonition: build the Temple. 9–11: These verses are built around a wordplay: as long as the Temple is in ruins (Heb "hāreb"), the people will suffer drought ("hōreb"). 9: The prophet returns to the language of futility curses, though now explicitly identifying the LORD as the one who has caused such futility.

1.12–15a: The people respond. Unlike many earlier prophets, Haggai is successful in his admonitions. 12: All the remnant of the people suggests that Zerubbabel and Joshua had moved the people to obey. Remnant is ambiguous, perhaps referring to a group smaller than the preexilic population, or perhaps specifying those who had returned from exile. 13: The messenger of the LORD, a logical though unusual label for a prophet; cf. 2 Chr 35.15–16. I am with you often occurs in oracles of salvation (e.g., Isa 41.10; 43.5). 14: A new perspective on the people's obedience (v. 12), which is due to the LORD's stirring up the spirit of both the leaders and the people; cf. 2 Chr 36.22. 15: The sixth month, see v. 1; the date seems out of place, since such dates elsewhere in the book occur at the beginning of an oracle.

1.15b–2.9: The Temple will be filled with splendor. Contrary to current experience, the LORD promises that this Temple will be even more glorious than the earlier one. 1.15b–2.1: The seventh month, Tishri (September–October); the twenty-first day, when the community would have been celebrating the feast of booths (Lev 23.33–36,39–42). 2.3: As in v. 4, Haggai poses questions, the last two of which are rhetorical. The first question indicates that at least some of those present had seen the First Temple before it was destroyed in 586 BCE (cf. Ezra 3.12–13). They would have been more than seventy years old to remember the First Temple. 4: Take courage, cf. Zech 8.9,13,22–23, where the same Hebrew word occurs. In 1 Chr 28.10,20, David delivers a similar exhortation to Solomon, builder of the First Temple. People of the land probably refers to the same group known earlier as the remnant of the people, although some scholars have suggested that the former phrase refers to a rural the promise that I made you when you came out of Egypt. My spirit abides among you; do not fear. ⁶For thus says the LORD of hosts: Once again, in a little while, I will shake the heavens and the earth and the sea and the dry land; ⁷and I will shake all the nations, so that the treasure of all nations shall come, and I will fill this house with splendor, says the LORD of hosts. ⁸The silver is mine, and the gold is mine, says the LORD of hosts. ⁹The latter splendor of this house shall be greater than the former, says the LORD of hosts; and in this place I will give prosperity, says the LORD of hosts.

¹⁰On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came by the prophet Haggai, saying: ¹¹Thus says the LORD of hosts: Ask the priests for a ruling: ¹²If one carries consecrated meat in the fold of one's garment, and with the fold touches bread, or stew, or wine, or oil, or any kind of food, does it become holy? The priests answered, "No." ¹³Then Haggai said, "If one who is unclean by contact with a dead body touches any of these, does it become unclean?" The priests answered, "Yes, it becomes unclean." ¹⁴Haggai then said, "So is it with this people, and with this nation before me, says the LORD; and so with every work of their hands; and what they offer there is unclean." ¹⁵But now, consider what will come to pass from this day on. Before a stone was placed upon a stone in the LORD's temple, ¹⁶how did you fare?^a When one came to a heap of twenty measures, there were but ten; when one came to the wine vat to draw fifty measures, there were but twenty. ¹⁷I struck you and all the products of your toil with blight and mildew and hail; yet you did not return to me, says the LORD. ¹⁸Consider from this day on, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month. Since the day that the foundation of the LORD's temple was laid, consider: ¹⁹Is there any seed left in the barn?

^a Gk: Heb since they were population that did not go into exile. I am with you, see 1.13n. 5: The Hebrew is difficult, reading literally, "The matter that I covenanted with you when you came out of Egypt." Haggai is clearly alluding to the Exodus and Sinai experiences, and claiming that God's covenant is still in force. The notion of God's spirit residing among the people is unusual. However, God could not be present as before, since the Temple had not yet been rebuilt.

2.6–9: An oracle announcing theophanic splendor. 6: God will now act on behalf of the Temple. Once again, in a little while is difficult in Hebrew, literally, "yet one, and it is only a little one." References to such shaking of the cosmos often occur in eschatological literature (e.g., v. 21; Isa 13.13; Joel 3.16; Heb 12.26). Here the very fabric of the universe quakes, not just mountains. This description of the universe—heavens, earth, sea, dry land—echoes that in Gen 1. 7: Splendor refers to precious objects (see Hos 13.15; 2 Chr 32.27), which means that Haggai anticipates new ritual vessels will be provided for the Temple, the old ones having been plundered by the Neo-Babylonians (cf. 2 Kings 24.13). 8: On silver and gold, cf. Zech 6.9–15, where they are products of fund-raising. 9: Prosperity, Heb "shalom." The rebuilt Temple will engender well-being in Yehud, reversing the conditions described in 1.6,9.

2.10–14: The community is unclean. 10: December 18, 520 BCE, two months since the oracle promising splendor. The word of the LORD comes literally "to" Haggai, not "by" as was the case in 1.3 and 2.1; i.e., this is a private oracle. 11: Ruling, Heb "torah." Priests were responsible for determining whether something or someone was holy or common, clean or unclean (Lev 10.10–11; Deut 33.10). Unlike the priests indicted in Ezek 22.26, those whom Haggai consults give proper responses. 12–13: Two cases, one involving something holy, another involving something unclean, demonstrate the supremely contagious quality of the latter. Corpse uncleanness is especially difficult to remove (Num 19). 14: Haggai focuses on what they offer there as unclean. Sacrifices presented at the altar and the Temple, which was under construction, are unclean, presumably because the Temple itself has not yet been rededicated. The unclean Temple is analogous to a corpse in its ability to defile.

2.15–19: The Temple is rededicated. Since 2:20 refers to a second word of the LORD on the twenty-fourth day, 2.15–19 are part of the first word, which begins at 2.10. 15–17: The repetition of consider in this oracle mirrors the twofold use in 1.5,7. Haggai appeals to past agricultural disaster, comparable to that depicted in 1.6,10–11. 18: This day almost certainly refers to the day on which the Temple's foundation stone was relaid (cf. Zech 4.9; Ezra 3.10–11). Even though the Temple will not be completed and rededicated until 515 BCE, the Temple has now been purified. 19: Haggai's questions (cf. 1.4; 2.3,16) affirm that seeds will be planted and that vines and trees

Do the vine, the fig tree, the pomegranate, and the olive tree still yield nothing? From this day on I will bless you.

²⁰The word of the LORD came a second time to Haggai on the twenty-fourth day of the month: ²¹Speak to Zerubbabel, governor of Judah, saying, I am about to shake the heavens and the earth, ²²and to overthrow the throne of kingdoms; I am about to destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations, and overthrow the chariots and their riders; and the horses and their riders shall fall, every one by the sword of a comrade.

²³On that day, says the LORD of hosts, I will take you, O Zerubbabel my servant, son of Shealtiel, says the LORD, and make you like a signet ring; for I have chosen you, says the LORD of hosts.

will yield fruit. Prior agricultural disaster will give way to fertility. The final words are literally “I will bless,” the implication being that the “shalom” foreseen in 2.9 will include both the people and the land.

2.20–23: Zerubbabel, my servant and signet ring. On that same twenty-fourth day, a second oracle focuses on Zerubbabel. 21: The diction of “shaking” the nations resumes that in 2.6. 22: God will destroy unnamed nations. The language is allusive, e.g., chariots and their riders echoes Jer 51.21, overthrow Gen 19.25, sword of a comrade Judg 7.22. 23: On that day, a phrase routinely used to depict the eschatological “day of the LORD.” Son of Shealtiel means that Zerubbabel stands in the Davidic line, the grandson of Jehoiachin, Judah’s last reigning king. The diction of choosing (God “chose” David, Ps 78.70), servant (the Davidic king can be so labeled, 2 Sam 7.5), and signet ring (Jer 22.24 likens a king to a signet ring) all suggest that Haggai thinks Zerubbabel will achieve royal status. Zerubbabel’s actual fate, however, is unknown.

ZECHARIAH

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND CANONICAL STATUS

The book is named for the prophet Zechariah, a contemporary of the prophet Haggai. Both prophesied in the early days of the restoration, when returning exiles and those who had never left joined together to rebuild Judahite society. Although the book provides no biographical information apart from his apparent priestly lineage (1.1), Zechariah is mentioned, along with Haggai, in Ezra 5.1 and 6.14. The book of Zechariah, however, is made up of diverse literature, deriving from different historical periods. Only the material in chs 1–8 pertains to the historical Zechariah.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Chapters 1–8, often known as First Zechariah, include three chronological formulae (1.1,7; 7.1), which report that Zechariah was active in October–November 520 BCE and December 518 BCE. As with Haggai, Zechariah's work is dated early in the reign of the Persian emperor Darius I (522–486 BCE) and before the rededication of the Temple in 515. Though Haggai interacted with individuals also mentioned by Zechariah and both were active during 520 BCE, neither prophet refers to the other, although “the prophets” to whom Zechariah refers in 8.9 may include Haggai. Ezra 5.1 speaks of them as active together. Chapters 9–14, sometimes referred to as Second or Deutero-Zechariah, stem from a later time, which is difficult to determine for at least two reasons. First, there are no explicit chronological formulas nor direct references to named individuals or recognizable historical events. Second, chs 9–14 are themselves heterogeneous. Zechariah 9:1 and 12:1 introduce two collections with comparable formulas: “The word of the LORD.” The collections differ so much that it is unlikely they derive from the same time. Reference to Greece (9.13) may suggest that this section dates to the Hellenistic period, when Greece ruled Syria-Palestine.

STRUCTURE, CONTENTS, AND INTERPRETATION

The book's first oracle (1.1–7) is dated to the month just before Haggai reported that the Temple foundation stone had been laid (Hag 2.10). Unlike Haggai, Zechariah is not overtly concerned with the rebuilding of the Temple, though he does refer to the Temple foundation stone ceremony (8.9). His message is broader, including both moral discourse and visionary rhetoric. As a result, Zechariah 1–8 is more literarily diverse than Haggai, including both oracles and vision reports; Haggai has none of the latter. The oracles are themselves diverse. Some recapitulate rhetoric known from earlier prophets to whom he refers in general terms (1.5–6; 7.12); some encourage the people to return to the land (2.6–13); others offer ethical admonition (e.g., 7.8–10); still others announce a glorious future for Zion (8.1–7).

The eight vision reports in chs 1–6 are truly distinctive. Other prophetic books include vision reports (e.g., Amos, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel), but none includes such a high proportion of them. In earlier visions, prophets apparently understood what they perceived. This changes with Zechariah. As prophet, he receives the visions, but he understands them only when they are interpreted by “the angel of the LORD” (e.g., Zech 1.9–10, lit., “the LORD's messenger”). This situation will recur in apocalyptic visions (e.g., Dan 7). Further, as was the case with Amos, the vision reports in Zech 1–6 constitute a carefully structured series. The first and last visions offer scenes populated by multicolored horses, whereas the central visions in chs 4 and 5 highlight figures important to Yehud's polity: the high priest Joshua and the governor Zerubbabel. Zechariah's visions move beyond ordinary reality, e.g., a flying scroll (5.1–4). Moreover, they span “the whole earth” (1.11). These visions explain the ways in which God is working providentially on behalf of the newly restored community.

The latter part of the book (Zech 9–14) has a less carefully worked-out structure. Two collections of prophetic sayings (chs 9–11 and 12–14) are introduced by the heading “An Oracle. The word of the LORD,” as is the collection represented by Malachi, which follows. Chapters 9–11 are largely concerned with the victories of the LORD as divine warrior. The collection in chs 12–14 has a related focus on the imminent “day of the LORD” and is characterized by the repeated phrase “on that day.”

1 In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah son of Iddo, saying: ²The LORD was very angry with your ancestors. ³Therefore say to them, Thus says the LORD of hosts: Return to me, says the LORD of hosts, and I will return to you, says the LORD of hosts. ⁴Do not be like your ancestors, to whom the former prophets proclaimed, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, Return from your evil ways and from your evil deeds.” But they did not hear or heed me, says the LORD. ⁵Your ancestors, where are they? And the prophets, do they live forever? ⁶But my words and my statutes, which I commanded my servants the prophets, did they not overtake your ancestors? So they repented and said, “The LORD of hosts has dealt with us according to our ways and deeds, just as he planned to do.”

⁷On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, the month of Shebat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the LORD came to the prophet Zechariah son of Berechiah son of Iddo; and Zechariah^a said, ⁸In the night I saw a man riding on a red horse! He was standing among the myrtle trees in the glen; and behind him were red, sorrel, and white horses. ⁹Then I said, “What are these, my lord?” The angel who talked with me said to me, “I will show you what they are.” ¹⁰So the man who was standing among the myrtle trees answered, “They are those whom the LORD has sent to patrol the earth.” ¹¹Then they spoke to the angel of the LORD who was standing among the myrtle trees, “We have patrolled the earth, and lo, the whole earth remains at peace.” ¹²Then the angel of the LORD said, “O LORD of hosts, how long will you withhold mercy from Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, with which you have been angry these seventy years?” ¹³Then the LORD replied with gracious and comforting words to the angel who talked with me. ¹⁴So the angel who talked with me said to me, Proclaim this message: Thus says the LORD of hosts; I am very jealous for Jerusalem and for Zion. ¹⁵And I am extremely angry with the nations that are at ease; for while I was only a little angry, they made the disaster worse. ¹⁶Therefore, thus says the LORD, I have returned to Jerusalem with compassion; my house shall be built in it, says the LORD of hosts, and the measuring line shall be stretched out over Jerusalem. ¹⁷Proclaim further: Thus says the LORD of hosts: My cities shall again overflow with prosperity; the LORD will again comfort Zion and again choose Jerusalem.

^{18b}And I looked up and saw four horns. ¹⁹I asked the angel who talked with me, “What are these?” And he answered me, “These are the horns that have scattered Judah, Israel,

^a Heb and he

^b Ch 2.1 in Heb

1.1–8.23: Oracles and visions attributed to Zechariah. This first major division of the book has three parts, each introduced by a date formula (1.1; 1.7; 7.1).

1.1–6: Prologue. 1: The eighth month, in the second year, Marheshvan (October–November), 520 BCE. Darius I, king of Persia, 522–486 BCE. A Zechariah son of Iddo, mentioned in Neh 12.16, belongs to a priestly lineage. Zechariah means “God remembered,” which symbolizes God’s remembering of the people, an important theme of the book. 2–6: An unusual oracle, which reflects on past prophetic admonitions and the ancestors’ responses. Heb “shub,” translated both return and repent, occurs four times. For earlier prophetic calls to return, see, e.g., Joel 2.12; Jer 18.11; Ezek 33.11. 3: On mutual return, cf. Joel 2.12–14; Mal 3.7. 6: Though the ancestors did not initially return, they finally repented, which sets the stage for a glorious future.

1.7–17: The first vision: divine horsemen patrol the earth. 7: The eleventh month . . . Shebat, January–February; the year is 519 BCE. 8: Glen, or “cosmic deep”; cf. Mic 7.19. 9–12: A quiet scene in which horses graze, symbolizing peace over all the earth, elicits a protest by the angel. 10: Patrol the earth, cf. Job 1.7; 2.2. 12: How long frequently occurs in laments, e.g., Pss 6.4; 79.5. Seventy years also appears in Zech 7.4. The phrase is used in both biblical (e.g., Jer 25.11; Isa 23.15) and other ancient texts to refer to an unfortunate period of time. 13–17: The LORD expresses anger at the nations and promises that both the Temple and cities will be rebuilt. 16: The measuring line, indicating new construction (see 2.1–5; Jer 31.38–39; cf. Mic 2.4–5; Am 7.17).

1.18–21: The second vision: four horns and four smiths. 18: The four horns are ambiguous. They may refer to two pairs of animal horns, to horned helmets, or, most likely, to the four corners of a stone altar (cf. Ex 27.2; 38.2; and Jerusalem.”²⁰ Then the LORD showed me four blacksmiths.²¹ And I asked, “What are they coming to do?” He answered, “These are the horns that scattered Judah, so that no head could be raised; but these have come to terrify them, to strike down the horns of the nations that lifted up their horns against the land of Judah to scatter its people.”^a

2^b I looked up and saw a man with a measuring line in his hand.² Then I asked, “Where are you going?” He answered me, “To measure Jerusalem, to see what is its width and what is its length.”³ Then the angel who talked with me came forward, and another angel came forward to meet him,⁴ and said to him, “Run, say to that young man: Jerusalem shall be inhabited like villages without walls, because of the multitude of people and animals in it.⁵ For I will be a wall of fire all around it, says the LORD, and I will be the glory within it.”

⁶Up, up! Flee from the land of the north, says the LORD; for I have spread you abroad like the four winds of heaven, says the LORD.⁷Up! Escape to Zion, you that live with daughter Babylon.⁸ For thus said the LORD of hosts (after his glory^c sent me) regarding the nations that plundered you: Truly, one who touches you touches the apple of my eye.^d ⁹See now, I am going to raise^e my hand against them, and they shall become plunder for their own slaves. Then you will know that the LORD of hosts has sent me.¹⁰ Sing and rejoice, O daughter Zion! For lo, I will come and dwell in your midst, says the LORD.¹¹ Many nations shall join themselves to the LORD on that day, and shall be my people; and I will dwell in your midst. And you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you.¹² The LORD will inherit Judah as his portion in the holy land, and will again choose Jerusalem.

¹³Be silent, all people, before the LORD; for he has roused himself from his holy dwelling.

3 Then he showed me the high priest Joshua standing before the angel of the LORD, and Satan^f standing at his right hand

^a Heb it

^b Ch 2.5 in Heb

^c Cn: Heb after glory he

^d Heb his eye

^e Or wave

^f Or the Accuser; Heb the Adversary

Ezek 43.15). They are then interpreted as representing the totality of nations that destroyed Israel. 19: Horns elsewhere can symbolize nations (e.g., Deut 33.17; Jer 48.25; Dan 8.8). 20: Blacksmiths, the Heb word can refer to an artisan who works with wood, stone, or metal. 21: These have come probably refers to the artisans who will destroy the horns of the nations. Such artisans are elsewhere depicted as punitive agents (Ezek 21.31, “those skillful to destroy”). The world at peace in the first vision will now be disrupted.

2.1–5: The third vision: a surveyor measures Jerusalem. 1: A measuring line, see 1.16n. Such a line was used to determine divisions within a particular territory as in Ezek 40.3, a text that also foresees the rebuilding of Jerusalem and the Temple, using the categories of width and length. 2: Zechariah’s questions presume that, in this vision, he understands what he sees. 4: Restoration focuses on Jerusalem, not the Temple, as was the case in Ezekiel. Here the absence of walls stands in stark contrast with the walls described in Ezek 40. Jerusalem’s walls were eventually rebuilt (Neh 2.17–6.15). 5: Wall of fire, the Persian capital Pasargadae stood without walls and was surrounded by fire altars. God as glory will be located within the fiery circumference; cf. Ezek 43.2,4.

2.6–13: Admonitions and promises. 6–7: Up, Up, Heb “hoy” is elsewhere often translated as “Woe,” though here it simply calls attention to what is being said; cf. Isa 1.24; Jer 27.6. The land of the north, the place where Israelites are in exile and from which they will return, so Jer 3.18; 16.15; 23.8; 31.8. Daughter Babylon, cf. Jer 50.42; 51.33; Ps 137.8. 8a: Lit., “after glory sent me to the nations.” Cf. vv. 9,11, which also report that the LORD sent me. 8b: Apple of my eye, the pupil. 9: My hand, another bodily metaphor of the deity. Only when the nations are plundered will Israelites know that the LORD sent Zechariah. 10: Sing and rejoice, cf. Isa 12.6; Zeph 3.14–15. In all three texts, the command to sing accompanies the presence of the God in your midst. 11: Join themselves to the LORD, cf. 8.20–23; Isa 56.6–7. 12: Holy land does not occur elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible, but see Wis 12.3; 2 Macc 1.7. Zechariah emphasizes the sacred character of the land of Israel. 13: Be silent, cf. Hab 2.20; Zeph 1.7. Sacrifices at the Temple were conducted in silence. All people is consistent with v. 11. Holy dwelling can refer to either the earthly temple (Ps 26.8) or the heavenly abode (Deut 26.15).

3.1–10: The fourth vision: Joshua and the satan. This vision differs from the prior three: Zechariah is shown something—he does not just see it; the usual question is missing; and no clarification is offered. 1: The angel to accuse him.² And the LORD said to Satan,^a “The LORD rebuke you, O Satan! The LORD who has chosen Jerusalem rebuke you! Is not this man a brand plucked from the fire?”³ Now Joshua was dressed with filthy clothes as he stood before the angel.⁴ The angel said to those who were standing before him, “Take off his filthy clothes.” And to him he said, “See, I have taken your guilt away from you, and I will clothe you with festal apparel.”⁵ And I said, “Let them put a clean turban on his head.” So they put a clean turban on his head and clothed him with the apparel; and the angel of the LORD was standing by.

⁶ Then the angel of the LORD assured Joshua, saying⁷ “Thus says the LORD of hosts: If you will walk in my ways and keep my requirements, then you shall rule my house and have charge of my courts, and I will give you the right of access among those who are standing here.⁸ Now listen, Joshua, high priest, you and your colleagues who sit before you! For they are an omen of things to come: I am going to bring my servant the Branch.⁹ For on the stone that I have set before Joshua, on a single stone with seven facets, I will engrave its inscription, says the LORD of hosts, and I will remove the guilt of this land in a single day.¹⁰ On that day, says the LORD of hosts, you shall invite each other to come under your vine and fig tree.”

4 The angel who talked with me came again, and wakened me, as one is wakened from sleep.² He said to me, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see a lampstand all of gold, with a bowl on the top of it; there are seven lamps on it, with seven lips on each of the lamps that are on the top of it.³ And by it there are two olive trees, one on the right of the bowl and the other on its left.”⁴ I said to the angel who talked with me, “What are these, my lord?”⁵ Then the angel who talked with me answered me, “Do you not know what these are?” I said, “No, my lord.”⁶ He said to me, “This is the word of the LORD to Zerubbabel: Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, says the LORD of hosts.⁷ What are you, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel you shall become a plain; and he shall bring out the top stone amid shouts of ‘Grace, grace to it!’”

⁸ Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,⁹ “The hands of Zerubbabel have laid the foundation of this house; his hands shall also complete it. Then you will know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you.¹⁰ For whoever has despised the day of small things shall rejoice, and shall see the plummet in the hand of Zerubbabel.

^a Or the Accuser; Heb the Adversary of the LORD is not an interpreter but a character in the vision, along with Joshua, the high priest (cf. Hag 1.1; 2.2); also called “Jeshua” (e.g., Ezra 2.2) and “the satan” (see textual note a). This figure functions as the prosecuting attorney in the divine council; cf. Ps 109.6; 1 Chr 21.1 (only in this text does Heb “Satan” appear without the definite article, perhaps as a name); Job 1–2. 2: The accuser is rebuked, apparently for having charged Joshua improperly. 3: The high priest is ritually unclean. 4: Festal apparel (cf. Isa 3.22) symbolizes the cleansing of the high priest. 5: And I said should read with LXX (Septuagint), “and he said.” Zechariah is not an actor in the vision. Turban, the headgear of the high priest, although not the same Heb word as in Lev 8.9. 6–7: Admonitions, both general and specific; keep my requirements refers to priestly responsibilities (Num 3; Ezek 44). Those standing here belong to the divine council, to which Joshua is promised access. 8–10: The Branch (cf. Isa 11.1; Jer 23.5; 33.15) refers to a member of the royal family of David, probably Zerubbabel, the governor (Hag 1.1; 2.20–23). Stone ... with ... facets, probably the engraved gold plaque on the high priest’s headdress (Ex 28.36–38); it signifies the ability of the high priest to remove guilt. 10: Under your vine and fig tree, see 1 Kings 4.25; Mic 4.4.

4.1–14: The fifth vision: a lampstand and two olive trees. 1–6a: This vision builds on the previous one, since it alludes to Joshua. 2: Lampstand (Heb “menorah”) has a round bowl at the top with seven indentations for wicks; see Ex 25.31–40. 3: Olive trees provide the oil that fueled the lamp. 6b–10a: A distinct oracle. 6b–7: An unnamed person is addressed as O great mountain and compared to Zerubbabel, probably the recently purified Joshua. Zerubbabel will achieve high status as the one who lays the foundation stone—the top stone—of the Temple. The ritual of Temple rededication involved reusing a stone from the previous temple. 8–10a: A second oracle, referring to the previous ritual, again highlights the role Zerubbabel will have in the reconstruction of the Temple. Kings were known as temple builders. 10a: The day of small things, cf. Ezra 3.11. Plummet emphasizes

“These seven are the eyes of the LORD, which range through the whole earth.”

¹¹ Then I said to him, “What are these two olive trees on the right and the left of the lampstand?” ¹² And a second time I said to him, “What are these two branches of the olive trees, which pour out the oil^a through the two golden pipes?” ¹³ He said to me, “Do you not know what these are?” I said, “No, my lord.” ¹⁴ Then he said, “These are the two anointed ones who stand by the Lord of the whole earth.”

5 Again I looked up and saw a flying scroll. ² And he said to me, “What do you see?” I answered, “I see a flying scroll; its length is twenty cubits, and its width ten cubits.” ³ Then he said to me, “This is the curse that goes out over the face of the whole land; for everyone who steals shall be cut off according to the writing on one side, and everyone who swears falsely^b shall be cut off according to the writing on the other side. ⁴ I have sent it out, says the LORD of hosts, and it shall enter the house of the thief, and the house of anyone who swears falsely by my name; and it shall abide in that house and consume it, both timber and stones.”

⁵ Then the angel who talked with me came forward and said to me, “Look up and see what this is that is coming out.” ⁶ I said, “What is it?” He said, “This is a basket^c coming out.” And he said, “This is their iniquity^d in all the land.” ⁷ Then a leaden cover was lifted, and there was a woman sitting in the basket!^c ⁸ And he said, “This is Wickedness.” So he thrust her back into the basket,^c and pressed the leaden weight down on its mouth. ⁹ Then I looked up and saw two women coming forward. The wind was in their wings; they had wings like the wings of a

^a Cn: Heb gold

^b The word falsely added from verse 4

^c Heb ephah

^d Gk Compare Syr: Heb their eye

Zerubbabel's role as builder. 10b–14: The vision and its interpretation resume. 10b: Eyes of the LORD, cf. 2 Chr 16.9, where the eyes represent divine benevolence. 11–14: The two olive trees symbolize the two anointed ones, lit., “the two sons of the oil.” The word “anoint” is not present in Hebrew, nor is the typical word for olive oil that is used in anointing. This oil was used both for food and for fueling such lamps. These two “sons” almost certainly refer to Joshua and Zerubbabel, who now stand in close relationship to the LORD, symbolized by the lamp. Zechariah envisions a government in which power is shared between the high priest and the descendant of David.

5.1–4: The sixth vision: a flying scroll. 1–2: The scroll is apparently unrolled, rather like a flying carpet, and long, almost 30 ft (9 m). This scroll has a proportion of 2:1, more like a carpet than a document; the Qumran Isaiah scroll is about 24 ft (7.3 m) long and 11 in (30 cm) wide, a proportion of 24:1. 3: The curse probably refers to the curses found in God's covenant with Israel (cf. Deut 29.11,13,18), written down on a scroll (cf. 2 Chr 34.24; Dan 9.11). The whole land, a phrase used through Zech 1–8 (1.11; 4.10b; 5.6; 6.5). Steals ... swears falsely echoes, although does not quote exactly, the Decalogue (Ex 20.7,15,16). Scrolls were rarely written on both sides. 4: Destruction of houses is a typical punishment (Hab 3.13b; Dan 2.5; 3.29; Ezra 6.11). Oddly, the perpetrators are not punished. The flying scroll symbolizes the administration of the LORD's covenant-based justice throughout the world.

5.5–11: The seventh vision: a woman in a basket. 5–6: This vision is so bizarre that, unlike the other visions, Zechariah cannot name or describe what he sees; only the angel can do so. 6: Basket, Heb “ephah,” a unit of measure, ca. two-thirds of a bushel (23 L). Such an amount of grain or flour might have been held in a container made of textile, ceramic, or metal. The referent of their is unclear, though it may refer to Judeans, whose iniquity or guilt (see 3.4) is being removed. 7–8: An incongruous image, particularly since an “ephah” could not hold a human. This “ephah” was made of a hard substance due to its lead lid. 9–11: Gender continues to play a prominent role in this vision. Two women with wings, not cherubim, which were male. Stork, an unclean bird (Lev 11.19), and hence, in this simile, well suited to remove iniquity/wickedness. The land of Shinar, Babylon (Gen 10.10; 11.2; Dan 1.2; Josh 7.21). Isaiah 11.11 understands Shinar to be a place for exile and a place from which those exiled will return. Judeans are coming from Babylon; Wickedness is going to Babylon. Build a house ... its base, the Babylonians, who will build a shrine for and permanently install Wickedness, will be polluted by the gesture that purifies Judah.

stork, and they lifted up the basket^a between earth and sky.¹⁰ Then I said to the angel who talked with me, “Where are they taking the basket?”^a ¹¹ He said to me, “To the land of Shinar, to build a house for it; and when this is prepared, they will set the basket^a down there on its base.”

6 And again I looked up and saw four chariots coming out from between two mountains—mountains of bronze.² The first chariot had red horses, the second chariot black horses,³ the third chariot white horses, and the fourth chariot dappled gray^b horses.⁴ Then I said to the angel who talked with me, “What are these, my lord?”⁵ The angel answered me, “These are the four winds^c of heaven going out, after presenting themselves before the Lord of all the earth.⁶ The chariot with the black horses goes toward the north country, the white ones go toward the west country,^d and the dappled ones go toward the south country.”⁷ When the steeds came out, they were impatient to get off and patrol the earth. And he said, “Go, patrol the earth.” So they patrolled the earth.⁸ Then he cried out to me, “Lo, those who go toward the north country have set my spirit at rest in the north country.”

⁹ The word of the LORD came to me:¹⁰ Collect silver and gold^e from the exiles—from Heldai, Tobijah, and Jedaiah—who have arrived from Babylon; and go the same day to the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah.¹¹ Take the silver and gold and make a crown,^f and set it on the head of the high priest Joshua son of Jehozadak;¹² say to him: Thus says the LORD of hosts: Here is a man whose name is Branch: for he shall branch out in his place, and he shall build the temple of the LORD.¹³ It is he that shall build the temple of the LORD; he shall bear royal honor, and shall sit upon his throne and rule. There shall be a priest by his throne, with peaceful understanding between the two of them.

¹⁴ And the crown^g shall be in the care of Heldai,^h Tobijah, Jedaiah, and Josiahⁱ son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of the LORD.

¹⁵ Those who are far off shall come and help to build the temple of the LORD; and you shall know that the LORD of hosts has sent me to you. This will happen if you diligently obey the voice of the LORD your God.

^a Heb ephah

^b Compare Gk: Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Or spirits

^d Cn: Heb go after them

^e Cn Compare verse 11: Heb lacks silver and gold

^f Gk Mss Syr Tg: Heb crowns

^g Gk Syr: Heb crowns

^h Syr Compare verse 10: Heb Helem

ⁱ Syr Compare verse 10: Heb Hen

6.1–8: The eighth vision: four chariots. 1–3: The final vision, like the first one, includes horses of many colors. The geographic setting is similar to that of the Mesopotamian sun god’s appearance between two mountains. Here, chariots, rather than the sun, come out (lit., “go out,” a verb elsewhere used of the sun; see v. 8n.), with no explicit reference to charioteers. Chariots represent military might and dominion (cf. Hag 2.22), and could symbolize God’s martial presence (Isa 66.15–16; Ps 68.17). 5–6: That they go out in four directions (cf. Jer 49.36; Ezek 37.9; Dan 11.4) means that the LORD’s military might will be present everywhere with the winds as the deity’s agents; cf. Ps 104.4. Four winds are present in Zech 2.6. Presented themselves, cf. Job 1.6; 2.1. 7: Patrol, see 1.7n. 8: The north country, the land to which Judeans had been exiled; cf. 2.6. My spirit, the same Heb word as “wind” in v. 5. The Heb verb “go out” appears seven times in this vision report (vv. 1,5,6 [three times],7,8). The vision concludes with the deity having fulfilled the threats of the first and second visions (1.15,21).

6.9–15: Wealth and coronation. Two oracles, one embedded in another, 6.9–11,14 and 6.12–13. 9–10: The exiles (i.e., those who have returned from Mesopotamia). The three individuals are otherwise unknown. Zephaniah, father of Josiah, may be the priest of 2 Kings 25.18, who was taken into exile. 11: Lit., “crowns,” one of which was intended for Joshua. 12–13: Branch in 3.8 and here refers to David’s descendant Zerubbabel as is clear from his role as builder of the Temple. The oracle alludes to the diarchy envisioned in 4.1–14, though here the Branch appears to have a higher status than the priest. 14: Memorial in the temple may mean that the three donors are remembered for their gift at the Temple. 15: A general comment about the help that those who return from exile would offer. You shall know . . . , cf. 2.9.

7 In the fourth year of King Darius, the word of the LORD came to Zechariah on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Chisleu. ² Now the people of Bethel had sent Sharezer and Regem-melech and their men, to entreat the favor of the LORD, ³ and to ask the priests of the house of the LORD of hosts and the prophets, “Should I mourn and practice abstinence in the fifth month, as I have done for so many years?” ⁴ Then the word of the LORD of hosts came to me: ⁵ Say to all the people of the land and the priests: When you fasted and lamented in the fifth month and in the seventh, for these seventy years, was it for me that you fasted? ⁶ And when you eat and when you drink, do you not eat and drink only for yourselves? ⁷ Were not these the words that the LORD proclaimed by the former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, along with the towns around it, and when the Negeb and the Shephelah were inhabited?

⁸ The word of the LORD came to Zechariah, saying: ⁹ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Render true judgments, show kindness and mercy to one another; ¹⁰ do not oppress the widow, the orphan, the alien, or the poor; and do not devise evil in your hearts against one another. ¹¹ But they refused to listen, and turned a stubborn shoulder, and stopped their ears in order not to hear.

¹² They made their hearts adamant in order not to hear the law and the words that the LORD of hosts had sent by his spirit through the former prophets. Therefore great wrath came from the LORD of hosts. ¹³ Just as, when I^a called, they would not hear, so, when they called, I would not hear, says the LORD of hosts, ¹⁴ and I scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations that they had not known. Thus the land they left was desolate, so that no one went to and fro, and a pleasant land was made desolate.

8 The word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying: ² Thus says the LORD of hosts: I am jealous for Zion with great jealousy, and I am jealous for her with great wrath. ³ Thus says the LORD: I will return to Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; Jerusalem shall be called the faithful city, and the mountain of the LORD of hosts shall be called the holy mountain. ⁴ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Old men and old women shall again sit in the streets of Jerusalem, each with staff in hand because of their great age. ⁵ And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in its streets. ⁶ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Even though it seems impossible to the remnant of this people in these days, should it also seem impossible to me,

^a Heb he

7:1–8:23: Oracles. 7:1–7: A question answered by questions. 1: December 7, 518 BCE, a date that introduces a miscellany of oracles. Two years after reporting visions (1.1), Zechariah now offers oracles. 2: A delegation from Bethel travels the ca. 11 mi (17 km) south to Jerusalem. Entreat the favor of the LORD means to seek help in a time of difficulty (so Ex 32.11; 1 Kings 13.6; 2 Kings 13.4; Jer 26.19; Ps 119.58). 3: The question reflects a ritual commemorating the destruction of the Temple, which occurred in the fifth month. Gedaliah the governor was murdered in the seventh (2 Kings 25.8–9,25). The rest of the oracles in chs 7–8 may be a response to this question; a definitive answer is given in 8.19. 4–6: Addressing both the delegation and the priests they have come to consult, Zechariah again alludes to the words of former prophets (cf. 1.4,6) and poses three questions. He suggests that the rite has been only for yourselves. On inappropriate and appropriate fasting, see Isa 58.4b–5; Joel 2.12–13. Zechariah charges the people both with ineffectual fasting and with feasting. 7: The Negeb and the Shephelah, the southern and western regions of Judah.

7:8–14: Oracle and historical reprise. 9–10: Having referred to former prophets in v. 7, Zechariah now quotes what they said. For comparable admonitions and prohibitions, see Jer 7.5–6; 22.3; Mic 6.8. 11–12: Language about adamant hearts was also used about Pharaoh (Ex 7.14). 13–14: To not hear was reciprocal (cf. Ezek 8.18b; Jer 11.11b). The whirlwind, often a punitive agent, e.g., Jer 23.19).

8.1–23: Ten oracles of restoration (vv. 1–2; 3; 4–5; 6; 7–8; 9–13; 14–17; 18–19; 20–22; 23). 1–2: Language of jealousy reprises 1.14; cf. Ezek 36.6b. 3: This oracle echoes 1.14, with dwell referring to the Temple. The faithful city, a new name for Jerusalem; cf. Isa 62.4; Jer 33.16; Ezek 48.35. Holy mountain, see Joel 3.17; Isa 52.1. 4–5: This oracle continues to portray prosperity in an urban setting, including multiple generations of both genders, on which see Jer 30.18–21. 6: This oracle highlights the key word “impossibility” (cf. Ps 139.4), just as v. 2 focused says the LORD of hosts? ⁷ Thus says the LORD of hosts: I will save my people from the east country and from the west country; ⁸ and I will bring them to live in Jerusalem. They shall be my people and I will be their God, in faithfulness and in righteousness.

⁹ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Let your hands be strong—you that have recently been hearing these words from the mouths of the prophets who were present when the foundation was laid for the rebuilding of the temple, the house of the LORD of hosts. ¹⁰ For before those days there were no wages for people or for animals, nor was there any safety from the foe for those who went out or came in, and I set them all against one another. ¹¹ But now I will not deal with the remnant of this people as in the former days, says the LORD of hosts. ¹² For there shall be a sowing of peace; the vine shall yield its fruit, the ground shall give its produce, and the skies shall give their dew; and I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things. ¹³ Just as you have been a cursing among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so I will save you and you shall be a blessing. Do not be afraid, but let your hands be strong.

¹⁴ For thus says the LORD of hosts: Just as I purposed to bring disaster upon you, when your ancestors provoked me to wrath, and I did not relent, says the LORD of hosts, ¹⁵ so again I have purposed in these days to do good to Jerusalem and to the house of Judah; do not be afraid. ¹⁶ These are the things that you shall do: Speak the truth to one another, render in your gates judgments that are true and make for peace, ¹⁷ do not devise evil in your hearts against one another, and love no false oath; for all these are things that I hate, says the LORD.

¹⁸ The word of the LORD of hosts came to me, saying: ¹⁹ Thus says the LORD of hosts: The fast of the fourth month, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth, shall be seasons of joy and gladness, and cheerful festivals for the house of Judah: therefore love truth and peace.

²⁰ Thus says the LORD of hosts: Peoples shall yet come, the inhabitants of many cities; ²¹ the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, “Come, let us go to entreat the favor of the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts; I myself am going.” ²² Many peoples and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the favor of the LORD. ²³ Thus says the LORD of hosts: In those days ten men from nations of every language shall take hold of a Jew, grasping his garment and saying, “Let us go with you, for we have heard that God is with you.”

9

An Oracle.

The word of the LORD is against the land of Hadrach and will rest upon Damascus. For to the LORD belongs the capital^a of Aram,^b as do all the tribes of Israel;

^a Heb eye

^b Cn: Heb of Adam (or of humankind)

on “jealousy.” 7–8: Saving from, see Jer 30.10–11; Isa 43.5–6. The covenantal relationship is reaffirmed (cf. Ex 6.7). 9–13: This oracle begins with an admonition, not just a promise. 9: An allusion to the ceremony reflected in 4.9; Hag 2.15,18. 10: A lamentable state portrayed similarly in Hag 1.6. 11–13: Remnant, see 8.6; Hag 1.12,14. Peace, Heb “shalom,” which is described using fertility imagery; cf. Hag 1.10; Joel 3.18. Cursing/blessing draws on covenantal traditions (e.g., Deut 28). 14–17: The LORD promises a time of benevolence, then turns to admonitions comparable to those in 7.9–10. Legal proceedings were conducted in city gates (Deut 21.19; Ruth 4.1). 18–19: A response to the question posed in 7.3: all prior rituals of fasting are to become occasions for feasting. The fourth month was when the Babylonians breached the walls of Jerusalem, and the tenth when they began their siege (2 Kings 25.1–4; Jer 39.2; 52.4–7). For the fifth and seventh months, see 7.3n. Again, a promise is juxtaposed with an admonition. 20–22: A pilgrimage of foreign nations to Jerusalem; cf. 14.16; Isa 2.2–4; 60.1–3; 66.18–21.

9.1–11.17: The first “Oracle.” “An oracle. The word of the LORD” also appears in Zech 12.1; and Mal 1.1., suggesting that three “oracles” have been appended to Zechariah 1–8. 9.1–8: An oracle of woe against foreign nations and of protection for the Temple. The places named are all within Syria-Palestine. The initial sites are in the north; they subsequently move to the west and then south. 1: Hadrach, Hatarikka in Neo-Assyrian texts, was ²Hamath also, which borders on it, Tyre and Sidon, though they are very wise.

³Tyre has built itself a rampart, and heaped up silver like dust,
and gold like the dirt of the streets.

⁴But now, the Lord will strip it of its possessions
and hurl its wealth into the sea,
and it shall be devoured by fire.

⁵Ashkelon shall see it and be afraid;
Gaza too, and shall writhe in anguish; Ekron also, because its hopes are
withered.

The king shall perish from Gaza;
Ashkelon shall be uninhabited;

⁶a mongrel people shall settle in Ashdod, and I will make an end of the pride of Philistia.

⁷I will take away its blood from its
mouth,
and its abominations from between its teeth;

it too shall be a remnant for our God;
it shall be like a clan in Judah,
and Ekron shall be like the Jebusites.

⁸Then I will encamp at my house as a
guard,
so that no one shall march to and fro;
no oppressor shall again overrun them,
for now I have seen with my own eyes.

⁹Rejoice greatly, O daughter Zion!
Shout aloud, O daughter Jerusalem!

Lo, your king comes to you;
triumphant and victorious is he,
humble and riding on a donkey,
on a colt, the foal of a donkey.

¹⁰He^a will cut off the chariot from Ephraim
and the war-horse from Jerusalem;
and the battle bow shall be cut off,
and he shall command peace to the
nations;
his dominion shall be from sea to sea,
and from the River to the ends of the
earth.

¹¹As for you also, because of the blood of my covenant with you,
I will set your prisoners free from the waterless pit.

¹²Return to your stronghold, O prisoners of hope;
today I declare that I will restore to you double.

¹³For I have bent Judah as my bow;
I have made Ephraim its arrow.

I will arouse your sons, O Zion, against your sons, O Greece,
and wield you like a warrior's sword.

¹⁴Then the LORD will appear over them,
and his arrow go forth like lightning;
the Lord God will sound the trumpet and march forth in the whirlwinds of the south.

^a Gk: Heb I

south of Aleppo. As in many prophetic texts, the LORD controls land beyond the boundaries of Israel. 2: Tyre and Sidon, Phoenician port cities, the subject of earlier oracles against the nations (e.g., Isa 23; Ezek 26–28) and also important mercantile centers in the Persian period (Ezra 3.7; Neh 13.16). 5–6: The sites are sometimes personified—see, afraid, writhe. Verses 5–7 highlight Philistine cities. 7–8: God now speaks in the first person, promising to remove abominations (cf. Lev 7.21; 11.10–12) from Philistia's mouth, so that the Philistines will observe Jewish dietary laws (cf. Gen 9.4; Lev 11.2–47; Deut 14.3–21). Jebusites, pre-Israelite inhabitants of Jerusalem; see Josh 15.63; 2 Sam 5.6–9; 1 Chr 11.4–9. 8: Encamp, an unusual word to depict God's presence at the Temple. It continues the military tone of the poem, with the LORD as guard (lit., “as a garrison”).

9.9–17: God's sovereign rule. A series of poetic vignettes about a future king and God's victory. 9–10: The king welcomed. 9: Daughter Zion/Jerusalem, see Lam 1.6; Zeph 3.14–15; Zech 2.13. On a donkey, on a colt (i.e., on one animal described in two parallel poetic lines); cf. Mt 21.2–7, which understands there are to be two animals. The River, probably the Euphrates. The demilitarized dominion described here is similar to Mic 4.3; Isa 2.4. 11–13: Oracle advocating return and preparation for battle. 11: You is feminine singular, referring still to daughter Zion. Blood of my covenant echoes Ex 24.8, the Sinai covenant. 13: Martial imagery returns, with Judah and Ephraim, the preexilic Southern and Northern Kingdoms, as weapons. Greece, along with Joel 3.6, the earliest reference in the Bible to this enemy of Persia. 14–15: The battle and its aftermath are described. 14: A military theophany.

¹⁵ The LORD of hosts will protect them, and they shall devour and tread down the slingers;^a
they shall drink their blood^b like wine,
and be full like a bowl,
drenched like the corners of the altar.

¹⁶ On that day the LORD their God will save
them
for they are the flock of his people;
for like the jewels of a crown
they shall shine on his land.

¹⁷ For what goodness and beauty are his!
Grain shall make the young men flourish,
and new wine the young women.

10 Ask rain from the LORD in the season of the spring rain, from the LORD who makes the storm
clouds,
who gives showers of rain to you,^c
the vegetation in the field to everyone.

² For the teraphim^d utter nonsense,
and the diviners see lies;
the dreamers tell false dreams,
and give empty consolation.
Therefore the people wander like sheep;
they suffer for lack of a shepherd.

³ My anger is hot against the shepherds, and I will punish the leaders;^e for the LORD of hosts cares for his flock,
the house of Judah,
and will make them like his proud war-
horse.

⁴ Out of them shall come the cornerstone,
out of them the tent peg,
out of them the battle bow,
out of them every commander.

⁵ Together they shall be like warriors in
battle,
trampling the foe in the mud of the
streets;
they shall fight, for the LORD is with
them,
and they shall put to shame the riders
on horses.

⁶ I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph.
I will bring them back because I have compassion on them,
and they shall be as though I had not rejected them;
for I am the LORD their God and I will answer them.

⁷ Then the people of Ephraim shall become like warriors,
and their hearts shall be glad as with
wine.
Their children shall see it and rejoice,
their hearts shall exult in the LORD.

⁸ I will signal for them and gather them in,
for I have redeemed them,
and they shall be as numerous as they were before.

⁹ Though I scattered them among the
nations,
yet in far countries they shall remember
me,
and they shall rear their children and
return.

^a Cn: Heb the slingstones

^b Gk: Heb shall drink

^c Heb them

^d Or household gods

^e Or male goats

March from the south, cf. Judg 5.4. 15: Typical of holy war, the divine warrior will fight and Israel will reap the benefits of victory, here described in graphic imagery, which also alludes to the Temple—bowl (Ex 27.3), altar (Ex 27.2). 16–17: The LORD as royal shepherd, using the metaphor of a flock and a simile of jewelry. Grain/new wine symbolize fertility; cf. Hag 2.19.

10.1–12: The Lord, the militant shepherd. A poem of both critique and solace. 2: Three forms of divination are condemned. Teraphim, divinatory figurines (e.g., Ezek 21.21). 3: Shepherds (i.e., rulers). Leaders, see textual note e; Isa 14.9. 6: God speaks, reiterating the diction of save (9.16) and return (bring back; 9.12). Cf. Isa 54.8. The Northern Kingdom of Israel, the house of Joseph (called “Ephraim” in v. 7), will be saved along with Judah; cf. 9.13; Ezek 37.15–28. 7: Wine making the heart glad symbolizes a good future; cf. Eccl 9.7; Ps 104.15. 8–12: An oracle

¹⁰ I will bring them home from the land of Egypt, and gather them from Assyria;
I will bring them to the land of Gilead and to Lebanon,
until there is no room for them.

¹¹ They^a shall pass through the sea of distress, and the waves of the sea shall be struck
down,
and all the depths of the Nile dried up.
The pride of Assyria shall be laid low,
and the scepter of Egypt shall depart.

¹² I will make them strong in the LORD, and they shall walk in his name,
says the LORD.

11 Open your doors, O Lebanon,
so that fire may devour your cedars!

² Wail, O cypress, for the cedar has fallen,
for the glorious trees are ruined!
Wail, oaks of Bashan,
for the thick forest has been felled!

³ Listen, the wail of the shepherds,
for their glory is despoiled!
Listen, the roar of the lions,
for the thickets of the Jordan are destroyed!

⁴ Thus said the LORD my God: Be a shepherd of the flock doomed to slaughter. ⁵ Those who buy them kill them and go unpunished; and those who sell them say, “Blessed be the LORD, for I have become rich”; and their own shepherds have no pity on them. ⁶ For I will no longer have pity on the inhabitants of the earth, says the LORD. I will cause them, every one, to fall each into the hand of a neighbor, and each into the hand of the king; and they shall devastate the earth, and I will deliver no one from their hand.

⁷ So, on behalf of the sheep merchants, I became the shepherd of the flock doomed to slaughter. I took two staves; one I named Favor, the other I named Unity, and I tended the sheep. ⁸ In one month I disposed of the three shepherds, for I had become impatient with them, and they also detested me. ⁹ So I said, “I will not be your shepherd. What is to die, let it die; what is to be destroyed, let it be destroyed; and let those that are left devour the flesh of one another!” ¹⁰ I took my staff Favor and broke it, annulling the covenant that I had made with all the peoples. ¹¹ So it was annulled on that day, and the sheep merchants, who were watching me, knew that it was the word of the LORD. ¹² I then said to them, “If it seems right to you, give me my wages; but if not, keep them.” So they weighed out as my wages thirty shekels of silver. ¹³ Then the LORD said to me, “Throw it into the treasury”^b—this lordly price at which I was valued by them. So I took the thirty shekels of silver and threw them into the treasury^b in the house of the LORD. ¹⁴ Then I broke my second staff Unity, annulling the family ties between Judah and Israel.

¹⁵ Then the LORD said to me: Take once more the implements of a worthless shepherd. ¹⁶ For I am now raising up in the land a shepherd who does not care for the

^a Gk: Heb He

^b Syr: Heb it to the potter focusing on gathering and return from exile; cf. Isa 43.1–7,14–21; Jer 23.3. 10–11: On the flight to Egypt, see Jer 43. With part of Israel in Egypt, a new Exodus can take place. 10: Gilead, northern Transjordan. Lebanon, the mountainous region north of Israel, famous for its forests (see 11.1).

11.1–3: Taunt against Israel’s northern neighbors. In this ironic taunt, Lebanon and Bashan, in northern Transjordan, are personified and characterized by three trees, two of which are fabled—cedars (Ezek 31.3) and oaks (Ezek 27.6). Shepherds and lions probably symbolize communal leaders. The destruction will affect foliage as far away as the Jordan Valley.

11.4–17: Shepherding a flock. Diverse oracles and reports, all using the metaphor of a shepherd for the community’s leader; cf. 13.7–9. 4–6: An unnamed person, perhaps the prophet Zechariah, is charged to lead the community, which is doomed. 7–14: The symbolic action is reported by the individual who wields and then destroys two shepherd’s staves, symbolizing the end of a covenantal relationship. 12–13: Thirty shekels of silver: Ex 21.32 stipulates this amount as restitution for a slave gored by an ox. Other ancient texts understand this to be a trifling amount of money; cf. Mt 26.15; 27.3–10. Lordly price is ironic. 15–16: The deity perishing, or seek the wandering,^a or heal the maimed, or nourish the healthy,^b but devours the flesh of the fat ones, tearing off even their hoofs.

¹⁷Oh, my worthless shepherd, who deserts the flock!
May the sword strike his arm
and his right eye!
Let his arm be completely withered,
his right eye utterly blinded!

12

An Oracle.

The word of the LORD concerning Israel: Thus says the LORD, who stretched out the heavens and founded the earth and formed the human spirit within: ²See, I am about to make Jerusalem a cup of reeling for all the surrounding peoples; it will be against Judah also in the siege against Jerusalem. ³On that day I will make Jerusalem a heavy stone for all the peoples; all who lift it shall grievously hurt themselves. And all the nations of the earth shall come together against it. ⁴On that day, says the LORD, I will strike every horse with panic, and its rider with madness. But on the house of Judah I will keep a watchful eye, when I strike every horse of the peoples with blindness. ⁵Then the clans of Judah shall say to themselves, “The inhabitants of Jerusalem have strength through the LORD of hosts, their God.”

⁶On that day I will make the clans of Judah like a blazing pot on a pile of wood, like a flaming torch among sheaves; and they shall devour to the right and to the left all the surrounding peoples, while Jerusalem shall again be inhabited in its place, in Jerusalem.

⁷And the LORD will give victory to the tents of Judah first, that the glory of the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not be exalted over that of Judah. ⁸On that day the LORD will shield the inhabitants of Jerusalem so that the feeblest among them on that day shall be like David, and the house of David shall be like God, like the angel of the LORD, at their head. ⁹And on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations that come against Jerusalem.

¹⁰And I will pour out a spirit of compassion and supplication on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that, when they look on the one^c whom they have pierced, they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for an only child, and weep bitterly over him, as one weeps over a firstborn. ¹¹On that day the mourning in Jerusalem will be as great as the mourning for Hadad-rimmon in the plain of Megiddo. ¹²The land shall mourn, each family by itself; the family of the house of David by itself, and their wives by themselves; the family of the house of Nathan by itself, and their wives by themselves; ¹³the family of the house of Levi by itself, and their wives by themselves; the family of the Shimeites by itself, and their wives by themselves; ¹⁴and all the families that are left, each by itself, and their wives by themselves.

^a Syr Compare Gk Vg: Heb the youth

^b Meaning of Heb uncertain

^c Heb on me

commands a second symbolic action, again involving a shepherd's implements. 17: Woe oracle against the community's leader.

12.1–14.21: The second “Oracle.” See 9.1–11.17n. Divine oracles and prophetic sayings about the imminent day of the LORD, referred to as “that day.” 12.1–9: Through a word ... concerning Israel, vv. 2–9 highlight the destruction of foreign nations, as did 9.1–8. The God who creates (v. 1; cf. Job 9.8; Isa 42.5; Jer 10,12) can also destroy. There will be conflict between Israel and the nations and even within Judah (v. 2). 2: Cup of reeling, cf. Ps 75.8; Isa 51.17–23; Jer 25.15–18. 4: Madness and blindness, curses in Deut 28.28–29. 7–8: David's lineage continues to be a source of hope. 10–14: The tone shifts to that of lamentation. 10: The one ... pierced, cf. 13.3. The referent is unclear but the Hebrew suggests it is the LORD; cf. Jn 19.37, which identifies it with Jesus. 11: Hadad-rimmon, according to 2 Chr 35.20–25, the site for mourning over Josiah's death. It is also the name of a Syrian storm god, also known as Baal, whose seasonal disappearance was mourned in the agriculturally fertile area around Megiddo; see 2 Kings 5.18.

12–14: Their wives, on women's lamentation, see 2 Chr 35.25; Jer 9.17,20. The lamentation will involve the land and all the families, not just the families named. The families are those of the house of David (Nathan was a son of 13 On that day a fountain shall be opened for the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, to cleanse them from sin and impurity.

²On that day, says the LORD of hosts, I will cut off the names of the idols from the land, so that they shall be remembered no more; and also I will remove from the land the prophets and the unclean spirit. ³And if any prophets appear again, their fathers and mothers who bore them will say to them, “You shall not live, for you speak lies in the name of the LORD”; and their fathers and their mothers who bore them shall pierce them through when they prophesy. ⁴On that day the prophets will be ashamed, every one, of their visions when they prophesy; they will not put on a hairy mantle in order to deceive, ⁵but each of them will say, “I am no prophet, I am a tiller of the soil; for the land has been my possession^a since my youth.” ⁶And if anyone asks them, “What are these wounds on your chest?”^b the answer will be “The wounds I received in the house of my friends.”

⁷“Awake, O sword, against my shepherd, against the man who is my associate,” says the LORD of hosts.

Strike the shepherd, that the sheep may be scattered;

I will turn my hand against the little ones.

⁸In the whole land, says the LORD, two-thirds shall be cut off and perish, and one-third shall be left alive.

⁹And I will put this third into the fire, refine them as one refines silver, and test them as gold is tested.

They will call on my name, and I will answer them. I will say, “They are my people”; and they will say, “The LORD is our God.”

14 See, a day is coming for the LORD, when the plunder taken from you will be divided in your midst. ²For I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city shall be taken and the houses looted and the women raped; half the city shall go into exile, but the rest of the people shall not be cut off from the city. ³Then the LORD will go forth and fight against those nations as when he fights on a day of battle. ⁴On that day his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives, which lies before Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives shall be split in two from east to west by a very wide valley; so that one half of the Mount shall withdraw northward, and the other half southward. ⁵And you shall flee by the valley of the LORD’s mountain,^c for the valley between the mountains shall reach to Azal;^d and you shall flee as you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. Then the LORD my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

⁶On that day there shall not be^e either cold or frost.^f ⁷And there shall be continuous day (it is known to the LORD), not day and not night, for at evening time there shall be light.

^a Cn: Heb for humankind has caused me to possess

^b Heb wounds between your hands

^c Heb my mountains

^d Meaning of Heb uncertain

^e Cn: Heb there shall not be light

^f Compare Gk Syr Vg Tg: Meaning of Heb uncertain

David, 1 Chr 14.4) and the house of Levi (Shimei was a grandson of Levi, 1 Chr 6.16–17). 13.1: Those who might have incurred corpse defilement during mourning will be cleansed by water from a fountain. On purification from such uncleanness, see Num 19. The fountain may be related to the motif of a river flowing from the Temple; cf. Zech 14.8; Ps 46.4 Ezek 47.1–12; Joel 3.18. 2–6: Prophecy is viewed as negatively as idolatry, subject to punishment by death. Unlike the rebellious son, whom parents are to bring before the legal assembly (Deut 21.18–21), parents here can kill their prophetic offspring immediately. 4–6: Hairy mantle, a garment, as in Gen 25.25, that symbolizes deception. I am no prophet quotes Am 7.14. Prophetic wounds, cf. 1 Kings 18.28.

13.7–9: A personified sword. A poem using imagery similar to 11.17. The fractional destruction is similar to that in Ezek 5.1–12. 8: On imagery of refining, see Isa 1.25–26; Mal 3.2–4. 9: My people . . . our God expresses the covenantal relationship (cf. Ex 6.7; Hos 2.23).

14.1–21: An eschatological depiction of the day of the Lord. 4: A theophany, in which the mountains are split (cf. Mic 1.4; Hab 3.6). The new landscape allows Jerusalemites to flee from destruction. 5: Earthquake, see Am

⁸ On that day living waters shall flow out from Jerusalem, half of them to the eastern sea and half of them to the western sea; it shall continue in summer as in winter.

⁹ And the LORD will become king over all the earth; on that day the LORD will be one and his name one.

¹⁰ The whole land shall be turned into a plain from Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem. But Jerusalem shall remain aloft on its site from the Gate of Benjamin to the place of the former gate, to the Corner Gate, and from the Tower of Hananel to the king's wine presses. ¹¹ And it shall be inhabited, for never again shall it be doomed to destruction; Jerusalem shall abide in security.

¹² This shall be the plague with which the LORD will strike all the peoples that wage war against Jerusalem: their flesh shall rot while they are still on their feet; their eyes shall rot in their sockets, and their tongues shall rot in their mouths. ¹³ On that day a great panic from the LORD shall fall on them, so that each will seize the hand of a neighbor, and the hand of the one will be raised against the hand of the other; ¹⁴ even Judah will fight at Jerusalem. And the wealth of all the surrounding nations shall be collected—gold, silver, and garments in great abundance.

¹⁵ And a plague like this plague shall fall on the horses, the mules, the camels, the donkeys, and whatever animals may be in those camps.

¹⁶ Then all who survive of the nations that have come against Jerusalem shall go up year after year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the festival of booths.^a ¹⁷ If any of the families of the earth do not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, there will be no rain upon them. ¹⁸ And if the family of Egypt do not go up and present themselves, then on them shall^b come the plague that the LORD inflicts on the nations that do not go up to keep the festival of booths.^a

¹⁹ Such shall be the punishment of Egypt and the punishment of all the nations that do not go up to keep the festival of booths.^a

²⁰ On that day there shall be inscribed on the bells of the horses, "Holy to the LORD." And the cooking pots in the house of the LORD shall be as holy as^c the bowls in front of the altar; ²¹ and every cooking pot in Jerusalem and Judah shall be sacred to the LORD of hosts, so that all who sacrifice may come and use them to boil the flesh of the sacrifice. And there shall no longer be traders^d in the house of the LORD of hosts on that day.

^a Or tabernacles; Heb succoth

^b Gk Syr: Heb shall not

^c Heb shall be like

^d Or Canaanites

1.1n. The holy ones, members of the divine council; cf. Deut 33.2; Ps 89.5,7). 7: The LORD's day will no longer be a day of darkness; cf. Am 5.18; Zeph 1.15. 8: Living waters, see 13.1n. Eastern sea, the Dead Sea; western sea, the Mediterranean. 9: The LORD as monarch juxtaposed with an allusion to the "Shema" (Deut 6.4). 10–11: Consistent with the Zion tradition (Ps 48.2; Isa 2.2; Mic 4.1), Jerusalem will be elevated and secure. The area from Geba to Rimmon, from ca. 6 mi (10 km) north-northeast to 37 mi (60 km) southeast of Jerusalem, represents the geographic limits of the old kingdom of Judah. 12–15: The plague tradition (Ex 7–12; Pss 78; 105) is linked with holy war panic (cf. Deut 7.23; 1 Sam 5.9). 14: Despoliation of the nations (cf. Isa 61.6; Hag 2.7). 16–19: The tradition of a pilgrimage of nations (cf. 8.20–23; Isa 2.1–4; Mic 4.1–4) is related to the festival of booths, Sukkoth (Lev 23.33–36; Neh 8.13–18). Egypt is singled out, perhaps because of the allusion to plague in v. 12. 20–21: Imagery of radical holiness throughout Jerusalem, not just at the Temple. 20: The book concludes as it began, with reference to horses. 21: Traders, see textual note d, lit., "Canaanites."

MALACHI

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND CANONICAL STATUS

Unlike the other compositions in the Book of the Twelve (the “Minor Prophets”), Malachi may not be named for a prophet. Malachi means “my messenger,” and there is good reason not to construe the word in 1.1 as a proper name, especially since the name does not appear elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible. The Septuagint does not translate it as a name, and in fact the same word appears in Mal 3.1, where it is translated as “my messenger.”

The book begins in similar fashion to Zech 9.1 and 12.1, suggesting that three collections (Zech 9–12; 12–14; and Malachi) were appended to Zech 1–8. An interest in creating a collection of twelve prophetic books may have resulted in the identification of Malachi as a separate book.

DATE OF COMPOSITION AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Scholars generally agree that the book of Malachi dates to the period after the rededication of the Temple in Jerusalem in 515 BCE. Reference to a governor (1.8), and not a king, clearly points to the Persian era. The book may have been composed in Judah prior to the time that Ezra and Nehemiah were active, i.e., in the early decades of the fifth century BCE. Problems that Malachi addresses, such as tithing, are also attested in the book of Ezra-Nehemiah (Neh 13.5,12), suggesting that these books date to roughly the same period. The book uses earlier biblical traditions, particularly Deuteronomy and ritual texts.

STRUCTURE, CONTENTS, AND INTERPRETATION

Malachi includes a distinctive form of literature, often characterized as a disputation. This genre has striking similarities to Greek diatribes. There are six such rhetorical units (1.2–5; 1.6–2.9; 2.10–16; 2.17–3.5; 3.6–12; 3.13–4.3). In all of them, two parties—God and some group—engage in a stylized dialogue. All six units include questions, posed sometimes by the deity, other times by the people. Moreover, each disputation quotes the LORD’s opponents. What the people say often seems outlandish, e.g., “All who do evil are good in the sight of the LORD, and he delights in them” (2.17) or “It is vain to serve God” (3.14).

The book addresses several topics: the permanence of the LORD’s care for Israel, the need to venerate the LORD alone, the importance of tithing and justice, and hope for those who fear the LORD. Two topics are particularly prominent—the international scope of God’s reign and the ritual world of the Temple.

In the Hebrew Bible, Malachi ends the Book of the Twelve and the entire division of the canon called the Prophets. In Christian Bibles, it concludes the Old Testament. The book’s final words about the prophet Elijah are interpreted in the Gospels as referring to John the Baptist.

David L. Petersen

1 An oracle. The word of the LORD to Israel by Malachi.^a

²I have loved you, says the LORD. But you say, “How have you loved us?” Is not Esau Jacob’s brother? says the LORD. Yet I have loved Jacob ³but I have hated Esau; I have made his hill country a desolation and his heritage a desert for jackals. ⁴If Edom says, “We are shattered but we will rebuild the ruins,” the LORD of hosts says: They may build, but I will tear down, until they are called the wicked country, the people with whom the LORD is angry forever. ⁵Your own eyes shall see this, and you shall say, “Great is the LORD beyond the borders of Israel!”

⁶A son honors his father, and servants their master. If then I am a father, where is the honor due me? And if I am a master, where is the respect due me? says the LORD of hosts to you, O priests, who despise my name. You say, “How have we despised your name?” ⁷By offering polluted food on my altar. And you say, “How have we polluted it?”^b By thinking that the LORD’s table may be despised. ⁸When you offer blind animals in sacrifice, is that not wrong? And when you offer those that are lame or sick, is that not wrong? Try presenting that to your governor; will he be pleased with you or show you favor? says the LORD of hosts. ⁹And now implore the favor of God, that he may be gracious to us. The fault is yours. Will he show favor to any of you? says the LORD of hosts. ¹⁰Oh, that someone among you would shut the temple^c doors, so that you would not kindle fire on my altar in vain! I have no pleasure in you, says the LORD of hosts, and I will not accept an offering from your hands. ¹¹For from the rising of the sun to its setting my name is great among the nations, and in every place incense is offered to my name, and a pure offering; for my name is great among the nations, says the LORD of hosts. ¹²But you profane it when you say that the Lord’s table is polluted, and the food for it^d may be despised. ¹³“What a weariness this is,” you say, and you sniff at me,^e says the LORD of hosts. You bring what has been taken by violence or is lame or sick, and this you bring as your offering! Shall I accept that from your hand? says the LORD. ¹⁴Cursed be the cheat who has a male in the flock

^a Or by my messenger

^b Gk: Heb you

^c Heb lacks temple

^d Compare Syr Tg: Heb its fruit, its food

^e Another reading is at it

1.1: Superscription. This verse begins in the same way as Zech 9.1 and Zech 12.1. Here the oracle (lit., “burden”) is directed to Israel. Malachi, literally, “my messenger.”

1.2–5: The God who loves and hates. God demonstrates love for Israel (Jacob) by hating Edom (Esau; see Gen 25.19–24; 36.1). Enmity toward Edom runs deep in the Hebrew Bible; see especially Obadiah (cf. Isa 34.5–17; Isa 63.1; Jer 49.7–22; Ezek 25.12–14; 35.1–15; Ps 137.7). Still, Israel’s God was remembered as having given Edom its land (see Deut 2.4–5). 3: Such destruction may be related to Nabonidus’s campaign against Edom in 552 BCE. 5: Great is the LORD, similar claims are made about God in Pss 35.27; 40.16; 70.4; 96.4, which emphasize the power of the divine king. The international significance of Israel’s God is reiterated in 1.11,14.

1.6–2.9: Concerning priests and Levites. The longest of the disputations deals with the priesthood. 6: The notion of honoring a parent is embedded in the Decalogue (Ex 20.12) and in proverbial literature (Prov 13.1; 19.26). To despise my name strikes at the heart of Israel’s religious life since the Temple is “the place that the LORD your God will choose as a dwelling for his name” (Deut 12.11). 7: Polluted food, an unusual phrase to describe unacceptable offerings. The word for “pollute” or “defile” is used in Ezra 2 of unacceptable priests (Ezra 2.62). 8: Blind, lame, and sick animals were not acceptable as sacrifices (Deut 15.19–23; Lev 22.18–25). The prophet offers an ironic admonition, try presenting that to your governor, an official of the Persian Empire. 9: And now implore the favor of God, an ironic call to worship placed in the mouths of the priests, which may echo the priestly blessing of Num 6.24–26. 10: Doors, see textual note c. On the doors of the Temple, see 1 Kings 6.31; Ps 100.4; the Levites were doorkeepers at the Temple (Ezra 2.42; Neh 11.19). It is unclear whether altar refers to the altar of burnt offering or the incense altar. 11: Using solar imagery (cf. 4.2), the prophet testifies to the vast territory in which the LORD is worshiped. Whether or not appropriate ritual is taking place at the Jerusalem Temple, the LORD’s name is being venerated appropriately among the nations, including Jews in the Diaspora. 14: Cursing and vows to give it, and yet sacrifices to the Lord what is blemished; for I am a great King, says the LORD of hosts, and my name is revered among the nations.

2 And now, O priests, this command is for you. ² If you will not listen, if you will not lay it to heart to give glory to my name, says the LORD of hosts, then I will send the curse on you and I will curse your blessings; indeed I have already cursed them,^a because you do not lay it to heart. ³ I will rebuke your offspring, and spread dung on your faces, the dung of your offerings, and I will put you out of my presence.^b

⁴ Know, then, that I have sent this command to you, that my covenant with Levi may hold, says the LORD of hosts. ⁵ My covenant with him was a covenant of life and well-being, which I gave him; this called for reverence, and he revered me and stood in awe of my name. ⁶ True instruction was in his mouth, and no wrong was found on his lips. He walked with me in integrity and uprightness, and he turned many from iniquity. ⁷ For the lips of a priest should guard knowledge, and people should seek instruction from his mouth, for he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts. ⁸ But you have turned aside from the way; you have caused many to stumble by your instruction; you have corrupted the covenant of Levi, says the LORD of hosts, ⁹ and so I make you despised and abased before all the people, inasmuch as you have not kept my ways but have shown partiality in your instruction.

¹⁰ Have we not all one father? Has not one God created us? Why then are we faithless to one another, profaning the covenant of our ancestors? ¹¹ Judah has been faithless, and abomination has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem; for Judah has profaned the sanctuary of the LORD, which he loves, and has married the daughter of a foreign god. ¹² May the LORD cut off from the tents of Jacob anyone who does this—any to witness^c or answer, or to bring an offering to the LORD of hosts.

^a Heb it

^b Cn Compare Gk Syr: Heb and he shall bear you to it

^c Cn Compare Gk: Heb arouse

replaces the earlier interrogation and indictment (cf. the curses in Deut 27:15–16). On pledging something good to sacrifice and then replacing it with something inferior, see Lev 27:9–11. It appears that both worshiper and priest would suffer a curse. On the LORD as great King, see Pss 96:10; 97:1; 99:1. 2.1–3: Admonition and threat to the priests. 1: This command echoes language found in Deuteronomy (e.g., 27:1; 30:11). 2: Veneration of the LORD's name is also at issue in Mal 1.6,11,14; 2.5. The diction of cursing continues that of 1.14. Your blessings probably refers to the blessings that priests give (Num 6.23–27). 3: Offspring implies the priestly lineage of Aaron, who were promised a covenant of peace (Num 25.12–13). Dung, either excrement or intestinal contents normally burned outside the Temple compound (Ex 29:14; Lev 4:11; 8:17; 16:27; Num 19:5). Smearing dung on the face of a priest would require the removal of that unclean priest from the Temple. 4–9: The language of covenant and commandment continues, though now focusing on the Levites, whose status was below that of the priests who traced their ancestry back to Aaron. 4–5: Levi, the third son of Jacob and ancestor of all priests (Gen 29:34). Jer 33:21 refers to a covenant with Levi; Deut 33:9 affirms the covenantal fidelity of the Levites. Well-being or “peace” (Heb “shalom”), is associated with the covenant with Phinehas in Num 25:12. 6: Instruction, Heb “torah.” Deut 33:10 characterizes Levites as responsible for teaching God's torah. To “walk” describes a proper covenantal relationship in Deuteronomy (10:12; 13:5). 7: The language becomes prescriptive, though continuing to emphasize instruction. The messenger of the LORD, a phrase used of Haggai (Hag 1:13; see also Gen 19:1; 21:17). 8: You probably refers to the priests, indicted earlier in this disputation. The metaphor of walking (v. 6) continues, though now in negative fashion: turning aside from the way. 9: The punishment is consistent with 2.2–3. Neh 13:29–30 may provide a context for understanding these charges.

2.10–16: Religious fidelity. Focus on covenant continues, but now between God and all Israel. Familial imagery remains important. 10: For a similar question, see Deut 32:6. On God as one, see Deut 6.4. Covenant of our ancestors, cf. Deut 4.3–31; 29.24–25; Jer 34.13–14, all referring to the Sinai covenant. 11: Abomination, a religious sin. The sanctuary of the LORD, literally, “the holiness of Yahweh,” which may refer to the Temple (Pss 63.2; 68.22). Daughter of a foreign god may refer to veneration of a goddess such as Asherah or marriage to a non-Israelite woman, a major issue in the Persian period (see Ezra 9–10; Neh 13). 12: The punishing curse. To

¹³ And this you do as well: You cover the LORD's altar with tears, with weeping and groaning because he no longer regards the offering or accepts it with favor at your hand. ¹⁴ You ask, "Why does he not?" Because the LORD was a witness between you and the wife of your youth, to whom you have been faithless, though she is your companion and your wife by covenant. ¹⁵ Did not one God make her?^a Both flesh and spirit are his.^b And what does the one God^c desire? Godly offspring. So look to yourselves, and do not let anyone be faithless to the wife of his youth. ¹⁶ For I hate^d divorce, says the LORD, the God of Israel, and covering one's garment with violence, says the LORD of hosts. So take heed to yourselves and do not be faithless.

¹⁷ You have wearied the LORD with your words. Yet you say, "How have we wearied him?" By saying, "All who do evil are good in the sight of the LORD, and he delights in them." Or by asking, "Where is the God of justice?"

3 See, I am sending my messenger to prepare the way before me, and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple. The messenger of the covenant in whom you delight—indeed, he is coming, says the LORD of hosts. ² But who can endure the day of his coming, and who can stand when he appears?

For he is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' soap; ³ he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the descendants of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, until they present offerings to the LORD in righteousness.^e ⁴ Then the offering of Judah and Jerusalem will be pleasing to the LORD as in the days of old and as in former years.

⁵ Then I will draw near to you for judgment; I will be swift to bear witness against the sorcerers, against the adulterers, against those who swear falsely, against those who oppress the hired workers in their wages, the widow and the orphan, against those who thrust aside the alien, and do not fear me, says the LORD of hosts.

⁶ For I the LORD do not change; therefore you, O children of Jacob, have not perished.

⁷ Ever since the days of your ancestors you have turned aside from my statutes and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return

^a Or Has he not made one?

^b Cn: Heb and a remnant of spirit was his

^c Heb he

^d Cn: Heb he hates

^e Or right offerings to the LORD

cut off as a punishment, see Pss 12.3; 109.15. Tents of Jacob, see Jer 30.18. 13: Weeping at the Temple may refer to foreign rituals similar to those described in Ezek 8.14. 14: The identity of the characters is ambiguous. If you is Judah, then the wife by covenant would be the LORD. On marriage as a covenant, see also Ezek 16.8; Prov 2.17. 15: Familial symbolism continues with reference to offspring. 15b–16: These verses, perhaps by another author, probably refer to human divorce; the issue is now marriage within the community, not idolatry as in vv. 10–14. Although Deut 24.1–4 permits divorce, it is here likened to violence that the LORD hates.

2.17–3.5: Theodicy and theophany. The prospect of judgment brought by both a messenger and the LORD. 17: The people are quoted three times. The second quotation reverses the usual biblical view about God and evildoers (cf. Deut 18.12; 25.16). Where is the God of justice? echoes language in psalms of lament, e.g., Pss 22.1; 89.49. 3.1–5: These verses focus on an expected messenger and what he will do. 1: My messenger, see Introduction. This verse echoes Ex 23.20; cf. also Isa 40.3. The messenger is apparently a forerunner of the LORD. The messenger of the covenant may be the same individual as my messenger. The epilogue (4.5–6) identifies the messenger as the prophet Elijah (see 2 Kings 2.1–12). In the New Testament, the messenger is identified as John the Baptist (Mt 11.10; Mk 1.2; Lk 1.17; 7.27). 2–3: Metallurgy and the manufacture of textiles provide metaphors for purification. Fullers' soap, whitening and cleansing agent used in the processing of textiles. The descendants of Levi (see 2.4) become important again, though here as officiating priests, not teachers. 5: All the infractions also appear in Deuteronomy, especially 24.14–17, which refers to the wage earner, sojourner, widow, and orphan (cf. Zech 7.9–10).

3.6–12: Tithes, curses, and blessings. A disputation that addresses the responsibility of the entire community to bring tithes. 6: Children of Jacob symbolize the unchanging commitment of the deity to Israel, as it has existed since the time of its ancient ancestor. 7: This verse picks up the theme of return found in Zech to you, says the LORD of hosts. But you say, “How shall we return?”

⁸ Will anyone rob God? Yet you are robbing me! But you say, “How are we robbing you?” In your tithes and offerings! ⁹ You are cursed with a curse, for you are robbing me—the whole nation of you! ¹⁰ Bring the full tithe into the storehouse, so that there may be food in my house, and thus put me to the test, says the LORD of hosts; see if I will not open the windows of heaven for you and pour down for you an overflowing blessing. ¹¹ I will rebuke the locust^a for you, so that it will not destroy the produce of your soil; and your vine in the field shall not be barren, says the LORD of hosts. ¹² Then all nations will count you happy, for you will be a land of delight, says the LORD of hosts.

¹³ You have spoken harsh words against me, says the LORD. Yet you say, “How have we spoken against you?” ¹⁴ You have said, “It is vain to serve God. What do we profit by keeping his command or by going about as mourners before the LORD of hosts? ¹⁵ Now we count the arrogant happy; evildoers not only prosper, but when they put God to the test they escape.”

¹⁶ Then those who revered the LORD spoke with one another. The LORD took note and listened, and a book of remembrance was written before him of those who revered the LORD and thought on his name. ¹⁷ They shall be mine, says the LORD of hosts, my special possession on the day when I act, and I will spare them as parents spare their children who serve them. ¹⁸ Then once more you shall see the difference between the righteous and the wicked, between one who serves God and one who does not serve him.

4^b See, the day is coming, burning like an oven, when all the arrogant and all evildoers will be stubble; the day that comes shall burn them up, says the LORD of hosts, so that it will leave them neither root nor branch. ² But for you who revere my name the sun of righteousness shall rise, with healing in its wings. You shall go out leaping like calves from the stall. ³ And you shall tread down the wicked, for they will be ashes under the soles of your feet, on the day when I act, says the LORD of hosts.

^a Heb devourer

^b Ch 4.1-6 are Ch 3.19-24 in Heb

1.2–6. 8–10: The deity responds to the people’s question “How shall we return?” (v. 7) by mandating proper tithes and offerings. 10: On the full tithe, see Lev 27.30,32. Num 18.21–32 allocates the tithe to the Levites (cf. Deut 14.22–29). The tithe was a matter of concern during the Persian period, see Neh 10.35,37–40 (cf. 12.44; 13.5). The people’s testing of the LORD is attested elsewhere only in 3.15 and Ps 95.9, where it is an accusation. Here it is a challenge, and the LORD promises to pass the test by providing rain, which will create agricultural bounty. 11–12: Locust, lit., “devourer,” which could refer to flies (Ps 78.45) or worms (Deut 28.39) as well as locusts (Joel 1.4). Deut 28.10–12 reflects a similar notion of rain, abundant harvest, and recognition by other peoples.

3.13–4.3: Those who fear the LORD’s name. This diatribe differs strikingly from the preceding ones by introducing a distinct group, “those who revered the LORD” (v. 16). 13: The LORD’s charge could now refer to everything that the people have been quoted as saying throughout the book. 14–15: The people raise the issue of theodicy. Unlike those who venerate God, evildoers . . . prosper, even after they put God to the test (cf. 2.17; 3.10). The LORD offers no response to this charge; dialogue ceases. 16: On such God-fearers, see Pss 15.4; 22.23. Some psalms associate God-fearers with priestly houses; Ps 135.20 identifies them as the house of Levi, which has been prominent in Malachi. Book of remembrance (cf. Ps 139.16; Dan.10.21; Rev 13.8). In Ex 19.5, all Israel is God’s special possession; here only a portion of Israel, the God-fearers, receives that honor. 17–18: God will spare those who serve him, those who are righteous; the wicked will not be spared. The language of parents and children recurs in the book’s final verse. 4.1: The day is the day of the LORD. Unlike the fire in 3.2–3, the oven will destroy, not purify. Cf. Isa 6.13 for the imagery of stubble consumed by fire. 2: Sun of righteousness alludes to the winged sun disk, which symbolized divine beneficence and protection throughout the ancient Near East.

⁴ Remember the teaching of my servant Moses, the statutes and ordinances that I commanded him at Horeb for all Israel.

⁵ Lo, I will send you the prophet Elijah before the great and terrible day of the LORD comes. ⁶ He will turn the hearts of parents to their children and the hearts of children to their parents, so that I will not come and strike the land with a curse.^a

^a Or a ban of utter destruction

4.4–6: An epilogue, drawing on diverse biblical texts (Mal 1.6; Joel 2.31; 2 Kings 2), that integrates the book of Malachi with individuals (Moses and Elijah) and traditions mentioned elsewhere in the Bible. 4: Teaching (Heb “torah”) of my servant Moses (cf. Josh 8.31; Neh 8.1). Horeb is an alternate name for Mount Sinai (e.g., Ex 3.1). 5–6: Elijah (see 3.1n.) can return because he never died (2 Kings 2.11). There was an expectation that a prophet or prophecy would return before the day of the LORD arrived (cf. Ezek 39.29; Joel 2.28; Sir 48.10). The book concludes with imagery of familial reconciliation.

THE NEW TESTAMENT

The New Covenant
Commonly Called
The New Testament of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ

New Revised Standard Version

INTRODUCTION TO THE GOSPELS

THE LITERARY GENRE OF THE GOSPELS

The English word “gospel” originally meant “good news,” and it is an exact translation of the Gk word euangelion (from which the English word “evangelist” is derived). The opening of Mark’s Gospel, “The beginning of the good news [or “gospel”] of Jesus Christ, the Son of God” (1.1), uses the word “gospel” for the message about salvation through Jesus. In the New Testament the Gk word refers either to the act of preaching (1 Thess 1.5, NRSV: “our message of the gospel”) or its content (Acts 15.7, NRSV: “message of the good news”; 20.24, NRSV: “good news”). Outside the New Testament and other early Christian writings, the term is used for celebratory announcements, such as a military victory, the birth of a son, or a wedding. An inscription from 9 BCE uses the noun (in the plural) to refer to the past event of the birth of the Roman emperor Augustus: “the birthday of the god was for the world the beginning of ‘joyful messages’ which have gone forth because of him.” The idea that an emperor’s birth, coming of age, and ascent to the throne was “good news” for the world would have come to mind when Christian missionaries came preaching “good news.” Not until the mid-second century CE was the word for “gospel” used of a literary genre (Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho 10.2; Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. 50.26.6).

The use of the word “gospel” in Mark’s introduction presumably led to its being adopted as the designation for written accounts of the ministry, teaching, death, and resurrection of Jesus. Short formulas in Paul’s letters show that the “good news” of early preaching focused on the death, resurrection, and exaltation of Jesus (1 Thess 1.9–10; Rom 1.2–4; 1 Cor 15.3–5). Mark expanded this usage to include Jesus’s own preaching of the kingdom of God (Mk 1.14–15). So far as we know, Mark was the first to create a distinctive literary form that combined early Christian preaching about Jesus with a narrative account of Jesus’s life and ministry. Writings that some scholars date earlier than Mark are collections of sayings with little or no narrative framework.

By presenting a narrative about Jesus as the basis of Christian preaching (see Lk 1.1–4), the Gospel writers (the “evangelists”) assume that the life of Jesus provides evidence to support Christian beliefs about him. By providing an account of Jesus from the time of his emergence on the public stage through his trial and death, Mark created a “life” (Gk bios) of his subject. The ancient bios should not be confused with a modern biography, which explicates the subject’s origins, family, cultural influences, and character development, and tends to emphasize uniqueness and individuality. Ancient writers often characterized persons as types, and the narratives of their lives reflected a view that individuals had fixed characters from birth rather than personalities that developed through life.

Still, scholars disagree over the extent to which the Gospels follow conventions of ancient biography. Because the story of Jesus concerns a figure with a crucial place in the history of God’s relationship with Israel, it is closer to Jewish accounts of Moses or a prophet like Elijah than to typical Greek and Roman biographies of rulers or philosophers (e.g., Xenophon, Agesilaus; Isocrates, Evagoras; Tacitus, Agricola; Lucian, Demonax), which had a wider scope, including an account of the preliminary education of the subject of the biography. Greco-Roman biographies were addressed to a social and literary elite, which may explain why the Gospels, addressed to a much broader audience, do not match them very closely. Philo’s Life of Moses adopts a Hellenistic-style laudatory biography for a Jewish subject. Echoes of the life of Moses as related in the book of Exodus and other Jewish sources appear in Matthew’s version of the birth and infancy of Jesus (Mt 1–2).

Since the genre “biography” emerged from Greek historical writing, the question of whether the Gospels belong to this genre often involves a prior judgment concerning their historical plausibility. Scholars who reject biography as a description of the Gospels often overemphasize the ideological or legendary elements found in the narratives. They prefer to read the Gospels as etiological legends explaining the emergence of a new religion or as ideological representations of the Christology of particular early Christian communities. Such writings do not intend to provide historical information about their subject. Rather, they operate like myths and symbols to support Christian beliefs and practices.

Second-century CE authors, on the other hand, both adherents of Christianity like Justin Martyr and opponents like Celsus, presumed that the evangelists intended to provide information. Justin Martyr’s designation of the Gospels as “memoirs” (Gk hypomnemata; 1 Apology 1.67.3) suggests something less than a full literary biography, something more like a gathering of notes about the subject and his teaching. This perception may have been enhanced by the fact that early Christians disseminated their writings using a codex (similar to a bound book) rather than a scroll. Though some modern readers think of the codex as a technological advance over the scroll, the ancients did not. Serious literary works were copied onto scrolls. Notes, preliminary drafts, and all sorts of records were kept in codices. Thus their physical appearance would suggest to an ancient reader that the Gospels were more educational handbooks than examples of high literary art. Papias’s comment that Mark is “not in order” (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.39.5) shows that even some Christian readers considered it an unfinished composition. Papias also noted that Matthew was a more polished work (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.39.16). Luke’s prologue states that he intends to correct the deficiencies in earlier accounts (1.1–4). Such comments indicate that Mark’s earliest readers treated the Gospel as a rough life of Jesus. A “biography” of this type naturally invited expansions in content and revisions of style like those that Matthew and Luke subsequently undertook.

THE SOURCES OF THE GOSPELS

A historical genre does not necessarily guarantee historical accuracy or reliability, and neither the evangelists nor their first readers engaged in historical analysis. Their aim was to confirm Christian faith (Lk 1.4; Jn 20.31). Scholars generally agree that the Gospels were written forty to sixty years after the death of Jesus. They are not eyewitness or contemporary accounts of Jesus’s life and teaching. Even the language has changed. Though Greek had become the common language used by groups whose primary languages were different in the eastern Roman Empire, and inscriptions and fragments of Greek translations of the Hebrew Bible show that Greek was used among Jews within Judea, Jesus, his disciples, and the crowds would have used Aramaic, a Semitic language closely related to Hebrew, which it had replaced as the principal spoken language of Palestine. Despite scholarly efforts to detect an underlying Aramaic original for Mark or Matthew, it is probable that all the evangelists wrote in the common (koinē) Greek of their day. Further, the vast majority of Hebrew Bible citations in the New Testament are taken from the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible (the Septuagint).

In the third century CE, Eusebius created a system of dividing the gospels into narrative units and creating lists indicating which sections appear in some form in all four, in various groupings of three and two, and finally which ones are unique to the gospel in question. Codices marked up with this system enabled readers to locate different versions of the same episode. Today students use special books laid out in parallel columns, a “gospel synopsis.” Large sections of Matthew, Mark, and Luke repeat stories about and sayings of Jesus in nearly identical words. Hence these three Gospels are referred to as the “Synoptic” Gospels (from Gk synoptikos, “viewed together”). On a linguistic level, both Luke and Matthew improve on Mark’s style, smoothing out inelegant expressions and repetitions. Luke eliminates Mark’s characteristic use of parataxis (one short phrase following another without indicating how they are related) by employing balancing particles and subordinate clauses. Matthew follows Mark’s outline, though the insertion of considerable sections of discourse material may obscure that relationship for the casual reader. Luke knows most of Mark but has no parallels to Mk 6.45–8.26; whether Luke chose to omit this section or had a different version of Mark remains unclear. Detailed analysis of the traditions shared by Matthew, Mark, and Luke provides strong support for the view that Mark provided the template that Matthew and Luke revised, both correcting and smoothing out its language and expanding the Jesus material it contained.

Further study of additional material shared by Matthew and Luke shows a number of close verbal parallels in passages such as the temptation of Jesus (Mt 4.2–11; Lk 4.2–13), the Beatitudes (Lk 6.20–23; Mt 5.3,6,4,11–12), the parable of the lost sheep (Lk 15.4–7; Mt 18.12–14), and the Lord’s Prayer (Lk 11.2–4; Mt 6.9–13). These parallels include various types of sayings, controversy stories, and parables. Scholars hypothesized that a collection of such material must have been circulating in the early churches, and they have designated it with the symbol “Q,” from the German Quelle (“source”). In 1945, a library of religious treatises in Coptic was discovered near Nag Hammadi in Egypt. They included just such a “sayings book,” the Gospel of Thomas. Subsequently, sayings from a variant tradition of this Gospel in Greek were identified among Greek papyri. The Gospel of Thomas is not “Q”: Some of its sayings and parables appear to have been taken from the Synoptic Gospels rather than from earlier oral tradition. But its discovery provides evidence that such sayings collections existed. Some scholars remain skeptical of the Q hypothesis, proposing instead complex explanations of how each successive gospel writer adapted the work of his predecessors. Sayings in the Gospel of Thomas collection that reflect a specific Synoptic Gospel suggest that the entire collection derived from oral repetition of canonical gospel material.

Scholars generally presume that the Gospel writers had other such notebook-like collections of material such as parables and miracle stories. Presumably, additional items, such as genealogies, hymnic prayers, and legends in the infancy narratives of Matthew and Luke, were not created by the evangelists but come from earlier tradition. Similarly, some of the material found only in Matthew or in Luke is not likely to be the author's creation. The following diagram shows the understanding of a majority of scholars about the sources and literary relationships of the Synoptic Gospels.

Four-Source Hypothesis. In composing their Gospels, both Matthew and Luke independently used two earlier sources: the gospel of Mark and “Q,” the collection of sayings of Jesus. Each also used other sources specific to each of them.

There may also have been an earlier narrative of the passion and death of Jesus; some scholars think that most of Mark's narrative came from such a source, while others maintain that there is no evidence for such an account. The origin of the story of Jesus's passion is unclear when measured against Jewish and Roman judicial practice, and some details may have been based on biblical descriptions of the suffering righteous one. It is important to recognize that in the scribal culture of the earliest centuries texts were not fixed by the initial author. Additional clarifications and even freely circulating material could be incorporated by later scribes. Modern editions sometimes mark these expansions (see Mk 16.9–20; Lk 22.43–44 textual note a; Jn 7.53–8.11).

While the Synoptic Gospels have a close literary relationship, the Fourth Gospel, the Gospel of John, presents a much greater puzzle. Its chronology of Jesus's ministry differs from that of the Synoptics. In John, Jesus spends three years preaching, during which he journeys between Galilee and Jerusalem; in the Synoptic Gospels, he visits Jerusalem only once, at the end of a ministry that apparently lasted less than a year. The episode denouncing the sellers in the Temple, which enrages the religious authorities and leads to his death in the Synoptics, occurs near the beginning of the three-year ministry in John (Jn 2.13–22). John claims that Jesus's popularity with Jerusalem crowds after he dramatically restored Lazarus to life awakened political fears for the safety of the nation (Jn 11.45–57; 12.9–11). John's account of the passion also differs markedly: there is no agony. Conscious of his unity with the Father and the cross as his exaltation and return to preexistent glory, Jesus controls all the events; he engages Pilate, the Roman governor, in an ironic discussion of kingship; and John includes a disciple-witness, a resident of Jerusalem, who does not flee with the others. Is this unnamed “disciple whom Jesus loved” (Jn 21.7,20; cf. 19.26; 20.2) a symbolic creation of the Evangelist? Some scholars think so; others suggest that he was a historical individual, responsible for the gospel's unique tradition and theology, as it alleges (19.35; 21.24). What led the author of the Gospel of John to compose this variant on the narrative of Jesus's life that still has a recognizable similarity to Mark (and in some instances to Luke)? Some scholars use the parallels as indications of a shorter sketch of Jesus's life known to both authors. Others think that the Gospel of Mark, and perhaps also Luke, were already circulating in the Evangelist's area. He assumed that readers knew other accounts of Jesus's life and teaching, and formulated a different version of Jesus and what he taught to show that Jesus of Nazareth was not just a miracle-worker, prophet, or charismatic teacher but the incarnate Son of God. That claim constitutes the flash point between Jesus and the Jewish authorities throughout the narrative.

The Evangelists did more than edit notebooks of Jesus traditions. Rather, each shaped the narrative to emphasize particular features of Jesus and his teaching. Readers may approach every Gospel in a similar way, asking what are the special characteristics of Jesus and of his followers in each Evangelist's presentation of Jesus and of those who follow Jesus.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

CANONICAL STATUS

The authoritative status of the Gospel of Matthew was recognized as early as the beginning of the second century CE, and Matthew has always figured as the first book of the New Testament canon. This position is explicable for several reasons. First, as the Gospel that draws most extensively on the Jewish scriptures, Matthew links the Old and New Testaments by showing how prophecies from the former—including “fulfillment citations”—were realized in the person of Jesus. Second, Matthew was the most important Gospel for the early church and, until at least the end of the second century, the most influential writing in the New Testament. Its arrangement of the teaching of Jesus into five discourses, especially the Sermon on the Mount (chs 5–7), made it especially useful for the catechetical instruction of converts. In addition, its inclusion of narratives about Jesus’s birth and resurrection offered a more comprehensive biographical shape to Jesus’s life than the Gospel of Mark (which was likely Matthew’s main source). Finally, unlike the other two Synoptic Gospels, the Gospel of Matthew was traditionally attributed to Matthew, one of Jesus’s actual twelve disciples (cf. 10.3). Mark was regarded as a follower of the apostle Peter, and Luke of the apostle Paul.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND PLACE OF COMPOSITION

Judgments about the authorship of this Gospel hinge significantly on which view of the synoptic problem is accepted. The following discussion accepts the two-document hypothesis as the most satisfactory solution to understanding how the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke relate to each other. On this reading, the Gospel of Mark was the author’s chief source, together with a hypothetical sayings-source that he shared with Luke (designated “Q”), and some 210 verses unique to Matthew (“M”).

From the early second century the Gospel’s author was identified as Matthew, one of the twelve disciples. This attribution to Matthew appears to be signaled by 9.9, where Mark’s reference to Levi, the tax collector (Mk 2.13–17), is changed to Matthew, the tax collector. This change could be a subtle allusion to the Gospel’s author, and for centuries it was regarded as such. If, however, the Evangelist’s main sources were the Gospel of Mark and Q, it is difficult to explain why one of the twelve disciples should be so heavily reliant on a Gospel that was thought to have been written by someone who was not one of Jesus’s disciples. Wouldn’t Matthew have had a rich store of experiences to draw upon? It is, of course, possible that some of the Gospel’s unique materials (M) do originate with Matthew, the disciple, but most scholars hold that the author/editor is someone other than the disciple Matthew (even if, as here, he is referred to as Matthew out of convenience).

The date of its composition is largely based on inferences from Matthew’s Gospel itself. Many scholars see in Matthew 22.7 an allusion to the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple by the Romans in 70 CE, which would necessitate a post-70 dating. Others, however, interpret 22.7 as a prediction by Jesus of the Temple’s demise that employs stock prophetic images of judgment. On this reading, Matthew could be earlier, with its date presupposing only the existence of Q and the Gospel of Mark. Depending on when these two documents are dated, Matthew could conceivably be as early as the 50s or 60s CE. At the other end of the time frame, citations of Matthew’s Gospel in the letters of Ignatius of Antioch, who died in the early second century, indicate that the Gospel must have been written before the end of the first century.

The Gospel’s place of composition is also based on inferences from the text. Matthew 4:25 mentions that Jesus’s reputation “extended to Syria”—a passage that the evangelist has added to Mark’s account. Its deliberate inclusion could be taken as a clue to its origin. Since Syrian Antioch—the third-largest city in the Roman Empire—boasted sizable Christian and Jewish communities, it is generally regarded as the likeliest candidate for the provenance of the Gospel. Nevertheless, the inference is far from certain, and various other locales such as Galilee, the Decapolis, and Sepphoris, a Greco-Roman city located near Nazareth, are also distinct possibilities.

LITERARY FORM AND STRUCTURE

As noted earlier, Matthew’s Gospel has a strong biographical character and shows affinities with the ancient Greek literary form of the bios (“life”). The bios differs from modern biographies in its focus on episodes that reveal the underlying character of its subject. Thus, rather than illustrating the psychological development of Jesus, Matthew's bios consistently shows Jesus's words and deeds to be characteristic of the humble and compassionate Messiah. The Gospel displays other literary contours, the most distinctive of which are five discourses by Jesus. Matthew contains more of Jesus's teaching than any other Gospel (approximately 43 percent compared to Mark: 20 percent; Luke: 37 percent; and John: 34 percent), much of it presented in these discourses. Each one ends with the distinctive phrase, "when Jesus had finished saying these things . . ." or a variant of it. Taken together, these discourses present five different aspects of Jesus's teaching. The number probably echoes the five books of the Torah/Pentateuch. The first discourse, the Sermon on the Mount (chs 5–7), is justly famous as an encapsulation of the "entry requirements of the kingdom," while the other discourses provide an overview of the kingdom's progress: they address preaching about the kingdom (ch 10), its mysteries (ch 13), its application to the church (ch 18), and finally, its implications for the last days and final judgment (chs 24–25). These discourses are linked with narrative episodes, so that the overall Gospel consists of alternating accounts of Jesus's public ministry and his discourses, all framed by an "infancy" and a resurrection narrative.

As mentioned earlier, "fulfillment citations" are also a notable literary feature of the Gospel. Matthew is the evangelist who references the Jewish scriptures most frequently, alluding to some passages and specifically quoting others. Among the latter are approximately ten fulfillment citations (1.23; 2.15; 2.18; 2.23; 4.15–16; 8.17; 12.18–21; 13.35; 21.5; 27.9–10; cf. 2.5; 13.14; 24.15) that follow a formula that typically reads: "This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet." These citations are particularly prominent at the beginning of Jesus's ministry and focus on how Jesus's person and his actions were anticipated in Israel's scriptures.

INTERPRETATION

Matthew can be regarded as the first interpreter of Mark's Gospel, which he adapted to address issues confronting his own church(es). He is the only evangelist to use the word "church" (Gk ekklesia, 16.18; 18.17) and to address questions of church authority and discipline (ch 18). The evangelist has overlaid the situation of Christians in his day onto the story of Jesus so that Jesus's words and actions can be seen to apply both to the time of Jesus and to believers a half century later. This dual focus helps to explain one of the Gospel's major anomalies, namely, its conflicted portrayal of Jewish piety and its religious leaders. Matthew's high regard for the Jewish Torah (5.17–20; 23.1–3), its extensive use of prophecies from the Jewish scriptures, and occasional disdain for non-Jews (5.47; 6.7,32; 16.17) all suggest a positive assessment of Judaism. On the other hand, the Gospel displays a strident and unrelenting condemnation of the Jewish leadership—the chief priests, elders, Sadducees, Pharisees, and scribes.

In Matthew, these groups are indiscriminately paired with each other in a manner inconsistent with the historical distinctions that existed between these groups in Jesus's day. The chief priests would have included the current high priest and a larger priestly college based in Jerusalem that was comprised largely of elders, including many Sadducees and some Pharisees. These two groups were highly influential in the Second Temple period, though little is known with certainty about either. The Pharisees of Jesus's day appear to have been a Jewish reform movement, advocating stringent observance of the Law and their own "oral Torah." The Sadducees were likely aristocratic descendants of Zadok the priest (2 Sam 8.17) who considered the written, but not the "oral Torah" binding on Israel. In contrast to the Pharisees (Acts 23.6–10), they did not believe in angels, the spirit, or resurrection (Acts 23.8; cf. Mt 22.22–23). The scribes were not a distinct religious group, but a loose assemblage of lawyers, teachers, and interpreters of the Torah (Sir 39.1–11). The Gospel routinely condemns the Pharisees as hypocrites (e.g., 23.5–7), and the vehemence of this condemnation has led many scholars to suggest that their portrayal reflects later tensions between Matthew's church and emergent Rabbinic Judaism. In other words, the conflict between Jesus and the Pharisees reflects tensions that emerged some fifty years after Jesus's death.

The crucifixion narrative displays this same telescoping of perspectives. Responsibility for Jesus's passion is shifted from Pontius Pilate and the Romans to the Jewish people and their leadership (27.20–25). The horrific pronouncement "His blood be on us and on our children!" (27.25) is Matthew's way of attributing the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple in 70 CE to Israel's rejection of Jesus. The vehemence with which the evangelist expresses such sentiments was likely intended to shock both Jewish Christians and their Jewish neighbors into reconsidering the claims made by the Gospel, and to discount rival claims being advanced by the leadership of emergent Rabbinic Judaism, such as the Jewish explanation for the resurrection of Jesus (Mt 27.52–66; 28.11–15).

While such strident rhetoric was characteristic of debates between groups in the first century CE, its long-term consequences have been disastrous. Subsequent non-Jewish Christians interpreted the Gospel as a warrant to exact retribution from Jews for the death of Jesus and the persecution of his first followers. A proper reading of the Gospel, therefore, requires being attuned to the polemical context in which it was written, and recognizing that the conflict between emerging Rabbinic Judaism and the smaller Jewish Christian minority ceased being relevant nearly two thousand years ago.

The type of methodology employed in this commentary is known as the historical-critical method. The details furnished in the notes are primarily intended to elucidate the context and historical and geographical background of the text. Readers should be aware that there are also other methodological approaches used by biblical scholars to interpret the Gospel, such as narrative criticism and social-scientific criticism. The former uses literary-critical approaches to analyze Matthew as a unified story, while the latter draws on the disciplines of anthropology and sociology to reconstruct the social world Jesus would have inhabited, and the societal values that would have been operative in his day.

J. R. C. Cousland

1 An account of the genealogy^a of Jesus the Messiah,^b the son of David, the son of Abraham.

² Abraham was the father of Isaac, and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers,³ and Judah the father of Perez and Zerah by Tamar, and Perez the father of Hezron, and Hezron the father of Aram,⁴ and Aram the father of Aminadab, and Aminadab the father of Nahshon, and Nahshon the father of Salmon,⁵ and Salmon the father of Boaz by Rahab, and Boaz the father of Obed by Ruth, and Obed the father of Jesse,⁶ and Jesse the father of King David.

And David was the father of Solomon by the wife of Uriah,⁷ and Solomon the father of Rehoboam, and Rehoboam the father of Abijah, and Abijah the father of Asaph,^{c 8} and Asaph^c the father of Jehoshaphat, and Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, and Joram the father of Uzziah,⁹ and Uzziah the father of Jotham, and Jotham the father of Ahaz, and Ahaz the father of Hezekiah,¹⁰ and Hezekiah the father of Manasseh, and Manasseh the father of Amos,^d and Amos^d the father of Josiah,¹¹ and Josiah the father of Jechoniah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

¹² And after the deportation to Babylon: Jechoniah was the father of Salathiel, and Salathiel the father of Zerubbabel,¹³ and

^a Or birth

^b Or Jesus Christ

^c Other ancient authorities read Asa

^d Other ancient authorities read Amon

1.1–17: Jesus’s genealogy (Lk 3.23–38). 1: Jesus, “Joshua” (Heb “Yeshua”) is a later, abbreviated, form of the name “Yehoshua,” meaning “The Lord (YHWH) is help (or salvation).” Messiah, Gk “Christos,” “Anointed One.” Those anointed by God—typically kings and priests—were set apart by God for a specific divine purpose (1 Sam 10.1; Ex 29.7). The designation son indicates Jesus’s familial descent. That he is both the son of David, the king, and son of Abraham, the patriarch, demonstrates that Jesus is a scion of the royal family of David, and a true Israelite. 2–17: The genealogy continues the “descent” motif by furnishing a stylized ancestral tree consisting of roughly three groups of fourteen: from Abraham to David, from David to the deportation to Babylon in 586 BCE (2 Kings 24.8–16), and from the deportation to Jesus (although Jechoniah has to be included for the final group to amount to fourteen). The numerical value of David’s name in Hebrew is fourteen, which may account for this arrangement. While Matthew’s genealogy is not complete (cf. 1 Chr 3.11–12), its chief purpose is to establish that David and Abraham were Jesus’s forebears. Genealogies are common in the Hebrew Bible (e.g., 1 Chr 1–9) and were a matter of pride and importance for demonstrating one’s status as true Israelites (Neh 7.61–64). Jesus’s genealogy is unusual, however, not simply because it includes women, but because it also features non-Israelite (i.e., Gentile) women, some of questionable repute: Tamar (v. 3; Gen 38), Rahab (v. 5; Josh 2.1–21; 6.22–25), Ruth (v. 5; Ruth 2–4), and Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah (v. 6; 2 Sam 11–12). Their inclusion may prefigure Mary’s own marital dilemma (vv. 18–19) and the coming mission to the Gentiles (28.18–20).

Zerubbabel the father of Abiud, and Abiud the father of Eliakim, and Eliakim the father of Azor,¹⁴ and Azor the father of Zadok, and Zadok the father of Achim, and Achim the father of Eliud,¹⁵ and Eliud the father of Eleazar, and Eleazar the father of Matthan, and Matthan the father of Jacob,¹⁶ and Jacob the father of Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called the Messiah.^a ¹⁷ So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David to the deportation to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the deportation to Babylon to the Messiah,^a fourteen generations.

¹⁸ Now the birth of Jesus the Messiah^b took place in this way. When his mother Mary had been engaged to Joseph, but before they lived together, she was found to be with child from the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹ Her husband Joseph, being a righteous man and unwilling to expose her to public disgrace, planned to dismiss her quietly. ²⁰ But just when he had resolved to do this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, “Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife, for the child conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. ²¹ She will bear a son, and you are to name him Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins.”²² All this took place to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

²³ “Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall name him Emmanuel,” which means, “God is with us.”²⁴ When Joseph awoke from sleep, he did as the angel of the Lord commanded him; he took her as his wife,²⁵ but had no marital relations with her until she had borne a son;^c and he named him Jesus.

2 In the time of King Herod, after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, wise men^d from the East came to Jerusalem,² asking, “Where is the child who has been born king of the Jews? For we observed his star at its rising,^e and have come to pay him homage.”³ When King Herod heard this, he was frightened, and all Jerusalem with him;⁴ and calling together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Messiah^a was to be born. ⁵ They told him, “In Bethlehem of Judea; for so it has been written by the prophet:

^a Or the Christ

^b Or Jesus Christ

^c Other ancient authorities read her firstborn son

^d Or astrologers; Gk magi

^e Or in the East

1.18–25: The conception and birth of Jesus Christ (Lk 2.1–7). Chapter 1 stresses that Jesus was of the line of David, but then indicates that Mary was a virgin and Joseph was not his father. This apparent difficulty is resolved by Joseph’s formal adoption of Jesus, which legally situates Jesus within Joseph’s line. 18: Engaged ... before they lived together: Marriage was a two-stage, contractual process; betrothal lasted for a year, after which the couple formally cohabited. Sexual relations did not occur until the second stage (m. Ketub. 1.2; 5.2). 20: Dreams are a common means of revelation in Matthew (2.12,13,19–20,22; 27.19), and like his namesake in Genesis Joseph is also the recipient of dreams. 21: The angel’s reference to Jesus “saving his people” probably alludes to Jesus’s name (see v. 1n.). 23: The first of Matthew’s fulfillment citations (Isa 7.14), showing how Jesus’s life conforms to prophecies of the Jewish scriptures. These citations are especially prominent in the Gospel’s opening chapters. Emmanuel: Cf. 28:20. These two verses function as symbolic bookends to the Gospel and point to Jesus’s saving and abiding presence.

2.1–12: The visit of the wise men. 1: King Herod is Herod the Great (ruled 37–4 BCE), who was confirmed as the client king of Judea by the emperor Augustus (31 BCE–14 CE). Herod was only partly Jewish and was notorious for reacting savagely to potential rivals, particularly Jewish rivals. Bethlehem, located 5 mi (8 km) south of Jerusalem, was David’s hometown and the place where he was anointed king of Israel (1 Sam 16.1–13). The wise men or Magi were traditionally a class of Parthian (Persian) priests, renowned as astrologers. 2: As Gentiles, the Magi do not ask for the king of Israel, but for the king of the Jews (27.11,37). The star has been variously explained as a supernova, a comet, or a notable conjunction of the planets, but its meaning may be symbolic; see Num 24.17. 4: Chief priests ... scribes, see Introduction. 5–6: Mic 5.1,3; cf. 2 Sam 5.2.

6 ‘And you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the rulers of Judah;
for from you shall come a ruler who is to shepherd^a my people Israel.’”

7 Then Herod secretly called for the wise men^b and learned from them the exact time when the star had appeared. ⁸ Then he sent them to Bethlehem, saying, “Go and search diligently for the child; and when you have found him, bring me word so that I may also go and pay him homage.” ⁹ When they had heard the king, they set out; and there, ahead of them, went the star that they had seen at its rising,^c until it stopped over the place where the child was. ¹⁰ When they saw that the star had stopped,^d they were overwhelmed with joy. ¹¹ On entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure chests, they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. ¹² And having been warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they left for their own country by another road.

¹³ Now after they had left, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said, “Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and remain there until I tell you; for Herod is about to search for the child, to destroy him.” ¹⁴ Then Joseph^e got up, took the child and his mother by night, and went to Egypt, ¹⁵ and remained there until the death of Herod. This was to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet, “Out of Egypt I have called my son.”

¹⁶ When Herod saw that he had been tricked by the wise men,^b he was infuriated, and he sent and killed all the children in and around Bethlehem who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had learned from the wise men.^b ¹⁷ Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

¹⁸ “A voice was heard in Ramah, wailing and loud lamentation, Rachel weeping for her children;
she refused to be consoled, because they are no more.”

¹⁹ When Herod died, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said, ²⁰ “Get up, take the child and his mother, and go to the land of Israel, for those who were seeking the child’s life are dead.” ²¹ Then Joseph^e got up, took the child and his mother, and went to the land of Israel. ²² But when he heard that Archelaus was ruling over Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. And after being warned in a dream, he went away to the district of Galilee. ²³ There he made his home in a town called Nazareth, so that what had been spoken through the prophets might be fulfilled, “He will be called a Nazorean.”

^a Or rule

^b Or astrologers; Gk magi

^c Or in the East

^d Gk saw the star

^e Gk he

11: Frankincense and myrrh were costly, resinous gums derived from trees and shrubs (Isa 60.6; Song 3.6). Because of their aromatic qualities, they were often employed in religious rituals (including burials). The mention of three gifts is probably the origin of the postbiblical tradition that there were three wise men.

2.13–23: The escape to Egypt and return. 15: A fulfillment citation from Hos 11.1, where son refers to the people of Israel (Ex 4.22): the experience of Israel and Jesus are paralleled. The citation calls to mind Israel’s sojourn in Egypt and God’s mighty deliverance of Israel through Moses. Jesus’s subsequent baptism and temptation also recall Israel’s flight through the Red Sea and testing in the wilderness. 16: Herod’s action recalls the command of the king of Egypt in Ex 1.16. 18: A fulfillment citation from Jer 31.15. Ramah was located about 6 mi (10 km) north of Jerusalem. The tomb of Rachel, the wife of Jacob, the father of the twelve “tribes” of Israel, is situated just north of Bethlehem (Gen 35.16–20). 20: Cf. Ex 4.19. 22: Upon Herod’s death in 4 BCE, his kingdom was divided among his sons Archelaus (4 BCE–6 CE), ethnarch (prince) over Judea, Samaria, and Idumea; Herod Antipas (4 BCE–39 CE), tetrarch (minor prince) over Galilee and Perea; and Philip (4 BCE–33/34 CE), tetrarch of smaller territories northeast of the Sea of Galilee. 23: Nazareth in Jesus’s day was not so much a town as a village in Galilee, very close to the Hellenized city of Sepphoris. Nazorean, this fulfillment citation does not precisely correspond to any passage in the Jewish scriptures, though it echoes passages such as Isa 11.1 and Judg 13.5.

3 In those days John the Baptist appeared in the wilderness of Judea, proclaiming,² “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.”³ This is the one of whom the prophet Isaiah spoke when he said,
 “The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:

“Prepare the way of the Lord,
 make his paths straight.”

⁴ Now John wore clothing of camel’s hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey.⁵ Then the people of Jerusalem and all Judea were going out to him, and all the region along the Jordan,⁶ and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

⁷ But when he saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism, he said to them, “You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?”⁸ Bear fruit worthy of repentance.⁹ Do not presume to say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our ancestor’; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham.¹⁰ Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

¹¹ “I baptize you with^b water for repentance, but one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you with^b the Holy Spirit and fire.¹² His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will clear his threshing floor and will gather his wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire.”

¹³ Then Jesus came from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him.¹⁴ John would have prevented him, saying, “I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?”

¹⁵ But Jesus answered him, “Let it be so now; for it is proper for us in this way to fulfill all righteousness.” Then he consented.¹⁶ And when Jesus had been baptized, just as he came up from the water, suddenly the heavens were opened to him and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and alighting on him.¹⁷ And a voice from heaven said, “This is my Son, the Beloved,^c with whom I am well pleased.”

4 Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil.² He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterwards he was famished.

^a Or is at hand

^b Or in

^c Or my beloved Son

3.1–12: The preaching of John the Baptist (Mk 1.1–8; Lk 3.1–9,15–17; Jn 1.19–28; Josephus, Ant. 18.116–19). 1: In those days, a general reference to the time when Jesus began his public ministry. John the Baptist, the prophetic forerunner of Jesus. In Matthew, although John is portrayed as subordinate to Jesus, their ministries display strong parallels (cf. 3.2 with 4.17). Wilderness of Judea, the barren eastern slopes of the Judean hill country that face the lower Jordan valley and the Dead Sea. 2: Kingdom of heaven is Matthew’s circumlocution for kingdom of God, one that avoids mentioning the name of God directly (though the phrase “kingdom of God” is found at 6.33; 12.28; 21.31,43). The kingdom of heaven (or God) refers to the absolute rule of God over human affairs. Its establishment marks the onset of the new age and God’s ultimate dominion. 3: A fulfillment citation from Isa 40.3 (cf. Mk 1.2–3; CD 10.16; 16.15; 1QS 8.12–14). John acts as a herald announcing the coming of the king. 4: John’s manner of dress recalled that of the prophet Elijah (2 Kings 1.8), while his food was that of an ascetic. Locusts are one of the few types of insects not regarded as unclean (Lev 11.20–23). In Matthew, John is more closely identified with Elijah than in the other Gospels (17.11–13); John’s preaching also prefigures Jesus’s own message at 4:17 and 23:33. 7: Pharisees and Sadducees: see the Introduction. 8: Repentance, a turning away from evil and the forging of a new relationship with God. 11: Fire: possibly signifying purification. 12: A winnowing fork was a forked shovel used to toss threshed grain into the wind, allowing the kernels of wheat to separate from the husks and straw, the chaff, which was blown away.

3.13–17: The baptism of Jesus (Mk 1.9–11; Lk 3.21–22; Jn 1.31–34). 15: Righteousness is a central theme in Matthew and means acting in accordance with the will of God. It furnishes the justification for the greater (Jesus) being baptized by the lesser (the Baptist; 11.11). 16: Heavens were opened, Ezek 1.1. Spirit, 28.19; Gen 1.2; Isa 61.1. 17: Voice, Dan 4.31–32. My son, the Beloved (see textual note c), 17.5; Ps 2.7; Isa 42.1; Hos 11.1.

4.1–11: The temptation of Jesus (Mk 1.12–13; Lk 4.1–13). 1: The devil, a transcendent evil being, also described in this chapter as the tempter (v. 3) and Satan (“the adversary”; v. 10). 2: The forty days recall the testing of Israel

³ The tempter came and said to him, “If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become loaves of bread.” ⁴ But he answered, “It is written,

‘One does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.’”

⁵ Then the devil took him to the holy city and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, ⁶ saying to him, “If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down; for it is written,

‘He will command his angels concerning
you,’

and ‘On their hands they will bear you
up,

so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.’”

⁷ Jesus said to him, “Again it is written, ‘Do not put the Lord your God to the test.’”

⁸ Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor; ⁹ and he said to him, “All these I will give you, if you will fall down and worship me.” ¹⁰ Jesus said to him, “Away with you, Satan! for it is written,

‘Worship the Lord your God, and serve only him.’”

¹¹ Then the devil left him, and suddenly angels came and waited on him.

¹² Now when Jesus^a heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew to Galilee. ¹³ He left Nazareth and made his home in Capernaum by the sea, in the territory of Zebulun and Naphtali, ¹⁴ so that what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

¹⁵ “Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali, on the road by the sea, across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles—

¹⁶ the people who sat in darkness have seen a great light, and for those who sat in the region and shadow of death

light has dawned.”

¹⁷ From that time Jesus began to proclaim, “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.”^b

¹⁸ As he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. ¹⁹ And he said to them, “Follow me, and I will make you fish for people.” ²⁰ Immediately they left their nets and followed him. ²¹ As he went from there, he saw two other brothers, James son of Zebedee and his brother John, in the boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets, and he called them. ²² Immediately they left the boat and their father, and followed him.

²³ Jesus^c went throughout Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and proclaiming the good news^d of the kingdom and curing

^a Gk he

^b Or is at hand

^c Gk He

^d Gk gospel

in the wilderness (Ex 34.28), and Elijah’s forty-day journey into the Sinai wilderness (1 Kings 19.8). 3: Son of God, the most comprehensive Christological designation for Jesus in Matthew (3.17; 16.16; 17.5; 27.54; 28.19). 4: Deut 8.3. 5: Holy city, Jerusalem; cf. 27.53; pinnacle, possibly the southeast corner of the Temple’s terrace where there was a steep drop to the Kidron Valley below. 6: Ps 91.11–12. 7: Deut 6.16. 8: Mountains figure prominently in Matthew as places of revelation (5.1; 14.23; 15.29; 17.1; 24.3; 28.16). 10: Deut 6.13. All of Jesus’s responses to Satan are citations from Deuteronomy, which epitomized the Torah. 11: The angels feed Jesus as they had once fed Elijah (1 Kings 19.5–8).

4.12–25: The beginning of the Galilean ministry (Mk 1.14–20; Lk 4.14–15; 5.1–11; 6.17–19). 12: Galilee was a region in northern Israel, one of the chief areas of Jesus’s activity. It was separated from Judea (and Jerusalem) by Samaria. 13: Capernaum, a village on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee, is located in the traditional allotment of the Israelite tribe of Naphtali (Josh 19.34). Fishing was an important and lucrative economic activity in the region. 15–16: Fulfillment citation of Isa 9.1–2. The name “Galilee” is derived from the Hebrew phrase “circle of the Gentiles” (Isa 8.23 [MT]). The Gentiles were non-Jews. After the fall of the northern kingdom of Israel to Assyria (722 BCE), much of the area had been repopulated by Gentiles, although by Jesus’s day it was again predominantly Jewish. 17: Some scholars argue that the phrase from that time marks the beginning of the second of three major divisions in the Gospel; cf. 16.21. 18: Sea of Galilee, not a sea but a freshwater lake, also known as Gennesaret (Lk 5.1) and the Lake of Tiberias (Jn 21.1). Simon . . . Peter: Simon was the disciple’s Hebrew every disease and every sickness among the people.²⁴ So his fame spread throughout all Syria, and they brought to him all the sick, those who were afflicted with various diseases and pains, demoniacs, epileptics, and paralytics, and he cured them.²⁵ And great crowds followed him from Galilee, the Decapolis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

5 When Jesus^a saw the crowds, he went up the mountain; and after he sat down, his disciples came to him.² Then he began to speak, and taught them, saying:

³ “Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

⁴ “Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

⁵ “Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth.

⁶ “Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled.

⁷ “Blessed are the merciful, for they will receive mercy.

⁸ “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.

⁹ “Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God.

¹⁰ “Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness’ sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

¹¹ “Blessed are you when people revile you and persecute you and utter all kinds of evil against you falsely^b on my account.¹² Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for in the same way they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

¹³ “You are the salt of the earth; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored? It is no longer good for anything, but is thrown out and trampled under foot.

¹⁴ “You are the light of the world. A city built on a hill cannot be hid.¹⁵ No one after lighting a lamp puts it under the bushel basket, but on the lampstand, and it gives light to all in the house.¹⁶ In the same way, let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.

¹⁷ “Do not think that I have come to abolish the law or the prophets; I have come not to abolish but to fulfill.¹⁸ For truly I tell

^a Gk he

^b Other ancient authorities lack falsely name; Peter his Greek name; cf. 16.18n. Under the influence of Hellenism, Jews often had both. 24: Syria is mentioned in no other Gospel; many scholars think that its capital, Antioch-on-the-Orontes, was the location of Matthew’s church. Demoniacs, those thought to be possessed by demons or evil spirits. 25: The crowds typically represent the Jewish people as distinguished from their leaders. Decapolis: A league of some ten cities with all but Scythopolis (earlier Beth-shan) situated east of the Jordan River. Their populations were largely Gentile, but with substantial Jewish minorities.

5.1–7.29: The first discourse: The Sermon on the Mount. Matthew postpones his account of the Galilean ministry in order to introduce Jesus’s teaching in the Sermon on the Mount, the first and longest of Jesus’s five discourses in Matthew (compare the much briefer “Sermon on the Plain” in Lk 6.20–49). Its prominence within Matthew testifies to its importance for understanding Jesus and the requirements for “entering the kingdom.” Whether the Sermon advocates an idealized or a realizable ethic continues to be debated (5:48; contrast Did. 6.2). 5.1: Mountain, recalling the figure of Moses giving the law to Israel (Ex 19–24). Just as the Law of Moses had five books, the Gospel of Matthew contains five discourses of Jesus. He sat down, the posture normally assumed by Jewish teachers. Disciples, for Jesus’s named disciples in Matthew, see 9.9–13; 10.2. 5.3–12: The Beatitudes (Lk 6.20–23). Luke has only four beatitudes in comparison to Matthew’s nine, and all four have more of a this-worldly focus. 3: Our term “Beatitudes” is derived from the Latin word “beatus,” meaning “blessed” or “favored by God.” Matthew’s beatitudes emphasize that God’s blessings will be bestowed on believers in the new age (Isa 61.2). The poor in spirit, Lk 6.20 has “the poor.” 4: Mourn, perhaps for one’s sins or because of undeserved suffering. 5: Meek, Ps 37.11. 8: Pure in heart, Pss 24.4; 73.1. 12: Persecuted the prophets, Matthew assumes that all true prophets were persecuted (1 Kings 19.10; Neh 9.26), John the Baptist and Jesus among them; righteousness’ sake, 3.15n.

5.13–16: Salt and light (Mk 9.50; Lk 14.34–35). 13: Lost its taste, genuine salt can leach away from impure salt, leaving only a tasteless residue. 16: Father is one of Jesus’s favorite expressions for God in Matthew.

5.17–20: Teaching about the law. The rest of ch 5 deals with issues relating to the Torah. 17: Prophets, the

you, until heaven and earth pass away, not one letter,^a not one stroke of a letter, will pass from the law until all is accomplished.¹⁹ Therefore, whoever breaks^b one of the least of these commandments, and teaches others to do the same, will be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever does them and teaches them will be called great in the kingdom of heaven.²⁰ For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

²¹“You have heard that it was said to those of ancient times, ‘You shall not murder’; and ‘whoever murders shall be liable to judgment.’²² But I say to you that if you are angry with a brother or sister,^c you will be liable to judgment; and if you insult^d a brother or sister,^e you will be liable to the council; and if you say, ‘You fool,’ you will be liable to the hell^f of fire.²³ So when you are offering your gift at the altar, if you remember that your brother or sister^g has something against you,²⁴ leave your gift there before the altar and go; first be reconciled to your brother or sister,^g and then come and offer your gift.²⁵ Come to terms quickly with your accuser while you are on the way to court^h with him, or your accuser may hand you over to the judge, and the judge to the guard, and you will be thrown into prison.²⁶ Truly I tell you, you will never get out until you have paid the last penny.

²⁷“You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall not commit adultery.’²⁸ But I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman with lust has already committed adultery with her in his heart.²⁹ If your right eye causes you to sin, tear it out and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to be thrown into hell.^f³⁰ And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to go into hell.^f

³¹“It was also said, ‘Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.’³² But I say to you that anyone who divorces his wife, except on the ground of unchastity, causes her to commit adultery; and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery.³³“Again, you have heard that it was said to those of ancient times, ‘You shall not swear falsely, but carry out the vows you have made to the Lord.’³⁴ But I say to you, Do not swear at all, either by heaven, for it is the throne of

^a Gk one iota

^b Or annuls

^c Gk a brother; other ancient authorities add without cause

^d Gk say Raca to (an obscure term of abuse)

^e Gk a brother

^f Gk Gehenna

^g Gk your brother

^h Gk lacks to court

second of the three divisions of the Hebrew Bible (Torah, Prophets, Writings). 18: The phrase truly (“amen”) I tell you in Jesus’s mouth frequently signals pronouncements pertaining to the end time. Letter, iota: the smallest Greek letter. Until . . . all: both temporal clauses refer to the end of the present age and the onset of the eschatological age. The verse suggests that the Torah remained in force among Jewish Christians in Matthew’s church.

5.21–48: The antitheses. (Lk 6.27–36; cf. Lev 19.18; m. Avot 1.12). “Antitheses” suggests seemingly opposite propositions. In some of these “antitheses,” however, Jesus’s purpose is not to abrogate the Mosaic Law, but to advocate a profounder obedience to God’s commandments; in others he proposes a different ethic for his followers. The phrase “you have heard that it was said” occurs six times in ch 5, each followed by a reference to one of the commandments in the Torah. 21: Ex 20.13; Deut 5.17. 22: I say to you occurs twelve other times in the Sermon and emphasizes Jesus’s unprecedented authority to determine God’s will—an authority that surpasses even that of Moses (28.18). Council, the Sanhedrin; see 26.59n. Hell, lit., “Gehenna,” the Hinnom Valley to the immediate south of Jerusalem, formerly a place of child sacrifice (Jer 7.31), which may have been used in Jesus’s day as a garbage dump and incinerator. 24: Gift, true worship of God requires full reconciliation with one’s neighbors. 25–26: Imprisonment for debt was a Gentile, not a Jewish, practice. 27: Adultery, cf. Ex. 20.14; Deut 5.18; cf. 5.32; 15.19; 19.9. Jesus not only condemns adultery, but even thoughts that would lead to adultery. 31: Divorce, Deut 24.1–4; cf. Mt 19.7–9. Jesus indicates that the only justification for divorcing one’s wife is sexual infidelity; otherwise the divorce is invalid, and any future marriages are adulterous. 33: Lev 19.12; Num 30.2; Deut 23.21. 34–36: Heaven, earth, and Jerusalem are all circumlocutions for “God;” they, along with one’s head, God,³⁵ or by the earth, for it is his footstool, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King.³⁶ And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make one hair white or black.

³⁷ Let your word be ‘Yes, Yes’ or ‘No, No’; anything more than this comes from the evil one.^a

³⁸ “You have heard that it was said, ‘An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.’

³⁹ But I say to you, Do not resist an evil-doer. But if anyone strikes you on the right cheek, turn the other also; ⁴⁰ and if anyone wants to sue you and take your coat, give your cloak as well; ⁴¹ and if anyone forces you to go one mile, go also the second mile. ⁴² Give to everyone who begs from you, and do not refuse anyone who wants to borrow from you.

⁴³ “You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.’ ⁴⁴ But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, ⁴⁵ so that you may be children of your Father in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the righteous and on the unrighteous. ⁴⁶ For if you love those who love you, what reward do you have? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? ⁴⁷ And if you greet only your brothers and sisters,^b what more are you doing than others? Do not even the Gentiles do the same? ⁴⁸ Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect.

6 “Beware of practicing your piety before others in order to be seen by them; for then you have no reward from your Father in heaven.

² “So whenever you give alms, do not sound a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, so that they may be praised by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. ³ But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, ⁴ so that your alms may be done in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.^c

⁵ “And whenever you pray, do not be like the hypocrites; for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and at the street corners, so that they may be seen by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. ⁶ But whenever you pray, go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.^c

⁷ “When you are praying, do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; for they think that they will be heard because of their many words. ⁸ Do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.

^a Or evil

^b Gk your brothers

^c Other ancient authorities add openly are in God’s keeping and, therefore, not under humans’ dominion. 35: Isa 66.1; Ps 48.2. 38: Jesus qualifies the law of retaliation, the “lex talionis” (“an eye for an eye . . .,” Ex 21.23–24; Lev 24.19–20; Deut 19.21), by advocating the return of good for evil. 40: Cf. Ex 22.26–27; Deut 24.12–13. 41: Second mile; the Romans could conscript individuals for compulsory labor. 43: Love your neighbor quotes Lev 19.18, but hate your enemy is not found in the Jewish scriptures. 44: Those who persecute you, Matthew’s version (cf. Lk 6.27–28) may refer to actual persecution experienced by his church, demonstrating the radical nature of the commandment (cf. 10.17). 46: Tax collectors, though Jewish, were popularly regarded as unclean collaborators with the Romans. 47: Gentiles sometimes have a negative connotation in the Gospel (5.47; 6.7,32; 15.26; 16.17). 48: The word perfect occurs only here and at 19.21 in the Gospel; cf. Jas 1.4; 3.2. This understanding of “perfection” is closely linked with the love commandment (19.19).

6.1–18: Almsgiving, prayer, and fasting. 1: This segment opens with a general principle, followed by three particular applications. True piety or righteousness, which is inconspicuous, is contrasted with false piety, which is motivated by ostentation. 2: Giving alms involved not only the donation of money but also the performance of other merciful and charitable actions. Sounding a trumpet is probably metaphorical (as in “blow your own horn”). Hypocrites originally signified “actors.” Here the word takes on some of that sense; elsewhere in Matthew it is used more pejoratively, particularly of the Pharisees and scribes, in the sense of “frauds,” not the outstanding examples of piety people thought them to be. 5: Performance of the daily Jewish prayers in the morning, at noon, and in the evening (Lk 11.2–4). Stand, standing with the face directed toward Jerusalem was

⁹“Pray then in this way:
Our Father in heaven,
hallowed be your name.
¹⁰Your kingdom come.
Your will be done,
on earth as it is in heaven.
¹¹Give us this day our daily bread.^a ¹²And forgive us our debts,
as we also have forgiven our debtors.
¹³And do not bring us to the time of trial,^b
but rescue us from the evil one.^c ¹⁴For if you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; ¹⁵but if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.
¹⁶“And whenever you fast, do not look dismal, like the hypocrites, for they disfigure their faces so as to show others that they are fasting. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward.¹⁷ But when you fast, put oil on your head and wash your face,¹⁸ so that your fasting may be seen not by others but by your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.^d ¹⁹“Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust^e consume and where thieves break in and steal;²⁰ but store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust^e consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal.²¹ For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.
²²“The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is healthy, your whole body will be full of light;²³ but if your eye is unhealthy, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!
²⁴“No one can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.^f ²⁵“Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink,^g or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing?²⁶ Look at the birds of the air; they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they?²⁷ And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life?^h²⁸ And why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin,²⁹ yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these.³⁰ But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you—you of little faith?³¹ Therefore do not worry, saying, ‘What will we eat?’ or ‘What will we drink?’ or ‘What will we wear?’ ³² For it is the Gentiles who strive for all these things; and indeed your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things.³³ But strive first for the kingdom of Godⁱ and his^j

^a Or our bread for tomorrow

^b Or us into temptation

^c Or from evil. Other ancient authorities add, in some form, For the kingdom and the power and the glory are yours forever. Amen.

^d Other ancient authorities add openly

^e Gk eating

^f Gk mammon

^g Other ancient authorities lack or what you will drink

^h Or add one cubit to your height

ⁱ Other ancient authorities lack of God

^j Or its

the typical Jewish posture for prayer (1 Kings 8.35–48; Mk 11.25; Lk 18.13). 9: Pray, The Lord’s Prayer (vv. 9–13) is the symbolic heart of the Sermon on the Mount. Matthew’s version of the prayer is considerably longer than Luke’s (11.2–4), and the final doxology (see textual note d) appears to have been added later under the influence of 1 Chr 29.1–13. 12: Debts, cf. Lk 11.4, which has “sins”; sins are the debts owed to God. 17: Oil on your head, anointing and washing oneself were a feature of daily hygiene and not necessarily a sign of festivity.

6.19–34: Life and livelihood (Lk 12.22–34; 11.34–36). This section illustrates how to live in the world, without being subject to it. 22–23: A sincere eye is healthy and has no hidden agenda, while an unhealthy or insincere eye was thought to occlude the entry of light. Light and virtue were often correlated; 1 Jn 2.8–11. 26–30: These verses demonstrate a “less to greater” (“a fortiori”) argument, where one establishes a greater premise from a lesser one (cf. 12.9–11). 29: Solomon, 1 Kings 10; 2 Chr 1. 30: Thrown into the oven, grass was used to fire baking ovens. 32: See 5.47n.

righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well.

³⁴“So do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will bring worries of its own. Today’s trouble is enough for today.

7 “Do not judge, so that you may not be judged. ²For with the judgment you make you will be judged, and the measure you give will be the measure you get. ³Why do you see the speck in your neighbor’s^a eye, but do not notice the log in your own eye? ⁴Or how can you say to your neighbor,^b ‘Let me take the speck out of your eye,’ while the log is in your own eye? ⁵You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your neighbor’s^a eye.

⁶“Do not give what is holy to dogs; and do not throw your pearls before swine, or they will trample them under foot and turn and maul you.

⁷“Ask, and it will be given you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened for you. ⁸For everyone who asks receives, and everyone who searches finds, and for everyone who knocks, the door will be opened. ⁹Is there anyone among you who, if your child asks for bread, will give a stone? ¹⁰Or if the child asks for a fish, will give a snake? ¹¹If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

¹²“In everything do to others as you would have them do to you; for this is the law and the prophets.

¹³“Enter through the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the road is easy^c that leads to destruction, and there are many who take

it. ¹⁴For the gate is narrow and the road is hard that leads to life, and there are few who find it.

¹⁵“Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep’s clothing but inwardly are ravenous wolves. ¹⁶You will know them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thorns, or figs from thistles? ¹⁷In the same way, every good tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit. ¹⁸A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. ¹⁹Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. ²⁰Thus you will know them by their fruits.

²¹“Not everyone who says to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father in heaven. ²²On that day many will say to me, ‘Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many deeds of power in your name?’ ²³Then I will declare to them, ‘I never knew you; go away from me, you evildoers.’

²⁴“Everyone then who hears these words of mine and acts on them will be like a wise man who built his house on rock. ²⁵The rain fell, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on rock. ²⁶And everyone who hears these words of mine and does not act on them will be like a foolish man who built his house on sand. ²⁷The rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell—and great was its fall!”

^a Gk brother's

^b Gk brother

^c Other ancient authorities read for the road is wide and easy

7:1–6: Judging others (Lk 6.37–38,41–42). 1: Be judged, by God. 6: Holy, meat from the sacrifice or possibly the deeper truths of the Gospel; dogs were considered scavengers, and swine were unclean animals.

7:7–23: The way of righteousness (Lk 11.9–13; 6.43–44; 13.24–27). The following sayings from Q embody Matthew’s ethic of righteousness, which is central to the Gospel. 12: The “Golden Rule” epitomizes Jesus’s ethical teaching. A similar principle is attributed to the Pharisee Hillel (b. Shabb. 31a; cf. Tob 4.15). 13: Narrow gate, a metaphor for entering the kingdom of God. 15: False prophets, possibly itinerant Christian prophets; see 7.22; 23.34; Did. 11.7–12. 16: Fruits, repentance and righteous behavior. 22: That day, the day of judgment. In your name, “on behalf of” or “with the authority of.” 23: Evildoers, see Ps 6.8.

7:24–27: The two foundations (Lk 6.47–49). 24: These words of mine, obedience to Jesus’s words and, by implication, to the will of God (7.21), is the only way to achieve righteousness and enter the kingdom. In the Sermon, Jesus has provided his hearers with a solid foundation of rock (16.18). 27: All five of Matthew’s discourses

²⁸ Now when Jesus had finished saying these things, the crowds were astounded at his teaching, ²⁹ for he taught them as one having authority, and not as their scribes.

8 When Jesus^a had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him; ² and there was a leper^b who came to him and knelt before him, saying, “Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean.” ³ He stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, “I do choose. Be made clean!” Immediately his leprosy^b was cleansed. ⁴ Then Jesus said to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”

⁵ When he entered Capernaum, a centurion came to him, appealing to him ⁶ and saying, “Lord, my servant is lying at home paralyzed, in terrible distress.” ⁷ And he said to him, “I will come and cure him.” ⁸ The centurion answered, “Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only speak the word, and my servant will be healed. ⁹ For I also am a man under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, ‘Go,’ and he goes, and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes, and to my slave, ‘Do this,’ and the slave does it.” ¹⁰ When Jesus heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one^c in Israel have I found such faith. ¹¹ I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, ¹² while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” ¹³ And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

¹⁴ When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; ¹⁵ he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him. ¹⁶ That evening they brought to him many who were possessed with demons; and he cast out the spirits with a word, and cured all who were sick. ¹⁷ This was to fulfill what had

^a Gk he

^b The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

^c Other ancient authorities read Truly I tell you, not even close with a reference to judgment. 7.28–29: Conclusion. 28: The crowds, not mentioned at the beginning of the discourse, appear as the audience beyond the inner circle of disciples. Their presence suggests that Jesus’s words are directed not only to the disciples, but also to all followers of Jesus. 29: Scribes, see 2.4n.

8.1–9.38: The deeds of the Messiah. Matthew follows his epitome of Jesus’s teaching with a collection of Jesus’s miracles: the “Messiah of word” is succeeded by the “Messiah of deed.” While Matthew conforms to the order of Mark in a general way, he has made considerable use of Q and his own traditions (two of which are doublets; see 9.27–31 and 9.32–34). To create the “Messiah of deed” sequence, Matthew has introduced five miracle stories so that chs 8–9 form a composite of ten miracle accounts interleaved with two discipleship narratives (8.18–22; 9.9–17). The first three miracle stories focus on the healing of marginal figures in Jewish society – a person with leprosy, a Gentile, and a woman.

8.1–4: The cleansing of a man with leprosy (Mk 1.40–45; Lk 5.12–16). Matthew emphasizes Jesus’s divine calm by eliminating Mark’s reference to Jesus’s emotions (Mk 1.41,43). 2: Make me clean, the skin condition of persons with leprosy rendered them ritually unclean (Lev ch 13; Num 5.1–4). 3: Leprosy was a serious skin disease, including what we describe as leprosy today (Hansen’s disease), as well as many other disorders such as psoriasis, lupus, ringworm, and favus. 4: The gift that Moses commanded, offerings for the cleansing of a person with leprosy (Lev. ch 14). This man heeds Jesus’s command to tell no one (contrast Mk 1.40–5).

8.5–17: Many healings (Lk 7.1–10; Jn 4.43–54; Mk 1.29–34; Lk 4.38–41). 5: Centurion, a Roman officer commanding about a hundred men. 6: Servant, or “child.” 8: I am not worthy, contact with Gentiles could make Jews ritually unclean (Acts 10.28; m. Avoda Zara) 10: Faith, in Matthew the two figures commended by Jesus for their faith are Gentiles (cf. 15.28). 11: Eat . . . in the kingdom, the messianic banquet (22.1–10; Isa 2.2–4; 25.6). 12: 1 En 10.4–6; 62.11. Gnashing of teeth, an indication of sharp pain or vexation. This phrase, which occurs six times in Matthew, expresses the dire consequences of exclusion from the kingdom (13.42,50; 22.13; 24.51; 25.30; cf. Lk 12.47; 13.28). 17: A fulfillment citation of Isa 53.4. Matthew’s form of the citation emphasizes physical rather than spiritual healing.

been spoken through the prophet Isaiah, “He took our infirmities and bore our diseases.”

¹⁸ Now when Jesus saw great crowds around him, he gave orders to go over to the other side. ¹⁹ A scribe then approached and said, “Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go.” ²⁰ And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head.”

²¹ Another of his disciples said to him, “Lord, first let me go and bury my father.” ²² But Jesus said to him, “Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead.”

²³ And when he got into the boat, his disciples followed him. ²⁴ A windstorm arose on the sea, so great that the boat was being swamped by the waves; but he was asleep. ²⁵ And they went and woke him up, saying, “Lord, save us! We are perishing!” ²⁶ And he said to them, “Why are you afraid, you of little faith?” Then he got up and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a dead calm. ²⁷ They were amazed, saying, “What sort of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?”

²⁸ When he came to the other side, to the country of the Gadarenes,^a two demoniacs coming out of the tombs met him. They were so fierce that no one could pass that way. ²⁹ Suddenly they shouted, “What have you to do with us, Son of God? Have you come here to torment us before the time?” ³⁰ Now a large herd of swine was feeding at some distance from them. ³¹ The demons begged him, “If you cast us out, send us into the herd of swine.” ³² And he said to them, “Go!” So they came out and entered the swine; and suddenly, the whole herd rushed down the steep bank into the sea and perished in the water. ³³ The swineherds ran off, and on going into the town, they told the whole story about what had happened to the demoniacs. ³⁴ Then the whole town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their neighborhood. ¹ And after getting into a boat he crossed the sea and came to his own town.

² And just then some people were carrying a paralyzed man lying on a bed. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, “Take heart, son; your sins are forgiven.”

³ Then some of the scribes said to themselves, “This man is blaspheming.” ⁴ But Jesus, perceiving their thoughts, said, “Why do you think evil in your hearts? ⁵ For which is easier, to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Stand up and walk’? ⁶ But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he then said to the paralytic—“Stand up, take your bed and go to your home.” ⁷ And he stood up and went to his home. ⁸ When the crowds saw it, they were filled with awe, and they glorified God, who had given such authority to human beings.

⁹ As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man called Matthew sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, “Follow me.” And he got up and followed him.

^a Other ancient authorities read Gergesenes; others, Gerasenes

8.18–22: Would-be followers of Jesus (Lk 9.57–62). 18: Other side, the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. 20: Son of Man, an enigmatic self-designation used by Jesus that has at least three senses in Matthew: Jesus as a human being; Jesus as a figure who must suffer and die; Jesus as divine judge at the end of days (cf. Dan 7.13–14). The first sense is in view here. 21: Bury my father, although the burial of kinsmen was among the most pressing of sacred duties for Jews (Tob 1.18–19; b. Ber. 18a), it is entirely eclipsed by the call to follow Jesus.

8.23–34: The calming of a storm and the healing of two persons possessed by demons (Mk 4.35–5.20; Lk 8.22–39). 26: This nature miracle is Jesus’s only nonhealing miracle in the first half of the Gospel. 27: Jesus’s authority over the Sea parallels that of God; Pss 65.7; 89.9. 28: Gadarenes, Matthew situates the healing in Gadara, instead of Gerasa (Mk 5.1), which was located ca. 35 mi (56 km) from the sea. Gadara’s territory was far closer to the Sea of Galilee. 29: Before the time, the day of judgment. 30: The presence of nonkosher swine suggests a Gentile region (7.6n.).

9.1–17: The ministry in Capernaum (Mk 2.1–22; Lk 5.17–39). 1: His own town, Capernaum. 2: Sins are forgiven; on the correlation of healing and forgiveness, see b. Ned. 41a; b. Meg. 17b.3: The scribes claim that Jesus is blaspheming and dishonoring God’s name because he claims that he, like God, can forgive sins. 8: To human beings, Jesus’s own authority to forgive has been bequeathed to Matthew’s church. 9: The change of Levi’s name (Mk

¹⁰ And as he sat at dinner^a in the house, many tax collectors and sinners came and were sitting^b with him and his disciples.

¹¹ When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, “Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?” ¹² But when he heard this, he said, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. ¹³ Go and learn what this means, ‘I desire mercy, not sacrifice.’ For I have come to call not the righteous but sinners.”

¹⁴ Then the disciples of John came to him, saying, “Why do we and the Pharisees fast often,^c but your disciples do not fast?” ¹⁵ And Jesus said to them, “The wedding guests cannot mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them, can they? The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast. ¹⁶ No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak, for the patch pulls away from the cloak, and a worse tear is made. ¹⁷ Neither is new wine put into old wineskins; otherwise, the skins burst, and the wine is spilled, and the skins are destroyed; but new wine is put into fresh wineskins, and so both are preserved.”

¹⁸ While he was saying these things to them, suddenly a leader of the synagogue^d came in and knelt before him, saying, “My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live.” ¹⁹ And Jesus got up and followed him, with his disciples. ²⁰ Then suddenly a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years came up behind him and touched the fringe of his cloak, ²¹ for she said to herself, “If I only touch his cloak, I will be made well.” ²² Jesus turned, and seeing her he said, “Take heart, daughter; your faith has made you well.” And instantly the woman was made well. ²³ When Jesus came to the leader’s house and saw the flute players and the crowd making a commotion, ²⁴ he said, “Go away; for the girl is not dead but sleeping.” And they laughed at him. ²⁵ But when the crowd had been put outside, he went in and took her by the hand, and the girl got up. ²⁶ And the report of this spread throughout that district.

²⁷ As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed him, crying loudly, “Have mercy on us, Son of David!” ²⁸ When he entered the house, the blind men came to him; and Jesus said to them, “Do you believe that I am able to do this?” They said to him, “Yes, Lord.” ²⁹ Then he touched their eyes and said, “According to your faith let it be done to you.” ³⁰ And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus sternly ordered them, “See that no one knows of this.” ³¹ But they went away and spread the news about him throughout that district.

³² After they had gone away, a demoniac who was mute was brought to him. ³³ And when the demon had been cast out, the one who had been mute spoke; and the crowds were amazed and said, “Never has anything like this been seen in Israel.” ³⁴ But the Pharisees said, “By the ruler of the demons he casts out the demons.”^e

³⁵ Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and

^a Gk reclined

^b Gk were reclining

^c Other ancient authorities lack often

^d Gk lacks of the synagogue

^e Other ancient authorities lack this verse

2.14) has led some scholars to consider “Matthew” to be the evangelist’s own signature; see also 5.46n. 13: Jesus cites Hos 6.6 here and again at 12.7. 15: Bridegroom, Jesus’s association with the coming of the kingdom makes him a festal figure like a bridegroom (cf. 22.1–14; 25.1–13).

9.18–34: Four healings (Mk 5.21–43; Lk 8.40–56). 21: Touch his cloak, if the hemorrhage was from the uterus, the woman was ritually impure and would have made Jesus impure by touching him. 23: Flute players were a feature of funeral rites. 27–31: This healing narrative is a doublet of 20.29–34; see also 1 Kings 17.17–24; 2 Kings 4.32–37. The evangelist frequently doubles the number of figures in his sources (8.28–34; 9.27–31), possibly in keeping with the Jewish legal tradition of furnishing double witnesses to testify to the truth of something (Deut 19.15). 27: The sick and marginalized often address Jesus as Son of David (1.1) in order to be healed. In the other Gospels the title does not have such therapeutic associations. 32–34: A doublet of 12.22–24. 34: Ruler of the demons: cf. 12.24–32.

9.35–38: The compassion of Jesus. 35: Their synagogues, Synagogue buildings were well established as places of worship in the first century CE (Lk 4.16). By Matthew’s day, however, Jewish Christians may have no proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and curing every disease and every sickness. ³⁶ When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. ³⁷ Then he said to his disciples, “The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; ³⁸ therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest.”

10 Then Jesus^a summoned his twelve disciples and gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to cure every disease and every sickness. ² These are the names of the twelve apostles: first, Simon, also known as Peter, and his brother Andrew; James son of Zebedee, and his brother John; ³ Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus;^b ⁴ Simon the Cananaean, and Judas Iscariot, the one who betrayed him.

⁵ These twelve Jesus sent out with the following instructions: “Go nowhere among the Gentiles, and enter no town of the Samaritans, ⁶ but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. ⁷ As you go, proclaim the good news, “The kingdom of heaven has come near.”^c ⁸ Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers,^d cast out demons. You received without payment; give without payment. ⁹ Take no gold, or silver, or copper in your belts, ¹⁰ no bag for your journey, or two tunics, or sandals, or a staff; for laborers deserve their food. ¹¹ Whatever town or village you enter, find out who in it is worthy, and stay there until you leave. ¹² As you enter the house, greet it. ¹³ If the house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you. ¹⁴ If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, shake off the dust from your feet as you leave that house or town. ¹⁵ Truly I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town.

¹⁶ “See, I am sending you out like sheep into the midst of wolves; so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves. ¹⁷ Beware of them, for they will hand you over to councils and flog you in their synagogues; ¹⁸ and you will be dragged before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them and the Gentiles. ¹⁹ When they hand you over, do not worry about how you are to speak or what you are to say; for what you are to say will be given to you at that time; ²⁰ for it is not you who speak, but the Spirit of your Father

^a Gk he

^b Other ancient authorities read Lebbaeus, or Lebbaeus called Thaddaeus

^c Or is at hand

^d The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases longer participated in Jewish synagogues, but in assemblies of their own (18.17). 36: Jesus’s compassion for the leaderless people of Israel is a defining feature of Matthew’s Jesus; cf. Num 27.17; Ezek 34.5. 37: Normally a symbol for the final judgment, the harvest appears here as a metaphor for Jesus’s mission and forms a fitting introduction to the mission discourse.

10.1–11.1: The second (mission) discourse. This discourse appears to reflect both the time of Jesus and that of the early church. While Jesus delimits the disciples’ mission to the people of Israel (10.5–6), the discourse goes on to speak of a later phase where the disciples were dragged before governors and provided testimony to the Gentiles (10.18; cf. 28.19).

10.1–15: The commissioning of the twelve (Mk 3.13–19; Lk 6.12–16; Mk 6.7–13; Lk 9.1–6). The miraculous acts performed by Jesus now become a feature of the disciples’ own ministry. 2: Twelve apostles, this is the first time Matthew explicitly names the twelve; their number reflects the twelve tribes of Israel (19.28). 3: Matthew has added tax collector. 4: Iscariot may mean “man from Kerioth,” a town in southern Judea. 5: Gentiles, only Matthew has Jesus delimit his own and his disciples’ ministry to Israel. Samaritans were the inhabitants of Samaria, a region that had been part of the northern kingdom of Israel until its defeat by the Assyrians in 722 BCE. Those Jews who were not deported were thought to have intermarried with Gentiles, and their descendants, the Samaritans, were reviled by Jews as being half-breeds (see Jn 4.9). 6: Lost sheep, see 9.36n. 15: Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen 18.16–19.39.

10.16–25: Coming persecutions (Mk 13.9–13; Lk 21.12–17). 17: Councils, local Jewish courts. Flog, cf. 2 Cor 11.24–5. Their synagogues, see 9.35n. 18: Governors, Roman officials, including prefects and procurators. Gentiles, speaking through you.²¹ Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death;²² and you will be hated by all because of my name. But the one who endures to the end will be saved.²³ When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next; for truly I tell you, you will not have gone through all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

²⁴ “A disciple is not above the teacher, nor a slave above the master;²⁵ it is enough for the disciple to be like the teacher, and the slave like the master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebul, how much more will they malign those of his household!

²⁶ “So have no fear of them; for nothing is covered up that will not be uncovered, and nothing secret that will not become known.

²⁷ What I say to you in the dark, tell in the light; and what you hear whispered, proclaim from the housetops.²⁸ Do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul; rather fear him who can destroy both soul and body in hell.^a ²⁹ Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from your Father.³⁰ And even the hairs of your head are all counted.³¹ So do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

³² “Everyone therefore who acknowledges me before others, I also will acknowledge before my Father in heaven;³³ but whoever denies me before others, I also will deny before my Father in heaven.

³⁴ “Do not think that I have come to bring peace to the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a sword.

³⁵ For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother,
and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law;

³⁶ and one’s foes will be members of one’s own household.

³⁷ Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me;³⁸ and whoever does not take up the cross and follow me is not worthy of me.³⁹ Those who find their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it.

⁴⁰ “Whoever welcomes you welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me.⁴¹ Whoever welcomes a prophet in the name of a prophet will receive a prophet’s reward; and whoever welcomes a righteous person in the name of a righteous person will receive the reward of the righteous;⁴² and whoever gives even a cup of cold water to one of these little ones in the name of a disciple—truly I tell you, none of these will lose their reward.”

11 Now when Jesus had finished instructing his twelve disciples, he went on from there to teach and proclaim his message in their cities.

² When John heard in prison what the Messiah^b was doing, he sent word by his^c disciples³ and said to him, “Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?”

^a Gk Gehenna

^b Or the Christ

^c Other ancient authorities read two of his

an anticipation of the postresurrection mission (28.19). 23: Son of Man, most scholars interpret this difficult verse as a reference to Jesus’s return (the Second Coming or parousia). 25: They, the Pharisees (9.34; 12.24). Beelzebul, a ruler of demons often identified with Satan; originally the name for the Canaanite deity Baal-zebul, “Baal (or “Lord”) the Prince” (2 Kings 1.2–6).

10.26–11.1: The consequences of mission (Lk 12.2–9; 12.51–53; 14.26–27; Mk 9.41). 26: Them, the scribes and Pharisees. 29: Sparrows, the least expensive of edible birds. 34–39: The affliction and pain that must come prior to the messianic age of peace. 35–36: See Mic 7.6 38: Cross, a Roman punishment reserved for slaves and rebels. The condemned were forced to carry their cross to the place of execution (27.32). 41: In the name of a prophet, i.e., because he is a prophet. 42: Little ones, those disciples occupying a humble or lowly position (18.6). 11.1: In contrast to Mk 3.13

11.2–19: The messengers from John the Baptist (Lk 7.18–35). 2: Prison, Herod’s stronghold Machaerus, 5 mi (8 km) east of the Dead Sea (see 14.1–12). 3: The one who is to come, the Messiah. 5: The blind . . . to them, the

⁴ Jesus answered them, “Go and tell John what you hear and see: ⁵ the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers^a are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor have good news brought to them. ⁶ And blessed is anyone who takes no offense at me.”

⁷ As they went away, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? ⁸ What then did you go out to see? Someone^b dressed in soft robes? Look, those who wear soft robes are in royal palaces. ⁹ What then did you go out to see? A prophet?^c Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. ¹⁰ This is the one about whom it is written,

‘See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you, who will prepare your way before you.’

¹¹ Truly I tell you, among those born of women no one has arisen greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. ¹² From the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven has suffered violence,^d and the violent take it by force. ¹³ For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John came; ¹⁴ and if you are willing to accept it, he is Elijah who is to come. ¹⁵ Let anyone with ears^e listen!

¹⁶ “But to what will I compare this generation? It is like children sitting in the marketplaces and calling to one another,

¹⁷ ‘We played the flute for you, and you did not dance;
we wailed, and you did not mourn.’

¹⁸ For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, ‘He has a demon’; ¹⁹ the Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, ‘Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!’ Yet wisdom is vindicated by her deeds.”^f ²⁰ Then he began to reproach the cities in which most of his deeds of power had been done, because they did not repent. ²¹ “Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.

²² But I tell you, on the day of judgment it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. ²³ And you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to heaven?

No, you will be brought down to Hades.

For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. ²⁴ But I tell you that on the day of judgment it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom than for you.”

^a The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

^b Or Why then did you go out? To see someone

^c Other ancient authorities read Why then did you go out? To see a prophet?

^d Or has been coming violently

^e Other ancient authorities add to hear

^f Other ancient authorities read children

deeds predicted of the Messiah (Isa 35.4–6; 61.1). 5: Lepers: see 8.3n. 10: Mal 3.1. 11: The least: The least are greater through having witnessed the kingdom’s arrival in Jesus and through having been given the opportunity to act on that knowledge (5.19; 18.4). 12: As had happened with many true prophets, violence would soon be visited on John and Jesus. 14: John is the Elijah to come before the day of the Lord: he ushers in the kingdom (Mal 4.5; cf. Mt 17.12–13). 15: 13.9. 16: This generation, the entire generation of Israel contemporaneous with Jesus. 19: Glutton: Deut 21.20. Son of Man, see 8.20n. Jesus, like John, embodies Wisdom, and his actions confirm this (11.4–5).

11.20–24: Woes to unrepentant cities (Lk 10.13–15). 21: A woe oracle against Galilean towns for failing to respond to Jesus. Chorazin has been identified with Karazeh, a site near Capernaum. After Jerusalem and Capernaum, Bethsaida is the place most commonly associated with Jesus’s ministry in the Gospels (Mk 8.22–6). Its location is still disputed. Sackcloth, a rough fabric worn as a symbol of mourning and repentance; cf. Jon 3:5–8. 21–23: Tyre and Sidon, on the Mediterranean coast north of Israel, were often linked in prophetic oracles (Isa 23; Jer 25.22; 27.3–7; 47.4; Ezek 28.11–23; Joel 3.4–8): Hades is the Greek term for both the god of the dead and his realm, the latter roughly equivalent to Heb Sheol, the shadowy domain of all the dead. Here it may also suggest Gehenna; 5.22n. Sodom was a stock example of an evil and unrepentant city (see 10.15n).

²⁵ At that time Jesus said, “I thank^a you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; ²⁶ yes, Father, for such was your gracious will.^b ²⁷ All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

²⁸ “Come to me, all you that are weary and are carrying heavy burdens, and I will give you rest. ²⁹ Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me; for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. ³⁰ For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.”

12 At that time Jesus went through the grainfields on the sabbath; his disciples were hungry, and they began to pluck heads of grain and to eat. ² When the Pharisees saw it, they said to him, “Look, your disciples are doing what is not lawful to do on the sabbath.” ³ He said to them, “Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? ⁴ He entered the house of God and ate the bread of the Presence, which it was not lawful for him or his companions to eat, but only for the priests. ⁵ Or have you not read in the law that on the sabbath the priests in the temple break the sabbath and yet are guiltless? ⁶ I tell you, something greater than the temple is here. ⁷ But if you had known what this means, ‘I desire mercy and not sacrifice,’ you would not have condemned the guiltless. ⁸ For the Son of Man is lord of the sabbath.”

⁹ He left that place and entered their synagogue; ¹⁰ a man was there with a withered hand, and they asked him, “Is it lawful to cure on the sabbath?” so that they might accuse him. ¹¹ He said to them, “Suppose one of you has only one sheep and it falls into a pit on the sabbath; will you not lay hold of it and lift it out? ¹² How much more valuable is a human being than a sheep! So it is lawful to do good on the sabbath.” ¹³ Then he said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and it was restored, as sound as the other.

¹⁴ But the Pharisees went out and conspired against him, how to destroy him.

¹⁵ When Jesus became aware of this, he departed. Many crowds^c followed him, and he cured all of them, ¹⁶ and he ordered them not to make him known. ¹⁷ This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah:

¹⁸ “Here is my servant, whom I have chosen, my beloved, with whom my soul is well pleased.

I will put my Spirit upon him,
and he will proclaim justice to the Gentiles.

¹⁹ He will not wrangle or cry aloud,
nor will anyone hear his voice in the streets.

²⁰ He will not break a bruised reed or quench a smoldering wick until he brings justice to victory.

²¹ And in his name the Gentiles will hope.”

^a Or praise

^b Or for so it was well-pleasing in your sight

^c Other ancient authorities lack crowds

11.25–30: Come to me and rest (Lk 11.21–22). 28: Heavy burdens, 23.4. Rest, a defining feature of the new age (1 En 63.6). 29: Yoke, either Jesus’s way of life or his teaching of the Torah’s requirements. Jesus may be addressing his disciples here, but it is more likely the crowds in general (v. 7).

12.1–8: Plucking grain on the sabbath (Mk 2.23–28; Lk 6.1–5). 1: Grainfields, wheat or barley. Sabbath, Ex 20.8–11; 34.21. Harvesting grain was considered to be “work.” 3: David, 1 Sam 21.1–6. 4: Priests were permitted to eat the bread of the Presence once it had been replaced with freshly consecrated loaves (Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9). 7: A second citation (see 9.13) of Hos 6.6. For God, acts of mercy outweigh ritual observances. 8: Jesus’s authority as Lord of the sabbath exceeds even that of divinely established institutions.

12.9–21: The healing Messiah (Mk 3.1–6; Lk 6.6–11). 10: Healing would be permitted if the afflicted person was unlikely to survive the sabbath. See also 6.26–30n. 11: One sheep, most authorities permitted the rescue of animals on the sabbath (cf. m. Shabb. 18.3; but for a ruling against doing so, see CD 11.13–14). 15–21: Isa 42.1–4, the longest fulfillment citation in Matthew. Here the servanthood of Jesus is strongly emphasized, as well as the involvement of the Gentiles.

²² Then they brought to him a demoniac who was blind and mute; and he cured him, so that the one who had been mute could speak and see. ²³ All the crowds were amazed and said, “Can this be the Son of David?” ²⁴ But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, “It is only by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, that this fellow casts out the demons.” ²⁵ He knew what they were thinking and said to them, “Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste, and no city or house divided against itself will stand. ²⁶ If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then will his kingdom stand? ²⁷ If I cast out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your own exorcists^a cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. ²⁸ But if it is by the Spirit of God that I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. ²⁹ Or how can one enter a strong man’s house and plunder his property, without first tying up the strong man? Then indeed the house can be plundered. ³⁰ Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters. ³¹ Therefore I tell you, people will be forgiven for every sin and blasphemy, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. ³² Whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.

³³ “Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit bad; for the tree is known by its fruit. ³⁴ You brood of vipers! How can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks.

³⁵ The good person brings good things out of a good treasure, and the evil person brings evil things out of an evil treasure. ³⁶ I tell you, on the day of judgment you will have to give an account for every careless word you utter; ³⁷ for by your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned.”

³⁸ Then some of the scribes and Pharisees said to him, “Teacher, we wish to see a sign from you.” ³⁹ But he answered them, “An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. ⁴⁰ For just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so for three days and three nights the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth. ⁴¹ The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here! ⁴² The queen of the South will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here!

⁴³ “When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it wanders through waterless regions looking for a resting place, but it finds none. ⁴⁴ Then it says, ‘I will return to my house from which I came.’ When it comes, it finds it empty, swept, and put in order.

⁴⁵ Then it goes and brings along seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and live there; and the last state of that person is worse than the first. So will it be also with this evil generation.”

^a Gk sons

12.22–37: Jesus and Beelzebul (Mk 3.20–30; Lk 11.14–23; 12.10; 6.43–45). 22–24: A doublet of 9.32–34. 23: The title Son of David is synonymous with the Messiah of Israel (1.1; 9.27n.; Ezek 34; Pss. Sol. 17). The crowds merely broach the question of Jesus’s identity, but their question is framed in such a way as to expect a negative answer: “This isn’t the Son of David, is it?” 24: Beelzebul, 10.25n. 31: Blasphemy, impious denigration. 33: 7.17. 34: 3.7. 37: Jas 3.1–12.

12.38–45: The demand for a sign (Mk 8.11–12; Lk 11.29–32; 11.24–26). 38: See 16.1n. 39: Adulterous, unfaithful to God. Sign of the prophet Jonah, Jesus’s resurrection after three days and nights. 40: See Jon 1.17. 41: Nineveh, capital of the Assyrian empire, proverbial for its size and power, and the subject of numerous prophetic oracles (Nah; Zeph 2.13; Tob 14). Repented, Jon 3.5–9. 42: Queen of the South, the queen of Sheba (1 Kings 10.1–13; 2 Chr 9.1–12). 43: Waterless regions, demons were thought to reside in deserts (Mt 4.1; Tob 8.3). 45: Seven often symbolizes “completeness,” here suggesting complete possession. This evil generation, 11.16n.

⁴⁶ While he was still speaking to the crowds, his mother and his brothers were standing outside, wanting to speak to him. ⁴⁷ Someone told him, “Look, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to speak to you.”^a ⁴⁸ But to the one who had told him this, Jesus^b replied, “Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?” ⁴⁹ And pointing to his disciples, he said, “Here are my mother and my brothers! ⁵⁰ For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother.”

13 That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat beside the sea. ² Such great crowds gathered around him that he got into a boat and sat there, while the whole crowd stood on the beach. ³ And he told them many things in parables, saying: “Listen! A sower went out to sow. ⁴ And as he sowed, some seeds fell on the path, and the birds came and ate them up. ⁵ Other seeds fell on rocky ground, where they did not have much soil, and they sprang up quickly, since they had no depth of soil. ⁶ But when the sun rose, they were scorched; and since they had no root, they withered away. ⁷ Other seeds fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked them. ⁸ Other seeds fell on good soil and brought forth grain, some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. ⁹ Let anyone with ears^c listen!”

¹⁰ Then the disciples came and asked him, “Why do you speak to them in parables?”

¹¹ He answered, “To you it has been given to know the secrets^d of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given. ¹² For to those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. ¹³ The reason I speak to them in parables is that ‘seeing they do not perceive, and hearing they do not listen, nor do they understand.’ ¹⁴ With them indeed is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah that says:

‘You will indeed listen, but never understand, and you will indeed look, but never perceive.

¹⁵ For this people’s heart has grown dull, and their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
so that they might not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them.’

¹⁶ But blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear. ¹⁷ Truly I tell you, many prophets and righteous people longed to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it.

¹⁸ “Hear then the parable of the sower.

¹⁹ When anyone hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what is sown in the heart; this is what was sown on the path.

²⁰ As for what was sown on rocky ground, this

^a Other ancient authorities lack verse 47

^b Gk he

^c Other ancient authorities add to hear

^d Or mysteries

12.46–50: The mother and brothers of Jesus (Mk 3.31–35; Lk 8.19–21). Obedience to God the Father is not only the most fundamental of familial obligations (8.21n.); it is also the ultimate basis of kinship.

13.1–53: The third discourse (the parable discourse). The word “parable” is derived from Gk “parabole,” “a placing beside,” where a literary figure or story illumines something “placed beside” it—here, the nature of the kingdom of heaven. In ch 13, only the parable of the sower is not introduced as a “kingdom” parable (but see v. 19). Four of the parables in this chapter and one of the interpretations (vv. 36–43) are unique to Matthew. The theme of growth in the first four parables emphasizes the inexorable expansion of the kingdom.

13.1–23: The parable of the sower and its interpretation (Mk 4.1–20; Lk 8.4–15). 1: Sea, of Galilee. Sat, see 5.1n. 2: Crowds, see 4.25n. 8: These yields are exceptional, but not impossible. 11: Secrets, the mysteries of the end of days (Dan 2.28). 13: Where Mk 4.12 suggests that the purpose of Jesus’s parabolic speech is to promote incomprehension, Matthew indicates that Jesus speaks in parables as a consequence of incomprehension by Jesus’s audience. 14–15: Isa 6.9–10; Acts 28.26–27. 16: The disciples are blessed because, unlike “this people” (v. 15), they comprehend Jesus and his message. 18–23: In the Gospels only a few of Jesus’s parables are provided with interpretations. 19: Does not understand it, a characteristic Matthean addition.

is the one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy;²¹ yet such a person has no root, but endures only for a while, and when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, that person immediately falls away.²² As for what was sown among thorns, this is the one who hears the word, but the cares of the world and the lure of wealth choke the word, and it yields nothing.²³ But as for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it, who indeed bears fruit and yields, in one case a hundredfold, in another sixty, and in another thirty.”

²⁴ He put before them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to someone who sowed good seed in his field; ²⁵ but while everybody was asleep, an enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and then went away. ²⁶ So when the plants came up and bore grain, then the weeds appeared as well. ²⁷ And the slaves of the householder came and said to him, ‘Master, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where, then, did these weeds come from?’ ²⁸ He answered, ‘An enemy has done this.’ The slaves said to him, ‘Then do you want us to go and gather them?’ ²⁹ But he replied, ‘No; for in gathering the weeds you would uproot the wheat along with them. ³⁰ Let both of them grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will tell the reapers, Collect the weeds first and bind them in bundles to be burned, but gather the wheat into my barn.’”

³¹ He put before them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field; ³² it is the smallest of all the seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and make nests in its branches.”

³³ He told them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with^b three measures of flour until all of it was leavened.”

³⁴ Jesus told the crowds all these things in parables; without a parable he told them nothing. ³⁵ This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet:^c

“I will open my mouth to speak in parables;

I will proclaim what has been hidden from the foundation of the world.”^d ³⁶ Then he left the crowds and went into the house. And his disciples approached him, saying, “Explain to us the parable of the weeds of the field.” ³⁷ He answered, “The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man; ³⁸ the field is the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom; the weeds are the children of the evil one, ³⁹ and the enemy who sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are angels. ⁴⁰ Just as the weeds are collected and burned up with fire, so will it be at the end of the age. ⁴¹ The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will collect out of his kingdom all causes of sin and all evildoers, ⁴² and they will throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. ⁴³ Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Let anyone with ears^e listen!

^a Gk stumbles

^b Gk hid in

^c Other ancient authorities read the prophet Isaiah

^d Other ancient authorities lack of the world

^e Other ancient authorities add to hear

13.24–33: Three parables of growth (Mk 4.30–32; Lk 13.18–21). 25: Weeds, perhaps darnel, a weed resembling wheat. 31: Mustard seed, the precise species cannot be determined, though mustard seed was popularly regarded as the smallest of seeds planted by farmers. 32: Tree, actually a shrub growing up to ca. 10 ft (3 m) high. Birds, Ezek 17.23; Dan 4.10–12. 33: Yeast, not yeast but leaven, a remnant of fermented dough used as a “starter” for raising a new batch of dough. Three measures, ca. 2/3 bu (21 L).

13.34–35: The use of parables (Mk 4.33–34). A fulfillment citation (Ps 78.2) attributed to Asaph the seer (2 Chr 29.30). In the next half of the discourse Jesus’s teaching is reserved for the disciples.

13.36–43: The parable of the weeds explained. 36: House, 13.1. 38: Children of the kingdom, those worthy of the kingdom. 41: Out of his kingdom, some scholars have identified the kingdom with the church, but in view of v. 38 it is better understood as the world. Causes of sin, 16.23; 18.7. Evildoers, 7.23. 42: 8.12n. 43: Shine like the sun, Dan 12.3.

⁴⁴“The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which someone found and hid; then in his joy he goes and sells all that he has and buys that field.

⁴⁵“Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls; ⁴⁶on finding one pearl of great value, he went and sold all that he had and bought it.

⁴⁷“Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net that was thrown into the sea and caught fish of every kind; ⁴⁸when it was full, they drew it ashore, sat down, and put the good into baskets but threw out the bad. ⁴⁹So it will be at the end of the age. The angels will come out and separate the evil from the righteous ⁵⁰and throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

⁵¹“Have you understood all this?” They answered, “Yes.” ⁵²And he said to them, “Therefore every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like the master of a household who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old.” ⁵³When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place.

⁵⁴He came to his hometown and began to teach the people^a in their synagogue, so that they were astounded and said, “Where did this man get this wisdom and these deeds of power? ⁵⁵Is not this the carpenter’s son? Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and Judas? ⁵⁶And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all this?” ⁵⁷And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, “Prophets are not without honor except in their own country and in their own house.” ⁵⁸And he did not do many deeds of power there, because of their unbelief.

14 At that time Herod the ruler^b heard reports about Jesus; ²and he said to his servants, “This is John the Baptist; he has been raised from the dead, and for this reason these powers are at work in him.” ³For Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife,^c ⁴because John had been telling him, “It is not lawful for you to have her.” ⁵Though Herod^d wanted to put him to death, he feared the crowd, because they regarded him as a prophet. ⁶But when Herod’s birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced before the company, and she pleased Herod ⁷so much that he promised on oath to grant her whatever she might ask. ⁸Prompted by her mother, she said, “Give me the head of John the Baptist here on a platter.” ⁹The king was grieved, yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he commanded it to be given; ¹⁰he sent and had John beheaded in the prison. ¹¹The head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, who brought it to her mother. ¹²His disciples came and took the body and buried it; then they went and told Jesus.

^a Gk them

^b Gk tetrarch

^c Other ancient authorities read his brother's wife

^d Gk he

13.44–53: Four more parables. 44: Field, in the absence of banks, valuables were often buried for safekeeping (25.25). The purchase of property would include anything it contained; m. B. Bat. 4.8–9. 47: Net, a seine net. 51: The final parable in the chapter. Understood, in contrast to Jesus’s disciples in Mk 4.13,33–34, here the disciples confirm their understanding of Jesus’s teaching. 52: Scribe, perhaps a self-portrait of the Gospel’s author, or an indication of early Christian scribes (23.34). His treasure, the storeroom from which he draws his understanding of Jesus’s ministry (the new) and of the Jewish scriptures (the old).

13.54–58: The rejection of Jesus at Nazareth (Mk 6.1–6; Lk 4.16–30). 54: His hometown, Nazareth. 55: Carpenter’s son contrasts with “carpenter” (Mk 6.3). The word translated here as “carpenter” can also mean “builder” or “stonemason.” Jesus’s inability to perform mighty deeds in Nazareth (Mk 6.5) becomes, in Matthew, an unwillingness to do so in the face of the Nazarenes’ disbelief (13.58).

14.1–12: The death of John the Baptist (Mk 6.14–29; Lk 9.7–9). 1: Herod, Matthew uses the correct designation “Herod the Tetrarch” (see textual note b) for Herod Antipas (2.22n.) in contrast to the “King Herod” of Mk 6.14. 3: Philip, cf. Josephus, Ant. 18.136–37. 4: Lev 18.16; 20.21. 6: Daughter of Herodias, Josephus identifies her as Salome (Ant. 18.136; for Josephus’s account of John’s death, see Ant. 18.116–19). Compare Esth 2.9.

¹³ Now when Jesus heard this, he withdrew from there in a boat to a deserted place by himself. But when the crowds heard it, they followed him on foot from the towns. ¹⁴ When he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them and cured their sick. ¹⁵ When it was evening, the disciples came to him and said, “This is a deserted place, and the hour is now late; send the crowds away so that they may go into the villages and buy food for themselves.” ¹⁶ Jesus said to them, “They need not go away; you give them something to eat.” ¹⁷ They replied, “We have nothing here but five loaves and two fish.” ¹⁸ And he said, “Bring them here to me.” ¹⁹ Then he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. ²⁰ And all ate and were filled; and they took up what was left over of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full. ²¹ And those who ate were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

²² Immediately he made the disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, while he dismissed the crowds. ²³ And after he had dismissed the crowds, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. When evening came, he was there alone, ²⁴ but by this time the boat, battered by the waves, was far from the land,^a for the wind was against them. ²⁵ And early in the morning he came walking toward them on the sea. ²⁶ But when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were terrified, saying, “It is a ghost!” And they cried out in fear. ²⁷ But immediately Jesus spoke to them and said, “Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid.”

²⁸ Peter answered him, “Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water.” ²⁹ He said, “Come.” So Peter got out of the boat, started walking on the water, and came toward Jesus. ³⁰ But when he noticed the strong wind,^b he became frightened, and beginning to sink, he cried out, “Lord, save me!” ³¹ Jesus immediately reached out his hand and caught him, saying to him, “You of little faith, why did you doubt?” ³² When they got into the boat, the wind ceased. ³³ And those in the boat worshiped him, saying, “Truly you are the Son of God.”

³⁴ When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret. ³⁵ After the people of that place recognized him, they sent word throughout the region and brought all who were sick to him,^c and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

15 Then Pharisees and scribes came to Jesus from Jerusalem and said, ² “Why do your disciples break the tradition of the elders? For they do not wash their hands before they eat.” ³ He answered them, “And why do you break the commandment of God for the sake of your tradition? ⁴ For God said,^c ‘Honor your father and your mother,’ and, ‘Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.’ ⁵ But you say that whoever tells father or mother, ‘Whatever support you might have had from me is given to God,’^d then that person need not honor the father.^e ⁶ So, for the sake of your tradition, you make void the

^a Other ancient authorities read was out on the sea

^b Other ancient authorities read the wind

^c Other ancient authorities read commanded, saying

^d Or is an offering

^e Other ancient authorities add or the mother

14.13–36: The feeding of the five thousand and the walking on the water (Mk 6.30–56; Lk 9.10–17; Jn 6.1–21). These are the only miracles found in all four Gospels. There is a doublet for the feeding in 15.32–38; cf. also 1 Kings 17.8–16; 2 Kings 4.42–44. 19: Looked . . . blessed . . . broke . . . gave, the language suggests eucharistic ritual; cf. 26.26. 21: Matthew increases the magnitude of the miracle by adding besides women and children (cf. Mk 6.44). 22: The other side of the Sea of Galilee. 25: Early in the morning, lit., “in the fourth watch of the night,” i.e., between 3 and 6 am. 27: It is I, lit., “I am,” a reference to the divine name (Ex 3.14). 28: Peter’s walking on the water is unique to Matthew and brings out both the role of Peter as the representative of the disciples, and his—and their—need for faith. This is the first time in the Gospel that the disciples worship Jesus and refer to him as Son of God (cf. 16.16; 27.54). 34: Gennesaret is either a narrow plain on the west side of the Sea or a town on that plain; 4.18n.

15.1–20: The tradition of the elders (Mk 7.1–23). 2: Tradition of the elders, Pharisaic oral law designed to elucidate and protect the law of Moses (3.8n.). Wash, eat food in a state of ritual purity; cf. Ex 30.17–21. 3: Hand-washing was a Pharisaic tradition, not stipulated by the Torah. 4: God said, Ex 20.12; 21.17; Lev 20.9; Deut 5.16. 5: Given to God, word^a of God.⁷ You hypocrites! Isaiah prophesied rightly about you when he said:

⁸“This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me;

⁹in vain do they worship me, teaching human precepts as doctrines.”⁷

¹⁰Then he called the crowd to him and said to them, “Listen and understand: ¹¹it is not what goes into the mouth that defiles a person, but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles.” ¹²Then the disciples approached and said to him, “Do you know that the Pharisees took offense when they heard what you said?” ¹³He answered, “Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted. ¹⁴Let them alone; they are blind guides of the blind.^b And if one blind person guides another, both will fall into a pit.” ¹⁵But Peter said to him, “Explain this parable to us.” ¹⁶Then he said, “Are you also still without understanding? ¹⁷Do you not see that whatever goes into the mouth enters the stomach, and goes out into the sewer? ¹⁸But what comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this is what defiles. ¹⁹For out of the heart come evil intentions, murder, adultery, fornication, theft, false witness, slander. ²⁰These are what defile a person, but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile.”

²¹Jesus left that place and went away to the district of Tyre and Sidon. ²²Just then a Canaanite woman from that region came out and started shouting, “Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David; my daughter is tormented by a demon.” ²³But he did not answer her at all. And his disciples came and urged him, saying, “Send her away, for she keeps shouting after us.” ²⁴He answered, “I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.” ²⁵But she came and knelt before him, saying, “Lord, help me.” ²⁶He answered, “It is not fair to take the children’s food and throw it to the dogs.” ²⁷She said, “Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters’ table.” ²⁸Then Jesus answered her, “Woman, great is your faith! Let it be done for you as you wish.” And her daughter was healed instantly.

²⁹After Jesus had left that place, he passed along the Sea of Galilee, and he went up the mountain, where he sat down. ³⁰Great crowds came to him, bringing with them the lame, the maimed, the blind, the mute, and many others. They put them at his feet, and he cured them, ³¹so that the crowd was amazed when they saw the mute speaking, the maimed whole, the lame walking, and the blind seeing. And they praised the God of Israel.

³²Then Jesus called his disciples to him and said, “I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat; and I do not want to send them away hungry, for they might faint on the way.” ³³The disciples said to him, “Where are we to get enough bread in the desert to feed so great a crowd?” ³⁴Jesus asked them, “How many loaves have you?” They said, “Seven, and a few small fish.” ³⁵Then ordering the crowd to sit down on the ground, ³⁶he took the seven loaves and the fish; and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. ³⁷And all of them ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. ³⁸Those who had eaten were four thousand men, besides women and children. ³⁹After

^a Other ancient authorities read law; others, commandment

^b Other ancient authorities lack of the blind

m. Ned. 3.2; 5.6. 7–9: Isa 29.13. 11: Defiles, renders one ritually unclean. 13: Isa 61.21; Jer 12.17. 14: Blind guides, 23.16, 24; Lk 6.39. 15: Significantly, Matthew stops short of Mark’s conclusion, “Thus he declared all foods clean” (Mk 7.19).

15.21–28: The Canaanite woman’s faith (Mk 7.24–30). 21: District, perhaps the largely Jewish enclave in Syria bordering on northwest Galilee. 22: Canaanite replaces Mark’s more accurate political designation “Syro-phenician.” The archaic term “Canaanite” may be designed to recall Israel’s traditional enemies (Deut 7.1). Son of David, see 9.27n. 24: The limited mission to Israel enjoined on the disciples at 10.5–6 also applies to Jesus’s own ministry. 27: Dogs, “little dogs” or household pets as metaphors for Gentiles. 28: Like the Roman centurion (8.5–10), the Gentile woman is praised for exemplary faith.

15.29–39: The healing and feeding of many people. 32–39 (Mark 8.1–10): This is a doublet to the feeding in 14.13–23. 30: 9.35–36n. 38: The four thousand may be Gentiles but are more likely Jews. 39: Magadan (see textual note a on the next page) replaces Mark’s “district of Dalmanutha” (Mk 8.10); both locales are unknown.

sending away the crowds, he got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan.^a 16 The Pharisees and Sadducees came, and to test Jesus^b they asked him to show them a sign from heaven.² He answered them, “When it is evening, you say, ‘It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.’³ And in the morning, ‘It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and threatening.’ You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the times.^c ⁴ An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah.” Then he left them and went away.

⁵ When the disciples reached the other side, they had forgotten to bring any bread. ⁶ Jesus said to them, “Watch out, and beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees.”⁷ They said to one another, “It is because we have brought no bread.”⁸ And becoming aware of it, Jesus said, “You of little faith, why are you talking about having no bread? ⁹ Do you still not perceive? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? ¹⁰ Or the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? ¹¹ How could you fail to perceive that I was not speaking about bread? Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees!”¹² Then they understood that he had not told them to beware of the yeast of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

¹³ Now when Jesus came into the district of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that the Son of Man is?”¹⁴ And they said, “Some say John the Baptist, but others Elijah, and still others Jeremiah or one of the prophets.”¹⁵ He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?”¹⁶ Simon Peter answered, “You are the Messiah,^d the Son of the living God.”¹⁷ And Jesus answered him, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father in heaven.¹⁸ And I tell you, you are Peter,^e and on this rock^f I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not prevail against it. ¹⁹ I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.”²⁰ Then he sternly ordered the disciples not to tell anyone that he was^g the Messiah.^d

^a Other ancient authorities read Magdala or Magdalan

^b Gk him

^c Other ancient authorities lack ²*When it is . . . of the times*

^d Or the Christ

^e Gk Petros

^f Gk petra

^g Other ancient authorities add Jesus

16.1–12: The Pharisees and Sadducees (Mk 8.11–21; Lk 12.54–56). 1: 3.7n. Sign, probably a cosmic event. 4: Sign of Jonah, see 12.38–41. In Matthew the sign is Jesus’s burial and resurrection; in Lk, see 11:29–32, it is Jesus’s role as a prophet demanding repentance. 6: Here yeast (leaven) is a metaphor for teaching, but teaching that has the capacity to corrupt everything with which it comes into contact. At 13.33 the image is used positively. 8: 14.28n. 9: Cf. 14.13–21. 10: Cf. 15.32–39.

16.13–20: Peter’s confession about Jesus (Mk 8.27–30; Lk 9.18–21). 13: Caesarea Philippi, a city 25 mi (40 km) north of the Sea of Galilee, formerly Baneas and renamed by Philip in honor of Caesar Augustus. It is to be distinguished from Caesarea Maritima, the Hellenistic city redesigned and expanded by Herod the Great on the Mediterranean coast that served as the headquarters of the Roman governor (Acts 8.40; 21.8,16). Son of Man, 8.20n. 14: Jeremiah, Matthew’s inclusion of Jeremiah among the prophets emphasizes the parallels between Jesus and Jeremiah (also mentioned in 2.17; 27.9). 16: Son of the living God is found only in Matthew’s version of Peter’s confession (cf. 26.63; Ps 42.2). The title has strong messianic overtones (4Q174.10–14). 17: Son of Jonah, either a variant of “son of John” (Jn 1.42) or an indication that Peter has a prophetic gift like Jonah’s. Flesh and blood, humans. 18: This promise to Peter is found only in Matthew. Peter . . . rock, Jesus’s nickname for Simon (Gk “petros”) means “stone” or “rock.” The same pun works with its Aramaic equivalent, Kephias (1 Cor 1.12; 15.5; Gal 1.18). Church, the only occurrences of the word “church” (Gk “ekklesia”) in the Gospels are here and at 18.17. The gates of Hades may mean the “powers of death.” 19: Keys, a symbolic ascription of power (see Isa 22.22), bequeathing Peter the authority to oversee admission to the church (cf. 18.18).

²¹ From that time on, Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and undergo great suffering at the hands of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised. ²² And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, “God forbid it, Lord! This must never happen to you.” ²³ But he turned and said to Peter, “Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me; for you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

²⁴ Then Jesus told his disciples, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. ²⁵ For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it. ²⁶ For what will it profit them if they gain the whole world but forfeit their life? Or what will they give in return for their life?

²⁷ “For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then he will repay everyone for what has been done. ²⁸ Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.”

17 Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and his brother John and led them up a high mountain, by themselves. ² And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became dazzling white. ³ Suddenly there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, talking with him. ⁴ Then Peter said to Jesus, “Lord, it is good for us to be here; if you wish, I^a will make three dwellings^b here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” ⁵ While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud a voice said, “This is my Son, the Beloved;^c with him I am well pleased; listen to him!” ⁶ When the disciples heard this, they fell to the ground and were overcome by fear. ⁷ But Jesus came and touched them, saying, “Get up and do not be afraid.” ⁸ And when they looked up, they saw no one except Jesus himself alone.

⁹ As they were coming down the mountain, Jesus ordered them, “Tell no one about the vision until after the Son of Man has been raised from the dead.” ¹⁰ And the disciples asked him, “Why, then, do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?” ¹¹ He replied, “Elijah is indeed coming and will restore all things; ¹² but I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but they did to him whatever they pleased. So also the Son of Man is about to suffer at their hands.” ¹³ Then the disciples understood that he was speaking to them about John the Baptist.

¹⁴ When they came to the crowd, a man came to him, knelt before him, ¹⁵ and said, “Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is an epileptic and he suffers terribly; he often falls into the fire and often into the water. ¹⁶ And I brought him to your disciples, but they could not cure him.” ¹⁷ Jesus answered, “You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him here to

^a Other ancient authorities read we

^b Or tents

^c Or my beloved Son

16.21–28: Jesus foretells his death and resurrection (Mk 8.31–9.1; Lk 9.22–27). 21: The phrase from that time on may be a marker signaling the beginning of the last third of the Gospel (4.17n.). The first of three passion predictions (17.22–23; 20.17–19; cf. 26.1–2). 23: Peter resembles Satan (4.10) by tempting Jesus to forego his divinely appointed suffering. 24–25: Cf. 10.38–39. Cross, see 10.38n. 28: Some standing here, possibly a reference to Jesus’s transfiguration (17.1–13).

17.1–13: The transfiguration of Jesus (Mk 9.2–13; Lk 9.28–36). 1: High mountain, traditionally identified with Mount Tabor or, because of its proximity to Caesarea Philippi, with Mount Hermon. The setting and reference to six days are reminiscent of God’s revelation to Moses, and later Elijah, on Sinai (Horeb) (Ex 34.1–9; 1 Kings 19.1–18). 2: His face shone, Ex 34.35. 3: Moses and Elijah symbolize, respectively, the Law and the Prophets, the first two divisions of the Hebrew Bible. 5: My Son, 3.17n. 10: Elijah must come first, according to the traditional interpretation of Mal 4.5, Elijah would come “before the day of the Lord.” 12: Elijah has already come in the person of John the Baptist.

17.14–21: The healing of a boy with a demon (Mk 9.14–29; Lk 9.37–43). 17: Faithless and perverse generation, me.”¹⁸ And Jesus rebuked the demon,^a and it^b came out of him, and the boy was cured instantly.¹⁹ Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, “Why could we not cast it out?”²⁰ He said to them, “Because of your little faith. For truly I tell you, if you have faith the size of a^c mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you.”^d

²² As they were gathering^e in Galilee, Jesus said to them, “The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands,²³ and they will kill him, and on the third day he will be raised.” And they were greatly distressed.

²⁴ When they reached Capernaum, the collectors of the temple tax^f came to Peter and said, “Does your teacher not pay the temple tax?”^f²⁵ He said, “Yes, he does.” And when he came home, Jesus spoke of it first, asking, “What do you think, Simon? From whom do kings of the earth take toll or tribute? From their children or from others?”²⁶ When Peter^g said, “From others,” Jesus said to him, “Then the children are free.²⁷ However, so that we do not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook; take the first fish that comes up; and when you open its mouth, you will find a coin;^h take that and give it to them for you and me.”

18 At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, “Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?”² He called a child, whom he put among them,³ and said, “Truly I tell you, unless you change and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.⁴ Whoever becomes humble like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.⁵ Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.

⁶ “If any of you put a stumbling block before one of these little ones who believe in me, it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea.⁷ Woe to the world because of stumbling blocks! Occasions for stumbling are bound to come, but woe to the one by whom the stumbling block comes!

⁸ “If your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life maimed or lame than to have two hands or two feet and to be thrown into the eternal fire.⁹ And if your eye causes you to stumble, tear it out and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life with one

^a Gk it or him

^b Gk the demon

^c Gk faith as a grain of

^d Other ancient authorities add verse 21, But this kind does not come out except by prayer and fasting

^e Other ancient authorities read living

^f Gk didrachma

^g Gk he

^h Gk stater; the stater was worth two didrachmas

Jesus's disciples; cf. Deut 32.5,20. 20: Little faith is the main problem besetting Jesus's disciples in Matthew. Mustard seed, 13.31n.

17.22–23: Jesus's second prediction of his death and resurrection (Mk 9.30–32; Lk 9.43–45). 22: Were gathering, in order to visit Jerusalem for Passover. 23: Whereas in Mk 9.32 the disciples are perplexed, Matthew's disciples are greatly distressed.

17.24–27: Payment of the temple tax. 24: Temple tax, lit., “the didrachma.” This “double drachma” was equivalent to half a shekel, an amount enjoined on all Israel (Ex 30.11–16). Used in Jesus's day for sacrifices and the upkeep of the Temple, the tax (the “fiscus judaicus”) continued to be levied by Rome after the Temple's destruction in 70 CE, as a penalty for the Jewish people's revolt in 66–70 CE. 26: The children are free, just as a king's children are tax-exempt, so too are God's children, i.e., Jesus and his brothers and sisters (12.50). 27: Give offense, offend the devout people who collect the tax.

18.1–35: The fourth discourse, on community or church. This discourse focuses on community interrelations and church discipline—specifically the need for the church to care for their disadvantaged and forgive one another.

18.1–9: The greatest in the kingdom and temptations to sin (Mk 9.33–37; 42–48; Lk 9.46–48; 17.1–2). 3–6: Children and little ones, humble Christian disciples. 6: Great millstone, a large, circular, stone harnessed to a donkey or ox to grind grain. Sea, millstones were sometimes used as anchors (cf. Rev 18.21). 9: Hell, cf. 5.29n.

eye than to have two eyes and to be thrown into the hell^a of fire.

¹⁰ “Take care that you do not despise one of these little ones; for, I tell you, in heaven their angels continually see the face of my Father in heaven.^b ¹² What do you think? If a shepherd has a hundred sheep, and one of them has gone astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine on the mountains and go in search of the one that went astray? ¹³ And if he finds it, truly I tell you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never went astray. ¹⁴ So it is not the will of your^c Father in heaven that one of these little ones should be lost.

¹⁵ “If another member of the church^d sins against you,^e go and point out the fault when the two of you are alone. If the member listens to you, you have regained that one.^f ¹⁶ But if you are not listened to, take one or two others along with you, so that every word may be confirmed by the evidence of two or three witnesses. ¹⁷ If the member refuses to listen to them, tell it to the church; and if the offender refuses to listen even to the church, let such a one be to you as a Gentile and a tax collector. ¹⁸ Truly I tell you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven. ¹⁹ Again, truly I tell you, if two of you agree on earth about anything you ask, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. ²⁰ For where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there among them.”

²¹ Then Peter came and said to him, “Lord, if another member of the church^g sins against me, how often should I forgive? As many as seven times?” ²² Jesus said to him, “Not seven times, but, I tell you, seventy-seven^h times.

²³ “For this reason the kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who wished to settle accounts with his slaves. ²⁴ When he began the reckoning, one who owed him ten thousand talentsⁱ was brought to him; ²⁵ and, as he could not pay, his lord ordered him to be sold, together with his wife and children and all his possessions, and payment to be made. ²⁶ So the slave fell on his knees before him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you everything.’ ²⁷ And out of pity for him, the lord of that slave released him and forgave him the debt. ²⁸ But that same slave, as he went out, came upon one of his fellow slaves who owed him a hundred denarii;^j and seizing him by the throat, he said, ‘Pay what you owe.’ ²⁹ Then his fellow slave fell down and pleaded with him, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you.’ ³⁰ But he refused; then he went and threw him into prison until he would pay the debt. ³¹ When his fellow slaves saw what had happened, they were greatly distressed, and they went and reported to their lord all that had taken place. ³² Then his lord summoned him and said to him, ‘You wicked slave! I forgave you all that debt because you pleaded with me. ³³ Should you not have had mercy on your fellow slave, as I had mercy on you?’ ³⁴ And in anger his

^a Gk Gehenna

^b Other ancient authorities add verse 11, For the Son of Man came to save the lost

^c Other ancient authorities read my

^d Gk If your brother

^e Other ancient authorities lack against you

^f Gk the brother

^g Gk if my brother

^h Or seventy times seven

ⁱ A talent was worth more than fifteen years' wages of a laborer

^j The denarius was the usual day's wage for a laborer

18.10–20: Lost sheep and sinning brothers (Lk 15.3–7; 17.3). 10: Their angels, both individuals and nations were thought to have guardian angels (Dan 10.20–21; Acts 12.15). Face of my Father, receive God's special attention. 12: Luke's version of the parable varies considerably; in Matthew the emphasis is not on the shepherd's joy at finding the lost sheep, but on his responsibility not to lose a straying sheep. 15: Alone, to avoid publicly shaming the church member. Witnesses, 9.27–31n; cf. Deut 19.15. 17: Gentile . . . tax collector, 5.46,47n. 18: 16.16. This authority is extended to the church as a whole.

18.21–35: The parable of the unforgiving servant. 21–22: Seven, 12.45n.; cf. Gen 4.24. 23: A king, God. 24: Ten thousand talents, a vast sum amounting to more than the entire tribute paid by Galilee to Rome over a fifteen-year period. A talent was equivalent to six thousand denarii (a denarius was a day-laborer's wage). 25: Ordered him to be sold, slaves, their families and possessions were chattel. 28: A hundred denarii, roughly three months' wages. 30: 5.25n. 34: Tortured, to ascertain the location of the slave's money or to coerce money from his family.

lord handed him over to be tortured until he would pay his entire debt.³⁵ So my heavenly Father will also do to every one of you, if you do not forgive your brother or sister^a from your heart.”

19 When Jesus had finished saying these things, he left Galilee and went to the region of Judea beyond the Jordan.² Large crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

³Some Pharisees came to him, and to test him they asked, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any cause?”⁴ He answered, “Have you not read that the one who made them at the beginning ‘made them male and female,’⁵ and said, ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh’?⁶ So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate.”⁷ They said to him, “Why then did Moses command us to give a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her?”⁸ He said to them, “It was because you were so hard-hearted that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so.⁹ And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for unchastity, and marries another commits adultery.”^b

¹⁰His disciples said to him, “If such is the case of a man with his wife, it is better not to marry.”¹¹ But he said to them, “Not everyone can accept this teaching, but only those to whom it is given.¹² For there are eunuchs who have been so from birth, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let anyone accept this who can.”

¹³Then little children were being brought to him in order that he might lay his hands on them and pray. The disciples spoke sternly to those who brought them;¹⁴ but Jesus said, “Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of heaven belongs.”¹⁵ And he laid his hands on them and went on his way.

¹⁶Then someone came to him and said, “Teacher, what good deed must I do to have eternal life?”¹⁷ And he said to him, “Why do you ask me about what is good? There is only one who is good. If you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments.”¹⁸ He said to him, “Which ones?” And Jesus said, “You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness;¹⁹ Honor your father and mother; also, You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”²⁰ The young man said to him, “I have kept all these;^c what do I still lack?”²¹ Jesus said to him, “If you wish to be perfect, go, sell your possessions, and give the money^d to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.”²² When the young man heard this word, he went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

²³Then Jesus said to his disciples, “Truly I tell you, it will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven.²⁴ Again I tell

^a Gk brother

^b Other ancient authorities read except on the ground of unchastity, causes her to commit adultery; others add at the end of the verse and he who marries a divorced woman commits adultery

^c Other ancient authorities add from my youth

^d Gk lacks the money

19.1–20.34: Jesus moves from Galilee to Judea. In Matthew, this transition marks Jesus’s first (and final) trip to Judea.

19.1–12: Teaching about divorce (Mk 10.1–12). 1: Beyond the Jordan, the Transjordan or Perea, regions on the east side of the Jordan River. Galileans traveling to Jerusalem for Passover would often cross over the Jordan to bypass Samaria (Lk 9.51–56). 2: Large crowds, 4.25n. 3: The Pharisaic schools of Hillel and Shammai both permitted divorce but differed over the appropriate grounds. 4–5: Gen 1.27; 2.24. 7: Moses, Deut 24.1–4. 9: Except for unchastity, this exception clause has been added by Matthew; see also 5.32. 12: Made themselves eunuchs, hyperbole for the voluntary practice of celibacy; a eunuch is a castrated male.

19.13–30: Little children and the rich young man (Mk 10.13–31; Lk 18.15–30). 13–15: Cf. 18.1–5. 17: Only one, God; Mk 10.18. To enter into life means both “to enter the kingdom” and “to gain eternal life” (vv. 16, 23, 24). 19: Ex 20.12–16; Deut 5.16–20; Matthew adds the love commandment from Lev 19.18 (cf. 22.39). 21: Perfect, 5.48n. 22: Young, only found in Matthew. 24: Camel, the largest animal in the region (23.24).

you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.”²⁵ When the disciples heard this, they were greatly astounded and said, “Then who can be saved?”²⁶ But Jesus looked at them and said, “For mortals it is impossible, but for God all things are possible.”

²⁷ Then Peter said in reply, “Look, we have left everything and followed you. What then will we have?”²⁸ Jesus said to them, “Truly I tell you, at the renewal of all things, when the Son of Man is seated on the throne of his glory, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.”²⁹ And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or fields, for my name’s sake, will receive a hundredfold,³⁰ and will inherit eternal life. ³⁰ But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

20 “For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard.

² After agreeing with the laborers for the usual daily wage,^b he sent them into his vineyard. ³ When he went out about nine o’clock, he saw others standing idle in the marketplace; ⁴ and he said to them, ‘You also go into the vineyard, and I will pay you whatever is right.’ So they went. ⁵ When he went out again about noon and about three o’clock, he did the same. ⁶ And about five o’clock he went out and found others standing around; and he said to them, ‘Why are you standing here idle all day?’ ⁷ They said to him, ‘Because no one has hired us.’ He said to them, ‘You also go into the vineyard.’ ⁸ When evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to his manager, ‘Call the laborers and give them their pay, beginning with the last and then going to the first.’ ⁹ When those hired about five o’clock came, each of them received the usual daily wage.^b ¹⁰ Now when the first came, they thought they would receive more; but each of them also received the usual daily wage.^b ¹¹ And when they received it, they grumbled against the landowner, ¹² saying, ‘These last worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat.’ ¹³ But he replied to one of them, ‘Friend, I am doing you no wrong; did you not agree with me for the usual daily wage?’^b ¹⁴ Take what belongs to you and go; I choose to give to this last the same as I give to you. ¹⁵ Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me? Or are you envious because I am generous?’^c ¹⁶ So the last will be first, and the first will be last.”^d

¹⁷ While Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them on the way, ¹⁸ “See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death; ¹⁹ then they will hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked and flogged and crucified; and on the third day he will be raised.”

²⁰ Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons, and kneeling before him, she asked a favor of him. ²¹ And he said to her, “What do you want?” She said to him, “Declare that these two sons of mine will sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom.” ²² But Jesus answered, “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I am about to drink?”^e They said to him, “We

^a Other ancient authorities read manifold

^b Gk a denarius

^c Gk is your eye evil because I am good?

^d Other ancient authorities add for many are called but few are chosen

^e Other ancient authorities add or to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?

28: Renewal, the new age on earth, featuring a general resurrection. Thrones, Dan 7.9–14. 30: 20.16.

20.1–16: The workers in the vineyard. 2: 18.28n. 15: Envious, lit., “Is your eye evil?” (cf. 6.22–23n.). 16: See 19.30.

20.17–19: A third time Jesus foretells his death and resurrection (Mk 10.32–34; Lk 18.31–34). 17–19: Cf. 16.21–28; 17.22–23. This prediction explicitly indicts the Gentiles in Jesus’s death.

20.20–28: The request of James and John (Mk 10.35–45). In contrast to Mark, the request here originates with their mother. 21: Right . . . left, indicates those figures who, flanking a monarch, would rank as second and are able.”²³ He said to them, “You will indeed drink my cup, but to sit at my right hand and at my left, this is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared by my Father.”

²⁴ When the ten heard it, they were angry with the two brothers. ²⁵ But Jesus called them to him and said, “You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. ²⁶ It will not be so among you; but whoever wishes to be great among you must be your servant, ²⁷ and whoever wishes to be first among you must be your slave; ²⁸ just as the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.”

²⁹ As they were leaving Jericho, a large crowd followed him. ³⁰ There were two blind men sitting by the roadside. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they shouted, “Lord,^a have mercy on us, Son of David!”

³¹ The crowd sternly ordered them to be quiet; but they shouted even more loudly, “Have mercy on us, Lord, Son of David!” ³² Jesus stood still and called them, saying, “What do you want me to do for you?” ³³ They said to him, “Lord, let our eyes be opened.” ³⁴ Moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes. Immediately they regained their sight and followed him.

21 When they had come near Jerusalem and had reached Bethphage, at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples,² saying to them, “Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her; untie them and bring them to me. ³ If anyone says anything to you, just say this, ‘The Lord needs them.’ And he will send them immediately.”^b ⁴ This took place to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet, saying,

⁵ “Tell the daughter of Zion, Look, your king is coming to you,
humble, and mounted on a donkey,
and on a colt, the foal of a donkey.”

⁶ The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them; ⁷ they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their cloaks on them, and he sat on them. ⁸ A very large crowd^c spread their cloaks on the road, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them on the road. ⁹ The crowds that went ahead of him and that followed were shouting, “Hosanna to the Son of David!

Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!

Hosanna in the highest heaven!”

¹⁰ When he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was in turmoil, asking, “Who is this?” ¹¹ The crowds were saying, “This is the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee.”

¹² Then Jesus entered the temple^d and drove out all who were selling and buying in

^a Other ancient authorities lack Lord

^b Or ‘The Lord needs them and will send them back immediately.’

^c Or Most of the crowd

^d Other ancient authorities add of God

third in authority. 23: My cup, death. Acts 12.2 mentions James’s martyrdom; according to postbiblical tradition, his brother John was also martyred. 28: Ransom, the price paid to liberate a slave.

20.29–34: The healing of two men who were blind (Mk 10.46–52; Lk 18.35–43); a doublet of 9.27–31. 29: Jericho, city and oasis 15 mi (24 km) east of Jerusalem and 8 mi (13 km) north of the Dead Sea. 30: Two blind men, in Mk 10.46 the single man who is blind is identified as Bartimaeus, son of Timaeus. 31: Son of David, see 9.27n.

21.1–11: The triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Mk 11.1–11; Lk 19.28–38; Jn 12:12–19). 1: Bethphage (“House of Figs”), a village on the Mount of Olives ca. 1 mi (1.6 km) east of the Jerusalem Temple. 2: Village, perhaps Bethany (see v. 17; Mk 11.1). Donkey, instead of a warhorse connoting a military leader (Pss. Sol. 17), Jesus rides a donkey symbolizing humility and peace (Zech 9.9–10). 4–5: A composite fulfillment citation of Isa 62.11 and Zech 9.9. Daughter of Zion, Jerusalem and its residents. 7: Colt, while Zechariah refers to only one donkey, expressed by poetic parallelism, Matthew’s fulfillment citation interprets the expression as two: a donkey and its foal. 8: Cloaks, an act of royal homage; 2 Kings 9.13. 9: The cry Hosanna (lit., in Heb “Help” or “Save, I pray”) had become by Jesus’s day an exclamation of praise. Blessed, a citation of Ps 118.26, which was used as a traditional greeting for pilgrims arriving in Jerusalem for the great festivals. 11: Prophet, 21.46

21.12–27: The Temple and the fig tree (Mk 11.12–24; 27–33; Lk 19.45–48; 20.1–8). 12: In Jn 2.13–22 this episode is situated early in Jesus’s ministry, in Mk 11.11–19 on the day after Jesus’s arrival in Jerusalem. Selling and buying,

The geography of the Gospel of Matthew the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves. ¹³ He said to them, “It is written,

‘My house shall be called a house of prayer’;

but you are making it a den of robbers.”

¹⁴ The blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he cured them. ¹⁵ But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the amazing things that he did, and heard^a the children crying out in the temple, “Hosanna to the Son of David,” they became angry ¹⁶ and said to him, “Do you hear what these are saying?” Jesus said to them, “Yes; have you never read,

‘Out of the mouths of infants and nursing babies

you have prepared praise for yourself?’”

¹⁷ He left them, went out of the city to Bethany, and spent the night there.

¹⁸ In the morning, when he returned to the city, he was hungry. ¹⁹ And seeing a fig tree by the side of the road, he went to it and found nothing at all on it but leaves. Then he said to it, “May no fruit ever come from you again!” And the fig tree withered at once. ²⁰ When the disciples saw it, they were amazed, saying, “How did the fig tree wither at once?” ²¹ Jesus answered them, “Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what has been done to the fig tree, but even if you say to this mountain, ‘Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,’ it will be done. ²² Whatever you ask for in prayer with faith, you will receive.”

²³ When he entered the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, “By what authority are you doing these things, and

who gave you this authority?” ²⁴ Jesus said to them, “I will also ask you one question; if you tell me the answer, then I will also tell you by what authority I do these things. ²⁵ Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?” And they argued with one another, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say to us, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’ ²⁶ But if we say, ‘Of human origin,’ we are afraid of the crowd; for all regard John as a prophet.” ²⁷ So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.” And he said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.

²⁸ “What do you think? A man had two sons; he went to the first and said, ‘Son, go and work in the vineyard today.’ ²⁹ He answered, ‘I will not’; but later he changed his mind and went. ³⁰ The father^b went to the second and said the same; and he answered, ‘I go, sir’; but he did not go. ³¹ Which of the two did the will of his father?” They said, “The first.” Jesus said to them, “Truly I tell you, the tax collectors and the prostitutes are going into the kingdom of God ahead of you. ³² For John came to you in the way of righteousness and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and the prostitutes believed him; and even after you saw it, you did not change your minds and believe him.

³³ “Listen to another parable. There was a landowner who planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a wine press in it, and built a watchtower. Then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. ³⁴ When the harvest time had come, he sent his slaves to the tenants to collect his produce. ³⁵ But animals for sacrifice. Money changers, Roman money had to be changed into Tyrian shekels, the only currency acceptable for use within the Temple. Doves, offerings typical of the poor (Lev 5.7–10). Business transactions took place in the large outer Court of the Gentiles; it was here that Jesus’s “cleansing” took place. 13: Written, Isa 56.7; Jer 7.11. 14: Jesus’s cleansing culminates in the healing of persons who are blind and lame, who were normally excluded from the Temple (Lev 21.16–23). 15: Hosanna 21.9n. 16: Ps 8.2. 19: Fig tree, “it was not the season for figs” (Mk 11.13) is omitted. As fig trees often symbolized Jerusalem or the Temple, Jesus’s action is best understood as a prophecy of judgment (23.37–24.2). 23: Authority, 7.29; 9.6–8. 25: From heaven, from God.

^a Gk lacks heard

^b Gk He

21.28–22.14: Three parables (Mk 12.1–12; Lk 20.9–19; Lk 14.15–24). 21.28–32: The first of three consecutive parables condemning the Jewish religious leadership. 31: The tax collectors and the prostitutes, the people who were presumed to have the lowest morals (5.46n.). 33–37: The second parable is an allegory based on Isa 5.1–7, outlining the history of God and Israel. The vineyard is a metaphor for Israel, with God as the landowner, the the tenants seized his slaves and beat one, killed another, and stoned another.³⁶ Again he sent other slaves, more than the first; and they treated them in the same way.³⁷ Finally he sent his son to them, saying, “They will respect my son.”³⁸ But when the tenants saw the son, they said to themselves, “This is the heir; come, let us kill him and get his inheritance.”³⁹ So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him.⁴⁰ Now when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?”⁴¹ They said to him, “He will put those wretches to a miserable death, and lease the vineyard to other tenants who will give him the produce at the harvest time.”

⁴² Jesus said to them, “Have you never read in the scriptures:

“The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone;^a
this was the Lord’s doing, and it is amazing in our eyes’?”

⁴³ Therefore I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a people that produces the fruits of the kingdom.^b ⁴⁴ The one who falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls.”^c

⁴⁵ When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard his parables, they realized that he was speaking about them.⁴⁶ They wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowds, because they regarded him as a prophet.

22 Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables, saying: ² “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. ³ He sent his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding banquet, but they would not come. ⁴ Again he sent other slaves, saying, “Tell those who have been invited: Look,

I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fat calves have been slaughtered, and everything is ready; come to the wedding banquet.’ ⁵ But they made light of it and went away, one to his farm, another to his business, ⁶ while the rest seized his slaves, mistreated them, and killed them. ⁷ The king was enraged. He sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned their city. ⁸ Then he said to his slaves, “The wedding is ready, but those invited were not worthy. ⁹ Go therefore into the main streets, and invite everyone you find to the wedding banquet.’ ¹⁰ Those slaves went out into the streets and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; so the wedding hall was filled with guests.

¹¹ “But when the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man there who was not wearing a wedding robe, ¹² and he said to him, ‘Friend, how did you get in here without a wedding robe?’ And he was speechless.

¹³ Then the king said to the attendants, ‘Bind him hand and foot, and throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ ¹⁴ For many are called, but few are chosen.”

¹⁵ Then the Pharisees went and plotted to entrap him in what he said. ¹⁶ So they sent their disciples to him, along with the Herodians, saying, “Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and teach the way of God in accordance with truth, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality. ¹⁷ Tell us, then, what you think. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?”

^a Or keystone

^b Gk the fruits of it

^c Other ancient authorities lack verse 44

Jewish leadership as the tenants, the prophets as the slaves, and Jesus as the son. 42: Ps 118.22–23; cornerstone, the keystone of an arch. 43: A people that produces the fruits, a reference to the Christian church and its practice of righteousness. 44: If this verse is Matthean (see textual note c), it refers to the dire consequences of misunderstanding who Jesus was. 46: Prophet, v. 11. 22.1–14: The third parable. 7: Burned their city, a probable allusion to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 CE. 11–14: These four verses are a Matthean addition to the parable. 11: A wedding robe may suggest the righteous deeds necessary for believers to enter the kingdom (see Mt 7.21–23). 13: 8.12n.

22.15–46: Attempts to ensnare Jesus (Mk 12.13–37; Lk 20.20–44; 10.25–28). The preceding three parables are followed by three trick questions meant to entrap Jesus in his own words. 16: Herodians, possibly aristocratic supporters of Herod Antipas and his family. 17: Taxes, on agricultural yield and personal property amounting to

¹⁸ But Jesus, aware of their malice, said, “Why are you putting me to the test, you hypocrites?” ¹⁹ Show me the coin used for the tax.” And they brought him a denarius. ²⁰ Then he said to them, “Whose head is this, and whose title?” ²¹ They answered, “The emperor’s.” Then he said to them, “Give therefore to the emperor the things that are the emperor’s, and to God the things that are God’s.”

²² When they heard this, they were amazed; and they left him and went away.

²³ The same day some Sadducees came to him, saying there is no resurrection;^a and they asked him a question, saying, ²⁴ “Teacher, Moses said, ‘If a man dies childless, his brother shall marry the widow, and raise up children for his brother.’” ²⁵ Now there were seven brothers among us; the first married, and died childless, leaving the widow to his brother. ²⁶ The second did the same, so also the third, down to the seventh. ²⁷ Last of all, the woman herself died. ²⁸ In the resurrection, then, whose wife of the seven will she be? For all of them had married her.”

²⁹ Jesus answered them, “You are wrong, because you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God. ³⁰ For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels^b in heaven. ³¹ And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was said to you by God, ³² ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’? He is God not of the dead, but of the living.” ³³ And when the crowd heard it, they were astounded at his teaching.

³⁴ When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, ³⁵ and one of them, a lawyer, asked him a question to test him. ³⁶ “Teacher, which commandment in the law is the greatest?” ³⁷ He said to him, “‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind.’” ³⁸ This is the greatest and first commandment. ³⁹ And a second is like it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’” ⁴⁰ On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.”

⁴¹ Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them this question: ⁴² “What do you think of the Messiah?^c Whose son is he?” They said to him, “The son of David.” ⁴³ He said to them, “How is it then that David by the Spirit^d calls him Lord, saying,

⁴⁴ “The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand,
until I put your enemies under your feet”?”

⁴⁵ If David thus calls him Lord, how can he be his son?” ⁴⁶ No one was able to give him an answer, nor from that day did anyone dare to ask him any more questions.

23 Then Jesus said to the crowds and to his disciples, ² “The scribes and the Pharisees sit on Moses’ seat; ³ therefore, do whatever they teach you and follow it; but

^a Other ancient authorities read who say that there is no resurrection

^b Other ancient authorities add of God

^c Or Christ

^d Gk in spirit

about a denarius a year. Emperor, Tiberius Caesar (14–37 ce). 18: Hypocrites, 6.2n. 20: A typical silver denarius of Tiberias’s day would have his portrait on the obverse and the Latin inscription “Tiberius Caesar Augustus, Son of the Divine Augustus” on the reverse. 23: Sadducees, see introduction. 24: Moses said, Deut 25.5; cf. Gen 38.7–11. 30: Marry, in the coming age men no longer marry and women are no longer given in marriage. Like angels, since angels are eternal, they do not need to reproduce; the same holds true for the resurrected dead. 32: Ex 3.6. Otherwise God would have said, “I was the God of Abraham.” 34–40: For Matthew, the love commandment is preeminent; all other commandments are subsidiary and to be interpreted and performed out of love for God and one’s neighbor. 37: Deut 6.4–5. 39: 19.19; Lev 19.18. 44–45: Jesus replies with a query of his own. In Ps 110.1 David (reputed author of the Psalms) describes the Lord (God) as speaking to my Lord (the Messiah). How can David’s Lord be his son, since it is invariably sons who call their fathers “my lord”?

23.1–39: The denunciation of the scribes and Pharisees (Mk 12.38–40; Lk 11.37–52; 13.34–35; 20.45–47). This chapter contains the harshest and most sustained criticism of the scribes and Pharisees in the Gospels; cf. the Introduction. Some scholars regard ch 23 as part of Matthew’s fifth discourse (chs 24–25), but Matthew shifts the latter to a new setting (see 24.1). 2: Moses’ seat, either a stone seat for synagogue leaders or a receptacle for the Torah scroll. 3: Do whatever they teach you, a surprising directive from Matthew’s Jesus. It may mean, do not do as they do, for they do not practice what they teach.⁴ They tie up heavy burdens, hard to bear,^a and lay them on the shoulders of others; but they themselves are unwilling to lift a finger to move them.⁵ They do all their deeds to be seen by others; for they make their phylacteries broad and their fringes long.⁶ They love to have the place of honor at banquets and the best seats in the synagogues,⁷ and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have people call them rabbi.⁸ But you are not to be called rabbi, for you have one teacher, and you are all students.^b ⁹ And call no one your father on earth, for you have one Father—the one in heaven.¹⁰ Nor are you to be called instructors, for you have one instructor, the Messiah.^c ¹¹ The greatest among you will be your servant.¹² All who exalt themselves will be humbled, and all who humble themselves will be exalted.

¹³ “But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you lock people out of the kingdom of heaven. For you do not go in yourselves, and when others are going in, you stop them.^d ¹⁵ Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you cross sea and land to make a single convert, and you make the new convert twice as much a child of hell as yourselves.

¹⁶ “Woe to you, blind guides, who say, ‘Whoever swears by the sanctuary is bound by nothing, but whoever swears by the gold of the sanctuary is bound by the oath.’ ¹⁷ You blind fools! For which is greater, the gold or the sanctuary that has made the gold sacred? ¹⁸ And you say, ‘Whoever swears by the altar is bound by nothing, but whoever swears by the gift that is on the altar is bound by the oath.’ ¹⁹ How blind you are! For which is greater, the gift or the altar that makes the gift sacred? ²⁰ So whoever swears by the altar, swears by it and by everything on it; ²¹ and whoever swears by the sanctuary, swears by it and by the one who dwells in it; ²² and whoever swears by heaven, swears by the throne of God and by the one who is seated upon it.

²³ “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you tithe mint, dill, and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faith. It is these you ought to have practiced without neglecting the others. ²⁴ You blind guides! You strain out a gnat but swallow a camel!

²⁵ “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you clean the outside of the cup and of the plate, but inside they are full of greed and self-indulgence. ²⁶ You blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup,^f so that the outside also may become clean.

²⁷ “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs, which on the outside look beautiful, but inside they are full of the bones of the dead and of all kinds of filth. ²⁸ So you also on the outside look righteous to others, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.

²⁹ “Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you build the tombs of the prophets and decorate the graves of the righteous,³⁰ and you say, ‘If we had lived

^a Other ancient authorities lack hard to bear

^b Gk brothers

^c Or the Christ

^d Other authorities add here (or after verse 12) verse 14, Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows' houses and for the sake of appearance you make long prayers; therefore you will receive the greater condemnation

^e Gk Gehenna

^f Other ancient authorities add and of the plate

“Follow their guidelines if you must, but by no means follow their example.” 4: Heavy burdens, contrast 11.30. 5: Phylacteries, small cases (“tefillin”), often made of leather, containing scriptural passages such as Deut 6.4–9. They were strapped to the left arm and forehead during prayer (Deut 6.8). Fringes, tassels (“tsitsit”) attached to the corners of an outer garment or prayer shawl (Num 15.38). 6: Place of honor, normally, the place nearest the host. 7: Rabbi, a designation of respect; lit., “my great one” or “my teacher.” 9: Father, do not use “father” as an honorific title. 13: Woe, lit., “Alas!” The seven woes given here can be contrasted with the beatitudes at 5.3–12. 15: Hypocrites, 6.2n. You cross sea and land, “you do everything possible.” New convert, a proselyte (Gentile convert) to Judaism. 16: Blind guides, 15.14. Gold of the sanctuary, perhaps the Temple treasury, which was also used as a bank. 23: Tithe, see Lev 27.30; Deut 14.22–23. 25: Cup ... plate may symbolize the Pharisees themselves. 27: Tombs were whitewashed during festivals to prevent pilgrims from touching them and ritually in the days of our ancestors, we would not have taken part with them in shedding the blood of the prophets.’³¹ Thus you testify against yourselves that you are descendants of those who murdered the prophets.³² Fill up, then, the measure of your ancestors.³³ You snakes, you brood of vipers! How can you escape being sentenced to hell?³⁴ Therefore I send you prophets, sages, and scribes, some of whom you will kill and crucify, and some you will flog in your synagogues and pursue from town to town,³⁵ so that upon you may come all the righteous blood shed on earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar.³⁶ Truly I tell you, all this will come upon this generation.

³⁷“Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! How often have I desired to gather your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!³⁸ See, your house is left to you, desolate.^b³⁹ For I tell you, you will not see me again until you say, ‘Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord.’”

24 As Jesus came out of the temple and was going away, his disciples came to point out to him the buildings of the temple.² Then he asked them, “You see all these, do you not? Truly I tell you, not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down.”

³ When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately, saying, “Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign of your coming and of the end of the age?”⁴ Jesus answered them, “Beware that no one leads you astray.⁵ For many will come in my name, saying, ‘I am the Messiah!’^c and they will lead many astray.⁶ And you will hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not alarmed; for this must take place, but the end is not yet.⁷ For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there will be famines^d and earthquakes in various places:⁸ all this is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

⁹ “Then they will hand you over to be tortured and will put you to death, and you will be hated by all nations because of my name.¹⁰ Then many will fall away,^e and they will betray one another and hate one another.¹¹ And many false prophets will arise and lead many astray.¹² And because of the increase of lawlessness, the love of many will grow cold.¹³ But the one who endures to the end will be saved.¹⁴ And this good news^f of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world, as a testimony to all the nations; and then the end will come.

^a Gk Gehenna

^b Other ancient authorities lack desolate

^c Or the Christ

^d Other ancient authorities add and pestilences

^e Or stumble

^f Or gospel

polluting themselves by contact with the dead. 34: Prophets . . . scribes, Christian missionaries. Synagogues, see 9.35n. 35: Abel, Gen 4.8–11. The allusion to Zechariah, son of Barachiah likely conflates Zechariah the martyr (son of Jehoiada, 2 Chr 24.20–22) with Zechariah the prophet (son of Berechiah, Zech 1.1). 38: Your house . . . desolate; with the destruction of the Temple, Jerusalem will be abandoned by God. 39: Ps 118.26; cf. Mt 21.9.

24.1–51: The fifth (apocalyptic) discourse. As with the mission discourse (ch 10), it is not clear whether these prophetic words speak of events that are imminent or had already occurred when the Gospel was written; probably they combine both perspectives. Matthew views some of the tribulations as consequent upon the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 CE and others as the prelude to the parousia (Second Coming).

24.1–14: The Temple’s destruction and the beginning of woes (Mk 13.1–13; Lk 21.5–19). 2: Buildings of the temple, the Jerusalem Temple was one of the most magnificent sanctuaries of the ancient world. The reconstruction begun by Herod the Great spanned eighty years (20 BCE–63 CE) and came to include separate courtyards for Gentiles, Jewish women, Jewish males, and priests. 3: Mount of Olives, a low mountain facing the east side of the Temple from across the Kidron Valley. Jesus and his disciples may have camped here during the crowded Passover festival. Zech 14.1–10 indicates that the Messiah would appear here. 8: Birth pangs, a metaphor for the onset of the end-time woes. 14: See 28.19–20.

¹⁵ “So when you see the desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, as was spoken of by the prophet Daniel (let the reader understand), ¹⁶ then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; ¹⁷ the one on the housetop must not go down to take what is in the house; ¹⁸ the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat. ¹⁹ Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! ²⁰ Pray that your flight may not be in winter or on a sabbath. ²¹ For at that time there will be great suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, and never will be. ²² And if those days had not been cut short, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be cut short. ²³ Then if anyone says to you, ‘Look! Here is the Messiah!’^a or ‘There he is!’—do not believe it. ²⁴ For false messiahs^b and false prophets will appear and produce great signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect. ²⁵ Take note, I have told you beforehand. ²⁶ So, if they say to you, ‘Look! He is in the wilderness,’ do not go out. If they say, ‘Look! He is in the inner rooms,’ do not believe it. ²⁷ For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes as far as the west, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. ²⁸ Wherever the corpse is, there the vultures will gather.

²⁹ “Immediately after the suffering of those days

the sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not give its light;
the stars will fall from heaven,
and the powers of heaven will be shaken.

³⁰ Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see ‘the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven’ with power and great glory. ³¹ And he will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

³² “From the fig tree learn its lesson: as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near. ³³ So also, when you see all these things, you know that he^c is near, at the very gates.

³⁴ Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place. ³⁵ Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

³⁶ “But about that day and hour no one knows, neither the angels of heaven, nor the Son,^d but only the Father. ³⁷ For as the days of Noah were, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. ³⁸ For as in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, ³⁹ and they knew nothing until the flood came and swept them all away, so too will be the coming of the Son of Man.

⁴⁰ Then two will be in the field; one will be taken and one will be left. ⁴¹ Two women will be grinding meal together; one will be taken and one will be left. ⁴² Keep awake therefore, for you do not know on what day^e your Lord is coming. ⁴³ But understand this: if the owner of the house had known in what part of the night the thief was coming, he would have stayed awake and would not have let his house be broken into. ⁴⁴ Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an unexpected hour.

^a Or the Christ

^b Or christs

^c Or it

^d Other ancient authorities lack nor the Son

^e Other ancient authorities read at what hour

24.15–28: The great tribulation (Mk 13.14–23; Lk 21.20–24). 15: Desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, the image of Zeus Olympios erected in the Temple by Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 BCE (Dan 9.27; 11.31; 12.11; 1 Macc 1.54; 6.7). The phrase may also refer to Gaius Caligula’s attempt in 40 CE to install an image of himself in the Jerusalem Temple. The reader, either an editorial aside (as it is translated above) or Jesus’s reference to the readers of Daniel. 16: Mountains had caves where one might hide. 19: Lk.23.28–31. 20: Winter or on a sabbath, times when travel was difficult or prohibited.

24.29–51: The coming of the Son of Man (Mk 13.24–37; Lk 21.25–33; Lk 17.26–30, 34–36; Lk 12.41–48). 29: Isa 13.10; Ezek 32.7; Joel 2.10,31; 3.15. 30: The Son of Man is himself the sign; see Dan 7.13. 31: Trumpet, see Isa 27.13; Zech 9.14; 1 Thess 4.16. 35: Cf. 5.18. 38: Noah, Gen 7.7. 51: Cut him in pieces, perhaps a figurative expression for “cut off from the community” (1QS 2.16–17).

⁴⁵ “Who then is the faithful and wise slave, whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give the other slaves^a their allowance of food at the proper time? ⁴⁶ Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. ⁴⁷ Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. ⁴⁸ But if that wicked slave says to himself, ‘My master is delayed,’ ⁴⁹ and he begins to beat his fellow slaves, and eats and drinks with drunkards, ⁵⁰ the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know. ⁵¹ He will cut him in pieces^b and put him with the hypocrites, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25 “Then the kingdom of heaven will be like this. Ten bridesmaids^c took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom.^d ² Five of them were foolish, and five were wise. ³ When the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them; ⁴ but the wise took flasks of oil with their lamps. ⁵ As the bridegroom was delayed, all of them became drowsy and slept. ⁶ But at midnight there was a shout, ‘Look! Here is the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.’ ⁷ Then all those bridesmaids^c got up and trimmed their lamps. ⁸ The foolish said to the wise, ‘Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.’ ⁹ But the wise replied, ‘No! there will not be enough for you and for us; you had better go to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.’ ¹⁰ And while they went to buy it, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went with him into the wedding banquet; and the door was shut. ¹¹ Later the other bridesmaids^c came also, saying, ‘Lord, lord, open to us.’ ¹² But he replied, ‘Truly I tell you, I do not know you.’ ¹³ Keep awake therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour.^e ¹⁴ “For it is as if a man, going on a journey, summoned his slaves and entrusted his property to them; ¹⁵ to one he gave five talents,^f to another two, to another one, to each

according to his ability. Then he went away. ¹⁶ The one who had received the five talents went off at once and traded with them, and made five more talents. ¹⁷ In the same way, the one who had the two talents made two more talents. ¹⁸ But the one who had received the one talent went off and dug a hole in the ground and hid his master’s money. ¹⁹ After a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. ²⁰ Then the one who had received the five talents came forward, bringing five more talents, saying, ‘Master, you handed over to me five talents; see, I have made five more talents.’ ²¹ His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and trustworthy slave; you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.’ ²² And the one with the two talents also came forward, saying, ‘Master, you handed over to me two talents; see, I have made two more talents.’ ²³ His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and trustworthy slave; you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.’ ²⁴ Then the one who had received the one talent also came forward, saying, ‘Master, I knew that you were a harsh man, reaping where you did not sow, and gathering where you did not scatter seed; ²⁵ so I was afraid, and I went and hid your talent in the ground. Here you have what is yours.’ ²⁶ But his master replied, ‘You wicked and lazy slave! You knew, did you, that I reap where I did not sow, and gather where I did not scatter?’ ²⁷ Then you ought to have invested my

^a Gk to give them

^b Or cut him off

^c Gk virgins

^d Other ancient authorities add and the bride

^e Other ancient authorities add in which the Son of Man is coming

^f A talent was worth more than fifteen years’ wages of a laborer

25.1–30: Two parables of the end-times (Lk 19.11–27). 1: Bridesmaids would accompany the bridegroom to the bridal chamber. Lamps, torches made from rags wrapped around the end of a pole and soaked in olive oil. Bridegroom, 9.15n. 2: Foolish ... wise, 7.24–27. 7: Trimmed their lamps, cut away the charred cloth wicks and added more oil. 13: 24.42. 14: Slaves, in Jesus’s day, it was not unusual to entrust slaves with large amounts of money and responsibility. 15: Talents, 18.24n. This parable furnishes the basis for the English word “talent.” 18: 13.44n. 19: The delay of the parousia (Jesus’s return). 23: Joy of your master, possibly the messianic banquet (8.11n.).

money with the bankers, and on my return I would have received what was my own with interest.²⁸ So take the talent from him, and give it to the one with the ten talents.²⁹ For to all those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away.³⁰ As for this worthless slave, throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’

³¹ “When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory.³² All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats,³³ and he will put the sheep at his right hand and the goats at the left.³⁴ Then the king will say to those at his right hand, ‘Come, you that are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world;’³⁵ for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me,³⁶ I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me.’³⁷ Then the righteous will answer him, ‘Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and gave you food, or thirsty and gave you something to drink?’³⁸ And when was it that we saw you a stranger and welcomed you, or naked and gave you clothing?’³⁹ And when was it that we saw you sick or in prison and visited you?’⁴⁰ And the king will answer them, ‘Truly I tell you, just as you did it to one of the least of these who are members of my family,^a you did it to me.’⁴¹ Then he will say to those at his left hand, ‘You that are accursed, depart from me into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels;’⁴² for I was hungry and you gave me no food, I was thirsty and you gave me nothing to drink,⁴³ I was a stranger and you did not welcome me, naked and you did not give me clothing, sick and in prison and you did not visit me.’⁴⁴ Then they also will answer, ‘Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry or thirsty or a stranger or naked or sick or in prison, and did not take care of you?’⁴⁵ Then he will answer them, ‘Truly I tell you, just as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to me.’⁴⁶ And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life.”

26 When Jesus had finished saying all these things, he said to his disciples,² “You know that after two days the Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.”

³ Then the chief priests and the elders of the people gathered in the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,⁴ and they conspired to arrest Jesus by stealth and kill him.⁵ But they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.”

⁶ Now while Jesus was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,^b ⁷ a woman came to him with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment, and she poured it on his head as he sat at the table.⁸ But when the disciples saw it, they were angry and said, “Why this waste?⁹ For this ointment could have been sold for a large sum, and the money given to the poor.”¹⁰ But Jesus, aware of this, said to them, “Why do you trouble the woman? She has performed a good service for me.¹¹ For you always have the poor with you, but you will not

^a Gk these my brothers

^b The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

29: Cf. 13.12.

25.31–46: The judgment of the nations. 31: The Son of Man, 8.20n. 32: 24.9; 28.19; Isa 66.18; Joel 3.2. 33: Right, the auspicious side, while left was the bad or unlucky side. The distinction between sheep and goats may reside in the fabrics the two produce: goats produce dark hair, which was used to make ill-omened sackcloth (11.21n.), while white wool was a sign of prosperity.

26.1–16: Preliminaries to the Passover (Mk 14.3–11; Lk 22.3–6; Jn 12.1–8). 1: The conclusion of Jesus’s final discourse. 2: Passover, the annual Jewish festival celebrating Israel’s exodus from Egypt (Ex 12.1–20). Crucified: Jesus’s fourth passion prediction. 3: Caiaphas, high priest ca.18–36 CE, was the son-in-law of the high priest Annas (6–15 CE; 26.57). 5: Riots were always a possibility during the major festivals. 6: Bethany, a village on the Mount of Olives just east of Jerusalem. 7: Alabaster jar, a small vial or bottle called an alabastron.

always have me. ¹² By pouring this ointment on my body she has prepared me for burial.

¹³ Truly I tell you, wherever this good news^a is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.”

¹⁴ Then one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests ¹⁵ and said, “What will you give me if I betray him to you?” They paid him thirty pieces of silver.

¹⁶ And from that moment he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

¹⁷ On the first day of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying, “Where do you want us to make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?” ¹⁸ He said, “Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, ‘The Teacher says, My time is near; I will keep the Passover at your house with my disciples.’”

¹⁹ So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them, and they prepared the Passover meal.

²⁰ When it was evening, he took his place with the twelve;^b ²¹ and while they were eating, he said, “Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me.” ²² And they became greatly distressed and began to say to him one after another, “Surely not I, Lord?” ²³ He answered, “The one who has dipped his hand into the bowl with me will betray me. ²⁴ The Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born.” ²⁵ Judas, who betrayed him, said, “Surely not I, Rabbi?” He replied, “You have said so.”

²⁶ While they were eating, Jesus took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to the disciples, and said, “Take, eat; this is my body.” ²⁷ Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, saying, “Drink from it, all of you;^c ²⁸ for this is my blood of the^c covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. ²⁹ I tell you, I will never again drink of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father’s kingdom.”

³⁰ When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

³¹ Then Jesus said to them, “You will all become deserters because of me this night; for it is written,

‘I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.’

³² But after I am raised up, I will go ahead of you to Galilee.” ³³ Peter said to him, “Though all become deserters because of you, I will never desert you.” ³⁴ Jesus said to him, “Truly I tell you, this very night, before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” ³⁵ Peter said to him, “Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you.” And so said all the disciples.

³⁶ Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, “Sit here while I go over there and pray.”

³⁷ He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be grieved and agitated. ³⁸ Then he said to them, “I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and stay awake with me.” ³⁹ And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed, “My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me; yet not what I want but what you want.” ⁴⁰ Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, “So, could you not stay awake with me one

^a Or gospel

^b Other ancient authorities add disciples

^c Other ancient authorities add new

14: Judas Iscariot, 10.4n. Thirty pieces of silver, tetradrachmas worth about one hundred and twenty denarii, a third of a year’s wages; cf. Zech 11.12.

26.17–35: The Passover and Lord’s Supper (Mk 14.12–31; Lk 22.7–23.31–34 Jn 13.21–30, 36–38; cf. 1 Cor 11.23–25). 17: First day, the fourteenth of Nisan (March–April), sometimes described as “the preparation of the Passover.” It marks the beginning of the week-long festival. 25: Rabbi, a title for Jesus that is typically used by nondisciples in Matthew (23.7n.); Judas is the only disciple to use the title in Matthew. You have said so means “Yes.” 26: Cf. 14.19; 15.36. 28: Blood of the covenant, Ex 24.8. 30: The hymn, possibly from Ps 136 or one of the Hallel Psalms (113–18). 31: I will strike . . ., Zech 13.7. 32: See 28.7,10,16–20.

26.36–56: The arrest in Gethsemane (Mk 14.32–50; Lk 22.39–53; Jn 18.3–12). 36: Gethsemane, the name means “oil press,” so the site was likely an olive grove on the Mount of Olives (Lk 22.39) with olive presses nearby. 37: Sons of Zebedee, James and John (4.21; 17.1; 20.20–23n.). 38: Cf. Ps 42.6; Jon 4.9. 39: Cup, see 20.22.

hour? ⁴¹ Stay awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial;^a the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.” ⁴² Again he went away for the second time and prayed, “My Father, if this cannot pass unless I drink it, your will be done.” ⁴³ Again he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. ⁴⁴ So leaving them again, he went away and prayed for the third time, saying the same words. ⁴⁵ Then he came to the disciples and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? See, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. ⁴⁶ Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand.”

⁴⁷ While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the elders of the people. ⁴⁸ Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, “The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him.” ⁴⁹ At once he came up to Jesus and said, “Greetings, Rabbi!” and kissed him. ⁵⁰ Jesus said to him, “Friend, do what you are here to do.” Then they came and laid hands on Jesus and arrested him. ⁵¹ Suddenly, one of those with Jesus put his hand on his sword, drew it, and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. ⁵² Then Jesus said to him, “Put your sword back into its place; for all who take the sword will perish by the sword. ⁵³ Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels? ⁵⁴ But how then would the scriptures be fulfilled, which say it must happen in this way?” ⁵⁵ At that hour Jesus said to the crowds, “Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? Day after day I sat in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. ⁵⁶ But all this has taken place, so that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled.” Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

⁵⁷ Those who had arrested Jesus took him to Caiaphas the high priest, in whose house the scribes and the elders had gathered. ⁵⁸ But Peter was following him at a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest; and going inside, he sat with the guards in order to see how this would end. ⁵⁹ Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death, ⁶⁰ but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. At last two came forward ⁶¹ and said, “This fellow said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days.’” ⁶² The high priest stood up and said, “Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?” ⁶³ But Jesus was silent. Then the high priest said to him, “I put you under oath before the living God, tell us if you are the Messiah,^b the Son of God.” ⁶⁴ Jesus said to him, “You have said so. But I tell you,

From now on you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power and coming on the clouds of heaven.”

⁶⁵ Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, “He has blasphemed! Why do we still need witnesses? You have now heard his blasphemy. ⁶⁶ What is your verdict?” They answered, “He deserves death.” ⁶⁷ Then they spat in his face and struck him; and some slapped him, ⁶⁸ saying, “Prophecy to us, you Messiah!^b Who is it that struck you?”

⁶⁹ Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant-girl came to him and said, “You also were with Jesus the Galilean.” ⁷⁰ But he denied it before all of them, saying, “I do not know what you are talking about.” ⁷¹ When he went out to the porch, another servant-girl saw him, and she said to the bystanders, “This man was with Jesus of Nazareth.”^c ⁷² Again he denied it with an oath, “I do not know the man.” ⁷³ After a little while the bystanders came up and said to

^a Or into temptation

^b Or Christ

^c Gk the Nazorean

49: Rabbi, see 26.25n. 53: In the Roman army a legion was about five thousand soldiers. 56: Scriptures, not individual passages, but the Jewish scriptures as a whole.

26.57–27.2: Jesus before the council and Pilate (Mk 14.53–15.1; Lk 22.54–23.2; Jn 18.13–27). 26.59: Whole council, the Sanhedrin, the highest council of the Jews, possessing judicial authority in noncapital cases. Judicial hearings were normally forbidden on festivals (m. San. 4.1). 61: Cf. 24.2. 63: Messiah, the Son of God, 16.16n. 64: You have said so: Jesus’s response confirms the high priest’s identification (25.25n.; 27.11). Son of Man, 8.20n. Cf.

Peter, “Certainly you are also one of them, for your accent betrays you.”⁷⁴ Then he began to curse, and he swore an oath, “I do not know the man!” At that moment the cock crowed.⁷⁵ Then Peter remembered what Jesus had said: “Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” And he went out and wept bitterly.

27 When morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people conferred together against Jesus in order to bring about his death.² They bound him, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate the governor.

³ When Judas, his betrayer, saw that Jesus^a was condemned, he repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders.⁴ He said, “I have sinned by betraying innocent^b blood.” But they said, “What is that to us? See to it yourself.”⁵ Throwing down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed; and he went and hanged himself.⁶ But the chief priests, taking the pieces of silver, said, “It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, since they are blood money.”⁷ After conferring together, they used them to buy the potter’s field as a place to bury foreigners.⁸ For this reason that field has been called the Field of Blood to this day.⁹ Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah,^c “And they took^d the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one on whom a price had been set,^e on whom some of the people of Israel had set a price,¹⁰ and they gave^f them for the potter’s field, as the Lord commanded me.”

¹¹ Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus said, “You say so.”¹² But when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he did not answer.¹³ Then Pilate said to him, “Do you not hear how many accusations they make against you?”¹⁴ But he gave him no answer, not even to a single charge, so that the governor was greatly amazed.

¹⁵ Now at the festival the governor was accustomed to release a prisoner for the crowd, anyone whom they wanted.¹⁶ At that time they had a notorious prisoner, called Jesus^g Barabbas.¹⁷ So after they had gathered, Pilate said to them, “Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus^g Barabbas or Jesus who is called the Messiah?”^h¹⁸ For he realized that it was out of jealousy that they had handed him over.¹⁹ While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent word to him, “Have nothing to do with that innocent man, for today I have suffered a great deal because of a dream about him.”²⁰ Now the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus killed.²¹ The governor again said to them, “Which of the two do you want me to release for you?” And they said, “Barabbas.”²² Pilate said to them, “Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Messiah?”^h All of them said, “Let him be crucified!”²³ Then he asked, “Why, what evil has he done?” But they shouted all the more, “Let him be crucified!”

²⁴ So when Pilate saw that he could do nothing, but rather that a riot was beginning, he took some water and washed his hands before the crowd, saying, “I am innocent of this man’s blood;ⁱ see to it yourselves.”

²⁵ Then the people as a whole answered, “His blood be on us and on our children!”²⁶ So he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

^a Gk he

^b Other ancient authorities read righteous

^c Other ancient authorities read Zechariah or Isaiah

^d Or I took

^e Or the price of the precious One

^f Other ancient authorities read I gave

^g Other ancient authorities lack Jesus

^h Or the Christ

ⁱ Other ancient authorities read this righteous blood, or this righteous man’s blood

Ps 110.1; Dan 7.13. 75: 26.34. 27.2: Pilate the governor, Roman administrator of Judea, 26–36 CE.

27.3–10: The death of Judas. Compare Acts 1.18–20. 9–10: A fulfillment citation from Zech 11.12–13, with echoes of Jer 32.6–9.

27.11–31: Jesus on trial before Pilate (Mk 15.2–20; Lk 23.3–5,13–25; Jn 18.33–19.16). 11: 26.64n. 16: Barabbas (“son of the father” or “son of Abba”) was a common Jewish name. 19: Judgment seat, a raised, paved area outside Pilate’s residence. Dream, this episode is unique to Matthew. 24: Washed his hands, Deut 21.6; Ps 73.13. 25: Children, an

²⁷ Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the governor's headquarters,³ and they gathered the whole cohort around him. ²⁸ They stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him,²⁹ and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on his head. They put a reed in his right hand and knelt before him and mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" ³⁰ They spat on him, and took the reed and struck him on the head. ³¹ After mocking him, they stripped him of the robe and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him away to crucify him.

³² As they went out, they came upon a man from Cyrene named Simon; they compelled this man to carry his cross. ³³ And when they came to a place called Golgotha (which means Place of a Skull), ³⁴ they offered him wine to drink, mixed with gall; but when he tasted it, he would not drink it. ³⁵ And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots;^b ³⁶ then they sat down there and kept watch over him. ³⁷ Over his head they put the charge against him, which read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews."

³⁸ Then two bandits were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left. ³⁹ Those who passed by derided^c him, shaking their heads ⁴⁰ and saying, "You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross." ⁴¹ In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying, ⁴² "He saved others; he cannot save himself.^d He is the King of Israel; let him come down from the cross now, and we will believe in him. ⁴³ He trusts in God; let God deliver him now, if he wants to; for he said, 'I am God's Son.'" ⁴⁴ The bandits who were crucified with him also taunted him in the same way.

⁴⁵ From noon on, darkness came over the whole land^e until three in the afternoon. ⁴⁶ And about three o'clock Jesus cried with a loud voice, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" ⁴⁷ When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, "This man is calling for Elijah." ⁴⁸ At once one of them ran and got a sponge, filled it with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink. ⁴⁹ But the others said, "Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to save him."^f ⁵⁰ Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice and breathed his last.^g ⁵¹ At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. The earth shook, and the rocks were split. ⁵² The tombs also were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised. ⁵³ After his resurrection they came out of the tombs and entered the holy city and appeared to many. ⁵⁴ Now when the centurion and those with him, who were keeping watch over Jesus, saw

^a Gk the praetorium

^b Other ancient authorities add in order that what had been spoken through the prophet might be fulfilled, "They divided my clothes among themselves, and for my clothing they cast lots."

^c Or blasphemed

^d Or is he unable to save himself?

^e Or earth

^f Other ancient authorities add And another took a spear and pierced his side, and out came water and blood

^g Or gave up his spirit indication that the next generation would experience the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 CE. 27: The governor's headquarters (see textual note a), Pilate's residence (Jn 19.13). Whole cohort, ca. 600–1,000 soldiers.

27:32–56: The crucifixion and death of Jesus (Mk 15.21–41; Lk 23.26–49; Jn 19.17–30). 32: Simon, Mk 15.21. 33: Golgotha is Aramaic for skull. 34: Gall, a bitter, poisonous plant (see Ps 69.21). 35: See Ps 22.18 and note b. 37: King of the Jews, the official charge against Jesus was inscribed on a tablet. The charge suggests that he was considered a political threat (2.2). 45: Darkness, Amos 8.9. 46: Eli . . ., an Aramaic translation of Ps 22.1. The invocation to God ("Eli," "my God") sounds similar to the name Elijah ("The Lord is my God"). 47: Elijah was popularly regarded as a helper to those in need. 51: The curtain of the temple, a large tapestry that hung in front of the Holy of Holies, the innermost room of the Temple. The earth shook, 28.2. 53: The holy city, Jerusalem. 54: God's Son, the first acclamation of Jesus as Son of God by a Gentile. 56: Mary Magdalene, 27.61; 28.1; Mk 16.9; Lk 8.2. Magdala was a fishing town on the west coast of the Sea of Galilee, northwest of Tiberias. Sons of Zebedee, see 26.37n.

the earthquake and what took place, they were terrified and said, “Truly this man was God’s Son!”^a ⁵⁵ Many women were also there, looking on from a distance; they had followed Jesus from Galilee and had provided for him. ⁵⁶ Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

⁵⁷ When it was evening, there came a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who was also a disciple of Jesus. ⁵⁸ He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus; then Pilate ordered it to be given to him. ⁵⁹ So Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth ⁶⁰ and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock. He then rolled a great stone to the door of the tomb and went away. ⁶¹ Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the tomb.

⁶² The next day, that is, after the day of Preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered before Pilate ⁶³ and said, “Sir, we remember what that impostor said while he was still alive, ‘After three days I will rise again.’ ⁶⁴ Therefore command the tomb to be made secure until the third day; otherwise his disciples may go and steal him away, and tell the people, ‘He has been raised from the dead,’ and the last deception would be worse than the first.” ⁶⁵ Pilate said to them, “You have a guard^b of soldiers; go, make it as secure as you can.”^c ⁶⁶ So they went with the guard and made the tomb secure by sealing the stone.

28 After the sabbath, as the first day of the week was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the tomb. ² And suddenly there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord, descending from heaven, came and rolled back the stone and sat on it. ³ His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. ⁴ For fear of him the guards shook and became like dead men. ⁵ But the angel said to the women, “Do not be afraid; I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. ⁶ He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he^d lay. ⁷ Then go quickly and tell his disciples, ‘He has been raised from the dead,^e and indeed he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him.’ This is my message for you.” ⁸ So they left the tomb quickly with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. ⁹ Suddenly Jesus met them and said, “Greetings!” And they came to him, took hold of his feet, and worshiped him. ¹⁰ Then Jesus said to them, “Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me.”

¹¹ While they were going, some of the guard went into the city and told the chief priests everything that had happened. ¹² After the priests^f had assembled with the elders, they devised a plan to give a large sum of money to the soldiers, ¹³ telling them, “You must say, ‘His disciples came by night and stole him away while we were asleep.’ ¹⁴ If this comes to the governor’s ears, we will satisfy him and keep you out of trouble.” ¹⁵ So they took the money and did as they were directed. And this story is still told among the Jews to this day.

^a Or a son of God

^b Or Take a guard

^c Gk you know how

^d Other ancient authorities read the Lord

^e Other ancient authorities lack from the dead

^f Gk they

27:57–66: The burial of Jesus and the guard at the tomb. (Mk 15.42–47; Lk 23.50–56; Jn 19.38–42). 57: Evening, burials were not permitted on the sabbath. 61: Other Mary, the mother of James and Joseph (27.56; 28.1). 62: After the day of Preparation, the sabbath (Saturday). Friday was the day of Preparation. The Pharisees, last mentioned at 23.29, were not involved in Jesus’s trial and crucifixion. 65: Guard of soldiers, Roman soldiers, not the Temple police.

28.1–15: The resurrection of Jesus and the guards’ report (Mk 16.1–8; Lk 24.1–12; Jn 20.1–10). 1: First day of the week, Sunday. The other Mary, 27.61n. 2: 27.51. 7: Galilee, 26.32; Mk 16.7; contrast Acts 1.4; Jn 20.19. 9: Here, as in the other Gospels, Jesus’s women disciples are the first to witness the risen Jesus. 10: My brothers, Jesus identifies his disciples as “brothers,” indicating his ongoing love for them despite their lapses. 14: Governor’s ears, an investigation before Pilate. 15: Not among the Jews but “among Jews,” i.e., among Jews who had not accepted the Christian message.

¹⁶ Now the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had directed them. ¹⁷ When they saw him, they worshiped him; but some doubted. ¹⁸ And Jesus came and said to them, “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. ¹⁹ Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, ²⁰ and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you. And remember, I am with you always, to the end of the age.”^a

^a Other ancient authorities add Amen

28.16–20: The commissioning of the disciples (Mk 16.14–18; Lk 24.36–49; Jn 20.19–23; Acts 1.6–8). 17: Some doubted, doubt still characterizes some of the disciples in Matthew. 18: All authority, 7.29n. 9.6; Dan 7.13–14. 19: All nations, all people, including the Jews. Baptizing becomes the rite of entry. 20. I am with you, 18.20; 1.23n.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK

CANONICAL STATUS

Among canonical Gospels, Mark features the briefest account of Jesus's life, death, and resurrection. Yet its authoritative status is clear from its use in Matthew and Luke and its inclusion in the biblical codices of the fourth century, where it is placed second, between Matthew and Luke.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Mark was written anonymously. The designation “according to Mark” was added in the second century CE, as Gospels began to circulate beyond the audiences for whom they were written. One early second-century source claims that “Mark” was the apostle Peter’s “interpreter” at the end of Peter’s life, but no other evidence confirms that connection. Others have identified Mark as the “John Mark” who traveled with the apostle Paul (see Acts 12.12,25; 15.37–39; Col 4.10; 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24), but none of these passages link John Mark with a written Gospel.

Though the author’s identity is unknown, scholars find clues about its author in the Gospel itself. For example, its awkward style suggests that Greek was not the author’s first language. Other details, such as the imprecise citation of Jewish scripture (1.2), the over-generalized portrait of Jewish practice (7.3–4), and problematic geographical details (5.1,13) suggest that the evangelist was a Hellenized Jew who lived outside of Palestine.

The Gospel appears to address a mixed audience of Jews and Gentiles who faced persecution because of their devotion to Jesus of Nazareth as the long-awaited Jewish messiah. Early church tradition saw ties to the Christian community in Rome, where Nero punished Christians as scapegoats for the fire in 64 CE, which raged for nine days and devastated much of the city (see Tacitus, Annals 15.44). Most scholars today opt for a different context in the same time period. They argue that specific details in Mark 13.9–13 are better suited to a setting in Syria-Palestine, where Jesus’s followers may have been hated by both Jews and Gentiles for not taking sides, in the Jewish War (66–72 CE).

CONTENTS AND STRUCTURE

The Gospel may be outlined as follows:

- I. Prologue: Jesus’s Baptism and appearance in Galilee (1.1–15)
- II. Jesus’s messianic mission: word and deed (1.16–8.26)
 - A. Jesus in and around Galilee (1.16–4.41)
 - B. Across the sea and back (5.1–6.52)
 - C. Jesus among the Gentiles (6.53–8.26)
- III. Jesus’s messianic mission: sacrifice (8.27–15.47)
 - A. The way of the cross (8.27–10.52)
 - B. Jesus’s destiny in Jerusalem (11.1–15.47)
- IV. Epilogue: Jesus’s resurrection (16.1–8) and appearance [16.9–20]

Mark begins and ends abruptly, omitting several episodes and teachings found in the other Gospels (e.g., Jesus’s birth; the Sermon on the Mount; postresurrection appearances). In its first half, Mark emphasizes Jesus’s miraculous powers more than his teaching. Its second half pivots toward the “way of the cross,” as the story aligns Jesus’s destiny in Jerusalem with that of his followers. Along the way, Mark’s narrative is fraught with perplexing motifs such as Jesus’s insistence on secrecy and the disciples’ repeated misunderstanding.

The Gospel is constructed around the unifying message announced at the beginning: the “good news” that God’s kingdom has drawn near (1.14–15). Both Jesus’s deeds of power and his destined suffering expose the contours of that divine reign taking root on earth through Jesus and, by extension, through those he gathers as its subjects. Indeed, the Gospel’s original ending at Mark 16.8 leaves readers, implicitly rather than explicitly, to continue Jesus’s messianic mission by trusting in God’s sovereign power over evil in the postresurrection age.

INTERPRETATION

Lacking the content and polish of the other NT Gospels, Mark was often neglected. Only a few papyrus fragments survive from the period before the fourth century. Augustine thought that Mark was an abbreviation of Matthew. Yet modern readers have turned to this sometimes-puzzling story with renewed interest. Since scholars generally agree that Mark is the earliest written Gospel, it may include facets of Jesus's historical ministry that have been reshaped by later evangelists. From a different perspective, literary critics have found artistry in a story long disparaged for its crudeness; for instance, Mark often tells a "story within a story" (a technique called "intercalation") to sharpen thematic contrast (14.1–11) or emphasize important motifs (5.21–43).

To be sure, Mark still appears problematic to many readers: Jesus utters confounding teaching (4.11–12), suppresses his identity (1.34; 3.12; etc.), and even seems to question God (14.36; 15.34). For their part, his disciples misunderstand Jesus's message again and again (4.13; 6.52; 8.17–21; etc.) and disappear when he faces death (14.27,50).

Increasingly, interpreters find that Jewish apocalyptic writings offer a helpful lens for reading Mark's story as a showdown between human and divine sovereignty. In his healings, exorcisms, and nature miracles, Mark's Jesus acts as authorized agent of the divine power emanating from God's coming kingdom; in his conflict with human authorities—religious and political—he exposes the nature of that divine power, which operates in restorative, vulnerable solidarity with the weak. Thus Mark emerges as a story that establishes the contours of God's kingdom and elicits allegiance to it. If that allegiance entails persecution, and even death, Mark's apocalyptic message ends with the hope that redemption still awaits, since the risen Lord will "go before" (14.28; cf. 16.7) the faithful as God's kingdom takes root on the earth.

Suzanne Watts Henderson

1 The beginning of the good news^a of Jesus Christ, the Son of God.^b

² As it is written in the prophet Isaiah,^c
"See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you,^d

who will prepare your way;

³ the voice of one crying out in the
wilderness:

'Prepare the way of the Lord,
make his paths straight,'"

⁴ John the baptizer appeared^e in the wilderness, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins. ⁵ And people from the whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem were going out to him, and were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. ⁶ Now John was clothed with camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist, and he ate locusts and wild honey. ⁷ He proclaimed, "The one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to stoop down and untie the

^a Or gospel

^b Other ancient authorities lack the Son of God

^c Other ancient authorities read in the prophets

^d Gk before your face

^e Other ancient authorities read John was baptizing

1.1–15: Prologue: Jesus's baptism and appearance in Galilee. Mark sets Jesus's story against the backdrop of biblical prophecy and the career of John the Baptist.

1.1: Introduction. Good news, language associated in Jewish scripture with God's decisive defeat of opposing forces (Isa 40.9; 52.7; 61.1) and in Roman imperial propaganda with the birth of Caesar. Of Jesus Christ, an ambiguous phrase grammatically, meaning that Jesus both proclaims and embodies the "good news" that God's kingdom has drawn near (see 1.14–15). Though Christ (from Gk "Christos," which translates Heb "mashiah," both meaning "anointed") originally referred broadly to kings, priests, or prophets, some Jewish groups in the first century CE thought that a specially "anointed one" would preside over God's kingdom on earth in a political and/or religious sense.

1.2–8: John appears in the wilderness (Mt 3.1–12; Lk 3.1–20; Jn 1.19–28). 2–3: Mark combines Isa 40.3 with elements of Ex 23.20 and Mal 3.1. Wilderness, or "deserted place," an important theme in Mark (1.4,12,13,35,45; 6.31,32,35) and the biblical setting of Israel's deliverance (Ex 6; 13.17–22; Isa 41.18–20; 43.19–21; Hos 2.14–15). 4: Baptism . . . sins, a ritual cleansing performed, in this case, apart from institutional religious sanction and preparing for God's renewal of the earth. See Isa 1.16–17. 6: John's clothing resembles the prophet Elijah's (2 Kings 1.8; cf. Mal 4.5–6); cf. 6.15; 8.28; 15.35–36. 7: More powerful than I, possible allusion to a messianic figure (see Isa 11.2; Pss. Sol. 17.37; cf. Mk 3.27).

thong of his sandals. ⁸ I have baptized you with^a water; but he will baptize you with^a the Holy Spirit.”

⁹ In those days Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. ¹⁰ And just as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him.

¹¹ And a voice came from heaven, “You are my Son, the Beloved;^b with you I am well pleased.”

¹² And the Spirit immediately drove him out into the wilderness. ¹³ He was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan; and he was with the wild beasts; and the angels waited on him.

¹⁴ Now after John was arrested, Jesus came to Galilee, proclaiming the good news^c of God,^d ¹⁵ and saying, “The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near;^e repent, and believe in the good news.”^c

¹⁶ As Jesus passed along the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. ¹⁷ And Jesus said to them, “Follow me and I will make you fish for people.”

¹⁸ And immediately they left their nets and followed him. ¹⁹ As he went a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John, who were in their boat mending the nets. ²⁰ Immediately he called them; and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

²¹ They went to Capernaum; and when the sabbath came, he entered the synagogue and taught. ²² They were astounded at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. ²³ Just then there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, ²⁴ and he cried out, “What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God.” ²⁵ But Jesus rebuked him, saying, “Be silent, and come out of him!” ²⁶ And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying with a loud voice, came out of

^a Or in

^b Or my beloved Son

^c Or gospel

^d Other ancient authorities read of the kingdom

^e Or is at hand

1.9–11: John baptizes Jesus (Mt 3.13–17; Lk 3.21–22; Jn 1.29–34). 9: From Nazareth, a small village in southern Galilee, the base for Jesus’s public ministry (1.14,16; 39; 3.7; 7.31; 9.30; etc.). 10: Torn apart, the rending of the heavens accompanies the divine penetration of the created realm (Isa 64.1; Ezek 1.1; see also Mk 15.38), through the Spirit (see Joel 2.28–32; Acts 2.17–22). 11: My Son, the Beloved, combines Ps 2.7 with Isa 42.1 to assign royal status to God’s servant. Cf. 1.1; 9.7; 14.61; 15.39.

1.12–13: Wilderness testing (cf. Mt 4.1–11; Lk 4.1–13). Mark does not elaborate on the nature of Jesus’s testing. 12: Immediately, a typically Markan term that lends urgency to the story. 13: Satan, a powerful evil figure who opposes power associated with God’s coming kingdom (see 3.23–27; 4.15; 8.33).

1.14–15: Opening proclamation (Mt 4.12–17; Lk 4.14–15). 14: Good news of God, the message that “the kingdom of God has come near” (v. 15) in the life and death of Jesus. 15: Time is fulfilled, i.e., the “season” of God’s renewal of the world approaches. Cf. 11.13; 12.2; also Ezek 7.12; Dan 7.22; Rev 1.3. Repent, and believe, or “turn around and trust”; Jesus summons exclusive allegiance to God’s sovereign power.

1.16–8.26: Jesus’s messianic mission: word and deed.

1.16–4.41: Jesus in and around Galilee.

1.16–20: First call to discipleship (Mt 4.18–22; cf. Lk 5.1–11; Jn 1.35–51). 16: Sea of Galilee, technically a freshwater lake, sometimes called Gennesaret. Simon, that is, Peter, Jesus’s most prominent disciple (see 3.16; 8.29; 9.2; 14.66–72; 16.7). 17: Fish for people, both a play on words and a biblical allusion (see Jer 16.16). 20: Hired men, an indication that fishing was a profitable business venture in the first century.

1.21–28: Jesus in Capernaum (Mt 7.28–29; Lk 4.33–37). 21: Capernaum, located on the sea’s northwest coast. Synagogue, lit., a “gathering,” typically for religious instruction and prayer. 22: Scribes, religious leaders whose literacy and training in Jewish law gave them elite status and who often oppose Jesus in Mark. 23: Unclean spirit, demonic force associated with physical or mental disease; see also 1.27; 3.11,30; 5.2. 24: Holy One of God, a name that contrasts with unclean spirit and has both prophetic (2 Kings 4.9) and priestly (Ps 106.16) connotations. 25: Rebuked . . . silent, a Markan motif that stresses Jesus’s authoritative command over evil forces, often to suppress him.²⁷ They were all amazed, and they kept on asking one another, “What is this? A new teaching—with authority! He^a commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him.”²⁸ At once his fame began to spread throughout the surrounding region of Galilee.

²⁹ As soon as they^b left the synagogue, they entered the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.³⁰ Now Simon’s mother-in-law was in bed with a fever, and they told him about her at once.³¹ He came and took her by the hand and lifted her up. Then the fever left her, and she began to serve them.

³² That evening, at sunset, they brought to him all who were sick or possessed with demons.³³ And the whole city was gathered around the door.³⁴ And he cured many who were sick with various diseases, and cast out many demons; and he would not permit the demons to speak, because they knew him.

³⁵ In the morning, while it was still very dark, he got up and went out to a deserted place, and there he prayed.³⁶ And Simon and his companions hunted for him.³⁷ When they found him, they said to him, “Everyone is searching for you.”³⁸ He answered, “Let us go on to the neighboring towns, so that I may proclaim the message there also; for that is what I came out to do.”³⁹ And he went throughout Galilee, proclaiming the message in their synagogues and casting out demons.

⁴⁰ A leper^c came to him begging him, and kneeling^d he said to him, “If you choose, you can make me clean.”⁴¹ Moved with pity,^e Jesus^f stretched out his hand and touched him, and said to him, “I do choose. Be made clean!”⁴² Immediately the leprosy^c left him, and he was made clean.⁴³ After sternly warning him he sent him away at once,⁴⁴ saying to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”⁴⁵ But he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the word, so that Jesus^f could no longer go into a town openly, but stayed out in the country; and people came to him from every quarter.

2 When he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home.² So many gathered around that there was no longer room for them, not even in front of the door; and he was speaking the word to them.³ Then some people^g came, bringing to him a paralyzed man, carried

^a Or A new teaching! With authority he

^b Other ancient authorities read he

^c The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

^d Other ancient authorities lack kneeling

^e Other ancient authorities read anger

^f Gk he

^g Gk they

public acclaim; see also 1.34,43–44; 3.12; 8.30; 9.30. 27: The exorcism combines with Jesus’s teaching (1.22) to confirm his authority in word and deed.

1.29–34: Healings at Simon’s house (Mt 8.14–17; Lk 4.38–41). 30: Simon’s mother-in-law, suggests that Peter was married. See 1 Cor 9.5. 31: Jesus’s healing power emanates through physical touch, which often violates purity codes that require separation from disease, blood, and death; see also 1.41; 3.10; 5.28; 6.56; 7.33; 8.23. Serve them, possibly in a financial sense (cf. 15.41). 32–34: A summary report that is typical in Mark; see also 3.7–12; 6.53–56. Not permit the demons to speak, see 1.25n.

1.35–39: Jesus throughout Galilee (Mt 4.23–25; Lk 4.42–44). 35: Deserted place, or “wilderness”; see 1.3n. 39: Together, Jesus’s proclaiming the message (lit., “word”) and his casting out demons bear witness to the dawn of God’s kingdom on earth. See 1.27.

1.40–45: Jesus cures a man who had leprosy (Mt 8.2–4; Lk 5.12–16). 40: Leper, a person with a highly contagious skin disease who was deemed ritually impure and thus banished from the community (see Lev 13–14). 41: Pity, attested in most ancient manuscripts (see also 6.34; 9.22). The alternative reading, which claims Jesus was “moved by anger,” may be original. Touched him, see 1.31n. 43–44: Earlier, Jesus commanded evil spirits to remain silent (see 1.25n.); here, the injunction applies to the healed man. Show yourself to the priest, Jesus promotes adherence to religious protocol, since it will restore the man’s social and religious status. 45: Word, i.e., the message about God’s sovereign power unleashed in the world.

2.1–3.6: A series of controversy stories. 2.1–12: The controversy about forgiveness (Mt 9.1–8; Lk 5.17–26). 1: At home, or, “in a home.” The Gospels do not name Capernaum as Jesus’s “home.” 2: Speaking the word, that is,

by four of them.⁴ And when they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and after having dug through it, they let down the mat on which the paralytic lay.⁵ When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, “Son, your sins are forgiven.”⁶ Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts,⁷ “Why does this fellow speak in this way? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?”⁸ At once Jesus perceived in his spirit that they were discussing these questions among themselves; and he said to them, “Why do you raise such questions in your hearts?⁹ Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Stand up and take your mat and walk?’¹⁰ But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he said to the paralytic—¹¹ “I say to you, stand up, take your mat and go to your home.”¹² And he stood up, and immediately took the mat and went out before all of them; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, “We have never seen anything like this!”

¹³ Jesus^a went out again beside the sea; the whole crowd gathered around him, and he taught them.¹⁴ As he was walking along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax booth, and he said to him, “Follow me.” And he got up and followed him.

¹⁵ And as he sat at dinner^b in Levi’s^c house, many tax collectors and sinners were also sitting^d with Jesus and his disciples—for there were many who followed him.¹⁶ When the scribes of^e the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they said to his disciples, “Why does he eat^f with tax collectors and sinners?”¹⁷ When Jesus heard this, he said to them, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners.”

¹⁸ Now John’s disciples and the Pharisees were fasting; and people^g came and said to him, “Why do John’s disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?”¹⁹ Jesus said to them, “The wedding guests cannot fast while the bridegroom is with them, can they? As long as they have the bridegroom with them, they cannot fast.

^a Gk He

^b Gk reclined

^c Gk his

^d Gk reclining

^e Other ancient authorities read and

^f Other ancient authorities add and drink

^g Gk they

the message about God’s coming kingdom (see 1.14–15; 1.45n.). 4: A roof was usually flat, made of mud plaster over a wood framework. 5: Their faith, the friends implicitly trust Jesus’s access to God’s sovereign power and thus inspire Jesus to pronounce the man’s spiritual restoration. On faith as operative for healing, see 5.34,36; 10.52; 11.22; cf. 6.6a; 9.23–24. 7: Blasphemy, a charge arising from the view that God alone can grant forgiveness and does so through religious ritual. 10: Son of Man, or, “a son of the human one,” an ambiguous term that appears frequently in Mark (see 2.28; 8.31,38; 9.9,12. 31; 10.33,45; 13.26; 14.21,41,62) and likely identifies Jesus as authorized prototype for the “new humanity” that will inhabit God’s coming kingdom (see Dan 7.13–14). 12: Glorified God, worship is granted to the source of Jesus’s healing ability (cf. 5.19).

2.13–17: The controversy about meal practices (Mt 9.9–13; Lk 5.27–32). 14: Levi son of Alphaeus, missing from Mark’s list of twelve disciples (3.16–19; but see James son of Alphaeus, 3.18; cf. Mt 9.3; Lk 10.3). 15: Tax collectors and sinners, a stock group of religious outcasts. “Tax (or toll) collectors” often exacted and pocketed heavy surcharges on tolls due to the Roman government. “Sinners” were those who failed to observe the requirements of the Torah. 16: Scribes of the Pharisees, on “scribes,” see 1.22n. “Pharisees” were similarly devoted to the application of Torah in daily life and appear throughout Mark as Jesus’s opponents (2.24; 3.6; 7.1; 8.11,15; 10.2; 12.13). Jesus’s table fellowship with “outsiders” violated current interpretation of biblical law because of the defilement it entailed. 17: Jesus uses a familiar philosophical aphorism to characterize his mission. The righteous are those in good standing with religious authorities.

2.18–22: The controversy about fasting (Mt 9.14–17; Lk 5.33–39). 18: Fasting was a Jewish practice performed in observance of liturgical seasons (Lev 16.29; Zech 7.5) and, at other times, in conjunction with repentance (Ezra 8.21–23; Jon 3.7–9). Apocalyptic figures such as John probably promoted fasting in preparation for the “day of the Lord.” 19: Wedding imagery sometimes depicts God’s sovereign rule established on earth (Isa 54.4–8;

²⁰ The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day.

²¹ “No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak; otherwise, the patch pulls away from it, the new from the old, and a worse tear is made. ²² And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise, the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is lost, and so are the skins; but one puts new wine into fresh wineskins.”^a

²³ One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. ²⁴ The Pharisees said to him, “Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?” ²⁵ And he said to them, “Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry and in need of food? ²⁶ He entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and he gave some to his companions.” ²⁷ Then he said to them, “The sabbath was made for humankind, and not humankind for the sabbath; ²⁸ so the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath.”

3 Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. ² They watched him to see whether he would cure him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. ³ And he said to the man who had the withered hand, “Come forward.” ⁴ Then he said to them, “Is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to kill?” But they were silent. ⁵ He looked around at them with anger; he was grieved at their hardness of heart and said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. ⁶ The Pharisees went out and immediately conspired with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

⁷ Jesus departed with his disciples to the sea, and a great multitude from Galilee followed him; ⁸ hearing all that he was doing, they came to him in great numbers from Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, beyond the Jordan, and the region around Tyre and Sidon. ⁹ He told his disciples to have a boat ready for him because of the crowd, so that they would not crush him; ¹⁰ for he had cured many, so that all who had diseases pressed upon him to touch him. ¹¹ Whenever the unclean spirits saw him, they fell down before him and shouted, “You are the Son of God!” ¹² But he sternly ordered them not to make him known.

^a Other ancient authorities lack but one puts new wine into fresh wineskins

62.4–5). Early Christian writers portrayed Jesus as bridegroom (2 Cor 11.2; Eph 5.32; Rev 19.7). 21–22: Jesus’s followers already belong to God’s coming kingdom; as a result, their practices do not conform to habit of the “present evil age” (Gal 1.4).

2.23–28: The controversy about harvesting on the sabbath (Mt 12.1–8; Lk 6.1–5). 23: biblical law mandates that landowners allow sojourners access to their agricultural produce (Lev 19.9–10; 23.22; Deut 24.19–20). 24: Not lawful, a ruling on a hotly debated topic—i.e., whether harvesting food to eat constituted “work” (see Ex 20.8–10; Deut 5.12–15). 25–26. In 1 Sam 21.1–6, the high priest in the story is not Abiathar (see 1 Sam 22.20; 2 Sam 15.35) but his father, Ahimelech, an error corrected in Mt 12.4 and Lk 6.4. Bread of the Presence, twelve loaves placed in the sanctuary every sabbath (Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9). 27–28: Jesus’s authority (1.22) extends to his disciples. As the Son of Man, Jesus incorporates his followers into the new humanity he establishes (see 2.10n.).

3.1–6: The controversy about healing on the sabbath (Mt 12.9–14; Lk 6.6–11). 1: Synagogue, see 1.21n. 2: Healing on the sabbath, unless someone’s life was at stake, is questionable in some rabbinic sources (m. Yoma 8.6). 4: Jesus equates “doing good” with saving life. 5: Anger . . . grieved, emotional language (cf. 1.41; 6.34; 9.22; 14.19) that contrasts with the Pharisees’ “hardness of heart” (Ex 7.3; Ps 95.8; cf. 6.52; 8.17; 10.5). 6: Herodians, supporters or officials of the Roman client king Herod Antipas (6.14–29), who ruled Galilee and part of Transjordan from 4 BCE to 39 CE.

3.7–12: Jesus’s growing acclaim (Mt 4.24–25; 12.15–16; Lk 6.17–19). Another Markan summary report (see 1.32–34n.). 7: Sea, the Sea of Galilee. See 1.16n. Great multitude, Jesus’s following grows as opposition intensifies. 8: Jesus attracts a large and diverse group, both ethnically and geographically. 10: Touch him, see 1.31n. 11: Unclean spirits, see 1.23n. Fell down before him, a posture of worship; see 1.40; 5.6, 22, 33; 7.25. Son of God, In Mark, Jesus’s identity as God’s son is more evident to spiritual forces than to humans (see 1.11; 9.7; cf. 15.39). 12: See 1.25n.

¹³ He went up the mountain and called to him those whom he wanted, and they came to him. ¹⁴ And he appointed twelve, whom he also named apostles,^a to be with him, and to be sent out to proclaim the message,¹⁵ and to have authority to cast out demons. ¹⁶ So he appointed the twelve:^b Simon (to whom he gave the name Peter); ¹⁷ James son of Zebedee and John the brother of James (to whom he gave the name Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder); ¹⁸ and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Cananaean, ¹⁹ and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him.

Then he went home; ²⁰ and the crowd came together again, so that they could not even eat. ²¹ When his family heard it, they went out to restrain him, for people were saying, “He has gone out of his mind.” ²² And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, “He has Beelzebul, and by the ruler of the demons he casts out demons.” ²³ And he called them to him, and spoke to them in parables, “How can Satan cast out Satan? ²⁴ If a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. ²⁵ And if a house is divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. ²⁶ And if Satan has risen up against himself and is divided, he cannot stand, but his end has come. ²⁷ But no one can enter a strong man’s house and plunder his property without first tying up the strong man; then indeed the house can be plundered.

²⁸ “Truly I tell you, people will be forgiven for their sins and whatever blasphemies they utter; ²⁹ but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit can never have forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin”—³⁰ for they had said, “He has an unclean spirit.”

³¹ Then his mother and his brothers came; and standing outside, they sent to him and called him. ³² A crowd was sitting around him; and they said to him, “Your mother and your brothers and sisters^c are outside, asking for you.” ³³ And he replied, “Who are my mother and my brothers?” ³⁴ And looking at those who sat around him, he said, “Here are my mother and my brothers! ³⁵ Whoever does the will of God is my brother and sister and mother.”

^a Other ancient authorities lack whom he also named apostles

^b Other ancient authorities lack So he appointed the twelve

^c Other ancient authorities lack and sisters

3:13–19a.: Jesus establishes a new Israel (Mt 10.1–4; Lk 6.12–16). 13: Up the mountain, like Moses (Ex 19.3–25) and Elijah (1 Kings 19.8), Jesus ascends to a high place on a divine mission; unlike them, he takes companions (but see Ex 24.9); cf. 6.46; 9.2–13. 14: Twelve corresponds to the traditional number of Israel’s tribes (see Gen 49.28; Num 1.4–16). The group constitutes a “new Israel” loyal to God’s coming kingdom. Apostles, lit., those “sent out” (cf. 6.7). Proclaim the message, deliver the same word about God’s coming kingdom that Jesus announces (1.14–15; 1.45; 2.2). 15: Authority, divine power over evil spirits (6.7,13; cf. Lk 10.17–19). 16–19: Mark’s list of apostles differs slightly from the other Gospel accounts (cf. Mt 10.2–4; Lk 6.14–16; Jn 1.40–49; 21.2). 17: Boanerges . . . sons of Thunder, Mark translates an Aramaic word for the Gospel’s Greek-speaking audience (see also 5.41; 7.11,34; 10.46; 11.9–10; 14.36; 15.22,34,42). 19a. Iscariot, an ambiguous term that probably either indicates Judas’s hometown, Qerioth, or comments on his character (“assassin” or “fraud”). Betrayed him, see 14.10–11,43–45.

3:19b–35: Jesus at home (Mt 12.22–32; Lk 11.14–23; 12.10). An intertwined intercalation of two passages, linked by the motif of household. For other examples of this technique, see 5.21–43; 11.12–25[26]; 14.1–11. 22: Scribes, see 1.22n. Jerusalem, Mark’s first mention of the city where Jesus will be executed; see 10.32–34. Beelzebul, traditionally linked with the Canaanite god Baal (see 2 Kings 1.2) but identified in Jesus’s day with Satan. 23: Parable, illustrative story that sometimes mystifies Jesus’s audience (cf. 4.3–34; 7.14–17; 12.1–12). 27: Strong man, or “powerful one”; see 1.7; also Isa 49.24–25. 28–30: Jesus reserves judgment for those who speak against the work of God’s spirit which activates his mission (1.10). 31–35: Jesus redefines the household according to ultimate loyalty to God’s will rather than bloodline. Mark may address those who had been banished from their families because of their devotion to Jesus. “Father” is notably absent from the household members (see also 6.3), perhaps implicitly making God the family’s patriarch.

4 Again he began to teach beside the sea. Such a very large crowd gathered around him that he got into a boat on the sea and sat there, while the whole crowd was beside the sea on the land. ²He began to teach them many things in parables, and in his teaching he said to them: ³“Listen! A sower went out to sow. ⁴And as he sowed, some seed fell on the path, and the birds came and ate it up. ⁵Other seed fell on rocky ground, where it did not have much soil, and it sprang up quickly, since it had no depth of soil. ⁶And when the sun rose, it was scorched; and since it had no root, it withered away. ⁷Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no grain. ⁸Other seed fell into good soil and brought forth grain, growing up and increasing and yielding thirty and sixty and a hundredfold.” ⁹And he said, “Let anyone with ears to hear listen!”

¹⁰When he was alone, those who were around him along with the twelve asked him about the parables. ¹¹And he said to them, “To you has been given the secret^a of the kingdom of God, but for those outside, everything comes in parables; ¹²in order that they may indeed look, but not perceive, and may indeed listen, but not understand; so that they may not turn again and be forgiven.”

¹³And he said to them, “Do you not understand this parable? Then how will you understand all the parables? ¹⁴The sower sows the word. ¹⁵These are the ones on the path where the word is sown: when they hear, Satan immediately comes and takes away the word that is sown in them. ¹⁶And these are the ones sown on rocky ground: when they hear the word, they immediately receive it with joy. ¹⁷But they have no root, and endure only for a while; then, when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, immediately they fall away.^b ¹⁸And others are those sown among the thorns: these are the ones who hear the word, ¹⁹but the cares of the world, and the lure of wealth, and the desire for other things come in and choke the word, and it yields nothing. ²⁰And these are the ones sown on the good soil: they hear the word and accept it and bear fruit, thirty and sixty and a hundredfold.”

²¹He said to them, “Is a lamp brought in to be put under the bushel basket, or under the bed, and not on the lampstand? ²²For there is nothing hidden, except to be disclosed; nor is anything secret, except to come to light. ²³Let anyone with ears to hear listen!” ²⁴And he said to them, “Pay attention to what you hear; the measure you give will be the measure you get, and still more will be given you. ²⁵For to those who have, more will be given; and from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away.”

²⁶He also said, “The kingdom of God is as if someone would scatter seed on the ground, ²⁷and would sleep and rise night and

^a Or mystery

^b Or stumble

4.1–34: Parables about God’s coming kingdom. 4.1–20: The sower parable (Mt 13.1–23; Lk 8.4–15). Agrarian images are common in Jewish literature and familiar to Jesus’s hearers (e.g., Isa 28.23–27; 2 Esd 4.26–32; cf. 1 Cor 3.6–8). 1: Jesus’s following continues to expand (cf. 3.7). 2: In parables, see 3.23n. 8: The yields all exceed the expected harvest of sevenfold. 10: Those . . . around him along with the Twelve, as is often the case in Mark, Jesus shifts from public (4.1) to private instruction. On the “Twelve,” see 3.13–19; 3.14n. 11: Given, Jesus has already imparted his message and power to his closest companions (cf. 3.14–15). Secret, lit., “mystery,” commonly associated with God’s purposes in apocalyptic writings; see Dan 2.18–19,27–30; Rom 11.25; 1 Cor 2.1; 15.51; Rev 1.20. Those outside, standard apocalyptic division between insiders and outsiders. 12: Isa 6.9–10. 13: Not understand, in Mark even insiders often remain befuddled; cf. 6.52; 8.17,21. 14–20: The private instruction is probably a later tradition, reflecting the adversities faced by Jesus’s followers in the decades after his death. 14: Word, see 1.45n. 15: Satan, see 1.13n.; 3.23–27; 8.33. 17: Fall away, lit., “are scandalized,” suggesting desertion from a previous allegiance; cf. 6.3; 9.42–47; 14.27. 19: Wealth, cf. 10.23–25. 20: Receptivity to the message about God’s kingdom leads organically to bounty (cf. 4.30–32).

4.21–34: Three kingdom-related parables. 4.21–25: The mystery presses toward disclosure. 21–22: Since Jesus’s closest followers have been entrusted with the message about God’s coming kingdom (see 4.11), they should ensure that it remains in full view. Lamp, see Ps 119.105; Zech 4.2. 25: Given, see 4.11n. 26–29: Another day, and the seed would sprout and grow, he does not know how.²⁸ The earth produces of itself, first the stalk, then the head, then the full grain in the head.²⁹ But when the grain is ripe, at once he goes in with his sickle, because the harvest has come.”

³⁰ He also said, “With what can we compare the kingdom of God, or what parable will we use for it?³¹ It is like a mustard seed, which, when sown upon the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth;³² yet when it is sown it grows up and becomes the greatest of all shrubs, and puts forth large branches, so that the birds of the air can make nests in its shade.”

³³ With many such parables he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear it;³⁴ he did not speak to them except in parables, but he explained everything in private to his disciples.

³⁵ On that day, when evening had come, he said to them, “Let us go across to the other side.”³⁶ And leaving the crowd behind, they took him with them in the boat, just as he was. Other boats were with him.³⁷ A great windstorm arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was already being swamped.³⁸ But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they woke him up and said to him, “Teacher, do you not care that we are perishing?”³⁹ He woke up and rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, “Peace! Be still!” Then the wind ceased, and there was a dead calm.⁴⁰ He said to them, “Why are you afraid? Have you still no faith?”⁴¹ And they were filled with great awe and said to one another, “Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?”

5 They came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes.^{a 2} And when he had stepped out of the boat, immediately a man out of the tombs with an unclean spirit met him.³ He lived among the tombs; and no one could restrain him any more, even with a chain;⁴ for he had often been restrained with shackles and chains, but the chains he wrenched apart, and the shackles he broke in pieces; and no one had the strength to subdue him.⁵ Night and day among the tombs and on the mountains he was always howling and bruising himself with stones.⁶ When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and bowed down before him;⁷ and he shouted at the top of his voice, “What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I adjure you by God, do not torment me.”⁸ For he had said to him, “Come out of the man, you unclean spirit!”⁹ Then Jesus^b asked him, “What is your

^a Other ancient authorities read Gergesenes; others, Gadarenes

^b Gk he

agrarian image, in the only Markan parable not found in another NT Gospel. 28: Of itself, lit., “automatically,” implying that God causes the plant to sprout. 29: Sickle, allusion to end-time judgment (see Joel 3.13; Rev 14.14–20). 30–32: A third parable. 32: Birds . . . shade, an image of refuge for those gathered into God’s kingdom (including Gentiles); cf. Ezek 17.23; 31.6; Dan 4.12,21. 33–34: Another “summary report” (cf. 1.32–34; 3.7–12).

4.35–41: The first sea-crossing story (Mt 8.23–27; Lk 8.22–25). Three stories at sea contrast the disciples’ fear with Jesus’s faith; see also 6.45–52; 8.14–21. 35: Other side, toward the Decapolis (see 5.1n., 20). 37: Since such maritime conditions threatened life and livelihood, ancient people attributed them to cosmic forces (see Ps 107.23–32; Jon 1.4; Rev 21.1). 38: Asleep, Jesus’s repose connotes trust in God (cf. 4.27; also Pss 3.5; 4.8; Job 11.18–19), though the disciples think Jesus is apathetic. 39: Rebuked, see 1.25n. 40: Afraid . . . no faith, the disciples direct their fearful plea (4.38) to Jesus; his question about their lack of faith may arise from the fact that they do not address God directly (cf. Ps 107.28). On the opposition between fear and faith, see also 5.36; 6.50. 41: Though Jesus deflects attention from himself, his disciples once again marvel at his remarkable abilities; cf. 1.27.

5.1–6.52: Across the sea and back.

5.1–20: The exorcism of an unclean spirit called “legion” (Mt 8.28–34; Lk 8.26–39). 1: Other side . . . Gerasenes, a location ca 35 mi (55 km) southwest of the Sea of Galilee, Gerasa (modern Jerash) ill fits the story’s details (cf. 5.13). Perhaps because of this narrative awkwardness, later evangelists and scribes changed the destination as “Gadara” (see Mt 8.28) and “Gergesa” (see textual note a). 2: Tombs, a traditional dwelling for evil spirits (see Isa 65.1–7). Unclean spirit, see 1.23n. 4: Strength, see 1.7n.; 3.27. 7: Son of the Most High God, a typically Gentile name for God (1.24; see also Isa 14.14; Dan 3.26; 4.2). 9: Legion, a Roman military unit comprised of several thousand name?” He replied, “My name is Legion; for we are many.”¹⁰ He begged him earnestly not to send them out of the country.¹¹ Now there on the hillside a great herd of swine was feeding;¹² and the unclean spirits^a begged him, “Send us into the swine; let us enter them.”¹³ So he gave them permission. And the unclean spirits came out and entered the swine; and the herd, numbering about two thousand, rushed down the steep bank into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.

¹⁴ The swineherds ran off and told it in the city and in the country. Then people came to see what it was that had happened.¹⁵ They came to Jesus and saw the demoniac sitting there, clothed and in his right mind, the very man who had had the legion; and they were afraid.¹⁶ Those who had seen what had happened to the demoniac and to the swine reported it.¹⁷ Then they began to beg Jesus^b to leave their neighborhood.¹⁸ As he was getting into the boat, the man who had been possessed by demons begged him that he might be with him.¹⁹ But Jesus^c refused, and said to him, “Go home to your friends, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and what mercy he has shown you.”²⁰ And he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him; and everyone was amazed.

²¹ When Jesus had crossed again in the boat^d to the other side, a great crowd gathered around him; and he was by the sea.

²² Then one of the leaders of the synagogue named Jairus came and, when he saw him, fell at his feet²³ and begged him repeatedly,

“My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well, and live.”²⁴ So he went with him.

And a large crowd followed him and pressed in on him.²⁵ Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years.²⁶ She had endured much under many physicians, and had spent all that she had; and she was no better, but rather grew worse.²⁷ She had heard about Jesus, and came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak,²⁸ for she said, “If I but touch his clothes, I will be made well.”²⁹ Immediately her hemorrhage stopped; and she felt in her body that she was healed of her disease.³⁰ Immediately aware that power had gone forth from him, Jesus turned about in the crowd and said, “Who touched my clothes?”³¹ And his disciples said to him, “You see the crowd pressing in on you; how can you say, ‘Who touched me?’”³² He looked all around to see who had done it.³³ But the woman, knowing what had happened to her, came in fear and trembling, fell down before him, and told him the whole truth.³⁴ He said to her, “Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace, and be healed of your disease.”

³⁵ While he was still speaking, some people came from the leader’s house to say,

^a Gk they

^b Gk him

^c Gk he

^d Other ancient authorities lack in the boat

soldiers. 11: Swine, designated by biblical law as unclean (Lev 11.7–8; Isa 65.4; 66.17). 15: Afraid, the people’s response to Jesus’s power is a common one in Mark; see 4.40n. 18: Be with him, a phrase denoting discipleship (3.14). 19: Go home, the man’s healing brings restoration to his community as well. Lord, probably God, the source of Jesus’s power. This fits with Jesus’s efforts elsewhere in the Gospel to divert attention from his power (cf. 1.34,44). 20: Decapolis, a Hellenized region east of the Jordan River with a significant Jewish population.

5.21–43: Two related healing stories (Mt 9.18–26; Lk 8.40–56). Another Markan intercalation of two stories that share several features: attention to female suffering, the number twelve, and restored physical and social well-being through physical contact. 21: Other side, presumably, back to the western side of the sea. 22: One of the leaders of the synagogue, a prominent religious figure who seeks Jesus’s curative power. Fell at his feet, see 3.11n.; 5.6. 23: Details in this story echo biblical stories that credit Elijah (1 Kings 17.17–24) and Elisha (2 Kings 4.18–37) with healing power. Lay your hands on her, see 1.31n. 25: Purity laws (see Lev 12.1–8; 15.25–30) designate bleeding women “unclean.” 26: Mark notes the economic implications of the woman’s condition. 27: His cloak, see 1.31n.; 6.56n. 28: Made well, lit., “saved.” Cf. 5.34. 29–30: Both the woman and Jesus sense the flow of healing power through physical contact. 32: Looked all around, Mark often links physical sight to spiritual insight; cf. 2.5; 4.12; 8.25. 33: Fear and trembling, see 4.40; 5.15. Fell down, see 3.11n. 34: Faith, see 2.5n.

“Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the teacher any further?”³⁶ But overhearing^a what they said, Jesus said to the leader of the synagogue, “Do not fear, only believe.”³⁷ He allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James.³⁸ When they came to the house of the leader of the synagogue, he saw a commotion, people weeping and wailing loudly.³⁹ When he had entered, he said to them, “Why do you make a commotion and weep? The child is not dead but sleeping.”⁴⁰ And they laughed at him. Then he put them all outside, and took the child’s father and mother and those who were with him, and went in where the child was.⁴¹ He took her by the hand and said to her, “Talitha cum,” which means, “Little girl, get up!”⁴² And immediately the girl got up and began to walk about (she was twelve years of age). At this they were overcome with amazement.⁴³ He strictly ordered them that no one should know this, and told them to give her something to eat.

6 He left that place and came to his hometown, and his disciples followed him.² On the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many who heard him were astounded. They said, “Where did this man get all this? What is this wisdom that has been given to him? What deeds of power are being done by his hands!”³ Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary^b and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon, and are not his sisters here with us?” And they took offense^c at him.⁴ Then Jesus said to them, “Prophets are not without honor, except in their hometown, and among their own kin, and in their own house.”⁵ And he could do no deed of power there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and cured them.⁶ And he was amazed at their unbelief.

Then he went about among the villages teaching.⁷ He called the twelve and began to send them out two by two, and gave them authority over the unclean spirits.⁸ He ordered them to take nothing for their journey except a staff; no bread, no bag, no money in their belts;⁹ but to wear sandals and not to put on two tunics.¹⁰ He said to them, “Wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave the place.¹¹ If any place will not welcome you and they refuse to hear you, as you leave, shake off the dust that is on your feet as a testimony against them.”¹² So they went out and proclaimed that all should repent.¹³ They cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many who were sick and cured them.

^a Or ignoring; other ancient authorities read hearing

^b Other ancient authorities read son of the carpenter and of Mary

^c Or stumbled

36: Do not fear, only believe, see 4.40n. 37: Peter and James and John, Jesus’s inner circle of disciples; cf. 1.16,19; 9.2; 14.33. 39: Sleeping, in context, an ambiguous expression, since the verb sometimes indicates death (see 1 Cor 15.51; 1 Thess 5.10) but here seems not to; cf. 4.38n. 41: Talitha cum, see 3.17n. Get up, lit., “rise up,” used elsewhere for resurrection (2 King 18.26; also 15.34). 42: Twelve years, the number connects the girl’s story to the woman’s (cf. 5.25). 43: Strictly ordered, Jesus again enjoins silence about his healing power; see 1.25n. Something to eat, food connotes restored life in God’s coming kingdom; cf. 6.37.

6.1–6: Jesus returns home (Mt 13.53–58; Lk 4.16–30). 1: Hometown, elsewhere named as Nazareth; see 1.9n. 2: Teach in the synagogue, see 1.21. Astounded, see 1.22. Wisdom . . . deeds of power, Jesus’s teaching and miracles together suggest his divine agency; cf. 1.27. 3: Carpenter, or “craftsperson.” Son of Mary. . . sisters, see 3.32n. James, see Gal 1.19. Took offense at, see 4.17n. 4: Jesus identifies with rejected prophets (cf. 12.1–12; see also Jn 4.44). 5–6a: The people’s lack of faith stymies Jesus’s efficacy; see 2.5n. and cf. 9.19.

6.6b–13: The twelve extend Jesus’s mission (Mt 10.1,9–14; 14.1–12; Lk 9.1–10a; see also 3.13–19). 7: Two by two, biblical law requires confirmation by two witnesses (see Deut 17.6; 19.15; Num 35.30). Authority over the unclean spirits, see 1.23n.; 3.15. 8: Nothing for their journey, the radical demands here (no bread, no bags, no money) contrast with Cynic philosophers, who rejected material wealth but traveled with basic provisions. 11: Shake off the dust, an ancient gesture to signal a broken relationship (see Neh 5.13; Acts 18.6). Testimony against them, perhaps at the final judgment associated with God’s coming kingdom. 12–13: The apostles’ activities echo Jesus’s: they proclaimed (see 1.15; 3.14) and performed exorcisms and healings (see 1.34; 3.15).

¹⁴ King Herod heard of it, for Jesus^a name had become known. Some were^b saying, “John the baptizer has been raised from the dead; and for this reason these powers are at work in him.”¹⁵ But others said, “It is Elijah.” And others said, “It is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old.”¹⁶ But when Herod heard of it, he said, “John, whom I beheaded, has been raised.”

¹⁷ For Herod himself had sent men who arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife, because Herod^c had married her.¹⁸ For John had been telling Herod, “It is not lawful for you to have your brother’s wife.”¹⁹ And Herodias had a grudge against him, and wanted to kill him. But she could not,²⁰ for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he protected him. When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed;^d and yet he liked to listen to him.²¹ But an opportunity came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet for his courtiers and officers and for the leaders of Galilee.²² When his daughter Herodias^e came in and danced, she pleased Herod and his guests; and the king said to the girl, “Ask me for whatever you wish, and I will give it.”²³ And he solemnly swore to her, “Whatever you ask me, I will give you, even half of my kingdom.”²⁴ She went out and said to her mother, “What should I ask for?” She replied, “The head of John the baptizer.”²⁵ Immediately she rushed back to the king and requested, “I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter.”²⁶ The king was deeply grieved; yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he did not want to refuse her.²⁷ Immediately the king sent a soldier of the guard with orders to bring John’s³ head. He went and beheaded him in the prison,²⁸ brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl. Then the girl gave it to her mother.²⁹ When his disciples heard about it, they came and took his body, and laid it in a tomb.

³⁰ The apostles gathered around Jesus, and told him all that they had done and taught.

³¹ He said to them, “Come away to a deserted place all by yourselves and rest a while.” For many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat.³² And they went away in the boat to a deserted place by themselves.³³ Now many saw them going and recognized them, and they hurried there on foot from all the towns and arrived ahead of them.³⁴ As he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things.³⁵ When it grew late, his disciples came to him and said, “This is a deserted place, and the hour is now very late;³⁶ send them away so that they may go into the surrounding country and villages and buy something for themselves to eat.”³⁷ But he answered them, “You give them something to eat.” They said to him, “Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii^f worth of bread, and give it to them to eat?”³⁸ And he said to them, “How many loaves

^a Gk his

^b Other ancient authorities read He was

^c Gk he

^d Other ancient authorities read he did many things

^e Other ancient authorities read the daughter of Herodias herself

^f The denarius was the usual day’s wage for a laborer

6.14–29: John the Baptist’s execution at Herod’s feast (Mt 14.1–12; Lk 9.7–9). Mark places this story thematically, not chronologically (see 1.14), to highlight the contrasting nature of Herod’s and God’s reigns. It also foreshadows the destiny of those whose allegiance to God’s kingdom threatens earthly powers. 14: King Herod, see 3.6n. Mark may call the tetrarch “king” to sharpen the distinction between Herod and God as rulers. 15: Elijah, see 1.6n. 16: Raised, some first-century Jews, including many Pharisees, thought the “resurrection of the dead” would accompany God’s coming kingdom; see 9.9; 12.18. 17–18: As a Jew, Herod’s marriage to his brother’s wife during his brother’s lifetime violated biblical law (Lev 18.16; 20.21). 19–20: See 1 Kings 21.1–16, where Jezebel involves Ahab in her plot against Elijah. 22: Herodias, Josephus names Herod’s daughter Salome (cf. Mt 14.6).

6.30–44: Jesus and his disciples feed a hungry crowd (Mt 14.13–21; Lk 9.10–17; Jn 6.1–13). The only miracle story found in all four Gospels. 31: Deserted place, lit., “wilderness”; see 1.3n. 34: Sheep without a shepherd, implies the crowd’s need for instruction and guidance; cf. Num 27.15–17; 1 Kings 22.17; Ezek 34.5. Many things, Jesus’s instruction generally concerns God’s coming kingdom (e.g., 1.14–15; 4.1–34). 37: You give them something have you? Go and see.” When they had found out, they said, “Five, and two fish.”³⁹ Then he ordered them to get all the people to sit down in groups on the green grass.⁴⁰ So they sat down in groups of hundreds and of fifties.⁴¹ Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people; and he divided the two fish among them all.⁴² And all ate and were filled;⁴³ and they took up twelve baskets full of broken pieces and of the fish.⁴⁴ Those who had eaten the loaves numbered five thousand men.

⁴⁵ Immediately he made his disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, to Bethsaida, while he dismissed the crowd.⁴⁶ After saying farewell to them, he went up on the mountain to pray.

⁴⁷ When evening came, the boat was out on the sea, and he was alone on the land.

⁴⁸ When he saw that they were straining at the oars against an adverse wind, he came towards them early in the morning, walking on the sea. He intended to pass them by.⁴⁹ But when they saw him walking on the sea, they thought it was a ghost and cried out;⁵⁰ for they all saw him and were terrified. But immediately he spoke to them and said, “Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid.”⁵¹ Then he got into the boat with them and the wind ceased. And they were utterly astounded,⁵² for they did not understand about the loaves, but their hearts were hardened.

⁵³ When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret and moored the boat.

⁵⁴ When they got out of the boat, people at once recognized him,⁵⁵ and rushed about that whole region and began to bring the sick on mats to wherever they heard he was.⁵⁶ And wherever he went, into villages or cities or farms, they laid the sick in the market-places, and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

7 Now when the Pharisees and some of the scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered around him,² they noticed that some of his disciples were eating with defiled hands, that is, without washing them.³ (For

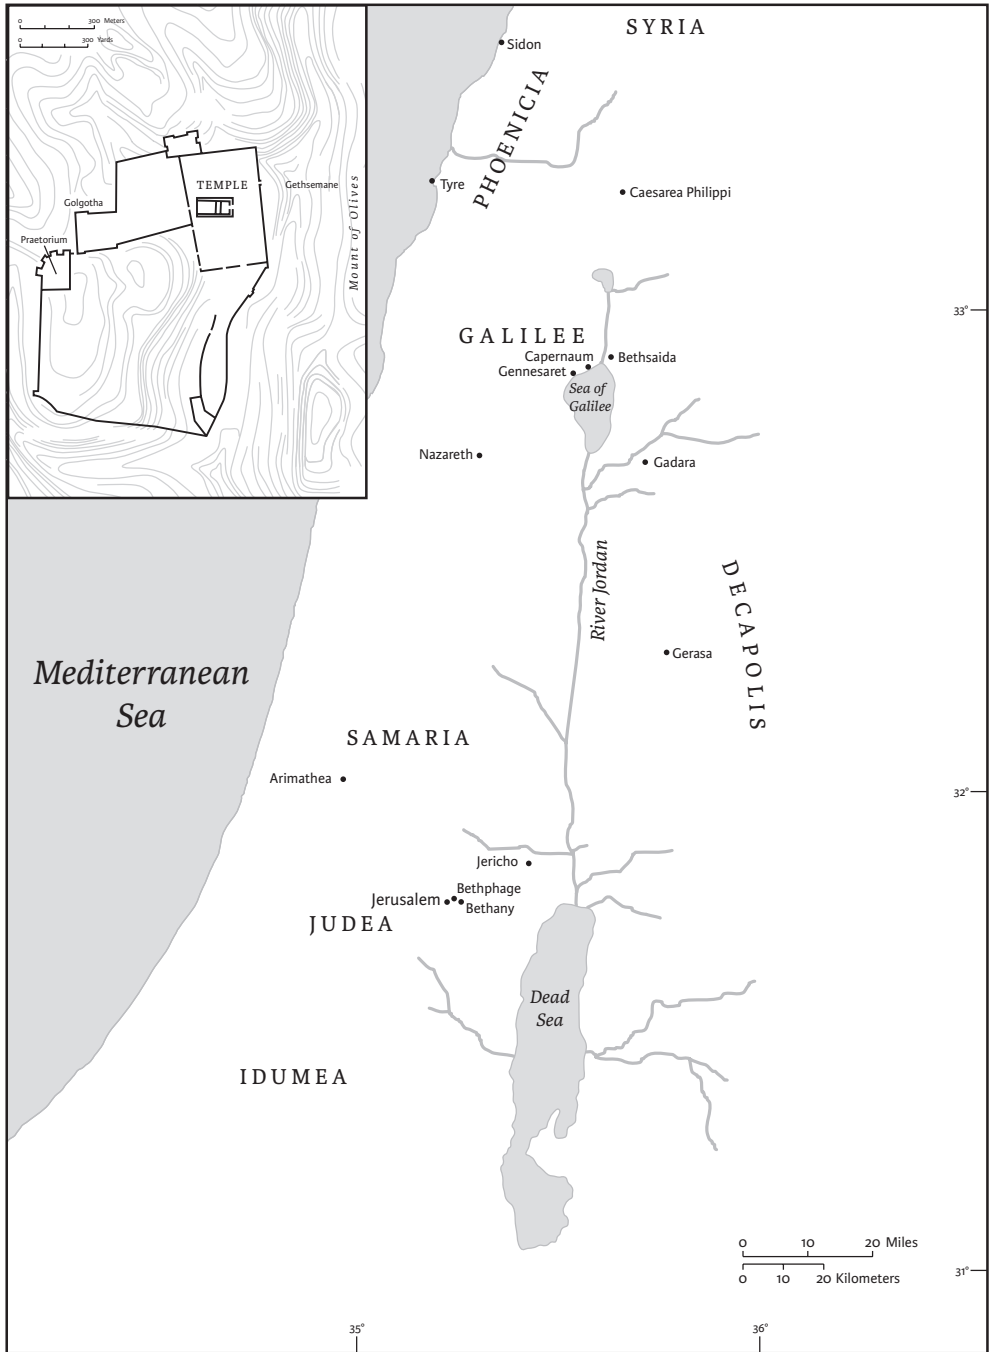

to eat, the use of an emphatic pronoun suggests that Jesus intends the disciples to feed the crowd (see 2 Kings 4.42–44; cf. Jn 6.5–6). 39: In groups, language typically designating a formal celebration with invited guests. 40: Of hundreds and of fifties, reminiscent of God’s provision in the wilderness (Ex 18.21,25). 41: Jesus presides over a traditional Jewish meal (cf. 14.22). His disciples participate in the distribution of the loaves, but not the fish. 42: Filled, lit., “satisfied,” an outcome that contrasts with the outcome of Herod’s feast. 44: Five thousand men, women and children present would have made the crowd considerably larger.

6.45–52: The second sea-crossing story (Mt 14.22–33; Jn 6.15–21). See also 4.35–41; 8.14–21. 45: Go on ahead, reversing Jesus’s tendency “go ahead” of his disciples (cf. 14.28; 16.7). Other side, see 4.35n. Bethsaida, a village on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. 46: Up on the mountain, see 3.13n. Pray, Jesus uses prayer as a nonviolent force against evil (cf. 9.29). 48: Straining at the oars, doing active battle against the wind and sea; see 4.35n. Pass by them, as God “passes by” both Moses (Ex 34.6) and Elijah (1 Kings 19.11) in self-revelation that reinvigorates their respective missions. 50: It is I, lit., “I am,” a phrase that may identify Jesus with God (see Ex 3.13–15; Isa 41.4; 43.10–11). Do not be afraid, see 4.40n. 52: About the loaves, Mark connects the disciples’ fearful response at sea to the feeding story (6.30–44) but does not specify the nature of their incomprehension. They may misunderstand Jesus’s divine power (cf. 4.40–41; Lk 24.30–31), their share in that power by distributing the loaves (cf. 3.14–15; 6.7,13,41), or some combination of the two. Hearts were hardened, an ironic claim, since the phrase sometimes characterizes Jesus’s opponents (see 3.5n.).

6.53–8.26: Jesus among the Gentiles.

6.53–56: Jesus beyond Galilee (Mt 14.34–36). A Markan summary report (see 1.32–34n.). 53: Gennesaret, on the northwest side of the Sea of Galilee and in a different direction from Bethsaida, the original destination (6.45). 56: Fringe of his cloak, Jesus’s healing power is contagious, even through his clothing (1.31n.; 5.27–28).

7.1–23: Jesus on Jewish law and its interpretation (Mt 15.1–20). 1: Pharisees . . . from Jerusalem, see 2.16n.; 3.22n. 2: Eating, lit., “eating the loaves,” a colloquial expression that may echo the feeding story (6.30–44; 6.52n.). Defiled hands, a condition of impurity (Lev 15.11), a consistent concern among Jesus’s religious opponents. 2b–4: Mark explains but exaggerates hand-washing as a ubiquitous Jewish practice, a feature that reflects a non-Jewish component of the Gospel’s original audience. 3: Tradition of the elders, the oral instruction

The geography of the Gospel of Mark.

the Pharisees, and all the Jews, do not eat unless they thoroughly wash their hands,^a thus observing the tradition of the elders;⁴ and they do not eat anything from the market unless they wash it;^b and there are also many other traditions that they observe, the washing of cups, pots, and bronze kettles.^c ⁵ So the Pharisees and the scribes asked him, “Why do your disciples not live^d according to the tradition of the elders, but eat with defiled hands?” ⁶ He said to them, “Isaiah prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written,

“This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me;

⁷ in vain do they worship me, teaching human precepts as doctrines.’

⁸ You abandon the commandment of God and hold to human tradition.”

⁹ Then he said to them, “You have a fine way of rejecting the commandment of God in order to keep your tradition! ¹⁰ For Moses said, ‘Honor your father and your mother’; and, ‘Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.’ ¹¹ But you say that if anyone tells father or mother, ‘Whatever support you might have had from me is Corban’ (that is, an offering to God^e)— ¹² then you no longer permit doing anything for a father or mother, ¹³ thus making void the word of God through your tradition that you have handed on. And you do many things like this.”

¹⁴ Then he called the crowd again and said to them, “Listen to me, all of you, and understand: ¹⁵ there is nothing outside a person that by going in can defile, but the things that come out are what defile.”^f

¹⁷ When he had left the crowd and entered the house, his disciples asked him about the parable. ¹⁸ He said to them, “Then do you also fail to understand? Do you not see that whatever goes into a person from outside cannot defile, ¹⁹ since it enters, not the heart but the stomach, and goes out into the sewer?” (Thus he declared all foods clean.) ²⁰ And he said, “It is what comes out of a person that defiles. ²¹ For it is from within, from the human heart, that evil intentions come: fornication, theft, murder, ²² adultery, avarice, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, folly. ²³ All these evil things come from within, and they defile a person.”

²⁴ From there he set out and went away to the region of Tyre.^g He entered a house and did not want anyone to know he was there. Yet he could not escape notice, ²⁵ but a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit immediately heard about him, and she

^a Meaning of Gk uncertain

^b Other ancient authorities read and when they come from the marketplace, they do not eat unless they purify themselves

^c Other ancient authorities add and beds

^d Gk walk

^e Gk lacks to God

^f Other ancient authorities add verse 16, “Let anyone with ears to hear listen”

^g Other ancient authorities add and Sidon

the Pharisees considered authoritative interpretation of biblical law. Cf. Lk 11.38; Gal 1.14. 5: Your disciples, the Pharisees hold Jesus accountable for his followers’ conduct; cf. 2.18,24. 6–7: See Isa 29.13 (LXX); see also Jer 7.3–7; Am 5.21–25. 8–9: Commandment of God . . . human tradition, for Jesus, the written law takes precedence over its interpretation, not the other way around. 10: Jesus combines the commandment to honor parents (Ex 20.12; Deut 5.16) with the consequence for breaking it (Ex 21.17; Lev 20.9). 11: Corban, Aramaic for “offering.” To God, a phrase that is absent in the Greek text, which implies but does not state the offering’s object. 13: Word of God, the laws just cited.

7.14–23: Jesus on defilement. 17: Entered the house, another shift from a public setting to a private audience (see 4.10–12,20–34). 18: Fail to understand, a common theme in Mark; see 4.13; 6.52; 8.17. 19: Heart, the moral center of the human being, according to ancient thought. Jesus thus defines purity as a matter of conduct rather than consumption. All foods clean, Mark applies Jesus’s saying to dietary laws in Torah (Lev 11.1–47), since Mark’s audience probably wrestled with which aspects of Jewish law pertained to its non-Jewish members. Cf. Acts 10.9–16; Gal 2.11–14. 21–22: Vice lists appear frequently in texts from the Hellenistic world. For Mark’s Jesus, it is ethical infractions more than flawed ritual practice that defile (7.20,23).

7.24–30: Jesus exorcises a demon (Mt 15.21–28). 24: Region of Tyre, a predominantly Gentile area northwest of Galilee. Cf. 3.8. 25: Bowed down at his feet, see 3.11n. 26: Gentile, lit., “Greek,” combining with the woman’s came and bowed down at his feet. ²⁶ Now the woman was a Gentile, of Syrophoenician origin. She begged him to cast the demon out of her daughter. ²⁷ He said to her, “Let the children be fed first, for it is not fair to take the children’s food and throw it to the dogs.” ²⁸ But she answered him, “Sir,^a even the dogs under the table eat the children’s crumbs.” ²⁹ Then he said to her, “For saying that, you may go—the demon has left your daughter.” ³⁰ So she went home, found the child lying on the bed, and the demon gone.

³¹ Then he returned from the region of Tyre, and went by way of Sidon towards the Sea of Galilee, in the region of the Decapolis. ³² They brought to him a deaf man who had an impediment in his speech; and they begged him to lay his hand on him. ³³ He took him aside in private, away from the crowd, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spat and touched his tongue. ³⁴ Then looking up to heaven, he sighed and said to him, “Ephphatha,” that is, “Be opened.” ³⁵ And immediately his ears were opened, his tongue was released, and he spoke plainly. ³⁶ Then Jesus^b ordered them to tell no one; but the more he ordered them, the more zealously they proclaimed it. ³⁷ They were astounded beyond measure, saying, “He has done everything well; he even makes the deaf to hear and the mute to speak.”

8 In those days when there was again a great crowd without anything to eat, he called his disciples and said to them, ² “I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat. ³ If I send them away hungry to their homes, they will faint on the way—and some of them have come from a great distance.” ⁴ His disciples replied, “How can one feed these people with bread here in the desert?” ⁵ He asked them, “How many loaves do you have?” They said, “Seven.” ⁶ Then he ordered the crowd to sit down on the ground; and he took the seven loaves, and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they distributed them to the crowd. ⁷ They had also a few small fish; and after blessing them, he ordered that these too should be distributed. ⁸ They ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. ⁹ Now there were about four thousand people. And he sent them away. ¹⁰ And immediately he got into the boat with his disciples and went to the district of Dalmanutha.^c

¹¹ The Pharisees came and began to argue with him, asking him for a sign from heaven,

^a Or Lord; other ancient authorities prefix Yes

^b Gk he

^c Other ancient authorities read Mageda or Magdala

Syrophoenician origin to emphasize that she is a cultural and ethnic “outsider.” 27: Dogs, sometimes used as a slur in the Hebrew Bible (e.g., 1 Sam 17.43; 24.14); Jesus exhibits a surprisingly provincial attitude here. 28: The woman accepts Jewish priority but challenges Jewish exclusivity, suggesting that “leftovers” in God’s kingdom (6.43) could be offered to “outsiders.” 29: The demon has left, Jesus declares the exorcism accomplished, even from a distance.

7.31–37: Jesus heals another Gentile (Mt 15.29–31). 31: Decapolis, see 5.20n. Jesus’s route here is a circuitous one. 33: On healing by physical touch, see 1.31n. 34: Ephphatha . . . Be opened, see 3.17n. 36: Tell no one, see 1.43–44n.; 7.24. Proclaimed, probably the “good news” about God’s coming kingdom (and the related power Jesus exhibits); see 1.14; 3.14. 37: Astounded beyond measure, see 1.22n. Deaf . . . mute, evidence of God’s sovereign power taking root on earth (see Isa 35.5–6).

8.1–10: Jesus and his disciples feed a second hungry crowd (Mt 15.32–39). Unlike the first miraculous feeding (6.30–44), this story takes place in a Gentile setting. 2: Nothing to eat, the basis of Jesus’s compassion is the crowd’s physical hunger (cf. 6.34). 4: Desert, see 1.3n. The disciples’ question implies they have forgotten the first miraculous feeding, as well as the biblical promise of God’s wilderness provision (Ex 16.1–36; Isa 58.1). 5–9: The numbers of loaves, baskets of leftovers, and crowd members differ from the first feeding story, though their symbolic significance is hard to determine. 7: While in the first feeding story, the disciples distribute only bread (6.41), here they hand out fish as well. 10: Dalmanutha, an otherwise unknown location that in this Gospel seems to lie between the Decapolis and Bethsaida; Mt 15.39 has “Magadan.”

8.11–13: The Pharisees seek a sign (Mt 16.1–4; Lk 11.16,29–32). 11: Sign from heaven, in the Hebrew Bible, signs to test him.¹² And he sighed deeply in his spirit and said, “Why does this generation ask for a sign? Truly I tell you, no sign will be given to this generation.”¹³ And he left them, and getting into the boat again, he went across to the other side.

¹⁴ Now the disciples^a had forgotten to bring any bread; and they had only one loaf with them in the boat.¹⁵ And he cautioned them, saying, “Watch out—beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod.”^b ¹⁶ They said to one another, “It is because we have no bread.”¹⁷ And becoming aware of it, Jesus said to them, “Why are you talking about having no bread? Do you still not perceive or understand? Are your hearts hardened?¹⁸ Do you have eyes, and fail to see? Do you have ears, and fail to hear? And do you not remember?¹⁹ When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?” They said to him, “Twelve.”²⁰ “And the seven for the four thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?” And they said to him, “Seven.”²¹ Then he said to them, “Do you not yet understand?”

²² They came to Bethsaida. Some people^c brought a blind man to him and begged him to touch him.²³ He took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village; and when he had put saliva on his eyes and laid his hands on him, he asked him, “Can you see anything?”²⁴ And the man^d looked up and said, “I can see people, but they look like trees, walking.”²⁵ Then Jesus^d laid his hands on his eyes again; and he looked intently and his sight was restored, and he saw everything clearly.²⁶ Then he sent him away to his home, saying, “Do not even go into the village.”^e

²⁷ Jesus went on with his disciples to the villages of Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that I am?”²⁸ And they answered him, “John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; and still others, one of the prophets.”²⁹ He asked them, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered him, “You are the Messiah.”^f ³⁰ And

^a Gk they

^b Other ancient authorities read the Herodians

^c Gk They

^d Gk he

^e Other ancient authorities add or tell anyone in the village

^f Or the Christ

confirm God’s presence (see, e.g., Gen 9.12,13,17; Ex 3.12; 4.28,30). 12: This generation, a biblical term that often connotes unfaithfulness to God’s priorities (see Gen 7.1; Deut 32.5,20; Ps 95.10); cf. 8.38; 9.19; 13.30.

8.14–21: The third sea-crossing story (Mt 16.5–12; Lk 12.1; Jn 6.32–36). See also 4.35–41; 6.45–52. 14: One loaf, a sparse detail that contrasts sharply with the outcome of the preceding feeding story (cf. 8.8). 15: Pharisees . . . Herod, see 2.16n.; 3.6n. Yeast here implies religious and political corruption (see 1 Cor 5.6). 16: No bread, an overstatement; cf. 8.14. 17–18: A series of rhetorical questions intensifies Jesus’s earlier critique of his disciples (4.13; 6.52), ultimately comparing them both to Pharisees (3.5) and to other “outsiders” (4.11–12). 19–20: Baskets full of broken pieces, emphasizing the surplus, while the disciples had exaggerated dearth (8.16). 21: Not yet understand, see 6.52n.; 8.17–18. The disciples again fail to trust God’s abundant provision where scarcity seems to prevail.

8.22–26: A two-staged healing of a man who was blind (Jn 9.1–7). This story functions as narrative hinge, from Jesus’s miraculous power to his suffering destiny; with the healing of Bartimaeus (10.46–52), it also constitutes a frame for the Gospel’s central section, constructed around three passion predictions and accompanying instruction on discipleship. 22: Bethsaida, see 6.45n. 23: Out of the village, Jesus often performs miracles in private (e.g., 5.37). Saliva . . . hands, see 7.33; cf. Jn 9.6. 24: The two-staged healing is unique in the NT. 25: Everything clearly, restored sight symbolizes clear understanding. 26: Jesus again suppresses public acclaim; see 1.44–45; 5.43; 7.24,36; 8.23.

8.27–15.47: Jesus’s messianic mission: sacrifice.

8.27–10.52: The way of the cross.

8.27–9.1: First passion prediction and discipleship instruction (Mt 16.21–28; Lk 9.22–27). See also 9.30–37; 10.32–45. 27: Caesarea Philippi, a city thirty miles north of Bethsaida named for Caesar Augustus because of a temple there built in his honor by Herod the Great. The area was governed in Jesus’s day by the tetrarch Herod Philip. 29: Messiah, or “Christ”; lit., “anointed one.” See 1.1n. 30: Sternly ordered, see 1.25n. Not to tell anyone, he sternly ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

³¹Then he began to teach them that the Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. ³²He said all this quite openly. And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. ³³But turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, “Get behind me, Satan! For you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

³⁴He called the crowd with his disciples, and said to them, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. ³⁵For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake, and for the sake of the gospel,^a will save it. ³⁶For what will it profit them to gain the whole world and forfeit their life? ³⁷Indeed, what can they give in return for their life? ³⁸Those who are ashamed of me and of my words^b in this adulterous and sinful generation, of them the Son of Man will also be ashamed when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.” ¹And he said to them, “Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death until they see that the kingdom of God has come with^c power.”

²Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and John, and led them up a high mountain apart, by themselves. And he was transfigured before them,³ and his clothes became dazzling white, such as no one^d on earth could bleach them. ⁴And there appeared to them Elijah with Moses, who were talking with Jesus. ⁵Then Peter said to Jesus, “Rabbi, it is good for us to be here; let us make three dwellings,^e one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” ⁶He did not know what to say, for they were terrified. ⁷Then a cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud there came a voice, “This is my Son, the Beloved;^f listen to him!” ⁸Suddenly when they looked around, they saw no one with them any more, but only Jesus.

⁹As they were coming down the mountain, he ordered them to tell no one about what they had seen, until after the Son of Man had risen from the dead. ¹⁰So they kept the matter to themselves, questioning what this rising from the dead could mean. ¹¹Then they asked him, “Why do the scribes say that Elijah

^a Other ancient authorities read lose their life for the sake of the gospel

^b Other ancient authorities read and of mine

^c Or in

^d Gk no fuller

^e Or tents

^f Or my beloved Son

see 1.43–44n. 31: Son of Man, see 2.10n.,28. Must undergo, the Greek construction connotes an underlying divine purpose that presses toward the predicted destiny. The elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, constituent elements of Jerusalem’s ruling council (see 14.55; 15.1,43). 32: Openly, in contrast, e.g., to 8.30, where Jesus suppresses mention of his messianic identity, here he discloses his inevitable destiny. 33: Satan, see 1.13n. The opposition Jesus names here resists his destiny as suffering messiah. 34: Jesus’s death establishes a pattern for his followers: their loyalty to God’s reign, too, will bring persecution. 35: In the most reliable manuscripts (see note a), Jesus distinguishes himself (for my sake) from the sake of the gospel (or “good news”) he proclaims (see 1.14–15); cf. 10.29. 38: Ashamed, the ancient world assigned shame to those who embodied weakness. Generation, see 8.12n. Comes in the glory of his Father, see Dan 7.13–14, where the Son of Man inherits authority to judge over all the earth. 9.1: Kingdom of God, see 1.15. Jesus predicts the imminent arrival of God’s kingdom on earth (cf. 13.32).

9.2–13: Jesus’s mountaintop transfiguration (Mt 17.1–8; Lk 9.28–36). 2: Peter and James and John, see 5.37n. High mountain, see 3.13n. Transfigured, lit., “changed in form,” a term that speaks to Jesus’s divine nature (cf. 9.7; see Dan 11.36). 4: Elijah with Moses, individuals expected by many to play a role in God’s kingdom dawning on earth (see 1.6n.). 5: Rabbi, a Jewish title meaning “teacher” (lit., “my master”), used occasionally of Jesus. Dwellings, or “tents,” temporary shelters like the shrine God inhabited before Solomon built the Temple (Ex 25.9; 2 Sam 7.2,6). 7: My Son, the Beloved, a heavenly voice declares Jesus’s divine sonship to the disciples (cf. 1.11). Listen, a command that fits Jesus’s prophet-like role (see Deut 18.15). 9: Jesus’s identity, for Mark, grows clear only after the resurrection. See 1.34n. 10: Rising from the dead, see 6.16n.; part of the Jewish apocalyptic must come first?”¹² He said to them, “Elijah is indeed coming first to restore all things. How then is it written about the Son of Man, that he is to go through many sufferings and be treated with contempt?¹³ But I tell you that Elijah has come, and they did to him whatever they pleased, as it is written about him.”

¹⁴When they came to the disciples, they saw a great crowd around them, and some scribes arguing with them. ¹⁵When the whole crowd saw him, they were immediately overcome with awe, and they ran forward to greet him. ¹⁶He asked them, “What are you arguing about with them?” ¹⁷Someone from the crowd answered him, “Teacher, I brought you my son; he has a spirit that makes him unable to speak;¹⁸ and whenever it seizes him, it dashes him down; and he foams and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid; and I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they could not do so.” ¹⁹He answered them, “You faithless generation, how much longer must I be among you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him to me.” ²⁰And they brought the boy^a to him. When the spirit saw him, immediately it convulsed the boy,^a and he fell on the ground and rolled about, foaming at the mouth. ²¹Jesus^b asked the father, “How long has this been happening to him?” And he said, “From childhood. ²²It has often cast him into the fire and into the water, to destroy him; but if you are able to do anything, have pity on us and help us.” ²³Jesus said to him, “If you are able!—All things can be done for the one who believes.” ²⁴Immediately the father of the child cried out,^c “I believe; help my unbelief!” ²⁵When Jesus saw that a crowd came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, “You spirit that keeps this boy from speaking and hearing, I command you, come out of him, and never enter him again!” ²⁶After crying out and convulsing him terribly, it came out, and the boy was like a corpse, so that most of them said, “He is dead.” ²⁷But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he was able to stand. ²⁸When he had entered the house, his disciples asked him privately, “Why could we not cast it out?” ²⁹He said to them, “This kind can come out only through prayer.”^d

³⁰They went on from there and passed through Galilee. He did not want anyone to know it; ³¹for he was teaching his disciples, saying to them, “The Son of Man is to be betrayed into human hands, and they will kill him, and three days after being killed, he will rise again.” ³²But they did not understand what he was saying and were afraid to ask him.

³³Then they came to Capernaum; and when he was in the house he asked them, “What were you arguing about on the way?” ³⁴But they were silent, for on the way they had argued with one another who was the greatest. ³⁵He sat down, called the twelve,

^a Gk him

^b Gk He

^c Other ancient authorities add with tears

^d Other ancient authorities add and fasting

worldview. See also Mt 25.31–46. 12: Restore all things, God’s coming kingdom entailed sweeping restoration of the cosmic order. Written about the Son of Man, though no known Jewish traditions claim that a figure of this name will suffer (cf. Dan 7.1–27), apocalyptic texts consistently assume a suffering destiny for those who remain righteous and/or faithful to God in the face of earthly oppressors (Dan 11.33–35; 2 Macc 7). 13: Elijah has come, see 1.6n., 6.15.

9.14–29: Jesus heals a child who had epilepsy (Mt 17.14–20; Lk 9.37–43a). 14: Scribes, see 1.22n. 18: The details fit common symptoms of epileptic seizures. Could not, lit., “were not strong.” Typically in Mark, the defeat of evil forces depends on strength (see 1.7; 3.27; 5.4; 14.37). 19: Faithless generation, see 8.12n. In this setting, the phrase may refer to Jesus’s disciples, to the father, or to an unspecified group. 23: All things . . . believes, trust in God’s kingly power creates a channel for its effective restoration of well-being and wholeness (see 2.5; 5.34; 11.22–23; cf. 6.5–6). 24: I believe; help my unbelief, a prayer that acknowledges the father’s ambiguous relationship to faith. 29: Prayer, Mark does not specify whose prayer is effective in this case, though the story mentions only the father’s petition for faith (v. 24).

9.30–37: Second passion prediction and discipleship instruction (Mt 17.22–23; 18.1–9; Lk 9.43b–48). See also 8.27–9.1; 10.32–45. 30: On Jesus’s not wanting anyone to know, see 1.43–44n. 31: Betrayed, lit., “handed over,” a detail not included in the first prediction (8.31; cf. 14.11,18). 32: Despite the repeated nature of the prediction, the disciples still fail to grasp Jesus’s destiny. 33: Capernaum, see 1.21n. 35: Last . . . servant, Jesus and said to them, “Whoever wants to be first must be last of all and servant of all.”³⁶ Then he took a little child and put it among them; and taking it in his arms, he said to them,³⁷ “Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes not me but the one who sent me.”

³⁸ John said to him, “Teacher, we saw someone^a casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he was not following us.”³⁹ But Jesus said, “Do not stop him; for no one who does a deed of power in my name will be able soon afterward to speak evil of me.⁴⁰ Whoever is not against us is for us.⁴¹ For truly I tell you, whoever gives you a cup of water to drink because you bear the name of Christ will by no means lose the reward.

⁴² “If any of you put a stumbling block before one of these little ones who believe in me,^b it would be better for you if a great millstone were hung around your neck and you were thrown into the sea.⁴³ If your hand causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life maimed than to have two hands and to go to hell,^c to the unquenchable fire.^d ⁴⁵ And if your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life lame than to have two feet and to be thrown into hell.^{c,d} ⁴⁷ And if your eye causes you to stumble, tear it out; it is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye than to have two eyes and to be thrown into hell,^c ⁴⁸ where their worm never dies, and the fire is never quenched.

⁴⁹ “For everyone will be salted with fire.^e ⁵⁰ Salt is good; but if salt has lost its saltiness, how can you season it?^f Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another.”

10 He left that place and went to the region of Judea and^g beyond the Jordan. And crowds again gathered around him; and, as was his custom, he again taught them.

² Some Pharisees came, and to test him they asked, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?”³ He answered them, “What did Moses command you?”⁴ They said, “Moses allowed a man to write a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her.”⁵ But Jesus said to them, “Because of your hardness of heart

^a Other ancient authorities add who does not follow us

^b Other ancient authorities lack in me

^c Gk Gehenna

^d Verses 44 and 46 (which are identical with verse 48) are lacking in the best ancient authorities

^e Other ancient authorities either add or substitute and every sacrifice will be salted with salt

^f Or how can you restore its saltiness?

^g Other ancient authorities lack and redefines the concept of greatness discussed by the disciples (9.34). Cf. 8.34–35. 36: Little child, an illustrative example of true greatness. The ancient world assigned little social value to children. 37: In my name, possible allusion to Mark’s community as it carries out Jesus’s mission after the resurrection. One who sent me, Jesus is a specially designated agent of God’s kingdom. Cf. Jn 12.44–45. Similar sayings appear in 10.15; Mt 10.40; 18.5; Lk 9.48; 10.16; 18.17.

9.38–41: An unknown exorcist (Lk 9.49–50; cf. Num 11.27–29). 39: Deed of power, see 5.30; 6.2,14. Jesus’s mission establishes a foothold for God’s sovereign power; as a result, others wield that restorative power as well. 40–41: See Mt 10.42; 12.30; Lk 11.23.

9.42–50: Jesus warns of coming judgment (Mt 18.6–9; Lk 17.1–2). 42: Little ones, see 9.36–37. Mark probably expands the term to include society’s weaker members. Great millstone, used to grind grain and turned by a donkey or mule. 43: Cut it off, a hyperbolic expression. See also 9.45. 47: Mt 5.30. Hell, lit., “Gehenna,” a valley in Jerusalem associated with pagan rites (see 2 Kings 23.10; Jer 7.31) and used in Jesus’s day as a trash heap. Metaphorically understood as a place of eternal punishment. See Mt 5.30; Lk 12.5. 49: Salted with fire, images that combine to signal the coming judgment (see Isa 66.24; 1 Cor 3.13). 50: See Mt 5.13. 51: Peace, a character trait of the community that reflects God’s kingdom come to earth.

10.1–12: Jesus warns about divorce and remarriage (Mt 19.1–9). 1: Region of Judea and beyond the Jordan, perplexing geographical details that do not clearly fit Jesus’s transition from Galilee (9.33) to Jerusalem (11.1). Mark probably combines traditional material without knowing the lay of the land. 2: Pharisees, see 2.16n. Test, see 8.11; 12.15. 3: Jesus argues from within Jewish tradition; cf. 2.25; 7.9–10. 4: Certificate of dismissal, see Deut 24.1–4. 5: Hardness of heart, see 3.5n. Those who cast their loyalty with the present evil age are injured, and thus he wrote this commandment for you. ⁶ But from the beginning of creation, 'God made them male and female.' ⁷ 'For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife,^a ⁸ and the two shall become one flesh.' So they are no longer two, but one flesh. ⁹ Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate."

¹⁰ Then in the house the disciples asked him again about this matter. ¹¹ He said to them, "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; ¹² and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery."

¹³ People were bringing little children to him in order that he might touch them; and the disciples spoke sternly to them. ¹⁴ But when Jesus saw this, he was indignant and said to them, "Let the little children come to me; do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. ¹⁵ Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it." ¹⁶ And he took them up in his arms, laid his hands on them, and blessed them.

¹⁷ As he was setting out on a journey, a man ran up and knelt before him, and asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" ¹⁸ Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. ¹⁹ You know the commandments: 'You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; You shall not defraud; Honor your father and mother.'" ²⁰ He said to him, "Teacher, I have kept all these since my youth." ²¹ Jesus, looking at him, loved him and said, "You lack one thing; go, sell what you own, and give the money^b to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." ²² When he heard this, he was shocked and went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

²³ Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it will be for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!" ²⁴ And the disciples were perplexed at these words. But Jesus said to them again, "Children, how hard it is^c to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵ It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." ²⁶ They were greatly astounded and said to one

^a Other ancient authorities lack and be joined to his wife

^b Gk lacks the money

^c Other ancient authorities add for those who trust in riches

unreceptive, to God's coming reign. On the role of the heart, see 7.19n. 6–7: Jesus combines Gen 1.27 with Gen 2.24 as a blueprint for the ideal age that will be restored when God's kingdom has dawned. 9: Separate, the prohibition of divorce reflects the harmony commanded in 9.50. Elsewhere, the NT takes a more permissive stance on divorce. Cf. Mt 5.32; 19.9; 1 Cor 7.10–16. 11–12: Jesus introduces parity between men and women in a world that traditionally restricted women's right to divorce.

10.13–16: Jesus blesses children (Mt 19.13–15; Lk 18.15–17). See also 9.36–37. 13: Touch, see 1.31n. 14: Indignant, Jesus often exhibits visceral emotion when he encounters forces that impede divine care for the afflicted and weak; see 1.41n.; 3.5; 6.34; 9.22; 10.41. 15: As a little child, grammatically ambiguous, the phrase signals either that Jesus commends welcoming little children (see 9.36–37) or sees them as exemplary for welcoming God's kingdom.

10.17–31: Jesus challenges a rich man (Mt 19.16–30; Lk 18.18–30). Mark contrasts the children who welcome God's kingdom (10.14–16) with a rich man who turns away from it. 17: Eternal life, participation in God's coming kingdom; cf. Dan 12.2. 18: God alone, lit., "the one God," a distinctive Jewish view (Deut 6.4). On the question of Jesus's "goodness," cf. Mt 19.17; Jn 8.46; Heb 7.26; 1 Pet 2.22. 19: Commandments, see Ex 20.12–16; Deut 5.16–20. This list prioritizes laws that concern human relationships (cf. Mt 5.21–48) and adds an injunction against defrauding others not found in the Decalogue (but see Ex 20.17; Deut 24.14). 21: Sell . . . the poor, Jesus intensifies traditional Jewish concern for the poor with a radical call to self-sacrifice as prerequisite for discipleship (10.28). 22: Shocked . . . grieving, Mark leaves unspecified the exact basis of the man's grief, though he seems to find Jesus's command too radical to obey. 25: Jesus reverses conventional associations between wealth and God's favor, stressing instead that wealth constitutes an obstacle to utter dependence on God's power. See also Job 22.23–26; Prov 28.11; Mt 6.24; 1 Tim 6.9–10. 26: Saved, delivered to eternal life and restored to wholeness at another,^a “Then who can be saved?”²⁷ Jesus looked at them and said, “For mortals it is impossible, but not for God; for God all things are possible.”

²⁸ Peter began to say to him, “Look, we have left everything and followed you.”

²⁹ Jesus said, “Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields, for my sake and for the sake of the good news,^b

³⁰ who will not receive a hundredfold now in this age—houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and fields, with persecutions—and in the age to come eternal life.

³¹ But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.”

³² They were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead of them; they were amazed, and those who followed were afraid. He took the twelve aside again and began to tell them what was to happen to him, ³³ saying, “See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes, and they will condemn him to death; then they will hand him over to the Gentiles;³⁴ they will mock him, and spit upon him, and flog him, and kill him; and after three days he will rise again.”

³⁵ James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came forward to him and said to him,

“Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you.”³⁶ And he said to them, “What is it you want me to do for you?”³⁷ And they said to him, “Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your glory.”

³⁸ But Jesus said to them, “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?”³⁹ They replied, “We are able.” Then Jesus said to them, “The cup that I drink you will drink; and with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized;⁴⁰ but to sit at my right hand or at my left is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared.”

⁴¹ When the ten heard this, they began to be angry with James and John.⁴² So Jesus called them and said to them, “You know that among the Gentiles those whom they recognize as their rulers lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them.⁴³ But it is not so among you; but whoever wishes to become great among you must be your servant,⁴⁴ and whoever wishes to be first among you must be slave of all.⁴⁵ For the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.”

^a Other ancient authorities read to him

^b Or gospel

the last judgment. 27: A common maxim in the ancient world (cf. 9.23); see also Gen 18.14; Zech 8.6. 29: See 8.35n. 30: Jesus’s promise combines abundant reward with inevitable persecution. See also 13.9–13. Jesus omits “fathers” from the list repeated from 10.29, perhaps because God is considered the “father” of believers. Cf. 3.32n.; 6.3. 31: See 9.35; 10.44.

10:32–45: Third passion prediction and discipleship instruction (Mt 20.17–27; Lk 18.31–34). See also 8.27–9.1; 9.30–37. 32: Jerusalem, see 3.22n. Amazed . . . afraid, related but distinctive responses to Jesus. On amazement, see 1.27; 10.24; on fear, see 4.40; 6.50; 16.8. 33: Gentiles, included for the first time in the group who will execute Jesus. 34: Mock . . . spit . . . flog, graphic details about Jesus’s treatment that appear for the first time here; see 15.15–32. 35: James and John, with Peter, the sons of Zebedee are preeminent among disciples. See 1.19; 5.37n.; 9.2; 14.33. 37: In your glory, the disciples expect that Jesus will take his messianic place in the heavenly throne room (cf. 13.26; Dan 7.13). Their request shows that, as “first” among disciples, they miss Jesus’s point in 10.31. 38–39: Cup . . . baptism, images suggestive of entering God’s kingdom. The former connotes destiny (cf. 14.24; see also Pss 11.6; 23.5; 116.13; Isa 51.17,22); the latter signals either a final cleansing (cf. 1.4n.) or perhaps death to the present evil age (see Lk 12.15; Rom 6.3–6). 40: Prepared, a passive verb that implies God as sovereign subject who presides over human destiny. 42: Recognized as their rulers, lit., “thought-to-be rulers,” implying the provisional nature of earthly power. Tyrants over, human power prevails by subjugating people. 43: Among you, the disciples are to wield their power as Jesus does, reflecting a servant-like posture toward others (see Jn 13.1–20). 44: Slave of all, cf. 1 Cor 9.19; 2 Cor 4.5; Gal 5.13. 45: Son of Man, see 2.10n. As Son of Man, Jesus incorporates his followers into his model of servanthood that leads to the world’s redemption from the present evil age (see 13.12).

⁴⁶They came to Jericho. As he and his disciples and a large crowd were leaving Jericho, Bartimaeus son of Timaeus, a blind beggar, was sitting by the roadside. ⁴⁷When he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout out and say, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!” ⁴⁸Many sternly ordered him to be quiet, but he cried out even more loudly, “Son of David, have mercy on me!” ⁴⁹Jesus stood still and said, “Call him here.” And they called the blind man, saying to him, “Take heart; get up, he is calling you.” ⁵⁰So throwing off his cloak, he sprang up and came to Jesus. ⁵¹Then Jesus said to him, “What do you want me to do for you?” The blind man said to him, “My teacher,^a let me see again.” ⁵²Jesus said to him, “Go; your faith has made you well.” Immediately he regained his sight and followed him on the way.

11 When they were approaching Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples ²and said to them, “Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately as you enter it, you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden; untie it and bring it. ³If anyone says to you, ‘Why are you doing this?’ just say this,

‘The Lord needs it and will send it back here immediately.’” ⁴They went away and found a colt tied near a door, outside in the street. As they were untying it, ⁵some of the bystanders said to them, “What are you doing, untying the colt?” ⁶They told them what Jesus had said; and they allowed them to take it. ⁷Then they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks on it; and he sat on it. ⁸Many people spread their cloaks on the road, and others spread leafy branches that they had cut in the fields. ⁹Then those who went ahead and those who followed were shouting, “Hosanna!

Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!

¹⁰Blessed is the coming kingdom of our ancestor David!

Hosanna in the highest heaven!”

¹¹Then he entered Jerusalem and went into the temple; and when he had looked around at everything, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the twelve.

¹²On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. ¹³Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see

^a Aramaic Rabbouni

10.46–52: Jesus restores sight to Bartimaeus (Mt 20.29–34; Lk 18.35–43). The passage serves as a literary transition from the Gospel’s central section (8.27–10.45; cf. 8.22–26n.) to Jesus’s entry into Jerusalem. 46: Jericho, a town in the Jordan Valley east-northeast of Jerusalem and about a day’s journey away. Bartimaeus, son of Timaeus, see 3.17n. The name Timaeus probably reminded Mark’s audience of Plato’s familiar work by that name. Bartimaeus’s blindness may imply a critique of philosophical reasoning as the means to clear insight. 47: Son of David, rarely used in Mark, the title links Jesus to Jewish hopes for renewal of the Davidic kingdom (2 Sam 7.4–17; cf. 11.10). Mark probably downplays the title’s significance for Jesus because of its military implications (cf. 12.35–37). 52: Your faith has made you well, see 2.5n. The way, a term used by early Christians to denote discipleship; see Acts 9.2; 19.9; 24.14.

11.1–15.47: Jesus’s destiny in Jerusalem.

11.1–13.37: Jesus in Jerusalem, during Passover. 11.1–11: Jesus’s messianic entry (Mt 21.1–11; Lk 19.28–40; Jn 12.12–19). 1: Bethphage and Bethany, towns just east of Jerusalem where Passover pilgrims found shelter; the location of Bethphage is unknown, but Bethany is 2 mi (3.25 km) from the city. Mount of Olives, overlooking Jerusalem and linked in Jewish prophecy to God’s coming kingdom (Zech 14.4). 2: Colt, associated with God’s designated ruler (Zech 9.9; cf. Mt 21.5; Jn 12.15). 3: The Lord, an unusual reference to Jesus in Mark (cf. 5.19n.). 8: Cloaks . . . branches, details associated with royal processions (see 2 Kings 9.13; 1 Macc 13.51; 2 Macc 10.7). 9–10: The crowd’s acclaim, based on Ps 118.25–26, indicates they view him as a coming king. 9: Hosanna, lit., “save now!” The people’s hope for deliverance from the Roman occupation is misplaced; their disappointment will, in part, lead to Jesus’s death. 10: Our ancestor David, a phrase that further underscores the crowd’s political hopes for Jesus’s “kingship”; see 10.47–48n. Cf. Mt 21.9; Lk 1.32–33. 11: Jesus’s visit to the impressive Temple structure rebuilt under Herod the Great (37–4 BCE) apparently goes unnoticed.

11.12–25 [26]: Jesus’s prophetic indictment of the Temple (Mt 21.12–22; Lk 19.45–48; Jn 2.13–22). 13: Season, the Greek term “kairos” connotes time that carries a divine purpose, rather than simply chronological time.

whether perhaps he would find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs.¹⁴ He said to it, “May no one ever eat fruit from you again.” And his disciples heard it.

¹⁵Then they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling and those who were buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves;¹⁶ and he would not allow anyone to carry anything through the temple.¹⁷ He was teaching and saying, “Is it not written,

‘My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations?’

But you have made it a den of robbers.”¹⁸ And when the chief priests and the scribes heard it, they kept looking for a way to kill him; for they were afraid of him, because the whole crowd was spellbound by his teaching.¹⁹ And when evening came, Jesus and his disciples^a went out of the city.

²⁰In the morning as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered away to its roots.

²¹Then Peter remembered and said to him, “Rabbi, look! The fig tree that you cursed has withered.”²² Jesus answered them, “Have^b faith in God.²³ Truly I tell you, if you say to this mountain, ‘Be taken up and thrown into the sea,’ and if you do not doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say will come to pass, it will be done for you.²⁴ So I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received^c it, and it will be yours.

²⁵“Whenever you stand praying, forgive, if you have anything against anyone; so that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your trespasses.”^d

²⁷Again they came to Jerusalem. As he was walking in the temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to him²⁸ and said, “By what authority are you doing these things? Who gave you this authority to do them?”²⁹ Jesus said to them, “I will ask you one question; answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things.³⁰ Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin? Answer me.”³¹ They argued with one another, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’³² But shall we say, ‘Of human origin?’—they were afraid of the crowd, for all regarded John as truly a prophet.³³ So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.” And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.”

^a Gk they: other ancient authorities read he

^b Other ancient authorities read “If you have

^c Other ancient authorities read are receiving

^d Other ancient authorities add verse 26, “But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father in heaven forgive your trespasses.”

Cf. 1.15. 14: Jesus’s curse seems arbitrary—and thus symbolic—since fruit trees’ production depends on the horticultural cycle. 15: Drive out, a verb often associated in Mark with the casting out of demonic forces; see, e.g., 1.34,39; 3.15,22. Those who were selling, cf. Zech 14.21. Pilgrims exchanged Roman for Temple currency in the Court of the Gentiles. Doves, sacrificial animals (see Lev 1.15; 5.7). 17: Jesus cites Isa 56.7 and Jer 7.11 in his prophetic indictment of the Temple economy. Den of robbers, implicates Temple authorities for profiting at the expense of others. 18: Kill him, lit., “destroy him” (see 3.6). The leaders’ malicious intent stems at least partly from Jesus’s acclaim among the whole crowd. 21: Rabbi, see 9.5n. 22–25: Jesus’s effective curse on the fig tree displays the connection between “faith in God” and access to divine power. 22: Faith, or “trust,” in God’s sovereign power (1.15); see 2.5n. 23: This mountain, perhaps signaling Mount Zion, linked in Jewish tradition to God’s choice of Israel for the renewal of the earth (see, e.g., Isa 2.2–4; 24.23). Roman engineers “moved” mountains to build structures that maintained their occupying power. 25: Cf. Mt 6.5; Lk 18.11,13. Access to divine power depends on right relationships with God and other people. [26:] Reliable manuscripts omit 11.26, which strengthens the claim of 6.25 (see Lk 11.2–4).

11.27–33: Jerusalem leaders question Jesus’s authority (Mt 21.23–27; Lk 20.1–8). 27: Chief priests, the scribes, and the elders, see 8.31n. 28: Authority, Jesus’s authority has been noted from early in the Gospel (see, e.g., 1.22,27; 2.10). 29–30: In rabbinical fashion, Jesus answers one question with another; cf. 2.25–26; 10.3. Baptism of John, see 1.4–11; 6.14. 32: The crowd, see 11.18n. Since John had stirred hopes for God’s coming kingdom, the Jerusalem leaders seem wary about both a possible popular insurgency and the violent response such an uprising would inevitably elicit from Roman officials. 33: We do not know, a safe—and ironic—answer. Cf. 12.24.

12 Then he began to speak to them in parables. “A man planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a pit for the wine press, and built a watchtower; then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. ² When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce of the vineyard. ³ But they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. ⁴ And again he sent another slave to them; this one they beat over the head and insulted. ⁵ Then he sent another, and that one they killed. And so it was with many others; some they beat, and others they killed. ⁶ He had still one other, a beloved son. Finally he sent him to them, saying, ‘They will respect my son.’ ⁷ But those tenants said to one another, ‘This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.’ ⁸ So they seized him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard. ⁹ What then will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the tenants and give the vineyard to others. ¹⁰ Have you not read this scripture:

‘The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone;^a

¹¹ this was the Lord’s doing, and it is amazing in our eyes?’”

¹² When they realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowd. So they left him and went away.

¹³ Then they sent to him some Pharisees and some Herodians to trap him in what he said. ¹⁴ And they came and said to him, “Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not? ¹⁵ Should we pay them, or should we not?” But knowing their hypocrisy, he said to them, “Why are you putting me to the test? Bring me a denarius and let me see it.” ¹⁶ And they brought one. Then he said to them, “Whose head is this, and whose title?” They answered, “The emperor’s.” ¹⁷ Jesus said to them, “Give to the emperor the things that are the emperor’s, and to God the things that are God’s.” And they were utterly amazed at him.

¹⁸ Some Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and asked him a question, saying, ¹⁹ “Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man’s brother dies, leaving a wife but no child, the man^b shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. ²⁰ There were seven brothers; the first married and, when he died, left no children; ²¹ and the

^a Or keystone

^b Gk his brother

12.1–12: Parable of the wicked tenants (Mt 21.33–46; Lk 20.9–19). 1: In parables, see 3.23n., 4.11. Vineyard, an image used in the prophets to address Israel’s failures; see Isa 5.1–7; Jer 2.21; Ezek 19.10–14; Hos 10.1. 2: Season, see 11.13n. In Mark, the “season” of God’s kingdom is near (1.15). Slave, or servant, a term often used for biblical prophets (e.g., Am 3.7; Zech 1.6). 3–5: Through literary repetition, the parable emphasizes the motif of prophetic rejection (see 2 Chr 36.15–16). 6: Beloved son, see 1.11; 9.7, where the term refers explicitly to Jesus (cf. 15.39). 7: Heir . . . inheritance, recognition of the son’s legitimate claim to the property and the tenants’ wanton designs on it; cf. Mt 25.34. 9: Destroy the tenants, language connoting triumph over evil (see 1.24; cf. 3.6). Others, probably righteous Gentiles, who assume their place in God’s coming kingdom (see Mt 25.31–46). 10–11: An explanation of Jesus’s rejection and vindication, perhaps also hinting at the inclusion of the “others” mentioned in 12.9. See Ps 118.22–23, also quoted in Acts 4.11; Eph 2.20; 1 Pet 2.7. 12: Feared the crowd, see 11.18n., 32n.

12.13–34: Jerusalem leaders attempt to ensnare Jesus. 12.13–17: A question about taxes (Mt 22.15–22; Lk 20.20–26). 13: Herodians, see 3.6n. 15: See 2.8. Denarius, see 6.37n. 16: Head, lit., “image.” Roman coins featured the head of the emperor. Title, lit., “inscription,” which read, “Tiberius Caesar, Son of the Divine Augustus, Augustus.” 17: Jesus’s ambiguous response leaves his opponents—and readers—to ponder the relationship between political and religious power. See Mt 17.24–27; Rom 13.1–7; 1 Pet 2.13–17. Amazed, see 1.22; 5.20.

12.18–27: A question about resurrection (Mt 22.23–33; Lk 20.27–40). 18: Sadducees, a party of the wealthy elite. Since Annas II, high priest in 62 CE, was a Sadducee (Josephus, Ant. 20.197–99), his brother-in-law, Caiaphas, the high priest under whom Jesus is executed, probably was as well (see Acts 4.1; 5.17). Josephus says this party denied both the “traditions of the elders” (see 7.3n.) and the end-time resurrection of the dead (Josephus, Ant. 18.16). 19: Deut 25.5–6 stipulates the practice of “levirate marriage” (see also Gen 38.8).

second married the widow^a and died, leaving no children; and the third likewise;²² none of the seven left children. Last of all the woman herself died.²³ In the resurrection^b whose wife will she be? For the seven had married her.”

²⁴ Jesus said to them, “Is not this the reason you are wrong, that you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God?²⁵ For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven.²⁶ And as for the dead being raised, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the story about the bush, how God said to him, ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?’²⁷ He is God not of the dead, but of the living; you are quite wrong.”

²⁸ One of the scribes came near and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, he asked him, “Which commandment is the first of all?”²⁹ Jesus answered, “The first is, ‘Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one;’³⁰ you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength.’³¹ The second is this, ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ There is no other commandment greater than these.”

³² Then the scribe said to him, “You are right, Teacher; you have truly said that ‘he is one, and besides him there is no other’;³³ and ‘to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the strength,’ and ‘to love one’s neighbor as oneself,’—this is much more important than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.”³⁴ When Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.” After that no one dared to ask him any question.

³⁵ While Jesus was teaching in the temple, he said, “How can the scribes say that the Messiah^c is the son of David?³⁶ David himself, by the Holy Spirit, declared,

“The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand,
until I put your enemies under your feet.”’

³⁷ David himself calls him Lord; so how can he be his son?” And the large crowd was listening to him with delight.

³⁸ As he taught, he said, “Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces,³⁹ and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets!⁴⁰ They devour widows’ houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation.”

^a Gk her

^b Other ancient authorities add when they rise

^c Or the Christ

24: Scriptures . . . power of God, Jesus challenges both the Sadducees’ interpretive approach and their denial of God’s coming reign; cf. 12.18n. 25: Angels in heaven, those raised for the final judgment would inhabit spiritual bodies; see 1 Cor 15.35–50. 27: Living, Jesus deflects attention from the Sadducees’ feigned interest in the afterlife to highlight God’s activity in the present (see also 12.26; Ex 3.6,15–16). 12.28–34: A question about the commandments (Mt 22.34–40; Lk 10.25–28). 29–30: Jesus cites the opening of the Shema, Deut 6.4–5, and adds “with all your mind.” 31: Love of God and love of neighbor (Lev 19.18) are often linked; see also Rom 13.9; Gal 5.14; Jas 2.8). 33: Jesus echoes a common biblical view (see Hos 6.6). 34: Not far from the kingdom of God, possibly in two respects: Jesus thinks God’s kingdom is drawing near (1.15; 9.1), and the scribe’s answer reveals that he belongs to it.

12.35–40: Jesus challenges the scribes (Mt 22.41–46; Lk 20.41–47). 35: Jesus turns the questioning on his interrogators. Son of David, see 10.47n. Elsewhere, Christian writers emphasize Jesus’s Davidic ties (see Mt 1.20; Lk 2.4; Rom 1.3). 36–37: Jesus cites Ps 110.1 as a proof text to deny the Messiah’s Davidic lineage; elsewhere that passage is used of Jesus assuming a heavenly throne after the resurrection (see Acts 2.34–35; 1 Cor 15.25; Heb 1.13). 37: Large crowd . . . delight, see 11.18n. This crowd’s response may also reflect misplaced political hopes. 38: Long robes, distinctive attire of religious leaders. Elsewhere this critique is directed at the Pharisees (cf. Mt 23.1–36; Lk 11.37–44). 39: Places of honor, ancient meal practices designated one’s status according to seating assignments; see Lk 14.7–11. 40: The prophets condemn those who take advantage of widows as weaker members of the social order (e.g., Isa 10.1–2; Zech 7.10; Mal 3.5; cf. Ps 94.1–7). Appearance, see Mt 6.5–6; 23.5–6.

⁴¹ He sat down opposite the treasury, and watched the crowd putting money into the treasury. Many rich people put in large sums. ⁴² A poor widow came and put in two small copper coins, which are worth a penny. ⁴³ Then he called his disciples and said to them, “Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury. ⁴⁴ For all of them have contributed out of their abundance; but she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, all she had to live on.”

13 As he came out of the temple, one of his disciples said to him, “Look, Teacher, what large stones and what large buildings!” ² Then Jesus asked him, “Do you see these great buildings? Not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down.”

³ When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately, ⁴ “Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign that all these things are about to be accomplished?” ⁵ Then Jesus began to say to them, “Beware that no one leads you astray. ⁶ Many will come in my name and say, ‘I am he!’^a and they will lead many astray. ⁷ When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed; this must take place, but the end is still to come. ⁸ For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; there will be earthquakes in various places; there will be famines. This is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

⁹ “As for yourselves, beware; for they will hand you over to councils; and you will be beaten in synagogues; and you will stand before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them. ¹⁰ And the good news^b must first be proclaimed to all nations. ¹¹ When they bring you to trial and hand you over, do not worry beforehand about what you are to say; but say whatever is given you at that time, for it is not you who speak, but the Holy Spirit. ¹² Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death; ¹³ and you will be hated by all because of my name. But the one who endures to the end will be saved.

¹⁴ “But when you see the desolating sacrilege set up where it ought not to be (let the reader understand), then those in Judea

^a Gk I am

^b Gk gospel

12.41–44: A widow’s lavish gift (Lk 21.1–4). 42: The story highlights the exemplary devotion of a widow, whose social position is marginal (see 12.40n.). Two small copper coins, the Greek calls the coinage a Roman quadrans, a tiny fraction of a laborer’s daily earnings. 44: Jesus contrasts giving out of abundance with giving out of poverty. Everything she had, lit., “her whole life”; see 8.35–36; cf. 10.22.

13.1–37: Jesus predicts the Temple’s destruction and cataclysmic events to follow (Mt 24.1–44; Lk 21.5–33). Mark uses this teaching to interpret his audience’s present reality (see esp. 13.14). 1: Herod the Great inaugurated a massive expansion of the Temple complex to create the largest sacred space (ca. 35 acres) in the Roman world. 2: See Jer 26.6; Mic 3.12. Roman soldiers demolished the buildings in 70 CE, but massive stones of part of the western retaining wall of the Temple platform remain a religious site. 3: Peter, James, John, and Andrew, see 1.16–20; 5.37n. 4: The disciples connect the Temple’s destruction to the coming of the kingdom at the end of days. 6: I am he, lit., “I am”; see 6.50n. Cf. 9.39, where Jesus approves of an exorcist using his “name.” 8: Birth pangs, a common apocalyptic metaphor for the human suffering associated with the last days (see Isa 13.6–8; Hos 13.13; Rom 8.22; 1 Thess 5.3). Other images in this verse echo passages that anticipate God’s redemption (see, e.g., Isa 13.13; 14.30; 19.2; Jer 22.23; Rev 6.8; 11.13; 16.18). 9: Yourselves, lit., “you yourselves,” designating both Jesus’s companions (13.3) and Mark’s audience (13.14). Hand you over, see 9.31; 10.33. Councils . . . synagogues, Jewish governing bodies and gathering places in Judea and the wider world. 10: Good news, see 1.1n.; 1.14. Nations, or “Gentiles,” used in Jewish literature to denote non-Jews, and in Roman propaganda of the Empire’s conquered peoples. God’s reign will be universal, eclipsing religious, ethnic, and political divisions. 11: Holy Spirit, see 1.8. 12: As in other apocalyptic literature (e.g., 2 Esd 6.24), allegiance to God’s kingdom can prove divisive in the context of existing social structures (cf. 3.31–35; Jn 9.18–23; 16.2). 13: The full establishment of God’s kingdom means the end of the present evil; see vv. 4,7,8. Saved, the destiny of the faithful at judgment day; cf. 10.26n. 14: Desolating sacrilege, allusion to the defilement of the Temple during the Maccabean Era (see must flee to the mountains;¹⁵ the one on the housetop must not go down or enter the house to take anything away;¹⁶ the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat.¹⁷ Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days!¹⁸ Pray that it may not be in winter.¹⁹ For in those days there will be suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the creation that God created until now, no, and never will be.

²⁰ And if the Lord had not cut short those days, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect, whom he chose, he has cut short those days.²¹ And if anyone says to you at that time, ‘Look! Here is the Messiah!’^a or ‘Look! There he is!’—do not believe it.²² False messiahs^b and false prophets will appear and produce signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, the elect.²³ But be alert; I have already told you everything.

²⁴ “But in those days, after that suffering, the sun will be darkened,

and the moon will not give its light,

²⁵ and the stars will be falling from heaven, and the powers in the heavens will be shaken.

²⁶ Then they will see ‘the Son of Man coming in clouds’ with great power and glory.²⁷ Then he will send out the angels, and gather his elect from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of heaven.

²⁸ “From the fig tree learn its lesson: as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near.²⁹ So also, when you see these things taking place, you know that he^c is near, at the very gates.³⁰ Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place.³¹ Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

³² “But about that day or hour no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father.³³ Beware, keep alert;^d for you do not know when the time will come.³⁴ It is like a man going on a journey, when he leaves home and puts his slaves in charge, each with his work, and commands the doorkeeper to be on the watch.³⁵ Therefore, keep awake—for you do not know when the master of the house will come, in the evening, or at midnight, or at cockcrow, or at dawn.³⁶ or else he may find you asleep when he comes suddenly.³⁷ And what I say to you I say to all: Keep awake.”

14 It was two days before the Passover and the festival of Unleavened Bread. The chief priests and the scribes were looking

^a Or the Christ

^b Or *christ*s

^c Or it

^d Other ancient authorities add and pray

Dan 7.27; 11.31; 12.11); may also refer to the Zealots’ occupation of the Temple during the Jewish War (66–70 CE). Let the reader understand, addresses Mark’s audience, perhaps to support those who fled the violence in Jerusalem. 18: In winter, when adverse weather makes travel treacherous. 19: Suffering, the Greek term “thlipsis” is used for suffering that has cosmic implications; see vv. 24–25; Dan 12.1; 2 Cor 4.17; Rev 2.9–10; 7.14. 20: A shorter timeframe curtails the suffering of the faithful. Elect, or “chosen,” applied in the Hebrew Bible to Israel (see Isa 42.1; 43.20) and in the NT to the church (see Rom 8.33; Eph 1.4–5; 1 Pet 1.2; 2.9; cf. Rom 11.28–29). 21–22: Messiah, see 1.1n.; 8.28; 13.5. Josephus mentions prophets who performed signs during the revolt (Ant. 20.97,168–70). 23: Be alert, See 4.24; 8.15,18. Cf. 1 Thess 5.6. 24–25: See 15.33; Isa 13.10; 34.4; 50.3; Ezek 32.7–8; Joel 2.10,31; Am 8.9. In those days, shorthand for the “day of the Lord,” when God’s kingdom will prevail. 26–27: Son of Man coming in clouds, see 2.10n.; in Dan 7.13–14, this figure assumes a heavenly throne after the beasts have been deposed. Winds . . . heaven. The “elect” comprise all who remain loyal to God’s reign, regardless of nationality, ethnicity, or religious tradition; see v. 20n. 28–31: See 11.12–14,20–21. 30: This generation, see 8.12n. If literal, it means that God’s kingdom will arrive within a few decades (cf. 9.1); if metaphorical, it could denote the present evil age, for as long as it persists. 32–37: Jesus rejects predicting specific timing but exhorts hearers to readiness; see v. 23; 14.32–42; Rom 13.11–14; 1 Thess 5.1–11. 34: Man going on a journey, like an absentee landlord, God will arrive to see what care the tenants have taken; see 12.1–11; Mt 24.45–51; 25.13–30; Lk 12.35–46; 19.11–27. 35: Evening . . . dawn, the four segments of the night watch. 37: To all, Jesus’s message extends beyond his immediate companions; see v. 14n.

14.1–15.27: Jesus’s arrest, trial, and execution (Mt 26.1–27.66; Lk 22.1–23.56; Jn 13.1–19.42). 14.1–11: Preparations for Jesus’s arrest (Mt 26.1–16; Lk 22.1–6). Plans to eliminate Jesus (14.1–2; 14.10–11) frame—and contrast for a way to arrest Jesus^a by stealth and kill him; ² for they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.”

³ While he was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,^b as he sat at the table, a woman came with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment of nard, and she broke open the jar and poured the ointment on his head. ⁴ But some were there who said to one another in anger, “Why was the ointment wasted in this way? ⁵ For this ointment could have been sold for more than three hundred denarii,^c and the money given to the poor.” And they scolded her. ⁶ But Jesus said, “Let her alone; why do you trouble her? She has performed a good service for me. ⁷ For you always have the poor with you, and you can show kindness to them whenever you wish; but you will not always have me. ⁸ She has done what she could; she has anointed my body beforehand for its burial. ⁹ Truly I tell you, wherever the good news^d is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.”

¹⁰ Then Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve, went to the chief priests in order to betray him to them. ¹¹ When they heard it, they were greatly pleased, and promised to give him money. So he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

¹² On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, his disciples said to him, “Where do you want us to go and make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?” ¹³ So he sent two of his disciples, saying to them, “Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him,^e and wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?’ ¹⁵ He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there.” ¹⁶ So the disciples set out and went to the city, and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

¹⁷ When it was evening, he came with the twelve. ¹⁸ And when they had taken their places and were eating, Jesus said, “Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me, one who is eating with me.” ¹⁹ They began to be distressed and to say to him one after another, “Surely, not I?” ²⁰ He said to them, “It is one of the twelve, one who is dipping bread^f into the bowl^f with me. ²¹ For the Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by

^a Gk him

^b The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

^c The denarius was the usual day’s wage for a laborer

^d Or gospel

^e Gk lacks bread

^f Other ancient authorities read same bowl

with—an unnamed woman’s sacrificial anointing (14.3–9). 1: Passover . . . Unleavened Bread, celebration of Israel’s miraculous deliverance from a foreign overlord; see Ex 12.1–13.16; 2 Chr 35.17. Chief priests . . . scribes, see 8.31n. 2: The influx of pilgrims for a feast celebrating liberation made the dangers of a riot acute during Passover (Josephus, Ant. 20.105–12). The religious leaders were wary of any popular figure who might foment rebellion. 3: Bethany, see 11.1n. Simon the leper, see 1.40n. Alabaster . . . nard, in breaking the container the woman gives up a valuable container along with its entire contents. Nard, an aromatic oil imported from the Himalayan mountains (see Song 1.12; 4.13–14). The anointing confirms Jesus’s status as the “Christ” (lit., “anointed one;” see 1.1n.). 5: The sum is almost a year’s wages for a day laborer. Cf. 6.37. 7: Jesus affirms both the practice of caring for the poor (see Deut 15.11) and the woman’s sacrificial gift. Not always have me, see 2.19–20. 8: She has done what she could, lit., “what she had, she did,” a stark reminder of the woman’s full-scale investment—even “trust”—in Jesus’s messianic purposes; cf. 12.41–44. Jewish burial rituals include anointing the body with perfume. 9: Good news, see 1.1n., 14. Whole world, highlights the universal scope of God’s kingdom (see 13.10,27). In remembrance of her, cf. Lk 22.19; 1 Cor 11.24, where the phrase similarly highlights Jesus’s self-offering. 10: Judas Iscariot, see 3.19. Betray, see 9.31; 10.33; 14.11; see also 13.9.

14.12–25: Jesus celebrates the Passover (Mt 26.17–29; cf. Lk 22.7–23). 12: First day . . . when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, inconsistent with the standard practice of slaughtering the animal on 14 Nisan, for the beginning of Passover on 15 Nisan; cf. Jn 18.28; 19.14,31. 16: As he had told them, Mark notes Jesus’s prescient instructions to his disciples (cf. 11.2–6). 17: Jesus’s prediction of betrayal is ironic, since “one who is eating with me” typically signals deep friendship. See Ps 41.9; cf. Jn 13.18. 21: An obscure saying, unknown in Jewish tradition, functions whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born.”

²² While they were eating, he took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to them, and said, “Take; this is my body.” ²³ Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, and all of them drank from it. ²⁴ He said to them, “This is my blood of the^a covenant, which is poured out for many. ²⁵ Truly I tell you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.”

